The First BOOK of MOSES, CALLED GENESIS;

WITH A CLEAR, FULL, AND UNIVERSAL,
EXPOSITION and COMMENTARY.

ARGUMENT.

The name of this Book, in the Hebrew copies of the Bible, is Bereshith, which signifies, in the beginning, being the first word of it, as the other four books of Moses are also called from their initial words. The Greek version calls it Genesis, signifying begotten, and so we and other versions from thence. It is called the first book of Moses, it being the most ancient, and because there are four more that follow; the name the Jews give to the whole is five-fifths of the law, to which the Greek word Pentateuch answers, by which we commonly call those five books, of which this is the first. It contains a series of events, of the utmost importance, which we must have been for ever ignorant of, had not Moses received the revelation by immediate inspiration, from the great and almighty God, and through his infinite mercy handed it down to posterity.

CHAP. I.

1 The creation of heaven and earth, 3 of the light, 6 of the firmament. 9 The earth separated from the waters, and made fruitful. 14 The creation of the sun, moon, and stars, 20 of fish and fowl, 24 of beasts and cattle, 26 of man in the image of God; and his blessing. 29 Food appointed.

IN the beginning God created the heaven and the earth.

2 And the earth was without form and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters.

3 And God said, Let there be light: and there was light.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. I.

1 In the beginning God created] The words, in the beginning, here imply in time, to prove that the world had not an eternal existence. The word Elohim, here interpreted God, signifies the great Creator, as the sole object of religious adoration. Being used in the plural number, it implies a plurality of distinct persons in deity, the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, who operated in this wonderful creation. Gen. i. 26. xvi. 13.

The Hebrew word tohu signifies a fluid mass, but the whole of the earth, before the creation of the firmament, was a fluid mass, and the waters were upon the face of the deep. These are said to be without form and void, because they were not yet gathered into their proper places, and had not yet received their proper forms. They were in a state of confusion and disorder, and were not yet separated into their proper elements. The word darkness signifies the absence of light, and the word deep signifies the vast abyss. The Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters, which is to be understood not of a wind; since the air, which the wind is a motion of, was not made until the second day. The word moved, signifies to sit hovering or fluttering, as a bird does over her eggs, by her vital power. It was a fluid mass, and the waters were upon the face of the deep. These are said to be without form and void, because they were not yet gathered into their proper places, and had not yet received their proper forms. They were in a state of confusion and disorder, and were not yet separated into their proper elements. The word darkness signifies the absence of light, and the word deep signifies the vast abyss. The Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters, which is to be understood not of a wind; since the air, which the wind is a motion of, was not made until the second day. The word moved, signifies to sit hovering or fluttering, as a bird does over her eggs, by her vital

No. 1.

4 And God saw the light, that it was good: and God divided the light from the darkness.

5 And God called the light Day, and the darkness he called Night. And the evening and the morning were the first day.

6 And God said, Let there be a firmament in the midst of the waters, and let it divide the waters from the waters.

7 And God made the firmament, and divided the waters which were under the firmament from the waters which were above the firmament: and it was so.

8 And God called the firmament Heaven. And the evening and the morning were the second day.

9 And God said, Let the waters under the hea-warmth, to cherish and quicken them; and, by a natural metaphor, represents the Holy Spirit exerting his energy over the inactive, lifeless, lumpish mass, to impress every element with life and power, and thereby dispose them for the future ends for which they were designed by infinite Wisdom.

3 And God said] We find this phrase used nine times in this account of the creation, and it is most beautifully paraphrased and explained in Psalm xxxiii. 6. as expressive of the authority and efficacy of the Divine Being, whose word is clothed with power. "He spake, and it was done: he commanded, and it stood fast."

Let there be light, &c.] Which appeared at once, "God commanded light to shine out of darkness," 2 Cor. iv. 6. his first production is light, that enlightens and cheers universal nature, and in its glory and beneficence bears the greatest resemblance to its Maker, the Father of lights, from whom cometh every good and perfect gift; hence, "God himself is called light," 1 John i. 5. This light was some bright shining body, perhaps somewhat like the pillar of fire in the wilderness, and from which the sun and stars appear to have been afterwards produced.

4 And God saw the light] God approved it, as very pleasant and delightful, useful and beneficial, according to the idea of it in his own mind, agreeable to which it was made, and what would answer the end for which it was created.

And God divided the light from the darkness.] That is, he made them take different places by turns; the light shining upon the one half of the mingled mass, and the darkness covering the other: in much the same manner as our sun illuminates the one half of the globe, and the other half alternately.

5 And the evening, &c.] As the darkness was before the light, thus the evening, or night, is named before the morning, or day, hence, formerly, almost all nations, particularly the Jews, Athenians, ancient Germans, &c. began their natural day, consisting of twenty-four hours, from the evening or setting of the sun.

6 Let there be a firmament, &c.] The Hebrew word signifies an expansion or curtain, which includes both the region of the air, or atmosphere; and the superior and purer region of the sky, where the luminaries are placed.

7 And God made the firmament.] It not being signified that God saw that it was good, various have been the conjectures relative to the same. Rabbi Jachi, a learned Jew, says, that this work was not completed till the third day, when all sorts of vegetables were created, and there the expression is repeated twice.

31 And God saw every thing that he had made, and behold, it was very good. And the evening and the morning were the sixth day.

31 And I saw every thing that he had made. God now takes a general survey of the world, as he had made; and beholding the perfection, the grandeur, confidence, and harmony of the universe, it was very good, expressive of the Creator's glory, and conducive to the happiness of his creatures, the great ends for which he created it. Often should we contemplate his works, and trace out the existence, power, wisdom, and goodness of the divine architect therein displayed; and "devoutly worship him that created the heavens, the earth, and the seas; for of him, and through him, and to him, are all things: to him be glory and dominion for ever."

How astonishingly great is the power of God here represented, who from nothing could form such prodigious, and such well-

6 But there went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground.

6 But there went up a mist, &c.] At first God, by his creative power, brought the vegetables to perfection without seed, and without concurrence of the soil, sun, rain, or any other natural cause.

7 And the LORD God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul.

8 ¶ And the LORD God planted a garden eastward, in Eden; and there he put the man whom he had formed.

9 And out of the ground made the LORD God to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food; the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, and the tree of knowledge of good and evil.

10 And a river went out of Eden to water the garden; and from thence it was parted and became into four heads.

11 The name of the first is Pison: that is it which compasseth the whole land of Havilah, where there is gold;

12 And the gold of that land is good: there is bdellium and the onyx-stone.

13 And the name of the second river is Gihon: the same is it that compasseth the whole land of Ethiopia.

14 And the name of the third river is Hiddekel: that is it which goeth towards the east of Assyria. And the fourth river is Euphrates.

15 And the LORD God took the man, and put him into the garden of Eden to dress it and to keep it.

16 And the LORD God commanded the man, saying, Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat:

7 And the Lord God formed man, &c.] Man is created in the image of God, to constitute his dignity; but his body is formed of the dust to teach him humility. Of the dust, not dry, but moist, were we framed; so several understand it, and the name Adam signifies red earth, or fresh and moist clay, of which he was made, as the vessel by the potter. Having organized our animal frame, in all our parts, the Father of Spirits next infuses into it the vital and active principle, the immortal soul. This is expressed here by God's breathing into man's body the breath of life, to signify that the soul is produced by God's immediate power, and not formed of any created substance, as the body was; that it is a distinct essence from the body, superior to it in nature, and the great principle of life in the human frame; which being formerly a lifeless inactive lump, animated with this active principle becomes a living soul.

8 And the Lord God planted a garden eastward, in Eden, &c.] The name of Eden signifies pleasure; implying, that this garden was a most pleasant and delightful place; prepared by God for the reception of Adam. Indeed the whole world was a garden, in comparison of what it is now, since the fall: what then must this spot of ground, this garden be, which was separated and distinguished from the rest, and the more immediate plantation of God, and therefore is called the garden of the Lord, Gen. xiii. 10. Ezek. xxviii. 13. The various conjectures among the learned concerning the situation of Paradise, and the garden of Eden, are rather curious than useful, nor can the precise spot be certainly ascertained. The word eastward can only mean that it was situated more to the east than the place where Moses was when he wrote. Some have conjectured it to be in the delightful plains of Armenia, but that opinion is not supported by any other reason but the beauty of the place. Possibly the garden of Eden never existed after the deluge, and that since that event, such alterations have happened, as render its situation unknown.

9 The tree of life, &c.] Several have been the conjectures with regard to the nature and use of this tree. Some have considered it as a constant memorial only of that life, and the continuance of it, which our first parents derived from God. Others have thought it was so called, because the fruit of it had a certain vital influence to cure diseases, and to cherish and maintain man in immortal health and vigor, till he should have been translated from the earthly to the heavenly Paradise. But though both these may have been well meant, yet it was, no doubt, called the tree of life, because it was a memorial, pledge, and seal, of that eternal life, which, had man continued obedient, he would have been raised to the possession of.

The tree of knowledge of good and evil.] Certainly this tree was so called, not because it had any secret power to inspire those who might eat of it with any useful, much less with universal knowledge, as the serpent afterwards pretended; but because, by their abstaining from, or eating of it, after it was prohibited, God would see, in fact, whether our first parents would prove good or evil in that state of probation in which he placed them; and especially, because they would know in their experience, what good they should forfeit or retain, and what evil they would escape or incur, according as they should eat, or not eat, of that forbidden fruit.

10 A river went out of Eden.] This is supposed to be the river Euphrates.

15 And the Lord God took the man, &c.] The place from whence Adam is supposed to be taken was near Damascus, where he is said to be created; the place whereon the temple was afterwards built. In the Targum we read, that God "gave Adam the law, and he put him into the garden of Eden, that is, the garden of the law, to dress it, to do the affirmative precepts of the law, and to keep it, the negative

17 But of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it; for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die.

18 ¶ And the LORD God said, It is not good that the man should be alone: I will make him an help meet for him:

19 And out of the ground the LORD God formed every beast of the field, and every fowl of the air; and brought them unto Adam to see what he would call them: and whatsoever Adam called every living creature, that was the name thereof.

20 And Adam gave names to all cattle, and to the fowl of the air, and to every beast of the field; but for Adam there was not found an help meet for him.

21 And the LORD God caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept: and he took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof;

22 And the rib which the LORD God had taken from man, made he a woman, and brought her unto the man.

23 And Adam said, This is now bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh: she shall be called Woman, because she was taken out of man.

24 Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh.

25 And they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed.

precepts:" though Aben Ezra interprets this service, watering the garden, and keeping wild beasts from entering into it. And indeed the word may be rendered to till, as well as to dress, as it is in chap. iii. 33. and some have thought Adam was to have planted and sowed, had he continued in Eden.

17 But of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil thou shalt not eat of it.] Seeing that Adam had an unlimited grant of all the other trees of the garden to participate of, it could be no unkindness in God to prohibit this one, as a trial of his obedience to his commands, under whose government he was, and whom it was fit he should in all things obey.

For in the day that thou eatest thereof, thou shalt surely die.] Signifying "thou shalt in dying, die," or "become liable to death," which denotes the certainty of it, and may have regard to more deaths than one; not only a corporal one, which in some sense immediately took place; man became at once a mortal creature, who otherwise continuing in a state of innocence, and by eating of the tree of life, as he was allowed to do, would have lived an immortal life; of the eating of which tree, by sinning he was debarred, and his natural life not now to be continued long, at least not for ever; he was immediately arraigned, tried, found guilty, and condemned to death, became obnoxious to it, and death at once began to work in him; sin sowed the seeds of it in his body, and a train of miseries, afflictions, and diseases, began to appear, which at length terminated in death. Moreover, a spiritual or mortal death immediately ensued: he lost his original righteousness, in which he was created; the image of God in him was deformed; his soul and his body were corrupted, and his soul was separated from his body, the consequence of which was, that he was no longer a Surety and Saviour, who, by his righteousness, might have justified, must have been eternally separated from God, to him and all his posterity, and the wages of sin, death.

18 And the Lord God said, It is not good that man should be alone.] i. e. It is not good that man should be alone for his own personal comfort, or for the purpose of the world, or for the benefit of the people of the earth. Not that the divine favour, or the most rational happiness, arises from our social relations, or our connections in life. Our bounteous Creator was well sensible of this, and therefore determines here to make a help meet for the man, of the same nature and species diversified only into another, with whom he might live in the most intimate friendship, and who, by their mutual intercourse might promote their mutual happiness and comfort.

22 And the rib, which the Lord God had taken from man, &c.] The woman was formed of a rib, with the flesh thereon, out of Adam's side, to note the wife's equality with the man, and that she is his companion, and to be treated with the same kindness and affection by her husband.

And brought her unto the man.] With intent to honour the institution of marriage; Adam accepted her as an help meet for him, suitable to his person, and useful on all occasions for their mutual comfort, and the propagation of their species. And God, by Adam, declared the general law of marriage, requiring the most affectionate cohabitation, inseparable union, and intimate communion during life.

25 And were not ashamed.] Having nothing in them, or on them, or about them, that caused shame; nothing sinful, defective, scandalous, or blame-worthy; no sin in their nature, no guilt on their consciences, or wickedness in their hands or actions; and particularly they were not ashamed of their being naked, no more than children are to see each other, or we to behold them; besides, they were

4 And the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die :

10 I heard thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid, &c.] Adam no sooner committed one sin, than he added another, by concealing the cause, and giving an evasive and deceitful reply to his Maker. He had often heard the voice of God with pleasure in the garden, but now he is to meet him as an almighty Judge, whom he had offended: he now hides himself through fear of his wrath and displeasure, and because of his sin, which had made his soul naked, though he was not as yet ingenuous enough to say so.

11 And he said, Who told thee that thou wast naked? Hast thou eaten of the tree, whereof I commanded thee that thou shouldest not eat?

12 And the man said, The woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat.

13 And the LORD God said unto the woman, What is this that thou hast done? And the woman said, The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat.

14 ¶ And the LORD God said unto the serpent, Because thou hast done this, thou art cursed above all cattle, and above every beast of the field; upon thy belly shalt thou go, and dust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life:

15 And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel.

16 ¶ Unto the woman he said, I will greatly multiply thy sorrow and thy conception; in sorrow thou shalt bring forth children; and thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee.

17 And unto Adam he said, Because thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tree of which I commanded thee, saying,

Thou shalt not eat of it: cursed is the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life;

18 Thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee; and thou shalt eat the herb of the field;

19 In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return.

20 And Adam called his wife's name Eve, because she was the mother of all living.

21 Unto Adam also and his wife did the LORD God make coats of skins, and clothed them.

22 ¶ And the LORD God said, Behold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil: and now lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever:

23 Therefore the LORD God sent him forth from the garden of Eden, to till the ground, from whence he was taken.

24 So he drove out the man: and he placed at the east of the garden of Eden, Cherubims, and a flaming sword, which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life.

C H A P.

11, 12, 13, And he said, &c.] Now the trembling criminals called from their retreat, before their judge, were asked whether they had eaten of the forbidden tree. They cannot deny their crime; but before they confess, endeavour as much as possible to excuse it. Adam throws the blame of his transgression upon his wife; insinuating, that the very woman who had been given as a help meet for him, pointing to her, had become his ruin; thereby tacitly impeaching the goodness of God, who had given her. The woman, convinced that the charge brought against her was just, endeavours by transferring the crime upon the serpent to exculpate herself.

14 And the Lord God said unto the serpent, &c.] Our first parents being brought to a just sense of their crime, God next pronounces upon them and the serpent some proper punishments. He begins with the serpent, as the principal offender. As the serpent had co-operated with the devil, to the dishonour of God and destruction of mankind, God curses it above the whole animal creation, and degrades it from flying in the air, or walking with its head and breast erect, to go crawling upon the ground; and, instead of feeding on herbs and fruits, to live, in a great measure, on the dust of the earth. "That old serpent, the devil," he curses above the whole rational creation, by degrading him farther from heaven, and abandoning him finally to the love and practice of evil, as his sole delight, and to that utter disgrace and misery to which he should be condemned for evermore.

15 And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, &c.] Notwithstanding this is true of the animal serpent, yet it has a particular respect to the old serpent, the devil; and implies, that however he and the woman had been combined against God, their friendship should soon issue in the greatest enmity between each other, and especially between their seed. By the seed of the woman, all interpreters understand Christ the Saviour; including his friends and followers in every age and nation.

16 Unto the woman he said, I will greatly multiply thy sorrow, &c.] As the woman was next to the serpent, in the transgression, therefore next to the serpent, she receives her sentence. Her punishment was sorrow in conception, and pain in child-birth, which women above all creatures have been observed to endure; subjection in all her desires to the will of her husband, whose advice she had neglected, following her own; and, Adam's greater dominion over her than was either given him, or he would ever have exercised, in a state of innocence and uninterrupted felicity.

17 And unto Adam he said, &c.] Adam last of all received his sentence; which was, that the ground, instead of its original fertility, should be cursed with barrenness, briars and thorns; and whereas it would have produced every thing with little culture, all things must now be forced from it by toilsome labour; that instead of the delicious fruits of Paradise, he must now go eat the herbs of the field, in common with the beasts; that with the sweat of his brow, he must earn his bread; and finally, that instead of being translated, soul and body, to the Paradise above, his body should return to the dust from whence it came.

20 And Adam called his wife's name Eve, &c.] Isha, woman, or wife, was the only name given to her before in the original; now Adam calls her Chavah, or Eve, "living" or "giving life;" because, by the promise of God, she was not only to live herself, but to be the mother of all mankind, and particularly of the great Redeemer, by whom they were to be recovered from death to everlasting life.

21 God made coats of skins, and clothed them.] These coats were made of the skins of beasts, slain, not merely for this purpose, nor for food, but for sacrifice: as a type of the woman's seed whose heel was to be bruised, and who was to suffer death for the sins of men, and therefore to keep up and direct the faith of our first parents to the slain Lamb of God from the foundation of the world, and of all believers in all ages, until the Messiah should come and die, as a sacrifice for sin, the sacrifices of slain beasts were appointed: and of the skins of these the Lord God, either by his almighty power, or by the ministry of angels, made coats for the man and his wife; or he instructed and directed themselves to make them, which was an instance of goodness to them, not only to provide food for them as before, but also raiment; and which, though not rich, fine, and soft, yet was substantial, and sufficient to protect them from all the inclemencies of the weather; and as they might serve to put them in mind of their fall, so of their mortality by it, and of the condition sin had brought them into; being in themselves, and according to their deserts, like the beasts that perish; as also they were emblems of the robe of Christ's righteousness, and the garments of his salvation, to be wrought out by his obedience, sufferings, and death: with which being arrayed, they should not be found naked, nor be condemned, but be secured from future misery.

22 Behold, the man is become as one of us, &c.] Some have looked upon what God here says as an irony or sarcasm, upbraiding our first parents with that knowledge of good and evil, and the resemblance thereby of the divine omniscience they had acquired. However, there is no irony here, but on the contrary, a most pathetic lamentation over his ruined condition, and gracious resolution to turn him out of Paradise, lest his vain hopes to fortify himself against death, by eating of the tree of life, should tempt him to neglect the great salvation, which in God's covenant, was offered to him.

24 So he drove out the man, &c.] Perhaps unwilling to go out upon the orders given, a force was exerted, to oblige him to depart: the driving out of the man out of Paradise, signifies that he was driven out of the communion with God, from his habitation, from the garden of pleasure and garden of Eden, from the company of the angels of life: an emblem of the separation and distance which makes between God and his creatures, and of the misery which is thereby.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS on Chap. III.

This chapter proves how all the attending consequences came into the world. This plain, simple, and satisfactory history, is transmitted to us, in order to shew that God, though the Creator of all things, was never the author of sin, but that all the miseries which men suffer, are the result of their own free choice. From the contents of this chapter, we may learn what a dangerous thing it is to hearken to temptation of any nature whatever, and the necessity we are under, at all times, to watch, in the strictest manner, over ourselves. All sorts of miseries naturally flow from sin: the one is the effect, the other the cause. We have here also a striking instance of that love which God had for his creatures, ever since the beginning of time; for no sooner had our first parents offended than he proposed a remedy, in the promise of a Redeemer, who was to trample upon the powers of darkness, and at last destroy the kingdom of Satan. Let us never forget that this promise has been graciously fulfilled, and that as Christ has been manifested in the flesh, so he is able to do all that was promised.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. IV.

1 And Adam knew his wife.] Some Jewish writers are of opinion, especially Jarchi, that Adam had known his wife, even before he sinned and was drove out of the garden, thinking he otherwise would not have observed the command, "Be fruitful and multiply;" but if Adam had begotten children in a state of innocence, they (provided they had withstood temptation) would have been free from sin, and not tainted with the corruption of nature after contracted; others imagine it was thirty years after their expulsion.

1 I have gotten a man from the Lord.] A blessing or gift from him, as children are: some render it, "I have gotten a man, the Lord;" that promised seed that should break the serpent's head; by which it appears, that she took the seed to be a divine person, the true God, even Jehovah, that should become man; though she must have been ignorant of the mystery of his incarnation, or of his taking flesh of a virgin, since she conceived and bare Cain through her husband's knowledge of her: however, having imbibed this notion, it is no wonder she should call him Cain, a possession or inheritance, since had this been the case, she had cause to rejoice; but in the event she was sadly mistaken; he proved not only to be a mere man, but a very bad one indeed.

2 And she again bare his brother Abel, &c.] It is not said what time elapsed between the birth of Cain and Abel, but perhaps the following year. It is the common opinion of the Jews, that with Abel, as with Cain, was born a twin sister. Abel signifies vanity. This name, if given from his birth, might denote the small esteem his mother had of him, in comparison of Cain, who she hoped was to be the promised seed: or if he was so called, as some have thought, only after his death, his name is expressive of that disappointment in Cain, and their sense of the vanity of human life.

3, 4 And in process of time, &c.] Or, "in the end of days," as the Hebrew text is; that is, at the end of the year, or of the days of the week, the two brothers brought unto the Lord. Cain, as an agriculturist, brought of the produce of the grounds he cultivated; Abel, as a pastor, of the firstlings of his flock, with the fat thereof. Cain's offering was wholly a thank-offering to God for the blessing of his existence. Abel's was not only a thank-offering, but also a holocaust; and while it was an expression of gratitude for the divine Providence, it was also typical of the sacrifice of Christ, and expressive of his hope of redemption through him. It would seem, offered not the best of his fruits, but the very best of his flock. But what made the chief difference between them, was, that Cain presented his offering while his heart was withheld: Abel brought both his person and sacrifice as an offering to the Lord. He presented his oblation, and performed the other parts of worship, with faith in God and the promised Saviour, Heb. xi. 4. and with sincerity, humility, and love. Accordingly God had respect to Abel and to his sacrifice; and signified his acceptance of it either by words, by fire from the Shechinah consuming the sacrifice, or some other conspicuous mark of approbation. Upon seeing Abel's offering accepted, and his own rejected, Cain is displeased with God, for the distinction he had made, and enraged at Abel for the preference which was shewn him.

7 If thou doest well, shalt thou not be accepted, &c.] Here, to appease Cain's wrath, God assures him that he was no respecter of persons; that if Cain was influenced by the same faith and piety with Abel, he and his sacrifice should be equally respected; that if in any thing he acted contrary to his duty to God, or charity to his brother, the punishment due to his sin was ready to overtake him; and that whatever preference Abel held in religious matters, still, as the younger brother, he should be subject to the elder.

8 And Cain talked with Abel his brother.] No doubt in a kind and friendly manner, and thereby took the advantage of him. The Jerusalem Targum give us an account of what passed between them.

6 And the LORD said unto Cain, Why art thou wroth? and why is thy countenance fallen?

7 If thou doest well, shalt thou not be accepted? and if thou doest not well, sin lieth at the door. And unto thee shall be his desire, and thou shalt rule over him.

8 ¶ And Cain talked with Abel his brother: and it came to pass when they were in the field, that Cain rose up against Abel his brother, and slew him.

9 And the LORD said unto Cain, Where is Abel thy brother? And he said, I know not: Am I my brother's keeper?

10 And he said, What hast thou done? the voice of thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the ground.

11 And now art thou cursed from the earth, which hath opened her mouth to receive thy brother's blood from thy hand;

12 When thou tillest the ground, it shall not henceforth yield unto thee her strength; a fugitive, and a vagabond shalt thou be in the earth.

13 And Cain said unto the LORD, My punishment is greater than I can bear.

14 Behold

"Cain said to Abel his brother, there is no judgment, nor judge, nor will a good reward be given to the righteous; nor will vengeance be taken of the wicked; neither is the world created in mercy, nor governed in mercy; otherwise, why is thine offering received with good will, and mine not?" Abel replied, "There is a judgment;" and went on denying every thing Cain had advanced, that gave reason why the offering of the one was rejected, and the other accepted.

Cain rose up against Abel his brother, and slew him.] He assaulted him in a furious manner, without any just provocation, and took away his life with some instrument perhaps that was used in husbandry, which might be on the spot where they were at that time.

9 And the Lord said unto Cain, Where is Abel thy brother?] God now interposes, and takes notice of the concerns of this lower world, where human society was not so regularly formed, as to admit of a judicial government. He addresses himself to Cain, and enquires after his brother, in order to bring Cain to a conviction and confession of his sin, to touch his conscience with it, and fill his conscience with remorse for it; and for the aggravation of it, observes the relation of Abel his brother to him.

And he said, I know not.] The conscience of the murderer, however, was not probed; for without the least regard to God, and apparently not afraid of his crime, he replies in the following sarcastic question:

Am I my brother's keeper?] Thus expressing his admiration that God should put such a question to him, since he knew he had not the charge of his brother, and that he was at the age to take care of himself; and if not, it rather belonged to God and his providence to take care of him, and not to him. This shews him to be under the influence of Satan, and that he was so blinded by him, as to forget whom he was speaking to; that he was the omniscient God, and knew the wickedness he had done, and the falsehoods he now uttered, and was able to confront him with both, and to inflict deserved punishment that very moment.

10 And he said, What hast thou done?] After Cain's evasive and irreverent answer, the omniscient Creator charges him expressly with the horrid crime of murder, and of the murder of his own brother. It is in the original bloods, in the plural number, which the Jews generally understood of the posterity that would have descended from Abel, had he not met an untimely dissolution.

12 It shall not henceforth yield unto thee her strength.] For Adam's sin, the earth had been cursed, and was not so fruitful as in its primeval state; and now it was cursed again for Cain's sin; not the whole earth, but that part which belonged to Cain, and was cultivated by him; and so it must be supposed to be cursed, not only in the spot where he had been settled, but in every other place where he should come and occupy; and which, through this additional curse, became so barren, that it did not yield such good fruits, and such an increase of it, as before; it lost its native and vital juice, by which seed cast into it became not so fruitful, and did not increase; but instead of this, though much pains were taken to manure it, and much was sown, yet it brought forth little, at least but little to Cain, whatever it did to others; and therefore it is said, shall not yield unto thee; it would not turn much to his account, or yield much profit and increase to him, or bring forth much fruit. And God said, that he shall be banished far from the habitation of his father, to rove through the earth a fugitive, abhorred of him and man! The Septuagint render it "groaning and trembling; the guilt of his sin lay heavy on his conscience, and filled him with such horror and terror, that he was continually groaning, and was seized with such a tremor, that he shook in all his limbs, and at all times."

13 My punishment is greater than I can bear, &c.] In the original, it is, "My sin is greater than can be forgiven," despairing of the mercy of God, having no faith in the promised seed, and in the 14 Behold, thou hast driven me out this day from the face of the earth; and from thy face shall I be hid, and I shall be a fugitive and a vagabond in the earth; and it shall come to pass that every one that findeth me, shall slay me.

15 And the LORD said unto him, Therefore whosoever slayeth Cain, vengeance shall be taken on him seven-fold. And the LORD set a mark upon Cain, lest any finding him should kill him.

16 And Cain went out from the presence of the LORD, and dwelt in the land of Nod, on the east of Eden.

17 ¶ And Cain knew his wife; and she conceived and bare Enoch: and he builded a city, and called the name of the city after the name of his son Enoch.

18 And unto Enoch was born Irad: and Irad begat Mehujael: and Mehujael begat Methufael: and Methufael begat Lamech.

19 ¶ And Lamech took unto him two wives; the name of the one was Adah, and the name of the other Zillah.

20 And Adah bare Jabel: he was the father of such as dwell in tents, and of such as have cattle.

21 And his brother's name was Jubal: he was the father of all such as handle the harp and organ.

22 And Zillah she also bare Tubal-cain, an instructor of every artificer in brass and iron: and the sister of Tubal-cain was Naamah.

23 And Lamech said unto his wives, Adah and Zillah, Hear my voice; ye wives of Lamech, hearken the pardon of sin, through his atonement, blood, and sacrifice. Cain recapitulates his punishment; that he was from that day forth to be banished his native country, banished God's presence, to behold the Shechinah of glory no more; and, that being abandoned of God, and become obnoxious to man, whosoever found him would certainly kill him. Cain seems to have been more afraid of a corporeal death, than to have any concern about his soul, and the eternal welfare of it, or to be in dread or fear of an eternal death, or future wrath.

15 And the Lord said unto him, &c.] Now to allay Cain's fears of being slain, God assures him that he meant to preserve him alive as a monument of his indignation at murder, to deter mankind from such horrid wickedness; that if any one should kill him, he should be punished in a very high degree; and to confirm the whole, set a mark upon him, to prevent any from slaying him. What this mark was is not said; some think God stamped his forehead with some mark of infamy; others, that he blasted his face with lightning from the Shechinah; others, that his whole body, but especially his head, was immediately struck with such an incessant shaking, as made him a terror to himself and all spectators.

16 And Cain went out, &c.] i. e. He went out from the place where God then resided in the symbol of his presence, and dwelt in the land a fugitive, which the original word signifies, because Cain wandered up and down in it like a vagabond and outcast; continuing in no one place in it, his body and mind being restless and uneasy. Some are of opinion that it was called "Nod," because in every place where he went, the earth shook under him, and men said, depart from living here, this is he that slew his brother Abel.

23 And Lamech said unto his wives, &c.] There being no account of the occasion of this speech, it is impossible to determine the precise meaning of it, nor is it of great importance for us to know it. Some have considered this as a piece of poetry, composed by Lamech, to be set to music by his son Jubal, and performed before his wives in praise of his greatness. Others have imagined, that his wives' clamorous altercations had so vexed Lamech, that he commands them to be silent; and tells them that their contentions had been so hurtful to him, when old and young, that in marrying them he had slain a man to his wounding, and a young man to his hurt. Others are of opinion, that the descendants of Cain had lived in perpetual fears that some of the family of Adam might some time take revenge upon them for the death of Abel, whom Cain had wickedly and inhumanly slain; and that Lamech here endeavours to reason his family, and particularly his wives, out of their fears, in such words as these: "Have I killed a man to my wounding, and a young man to my hurt, Cain did? No; I have done no injury to any of the other family." If God promised to preserve Cain, and threatened powerful vengeance on any who should kill him, much more will he preserve us, and inflict seventy and seven-fold vengeance on any who should slay Lamech, or any of his family.

26 Then began men to call on the name of the Lord.] i. e. The pro-

25 ¶ And Adam knew his wife again: and she bare a son, and called his name Seth: for God, said she, hath appointed me another seed instead of Abel, whom Cain slew.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. IV.

Two remarkable characters are represented in this chapter. In Cain are displayed all the ill effects of envy and jealousy. He came to God with a grudging heart, and offered his sacrifice with reluctance; not considering, that all he enjoyed was the unmerited gift of his benevolent Maker. On the other hand, Abel came before God with a heart clothed with humility and sensible of his dependance upon him. He, as St. Paul says, "through faith offered a more excellent sacrifice than Cain," and obtained witness that he was righteous; but, notwithstanding his righteousness, was exposed to the envy and cruelty of his brother who slew him; but who, for the heinous crime he had endured all the torments of a guilty conscience!

EXPLANATION OF THE FIRST CHAPTER.

1 This is the first chapter of the book of Genesis. It contains an account of the creation of the world, and of the first man, Adam, who descended from him. The genealogy of Adam is given, consisting of ten generations, from Adam to Noah. The particular account of the life of Adam is given, from his creation to his death. In the first chapter, the creation of the world is described, and of Seth, only the first generation is mentioned, as a direct line to Noah.

¶ And he begat a son, in his own likeness, after his image, and called his name Seth. It was not till after the fall of Adam, and after he had sinned, that he begat a son, and called his name Seth. He came short of that glory of God, and could not confer it to his posterity. However, some suppose, that the name Seth, may well refer to Seth's likeness to his father in piety and virtue; but we humbly presume nothing of consequence can be deduced from it: nor is there any cause to suppose, that it might not have been applied to Cain and Abel with as much propriety as to Seth. The words seem to agree with the first chapter, and imply as much as if it had been said, that, "as Adam was created in the image of God," so his son, (or posterity) was formed in his image, a rational, moral, human creature, like the father.

5 And all the days that Adam lived, were nine hundred and thirty years, and he died.] Adam, from the first moment he had eaten the forbidden fruit, became liable to death; but nine hundred and thirty years elapsed before it was actually inflicted. During that long interval, Adam, it is reasonable to believe, had begotten many more children than those recorded by Moses. By his own banishment from Paradise, by Cain's murder of his brother Abel, and by the apostacy, idolatry, and wickedness of the greatest part of his offspring, he had felt in himself, and beheld in his posterity, the fatal fatal effects of his disobedience. At last, wearied and worn out with a life of affliction and sorrow, he resigns his body to its original dust : while his soul, we may believe was, through faith in the promised Deliverer, raised to the Paradise above, where "there is no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, nor any more pain."

6 Seth lived an hundred and five years, and begat Enos. Without doubt he had other children before, as we know Adam had Cain and Abel before he begat Seth. But Moses doth not mention them, it being his design to set down only those persons by whom the line of Noah was derived from Seth.

8 And all the days of Seth were, &c. We are told in chap. iv. ver. 26. that in the days of Seth men began to call upon the name of the Lord ; and we are told by the Arabians and Jews, that Seth was a holy man, that he made excellent laws for the regulation of his family ; and that, before his death, he adjured his children by the blood of Abel, not to mix with the race of Cain, lest God should destroy them for ever.

11 And all the days of Enos, &c. We are told by the Arabic writers that he was a prince, and governed his people according to the strictest rules of equity ; and that when his eyes were nigh, he also sent for his relations, and exhorted them not to mix with the impious race of Cain, for his father's reasons.

18 Enoch. The Arabians represent him as a very learned man, a prophet, and skilled in astronomy. The Greeks anciently had the same notions of him : and he was the same person whom they called Atlas, as Eusebius informs us.

21 Begat Methuselah. Methuselah lived till the very year of the deluge, whence it is conjectured that Enoch, being a prophet, Jude 1. and foreseeing the destruction that was coming upon the earth, immediately after the death of this son, called him Methuselah, which imports, He dieth, and the emission (viz. of waters) cometh.

22 Enoch walked with God, &c. It is very remarkable that the translation of Enoch to heaven should be handed down by tradition, not only among Turks and Arabians, but even among the barbarian Tartars, who never knew the use of letters. The apostle confirms the Mosiac account of his being translated to heaven, and Jude says, that he prophesied of the end of the world.

27 Nine hundred sixty and nine years, &c. The Jews have a tradition, that no man ever lived a thousand years, and the reason they assign for it is, that in the sight of God a thousand years are as one day ; and that as God considers a thousand years as one day, so no man is permitted to live so long. He lived, however, longer than any person whom we find mentioned in the sacred scripture ; and what is still more remarkable, he died the same year that the deluge happened. All the Arabian and Jewish writers tell us, that he died some months before the flood ; so that he was taken away from the evil that followed.

28 Lamech, &c. Not Lamech mentioned chap. iv. he was of the family of Cain ; this was descended from Seth.

29 Called his name Noah, &c. Which signifies rest or comfort, and was given by Lamech to his son, because he was to be a comfort and No. 1.

relief in their laborious employments. Some pretend, that Lamech expected that his son was the promised seed which was to break the serpent's head ; but the latter part of the verse sufficiently indicates, that this consolation was of an inferior kind : and accordingly the Jewish interpreters expound it, of his helping to make their labour easy in tilling the earth. If we refer the last words of the verse, "the ground which the Lord hath cursed," to the deluge which Enoch had foretold, Noah may be called their comforter, as he was to be the restorer of the desolated world.

32 Shem, Ham, and Japheth. Though Japheth was eldest, Shem is here mentioned first on account of his dignity, in being preferred by God before his brethren ; and as God often gave demonstration that he would not be confined to the order of nature in the disposal of his favours, but frequently bestowed them upon the younger children ; so the scriptures as frequently overlook the seniority of their birth, and have respect principally to their excellence. Thus Abraham is mentioned before Nahor and Haran, Jacob before Esau, Isaac before Ishmael, and Ephraim before Manasseh, &c. &c.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS on Chap. V.

This chapter points out the long lives of the patriarchs and the small number of them. What variety of wonders must these men have seen during lives that lasted so many years ! In the second place, there being so few mentioned should serve to convince us of how little account the greatest men are in the sight of God. We have little more left than their names, and indeed how many millions of names are now swallowed up in oblivion. Happy if while we are forgotten of men, we are remembered of God, and our names found written in his book. There they will shine with more conspicuous lustre than in the most pompous oration, or in the best finished history. Lastly, we are told that they died. Let us live ever so long, death comes at last. It is a river we have all to cross, and nothing but the infinite mercy of God can carry us over. Bishop Taylor tells us of a very learned man, who, in his advanced years, happened to be reading this chapter, and when he found they all died, he exclaimed, O time, how vain art thou ! henceforth shall my mind be fixed on eternity. We should also take notice in this chapter, that with regard to genealogy the first born of each person is not always mentioned, and that Moses seems to have put down entire years without taking notice of odd months and days.

EXPLANATORY NOTES on Chap. VI.

1 Men began to multiply, &c. When we consider the prodigious length of men's lives, and that they began to beget children so early and left off as late in proportion as they do now, the number of inhabitants before the flood will appear to be immense. Accordingly, several have shewn, from very moderate computations, that there were at least one hundred thousand millions of souls, that is, near twenty times as many as there are at present upon our earth.

Before
CHRIST
2418. 2 That the sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were fair; and they took them wives of all which they chose.

3 And the Lord said, My spirit shall not always strive with man, for that he also is flesh: yet his days shall be an hundred and twenty years.

2469. 4 There were giants in the earth in those days; and also after that, when the sons of God came in unto the daughters of men, and they bare children to them, the same became mighty men which were of old, men of renown.

5 And God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually.

6 And it repented the Lord that he had made man on the earth, and it grieved him at his heart.

7 And the Lord said, I will destroy man whom I have created from the face of the earth; both man, and beast, and the creeping thing, and the fowls of the air: for it repenteth me that I have made them.

8 But Noah found grace in the eyes of the Lord.

2448. 9 These are the generations of Noah: Noah was a just man and perfect in his generations, and Noah walked with God. Before

2448.

10 And Noah begat three sons, Shem, Ham, and Japheth.

11 The earth also was corrupt before God, and the earth was filled with violence.

12 And God looked upon the earth, and, behold, it was corrupt; for all flesh had corrupted his way upon the earth.

13 And God said unto Noah, The end of all flesh is come before me; for the earth is filled with violence through them; and, behold, I will destroy them with the earth.

14 I Make thee an ark of gopher wood; rooms shalt thou make in the ark, and shalt pitch it within and without with pitch.

15 And this is the fashion which thou shalt make it of: the length of the ark shall be three hundred cubits, the breadth of it fifty cubits, and the height of it thirty cubits.

16 A window shalt thou make to the ark, and in a cubit shalt thou finish it above; and the door of the ark

2 The sons of God, &c.] By this term is understood the children of Seth, and, by the daughters of men, the daughters of Cain, who were immersed in wickedness, and abandoned to every vice. Hence the sense of the verse will be, that the children of Seth contracted an alliance with the daughters of Cain, and joined in mankind's universal corruption.

3 My spirit shall not always strive with man] i. e. I will not suffer my laws and admonitions to be any longer trampled upon. God always considers men as moral agents, and therefore he makes use of every method that has any tendency to convert a rational being from the evil of his way. This, in the beautiful scriptural language, is called, drawing them with the cords of a man, with the bands of love. These are the strings of his Spirit, the struggles of his goodness, exerting itself in unwearied efforts to reclaim mankind from their extreme perverseness and folly.

Yet his days shall be an hundred and twenty years] As if he had said, Though the wickedness of man is great, yet I will allow him one hundred and twenty years for repentance.

4 There were giants, &c.] The Hebrew word, translated giants, signifies men abandoned to all manner of wickedness, as well as such as were distinguished by their enormous stature and bulk.

5 That every imagination of the thoughts, &c.] We are not to take this so strictly, as to think no one good thought had ever entered into the heart of any man in that age. The worst man that ever lived had some good dispositions, however transient and short-lived. But this emphatical description of the antediluvian wickedness signifies, that mankind were then arrived at the highest depravity, both in principle and practice. In Psalm xiv. 3. and liii. 4. we have parallel instances.

6 And it repented the Lord, &c.] All things whatever, past, present, and future, lie open at once to the view of the Divine Mind; and, therefore, that he is immutable in his counsels, and cannot repent, is one of the plainest dictates both of natural and revealed religion: for he is not a man, that he should repent. So that the expression of God's repenting, grieving, and the like, are only figurative, and adapted to the weakness of our comprehensions; signifying not any change in God himself, but only a difference in the event with regard to us. Thus good parents and princes, without any change in themselves, encourage or discourage their respective children or subjects, according as they change their behaviour for the better or the worse. Thus laws themselves, which can have no affection, nor change of affection, towards one person or another, yet vary their effect, themselves remaining unvaried. Thus when it is here said, God repented, &c. the meaning is, that he was resolved to alter his conduct; and as man, when they repent of any thing, endeavour to undo it, so was the Almighty determined to destroy man, whom he had created; as the following words shew.

7 I will destroy—both man and beast, &c.] Seeing that God had made the beasts for the service and delight of man, it was just that they should perish with him, as a part of the goods and inheritance which he had forfeited to the giver. Nor can God be charged with injustice or cruelty in their destruction, since, with respect to the innocent animals themselves, it is no more a punishment than a natural death; it is only recalling that temporary breath which God himself had given. And as the recalling at that time served to render this example of the divine severity against sin the more signal and tremendous to future ages, we may venture to affirm, it answered the purposes of God's moral government, even better than if he had saved them by miracle from the common wreck. And considered in this light, it is so far from being an imputation upon his justice, that it is rather an act of mercy: for whatever tends to reclaim inconsiderate mortals from their infatuation in counteracting the laws which infinite wisdom has devised to raise them to happiness, is an act of great benevolence and mercy.

8 Found grace, &c.] i. e. Obtained grace and favour, which is noted to shew, that Noah was so far guilty of the common corruption of human nature, that he needed God's grace and mercy to pardon him. When pardoned, he was exempted from the general sentence; and having obtained forgiveness through faith, the flood that covered the world had no more power against him, than the flame which shall dissolve the elements will have to hurt those who shall at last be found sincere penitents and believers.

9 Noah was a just man] He lived in an age that was entirely depraved; when all flesh had corrupted its ways, and there were but seven persons besides himself left, who were servants of God, and lovers of righteousness: and yet, notwithstanding this universal degeneracy, behold how untouched he stood, and what a character he bore! Will any man, after this, pretend that it is impossible to withstand the influence of ill example, and to live up to the principles of religion and virtue, among thousands, and ten thousand times ten thousands, that treat them with indignation?

In his generations, &c.] This sentence has a very significant meaning. It gives us a right notion of the justice ascribed to Noah; that he was just, not in an absolute, but in a comparative sense, namely, that he was a very extraordinary man, considering the state of religion and virtue in those times, when the world was so universally wicked. He was not one of those who kept some commandments, and broke others; but he was a man of exact integrity and uniform obedience.

11 The earth also was corrupt—and filled with violence.] It is supposed the corruption here mentioned refers particularly to the impiety and irreligion of that age; that men had thrown off all reverence of the Supreme Being: were either gross idolaters, or quite profane and atheistical. And the earth's being filled with violence, plainly points to those notorious acts of oppression and injustice that were generally committed or authorized by the great, and even countenanced by the judges, who, instead of being redressers of wrong, were become the patrons of iniquity: so that their destruction was inevitable.

12 All flesh had corrupted his way, &c.] God's patience did not expire till he saw that the wickedness of man was grown great upon the earth, and that all flesh had corrupted his way; nor till it was necessary to drown the world to cleanse it, and to destroy mankind to reform it, by beginning a new world upon the only righteous family that was left of all the last generation of the old one.

13 The end of all flesh is come, &c.] i. e. The time of destruction is at hand. So the prophet expresses himself, in Isaiah viii. 2. "The end is come upon my people Israel."

14 Make thee an ark] The ark was of the cypress tree, which abounded in the parts of Assyria about Babylon. Alexander built a navy of these trees, for that there was great plenty of them in the country of Assyria, but a scarcity of other timber fit for making ships. This wood is said to be very fit for the purpose, as being less liable to rot than any other timber. For which reason the Egyptian sarcophagi, for preserving the bodies of their dead heroes were made of this timber.

Rooms, &c.] i. e. Little cabins, or cells, to sever the beasts from the birds, the clean beasts from the unclean, and to preserve their several sorts of food, &c. &c.

15 The length of the ark shall be three hundred cubits, the breadth of it fifty cubits, and the height of it thirty cubits.] Therefore agreeable to the common standard of one foot and a half to a cubit, the ark will be four hundred and fifty feet long, seventy-five broad, and forty-five feet high. But some make it more, every cubit, according to the Egyptian measurement, consisting of twenty-one inches, and eight hundred and eighty-eight decimals.

16 A window] By this, some understand, one great window, which does not exclude other lesser ones. But others, with more reason, understand lights in general; nor was this the only use of windows, but to give air too to all the creatures in the ark. And it will be hard to conceive how one window could answer both these ends, especially when we consider that the ark had three stories.

I therefore

Before CHRIST 2448. ark shalt thou set in the side thereof; with lower, second, and third stories shalt thou make it.

17 And, behold, I, even I, do bring a flood of waters upon the earth, to destroy all flesh, wherein is the breath of life, from under heaven; and every thing that is in the earth shall die.

18 But with thee will I establish my covenant; and thou shalt come into the ark, thou, and thy sons, and thy wife, and thy sons' wives with thee.

19 And of every living thing of all flesh, two of every sort shalt thou bring into the ark, to keep them alive with thee; they shall be male and female.

20 Of fowls after their kind, and of cattle after their kind, of every creeping thing of the earth after his kind, two of every sort shall come unto thee, to keep them alive.

21 And take thou unto thee of all food that is eaten, and thou shalt gather it to thee; and it shall be for food for thee, and for them.

22 Thus did Noah; according to all that God commanded him, so did he.

C H A P. VII.

1 Noah receiveth command from God, 7 and entereth into the ark with his family and the living creatures.

10 The beginning of the flood as soon as they are entered.

17 Its continual increase for forty days. 21 All flesh is destroyed by it. 24 Its duration.

Therefore these words, chap. viii. 6. "Noah opened the window of the ark," as if it had but one, might be better rendered, one of the windows, or a window.

In a cubit shalt thou finish it above.] That is, when thou shalt have made all the rest of the ark, thou shalt then finish it by making thereto a cover also, which shall rise shelving, in order to throw off the rain; and in such proportion, as that the top of the roof or cover shall rise above the sides of the ark but one cubit, or a foot and a half. Others understand it of the main window, which was to be raised a cubit above the roof of the ark.

17 Destroy all flesh, &c.] That the deluge was universal, is, from these words, an incontrovertible fact.

18 But with thee will I establish my covenant.] Which was made with Noah at this time, though not expressed; viz. that on his making an ark as God directed him, and going into it at his command, he would preserve him whilst building it, from the rage of wicked men, and save him and his family in it, when the flood should come; and that they should come safe out of it, and re-people the world, which should be no more destroyed by a flood; for this covenant respects that after mentioned, chapter ix. the promise of the Messiah, who should spring from him, for the fulfilment of which Noah and his family were spared; and this in every article God would confirm, of which he might be assured from his power, veracity, and faithfulness.

And thou shalt come into the ark.] At which time the covenant would begin more clearly to be established, and more plainly to be fulfilled; Noah on the one hand being obedient to the divine will, having built an ark, and entering into it; on the other, God giving him leave, and an order to enter into it, and shutting him in it to preserve him and his family.

Thou and thy sons, and thy wife, and thy sons' wives with thee.] Noah and his wife, and his sons, and their wives, in all eight persons; and eight only, as the apostle Peter observes, 1 Pet. iii. 20. this it appears that Noah's three sons were married before the flood, but had no children as yet.

Two of every sort, &c.] That is, of unclean beasts, chap. vii. 2.

Two of every sort shall come unto thee, &c.] We read in the following verse, "two of every sort shalt thou bring into the ark." Which, lest Noah should think impossible, is explained in these words, "they shall come unto thee;" viz. by the care of God who made them, and by instinct moved them to it; or perhaps the ministry of angels was employed in bringing them into the ark.

22 So did he.] Notwithstanding the work of building the ark was laborious, costly, tedious, and seemingly foolish and ridiculous, especially when all things continued in the same posture and safety for such numbers of years together. Noah without doubt was, during this period, the sport and scorn of all those who did not believe what God had foretold. So that it is not strange that this is mentioned as an heroic act of faith in Noah, whereby he humbly went on in the work God had ordered him to do. Heb. xi. 7.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS on Chap. VI.

This chapter proves the saying of the apostle, "Evil communications corrupt good manners," for the deluge, no doubt, was incurred by the marriages of the children of Seth with those of Cain. Thus we find how dangerous an intercourse is with the wicked;

Before CHRIST 2449. AND the LORD said unto Noah, Come thou and all thy house into the ark; for thee have I seen righteous before me in this generation.

2 Of every clean beast thou shalt take to thee by sevens, the male and his female: and of beasts that are not clean by two, the male and his female.

3 Of fowls also of the air by sevens, the male and the female; to keep seed alive upon the face of all the earth.

4 For yet seven days, and I will cause it to rain upon the earth forty days and forty nights; and every living substance that I have made will I destroy from off the face of the earth.

5 And Noah did according unto all that the LORD commanded him.

6 And Noah was six hundred years old when the flood of waters was upon the earth.

7 ¶ And Noah went in, and his sons, and his wife, and his sons' wives with him, into the ark, because of the waters of the flood.

8 Of clean beasts, and of beasts that are not clean, and of fowls, and of every thing that creepeth upon the earth,

9 There went in two and two unto Noah into the ark, the male and the female, as God had commanded Noah.

10 ¶ And it came to pass after seven days, that the waters of the flood were upon the earth.

how frequently it leads to divine wrath. We are also taught in this chapter, how God takes care of those who fear him. The character of Noah is exceedingly instructive; he cheerfully obeys his God, who, at this critical juncture, was his "Refuge and Strength, a very present help in trouble." Psalm. lvi. 1.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. VII.

1 The Lord said, &c.] This was when the ark was finished and furnished, and the time expired. Come, that is, prepare to enter. The invitation comes from within the ark. Thy house, that is, thy family; which consisted only of eight persons, Noah and his three sons, and their four wives: each had but one wife. If ever polygamy had been allowed, it must have been now, for the re-peopling of the perishing world. Righteous, that is, by faith, producing all the fruits of righteousness and true holiness. Before me, that is, not only before men and seemingly, but really, and to my all-seeing eye.

2 Of every clean beast by sevens, &c.] This distinction of beasts into clean and unclean, with regard to their being eaten, was not established till the giving of the law to the Israelites. But with regard to their being offered in sacrifice, it is evident from this, that it obtained before the flood, and, it is natural to believe, was pointed out by God to mankind, from his first institution of sacrifice. Of the clean beasts Noah was to take seven seven, as it is in the original, that is, seven couple: because they were to be offered in sacrifice when he came out of the ark, and were thenceforth to be given to man for food. Gen. ix. 3.

3 Of fowls, &c.] i. e. Of clean fowls: and of the unclean by two; as before of the beasts. To keep seed alive, i. e. The breed of them.

4 For yet seven days, &c.] i. e. Within seven days, which time God had allowed to the world as a further space of repentance and accepting of mercy to their souls, though their bodies were doomed to death, whereof Noah doubtless gave them due warning.

5 Lord commanded him.] This is repeated, because an instance of his faith and obedience. How free from distraction that mind, which only has to know the will of God, and then to perform it!

7 Noah went—into the ark, because of the waters of the flood.] Now taking his last look of all the multitudes with whom he had lived, how must he be affected at their ruin: a prospect of distress, only supportable by the testimony God gave to the faithful discharge of his duty, in declaring to them, what God in mercy required him to make them acquainted with!

9 There went in two and two unto Noah into the ark, the male and the female.] They went voluntarily, being impressed with an instinct from God so to do; or by the ministry of angels, as observed on chap. vi. 20. there were two of a sort, some think four, and of some seven, or seven couple.

As God had commanded Noah.] This respects his own and his family's entrance and the creatures; both were commanded by God, and attended to by Noah, who in all things was obedient.

10 The waters of the flood were upon the earth.] i. e. They began to be upon the earth; for it continued to rain from hence forty days and forty nights; and still the waters continued to increase, and it was a hundred and fifty days before they began to diminish.

11 All

Before
2319.

11 In the six hundredth year of Noah's life, in the second month, the seventeenth day of the month, the same day were all the fountains of the great deep broken up, and the windows of heaven were opened.

12 And the rain was upon the earth forty days and forty nights.

13 In the self-same day entered Noah, and Shem, and Ham, and Japheth, the sons of Noah, and Noah's wife, and the three wives of his sons with them, into the ark;

14 They, and every beast after his kind, and all the cattle after their kind, and every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth after his kind, and every fowl after his kind, every bird of every sort.

15 And they went in unto Noah into the ark, two and two of all flesh, wherein is the breath of life.

16 And they that went in, went in male and female of all flesh, as God had commanded him: and the Lord shut him in.

17 ¶ And the flood was forty days upon the earth; and the waters increased, and bare up the ark, and it was lift up above the earth.

18 And the waters prevailed, and were increased greatly upon the earth; and the ark went upon the face of the waters.

19 And the waters prevailed exceedingly upon the earth; and all the high hills, that were under the whole heaven, were covered.

20 Fifteen cubits upward did the waters prevail; and the mountains were covered.

21 ¶ And all flesh died that moved upon the earth, both of fowl, and of cattle, and of beast, and of every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth, and every man:

11 All the fountains of the great deep broken up, and the windows of heaven were opened.] We should remember, that in the midst of the work of the creation, when God caused the dry land to appear, the waters under the heaven were gathered together under one place, Gen. i. 9. or as the Psalmist instructs us, that God founded the earth upon the seas, and established it upon the floods, Psal. xxiv. 2. Now the eruption of so immense a body of water as is laid up in that capacious storehouse the centre of the earth, (especially when we add to this the other cause assigned by the historian, that the waters above the firmament came down to join those below, when the windows or sluices of heaven opened, and the waters fell upon the earth, not in ordinary showers, but in floods or cataracts) certainly will afford a supply sufficient to effect an universal deluge. And since the waters, we know, in the time of the chaos, did cover the earth, so that nothing of it could be seen, till God was pleased to make the separation, there is no reason to imagine why, upon a proper occasion, and at the will and for the service of God, they should not be able to resume their former station, and cover the earth as before.

12 The rain was, &c.] How very slow does the justice of God here proceed, but how sure and irresistible. The great rain was God's testimony to Noah's messages to mankind, and the gradual manner in which it came in the course of forty days, without intermission, was God's last call to the world to repent; and that mercy which made justice move so slowly, assuredly stood ready to receive, as at the eleventh hour, every penitent that truly turned to God, and cast itself upon his mercy, through that Mediator first promised to Adam, believed in by Abel, Enoch, and all the faithful, and so long and so much in vain preached by Noah, before the deluge.

13 The self-same day entered Noah, &c.] i. e. On which the flood began: not in the dark, like one ashamed or afraid, but when it was clear day-light, in public view of the world.

14 They and every bird after his kind, &c.] The first word signifies the greater, the second the lesser sort of every kind of birds.

15 They went—into the ark, two and two of all flesh, &c.] That is, male and female of all living creatures went voluntarily into the ark.

16 The Lord shut him in.] i. e. Shut the door upon him.

17 The flood, &c.] The flood of waters which was poured down, increased, by the accession of more waters from above and beneath, and accordingly became a tremendous deluge.

19 And the waters prevailed exceedingly upon the earth; and all the high hills, that were under the whole heaven, were covered.] These words not only clearly prove the universality of the deluge, but also fully confute the opinion, that the face of the earth, before the deluge, was smooth, regular, and uniform; and that the rocks and mountains, which every where now appear, are owing to the violent concussions which then happened, and are nothing else but the ruins and fragments of the old world. That this deluge was not partial, is also further evident, because in every part of the known world

22 All in whose nostrils was the breath of life, of all that was in the dry land, died.

23 And every living substance was destroyed which was upon the face of the ground, both man, and cattle, and the creeping things, and the fowl of the heaven; and they were destroyed from the earth: and Noah only remained alive, and they that were with him in the ark.

24 ¶ And the waters prevailed upon the earth an hundred and fifty days.

CHAP. VIII.

1 The waters assuage. 4 The ark rested on Ararat. 6 Noah sendeth out a raven and a dove. 13 The earth is dried. 15 Noah, being commanded, goeth forth of the ark. 20 He buildeth an altar, and offereth sacrifice, which God accepteth, and promiseth to curse the earth no more.

AND God remembered Noah, and every living thing, and all the cattle that was with him in the ark: and God made a wind to pass over the earth, and the waters assuaged;

2 The fountains also of the deep and the windows of heaven were stopped, and the rain from heaven was restrained;

3 And the waters returned from off the earth continually: and after the end of the hundred and fifty days the waters were abated.

4 ¶ And the ark rested in the seventh month, on the seventeenth day of the month, upon the mountains of Ararat.

5 And the waters decreased continually until the tenth month: in the tenth month, on the first day of the month, were the tops of the mountains seen.

there are certain records and traditions of it. The Americans, the Chinese, (the most distant people of Asia) and the several nations of Africa, have each their various and respective stories concerning this inundation.

20 Fifteen cubits upward did the waters prevail, &c.] i. e. The depth of the water, on the tops of the highest mountains, was twenty-two feet.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. VII.

By this chapter we are naturally led to consider the truth of all God's menaces, as well as his promises: we are likewise taught, that though his judgments are sometimes slow, they are nevertheless sure and unavoidable. As the wicked before the flood perished with the world, so shall the wicked after the flood, who do not repent ere it be too late. In the last period of the old world, God has given proof that the earth and all therein was his, and that he could utterly destroy the whole whenever he thought fit. Notice of one hundred and twenty years was given of his divine intentions, that future ages might know how inviolable his word is.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. VIII.

1 God remembered, &c.] When this expression is applied to God, it always signifies to regard with pity, compassion, and mercy, to take care of, succour, or support; and in this passage we may comprehend all these benevolent ideas.

4 And the ark rested in the seventh month.] i. e. In the beginning of May, when the summer was making its approach, and the heat of the sun would help to carry off the waters, and render the earth warm and dry.

Upon the mountains of Ararat.] Several have been the opinions with regard to the true situation of Mount Ararat; but the most consonant to reason is, that which places it about the middle of Armenia, near the river Araxes. The Septuagint and Syriac copies, which read, the mountains of Armenia, support this opinion. Josephus says it was on the Gordycean mountains that the ark rested, and the Chaldee and Arabic, which read Cardu instead of Ararat, confirm his hypothesis. The benevolence and wisdom of God appears conspicuous in his choice of one of the highest mountains for the benefit of Noah and the creatures at their coming out of the ark; for the eminences being covered by the waters but a few days, the quantity of sediment would be inconsiderable, and the earth and vegetables in that situation, not much damaged or changed.

5 In the tenth month, &c.] By this precise calculation of time, we see that the antediluvians had made their calendar of years, months, &c. though Moses the legislator afterwards reformed them.

Before
CHRIST

6 ¶ And it came to paſs at the end of forty days, that Noah opened the window of the ark which he had made:

7 And he ſent forth a raven, which went forth to and fro, until the waters were dried up from off the earth.

8 Alſo he ſent forth a dove from him, to ſee if the waters were abated from off the face of the ground;

9 But the dove found no reſt for the ſole of her foot, and ſhe returned unto him into the ark, for the waters were on the face of the whole earth: then he put forth his hand, and took her, and pulled her in unto him into the ark.

10 And he ſtayed yet other ſeven days; and again he ſent forth the dove out of the ark.

11 And the dove came in to him in the evening; and, lo, in her mouth was an olive leaf pluckt off: ſo Noah knew that the waters were abated from off the earth.

12 And he ſtayed yet other ſeven days; and ſent forth the dove; which returned not again unto him any more.

13 ¶ And it came to paſs in the ſix hundredth and firſt year, in the firſt month, the firſt day of the month, the waters were dried up from off the earth: and Noah removed the covering of the ark, and looked, and, behold, the face of the ground was dry.

14 And in the ſecond month, on the ſeven and twentieth day of the month, was the earth dried.

15 ¶ And God ſpake unto Noah, ſaying,

16 Go forth of the ark, thou, and thy wife, and thy ſons, and thy ſons' wives with thee.

17 Bring forth with thee every living thing that is with thee, of all fleſh, both of fowl, and of cattle, and of every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth: that they may breed abundantly in the earth, and be fruitful, and multiply upon the earth.

18 And Noah went forth, and his ſons, and his wife, and his ſons' wives with him.

19 Every beaſt, every creeping thing, and every fowl, and whatſoever creepeth upon the earth, after their kinds, went forth out of the ark.

20 ¶ And Noah builded an altar unto the Lord; and took of every clean beaſt, and of every clean fowl, and offered burnt-offerings on the altar.

21 And the Lord ſmelled a ſweet ſavour: and the Lord ſaid in his heart, I will not again curſe the ground any more for man's ſake; for the imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth; neither will I again ſmite any more every thing living, as I have done.

22 While the earth remaineth, ſeed-time and harveſt, and cold and heat, and ſummer and winter, and day and night ſhall not ceaſe.

6 Forty days, &c.] i. e. Forty days after the tops of the mountains appeared, which was about the end of July.

7 A raven, which went to and fro, &c.] In the Hebrew it is a raven went forth in going forth and in returning; which implies, it fluttered backward and forward, or took its flight from the ark, and returned again. The ſcent of dead carcaſes, Noah knew would draw the raven to ſome diſtance, and that when the waters were ſufficiently abated, he would be ſo much employed in preying as not to return. The Vulgate, Septuagint, and Syriac, render this verſe ſo as to ſignify that the raven went forth and did not return; and Bochart eſpouſes this ſenſe, on the authority of ſeveral famous rabbins, though the Chaldee, Samaritan, and Arabic ſupport the preſent meaning.

8 From him, &c.] In the Septuagint and Vulgate tranſlation it is, after him, applying the word "him" to the raven, which preſerves the connection, and ſhews that Noah ſtaid ſome time after the departure of the raven, before he ſent the dove out.

9 The dove found no reſt.] This bird is famous for flying far; and being fond of feeding upon the ground, fit for making further diſcoveries; but finding no reſt for the hollow of her foot, on account of the ſlime, returned to the ark again.

And again he ſent forth the dove out of the ark.] No doubt the ſame dove he had ſent out in the preceding verſe.

11 An olive leaf, &c.] Which was probably brought from Aſſyria, a country famous for olive-trees, and might be choſen preferably to any other tree, becauſe the leaves continue green, even under water, and might not be damaged as thoſe of other trees were. This branch was a ſufficient token that the waters were departed from the lower grounds: as the return of the dove was, that the earth was ſtill wet, and covered with viſcous mire.

14 In the ſix hundredth and firſt year, &c.] i. e. Of Noah's life. The covering, though taken by moſt verſions for the roof, ſeems rather from the original, to ſignify ſome looſe covering beſides, like that of the tabernacle, which is expreſſed by the ſame Hebrew word, and the uſe of it might probably have been to hang over the windows of the ark, and be their defence.

16 Go forth of the ark, &c.] Here ended Noah's long and melancholy confinement in the ark, being the ſpace of a ſolar year.

20 Of every clean beaſt, &c.] This is ſo far from proving that the diſtinction between clean and unclean beaſts was made prior to the Moſaic law, that it ſtrongly confirms the contrary. For if Moſes, in his compendious manner, intended to inform the Jews what beaſts were ſacrificed on this occaſion, he could not do it more briefly nor more plainly, than by naming them clean or the contrary. For the aſſociation of ideas acquired by the law would immediately bring to their minds the ſpecies that muſt have been offered in ſacrifice.

22 The Lord ſmelled a ſweet ſavour.] Sweet from the purity of the intention, not from the ſacrifice itſelf; his juſtice was ſatisfied, and the earth purged from ſinful men and their corrupt manners, and, in a ſpiritual ſenſe, had a ſweet ſavour.

Neither will I again ſmite any more, &c.] A reference to the deſtruction of the earth by a general conflagration; as if he had ſaid, No. 2.

I will no more deſtroy the earth or its inhabitants by a flood, becauſe I will, at the final doom, deſtroy it by fire. Dr. Young has judiciously cenſured both the cavillers at, and the ſupporters of the univerſality of the deluge. To the firſt he oppoſes the oracles of God, after the manner of our Saviour, who ſays, "If they will not hear Moſes, or the prophets, neither will they be perſuaded, though one roſe from the dead." The ſecond he ſeverely reſtroves, for adopting the vain learning of the ſchools, who to diſplay their erudition, drew forth the artillery of natural cauſes in ſupport of the divine revelation, which ſupplies ſceptics with weapons to beat down the fundamentals of religion, that muſt ſtill reſt on its own eternal baſis, authority from God. However, not to omit giving ſome of the ſtrongest arguments in favour of the univerſality of the deluge, we ſee the largeſt mountains of the earth in almoſt every part of it, abounding with ſhells, and ſkeletons of ſea-fiſh, and ſea-monſters of all kinds, and exhibiting incontestible monuments of the ſpoils of the ocean every where; ſecondly, if it was not to be univerſal, where was the occaſion of an ark, the repository of all then living, ſince Noah might as well have been inſtructed to retire to ſome country where the flood was not to have prevailed? The beaſts might have ſaved themſelves by flight into remote continents, and the birds of the air might have fled to the remote dry grounds; but, indeed there are ſo many rational proofs for the univerſality, and ſo few for the partial flood, that divine authority ſtands in need of no ſupport.

22 While the earth remaineth, &c.] The original renders it "As yet all the days of the earth, and of ſowing and harveſt." The ſenſe of this verſe is, that as, during the former year, there had been neither reaping, ſowing, nor any deſtination of the ſeaſons, and the day differed but little from the night, while the rain continued; the world ſhould not be ſubjected any more to ſimilar calamity, but that it ſhould be deſtroyed by other means.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS on Chap. VIII.

This chapter ſhews us the ſeverity of God's judgments in puniſhing a ſinful world, which conſequently proves how odious a thing ſin is in his ſight; alſo his mercy and faithfulneſs in fulfilling his promiſe to Noah, having provided for him during the deluge, and afterwards placed him on dry land. We alſo ſee the character of a good man, the humble, ready Noah, obedient to the voice of God.

EXPLANATORY NOTES on CHAP. IX.

1 And God bleſſed Noah, &c.] Which bleſſing pronounced upon Noah and his poſterity, is renewed by this vaſt grant, no leſs than univerſal poſſeſſion and dominion of the new earth: the flood was the forfeiture and penalty of non-allegiance, whereas by this renewal of leaſe and tenure, the curſe on the old territory of man was fully accompliſhed, and man made a free tenant again, the Almighty ſtill reſerving to himſelf the claule of ſervice and obedience, from the date of the deluge.

be upon every beast of the earth, and upon every fowl of the air, upon all that moveth upon the earth, and upon all the fishes of the sea; into your hand are they delivered.

3 Every moving thing that liveth shall be meat for you; even as the green herb have I given you all things.

4 But flesh with the life thereof, which is the blood thereof, shall ye not eat.

5 And surely your blood of your lives will I require; at the hand of every beast will I require it, and at the hand of man; at the hand of every man's brother will I require the life of man.

6 Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed: for in the image of God made he man.

7 And you, be ye fruitful, and multiply; bring forth abundantly in the earth, and multiply therein.

8 ¶ And God spake unto Noah, and to his sons with him, saying,

9 And I, behold, I establish my covenant with you, and with your seed after you;

10 And with every living creature that is with you, of the fowl, of the catle, and of every beast of the earth with you; from all that go out of the ark, to every beast of the earth.

11 And I will establish my covenant with you; neither shall all flesh be cut off any more by the waters of a flood; neither shall there any more be a flood to destroy the earth.

12 And God said, This is the token of the covenant which I make between me and you and every living creature that is with you, for perpetual generations:

13 I do set my bow in the cloud, and it shall be for a token of a covenant between me and the earth.

14 And it shall come to pass, when I bring a cloud over the earth, that the bow shall be seen in the cloud:

15 And I will remember my covenant, which is between me and you and every living creature of all flesh; and the waters shall no more become a flood to destroy all flesh.

16 And the bow shall be in the cloud; and I will look upon it, that I may remember the everlasting covenant between God and every living creature of all flesh that is upon the earth.

17 And God said unto Noah, This is the token of the covenant, which I have established between me and all flesh that is upon the earth.

18 ¶ And the sons of Noah, that went forth of the ark, were Shem, and Ham, and Japheth: and Ham is the father of Canaan.

19 These are the three sons of Noah: and of them was the whole earth overspread.

20 ¶ And Noah began to be an husbandman, and he planted a vineyard:

21 And he drank of the wine, and was drunken; and he was uncovered within his tent.

22 And Ham, the father of Canaan, saw the nakedness of his father, and told his two brethren without.

23 And Shem and Japheth took a garment, and laid it upon both their shoulders, and went backward, and covered the nakedness of their father; and their faces were backward, and they saw not their father's nakedness.

24 And Noah awoke from his wine, and knew what his younger son had done unto him.

25 And he said, Cursed be Canaan; a servant of servants shall he be unto his brethren.

26 And

3 Every moving thing that liveth, shall be meat for you, &c.] The grant is now general, but there were afterwards exceptions, as appears by the law of Moses, who forbade the use of several moving things: this was, however, the first grant of animal food to man, either to shorten his duration with respect to age, or to cut off gradually the overstock of animals, subsequent from their future propagation; or as more nutritious food, substituted to supply the deficiency of the fruits of the earth, and to retrieve the enfeebled radical moisture of men, arising from an humble diet.

4 But flesh with the life thereof, &c.] All these and the foregoing precepts, are general interdicts, not only with regard to the wanton infringements before the flood, but preliminary to future violations on the animal species; for it may be supposed that men sported with the animal creation; and departing from the allotment of excellent food, made excursions on the creatures, which this divine institution guards against, confining them to a proper use of animal food. The Tartars, Indians, and other wild savages, break in upon this wise fundamental to this day. The precept is also written or delivered to inspire a due sense of tenderness to the blood of the animals, as the grand preservative against murder, with all its train of human sacrifices, which, notwithstanding this institution, prevailed in the world soon after, and still subsists among several barbarous people.

5 And surely your blood, &c.] In the Hebrew it is "for surely," as an inference implying the mutual commutation of blood for blood.

6 In the image of God, &c.] Murder is the most heinous sacrilege, because, of all things in the world, nothing is more sacred, nothing stamped with more lively characters of the divinity, than man.

13 I do set my bow in the cloud, &c.] Thus when the covenant is with the world race of mankind, and so the sign of the covenant to serve only for a remembrance, that sign may be either a moral duty, or a natural phenomenon. This was the case of God's promise in the text. Here the Almighty made a natural and beautiful phenomenon, seen over the whole habitable world, the token of that covenant. It is wonderful to consider how this matter has been mistaken. Perhaps the word "set" did not a little contribute to it: the expression being understood absolutely, when it should have been taken for the qualified sense of setting for a token; and in this sense, and only in this sense, the bow was then first set in the cloud. Burnet supposing the phenomenon of the rainbow did not exist before the flood, says, "It could not be a token of God's covenant, because being a common appearance, it would have given no extraordinary assurance of security." Tindal asserts, "Perhaps, not knowing the natural cause of the rainbow, occasioned that account we have in Genesis of its institution. God's appointing the rainbow to be a token, for perpetual generations, of his covenant with mankind, is called the institution of the rainbow." The words shew, this author took it for granted, that Moses represents God as then first setting his bow in the clouds. But this is founded in gross ignorance of the nature of simple commands and promises, in which the only security for performance is, the known good faith of the promiser. But in the case before us, the most novel or most supernatural appearance, could add nothing to their assurance, arising from the evidence of God's veracity. As, on the contrary, had the children of Noah been ignorant of this attribute of the Deity, such an extraordinary phenomenon could have given no assurance at all. For what then, served the rainbow? For the wise purpose so well expressed by the sacred writer, "for a token of the covenant," that is, for a memorial or remembrance of it throughout all generations, a method of universal practice in contracts of civilized nations. It is called a bow, on account of its great resemblance to a bow or an arch.

20 And Noah began to be an husbandman, &c.] This word which we translate "began," signifies also "continued;" and the true sense is, Noah continued to be an husbandman; that is, he returned to the occupation he followed before the flood happened.

21 And he drank of the wine, &c.] It has been justly observed, that the word which we render "drunken," does not absolutely imply a great degree of intoxication, but only that he was discomposed, or heated with the liquor. And with regard to his being uncovered, the loose dress of those times rendered it easy for the wind, or any slight movement of the body, to expose those parts, which nature teaches us to cover.

22 And Ham, the Father of Canaan, saw the nakedness, &c.] The interpreters are divided with regard to the crime of Ham; but that which seems most consonant to reason is, that seeing the nakedness of his aged father, he made him the subject of his wanton mirth and raillery. Some are of opinion that Ham's crime consisted in committing incest with his father's wife; as the scripture phrase, to see or uncover his father's nakedness, signifies to lie with his father's wife. He supposes that Ham took the opportunity of his father's drunkenness, to execute his wicked design: that his brethren having surprised them in the act, threw their garments over him and his accomplice, and then went and gave an account to their father of all they had seen; that Noah, highly enraged at this base action, ordered that Canaan, the issue of that incestuous commerce, should be wholly deprived of the inheritance. The text may be explained easily, if we consider the passage a prophecy, which Noah then uttered in order to mortify his wicked son, by foretelling that this violation of filial duty would be retaliated upon him in the wretchedness and degeneracy of his children, particularly of Canaan's race. Nor will this appear at all forced, when it is considered that the words in the original are only "cursed Canaan," much as to say, ah, wretched, ill-fated Canaan! "A servant of servants shall he be unto his brethren."

NOW these are the generations of the sons of Noah, Shem, Ham, and Japheth; and unto them were sons born after the flood.

¶ The sons of Japheth; Gomer, and Magog, and Madai, and Javan, and Tubal, and Meshech, and Tiras.

3 And the sons of Gomer; Ashkenaz, and Riphath, and Togarmah.

4 And the sons of Javan; Elishah, and Tarshish, Kittim, and Dodaniam.

6 ¶ And the sons of Ham; Cush, and Misraim, and Phut, and Canaan.

7 And the sons of Cush; Seba, and Havilah, and Sabtah, and Raamah, and Sabtechah: and the sons of Raamah, Sheba, and Dedan.

8 And Cush begat Nimrod: he began to be a mighty one in the earth.

9 He was a mighty hunter before the LORD:

26 Blessed be the Lord God of Shem.] If we refer "blessed," directly to Shem, as the word "curse," is to the father of Canaan, the words may be rendered, "blessed of Jehovah, my God, be Shem;" or, if we follow our own translation, we may observe the patriarch does not say, "blessed be Shem," as he said, "curse be," &c. for men's evil springeth from themselves, but their good from God. The Lord being called the "God of Shem," intimates he would be so in a particular manner; and, accordingly, the church of God was among the posterity of Shem for many generations; and of them, as concerning the flesh, Christ came, Rom. ix. 5.

27 God shall enlarge Japheth.] i. e. God shall enlarge the bounds of the countries possessed by the children of Japheth; a prediction which was fully accomplished; for not only Europe, but Lesser Asia, Media, part of Armenia, Iberia, Albania, and the vast regions towards the north, anciently inhabited by the Scythians, but now by the Tartars, fell to the share of his seed.

He shall dwell in the tents of Shem, &c.] Signifying, some of the countries of Shem should be possessed by the descendants of Japheth; a prediction which was verified when the Medes and Babylonians overthrew the Assyrian empire, and the Greeks and Romans conquered that part of Asia belonging then to Shem.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS on Chap. IX.

Several lessons of great importance may be learned from this chapter. In the first place we are taught an inviolable observance of those laws which God gave to Noah after the flood, and that we should have a right use of his creatures. Secondly, that the covenant which God made with Noah, never to drown the earth more, has stood ever since; and, therefore, we are in duty bound to acknowledge, that he is faithful in the fulfilment of all his promises, and that we, even in these degenerate times, are convinced of the truth of them as often as we look at the rainbow. Thirdly, that although the world is not to be again destroyed by water, yet it will be by fire; for as St. Peter says, If the old world being overflowed by water, perished, the heavens and the earth are reserved for fire at the day of judgment. Lastly, as to Noah's being intoxicated with wine, let us learn the duty of sobriety, and never become ourselves so far as to debase the image of God, by rendering ourselves like the beasts that perish. How happy are those who keep God continually before them in all their actions, who are afraid to sin, because it is an affront offered to the majesty of heaven. God will keep them in perfect peace whose minds are fixed upon him, and he will lead them through the wilderness of the world to everlasting glory in heaven. This, as well as other parts of the holy scripture, fully demonstrate that sin always brings its punishment in its consequences; and that it never profiteth. Cain's hopes and expectations from the murder of his brother failed him; wherefore it is said, Even as Nimrod the mighty hunter before the LORD.

10 And the beginning of his kingdom was Babel, and Erech, and Accad, and Calneh, in the land of Shinar.

11 Out of the land went forth Asshur, and builded Nineveh, and the city Rehoboth, and Calah, 12 And Resen between Nineveh and Calah: the same is a great city.

13 And Mizraim begat Ludim, and Anamim, and Lehabim, and Naphtuhim, 14 And Pathrusim, and Casluhim, (out of whom came Philistim) and Caphtorim.

15 ¶ And Canaan begat Sidon his first born, and Heth,

16 And the Jebusite, and the Amorite, and the Girgashite,

17 And the Hivite, and the Arkite, and the Sinite,

18 And the Arvadite, and the Zemarite, and the Hamathite: and afterward were the families of the Canaanites spread abroad.

19 And the border of the Canaanites was from Sidon as thou comest to Gerar unto Gaza; as thou goest unto Sodom, and Gomorrah, and Admah, and Zeboim, even unto Lasha.

20 These are the sons of Ham, after their families, after their tongues, in their countries, and in their nations.

21 ¶ Unto Shem also, the father of all the children of Eber, the brother of Japheth the elder, even to him were children born.

22 The children of Shem, Elam, and Asshur, and Arphaxad, and Lud, and Aram.

23 And the children of Aram; Uz, and Hul, and Gether, and Mash.

24 And Arphaxad begat Salah; and Salah begat Eber.

25 And

and Noah, from indulging himself with wine, became the derision of his children.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. X.

1 Generations, &c.] We should observe, that though this chapter be placed before the eleventh, yet, in order of time, it ought to follow; for the foundation of Nimrod's kingdom, and the dispersion of mankind through the different regions of the earth, are facts posterior to the confusion of Babel, in chap. xi.

This genealogy is of singular advantage to confirm the truth of Moses' history, by giving an account of the succession of mankind from the creation to the flood, and from the flood to his own time; shewing from whom all nations were derived, and how they came to be dispersed. Besides, by tracing these genealogies, we come to know how exactly the predictions were fulfilled in the former chapter relating to Noah.

5 Isles of the Gentiles, &c.] The word "isles," does not comprehend only such countries as are surrounded by the sea, but all such countries as were divided from the land of Canaan by the sea; for the word which we translate "isle," signifies also a country, province, or region.

8 He began to be a mighty one, &c.] Our translation, "a mighty one," or powerful, is differently rendered by the ancient versions; the Septuagint translate it "a giant," an appellation in scripture applied to persons of prodigious stature and strength, and likewise to such who delighted in martial toils, in barbarity, and wickedness. The Chaldee renders the word "robust man." But the Syriac and the Arabic confirm the reading of the Septuagint, and seem to include, under the term, the ideas of immense stature, extraordinary strength, and insatiate ferocity.

9 He was a mighty hunter before the Lord, &c.] i. e. He taught the people to chase and destroy the wild beasts. And if we consider that men now dwell in tents, weakly defended, and consequently exposed to the ravages of wild beasts, we shall not be surprised that Nimrod, by delivering his associates from these savage enemies, should so far gain their affection, that it was an easy transition to raise himself from the state in which he was considered as their friend and benefactor, to the sovereign authority. He seems to have been a very tyrannical prince, his name signifying "rebel," an apostate. He was the founder of the Babylonish empire, whence the prophet Micah calls it "the land of Nimrod." chap. v. 6.

10 The beginning of his kingdom was Babel, &c.] By this expression we may understand, either that Babylon was the first city that he built, or the capital of his kingdom. He began his reign in the year of the world one thousand seven hundred and fifty-seven, and reigned about one hundred and forty-eight years.

Before CHRIST 2247. 25 And unto Eber were born two sons: the name of the one was Peleg; for in his days was the earth divided: and his brother's name was Joktan.

26 And Joktan begat Almodad, and Sheleph, and Hazarmaveth, and Jerah, 27 And Iladram, and Uzal, and Diklah,

28 And Obal, and Abimael, and Sheba,

29 And Ophir, and Havilah, and Jobab: all these were the sons of Joktan.

30 And their dwelling was from Mesha, as thou goest unto Sephar, a mount of the east.

31 These are the sons of Shem, after their families, after their tongues, in their lands, after their nations.

32 These are the families of the sons of Noah, after their generations, in their nations: and by these were the nations divided in the earth after the flood.

One language in the world. 3 The building of Babel interrupted by the confusion of tongues. 10 The generations of Shem, 27 and of Terah the father of Abram, 31 Terah goeth from Ur to Haran, and dieth there.

AND the whole earth was of one language, and of one speech.

2 And it came to pass, as they journeyed from the east, that they found a plain in the land of Shinar; and they dwelt there.

3 ¶ And they said one to another, Go to; let us make brick, and burn them throughly. And they had brick for stone, and slime had they for mortar.

4 And they said, Go to, let us build us a city, and a tower, whose top may reach unto heaven; and let us make us a name, lest we be scattered abroad upon the face of the whole earth.

25 Peleg, for in his days was the earth divided, &c.] From this son of Eber Abram was descended. His name was called Peleg, which implies "division," because about the time of his birth the great dispersion of mankind, related in the succeeding chapter, happened. From the deluge to Peleg's birth, is that period which the ancient poets call the golden age, because then men enjoyed all things in common; and Noah, whom they call Saturn, governed them, not as kings do their subjects, but as fathers do their sons.

27 Hadram.] It is thought some footsteps of this name are preserved in the Drimoti of Pliny, towards the Persian gulf.

Uzal, &c.] This is the name given to Sanaa, the capital of Yaman, by the Jewish inhabitants thereof.

28 Obal.] The Arabic pronunciation hereof is Aubal, whose posterity passed the Arabian gulf, out of Arabia Felix, into that part of Africa called Troglodytica, where we meet with some traces of his name, in the gulf named Abalites, and a great trading town of the same appellation.

Abimael, &c.] The Arabians pronounced this Ahimal, i. e. the father of the Mali, or Malitz, a people in Arabia, mentioned by Ptolemy and others. So that Mali is probably the contraction of Abimali, as Salem for Jerusalem, &c. &c.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. X.

This chapter, towards the latter part, exhibits the origin of all the different nations in the earth, which should teach us that every country, however different in complexion, or manners, is still deserving our esteem and respect, being all the descendants of Adam, and consequently entitled to our brotherly love.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XI.

1 Of one language, &c.] It is thought the language now universally spoken, was the same with that used by Adam, from whom it might easily be communicated to Methuselah, and from him to his grandson Noah, who propagated it among his posterity to this period.

2 And they found a plain in the land of Shinar, &c.] This plain is situated on the banks of the Tigris, and is supposed to comprehend the whole country of Eden, the happy seat of man, when he was in a state of innocence and bliss.

3 Slime they had for mortar.] This slime is the asphaltites, or what some authors call bitumen, a kind of liquid pitch. Suidas says, that this cement, being mixed with bricks and small stones, becomes strong and solid as iron.

4 Let us build a city, and a tower, whose top may reach unto heaven.] Several interpreters are of opinion, that the raising a tower to heaven implies erecting a temple in honour to heaven, or the heavenly bodies. It has also been conjectured by some, that this tower was

5 And the LORD came down to see the city and the tower, which the children of men builded.

6 And the LORD said, Behold, the people is one, and they have all one language; and this they begin to do: and now nothing will be restrained from them, which they have imagined to do.

7 Go to, let us go down, and there confound their language, that they may not understand one another's speech.

8 So the LORD scattered them abroad from thence upon the face of all the earth: and they left off to build the city.

9 Therefore is the name of it called Babel: because the LORD did there confound the language of all the earth: and from thence did the LORD scatter them abroad upon the face of all the earth.

consecrated by the builders of it, to the sun, as the cause of drying up the waters of the deluge. Others, with better authority, think they began a strong city.

Let us make us a name, &c.] i. e. Let us render our name famous among future generations, by some monument that may command their admiration. Thus we see ambition was what animated them to undertake this laborious task. They had no sooner fixed on a place to settle in, but they determined to render it remarkable to future ages, by building a strong city, which should be the wonder of the world. Their intention was to settle here, and build an useless monument for fame, instead of replenishing the earth, as was then necessary; therefore God, in his wisdom, scattered them abroad, and dispersed them.

5 The Lord came down, &c.] i. e. He observed their works, and knew the secret intention of their hearts.

6 And now nothing will be restrained from them, &c.] As if he had said, "And now nothing will hinder them from executing their project, unless I interpose; or rather, they imagine to do as they will."

7 Let us go down, and there confound their language, &c.] Here we have an account of a transaction which has greatly perplexed the heathen philosophers, namely, how mankind came to speak such a multiplicity of languages. But the sacred historian has cleared up this difficulty, by shewing us that it was effected by the same almighty power which taught our first parents to speak one tongue in the beginning, and, in after ages, inspired the apostles of our blessed Redeemer with the gift of several. Acts ii. 4.

8 And they left off to build the city.] The building, however, long remained a monument of human vanity. Herodotus, who viewed the building attentively, tells us, that it was a square of a furlong on each side, and consequently half a mile in circumference. The height was equal to the circumference of the base, and divided into eight towers, built one upon another; but, probably, what made it appear like eight towers, was, the manner of its ascent, which was a circular or winding way, carried round the outside of the building to its highest point. This ascent was so very broad, that it afforded room for horses and carriages to pass by each other, and even to turn: and the towers, which appeared like so many stories, one upon another, were each of them seventy-five feet high, containing many stately rooms, with arched roofs, supported by pillars, which were made parts of the temple, after the tower was consecrated to the worship of idols.

9 The name of it called Babel, &c.] This is not that tower which was built by Belus, and which perpetuated his name to future ages; for that was a production of great art: whereas this tower of Babel cannot well be imagined to have been any other but a rude, mountainous structure, raised with no great art, by a multitude of untaught and inexperienced workmen.

1921. 32 And the days of Terah were two hundred and five years: and Terah died in Haran.

¶ God calleth Abram, and blesteth him with a promise of Christ. 4 He with Lot departeth from Haran. 6 He journeyeth through Canaan, which is promised him in a vision. 10 He is driven by a famine into 26 And Terah lived seventy years, and begat Abram, &c.] Now is the first time that we meet with Abram, the father of the faithful, and though he is named first, does not appear to be the eldest, but rather Haran; nay, it seems pretty plain, that Abram was not born until the hundred and thirtieth year of his father's life, for Terah was two hundred and five years old when he died, ver. 32. and Abram was but seventy-five years of age when he went out of Haran to Canaan, chap. xii. 4. and that was as soon as his father died there; so that if seventy-five were taken out of two hundred and five, there will remain one hundred and thirty, in which year, and not before, Abram must be born: the wife of Terah, of whom Abram was born, according to some Jewish writers, was named Chamtelaah, the daughter of Caracho; and others call her Amthalai: the Jews say Terah was the first that found out the way of coining money, and that in his days men began to worship images, and that he was the chief of their priests, but afterwards repented; and it appears from Yesh. xxiv. 2. that he was an idolater.

28 And Haran died before his father Terah.] i. e. in his father's presence, before his face, in his life-time; as Jarchi he seeing him, as Aben Ezra. It does not so much respect the time of his death, that it was before his father, though this is true, as the place where he died, his father being present there, at the time of his death.

In the land of his nativity, in Ur of the Chaldees.] This Ur, which some translate a valley, was the place of his birth, as it was of Abram's; it was in Mesopotamia, that part of it called Assyria, being called the land of the Chaldeans. Josephus says, that Haran died among the Chaldeans, in a city called Ur, where, he adds, his grave is shewn to this day. The Jews have a fable concerning the death of Haran: they say that Terah was not only an idolater, but a maker and seller of images; and that one day going abroad, he left his son Abram in the shop, to sell them, who, during his father's absence, broke them all to pieces, except one; upon which, when Terah returned and found what was done, he had him before Nimrod, who ordered him to be cast into a burning furnace, and he should see whether the God he worshipped would come and save him; and whilst he was in it, they asked his brother Haran in whom he believed he answered, if Abram overcomes, he would believe in his God, but if not, in Nimrod; wherefore they cast him into the furnace, and he was burnt; and with respect to this it is said, "and Haran died before the face of Terah his father," but Abram came out safe before the eyes of all the spectators.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XI.

By this chapter we see the great decrease of the number of years of man's life after the flood. It is supposed, that this alteration proceeded from a change in the air and other natural causes, but no doubt it was God's wisdom and benevolence ordained it: for No. 2.

Egypt, where fear maketh him feign his wife to be his sister. 14 Pharaoh taketh her into his house, but by plagues is compelled to restore her; and sendeth Abram away.

Before CHRIST 1921.

NOW the LORD had said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will shew thee:

2 And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing:

3 And I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee: and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed.

4 ¶ So Abram departed, as the LORD had spoken unto him; and Lot went with him: and Abram was seventy and five years old when he departed out of Haran.

5 And Abram took Sarai his wife, and Lot his brother's son, and all their substance that they had gathered, and the souls that they had gotten in Haran; and they went forth to go into the land of Canaan; and into the land of Canaan they came.

6 ¶ And Abram passed through the land into the place of Sichem, unto the plain of Moreh. And the Canaanite was then in the land.

7 And the LORD appeared unto Abram, and said, Unto thy seed will I give this land: and there builded he an altar unto the LORD, who appeared unto him.

8 And he removed from thence unto a mountain on the east of Beth-el, and pitched his tent, having Beth-el on the west, and Hai on the east: and there he builded an altar unto the LORD, and called upon the name of the LORD.

9 And Abram journeyed, going on still toward the south.

10 ¶ And

had longevity been common to man, the earth in a course of years would have been overstocked: whereas life and death now keep nearly an equal pace with each other; and men, if they lived too long in this world, might lose all thoughts of a future state. God therefore was good as well as wise in shortening the days of man.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XII.

1 The Lord had said unto Abram.] God had revealed himself to Abram before his father's death, while he lived in Ur of the Chaldees; but probably it was by a voice, the Shechinah, or symbol of the Divine presence; for Stephen expressly says, in Acts vii. 2. The God of glory appeared unto him before he dwelt in Charan.

Get the wife, &c.] Seeing the Lord did not shew him whither he was to go, the readiness with which he complied, added to the merit of his faith, "He went out, not knowing whither he went." Heb. xi. 8.

3 And in thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed.] How remarkable this part of the promise, as containing the proper end of God's choice, and separation of him and his posterity, and so very fitly made, by the sacred writer, the foundation of the history of God's dispensations to him, and a mark to direct the reader to what they are all ultimately to be referred.

5 The souls that they had gotten, &c.] This word rendered "souls," signifies "persons, or servants," and that which is translated "gotten," signifies "to secure, or get possession of." The sentence, therefore, implies "domestics, or servants." The Jews add, which the text seems to countenance, that these servants were proselyted to the belief of the true God.

6 The place of Sichem, &c.] i. e. The spot where Sichem was built afterwards. "The plain of Moreh," is the sense of the Chaldee, but the Hebrew signifies, "the oak of Moreh;" the Septuagint read, "the lofty oak," but the Syriac and Arabic, "the oak of Mamre." This place was probably grown with oaks, or remarkable for an exceeding high one. The Samaritan will bear the sense of "the valley of vision," which sense the Vulgate supports, by rendering "the illustrious valley." The faith of Abram is strongly recommended, by his venturing into these parts, which were settled or invaded by the Canaanites, a cruel and savage nation.

7 Unto thy seed, &c.] We find Abram, at his first leaving his father's house, intirely resigned himself to the disposal of heaven, without knowing for certain whither he was to go. When he was come into the land of Canaan, his faith was rewarded by God, with a farther revelation of his will, and he was now told that this was the land which God said he would shew him, and which was to be inherited by his posterity.

8 And called, &c.] These words are in the Chaldee, "he prayed in the name of God;" distinguishing his addresses and his confidence

^{Before CHRIST 1921.} 10 ¶ And there was a famine in the land: and Abram went down into Egypt to sojourn there; for the famine was grievous in the land.

11 And it came to pass, when he was come near to enter into Egypt, that he said unto Sarai his wife, Behold now, I know that thou art a fair woman to look upon.

12 Therefore it shall come to pass, when the Egyptians shall see thee, that they shall say, This is his wife: and they will kill me, but they will save thee alive.

13 Say, I pray thee, thou art my sister: that it may be well with me for thy sake; and my soul shall live because of thee.

^{1920.} 14 ¶ And it came to pass, that, when Abram was come into Egypt, the Egyptians beheld the woman that she was very fair.

15 The princes also of Pharaoh saw her, and commended her before Pharaoh: and the woman was taken into Pharaoh's house.

16 And he entreated Abram well for her sake: and he had sheep, and oxen, and he asses, and men-servants, and maid-servants, and she asses, and camels.

17 And the Lord plagued Pharaoh and his house with great plagues because of Sarai Abram's wife.

18 And Pharaoh called Abram, and said, What is this that thou hast done unto me? why didst thou not tell me that she was thy wife?

19 Why saidst thou, She is my sister? so I might have taken her to me to wife: now therefore behold thy wife, take her, and go thy way.

20 And Pharaoh commanded his men concerning him: and they sent him away, and his wife, and all that he had.

C H A P. XIII.

1 Abram and Lot return out of Egypt. 7 On a strife between their servants they agree to part. 10 Lot goeth to Sodom. 14 God reneweth his promise to Abram.

^{1918.} A ND Abram went up out of Egypt, he, and his wife, and all that he had, and Lot with him, into the south.

2 And Abram was very rich in cattle, in silver, and in gold.

3 And he went on his journeys from the south even to Beth-el, unto the place where his tent had been at the beginning, between Beth-el and Hai; confidence towards the true God, from those of the surrounding idolaters and blasphemers.

10 Abram went down into Egypt, &c.] Egypt is represented as abounding in corn, and capable of relieving others in a time of famine, which no kingdom can do, where agriculture has not been improved by art, and regulated by a civil policy.

13 Say—thou art my sister, &c.] Several of the ancient fathers have greatly censured this action of Abram; but Sarai was in reality his sister, both having the same father, though a different mother. The Chaldee renders “because of thee,” by “because of thy words.”

17 The Lord plagued Pharaoh.] God, to prevent abuse, inflicted some terrible distemper upon the king and his court, which is thought to have been of such a nature, that they who were seized with it, were incapable of accomplishing their designs upon her, or any other woman. Josephus says, Pharaoh was visited with a plague and sedition at once, and that in this distress he had recourse to the priests, who, upon sacrificing, reported that this calamity was befallen him for the violence and abuse he designed upon the wife of a sojourner.

Because of Sarai, Abram's wife.] Some imagine, that because Pharaoh clears himself of any intention to violate a married woman, he was therefore quite innocent in this matter. But it was an argument of very intemperate lust, to desire and seize on a woman stranger, merely because she was commended for her beauty. He was guilty in taking from a stranger his supposed sister, to make her his concubine, thus breaking the sacred laws of hospitality and honour.

20 And Pharaoh, &c.] There is no mention made of Abram's reply by way of excuse, he having doubtless been sensible of his weakness in that particular, and acknowledged the same freely, together with the special favour of the Lord, in thus managing the whole business.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XII.

By this chapter we see that the world was not yet become so corrupt and full of violence since the flood, as it had been before. We find in Pharaoh, and afterwards in the case of Abimelech, on the like occasion, a kind of integrity of mind, love of justice, even to strangers, and respect for the sacredness of the marriage-union,

4 Unto the place of the altar, which he had made there at the first: and there Abram called on the name of the Lord. ^{Before CHRIST 1918.}

5 And Lot also, which went with Abram, had flocks, and herds, and tents.

6 And the land was not able to bear them, that they might dwell together: for their substance was great, so that they could not dwell together.

7 ¶ And there was a strife between the herdmen of Abram's cattle and the herdmen of Lot's cattle: and the Canaanite and the Perizzite dwelled then in the land.

8 And Abram said unto Lot, Let there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee, and between my herdmen and thy herdmen; for we be brethren.

9 Is not the whole land before thee? separate thyself, I pray thee, from me: if thou wilt take the left hand, then I will go to the right; or if thou depart to the right hand, then I will go to the left.

10 ¶ And Lot lifted up his eyes, and beheld all the plain of Jordan, that it was well watered every where, before the Lord destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah, even as the garden of the Lord, like the land of Egypt, as thou comest unto Zoar.

11 Then Lot chose him all the plain of Jordan; and Lot journeyed east: and they separated themselves the one from the other.

12 Abram dwelled in the land of Canaan, and Lot dwelled in the cities of the plain, and pitched his tent toward Sodom.

13 But the men of Sodom were wicked and finners before the Lord exceedingly.

14 ¶ And the Lord said unto Abram, after that Lot was separated from him, Lift up now thine eyes, and look from the place where thou art northward, and southward, and eastward, and westward:

15 For all the land which thou seeest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed for ever.

16 And I will make thy seed as the dust of the earth: so that if a man can number the dust of the earth, then shall thy seed also be numbered.

17 Arise, walk through the land in the length of it and in the breadth of it; for I will give it unto thee.

18 ¶ Then Abram removed his tent, and came and dwelt in the plain of Mamre, which is in Hebron, and built there an altar unto the Lord.

CHAP.

even in kings who had power in their hands to do what they would. From this, and Abram's travelling unmolested through different countries, we may infer that the Egyptians, and several other kingdoms, still continued in the worship of the true God.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XIII.

4 And called on the name of the Lord.] As in chap. viii. 12.

6 The land was not able to bear them, &c.] Not so much owing to its want of fruitfulness, as want of room, other nations having already occupied it.

8 And Abram said unto Lot, let there be no strife, I pray thee, &c.] Thus Abram was ready to obviate all kinds of animosity, and to prevent any misunderstanding between him and Lot, proposes a friendly separation; nor does he propose even this, without adding an endearing reason, “for we be brethren.”

10 As thou comest unto Zoar.] This Zoar was not in the land of Egypt, but at a prodigious distance from it. But if we insert the words, “even as the garden of the Lord, like the land of Egypt,” in parenthesis, then the meaning of the verse will amount to this, that before the Lord destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah, the plain of Jordan was like a delightful garden, well watered, even to the utmost skirts of the plain, where Zoar was situated. But if, with the Syriac version, instead of Zoar, we read Zoan, the ancient seat of the kings of Egypt, Num. xii. 22. which stood in the south part of it, in a country well watered, the true import of the passage will be this; that the plain of Jordan, before the Lord destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah, was well watered every where; yea, the plain was so well watered that it was like the garden of Eden, or the land of Egypt, and particularly as thou goest to Zoan.

13 Sinners before the Lord, &c.] That is, abominably wicked. This is added to prepare the reader for their terrible catastrophe, related chap. xviii.

14, 15 Look from the place, &c.] By this we find how every successive revelation given to Abram, was a reward of his piety, and clearer than that which preceded. Thus God marks out the bounds of the land, which he assured him should be given to him, and his seed for ever; which should be as the dust of the earth for number.

AND it came to pass in the days of Amraphel king of Shinar, Arioch, king of Ellasar, Chedorlaomer king of Elam, and Tidal king of nations;

That these made war with Bera king of Sodom, and with Birsha king of Gomorrah, Shinab king of Admah, and Shemeber king of Zeboiim, and the king of Bela, which is Zoar.

3 All these were joined together in the vale of Siddim, which is the salt sea.

4 Twelve years they served Chedorlaomer, and in the thirteenth year they rebelled.

5 And in the fourteenth year came Chedorlaomer, and the kings that were with him, and smote the Rephaims in Ashteroth Karnaim, and the Zuzims in Ham, and the Emims in Shaveh Kiriathaim,

6 And the Horites in their mount Seir, unto Elparan, which is by the wilderness.

7 And they returned, and came to Enmishpat, which is Kadesh, and smote all the country of the Amalekites, and also the Amorites, that dwelt in Hazezon-tamar.

And there went out the king of Sodom, and the king of Gomorrah, and the king of Admah, and the king of Zeboiim, and the king of Bela (the same is Zoar); and they joined battle with them in the vale of Siddim;

9 With Chedorlaomer the king of Elam, and with Tidal king of nations, and Amraphel king of Shinar, and Arioch king of Ellasar; four kings with five.

10 And the vale of Siddim was full of slime-pits; and the kings of Sodom and Gomorrah fled, and fell there; and they that remained fled to the mountain.

11 And they took all the goods of Sodom and 12 And they took Lot, Abram's brother's son, and who dwelt in Sodom, and his goods, and departed.

13 And there came one that had escaped, and told Abram the Hebrew; for he dwelt in the plain of Mamre the Amorite, brother to Eshcol, and brother of Aner: and these were confederate with Abram.

14 And when Abram heard that his brother was taken captive, he armed his trained servants, born in his own house, three hundred and eighteen, and pursued them unto Dan.

15 And he divided himself against them, he and his servants, by night, and smote them, and pursued them unto Hobah, which is on the left hand of Damascus.

16 And he brought back all the goods, and also brought again his brother Lot, and his goods, and the women also, and the people.

17 And the king of Sodom went out to meet him after his return from the slaughter of Chedorlaomer, and of the kings that were with him, at the valley of Shaveh, which is the king's dale.

18 And Melchizedek king of Salem brought forth bread and wine: and he was the priest of the most high God.

19 And he blessed him and said; Blessed be Abram of the most high God, possessor of heaven and earth:

20 And blessed be the most high God, which hath delivered thine enemies into thy hand. And he gave him tithes of all.

21 And the king of Sodom said unto Abram, Give me the persons, and take the goods to thyself.

22 And Abram said to the king of Sodom, I have lift up mine hand unto the Lord, the most high God, the possessor of heaven and earth,

23 That I will not take from thee a thread even to a shoe-latchet, and that I will not take any thing that is thine, lest thou shouldest say, I have made Abram rich:

24 Save only that which the young men have eaten, and the portion of the men which went with me, Aner, Eshcol, and Mamre; let them take their portion.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS on Chap. XIII.

We are here instructed, that Love is called in the New Testament, the royal law, the fulfilling of the law, Rom. xiii. 8. and is accounted one of the two pillars on which hang all the law and the prophets. Jesus Christ himself, the light of the world, our true instructor, after having told men, "that to love the Lord our God, with all our heart, and with all our soul, and with all our mind, is the first and great commandment," adds, "and the second is like unto it, thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself." What great inducement is here to be kind and affectionate to each other, to avoid strife, contention, and quarrelling, to love as brethren: how instructive is Abram's behaviour! Though he was the elder, and might justly claim some superiority over Lot, yet how nobly and modestly does he give it up! "Separate thyself, I pray thee, from me; if thou wilt take the left hand, then I will go to the right; if thou depart to the right hand, then I will go to the left." What a noble example have we of modesty and condescension; give up what may be just due, for the sake of brotherly love; to be humble, to be great forever our station; and to be kind and submitting upon all occasions!

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XIV.

Shinar, &c.] i. e. Babylon: Ellasar is Syria; Elamis, Persia; nations of a country inhabited by many nations; perhaps the same with that afterwards called Galilee.

Full of slime-pits, &c.] That is, pits or wells of bitumen, which abounded in this country.

And they took Lot, &c.] Thus Lot being a neighbour of the men of Sodom, and a sojourner among them, partakes of their punishment, and he and his family being taken captives, all his substance, his cattle, wealth, and riches of every sort, were carried off by the invaders: and that was a just punishment for being allured to dwell among such wicked people, for the sake of temporal convenience.

Abram the Hebrew, &c.] "Heber," the word which is rendered "the Hebrew," signifies "the side," and accordingly the Septuagint translate it, "the stranger from beyond the river:" an appellation given by the Canaanites to Abram and his family, from their coming "from the other side of the Euphrates."

Melchizedek.] Who some think was Shem. But can it be thought that Shem should reign over the children of Ham? Shem's progenitors were known, but Melchizedek's were not. Heb. vii. Besides, Abram paid his tithes to one who was of a different family, Heb. vii. 6. consequently Melchizedek could not be Shem. Some of the ancient writers took him for the Son of God, who appeared to Abram in the form of a man; while others say, how could the Son of God be a type of himself, as the apostle plainly tells us Melchizedek was a type of Christ. Heb. vii. 3. Some suppose him to be Ham; and others, one of the princes of Canaan, who, on account of his singular virtue and piety, was called Melchizedek, that is, king of righteousness, which the Arabic translates not as his name, but character.

King of Salem.] Most commentators, and the Chaldee, take Salem for Jerusalem, which is called Salem in Scripture. "In Salem, also, is his tabernacle, and his dwelling-place in Zion," Psa. lxxvi. 2.

He was the priest of the most high God.] The word "cohen," translated priest, signifies a high priest, and a nobleman; it was probably borrowed from the Egyptians; the Hebrews having no order of priesthood before that instituted by Moses. It is used here with great propriety to communicate the idea of the dignity as well as sacredness the character of Melchizedek.

And he gave him tithes of all.] That is, Abram, as it is explained, Heb. xvii. 2. gave Melchizedek, as the priest of God, the tenth of all the spoil he had taken in the battle, according to the custom of those times, Gen. xxx. 22. Those tithes were thus consecrated to God; they were set apart for the maintenance of religion, for the relief of the poor, and other pious purposes.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS on Chap. XIV.

This chapter proves, as likewise do several others, that Moses, in his history, has omitted several particulars, which can only be understood or gathered from the circumstances. From the last verses hereof, it is evident, that some of the neighbouring people had joined Abram in pursuit of the kings, although in this narrative Moses has not given the least indication thereof.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XV.

1, 2, 3, 4. Fear not, Abram, &c.] Abram, it appears, after the gracious and repeated assurances of a numerous posterity, was now grown uneasy at his wife's barrenness, and his own want of issue to inherit the promises. Accordingly, we find him disturbed with those apprehensions; and that God, to remove them, appeared to him, in a vision, and said, "Fear not, Abram, &c." That his fears were not occasioned from any apprehensions of danger from the nations among whom he was settled; but solely for the reason assigned, is evident, as appears from the words immediately following. For Abram being thus encouraged to tell his grief, confessed it to be for want of issue, and for that he suspected the promised blessings were to be inherited by his adopted children, viz. the son of his servant Eliezer of Damascus.

6 And he believed, &c.] Notwithstanding his wife had been long barren, was very much advanced in years, and it was contrary to the course of nature to expect children: yet, against hope, he believed in God; and on account of the strength of his faith, which had so many objections to weaken it, he shewed he had a true idea of the divine veracity and omnipotence; and it was pleasing in God's sight.

10 Divided them, &c.] It is asserted by St. Cyril, St. Chrysostom, and others, that the ancient manner of making alliances at this time, was, to divide the victims into two parts, and to lay them on two altars opposite each other; after which, the contracting parties walked between, signifying, that the party which violated the covenant should be cut asunder as the victim was. Jeremiah alludes to this custom, chap. xxxiv. 18, 19. and conformed to it by passing between the altars in the similitude of a camp, ver. 17.

11 When the fowls came down.] Both the Hebrew, and the Septuagint, signify, he placed the birds upon the quarters or carcases of the victims, in the same manner as the sacrifices in Leviticus are ordered to be covered with fat. The word we translate "drove away," signifies, when read according to the Vulgate, "to breathe upon a whistle;" and alludes to the custom observed in sacrificing, which was either to play upon the flute, or to sing a hymn. According to this interpretation, the sense of this verse is, that Abram placed the birds upon the quarters of the victims, and passed between the altars singing or playing on the flute, in honour of the covenant which the Lord made with him, by passing between the two victims in the form of a camp.

13 Four hundred years.] No doubt these years are counted from Isaac's birth; for from the birth of Isaac to that of Jacob were sixty years; thence to the birth of Joseph were ninety; thence to Joseph's death, one hundred and ten years; thence to the birth of Moses, sixty years; and in the eightieth year of Moses' life the children of Israel came out of Egypt. These several sums, added together, amount to four hundred years, the time determined by this vision. Abram was now satisfied that the seed of his loins was to inherit the promises; but Sarai, being uneasy on account of her sterility, persuaded her husband to go in unto her handmaid Hagar, the 10 And he took unto him all these, and divided them in the midst, and laid each piece one against another: but the birds divided he not.

11 And when the fowls came down upon the carcases, Abram drove them away.

12 ¶ And when the sun was going down, a deep sleep fell upon Abram; and, lo, an horror of great darkness fell upon him.

13 And he said unto Abram, Know of a surety that thy seed shall be a stranger in a land that is not theirs, and shall serve them; and they shall afflict them four hundred years;

14 And also that nation, whom they shall serve, will I judge: and afterward shall they come out with great substance.

15 And thou shalt go to thy fathers in peace; thou shalt be buried in a good old age.

16 But in the fourth generation they shall come hither again: for the iniquity of the Amorites is not yet full.

17 And it came to pass, that, when the sun went down, and it was dark, behold a smoking furnace, and a burning lamp that passed between those pieces.

18 In the same day the LORD made a covenant with Abram, saying, Unto thy seed have I given this land, from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates:

19 The Kenites, and the Kenizzites, and the Kadmonites,

20 And the Hittites, and the Perizzites, and the Rephaims,

Egyptian. In this she indulged her own vanity and ambition; she would have a son whom she might adopt, and she flattered herself with being at the same time an instrument to promote God's designs.

16 In the fourth generation.] This is reckoned from Jacob's descent into Egypt: Aaron and Moses were the fourth descent from Levi, Exod. vi. 16, 18, 20.

The iniquity of the Amorites is not yet full.] We may learn from this, God is long suffering, and infinitely merciful, as well as just and resolute.

17 A smoking furnace, and a burning lamp, &c.] This word, in the Hebrew, signifies a lamp of fire, or lightning, and is used to signify the divine presence, or Shechinah.

18 Unto thy seed.] God, for the farther assurance of Abram, having instructed him in the various fortunes of his posterity, ver. 13, 14. now more particularly marks out the bounds of the promised land, and reckons up the several nations which then inhabited it. Thus, the Israelites are animated to undertake the conquest of their dominions, by this anecdote given by Moses.

19 The Kenites, &c.] For want of observing the fore-mentioned distinctions, the Kenites and dominions promised to the Israelites, were given to the Kenites for the descendants of Canaan. But what is said of the Kenites, 1 Sam. xv. 6. is commonly understood of the Midianites, who shewed kindness to the children of Israel by the mediation of Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, Exod. xvi. 1. Num. x. 29.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XV.

There is in this chapter a clear proof of God's knowing what will come to pass through all times; and that however much the affairs of the world may seem to be ordered and governed by the intentions of the earth, yet that God's providence superintends and directs in all. Here we have the state of a particular nation marked out for four hundred years to come, and distinguished by very remarkable events, of which there were then no appearance. It is the incommunicable character of God, to see into eternity. In the scriptures we often find him challenging the false deities to foretell what is to come: "Shew the things that are to come hereafter, that we may know ye are gods," Jer. xli. 23, &c. We may likewise further observe, that those events came to pass seemingly by accident, and in the natural course of things, though it is plain God ordered them; and therefore we have reason to conclude, that God at all times, and in all countries, and even families, does order those frequent changes, revolutions, and events, which happen to them, as best suits with the purposes of his infinite wisdom and goodness, though they all seem to us to happen by natural causes, and as it were by chance. Thus we may observe, that the seed of Abram were not, nor did they return into the land of Canaan, till it became fit, in the wisdom of God's providence, or government of the world, to punish the iniquity of the Amorites, then come to such a height, that it was not consistent with God's wisdom or justice to suffer them to go any longer unpunished.

The word rendered "afflictions," signifies "sorrows," and is caused by affliction: the Chaldee and Arabic render it "sorrows in affliction;" and Josephus that Hagar prayeth for her child in affliction.

shall dwell in the presence, &c.] In the original it is to "dwell in the presence" the Scimites formerly, and Bedowens at present, do so. The fulfilment of the prophecy was fulfilled in the person of Ishmael, chapter 17: 1-2. His posterity likewise dwell in the presence of all their children, and still continue a distinct people, and inhabited the country of their progenitors, notwithstanding the perpetual enmity between them and the rest of mankind. They were never reduced by the Persians; neither could the Assyrians, Medes, or Macedonians, subdue them. Their depredations and independency are still ascertained by travellers.

13 She called, &c.] It is in the original, she called the name of Jehovah, that spake unto her, the God of vision; for she said, What do I see here after the vision? The Vulgate explains the latter clause, by rendering it, Truly, I have seen the hinder parts of him that saw me. The Chaldee paraphrases the whole thus: She prayed in the name of the Lord, who spake unto her; saying, Thou art a God that seeth all things; because, she said, I began to see, after he appeared unto me. But the Arabic reads, she called the name of God, that conversed with her, Thou art powerful, thou seest: because, she said, I have seen or experienced thy mercy, after I had seen affliction. The religion of names was of great consequence in Egypt; it was one of their essential supersitions; it was one of their native inventions. Thus when Hagar, who was an Egyptian, saw the angel of God in the wilderness, she called the name of the Lord, that spake unto her, Elroi, "the God of vision," or the visible God; that is, according to the established custom of Egypt, she gave him a name of honour; not merely a name of distinction; for such all nations had, before their communications with Egypt.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XVI.

We have here, and in some of the following chapters, the distinguishing particulars of Ishmael, and his descendants, to this very day, after the long space of above three thousand years: for it is to be remarked, that, according to the language of scripture, what is spoken of the head or founder of any people, must be understood to be spoken of his descendants likewise, and to be their general character, as well as his in particular.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XVII.

“1 Almighty God, &c.] It is in the Hebrew El Shaddai; from El, “God,” and Shaddai, derived from shin, put instead of sher, signifies “who,” and dai “sufficient;” a title assuring him, that he was able to perform the promise. The Septuagint translate the latter end of the verse, “Do thou that which is well pleasing in my sight, and be blameless before me.” The Chaldee renders “do thou serve,” instead of “do thou walk;” the Syriac, “do good before me, and be without blot;” and the Arabic, “walk in my obedience, &c.

4. Father of many nations.] i. e. In a literal sense, the inhabitants of Arabia, Idumea, and Canaan, besides the tribes, sprung from his children by Keturah, were the descendants of Abram; in a spiritual sense, the father of the faithful in all nations. See Rom. iv. 16, 17. Gal. iii. 7.

5 Neither shall thy name be any more called Abram; but thy name shall be Abraham, &c.] If the name Abraham be derived from the Hebrew, it should have been written Abhammon; i. e. the father of a multitude. Others, indeed, derive it from ab, "a father," rab, "many," and hammon, "■ multitude;" but then it should have been written Abrahamon. But this objection vanishes if it be derived from the Arabic, where abu signifies "a father," and raham "a multitude." His former name was derived from ab, "a father," and ram = high," i. e. ■ father high in favour.

And I will make thee exceeding fruitful, and I will make nations of thee, and kings shall come out of thee.

9 ¶ And God said unto Abraham, Thou shalt keep my covenant therefore, thou, and thy seed after thee in their generations.

7, 8 And I will establish, &c.] This promise contains in it both a literal and a spiritual sense, though some will have a spiritual to be the only one. In the literal sense it contains a promise of the land of Canaan to Abraham and his posterity; and in this sense it was literally fulfilled, though Abraham was never personally in possession of it; since Abraham and his posterity, put collectively, signify the race of Abraham, and that race possessed the land of Canaan. Though God tells Abraham, he would give him the land, yet at the same time, he assures him it would be many hundred years before his posterity should be put in possession of it, chap. xv. 13. A whole country is given to Abraham and his seed. Could it possibly be God's design to place his family in the land of Canaan, till they were numerous enough to occupy and defend it? His posterity was his representative, and therefore putting them into possession, was putting him into it. The giving an heavenly Canaan could not be the literal sense, because an earthly Canaan is the direct, immediate sense of the promise. Manasseh Ben Israel contends for a spiritual Canaan, as the literal; but then he holds, that at the resurrection, Abraham will arise, and take possession of the land of Canaan.

11 And ye shall circumcise, &c.] Thus the revelations of God to this patriarch were gradual, and the rite of circumcision could not have been enjoined him, before his going into Egypt; nor, indeed, at any other time than that in which we find it to have been given. Had Abraham borrowed it from Egyptian rite, he would have been circumcised in Egypt, or soon after his return; for in Egypt it is a personal, not a family rite; and those who went into Egypt, either copy their manners, or to be initiated into their wisdom, were, as a previous ceremony, commonly circumcised by the Egyptian priests themselves. Circumcision was not given to Abraham and his race as a mark of distinction and separation from all other people, but what its constant use only made it fit for, a standing memorial of the covenant between God and Abraham.

14 That soul shall be cut off from his people, &c.] Without doubt this expression refers to the parents, who were to be cut off for neglecting, as appears from Exod. iv. 24. to perform this ceremony on their children: and this sense is supported by the Syriac version, which renders, "whoever shall not circumcise, &c." shall be cut off; others think it related to the children themselves, who were to be cut off, unless they took care to have this ceremony performed before they were thirteen years of age. By cutting off, is implied untimely death, which was generally inflicted by God himself. See Lev. xvii. 10.

15 Thou shalt call her name Sarai, but Sarah shall her name be.] Sarai, in the Hebrew, signifies, "my princess," and Sarah, princess of multitudes, which is a great difference.

CHAP.

18 O that Ishmael might live before thee!] The good patriarch was now grown fond of Ishmael, and reckoned upon him for the inheritor of the promises: to correct the mistake, God gave him a new revelation, in which he is told, that it was not the son of the bond-woman, but of Sarah, who was ordained to be heir of the promises. But Abraham had so long indulged himself in his mistake, and consequently in his affection for Ishmael, that he begs God would indulge it too—"O that Ishmael, &c." And God, in compassion to his paternal fondness, graciously promises that the posterity of Ishmael should become great and powerful (which we find accomplished, chap. xxv.) but that his covenant should be with Isaac. But this promise having been received with some kind of doubt, as appears from ver. 17. God was pleased to repeat the promise of a son by Sarah, and even to mark out the time of his birth, according to which she conceived and bore a son. The word translated "laughed," is by the Chaldee rendered "rejoiced," and the Arabic confirms this sense by paraphrasing it "laughed for joy." The name of Isaac is given to this circumstance, the Hebrew word for "laughed" being jatzach, and the Hebrew for Isaac being Yitzchak likewise.

22 God went up, &c.] It is in the Chaldee "the glory of the Lord went up, &c." The Syriac, "God was taken up, &c." and the Arabic, "the angel of the Lord was taken up, &c."

23 In the self-same day, &c.] The faith and piety of Abraham are conspicuous in performing this rite the same day, notwithstanding the operation must have been both painful and dangerous to a person of his age.

25 Ishmael was thirteen years old when he was circumcised.] And hence Josephus tells us, the Arabians descended from Ishmael, did not circumcise their children till they were thirteen years of age.

27 And all the men of his house, &c.] All the males, whether children or adults, by their consent, they being before trained up in religious exercises, were easily prevailed upon to follow his example.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XVII.

This chapter affords a noble example of a ready obedience to God's command. Here is, indeed, a pattern of such obedience, as is truly and rightly due, from all created beings, however exalted, to their great Creator. For it is not only founded in the right of sovereignty, but in the nature of things; for all created beings whatsoever must have less of every attribute than their original, and consequently ought to conclude, that every thing he orders must be right, and wise, and good. Though circumcision was so severe, so painful, and was so dangerous an injunction, at Abraham's years, and which undoubtedly he might not see the necessity of, yet in the self-same day that God commanded it, did he submit himself unto it. And in this we are taught to be resigned, under all God's dispensations of providence, however grievous they may seem; and in every thing to submit ourselves to God.

And the Lord appeared unto him, &c.] Several are of opinion that it was the Logos, or Son of God, who now designed to visit him. And I will fetch, &c.] A morsel weighing about twelve pounds, the quantity of bread must have amounted to thirty-six pounds, which, with the calf, a great delicacy in those countries, was not only an ample, but likewise an elegant feast.

10 I will return, &c.] Several explain this verse thus: The angels said they should return soon, and then find Sarah pregnant. This occasioning her ridicule, expressed in the next verse, they discovered themselves to be angels; and that one of them was sent to notify the birth of a son to Abraham; but the other two to destroy Sodom.

12 Laughed within herself, &c.] It is thought that Isaac, which signifies "Laughter," received his name from Sarah laughing at the prediction of the angels; but it appears, from the foregoing chapter, he received it from Abraham's laugh, occasioned by excessive delight.

17 ¶ And the LORD said, Shall I hide from Abraham that thing which I do?

18 Seeing that Abraham shall surely become a great and mighty nation, and all the nations of the earth shall be blessed in him?

19 For I know him, that he will command his children and his household after him, and they shall keep the way of the LORD, to do justice and judgment; that the LORD may bring upon Abraham that which he hath spoken of him.

20 And the LORD said, Because the cry of Sodom and Gomorrah is great, and because the sin is very grievous;

21 I will go down now, and see whether they have done altogether according to the cry of it, which is come unto me; and if not, I will know.

22 And the men turned their faces from thence, and went toward Sodom: but Abraham stood yet before the LORD.

23 ¶ And Abraham drew near, and said, Wilt thou also destroy the righteous with the wicked?

24 Peradventure there be fifty righteous within the city: wilt thou also destroy and not spare the place for the fifty righteous that are therein?

21 I will go down, &c.] This is rendered in the Chaldee: "I will appear, and will judge whether," &c. The Arabic is remarkable, and reads thus: "I will send my monitor, or messenger to them, that he may see whether or no they do according to their cry, which hath reached my ear." See Gen. xi. 7. for the same phrase.

22 Stood before the Lord, &c.] i. e. In the presence of the angel, who was the word of God, the Son of God, the visible image of the invisible God, representing the majesty of his Father, and acting in his name, the angel who appeared to Manoah, Judges xiii. 18. described in I sa. ix. 6. and spoken of in Rev. xix. 12. For there were three angels who appeared to Abraham, but only two of them went to Sodom; and he who remained is in the Hebrew honoured with the title of Jehovah, the incommunicable name of God. The Chaldee translates the words, "prayed before the Lord."

25 Judge of all the earth, &c.] This is a confirmation of the foregoing assertion. It expressly confines the sense to that Being, who is the express image of God, who made the worlds, and who, in the writer of the epistle to the Philippians asserts, thought it no robbery to be equal with God. These dawns, or faint glimmerings of the incarnation, demand our most profound attention, reverence, and adoration; and the day-spring from on high hath visited us, ought to arise from the death of sin, and to shine in good works; for our light is now come, and the glory of our Lord is upon us, I sa. ix. 1.

26 If I find in Sodom] Sodom is mentioned as the metropolis, and comprehending the rest of the whole country of Pentapolis, Gen. xiv. 12.

27 Then will I spare, &c.] i. e. Not Sodom only, but the whole country.

27 I'm but dust and ashes.] This is an humble expression of his meanness and unworthiness in the sight of God. It carries a plain allusion to the vile and perishable materials, out of which the human body was composed at first.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS on Chap. XVIII.

This chapter fully demonstrates how highly precious and regarded in the sight of God, the good and righteous are, and how much they contribute to the happiness of the world; for it is not only by their just and kind conduct, or behaviour in life, that they do good to mankind, but it is probable from the instance before us, that they contribute to avert God's severe judgments from the respective communities they live in. And this, perhaps, may account for God's delay in making examples of cities and kingdoms, which are notoriously wicked. The few righteous mingled among them, who would be involved in their ruin, are so dear to him, that it turns aside his anger, and he cannot do any thing whilst they are there.

EXPLANATORY NOTES on CHAP. XIX.

¶ There came two angels, &c. In ch. xviii. 2. 22. they are called men, on account of the manner in which they appeared. That they were beings of an inferior order to the third, who remained talking with Abraham, we have shown in the notes on the place just quoted; and at the same time, have enabled the reader to detect an error of most modern commentators, who roundly assert, that all the three angels went towards Sodom, though, we find from this place, that only two came there.

¶ Turn in, I pray you, &c. Lot's warm benevolence, and hearty hospitality are remarkable in the importunities which he uses to the angels; and they are the more remarkable, as he was then settled among a people who were insolent on account of their wealth, void of benevolence to men, or piety to God; who were strangers to hospitality, and lost to every principle of virtue. Amidst this sink of vice, Lot remained untainted, receives the heavenly guests with the greatest humanity, and seems not only to have been an exact imitator, but likewise a rival of Abraham's hospitality and benevolence.

3 Unleavened bread, &c. By this we see the haste he was in to accommodate his guests: For bread without leaven in it, was sooner baked than that which had leaven in it.

Where are the men which came in to thee this night? bring them out unto us, that we may know them. Before CHRIST 1898.

6 And Lot went out at the door unto them, and shut the door after him.

7 And said, I pray you, brethren, do not so wickedly.

¶ Behold now, I have two daughters which have not known man; let me, I pray you, bring them out unto you, and do ye to them as is good in your eyes: only unto these men do nothing; for therefore came they under the shadow of my roof.

9 And they said, Stand back. And they said again, This one fellow came in to sojourn, and he will needs be a judge: now will we deal worse with thee, than with them. And they pressed fore upon the man, even Lot, and came near to break the door.

10 But the men put forth their hand, and pulled Lot into the house to them, and shut the door.

11 And they smote the men that were at the door of the house with blindness, both small and great: so that they wearied themselves to find the door.

12 ¶ And the men said unto Lot, Halt thou here any besides? son in law, and thy sons, and thy daughters, and whatsoever thou halt in the city, bring them out of this place:

13 For we will destroy this place, because the cry of them is waxen great before the face of the LORD; and the LORD hath sent us to destroy it.

14 And Lot went out, and spake unto his sons in law, which married his daughters, and said, Up, get you out of this place; for the LORD will destroy this city. But he seemed as one that mocked unto his sons in law.

15 And when the morning arose, then the angels hastened Lot, saying, Arise, take thy wife, and thy two daughters, which are here: lest thou be consumed in the iniquity of the city.

16 And while he lingered, the men laid hold upon his hand, and upon the hand of his wife, and upon the hand of his two daughters; the LORD being merciful unto him; and they brought him forth, and set him without the city.

17 And it came to pass, when they had brought them forth abroad, that he said, Escape for thy life; look

4 All the people, &c. It appears their depravity was universal, and had seized not only on all ranks, but likewise on all ages. We need not, therefore, wonder to find that there were not "ten righteous persons in the city." chap. xviii. 32.

5 Bring them out unto us, &c. The inhabitants were struck with the extraordinary beauty of the divine messengers, and were on that account so furious as to infringe the laws of hospitality, and burst through the barriers of virtue and honour.

¶ Behold now I have two daughters, &c. The sacred laws of hospitality, thus attacked by these furious wretches, Lot endeavoured to maintain inviolate, even at his own expence; and by an heroic effort of disinterested generosity, offers to sacrifice his own daughters, to preserve the guests, who had taken refuge under his roof. Some have, indeed, blamed this action, as carrying the ideas of hospitality too high; but he endeavoured to excuse Lot, by saying his perturbation was so great, that he spoke unadvisedly; but he is thus vindicated: "Lot made his remonstrance to the multitude, shewing the iniquity of their demand, and the sacredness of the laws of hospitality; adding, that if they remained obstinate, notwithstanding his advice, he would rather subject his daughters to their intentions, than yield up his guests." This proposal required some time for deliberation, and was not to be put in force till the rabble had given their answer; but their answer was perhaps, as Lot expected, such as freed him from exposing his daughters, though he was determined not to give up his guests at any rate.

9 Stand back, &c. Men who are abandoned to wickedness are so far from being sensible of their danger, that they are rather enraged against the friendly person who endeavours either to convince them of the nature of their condition, or the consequences of their actions. Thus it happened to Lot; thus it happened to the prophets; thus it happened to our blessed Lord and his apostles; and thus it happened, and will happen, to the ministers of the gospel, who are sent as lambs among wolves.

11 Blindness, &c. This was only a temporary defect of sight, such as is mentioned in Kings vi. 8.

15 Take thy wife, &c. This illustrates the twenty-fourth verse of the preceding chapter, and demonstrates, that God is no less just than he is merciful.

^{Before}
^{CHRIST}
^{1898.} look not behind thee, neither stay thou in all the plain; escape to the mountain, lest thou be consumed.

18 And Lot said unto them, Oh, not so my Lord:

19 Behold now, thy servant hath found grace in thy sight, and thou hast magnified thy mercy, which thou hast shewed unto me in saving my life; and I cannot escape to the mountain, lest some evil take me, and I die:

20 Behold now, this city is near to flee unto, and it is a little one: oh, let me escape thither, (is it not a little one?) and my soul shall live.

21 And he said unto him, See, I have accepted thee concerning this thing also, that I will not overthrow this city, for the which thou hast spoken.

22 Haste thee, escape thither; for I cannot do any thing till thou be come thither. Therefore the name of the city was called Zoar.

23 The sun was risen upon the earth when Lot entered into Zoar.

24 ¶ Then the Lord rained upon Sodom and upon Gomorrah brimstone and fire from the Lord out of heaven;

25 And he overthrew those cities, and all the plain, and all the inhabitants of the cities, and that which grew upon the ground.

26 ¶ But his wife looked back from behind him, and she became a pillar of salt.

27 ¶ And Abraham gat up early in the morning to the place where he stood before the Lord:

28 And he looked toward Sodom and Gomorrah, and toward all the land of the plain, and beheld, and, lo, the smoke of the country went up as the smoke of a furnace.

22 Therefore the name of the city was called Zoar. The reason of its receiving this name, is because Zoar signifies little. See ver. 20.

23 The sun was risen, &c.] It is thought that this particularly was intended to shew that Zoar was near Sodom: and that when God is said to have rained, it might not be thought to be natural, but miraculous, as there were no clouds, commonly mentioned in other rains.

24 The Lord rained, &c.] In the Hebrew the brimstone and fire signify lightning; and the addition of the words "from the Lord," implies, that thunder, or the thunderbolt, attended this dreadful storm; or that the Lord cast his dart, or bolt, from heaven. As this country abounded in lime-pits, it is easy to account for the destruction of these places from this cause; a dreadful destruction! of which there were lately ocular proofs remaining.

25 And he overthrew those cities, &c.] In all probability the storm of thunder and lightning, or, as others think, of liquid fire, which overthrew these cities, was attended with a dreadful earthquake. But, be that as it may, we learn from hence, that if God spared not the cities which were in a flood upon the ungodly; and if he, turning the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah into ashes, condemned them to utter overthrow, or, according to St. Jude, condemned them to the vengeance of eternal fire; we need not doubt, but that, — he is in all ages the same, — a God of justice as well as of mercy, no iniquity can ultimately escape, for though he does not on every occasion lay bare his vindictive arm; though he is strong and patient, so that he seldom wheteth his sword, and prepareth the instruments of death; yet he is of the most remarkable instances of his severity against sin, are sufficient to convince us, that he hath reserved the unjust, however they may escape at present, unto the day of judgment, to be punished. Treasure up these reflections in thy remembrance, O reader; recollect them with the most anxious attention, when thou liest down, and when thou risest up; when thou walkest, receive them as thy companion; when thou talkest, listen to them as thy preceptor; and whatever thou doest, consult them as thy direction. Influenced by these considerations, thy views will enlarge, thy affections be exalted, and thou thyself raised above the tantalizing powers of perishing things. Duly mindful of these, it will be the sum of thy desires, and the scope of thy endeavours, to gain the approbation of that sovereign being, who, at the last day, will fill the throne of judgment, and pronounce the decisive sentence. Thou wilt see nothing worth a wish, in comparison of having his will for thy guide, his glory for thy aim, and his holy Spirit for thy ever-actuating principle.

26 His wife looked back, &c.] As the Jerusalem Targum says, she was a native of Sodom, she might, for that reason, have been guilty of shewing too great an affection for the calamity of her native place, in contradiction to the command given her and her husband, ver. 17. Some, indeed, from our Saviour's words, Luke xviii. 31. infer, that she really turned back, and by that means met with her fate. Commentators are divided in their opinion concerning the words "a pillar of salt," some take them figuratively

No. 2.

29 And it came to pass, when God destroyed the cities of the plain, that God remembered Abraham, and sent Lot out of the midst of the overthrow, when he overthrew the cities in the which Lot dwelt.

30 ¶ And Lot went up out of Zoar, and dwelt in the mountain, and his two daughters with him; for he feared to dwell in Zoar: and he dwelt in a cave, he and his two daughters.

31 ¶ And the firstborn said unto the younger, Our father is old, and there is not a man in the earth to come in unto us after the manner of all the earth:

32 Come, let us make our father drink wine, and we will lie with him, that we may preserve seed of our father.

33 And they made their father drink wine that night: and the firstborn went in, and lay with her father; and he perceived not when she lay down, nor when she arose.

34 And it came to pass on the morrow, that the first-born said unto the younger, Behold, I lay yesternight with my father: let us make him drink wine this night also; and go thou in, and lie with him, that we may preserve seed of our father.

35 And they made their father drink wine that night also: and the younger arose, and lay with him; and he perceived not when she lay down, nor when she arose.

36 Thus were both the daughters of Lot with child by their father.

37 And the firstborn bare a son, and called his name Moab: the same is the father of the Moabites unto this day.

38 And the younger, she also bare a son, and called his name Ben-ammi: the same is the father of the children of Ammon unto this day.

to imply a lasting monument of the divine wrath, a lasting covenant, being stiled a covenant of salt, Numb. xviii. 19. others are for taking them in a literal sense. Josephus says, that he saw this pillar himself. Some of the fathers are for supporting this literal sense, which others are for turning into ridicule, imagining the Jewish writers might have been imposed upon by the natives, which a traveller from our own country insinuates to be possible, when he writes, On the west side is a promontory, near which, as our guides told us, stood the monument of Lot's wife; part of which, if they may be credited, is at this day visible.

31 In the earth, &c.] i. e. In the land; though some take the word in its utmost latitude, and represent the expression as implying an apprehension that the whole human race would be extinct.

32 Come let us, &c.] The opinion is very probable which has been adopted by bishop Patrick, and other commentators, that their anxiety to preserve seed of their father, proceeded from an eager desire after the Messiah, who, they might hope, would spring from them, their father being a descendant of Shem, and a son of Abraham's eldest brother: and in fact, Ruth the Moabitess, who was of the race of the eldest daughter of Lot, stands in the genealogy of our Saviour.

37, 38, Moab, &c.] In allusion to the person from whom he owed his birth, she called his name Moab; that is, in the Hebrew, "from my father." Ben-ammi, the name given by the second daughter to her son, implies, "the son of my people."

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XIX.

We have in former remarks observed several signal and evident interpositions of God in the affairs of the earth, to shew mankind that he was the Lord of all; that they depended entirely on him; that he could alter their condition as he pleased; that virtue and goodness were regarded, protected, and rewarded by him; and that vice was hateful to him, and contrary to his will, and what he would take cognizance of, and punish. What is here related in the twenty-fifth verse, is another signal instance, intended to inculcate these great truths in the hearts of mankind; and this was wisely ordered to that end; for by God's acquainting Abraham before hand with what he purposed to do, it was sufficiently made known, beyond all doubt, in his numerous family, and through them, when dispersed, to the rest of the world, that it was, indeed, God himself that did it. Lot being also called out from the very place where he had lived for some years, the moment before it was destroyed, was another corroborating evidence of God's particular ordering of the whole affair; so that by these means God, in his great wisdom, took care that this remarkable destruction should not be attributed to any natural causes, but to his anger only, that thereby man might be brought to fear him. And this could not but contribute greatly to the keeping alive virtue in the world, and to the restraining of vice; particularly, as God so ordered it, that the place remained a perpetual witness of its own ruin.

C H A P. XX.

1 Abraham sojourneth at Gerar, and denieth his wife: Abimelech taketh her, but is reproved of God in a dream, and commanded to restore her. 9 He rebuketh Abraham, who excuseth himself. 14 Sarah is restored with presents after a gentle reproof. 17 Abimelech and his house are healed at Abraham's prayer.

AND Abraham journeyed from thence toward the south country, and dwelled between Kadesh and Shur, and sojourned in Gerar.

2 And Abraham said of Sarah his wife, She is my sister: and Abimelech king of Gerar sent, and took Sarah.

3 But God came to Abimelech in a dream by night, and said to him, Behold, thou art but a dead man, for the woman which thou hast taken; for she is a man's wife.

4 But Abimelech had not come near her: and he said, LORD, wilt thou slay also a righteous nation?

5 Said he not unto me, She is my sister? and she, even she herself said, He is my brother: in the integrity of my heart and innocency of my hands have I done this.

6 And God said unto him in a dream, Yea, I know that thou didst this in the integrity of thy heart; for I also withheld thee from sinning against me: therefore suffered I thee not to touch her.

7 Now therefore restore the man his wife, for he is a prophet, and he shall pray for thee, and thou shalt live: and if thou restore her not, know thou that thou shalt surely die, thou, and all that are thine.

8 Therefore Abimelech rose early in the morning, and called all his servants, and told all these things in their ears: and the men were sore afraid.

9 ¶ Then Abimelech called Abraham, and said unto him, What hast thou done unto us? and what have I offended thee, that thou hast brought on me and on my kingdom a great sin? thou hast done deeds unto me that ought not to be done.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XX.

2 Abimelech, &c.] A name as common to the kings of Palestine, as Pharaoh was to those of Egypt; it signifies, my father the king. The translation here related, is recorded out of the due order of time, as her age and her pregnancy rendered her no fit object to captivate the heart of a lover and sovereign.

3 But God came to Abimelech.] He was afflicted with a very dangerous disease, to restrain him from his intended crime; and in a vision, when his life was despaired of, he was forbidden to violate the wife of his guest; which he afterwards related to his physicians; adding, that God had struck him with the disease, to prevent his being guilty of the sin.

4 A righteous nation.] i. e. An innocent people, as they certainly were. See ver. 17, 18. The Septuagint renders, a just and an ignorant, &c. which agrees with the Vulgate; but the Arabic applies the sentence to Abimelech himself, translating the words, a chaste or modest man, &c.

6 For I also withheld thee from sinning, &c.] The word for renders the sense obscure, and therefore should be omitted, as the original has it not.

16 A thousand pieces of silver, &c.] In the Chaldee the sum given is said to be a thousand shekels, for the word pieces is not in the Hebrew: now a shekel being two shillings and four-pence farthing of our money, the whole sum amounts to an hundred and twenty pounds. The sense of this verse has very much embarrassed some commentators; but it may be easily collected from comparing the ancient versions. The original may be translated, Behold he is to thee a covering of the eyes unto all who are with thee, and with all, and he reproved himself. The Vulgate translates, lo, I have given, &c. that shall be unto thee a covering of the eyes unto all that are with thee, and whithersoever thou shalt go, and remember thou hast been detected. The Septuagint, well the Vulgate, make the relative agree with the present given, rendering, They shall be as a reward, or honour of thy face, and to all the women with thee, and always be ingenuous, or speak the truth. The Chaldee construes the relative in the same manner, saying, It shall be a veil of honour, on account of my having sent for thee, and having seen thee; and all that are with thee; and she was rebuked or reprov'd upon, or by, all that he had said. The Syriac renders, I have granted them to thee, because thou hast veiled or covered the eyes of all that were with me, and above all things, hast reproved me. The 12 And yet indeed she is my sister; she is the daughter of my father, but not the daughter of my mother; and she became my wife.

13 And it came to pass, when God caused me to wander from my father's house, that I said unto her, This is thy kindness which thou shalt shew unto me; at every place whither we shall come, say of me, He is my brother.

14 ¶ And Abimelech took sheep, and oxen, and men-servants, and women-servants, and gave them unto Abraham, and restored him Sarah his wife.

15 And Abimelech said, Behold, my land is before thee; dwell where it pleaseth thee.

16 And unto Sarah he said, Behold, I have given thy brother a thousand pieces of silver: behold, he is to thee a covering of the eyes, unto all that are with thee, and with all other: thus she was reprov'd.

17 ¶ So Abraham prayed unto God: and God healed Abimelech, and his wife, and his maid-servants; and they bare children.

18 For the LORD had fast closed up all the wombs of the house of Abimelech, because of Sarah Abraham's wife.

Arabic translates, I have now given thy brother a thousand shekels, let them be laid out for thee for a beautiful vesture, for all that are with thee, and in all things that are for thy modesty. From hence we may conclude, that the money, not the brother, was for a covering of the eyes; and that the sense of the verse is, that Abimelech, by that present, acknowledged both the charms and the modesty of Sarah, and that he gave it with a design to make her virtue conspicuous to all her attendants, at the same time he made her a compensation for the injury intended her.

18 So Abraham prayed unto God, &c.] Abraham not being able to requite Abimelech for his favours to him in kind, he interceded with God in behalf of him and his family, which he had the more reason to do, as he had drawn him and them into a snare, by relapsing into this piece of dissimulation, after he had seen the ill effects of it in a former event.

18 Had fast closed up, &c.] The Lord had afflicted them with barrenness. Hence Sarah must have spent some considerable time at Abimelech's court, otherwise the Philistines could not have known whether their wives were barren or not: a circumstance which seems to confirm the opinion, that this piece of history is recorded out of the order of time when it happened. But if the case was as others understand it, that they were smitten with such swellings in the secret parts, that the men could not have connection with their wives, nor the women who were with child, be delivered, they must have been quickly sensible of such a change.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS on Chap. XX.

In this chapter, Abraham reasoned, that if there was no awe of religion among them, there could be no sufficient restraint from doing any act of injustice and cruelty, which tended to the gratification of their appetites. And herein he reasoned right; for there cannot be any perfect morality expected, where there is no belief of the first principles of religion. Thus, as it is agreeable to experience, so it has always been the sentiment of the wisest men in all ages. It is our fixed opinion, that if piety towards God was once taken away, there would be an end of all fidelity, dissolution of the bonds of human society, and even of justice itself, the sun of all virtues.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXI.

¶ Visited, &c.] It is remembered in the Chaldee and Syriac.

6 God

Before CHRIST 1898. 3 And Abraham called the name of his son that was born unto him, whom Sarah bare to him, Isaac.

4 And Abraham circumcised his son Isaac being eight days old, as God had commanded him.

5 And Abraham was an hundred years old, when his son Isaac was born unto him.

6 ¶ And Sarah said, God hath made me to laugh, so that all that hear will laugh with me.

1897. 7 And she said, Who would have said unto Abraham, that Sarah should have given children suck? for I have borne him a son in his old age.

¶ And the child grew, and was weaned: and Abraham made a great feast the same day that Isaac was weaned.

9 ¶ And Sarah saw the son of Hagar the Egyptian, which she had borne unto Abraham, mocking.

1892. 10 Wherefore she said unto Abraham, Cast out this bond-woman and her son: for the son of this bond-woman shall not be heir with my son, even with Isaac.

11 And the thing was very grievous in Abraham's sight because of his son.

12 And God said unto Abraham, Let it not be grievous in thy sight because of the lad, and because of the bond-woman; in all that Sarah hath said unto thee, hearken unto her voice: for in Isaac shall thy seed be called.

13 And also of the son of the bond-woman will I make a nation, because he is thy seed.

14 And Abraham rose up early in the morning, and took bread, and a bottle of water, and gave it unto Hagar, putting it on her shoulder, and the child, and sent her away; and she departed, and wandered in the wilderness of Beer-sheba.

15 ¶ And the water was spent in the bottle, and she cast the child under one of the shrubs.

16 And she went, and sat her down over against him a good way off, as it were a bow-shot: for she said, Let me not see the death of the child. And she sat over against him, and lift up her voice, and wept.

17 And God heard the voice of the lad; and the angel of God called to Hagar out of heaven, and said unto her, What aileth thee Hagar? fear not; for God hath heard the voice of the lad where he is.

18 Arise, lift up the lad, and hold him in thine hand; for I will make him a great nation.

6 God hath made me to laugh, &c.] The before-mentioned laughter, chap. xviii. 12. proceeded from distrust, and was the effect of ridicule; but that mentioned in this verse, proceeded from joy, arising from the fruition of a great and unexpected blessing. The Chaldee translation confirms this sense, by rendering the words, the Lord has caused me joy, every one who shall hear it, will rejoice together with me. The Syriac likewise paraphrases it, the Lord has this day given me great joy, &c.

9 Mocking.] This in the original is laughing, and alludes to Isaac's name, which signifies laughter; and the verb resembles the noun so much, it may have caused the omission of Isaac, the object of Ishmael's derision or ridicule, which is preserved in the Septuagint. The Jewish doctors imagine, that Ishmael derided or ridiculed Isaac, on account of his piety; and as the apostle, Gal. iii. 29. files his persecution, we may conclude, that Isaac's piety was the continual subject of Ishmael's ridicule, derision, or hard treatment.

11 And the thing was very grievous, &c.] In this verse, our translators have adhered to the sense of the Arabic paraphrase. From hence we may collect, that Abraham was not yet cured of his unreasonable partiality for Ishmael, but still reckoned upon him as his second hopes, in case any disaster or misfortune should happen to Isaac. This appears from Ishmael's insolent behaviour, from Abraham's great unwillingness to dismiss him, and from God's assuring him, in order to make him easy, ver. 12. that in Isaac his seed should be called.

14 And Abraham rose up early in the morning, &c.] Abraham's behaviour towards his son Ishmael, has been represented by some as cruel to the last degree. In order to remove the opprobrium that has been thrown upon it, it will be necessary to observe, that though Ishmael is called a child in our translation, yet he was really fifteen or sixteen years old; and that by bread and water, is meant in scripture all kinds of provision. These observations being premised, we proceed to assert, that it was no difficult thing for any person to find a livelihood in this early age of the world; those who had flocks, found ground enough to spare, in every country, to maintain them; and creatures were so numerous, that a person

20 And God was with the lad: and he grew, and dwelt in the wilderness, and became an archer.

21 And he dwelt in the wilderness of Paran: and his mother took him a wife of the land of Egypt.

22 ¶ And it came to pass at that time, that Abimelech and Phichol the chief captain of his host spake unto Abraham, saying, God is with thee in all that thou doest:

23 Now therefore swear unto me here by God that thou wilt not deal falsely with me, nor with my son, nor with my son's son: but according to the kindness that I have done unto thee, thou shalt do unto me, and to the land wherein thou hast sojourned.

24 And Abraham said, I will swear.

25 And Abraham reproved Abimelech because of a well of water, which Abimelech's servants had violently taken away.

26 And Abimelech said, I wot not who hath done this thing: neither didst thou tell me, neither yet heard I of it, but to-day.

27 And Abraham took sheep and oxen, and gave them unto Abimelech; and both of them made a covenant.

28 And Abraham set seven ewe lambs of the flock by themselves.

29 And Abimelech said unto Abraham, What mean these seven ewe lambs which thou hast set by themselves?

30 And he said, For these seven ewe lambs shalt thou take of my hand, that they may be a witness unto me, that I have digged this well.

31 Wherefore he called that place Beer-sheba; because there they sware both of them.

32 Thus they made a covenant at Beer-sheba: then Abimelech rose up, and Phichol the chief captain of his host, and they returned into the land of the Philistines.

33 ¶ And Abraham planted a grove in Beer-sheba, and called there on the name of the Lord, the everlasting God.

who had no flocks, might, in uncultivated places, kill enough of all sorts for his maintenance, and accordingly we find, that Ishmael chose to reside in the wilderness, where he became an archer, And it appears from the sequel, that Hagar met with no great difficulty in providing for herself, and her son. Jacob was dismissed in the same manner from Isaac, without servants or attendants. All the provisions, therefore, made by parents for their younger sons in those days, was, the sending them abroad to acquire an independent settlement. Consequently it is only from our not being acquainted with the customs of the times, that we imagine Abraham was guilty of a cruel action, in thus dismissing Hagar and Ishmael. And though wandering in the wilderness, till their water was consumed, had almost destroyed both her and the child, yet this was no fault of Abraham's, but purely an accident, occasioned by her missing the road.

17 And God heard the voice of the lad, &c.] From this it appears that Ishmael cried also; but whether it was in prayer to God, or through the distress and misery he was in, is not certain; and, be it which it may, his cries came up into the ears of the Lord, and he had compassion on him, and supplied his wants, and delivered him out of his present misery.

19 God opened her eyes, &c.] i. e. The angel of the Lord met her, shewed her a well that was near, and commanded her to take care of the lad.

25 And Abraham reproved Abimelech, &c.] Because in these hot and dry countries, a well of water was an inestimable treasure, and the digging it a work of prodigious labour, both on account of the rockiness of the soil, and the great depth it was necessary to dig before a spring could be found.

31 He called that place Beer-sheba, &c.] Beer signifies "a well," and sheba, both "an oath," and "seven," so that the name alludes not only to the oath, as mentioned in the text, but likewise to the seven sheep given by Abraham, in purchase for the well.

32 They returned into the land of the Philistines.] i. e. To that part of it where they dwelt; for this covenant was made in the land of the Philistines.

2 And he said, Take now thy son, thine only son Isaac, whom thou lovest, and get thee into the land of Moriah; and offer him there for a burnt-offering upon one of the mountains which I will tell thee of.

3 ¶ And Abraham rose up early in the morning, and saddled his ass, and took two of his young men with him, and Isaac his son, and clave the wood for the burnt-offering, and rose up, and went unto the place of which God had told him.

5 And Abraham said unto his young men, Abide ye here with the ass; and I and the lad will go yonder and worship, and come again to you.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXI.

We are naturally led by this chapter to reflect with great seriousness and attention, on those promises and threatenings, made to us in the gospel, which, though according to our thinking, they are long delayed, and all things continue as they were, from the beginning of the creation; yet were they notwithstanding, as surely to be accomplished, as was the promise of Isaac, which, according to the nature of the thing, to Abraham's thinking, was as long delayed. Though we see things go on in their accustomed manner; though we see men inconsiderate, and not thinking about it; yet the day of the Lord will come notwithstanding; when the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall awake to appear before the judgment seat of Christ; for every one to receive for the things done in his body, according to that he has done, whether it be good or bad. And we have sufficient information from the scriptures, that this great and tremendous day will come, when it is least expected, like a thief in the night, when the world is going on at its usual rate, while men are eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, hurrying in business, immersed in pleasure, fixing their thoughts and hopes on earth, and believing themselves secure and happy.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXII.

1 God did tempt Abraham, &c.] There is no doubt, from the words of Christ, John xxii, that Abraham was desirous of being acquainted with the manner in which the promise of the redemption of mankind should be effected. The principal intention of this command was, to reveal to Abraham by action, instead of words, the manner of this redemption: yet as this was a favour of very high nature, and conferred on Abraham at his earnest request; it was but fit he should himself approve it by some proportionable trial. On this account, therefore, God was pleased, by the very manner in which this mystery was revealed, to tempt or try Abraham; where the making the favour itself the trial of his deserving it hath all the superior elegance and beauty which is conceived in the dispensations of divine wisdom only. The very manner in which this reason is recorded, shews it an inferior one: for it is not said that God gave this command to try Abraham, which expresses a principal reason, but, that in giving the command, God did try him, which only implies an inferior one.

2 Take now thy son, thine only son.] These words, according to their order in the original, gradually increase the sense, and raise the passions higher and higher. Take now thy son, thine only son, whom thou lovest, even Isaac: this was to preclude any doubt in Abraham. Abraham desired earnestly to be let into the mystery of the redemption: and God, to instruct him, (in the best manner humanity is capable of receiving instruction) in the infinite extent of the divine goodness to mankind, who spared not his own son, but delivered him up for us all; let Abraham feel, by experience, what it was to lose a beloved son; the son born miraculously, when Sarah was past child-bearing, as Jesus was miraculously born of a virgin. The duration too of the action, ver. 4. was the same: that between Christ's death and resurrection, both which were designed to be represented in it; and still farther, not only the final arch typical sacrifice of the Son of God, was figured in the command to offer Isaac, but the intermediate typical sacrifice in the Mosaic economy, was represented by the permitted sacrifice of the ram offered up instead of Isaac, ver. 13.

Land of Moriah.] Agreeable to the interpretation given of this command, Abraham calls the land to which he went with Isaac, the 6 And Abraham took the wood of the burnt-offering, and laid it upon Isaac his son; and he took the fire in his hand, and a knife; and they went both of them together.

7 And Isaac spake unto Abraham his father, and said, My father: and he said, Here am I, my son. And he said, Behold the fire and the wood: but where is the lamb for a burnt-offering?

8 And Abraham said, My son, God will provide himself a lamb for a burnt-offering; so they went both of them together.

9 And they came to the place which God had told him of; and Abraham built an altar there, and laid the wood in order, and bound Isaac his son, and laid him on the altar upon the wood.

10 And Abraham stretched forth his hand, and took the knife to slay his son.

11 ¶ And the angel of the Lord called unto him out of heaven, and said, Abraham, Abraham: and he said, Here am I.

land of vision, according to Jerom's interpretation; which shews, that the words of Jesus, "Abraham saw my day," evidently allude to this extraordinary circumstance. In a word, Jesus says, "Abraham saw my day;" and Abraham, by the name he imposed on the scene of action, makes the same declaration.

Offer him, &c.] This command was only the conveyance of an information by action, instead of words, in conformity to the common mode of conversing in former times; and as it was only the grant of an earnest request, and known by Abraham at the time of imposing, to be such a grant, he could not possibly have any doubt concerning the author of it. The action likewise being mere scenery, and, like words, only of arbitrary signification, it had no moral import; consequently, the injunction in such an action, as it hath not, can in no way affect the moral character of the person commanding; and consequently, this could occasion no mistakes concerning the divine attributes, with regard to human sacrifices being acceptable.

6 Abraham took the wood, &c.] By this was represented another circumstance attending the crucifixion, viz. that of Christ's bearing his own cross.

7 And Isaac spake unto Abraham, &c.] This verse is the most expressive, and, if we may be allowed the expression, the most voluminous in the whole chapter. Let the tender parent substitute himself in the stead of Abraham, and then he will not only understand, but likewise feel, all the pathos comprehended in these few words; words that were echoed by our dearest Saviour, amidst his agony, in the garden of Gethsemane; "Abba, Father," said he, "all things are possible for thee, &c. Mark xvi. 36.

9 Bound Isaac his son, &c.] Moses, like the celebrated painter, drawn a veil over the horror of Abraham, and the resignation of Isaac; that the imagination of the reader might paint to him more forcibly the examples of the parent, and the agonies of the son, than it is possible for language to express. An excellent author has, upon this occasion, presented us with a very pathetic speech to Isaac, to persuade him to submit to this sacrifice; but the silence of Moses is abundantly more expressive: Isaac was, at this period, about five and twenty years of age; and his father enfeebled with years; his resignation, therefore, at this time, must certainly have been voluntary; and in this respect he was a strong and exact type of our blessed Saviour, who voluntarily laid down his life for us, though no one could otherwise take it from him, John x. 17, 18. 1 John iii. 16.

12 Lay not thine hand, &c.] Seeing by the command Abraham understood the nature of man's redemption: he must know how the scenical presentation was to end. Isaac was made the person, or representative of Christ's dying for us: the Son of God, he knew, could not possibly be under the dominion of the grave. Hence he must needs conclude, either that God would stop his hand when he came to give the sacrificing stroke; or that, if the revelation of this mystery was to be represented throughout in action, that then his son, sacrificed under the person of Christ, was soon to be restored to life; accounting, that God was able to raise him up, even from the dead, as the author of the epistle to the Hebrews assures us, chap. xi. 19. The law of nature commands us to protect and cherish our offspring: was that transgressed in giving a stroke, whose hurt was presently to be repaired? The law of nature forbids all injury to our fellow-creature; and was he injured, who, being thus highly honoured, in becoming the representative of the Son of God, was to share with his father in the rewards of his obedience? Thus it appears, that this command was a mere information by action; and, when regarded in this view, all the arguments against God's giving it to Abraham, are absolutely enervated and overthrown. This interpretation of the command,

13 And Abraham lifted up his eyes, and looked, and behold behind him a ram caught in a thicket by his horns: and Abraham went and took the ram, and offered him up for a burnt offering in the stead of his son.

14 And Abraham called the name of that place Jehovah-jireh: as it is said to this day, in the mount of the Lord it shall be seen.

15 And the angel of the Lord called unto Abraham out of heaven the second time,

16 And said, By myself have I sworn, saith the Lord, for because thou hast done this thing, and hast not withheld thy son, thine only son:

17 That in blessing I will bless thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy seed as the stars of the heaven, and as the sand which is upon the sea shore; and thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies.

18 And in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed; because thou hast obeyed my voice.

19 So Abraham returned unto his young men, and they rose up and went together to Beer-sheba; and Abraham dwelt at Beer-sheba.

20 And it came to pass after these things that it was told Abraham, saying, Behold, Milcah, she hath also borne children unto thy brother Nahor;

21 Huz his first born, and Buz his brother, and Kemuel the father of Aram, 22 And Chesed, and Hazo, and Pildash, and Jidlaph, and Bethuel.

23 And Bethuel begat Rebekah: these eight Milcah did bear to Nahor, Abraham's brother.

24 And his concubine, whose name was Reumah, she bare also Tebah, and Gaham, and Thahash, and Maachah.

for the real sacrifice of Christ, and the proper redemption of mankind. For if the command was an information by action, instead of words, the proof conveyed in it is decisive, there being here no room for their evasion of its being a figurative expression, since the figurative action, the original of such expression, denotes either a real sacrifice, or nothing.

Fear of God, &c.] It was not a servile, superstitious fear, arising from narrow ideas of the divine goodness and power, but a filial fear, which generated hope in the greatest extremity, and indicated such a generosity of disposition, as is better conceived than described.

14 Called the name of the place Jehovah-jireh.] Because when Isaac asked his father, Where is the lamb? he answered in the Hebrew, "Elohim-jireh;" which this name alludes to. The answer of Jesus to the Jew in these words, "Abraham rejoiced to see my day," alludes to this verse. Jehovah-jireh signifies, the Lord shall be seen. But with what propriety could this name be given to it by Abraham, if, in this transaction, he had not seen the representation of our Lord's passion? And if he did see it, how opposite was the name? The historian goes on: "As it is said to this day, In the mount of the Lord it shall be seen; or, more exactly to the Hebrew, for he said, In the mount of the Lord it shall be seen." In the first part of the verse, the sacred historian tells us; that Abraham called the mount, The Lord shall be seen; and in the latter part he acquaints us with the manner how Abraham imposed that application; namely, by the use of a proper name, implying the reason of the name. In a word, Jesus says, Abraham saw his day; and Abraham, by the name he imposed upon the mount, declares the same thing. But as the vision was of a public, not of a private nature, he expressed himself in terms which signify what mankind in general shall see, not what he himself had seen. The Lord shall be seen.

16 By myself, &c.] We read in the preceding verse that the angel of the Lord called; but in this, "by myself I sworn, saith the Lord." This was, therefore, the Deity himself, as appears from Heb. vi. 13. "For when God made promise to Abraham, because he could swear by no greater, he swore by himself."

20 And it came to pass, &c.] The following genealogy is chiefly set down to shew whence Rebekah the wife of Isaac was descended, and it connects with the beginning of chap. xxiv. for this news of Nahor having children born to him, puts Abraham upon the resolution of seeking a wife from thence for his son Isaac.

21 Huz.] Or Ur. There was likewise one of this name among the posterity of Edom, chap. xxxvi. 28. from whom Idumea was called the land of Uz, Lam. iv. 21. Job's country is supposed to be called the land of Uz, from this son of Nahor.

Buz.] Whence came Elihu the Puzite, Job. xxxii. 2. A people likewise in Arabia, Job. xxv. 23.

Aram.] In all probability settled in the same country. There was another of the name, a son of Shem, the father of the Syrians.

22 Chesed, &c.] Supposed to be the father of the Chaldeans, called in scripture Chaddim.

24 His concubine, &c.] i.e. His secondary wife, who was not the mistress of the family, but only taken according to the custom of those times, for the increase of children. The Jewish doctors make this distinction between concubines and legitimate wives; that the children of concubines could only enjoy legacies, not inherit the estate; which they confirm by the example of Abraham, who left all to Isaac, but to the sons of the concubines he only gave gifts, chap. xxv. 5, 6. But this practice seems to have depended more upon the pleasure of the parent, than to have been established by any law.

No. 3.

or fixed rule of acting, as may be gathered from the instance of Jacob's children by concubines, who shared equally with his other children. See Gen. xxi. 10. It is probable that concubines were upon a much more precarious footing than the legitimate wives, and that they might, upon occasion, be turned away by the husband, even though guilty of no breach of conjugal fidelity, as the case of Hagar, chap. xxi. 14, fully evinces.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS on Chap. XXII.

This chapter assures us, that, in the greatest extremities, God will make a suitable provision for the deliverance and support of those who fear and trust in him. even as he did to Abraham upon the mount itself, when he was in the greatest necessity, and had no immediate prospect before him of any deliverance. And this points out to us the great moral of this passage of sacred history; namely, that in the most difficult duties, we ought to be obedient and resigned to the will of God; and something similar to the order given to Abraham to offer up Isaac, as to the spirit of it, is commanded us by Christ, when he says, "He that loveth father and mother more than me, is not worthy of me: and he that loveth son and daughter more than me, is not worthy of me," Matt. x. 37. that is, he who will not relinquish or leave them all; if he cannot, without doing it, profess the religion of Christ, and live according to his precepts.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXIII.

1 Sarah was, &c.] The only woman whose age is reckoned in the holy scripture is Sarah.

2 To mourn and weep, &c.] This kind of pleonasm is frequent in holy writ; though some imagine that mourning implied private sorrow, but weeping public grief. In the second verb in the Hebrew, which expresses Abraham's weeping, the caph, the fourth letter, is less than the preceding or following letters. The Cabalistic Jews inform us, that Moses wrote that letter less than the rest, to intimate to us, that we are not to indulge grief for our departed friends, since Abraham wept but little for Sarah; as appears from the little letter. But as the most ancient manuscripts acknowledge no such irregularity in the letters, we may reject this observation, as being rather ingenious than real.

3 Stood up, &c.] Notwithstanding most commentators imagine this expression alludes to the eastern manner of mourning, Job. ii. yet as they find the word used again in the seventh verse, the alteration of posture was only to shew reverence to the council, whom he could not have addressed with any decorum, in any other attitude, especially as he was requesting a favour.

4, 5 Gave me a possession, &c.] We find the most ancient and natural method of burying the dead, was by interment: it was reckoned ignominious for any person to bury in a sepulchre belonging to another. Abraham, who was, as the Hebrew expresses it, a prince of Elohim, or God, justly complied with this custom; and the reason assigned by the children of Heth for their acquiescence, gives us a noble idea of the character of the patriarch.

6 In the choice of our sepulchres bury thy dead, &c.] There being many, every family had a distinct sepulchre for itself; they made offer of them to him, to bury his dead in the choicest of them, the most grand and magnificent, or in which of them soever he pleased; which was very kind, respectful, and generous.

Before CHRIST 1860. 7 And Abraham stood up, and bowed himself to the people of the land, even to the children of Heth.

8 And he communed with them, saying, If it be your mind that I should bury my dead out of my sight; hear me, and intreat for me to Ephron the son of Zohar,

9 That he may give me the cave of Machpelah, which he hath, which is in the end of his field; forasmuch money as it is worth he shall give it me for possession of a burying place amongst you.

10 And Ephron dwelt among the children of Heth: and Ephron the Hittite answered Abraham in the audience of the children of Heth, even of all that went in at the gate of his city, saying,

11 Nay, my lord, hear me: the field give I thee, and the cave that is therein, I give it thee; in the presence of the sons of my people I give it thee: bury thy dead.

12 And Abraham bowed down himself before the people of the land.

13 And he spake unto Ephron in the audience of the people of the land, saying, But if thou wilt give it, I pray thee, hear me: I will give thee money for the field; take it of me, and I will bury my dead there.

14 And Ephron answered Abraham, saying unto him,

15 My lord, hearken unto me: the land is worth four hundred shekels of silver; what is that betwixt me and thee? bury therefore thy dead.

16 And Abraham hearkened unto Ephron; and Abraham weighed to Ephron the silver, which he had named in the audience of the sons of Heth, four hundred shekels of silver, current money with the merchant.

17 And the field of Ephron, which was in Machpelah, which was before Mamre, the field, and the cave which was therein, and all the trees that were in the field, that were in all the borders round about, were made sure

18 Unto Abraham for a possession in the presence of the children of Heth, before all that went in at the gate of his city.

9 Machpelah, &c.] Which word signifies a double cave; it might possibly be the name given to a field, on account of its having such a cave in it; though it must be confessed the Septuagint, and oriental translations, make use of it as an appellative, not as a proper name, mentioning only the words "double cave."

10 Ephron dwelled.] Instead of the word dwelled, the Vulgate and Syriac interpret it sat, and it is rendered in that sense by the Septuagint. The Chaldee translates it stood, and the Arabic, he spake in the presence, &c. whence it follows, that Ephron was present at this assembly, sitting, while Abraham addressed them, but that he rose after the patriarch had finished his harangue, in order to make the reply which follows, ver. 11.

In at the gate of the city.] The Hebrew word for "gate," implies that they were citizens, or inhabitants of that place. See chap. xxxiv. 24.

16 Four hundred shekels, &c.] This measure amounted to forty-six pounds thirteen shillings, and upwards, and was weighed, because at that time no coinage was invented: its currency with the merchant mentioned at the end of the verse, implies, that no base alloy was mixed with it, nor any artifice or fraud used to impose on the vender.

18 For a possession.] Which purchase not only prevented any division between the posterity of Abraham and the natives, but likewise verified in part, the promise which God had made, that he and his seed should have a possession in that land.

Before all that went in at the gate, &c.] See ~~xxxiv.~~ on ver. 10. This is added, because the leaders of the people, in ancient times, used to hold their assemblies in some apartment, in or over the gates of their cities, chap. xxxiv. 20. Deut. xxi. 19. Ruth iv. 1.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXIII.

We may remark in this chapter, that Abraham finds favour in the sight of every people, wherever he goes: such a noble, candid, upright, generous character as Abraham's, will naturally procure love, esteem, and respect; but undoubtedly the peculiar favour he found amongst all people, was owing more to the providence of God, for the scriptures always speak of finding favour in the sight of man, as one of God's blessings. It seems from Abraham's treating with the people of Heth, and from many other transactions related in the scriptures, that kings in those days did nothing of a public nature, but in conjunction with the people; and that the people had a great share in the management of all affairs.

19 ¶ And after this, Abraham buried Sarah his wife in the cave of the field of Machpelah before Mamre: the same is Hebron in the land of Canaan.

20 And the field, and the cave that is therein, were made sure unto Abraham for possession of a burying-place, by the sons of Heth.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXIV.

¶ And Abraham was old, &c.] When Isaac was born Abraham was hundred years old, and Isaac was forty when he married Rebekah; consequently Abraham was now about one hundred and forty years of age.

2 Put thy hand under my thigh.] Which was the common method of taking an oath, both among the Hebrews and all the oriental nations. The reasons assigned for this ceremony, are entirely conjectural; however, as it was not the ceremony, but the words of the oath which were binding, we need not be careful to explain the method.

3 The Lord, the God of heaven.] This solemn oath strongly proves the purity of Abraham's religion, and asserts the unity of the supreme Being. The gods of the nations round him, were either the celestial bodies, or deified heroes; they were local and tutelary, not universal and omnipresent deities! they did not make, they could not be supposed to protect the universe; their power was restrained within bounds almost as narrow as their existence; and the sphere of their knowledge being consequently circumscribed, their assistance was supposed limited to the country in which they were born. In opposition to these deities, Moses represents Abraham as swearing by the Lord, the God of heaven, and the God of earth; his omnipresence rendering him a fit object of so solemn an appeal, and his omnipotence capable of punishing any violation of so great an oath.

Thou shalt not take, &c.] For the Canaanites were immersed in practices which were the disgrace of humanity; they were likewise, on that account, devoted to destruction; an intermarriage of the promised seed to them, would therefore have counteracted the divine predictions, would have been inconsistent with the design of Providence, in making choice of Abraham's posterity, to preserve the idea of the unity of the Deity, and would consequently have endangered both their religion and their morals.

4 But thou shalt go into my country, &c.] i. e. To Mesopotamia, the place of Abraham's nativity, and where he lived many years.

5 Must I needs bring thy son again into the land from whence thou camest?] i. e. If the woman refuse to follow me into the land of Canaan, must I return and fetch thy son to her? A question which Abraham immediately resolves in the negative. No consideration could prevail upon him to let his son return to a land, which he himself was obliged to quit, on account of the inhumanity and idolatry of the inhabitants thereof.

Before CHRIST 1857. send his angel before thee, and thou shalt take a wife unto my son from thence.

8 And if the woman will not be willing to follow thee, then thou shalt be clear from this my oath: only bring not my son thither again.

9 And the servant put his hand under the thigh of Abraham his master, and swore to him concerning that matter.

10 ¶ And the servant took ten camels of the camels of his master, and departed: for all the goods of his master were in his hand: and he arose, and went to Mesopotamia, unto the city of Nahor.

11 And he made his camels to kneel down without the city by a well of water at the time of the evening, even the time that women go out to draw water.

12 ¶ And he said, O LORD God of my master Abraham, I pray thee, send me good speed this day, and shew kindness unto my master Abraham.

13 Behold, I stand here by the well of water; and the daughters of the men of the city come out to draw water.

14 And let it come to pass, that the damsel to whom I shall say, Let down thy pitcher, I pray thee, that I may drink; and she shall say, Drink, and I will give thy camels drink also: let the same be she that thou hast appointed for thy servant Isaac; and thereby shall I know that thou hast shewed kindness unto my master.

15 ¶ And it came to pass, before he had done speaking, that, behold, Rebekah came out, who was born to Bethuel, son of Milcah, the wife of Nahor, Abraham's brother, with her pitcher upon her shoulder.

16 And the damsel was very fair to look upon, a virgin, neither had any man known her: and she went down to the well, and filled her pitcher, and came up.

17 And the servant ran to meet her, and said, Let me, I pray thee, drink a little water of thy pitcher.

18 And she said, Drink, my lord: and she hastened, and let down her pitcher upon her hand, and gave him drink.

19 And when she had done giving him drink, she said, I will draw water for thy camels also, until they have done drinking.

20 And she hastened, and emptied her pitcher into a trough, and ran again unto the well to draw water, and drew for all his camels.

21 And the man wondering at her held his peace, to wit, whether the LORD had made his journey prosperous or not.

22 ¶ And it came to pass, as the camels had done drinking, that the man took a golden ear-ring of half a shekel weight, and two bracelets for her hands of ten shekels weight of gold:

23 And said, Whose daughter art thou? tell me, I pray thee: is there room in thy father's house for us to lodge in?

12 And he said, O Lord God of my master Abraham, &c.] Here we have a pleasing instance of the patriarch's in training up his servants in the paths of religion, as well as a noble example of trust in the providence of God.

14 Let it come to pass, &c.] When he had finished his prayer, he addressed himself to the first damsel that came, who, with the greatest humanity, granted his request of drinking. Her extraordinary kindness raised the curiosity of Abraham's steward, who inquired into her family, and was informed by her, that her name was Rebekah; that her father Bethuel was dead; and that she lived with Laban her brother, who took care of her mother and herself.

19 I will draw water, &c.] In the East it was customary for the young women to draw water for the cattle, and the use of the family, appears from 1 Sam. ix. 11. The kindness which Rebekah shewed on this occasion, strongly marks the simplicity of those early ages, and vindicates the fidelity of Abraham's servant, chusing a person whose morals rendered her worthy of Isaac's love.

22 The man took a golden ear-ring, &c.] As the word translated "ear-ring," is in the singular number, it is probable that it was some ornament worn on the face, or forehead, called in other parts of scripture, a nose jewel, which was worn in most of the eastern countries. The value of these presents, is estimated differently by dif-

24 And she said unto him, I am the daughter of Bethuel the son of Milcah, which she bare unto Nahor. Before CHRIST 1857.

25 She said moreover unto him, We have both straw and provender enough, and room to lodge in.

26 And the man bowed down his head, and worshipped the LORD.

27 And he said, Blessed be the LORD God of my master Abraham, who hath not left destitute my master of his mercy and his truth: I being in the way, the LORD led me to the house of my master's brethren.

28 And the damsel ran, and told them of her mother's house these things.

29 ¶ And Rebekah had a brother, and his name was Laban: and Laban ran out unto the man, unto the well.

30 And it came to pass, when he saw the ear-ring and bracelets upon his sister's hands, and when he heard the words of Rebekah his sister, saying, Thus spake the man unto me; that he came unto the man; and, behold, he stood by the camels at the well.

31 And he said, Come in, thou blessed of the LORD; wherefore standest thou without? for I have prepared the house, and room for the camels.

32 And the man came into the house: and he ungirded his camels, and gave straw and provender for the camels, and water to wash his feet, and the men's feet that were with him.

33 And there was set meat before him to eat: but he said, I will not eat, until I have told mine errand. And he said, Speak on.

34 ¶ And he said, I am Abraham's servant.

35 And the LORD hath blessed my master greatly; and he is become great: and he hath given him flocks, and herds, and silver, and gold, and men-servants, and maid-servants, and camels, and asses.

36 And Sarah my master's wife bare a son to my master when she was old: and unto him hath he given all that he hath.

37 And my master made me swear, saying, Thou shalt not take a wife to my son of the daughters of the Canaanites, in whose land I dwell:

38 But thou shalt go unto my father's house, and to my kindred, and take a wife unto my son.

39 And I said unto my master, Peradventure the woman will not follow me.

40 And he said unto me, The LORD before whom I walk, will send his angel with thee, and prosper thy way; and thou shalt take a wife for my son of my kindred, and of my father's house:

41 Then shalt thou be clear from this my oath, when thou comest to my kindred; and if they give not thee one, thou shalt be clear from my oath.

42 And I came this day unto the well, and said, O LORD God of my master Abraham, if now thou do prosper my way which I go:

ferent authors; for while some compute them eighteen guineas, others raise them to upward of twenty-five pounds sterling. These presents were intended as Rebekah's dowry; it being customary for the husband to bring a portion to his wife, in former times.

28 Mother's house, &c.] At this time the women in the eastern countries had separate tents for themselves, as present they lodge by themselves in seraglios.

31 Come in, thou blessed of the Lord, &c.] A most amiable picture of ancient hospitality and warm benevolence, this verse presents with! Abraham's servant was a stranger, whom Laban had never seen: he had not, as yet, imparted his business, but is received with all the tenderness of a brother, and is complimented with a title which every one must wish to deserve.

32 He ungirded, &c.] Notwithstanding the relative "he," seems to imply that the ungirded his camels, yet it was Laban, or his servants, that performed this kind office, appears from the bishop of Chester's comment on this part.

33 I will eat, until I have told mine errand.] Here we have a picture of a faithful servant, one who prefers his master's business to his own pleasures; and is, therefore, impatient till he has delivered his message, and satisfied himself whether his journey should be prosperous or not.

Before
1857.

43 Behold, I stand by the well of water; and it shall come to pass, that when the virgin cometh forth to draw water, and I say to her, Give me, I pray thee, a little water of thy pitcher to drink;

44 And she say to me, Both drink thou, and I will also draw for thy camels: let the same be the woman whom the LORD hath appointed out for my master's son.

45 And before I had done speaking in mine heart, behold Rebekah came forth with her pitcher on her shoulder; and she went down unto the well, and drew water: and I said unto her, Let me drink, I pray thee.

46 And she made haste, and let down her pitcher from her shoulder, and said, Drink, and I will give the camels' drink also: so I drank, and she made the camels drink also.

47 And I asked her, and said, Whose daughter art thou? And she said, The daughter of Bethuel, Nahor's son, whom Milcah bare unto him: and I put the earrings upon her face, and the bracelets upon her hands.

48 And I bowed down my head, and worshipped the LORD, and blessed the LORD God of my master Abraham, which had led me in the right way to take my master's brother's daughter unto his son.

49 And now if ye will deal kindly and truly with my master, tell me: and if not, tell me; that I may turn to the right hand or to the left.

50 ¶ Then Laban and Bethuel answered and said, The thing proceedeth from the LORD: we cannot speak unto thee bad or good.

51 Behold, Rebekah is before thee, take her, and go, and let her be thy master's son's wife, as the LORD hath spoken.

52 And it came to pass, that when Abraham's servant heard their words, he worshipped the LORD, bowing himself to the earth.

53 And the servant brought forth jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment, and gave them to Rebekah: he gave also to her brother and to her mother precious things.

54 And they did eat and drink, he and the men that were with him, and tarried all night; and they rose up in the morning, and he said, Send me away unto my master.

55 And her brother and her mother said, Let the damsel abide with us a few days, at the least ten; after that she shall go.

56 And he said unto them, Hinder me not, seeing

43 [That I may turn to the right hand, &c.] Many take this expression literally, interpreting the right hand by the Ishmaelites, and the left hand by Lot and his posterity; but it rather seems to be a figurative expression, signifying alteration of conduct.

55 [Abide with us a few days, &c.] Notwithstanding some interpret the Hebrew word iamim, by "years," which it sometimes signifies, yet as this sense is inconsistent with the eagerness that Abraham's servant expresses to return, in the fifty-sixth and the preceding verses, the sense of our translators seems the best. The Arabic, indeed, renders the words a whole year, or at least ten months; the Syriac, A month of days; the Samaritan, Days or a month; the Chaldee, for some time, or ten months; the Septuagint, About ten days; and the Vulgate, At least ten days.

58 [And she said, I will go.] That authority which parents have over children, being founded in nature, was, and must be always the same. But we find that no force was put upon the will of Rebekah in this case; and why should it? The happiness of the connubial state depends upon the reciprocal affection which the parties bear to each other; but this affection must proceed from the will, and the will cannot be forced; the choice, therefore, should be voluntary, nay, if it be not voluntary, the seeds of unhappiness are sown by the person who compels, because we are generally displeased with that which proceeds from compulsion.

63 [To meditate, &c.] In the Syriac, the word translated "meditate," is rendered, To walk; and by the Chaldee, the Samaritan, and Arabic translations, To pray; in which sense it is used likewise in Psalms cii. 1. Whence we may collect, that the employment of Isaac's thoughts was religious; and can any thing give us a nobler idea of Isaac's piety, than this verse, wherein he is represented as abstracting himself from society, in order to meditate on the beauties of creation, and offer up his prayers and praises to that being, who openeth his hands, and filleth all things living with what is good and expedient.

the LORD hath prospered my way; send me away that I may go to my master.

57 And they said, We will call the damsel, and enquire at her mouth.

58 And they called Rebekah, and said unto her, Wilt thou go with this man? And she said, I will go.

59 And they sent away Rebekah their sister, and her nurse, and Abraham's servant, and his men.

60 And they blessed Rebekah, and said unto her, Thou art our sister, be thou the mother of thousands of millions, and let thy seed possess the gate of those which hate them.

61 And Rebekah arose, and her damsels, and they rode upon the camels, and followed the man: and the servant took Rebekah, and went his way.

62 ¶ And Isaac came from the way of the well Lahairoi; for he dwelt in the south country.

63 And Isaac went out to meditate in the field at the eventide: and he lifted up his eyes, and saw, and, behold, the camels were coming.

64 And Rebekah lifted up her eyes, and when she saw Isaac, she lighted off the camel.

65 For she had said unto the servant, What man is this that walketh in the field to meet us? And the servant had said, It is my master: therefore she took a veil, and covered herself.

66 And the servant told Isaac all things that he had done.

67 And Isaac brought her into his mother Sarah's tent, and took Rebekah, and she became his wife; and he loved her: and Isaac was comforted after his mother's death.

THEN again Abraham took a wife, and her name was Keturah.

2 And

65 [She took a veil and covered herself.] The word translated "veil," is by the Septuagint rendered, A summer cloak, or garment. It was a common practice among the women of the east, to wear a veil whenever they went abroad; but this particular action of Rebekah's seems to have been done in conformity to the custom of all brides, who, when they were first introduced to their husbands, covered themselves with the nuptial veil.

67 [And Isaac was comforted after his mother's death.] This is a remarkable instance of filial affection! Sarah had now been dead three years, and yet Isaac continued to lament for her.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXIV.

This chapter shews the care of Abraham, that his son should not marry with the Canaanites, though undoubtedly he could have married his son to one of the daughters of the princes of the land: yet this has no weight with him; one whole manner were not corrupted is all that he fixes his thoughts upon. He knew what an important matter this was, and how much his son's happiness depended on it; and therefore sends even to a distant country for such an one. Alas! how different is this from our manners! Wealth is the chief object we fix our thoughts on, in marrying our children: we seek not, in our choice, those that are sincere and devout worshippers of God, but those who have the largest possessions; not those rich in good works, but those rich in the things of this world. And this, perhaps, is one chief and principal cause of the too great corruption of manners amongst us.

EXPLANATORY NOTES on Chap. XXV.

1 [Took a wife, &c.] From 1 Chron. i. 32. it appears, that she was only a concubine, a person admitted to his bed without the usual forms of matrimony; but in order to prevent his posterity from imitating a practice only necessary for replenishing the earth in the first ages, Moses probably calls her by the honourable name of a wife.

2 And

Before CHRIST 1853. 2 And she bare him Zimran, and Jokshan, and Medan, and Midian, and Ishbak, and Shuah.

3 And Jokshan begat Sheba, and Dedan. And the sons of Dedan were Ashurim, Letushim, and Leumim.

4 And the sons of Midian; Ephah, and Ephher, and Honoeh, and Abidah, and Eldaah. All these were the children of Keturah.

5 ¶ And Abraham gave all that he had unto Isaac.

6 But unto the sons of the concubines, which Abraham had, Abraham gave gifts, and sent them away from Isaac his son, while he yet lived, eastward, unto the east country.

822. 7 ¶ And these are the days of the years of Abraham's life which he lived, an hundred threescore and fifteen years.

¶ Then Abraham gave up the ghost, and died in a good old age, an old man, and full of years; and was gathered to his people.

9 And his sons Isaac and Ishmael buried him in the cave of Machpelah, in the field of Ephron the son of Zohar the Hittite, which is before Mamre;

10 The field which Abraham purchased of the sons of Heth: there was Abraham buried, and Sarah his wife.

11 ¶ And it came to pass after the death of Abraham, that God blessed his son Isaac; and Isaac dwelt by the well Lahai-roi.

12 ¶ Now these are the generations of Ishmael, Abraham's son, whom Hagar the Egyptian, Sarah's handmaid, bare unto Abraham:

1800. 13 And these are the names of the sons of Ishmael, by their names, according to their generations: the first-born of Ishmael, Nebajoth; and Kedar, and Adbeel, and Mibsam,

14 And Mishma, and Dumah, and Massa,

15 Hadar, and Tema, Jetur, Naphish, and Kedemah:

2 And she bare, &c.] This was a pledge of the divine veracity in fulfilling the promise made him, chap. xvii. 6.

8 Gave up the ghost] That is, he died without pain or agony. The ancient translators are industrious to preserve this sense, reflecting honour on Abraham's character.

Full of years.] There is no phrase in the Hebrew text for "years," printed by our translators in Italics; but the sense not being perfect without the addition of some such word, we must allow that the word ianim, "days," not "years," is omitted. This appears to be more than conjecture, when we remark, that the Samaritan, the Septuagint, the Syriac, Arabic, and Vulgate, have supplied this word; besides, it is a phrase often used on these occasions; and the very word we have supplied occurs, Gen. xxxv. 29. See 1 Chron. xxiii. 1. Though the word ianim, or, "days," is omitted in the Targum of the London polyglot, yet some printed copies, such as those of the Complutensian and Antwerp editions, preserve it. It is found in a manuscript of the Hebrew and Chaldee, in the Bodleian library, numbered five thousand two hundred and thirty-three; and is likewise preserved in one belonging to the Harleian collection at the British Museum.

Was gathered to his people.] According to the eastern languages, which give action or motion to every thing, this sentence signifies, to be reduced to one common lot or condition; besides, as the Hebrew abounds in pleonasm, "to die, and to be gathered to his people," but two different phrases of the same thing. It must still be allowed, that this phrase originally arose from the notion of some common receptacle of souls. But we know how soon terms and phrases lose the memory of their original. The truth of this interpretation is confirmed by the several contexts wherein these expressions occur; the historian's purpose being evidently nothing else than to record the period of their existence on earth.

18 He died in the presence of all his brethren.] This is in the Hebrew, He fell; in the Chaldee and Arabic, he dwelt; in this sense the verse is an accomplishment of the prediction at his birth.

20 And Isaac was forty years old, &c.] There were many of the following particulars happened several years before the death of Abraham, though they are related after that event; for the patriarch lived fifteen years after Esau and Jacob were born.

22 If it be so, why am I thus?] This is rendered in the Chaldee, If it were to be so, why did I conceive? The Arabic paraphrases it thus: If I knew that the thing would have been so, I would not have requested it. That is, why did I conceive, if I must suffer such uncommon excruciating pains? Yes, better for me to die, than to live in such continual misery and pain.

She went to enquire of the Lord.] This is rendered in the Chaldee, She went to enquire of the oracle. Some commentators are

No. 3.

Before CHRIST 1800. 16 These are the sons of Ishmael, and these are their names, by their towns, and by their castles: twelve princes according to their nations.

17 And these are the years of the life of Ishmael, an hundred and thirty and seven years: and he gave up the ghost and died; and was gathered unto his people.

18 And they dwelt from Havilah unto Shur, that is before Egypt, as thou goest towards Assyria: and he died in the presence of all his brethren.

19 ¶ And these are the generations of Isaac, Abraham's son: Abraham begat Isaac:

20 And Isaac was forty years old when he took Rebekah to wife, the daughter of Bethuel the Syrian of Padan-aram, the sister to Laban the Syrian.

21 ¶ And Isaac intreated the Lord for his wife, because she was barren: and the Lord was intreated of him, and Rebekah his wife conceived.

22 And the children struggled together within her; and she said, If it be so, why am I thus? And she went to enquire of the Lord.

23 And the Lord said unto her, Two nations are in thy womb, and two manner of people shall be separated from thy bowels; and the one people shall be stronger than the other people; and the elder shall serve the younger.

24 ¶ And when her days to be delivered were fulfilled, behold there were twins in her womb.

25 And the first came out red, all over like a hairy garment; and they called his name Esau.

26 And after that came his brother out, and his hand took hold on Esau's heel; and his name was called Jacob: and Isaac was threescore years old when she bare them.

27 ¶ And the boys grew: and Esau was a cunning hunter, a man of the field; and Jacob was a plain man, dwelling in tents.

28 And Isaac loved Esau, because he did eat of his venison: but Rebekah loved Jacob.

agreed in what manner Rebekah enquired of the Lord; they think that she had recourse to some prophet on account of the following answer, but who that prophet was, is difficult to determine.

23 Two nations.] i. e. The founders of two nations; namely, the Israelites and Idumeans, the former being descended from Jacob, and the latter from Esau. The Edomites were the offspring of Esau, as the Israelites were of Jacob; and who but the author and giver of life could foresee that two children in the womb would multiply into two nations! But they were not only to grow up into two very distinct nations, but two manner of people were to be separated from her bowels. And have not the Edomites and Israelites been all along two very different people in their manners, customs, and religions, which made them to be perpetually at variance one with another? The children struggled together in the womb; and, when they were grown up, they manifested different inclinations. The like diversity ran through their posterity: there was a continual enmity between the two nations. The king of Edom would not suffer the Israelites, in their return out of Egypt, to pass through his territories; and the history of the Edomites afterwards is little more than the history of their wars with the Jewish people.

The elder shall serve the younger.] Or it may be translated, The greater shall serve the lesser. The family of Esau was the elder, and for some time the greater and more powerful of the two, these having been dukes and kings in Edom, before there reigned any king over the children of Israel. But David made an entire conquest of the Edomites, and compelled them to become tributaries. In this state of servitude they continued about one hundred and fifty years. In the reign of Jehoram they recovered their liberties; but were afterwards defeated by Amaziah. Judas Maccabeus took their capital city; and his nephew Hyrcanus reduced them to the necessity of embracing the Jewish religion, or leaving their kingdom.

25 Red all over like a hairy garment.] By this may be understood, either that Esau, at his birth, was wholly covered with red hair, or that the colour of his flesh was ruddy, like a garment of red hair. And hence his name was called Esau, from Eschau, which, among the ancient Hebrews, signified "a hair-cloth."

26 His name was called Jacob, &c.] i. e. From hekeb, "the heel;" whence the Hebrew verb to supplant, and Jacob a supplanter.

27 A plain man dwelling in tents.] That is, he was of a mild and gentle nature, that delighted in the soft acts of peace, and the innocent pleasures of a pastoral life. The word, in the original, signifies not "plain," but "perfect;" and in this sense it is rendered by the Syriac, Samaritan, and Chaldee: and by the Arabic, Perfect virtues. But the word perfect being a general term, and put in opposition to the rough and rustic manner of Esau, it must import that Jacob was more humane and gentle, according to our explanation.

Before CHRIST 1837. 19 And Jacob ſod pottage : and Eſau came from the field, and he was faint :

30 And Eſau ſaid to Jacob, Feed me, I pray thee, with that ſame red pottage ; for I am faint : therefore was his name called Edom.

31 And Jacob ſaid, Sell me this day thy birthright.

33 And Jacob ſaid, Swear to me this day ; and he ſware unto him : and he ſold his birthright unto Jacob.

34 Then Jacob gave Eſau bread and pottage of lentiles ; and he did eat and drink, and roſe up, and went his way : thus Eſau deſpiſed his birthright.

C H A P. XXVI.

1 Iſaac becauſe of the famine goeth to Gerar. ■ God inſtrueth and bleſſeth him. 6 He denieth his wife, and is reprov'd by Abimelech. 12 Iſaac groweth rich, and the Philiftines envy him. 18 He diggeth ſundry wells. 23 God appeareth to him in Beer-ſheba, and bleſſeth him. 26 Abimelech maketh a covenant with him there. 34 Eſau's Canaanitiſh wives are a grief to his parents.

1804. A ND there was a famine in the land, beſide the firſt famine that was in the days of Abraham. And Iſaac went unto Abimelech king of the Philiftines unto Gerar.

2 ¶ And the LORD appeared unto him, and ſaid, Go not down into Egypt ; dwell in the land which I ſhall tell thee of :

3 Sojourn in this land, and I will be with thee, and will bleſs thee ; for unto thee, and unto thy ſeed, I will give all theſe countries, and I will perform the oath which I ſware unto Abraham thy father ;

29 Sod, &c.] This is the old preterperfect tenſe of the verb, to ſee the, which ſignifies to boil, &c.

30 Feed ■ with that ſame red pottage, &c.] Theſe words in the original are, Feed me with that red, that ſame red ; which ſome conſider as a plain proof that Eſau did not know the ingredients of which this pottage was made ; but others think the repetition is uſed to expreſs his extreme faintneſs, and impatience.

31 Sell me this day thy birthright.] Whoever enjoyed the birthright it was thought had a right to the land of Canaan ; which included a bleſſing promiſed to the peculiar ſeed of Abraham, from whom the Meſſiah was to deſcend. It is evident that fathers in thoſe early days conferred a bleſſing on their firſt-born, which was conceived to extend to their poſterity, according to the words of the ſon of Sirach : “ The bleſſing of the father eſtabliſheth the houſes of children ; but the curſe of the mother rooteth out foundations,” Ecceſ. iii. 9. And hence we ſee the propriety of the epithet applied to this action by the apoſtle ; for it doubtleſs ſhewed a profane, diſſolute mind, to be thus regardless of his future dignity, unmindful of his poſterity, and, for a trivial conſideration, to give up his right to the dying benediction of a father.

32 I am at the point to die, &c.] Here we have a true picture of a profane ſenſualiſt, who, for a ſordid momentary pleaſure, will give up the moſt ſolid and permanent joys of ſuturity.

34 He did eat and drink, and roſe up, and went his way, &c.] Eſau ſhewed no concern at what he had done, hoping, perhaps, to recover that by force, which he had loſt by his brother's craft. And poſſibly he might depend ſo much upon Iſaac's partial fondneſs for him, as to imagine he would not ſuffer Jacob to deprive him of any privileges of his birthright, notwithſtanding this ſolid agreement.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXV.

It certainly appears wonderful, that the ſame people ſhould retain the ſame diſpoſition for ſo many ages, without changing their manners at all in ſo long a courſe of years : their continuance is ſtill more aſtoniſhing : the great empires around them have all in their turns fallen to ruin, while they have continued the ſame from the beginning, and are likely to continue the ſame to the end. And this, in the natural courſe of human affairs, was ſo highly improbable, if not altogether impoſſible, that ■ nothing but a divine preſcience could have foreſeen it, ſo nothing but ■ divine power could have accompliſhed it. • We may with more confidence believe the particulars related of Abraham and Iſhmael, when we ſee them verified in their poſterity at this day. This is having, as it were, ocular demonſtration for our faith. This is proving by plain matter of fact, that the Moſt High ruleth in the kingdoms of men, and that his truth, ■ well as his mercy is everlaſting.

cauſe it is not probable that Rebekah would diſſemble her being a wife after ſhe had borne twins.

Unto Abimelech, &c.] No doubt the ſon of him to whom Abraham went. Abimelech was the common appellation of the kings of Paleſtine, as is ſaid chap. xx. 2. Thus he who is called Achiſh, 1 Sam. xxi. 10. is ſtyled Abimelech, Pſalm xxxiv. •

2 Go not down into Egypt.] From this paſſage it appears that Iſaac had formed a deſign of going into Egypt, becauſe of the famine which then raged in the land of Canaan ; but God diſſuaded him from it, leſt that fruitful country ſhould have induced him to fix his reſidence there ; his ſeed, by that means, would have been confounded with the Egyptians ; and the doctrine of the one God (a principle which they were ſeparated in order to preſerve) ſhould by that means be neglected.

3 The oath, &c.] i. e. All the promiſes which God had confirmed to Abraham by an oath ; particularly “ that he would multiply his ſeed as the ſtars of heaven, and as the ſand that is upon the ſea-ſhore ; and that his ſeed ſhould poſſeſs the gate of their enemies.”

4 I will make thy ſeed to multiply, &c.] Without mentioning the vaſt increaſe of their other poſterity, how ſoon did their descendants by Jacob grow up into a mighty nation ! and how ■ were they formerly in the land of Canaan ! How numerous were they in other parts of the world, according to all accounts ! How numerous are they ſtill in their preſent diſperſion among all nations ! It is impoſſible to fix the number this nation is at preſent compoſed of ; but yet we have reaſon ■ believe there ■ ſtill three millions of people who profeſs this religion ; and, as their phraſe is, are witneſſes of the unity of God in all the nations of the world. And who could foretell ſuch ■ wonderful increaſe by propagation of a branch only of one man's family, but the ſame divine power that could only accompliſh it ?

5 Becauſe that Abraham obeyed my voice, and kept my charge, &c.] Here God by a variety of expreſſions, ſeems to indicate how highly he was pleaſed with the punctuality of Abraham's obedience to all his divine commands.

7 She is my ſiſter, &c.] Thus Iſaac, in this particular, imitated the weakneſs of his father, and made uſe of ■ prevarication which was ■ dangerous than the truth itſelf.

8 Abimelech king of the Philiftines, &c.] We ſee by this occurrence the difference between an Egyptian monarch, and a petty king of the Philiftines. Abimelech is deſcribed as little different from a ſimple perſon without his guards, or great princes ; ſo jealous and afraid was he of Iſaac's growing power, that he obliged him to depart out of his dominions ; and not ſatisfied with that, went afterwards to beg a peace of him, and would ſwear him to the obſervance thereof.

12 Sowed in the land, &c.] Thus all the patriarchs, like their poſterity, were under an extraordinary providence ; and the bleſſings which were heaped upon them were all deſigned to render the ends of infinite wiſdom effectual ; in preſerving them, in order to perpetuate the idea of the one ſupreme Being, till it was a proper ſeaſon to propagate it all over the world.

14 For he had possession of flocks, and possession of herds, and great store of servants: and the Philistines envied him.

15 For all the wells which his father's servants had digged in the days of Abraham his father, the Philistines had stopped them, and filled them with earth.

16 And Abimelech said unto Isaac, Go from us; for thou art much mightier than we.

17 And Isaac departed thence, and pitched his tent in the valley of Gerar, and dwelt there.

18 ¶ And Isaac digged again the wells of water, which they had digged in the days of Abraham his father; for the Philistines had stopped them after the death of Abraham: and he called their names after the names by which his father had called them.

19 And Isaac's servants digged in the valley, and found there a well of springing water.

20 And the herdmen of Gerar did strive with Isaac's herdmen, saying, The water is ours: and he called the name of the well Eshek; because they strove with him.

21 And they digged another well, and strove for that also: and he called the name of it Sitnah.

22 And he removed from thence, and digged another well; and for that they strove not: and he called the name of it Rehoboth; and he said, For now the LORD hath made room for us, and we shall be fruitful in the land.

23 ¶ And he went up from thence to Beer-sheba.

24 And the LORD appeared unto him the same night, and said, I am the God of Abraham thy father: fear not, for I am with thee, and will bless thee, and multiply thy seed for my servant Abraham's sake.

25 And he builded an altar there, and called upon the name of the LORD, and pitched his tent there: and there Isaac's servants digged a well.

26 ¶ Then Abimelech went to him from Gerar, and Ahuzzah one of his friends, and Phicol the chief captain of his army.

27 And Isaac said unto them, Wherefore came ye to me, seeing ye hate me, and have sent me away from you?

28 And they said, We saw certainly that the LORD was with thee: and we said, Let there now be an oath betwixt us, even betwixt us and thee, and let us make a covenant with thee;

16 Go from us] Notwithstanding all the friendship which Abimelech had shewn to Isaac, and the league that had been made with Abraham, yet when he feared that Isaac would rival him in power, he acts according to the policy of kings, and desires Isaac to retire from his presence.

Thou art much mightier than we] It would be better if thus rendered, Because thou art increased, or made mighty by us; a plain indication that envy was the motive that induced Abimelech to act thus ungenerously and illiberally.

18 Which they had digged, &c.] As the relative "they" has no antecedent but the word Isaac, we may suppose some mistake, and may correct it by the Samaritan text, which reads ebedi, "the servants," instead of beiani, in "the days." This correction is not only necessary in the Hebrew context, but the Samaritan is confirmed by the Greek, Syriac, and Vulgate Latin translations. By these means the sentence will be, And Isaac digged again the wells of water, which the servants of Abraham his father had digged, &c.

19 Springing water] This is in the Hebrew, living waters; a name the orientals gave to waters of perennial springs, in contradistinction to rain water, which they saved in cisterns. And the value of such a spring doubtless the cause why the herdmen of Gerar strove with those of Isaac for the well, pretending they had a right to it, because it was found in their soil, and hence Isaac called the well "Eshek," that is, animosity.

21 Sitnah] That is, hatred, according to the best interpretation.

22 Rehoboth, &c.] i. e. Free space, or room; because his flocks had now room to feed at large, and range the country in search of the richest pastures.

24 I am with thee, &c.] It is in the Chaldee, My word shall be thy help.

30 And they made a feast, &c.] Which was customary between the parties when they entered into a covenant; especially when a sacrifice preceded, appears from chap. xxxi. 54. Feasting, or eating and drinking, were likewise esteemed a token of friendship and mutual benevolence, as may be collected from Joshua ix. 14. Judges xiii. 23, &c. &c.

35 A grief of mind unto Isaac, &c.] It is in the Hebrew and Samaritan, bitterness of soul; the Septuagint render it, They were disobedient or contentious, &c. the Chaldee, They were rebellious

31 And they rose up betimes in the morning, and swore one to another: and Isaac sent them away, and they departed from him in peace.

33 And he called it Shebah: therefore the name of the city is Beer-sheba unto this day.

AND it came to pass, that when Isaac was old, and his eyes were dim, so that he could not see, he called Esau his eldest son, and said unto him, My son: and he said unto him, Behold here am I.

2 And he said, Behold now, I am old, I know not the day of my death:

3 Now therefore take, I pray thee, thy weapons, thy quiver and thy bow, and go out to the field, and take me some venison;

4 And make me savoury meat, such as I love, and bring it to me, that I may eat; that my soul may bless thee before I die.

And if it be considered that they were Canaanites, a people notorious for atrocious inhumanity, and enemies to the religious sentiments of Isaac, there was just occasion for sorrow.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXVI.

This chapter sufficiently shews that God never forsakes his servants in distress; he is not as the sons of men, but as a ready help in time of trouble. It is better to trust in the Lord, than to put confidence even in princes, or the most powerful of men. God is a help that will never forsake or deceive us; God's love is like his essence, immutable, eternal, reaching from everlasting to everlasting. When St. James tells us, that "every good and perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights," chap. i. 17. he adds, (to complete our consolation) "with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning." And what God once said to Joshua, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee," he says and performs to all that fear him.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXVII.

1 Isaac was old, &c.] Isaac was now an hundred and thirty-seven years old, as appears from comparing the several parts of his history. But he lived thirty years after this transaction happened.

3 Thy quiver, &c.] This is a sword, or hanger, in the Chaldee and Syriac.

4 Make me savoury meat, &c.] Isaac, who always loved Esau better than Jacob, now desires his son to procure him some venison, and make him savoury meat, that his spirits might be exhilarated, and his mind properly disposed for giving the prophetic benediction. Such pious parents in those days always bestowed upon their children, and which was held sacred, as being prophetic of their future success in life.

5 And Rebekah heard, &c.] Rebekah well knew that Isaac preferred Esau to Jacob, and had now sent him to take venison; that he might pronounce upon him the blessing of Abraham. She was therefore determined if possible, to prevent it, and by stratagem get it pronounced upon her younger son Jacob.

6 ¶ And Rebekah spake unto Jacob her son, saying, Behold, I heard thy father speak unto Esau thy brother, saying,

7 Bring me venison, and make me savoury meat, that I may eat, and bless thee before the Lord before my death.

8 Now therefore, my son, obey my voice according to that which I now command thee.

9 Go now to the flock, and fetch me from thence two good kids of the goats; and I will make them savoury meat for thy father, such as he loveth:

10 And thou shalt bring it to thy father, that he may eat, and that he may bless thee before his death.

11 And Jacob said to Rebekah his mother, Behold, Esau my brother is a hairy man, and I am a smooth man:

12 My father peradventure will feel me, and I shall seem to him as a deceiver; and I shall bring a curse upon me, and not a blessing.

13 And his mother said unto him, Upon me be thy curse, my son: only obey my voice, and go fetch me them.

14 And he went, and fetched, and brought them to his mother: and his mother made savoury meat, such as his father loved.

15 And Rebekah took goodly raiment of her eldest son Esau, which were with her in the house, and put them upon Jacob her younger son:

16 And she put the skins of the kids of the goats upon his hands, and upon the smooth of his neck:

17 And she gave the savoury meat and the bread, which she had prepared, into the hand of her son Jacob.

18 ¶ And he came unto his father, and said, My father: and he said, Here am I; who art thou, my son?

19 And Jacob said unto his father, I am Esau thy first-born; I have done according as thou badest me: arise, I pray thee, sit and eat of my venison, that thy soul may bless me.

20 And Isaac said unto his son, How is it that thou hast found it so quickly, my son? And he said, Because the Lord thy God brought it to me.

21 And Isaac said unto Jacob, Come near, I pray thee, that I may feel thee, my son, whether thou be my very son Esau or not.

22 And Jacob went near unto Isaac his father; and he felt him, and said, The voice is Jacob's voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau.

23 And he discerned him not, because his hands

13 Upon me be thy curse, &c.] It seems Rebekah was persuaded, that Jacob had a just title to the first blessing which Esau had sold with his birthright, and which God had designed for Jacob from the beginning; whence she thought it her duty to deceive Isaac into an action which he ought to have done voluntarily, and therefore takes the whole curse upon herself, provided Isaac should discover the fallacy. But though these circumstances have a great tendency to palliate the guilt either of Jacob or his mother, yet they are far from being sufficient entirely to exculpate them; the former having increased his crime by affirming himself to be Esau, which was absolute falsehood. We should therefore lament the weakness of human nature, which cannot always stand upright; and at the same time admire the impartiality of the sacred writings, in which the very blemishes and transgressions of those who make the greatest figure therein are recorded for our instruction with the utmost impartiality.

21 Come — that I may feel thee, &c.] Still Isaac suspected that this was not Esau; and therefore desires his son to approach his bed, that he might feel him, being persuaded that he should by that means fully satisfy himself, whether or not it was his eldest son.

27 He smelled the smell of his raiment, &c.] Hence we may infer, that the Orientals perfumed their garments with the odoriferous scent of flowers, with which the country of Arabia abounded; and this excellent smell had such an influence on the spirits of Isaac, that he breaks out into a kind of rapture, "See, the smell of my son is as the smell of a field which the Lord hath blessed." That is, the smell of my son's raiment conveys to my mind the enchanting idea of a field adorned with fruits, and enamelled with flowers.

28 Give thee of the dew of heaven.] Because in the hot country where Isaac dwelt, showers being less frequent than with us, the morning and evening dews were of the utmost importance to refresh the earth, and produce that plenty for which it was renowned.

were hairy, as his brother Esau's hands: so he blessed him.

24 And he said, Art thou my very son Esau? And he said, I am.

25 And he said, Bring it near to me, and I will eat of my son's venison, that my soul may bless thee. And he brought it near to him, and he did eat: and he brought him wine, and he drank.

26 And his father Isaac said unto him, Come near now, and kiss me, my son.

27 And he came near, and kissed him: and he smelled the smell of his raiment, and blessed him, and said, See, the smell of my son is as the smell of a field which the Lord hath blessed.

28 Therefore God give thee of the dew of heaven, and the fatness of the earth, and plenty of corn and wine:

29 Let the people serve thee, and nations bow down to thee; be lord over thy brethren, and let thy mother's sons bow down to thee: cursed be every one that curseth thee, and blessed be he that bleisseth thee.

30 ¶ And it came to pass, as soon as Isaac had made an end of blessing Jacob, and Jacob was yet scarce gone out from the presence of Isaac his father, that Esau his brother came in from his hunting.

31 And he also had made savoury meat, and brought it unto his father, and said unto his father, Let my father arise, and eat of his son's venison, that thy soul may bless me.

32 And Isaac his father said unto him, Who art thou? And he said, I am thy son, thy first-born Esau.

33 And Isaac trembled very exceedingly, and said, Who? where is he that hath taken venison, and brought it me, and I have eaten of all before thou camest, and have blessed him? yea, and he shall be blessed.

34 ¶ And when Esau heard the words of his father, he cried with a great and exceeding bitter cry, and said unto his father, Bless me, even me also, O my father.

35 And he said, Thy brother came with subtilty, and hath taken away thy blessing.

36 And he said, is he not rightly named Jacob? for he hath supplanted me these two times: he took away my birthright; and, behold, now he hath taken away my blessing. And he said, Hast thou not reserved a blessing for me?

37 And Isaac answered and said unto Esau, Behold, I have made him thy lord, and all his brethren have I given to him for servants; and with corn and wine have

And the fatness of the earth, &c.] By these expressions Isaac wishes his son all the blessings which a fruitful country can produce. And this prophecy was remarkably verified by God's settling the Israelites in Canaan, a land flowing with milk and honey.

29 Let people serve thee.] Here what is predicted concerning Esau and Jacob, was not verified in themselves, but in their posterity. Jacob was so far from bearing rule over Esau, that he was forced to fly his country for fear of him. When he returned, he sent a supplicatory message to his brother Esau. When he heard of Esau's coming to meet him with four hundred men, he was greatly afraid and distressed. He sent a magnificent present before him to appease his brother, calling himself Esau's servant: and after he had found a gracious reception acknowledged, "I have seen thy face, as though I had seen the face of God, &c." chap. xxxiii. 3. Jacob then had temporal superiority over Esau, and therefore among their posterity we must look for the completion of the prophecy.

Curst be every one, &c.] A similar promise was made to Abraham in the name of God, chap. xii. 3. and it is here repeated, and thus paraphrased: "He who shall curse thee, my son Jacob, shall be curst, like Balaam the son of Beor; and he who shall bless thee, shall be blessed, as Moses the prophet, the lawgiver of Israel."

33 Isaac trembled very exceedingly.] It is in the Hebrew, Isaac trembled with a great trembling greatly. What words can more forcibly convey anxiety, solicitude, and agonizing terror!

Who? where is he? Surprise and perturbation not only confused the ideas, but likewise stopped the voice of the patriarch; and the broken and imperfect sentences the sacred historian has put in his mouth, are the voice of nature, and inimitably applicable.

Yea, and he shall be blessed.] It would perhaps be more expressive of the original to read, Yea, and he will be blessed: for the whole of this transaction seems not to have been so much the private wishes of a parent, as a prophecy inspired by God.

Before CHRIST 1760. I sustained him: and what shall I do unto thee, my son?

38 And Esau said unto his father, Hast thou but one blessing, my father? bless me, even me also, O my father. And Esau lifted up his voice, and wept.

39 And Isaac his father answered and said unto him, Behold thy dwelling shall be the fatness of the earth, and of the dew of heaven from above;

40 And by thy sword shalt thou live, and shalt serve thy brother; and it shall come to pass when thou shalt have the dominion, that thou shalt break his yoke from off thy neck.

41 ¶ And Esau hated Jacob because of the blessing wherewith his father blessed him: and Esau said in his heart, The days of mourning for my father are at hand; then will I slay my brother Jacob.

42 ¶ And these words of Esau her elder son were told to Rebekah: and she sent and called Jacob her younger son, and said unto him, Behold thy brother Esau, as touching thee, doth comfort himself, purposing to kill thee.

43 Now, therefore, my son, obey my voice; and arise, flee thou to Laban my brother, to Haran;

44 And tarry with him a few days, until thy brother's fury turn away;

45 Until thy brother's anger turn away from thee,

39 Behold, thy dwelling shall be the fatness of the earth, &c.] These words are rendered by some modern authors, Thy dwelling shall be ~~from the fatness of the earth~~; and say, Idumea, the country of the Edomites, was a dry, barren, and desert country. But it is not probable that any good author should use the very same words, with the very same prepositions in one sense, and within a very few lines after in a quite contrary sense; which the sacred writer must do, to justify the new translation. Besides, Esau solicited for a blessing; and the author of the Epistle to the Hebrews says, that "Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau;" whereas, had he consigned Esau to such a barren and wretched country, it would have been a curse rather than a blessing. Wherever the Edomites were situated, whether at Mount Seir, or any other place, we find, in fact, that in temporal blessings they were little inferior to the Israelites. Esau went to dwell in Mount Seir of his own accord; and he would hardly have removed thither with so many cattle, had it been such a barren and desolate country as some would represent it. When the Israelites desired leave to pass through the territories of Edom, Numb. xx. 17. it appears that the country abounded in fruitful fields and vineyards; and the prophecy of Malachi, chap. i. 2. which is commonly alleged as a proof of its barrenness, is rather an argument to the contrary; for it implies, that the country was fruitful before, and that its present unfruitfulness was rather an effect of war and devastation, than any natural defect, or original barrenness.

40 When thou shalt have dominion, &c.] Several render these words, Thou shalt have dominion by laying down, shaking off; thou shalt shake off, and shalt loose his yoke from off thy neck. Others, If thou shalt repent, his yoke shall pass from off thy neck. But our translation is the most approved. ~~Esau~~ not said that they should have dominion over the ~~seed of Esau~~, but simply have dominion, as they had when they appointed a king of their own. We shall thus paraphrase the whole: And it shall be when the sons of Jacob attend to the law, and observe the precepts, they shall impose the yoke of servitude upon thy neck; but when they shall turn away themselves from studying the law, and shall not keep the precepts, behold, then thou shalt shake off the yoke from thy neck. It was David who imposed the yoke. Toward the latter end of Solomon's reign, Hadad the Edomite, raised some disturbances, but was not able to overthrow his throne. But in the reign of Jehoram, the Edomites revolted and made themselves a king. Jehoram could not subdue them. "So the Edomites revolted from under the hand of Judah unto this day," 2 Chron. xx. 8, 10. and hereby this part of the prophecy was fulfilled, about nine hundred years after it was delivered. It may not be improper to consider, that the younger was to be greatly superior in spiritual blessings. Jacob was a man of more religion than Esau. The posterity of Jacob likewise preserved the true religion, and the worship of one God, while the Edomites were sunk in idolatry; and of the seed of Jacob was born the Saviour of the world. This was the peculiar privilege and advantage of Jacob: this was his greatest superiority over Esau: and in this sense St. Paul understands the prophecy, "the elder shall serve the younger," Rom. ix. 12. And when the Gentiles were converted to Christianity, the prophecy was literally fulfilled.

41 The days of mourning for my father are at hand.] He was in this, however, mistaken: for his father lived at least forty years longer; for he was now one hundred, being sixty at the birth of Esau, chap. xxv. 26. who was past forty when he married, chap. xxvi. 34. and Isaac was one hundred and eighty when he died, chap. xxxv. 28. Esau, we see, had some reverence for his father; but none, it would seem, for his mother, who had helped Jacob to supplant him in the blessing.

45 I will send and fetch thee from thence.] This however she did not, for Jacob lived with Laban twenty years, chap. xxxi. 38. either because Esau's anger lasted longer than she expected, or because death prevented.

Why should I be deprived of you both in one day?] If Esau had killed Jacob, he would either have been punished with death according to the law of God, chap. ix. 6. or he must have fled from justice, and been an exile, as Cain and Absalom were when they had slain their brothers, chap. iv. 12. 2 Sam. xiii. 24. and either way he would have been deprived of both sons.

46 And Rebekah said to Isaac—If Jacob take a wife, &c.] Rebekah assigns only this reason for sending Jacob away among her kindred, without taking any notice of the danger his life was in, lest she should have afflicted her husband by telling the real cause.

What good shall my life do me?] i. e. I shall have no comfort in it; death would be more eligible than such a life; this she said with great vehemence and affection, to Isaac and work upon Isaac. He lay his commands on Jacob, and give him orders and directions to go to her family and friends, and there take him a wife; and she succeeded according to her wishes, the following chapter proves.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS on Chap. XXVII.

This chapter furnishes us with a thing of a very striking nature, namely, that Rebekah and Jacob seem to have fallen into the great error of our lives, the depending on our own wisdom rather than on God's. Though Rebekah, and probably Jacob, knew that God had declared that his posterity should become superior to Esau, yet they could not wait with patience till God should bring it to pass by his infinite wisdom, but must have recourse to their own; and Jacob must take an ungenerous advantage of his brother's necessity to procure one privilege, and Rebekah persuades her son to impose on his father by deceit and falsehood, in order to gain another; which can never be justifiable on any account. Accordingly, though Jacob's posterity obtained the blessing which God had purposed they should have, yet Jacob and his mother brought evil upon themselves, by the means they took to obtain the blessing; for Jacob was consequently obliged to fly from his friends and country, and endure a long exile and many hardships; and fond Rebekah obliged to send away her beloved son likewise, whom she never more beheld, as her life was finished before his return.

EXPLANATORY NOTES on CHAP. XXVIII.

1 Thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Canaan.] The anxious apprehensions shewn by Rebekah and Isaac on this occasion, flowed not only from parental affection, but likewise from a proper sense of the blessing entailed upon their posterity. To intermarry with people who were decreed to destruction on account of their vices, would be in one respect, to counteract, if not to frustrate, the plan of Providence. Besides, it might be the design of heaven to render its omnipotence conspicuous in the settlement of the Israelites in Canaan, which intermarriages with the natives would, in some respect, have obscured or rendered less remarkable.

3 And God Almighty bless thee, &c.] Seeing the blessing in the preceding chapter was obtained by fraud, this repetition of it may appear no ways unnecessary. It is likewise an addition that given in the former chapter, and a confirmation of that which Isaac had himself received from Abraham, and Abraham himself had derived from the Lord.

9 He went unto Iſhmael.] Seeing Iſhmael was now dead, and had been dead about fourteen years, it is evident we muſt not take this expreſſion without ſome qualification. It is remarkable that this wife of Eſau is called Baſhemath, chap. xxxvi. 3. though ſhe is ſaid to be the daughter of the ſame perſon ¶ Mahalath: whence we may conclude, it was the cuſtom of thoſe times for one perſon ¶ have two names, which were uſed indifferently. Thus Eſau is likewiſe named Edom; and the mother of Abijam is called both Maacah and Micahiah, ¶ Kings xv. 2. ¶ Chron. 2.

11 Upon a certain place, &c.] Jacob was ſo ſcrupulous in obſerving the command of his father, that he would not enter into any houſe that belonged to a Canaanite, but choſe rather to ſleep in the open air. The hardineſs in which he had been bred, rendered him indifferant to the manner in which he lodged; and he ſlept with as much comfort upon a pillow of ſtone, as thoſe who repoſed upon the bed of luxury. The place might perhaps be pitched upon on account of its ſhade, eſpecially as it is named Luz, which ſignifies an almond, and might probably have received that name on account of the abundance of almond trees which grew in that place.

12 Behold a ladder, &c.] The ſolution of this viſion, tormented of ſymbolic hieroglyphicks, will be eaſy, if we attend either to the circumſtances of the patriarch, or the mode of information ſuited to thoſe rude and early ages. Jacob had now left his father's houſe without attendants, without any certain proſpect of ſucceſs in acquiring a wife or a ſettlement. It is true, he had obtained his father's bleſſing, but, having obtained it by fraud, had irritated his elder brother, who threatened his life, on account of the injuſtice he been guilty of, and would perhaps have avenged himſelf if Jacob had not fled from his father's houſe. In theſe circumſtances he had much to fear, and little ¶ hope; his confidence could only ariſe from his perſuaſion of the doctrine of ¶ Providence, and that there was a perpetual, inviſible communication between heaven and earth. This was the intent of the viſion; and what could be better adapted to communicate this truth, than the ſymbol of a ladder ſtanding upon the earth, and reaching to heaven, ¶ which the angels of God were continually aſcending and deſcending. Nothing conſequently could more effectually baniſh any anxious ſuſpicion from his boſom, or compel him to reſign himſelf entirely to the direction of Providence, and conſide in the parental care of the God of his father. When ſpeech was rude and imperfect, ideas were not only conveyed by words, but likewiſe by ſigns, actions, and ¶ perpetual representation of material images; and when God taught the patriarch, he condeſcended to the ſame mode of inſtruction, and the ſignificative action was changed into a viſion: a viſion that elevated the heart with the pleaſing aſſurance, that though he was an exile from his native country, and travelling alone uninhabited deſerts; though he was endangered by the wild beaſts that roamed in the night-time for prey, and was ſurrounded by barbarous nations, who were loſt to every principle of humanity; yet he was ſtill in the preſence of his Maker, whoſe almighty arm would protect him from danger, and under the ſhadow of whoſe wings he might dwell in perfect ſafety.

12 And he dreamed, and behold a ladder ſet up on the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven: and behold the angels of God aſcending and deſcending on it.

13 And, behold, the Lord ſtood above it, and ſaid, I am the Lord God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Iſaac: the land whereon thou lieſt, to thee will I give it, and to thy ſeed;

14 And thy ſeed ſhall be as the duſt of the earth, and thou ſhalt ſpread abroad to the weſt, and to the eaſt, and to the north, and to the ſouth: and in thee and in thy ſeed ſhall all the families of the earth be bleſſed.

15 And, behold, I am with thee, and will keep thee in all places whither thou goeſt, and will bring thee again into this land; for I will not leave thee, until I have done that which I have ſpoken to thee of.

16 ¶ And Jacob awaked out of his ſleep, and he ſaid, Surely the Lord is in this place; and I knew it not.

17 And he was afraid, and ſaid, How dreadful is this place! this is none other but the houſe of God, and this is the gate of heaven.

18 And Jacob roſe up early in the morning, and took the ſtone that he had put for his pillows, and ſet it up for a pillar, and poured oil upon the top of it.

19 And

13 Behold, the Lord ſtood.] The Hebrew here for Lord, is Jehovah, the incommunicable name of God. The Chaldee renders it, the glory of the Lord, that is, the Shechinah; but the Arabic is remarkable, which reads, The angel of the Lord ſtood before him, ſpoke unto him for, or in the name of, the Lord, I am, &c.

I am the Lord God of Abraham.] All the nations which belonged to the family of Abraham were idolaters, and imagined that their ſeveral deities were local and tutelary; they looked upon themſelves as peculiarly under their protection, and as intitled to diſtinguiſhing marks of their favour. The different names they aſſigned them, demonſtrate the truth of this aſſertion. In compliance with this cuſtom God diſtinguiſhes himſelf to Jacob by the title of "the God of Abraham, &c." and in aſſuming this title, he aſſures Jacob of his extraordinary providence and peculiar protection, at the ſame time that he recalls to his mind the noble acts he had done for his anceſtors, and reminds him that he was the true and only Deity, in oppoſition to the falſe gods of the neighbouring nations, &c.

To thee will I give it, &c.] Notwithſtanding it may be objected, that this prophecy was not perſonally verified to Jacob, yet the objection will ſoon vaniſh, if we conſider what has been offered concerning this promiſe, when delivered to Abraham and to Iſaac.

14 And in thee, and in thy ſeed, &c.] Which promiſe attended upon the birthright. It was that which peculiarly diſtinguiſhed the bleſſing which Iſaac gave to his ſons, Jacob and Eſau, and was truly a conveyance of the birthright to him in the family of Abraham. Iſaac himſelf calls this right of primogeniture in his houſe, the bleſſing of Abraham; and God himſelf, in confirmation of Jacob's right of primogenation, aſſures him, that in him, and in his ſeed, all the families of the earth ſhall be bleſſed. And it is very obſervable, that this bleſſing ſo peculiarly belongs to this covenant, that it is never mentioned with reſpect to any other perſon whatever, than ſuch only to whom the right of this covenant, and the promiſe of the land of Canaan, deſcended.

16 Surely, the Lord is in this place, &c.] We are not to ſuppoſe that Jacob had ſuch low ideas of the Deity, as to imagine that he was not preſent throughout all ſpace, and beyond all ſpace. The ſentence, therefore, ſignifies no more than this: that he could not have imagined before, that the Lord would have choſen that ſpot to manifeſt his peculiar and glorious preſence. This ſenſe is confirmed by the ancient tranſlations, eſpecially by the Chaldee, which renders the words, Certainly, the glory of the Lord dwelleth in this place; and the Arabic, which paraphraſes it, The light of God is in this place.

17 How dreadful is this place, &c.] The Chaldee tranſlates it, This is no common place. Here the Deity keeps his court, as earthly monarchs did then, in the gates. This is the place wherein God has been pleaſed to manifeſt his glorious preſence; and if majelly excites awe, the preſence, the glorious preſence of God, renders this place awful and dreadful indeed! O that all mankind would entertain the ſame idea of the Deity, who is preſent every where; but eſpecially when they approach the courts of the Lord's houſe, "where his honour loveth to dwell."

18 And took the ſtone—and ſet it up.] This was not only to preſerve the memory of this heavenly viſion, but likewiſe to make uſe of it as an altar, as appears from the following words.

And poured oil, &c.] Which ceremony was uſed in conſecrating ſuch things to a divine uſe; and among the heathens, every ſtone that had received this rite, was eſteemed as divine, and honoured with adoration. Though the deceitful voice of tradition aſſirms, that this very ſtone is now lodged in Weſtminſter Abbey, after a journey

19 And he called the name of that place Beth-el: but the name of the city was called Luz at the first.

20 ¶ And Jacob vowed a vow, saying, If God will be with me, and will keep me in this way that I go, and will give me bread to eat, and raiment to put on,

21 So that I come again to my father's house in peace, then shall the Lord be my God:

22 And this stone, which I have set for a pillar, shall be God's house: and of all that thou shalt give me I will surely give the tenth unto thee.

C H A P. XXIX.

1 Jacob cometh to the well of Haran; 9 meeteth Rachel, maketh himself known to her, and is entertained by Laban, whom he covenanteth to serve for Rachel. 21 He is deceived with Leah; 28 marrieth Rachel also, and serveth for her seven years more. 31 Leah beareth Reuben, Simeon, Levi, and Judah.

THEN Jacob went on his journey, and came into the land of the people of the east.

¶ And he looked, and behold a well in the field, and, lo, there were three flocks of sheep lying by it; for out of that well they watered their flocks: and a great stone was upon the well's mouth.

3 And thither were all the flocks gathered; and to Jerusalem, and from thence to Scotland; yet the sober part of mankind must look upon the legend in the same light as that of the journey to the house of the Virgin Mary from Jerusalem to Loretto.

19 Beth-el.] i. e. The house of God, from beth, "a house," and el, "God."

That city was called Luz, &c.] Which by means contradicts the assertion above, wherein we say, that Jacob laid himself down to sleep in the open air, chusing rather to lie on the ground, than to enter into any house of the Canaanites; for in the first place, this spot might have been within the inclosure of the city walls; but if this be looked upon as an evasion, we may reply, secondly, that the place where Jacob slept, and the city of Luz, were not the same, as appears from the expression of, that place, when applied to the spot where he had his vision, and that city, when applied to Luz. There might have been a city near, which was at first named Luz, or Ulamluz, according to the translation of the Vulgate and Septuagint, which signifies, The porch of nuts or almonds; but, in process of time, it might have changed its name for that of Beth-el, which was given it on account of this celebrated vision.

21 Then shall the Lord be my God.] Or according to the Hebrew which is more expressive, Then shall Jehovah be my God; which implies, that he would acknowledge and worship the only and true God, in opposition to the gods of the neighbouring nations; and that he would adore him as his tutelary God and defender, in allusion to the custom of the surrounding idolaters. Though this vow was conditional, we must not imagine that it betrays either want of faith, or want of religion in Jacob; for the condition expressed was necessary for the performance of his vow, it being impossible that he should fulfil it, unless God should bring him back again to that place. Some are of opinion, as proceeding from a due sense of the promise which God had made, and which he had promised him, ver. 13. a sense which is not to be understood as a mere acceptance; it being evident that the patriarch, when he returned, was filled with a grateful sense of the divine favour, and that he accompanied his offering with praise and thanksgiving.

22 And this stone shall be God's house.] Thus every place set apart for divine worship, or honoured with any extraordinary manifestation of the divine presence, is in scripture called God's house. In either of these senses, we may understand the word as used by Jacob; for it was his intention to set that place apart for the worship of God, in return for which he might reasonably expect that God would manifest himself to him there. Some indeed understand by Jacob's words, "this stone shall be God's house," that he intended to erect a house there for the worship of God; but it should be observed, that in the early ages they adored their great Creator under the open canopy of heaven, and that groves and mountains were their only tabernacles.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS on Chap. XXVIII.

In this chapter we find, first, the command given by Isaac to his son Jacob, concerning taking of a wife, which should teach parents to be careful with regard to the marriages of their children; and children should learn that obedience to parents is sure to be attended with a blessing. Secondly, we see the effects of good old Isaac's prayers; and this should teach parents never to cease praying for their children. Thirdly, we learn that God is ever present with his people; for although the mountains should depart, and the hills be removed, yet the covenant of his peace he will never remove from them. Lastly, let the example of pious Jacob teach us, never to forget the mercies and blessings of God; for a constant remembrance of what God, in his providence, does for us, keeps faith and every christian virtue alive in our minds.

5 And he said unto them, Know ye Laban the son of Nahor? And they said, We know him.

7 And he said, Lo, it is yet high day, neither is it time that the cattle should be gathered together: water ye the sheep, and go and feed them.

¶ And they said, We cannot, until all the flocks be gathered together, and till they roll the stone from the well's mouth; then we water the sheep.

10 And it came to pass, when Jacob saw Rachel the daughter of Laban his mother's brother, and the sheep of Laban his mother's brother, that Jacob went near, and rolled the stone from the well's mouth, and watered the flock of Laban his mother's brother.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXIX.

1 Land of the people of the east.] This is in the Hebrew, The land of the children of the east. This was Mesopotamia, which lay eastward from Canaan.

2 Three flocks of sheep, &c.] The verb translated, watered, in the latter part of the verse, is without any regular nominative case before it, and according to the present reading must be supplied by adding the word shepherds: but if it be supposed that the Hebrew word bederei, "flocks," was erroneously substituted by the transcriber instead of roe, "shepherds," this sense will be complete; the participle, lying, is, in Isaiah xiii. 20. applied to shepherds in this recumbent posture, and affords some argument in favour of this emendation.

3 Flocks gathered.] In the four succeeding verses of this chapter, we are presented with a dialogue; and yet no man is mentioned but Jacob; the only living creature present besides him being three flocks of sheep. The truth seems to be, that the word shepherds was originally expressed, and some transcriber has writ haderim, "flocks," instead of barvaim, "shepherds." That this mistake has actually been made, is certain from the Samaritan and the Arabic; but it may be said, that, with this emendation, the words, "all the shepherds were there gathered together," in this verse, is contrary to those in the eighth, which informs us, that the shepherds were not yet all assembled together: but to reconcile these two passages, it should be observed, that this verse speaks only of the custom of the shepherds assembling at that well, and watering their flocks all together; for all the verbs in this verse, though preter, have a future signification, on account of the converive particle prefixed to every one of them; and therefore, as future, cannot express a past assembly or action. But being frequentative, and implying the continuance and custom of doing a thing, expresses this sense. And there (at this well) all the shepherds usually met together, and rolled the stone from the well's mouth, and watered the sheep, and put the stone again upon the well's mouth. The signification given to this verse, as expressive of a custom, is confirmed by the Vulgate, which renders it, It was customary; but still reads Sheep, instead of shepherds, according to the Hebrew.

4 Unto them, &c.] Certainly this expression contains the emendation proposed in the preceding verse, and receives great light from it.

¶ Until all the flocks, &c.] Instead of "flocks," we should read shepherds, as appears from the note on ver. 3. and which is supported by the Samaritan, the Arabic, and the Septuagint; nay, even from the context. The stone is represented to have been very large, so large, that it could not be moved any other way, than by rolling. It was probably too heavy for the three shepherds lying by it; if so, their excuse is intelligible, when they tell Jacob, that they could not water their sheep till it was rolled away; and being too much for their strength, it was necessary for them to stay till that obstacle was removed by the united efforts of all the shepherds who watered their sheep at that place.

9 Rachel came, &c.] It is impossible to ascertain whether she received her name, which in Hebrew signifies a sheep, on account of her occupation; or whether it was given her to intimate that meekness and innocence are the supreme ornament of her sex. Her employment in those early ages was reputed no disgrace.

10 And rolled the stone, &c.] Though there is no person mentioned in the text, yet it is probable that he might be assisted by the shepherds. He is only mentioned, in order to shew the readiness he discovered to oblige Rachel, who had already captivated him.

12 And Jacob told Rachel that he was her father's brother, and that he was Rebekah's son: and she ran and told her father.

13 And it came to pass, when Laban heard the tidings of Jacob his sister's son, that he ran to meet him, and embraced him, and kissed him, and brought him to his house. And he told Laban all these things.

14 And Laban said to him, Surely thou art my bone and my flesh. And he abode with him the space of a month.

15 ¶ And Laban said to Jacob, because thou art my brother, shouldest thou therefore serve me for nought? tell me, what shall thy wages be?

16 And Laban had two daughters: the name of the elder was Leah, and the name of the younger was Rachel.

17 Leah was tender eyed; but Rachel was beautiful and well favoured.

18 And Jacob loved Rachel; and said, I will serve thee seven years for Rachel thy younger daughter.

19 And Laban said, It is better that I give her to thee, than that I should give her to another man: abide with me.

20 And Jacob served seven years for Rachel; and they seemed unto him but a few days, for the love he had to her.

21 ¶ And Jacob said unto Laban, Give me my wife, for my days are fulfilled, that I may go in unto her.

22 And Laban gathered together all the men of the place, and made a feast.

23 And it came to pass in the evening, that he took Leah his daughter, and brought her to him; and he went in unto her.

24 And Laban gave unto his daughter Leah, Zilpah his maid for an handmaid.

25 And it came to pass, that in the morning, behold, it was Leah: and he said to Laban, What is this thou hast done unto me? did I not serve with thee for Rachel? wherefore then hast thou beguiled me?

26 And Laban said, it must not be so done in our country, to give the younger before the first-born.

27 Fulfil her week, and we will give thee this also for the service which thou shalt serve with me yet seven other years.

28 ¶ And Jacob did so, and fulfilled her week: and he gave him Rachel his daughter to wife also.

29 And Laban gave to Rachel his daughter, Billhah his handmaid to be her maid.

30 And he went in also unto Rachel, and he loved also Rachel more than Leah, and served with him yet seven other years.

31 ¶ And when the LORD saw that Leah was hated, he opened her womb: but Rachel was barren.

32 And Leah conceived, and bare a son, and she called his name Reuben: for she said, Surely the LORD hath looked upon my affliction; now therefore my husband will love me.

33 And she conceived again, and bare a son; and said, Because the LORD hath heard that I was hated, he hath therefore given me this son also: and she called his name Simeon.

34 And she conceived again, and bare a son; and said, Now this time will my husband be joined unto me, because I have borne him three sons: therefore was his name called Levi.

35 And she conceived again, and bare a son: and she said, Now will I praise the LORD: therefore she called his name Judah; and left bearing.

12 Her father's brother, &c.] This word brother is used in a greater latitude in the Hebrew, than the English; in this place it signifies only a kinsman, or relation, as appears from ver. 13. and in chap. xiii. 8. it is used in this sense.

13 All these things.] i. e. He gave him a detail of his circumstances, and recapitulated what he before related to Rachel.

14 Surely thou art my bone and my flesh.] This is rendered by the Chaldee, Thou art my kinsman and my flesh.

The space of a month.] This is in the Hebrew, a month of days. The bishop of Chester, in this comment, supposes that this space was agreed on for a trial of his service.

17 Leah was tender eyed.] This is in the Septuagint, Weak-eyed; in the Vulgate, Blear-eyed; the Syriac agrees with our translation; but the Chaldee and Arabic read, Leah had beautiful eyes.

Rachel was beautiful and well favoured.] We understand from the Hebrew, that she was beautiful in shape, as well as in her face.

20 And Jacob served seven years, &c.] Some think the reason for Laban's accepting this term of service for Rachel is, that he was unwilling to part with her sooner, on account of his entertaining a bad idea of the Canaanites; but we must suppose with them, that Jacob did actually serve seven years before he married her, because he could not then have thought, as this verse asserts, that they seemed unto him but a few days; his love, which is represented as very ardent, would rather have made this space appear intolerably long and tedious.

21 Jacob said.] According to the Hebrew word, it may be translated, Had said, which gives some countenance to the sense we have affixed to the preceding verse.

My days are fulfilled, &c.] This doubtless means more than the month of trial. It is certain it cannot be applied to the expiration of the seven years which he was to serve; for then Jacob must have had twelve children in the space of seven years, which is inconsistent with the positive assertion of scripture. Leah had seven children at seven births, which might have been in seven years. Besides, it is certain, from chap. xxix. 35. and xxx. 17. she intermitted from bearing; and in the mean time we have account of the birth of Dan, Naphtali, Gad, and Ashur, before Leah bore Issachar, Zebulun and Dinah. If we compare the age of Jacob when he went to Laban, with the birth of Hezron and Hamul, chap. xlv. 12. Judah could not have been more than four years older than Joseph; these difficulties, when put together, strongly evince, that Jacob did not serve his first seven years before, but after he married Leah.

23 Took Leah, and brought her unto him, &c.] Veils being worn by women at that time, they were introduced to their husbands with them on, and the darkness likewise contributed not a little to favour the deception.

25 Wherefore then hast thou beguiled me?] For Jacob had not only consented to serve, but had really served one month, (ver. 14.) for Rachel; and ought to have received her as the reward of his labours. It is somewhat remarkable, that Jacob, who by fraud deprived Esau of the blessing his father intended him, lost what he esteemed an invaluable blessing, in like manner.

27 Fulfil her week, &c.] i. e. Consummate thy marriage with Leah, by keeping the solemnity of seven days feasting, the space allowed for marriage feasts, as appears from Judges xiv. 15.

28 And he gave him Rachel, &c.] Some, however, assert, that Jacob did not obtain Rachel before the expiration of seven years; yet it is evident from ver. 27 and 30. that the term of servitude was to commence from his being in possession of Rachel, not that it was to expire before he obtained her.

31 Leah was hated.] The word which we render "hated," though explained in the margin by the Chaldee and Arabic, is used in scripture, for the most violent degree of love; and the Vulgate, which renders the word to be despicable, countenances this sense. In this instance, we may see the kind severity of Providence in the means used to divert us from cherishing any person or thing with an immoderate affection; and we are taught at the same time, that no condition is without its inconveniences, no misery without its intervals of comfort. These words do not imply that Leah was hated of Jacob, for, according to the whole account of the subsequent part of his conduct, he discharged the duty of a husband with the utmost tenderness. He had not made choice of her, for she had been imposed upon him, and probably by a false representation made by her father without her knowing the fraud. It was the practice in those times to despise the woman who had no children, and this is what is here called hatred.

32 Reuben, &c.] Which name signifies, divine regard, or divine mercy, alluding to her expression, "Surely the Lord hath looked upon my affliction."

33 Simeon.] Which name signifies, God hath heard, or considered me, from the Hebrew word shama, "to see," &c.

34 Levi.] Which word signifies, joined, and is derived from the Hebrew lavah, "to join," used in this sentence, "my husband will be joined."

35 Judah.] Which signifies, praise, and thanksgiving, alluding to the words, "I will praise the Lord;" the Hebrew word we render, Will praise, being the root from whence Judah, or Jehudah, is derived.

Left bearing.] The Hebrew signifies, She was at a stand from bearing; which the Septuagint have translated word for word; the word = left," in our translation, is rather too strong, and conveys the idea

GENERAL REFLECTIONS on Chap. XXIX.

The first thing to be observed in this chapter, is the beginning of the fulfilment of the promise in the increase of Jacob's family; from whence we may learn, that all the promises of God will be fulfilled, though perhaps not so soon as we wish. Secondly, that although Laban meant no good to Jacob, yet God was with him, and made him ample amends for the unnatural conduct of an avaricious, deceitful father-in-law. Lastly, from Leah's being despised by her own sex, but taken notice of in mercy by the Lord, let us learn, that a modest humble submission to the grossest indignities will endear more to God than any thing else we can possibly think of. And upon the afflictions of the humble, and blessed be God, the proud empty away.

EXPLANATORY on Chap. XXX.

1 Gave me children, or else I die. There is a lively picture of human folly in general. If children be a flowery chaplet, whose beauties blossom with ornaments, some dreadful misfortune, may blast it. Does Providence withhold the thing that is long for? It denies in mercy, only withholds the occasion of our misery, if not perhaps the instrument of our ruin.

2 In God's stead. The Chaldee, Why dost thou call children of the Lord? thou hast not to have asked them from the face of the Lord? All of which shew the impropriety of the application; it being the received opinion, that children of God, and the resurrection of the dead, are the prerogatives of God.

6 God hath judged me. This word, "judged," is used in a good, as well as in a bad sense: in a good sense, it implies, to decide in favour of a person, as in Psal. xxvi. 1. in a bad sense, it signifies to cast, condemn, or decide against. If we take the word here in a good sense, it implies, that God had declared himself in her favour, by granting her a son; in a bad sense it implies, that by blessing her with offspring, he had condemned her hastiness in accusing her husband, in envying her sister, and in despairing of the blessing of Providence. The name given her son, signifies, judging, alludes to this sentence, and is derived from dannani, the Hebrew word, which is translated "judged."

8 Naphtali. Which name signifies "struggling," or "wrestling," and plainly alludes to the Hebrew, which reads Naphtali, "with strugglings." Naphtali, "have I struggled;" and then concludes, therefore "she called him Naphtali." Yet as the word patul, from whence Naphtali is derived, signifies, "to contrive," or

18 And Leah said, God hath given me my hire, because I have given my maiden to my husband: and she called his name Issachar.

19 And Leah conceived again, and bare Jacob the sixth son.

20 And Leah said, God hath endued me with good dowry; now will my husband dwell with me, because I have borne him six sons: and she called his name Zebulon. 1746.

21 And afterwards she bare a daughter, and called her name Dinah.

22 And God remembered Rachel, and God hearkened to her, and opened her womb. 1745.

23 And she conceived, and bare a son; and said, God hath taken away my reproach:

"counterplot," instead of "great wrestlings," or "the wrestlings of God," the Hebrew may be rendered, By a great or excellent artifice or contrivance; and Naphtali will then signify, My plot, or contrivance.

11 Gad. i. e. "A troop."

13 Asher. Which name signifies "blessed," and alludes to the Hebrew word in the beginning of the verse, beashri, "in my happiness," and ashroni, "they have blessed, or called me happy."

14 Mandrakes, &c. Translators render the Hebrew dudaim, "mandrake apples." The word occurs only once more in scripture, namely, in Solomon's Song, chap. vii. 13. and there they celebrated for the pleasantness or fragrance of the smell, and mentioned together with other pleasant fruits. But it is well known that the mandrake has a very strong, stupefying smell, and has nothing inviting either in taste or colour, to induce a child like Reuben, six years old; to chuse them for either of those qualities. Beside, the time when they were gathered, shews that they could not have been the mandrake; for the wheat-harvest in those countries is in May, at which time the apples of this plant are far from being ripe. Their virtue in helping conception is so far from being an argument in their favour, that it is probable Leah would not have parted with them, had she known they had that effect; nor would Rachel have bought them at so dear a rate, nor would she have continued barren after the possession of them. The word may be rendered desirable flowers, for it signifies, loves, or women's breasts, in the plural number.

17 God hearkened, &c. This is, in the Chaldee, God received the prayers of Leah. Whence we may conclude, that she made her addresses to him to remove her temporary barrenness, as a means to recover the affections of Jacob, which appears from ver. 15. to have been alienated from Leah.

18 Issachar. This name implies, A man of reward, from ish, "a man," and sachar, a reward; and alludes to the Hebrew word, used in the beginning of the verse, sachari, "my reward," or "my hire."

20 Zebulon. Which signifies "dwelling," and is derived from the Hebrew word zebulen, "he shall dwell with me," as the former part of this verse expresses it.

21 Dinah. Dinah is feminine of Dan, which signifies "judging," and seems to have been given as an acknowledgment that God had judged, or decided in her favour, by granting her so numerous an offspring, which she preferred to the greatest present or dowry a man could bring his wife.

23 Reproach. Seeing that fruitfulness is represented as a blessing, Gen. i. 28. Deut. vii. 14. and was peculiarly promised to Abraham and his seed, Gen. xii. 3. xv. 5. and xviii. 18. so barrenness was likewise esteemed a great unhappiness and reproach. See Isaiah ix. 1. 1 Sam. i. 11. Luke i. 25.

24 Joseph.

Before
CHRIST
1745.

24 And she called his name Joseph; and said, The LORD shall add to me another son.

25 ¶ And it came to pass, when Rachel had borne Joseph, that Jacob said unto Laban, Send me away, that I may go unto mine own place, and to my country.

26 Give me my wives and my children, for whom I have served thee, and let me go: for thou knowest my service which I have done thee.

27 And Laban said unto him, I pray thee, if I have found favour in thine eyes, tarry: for I have learned by experience that the LORD hath blessed me for thy sake.

28 And he said, Appoint me thy wages, and I will give it.

29 And he said unto him, Thou knowest how I have served thee, and how thy cattle was with me.

30 For it was little which thou hadst before I came, and it is now increased unto a multitude; and the LORD hath blessed thee since my coming: and now when shall I provide for mine own house also?

31 And he said, What shall I give thee? And Jacob said, Thou shalt not give me any thing: if thou wilt do this thing for me, I will again feed and keep thy flock:

32 I will pass through all thy flock to day, removing from thence all the speckled and spotted cattle, and all the brown cattle among the sheep, and the spotted and speckled among the goats: and of such shall be my hire.

33 So shall my righteousness answer for me in time to come, when it shall come for my hire before thy face: every one that is not speckled and spotted among the goats, and brown among the sheep, that shall be counted stolen with me.

34 And Laban said, Behold, I would it might be according to thy word.

24 Joseph, &c.] This name in the Hebrew signifies, "adding," and alludes to the Hebrew word yosep, "shall add," in the subsequent sentence: some explain it, The addition of something hereafter.

25 When Rachel had borne Joseph.] Jacob had now served for Rachel fourteen years, was about ninety, his parents were much advanced in years, and was impelled, by the longings of filial piety, to visit them before they were gathered unto their fathers.

My place, &c.] i. e. To my native place, or my father's house, as appears from the Vulgate, and other ancient versions.

30 Since my coming.] It is in the Hebrew, At my foot; which the Arabic explains, For my sake, by my means, or because of me, &c.

Mine own house, &c.] How greatly is the generosity of Jacob's temper manifested, in his delay to make any provision for his family, till he had enriched his father-in-law by his service. Afterwards prudence, as well as paternal affection, called upon him to make some provision for his own house or family.

32 I will pass through—removing.] It appears from this reading, that Jacob removed the party-coloured cattle; though in the 35th and 36th verses, it is evident that this was done by Laban. The Vulgate affords us an expedient to reconcile this seeming inconsistency, by rendering the passage, Go round all thy flocks, and separate all the speckled, &c. The Septuagint read likewise, Go through all thy flocks to-day, and separate, &c. The Chaldee confirms this sense, except that it assigns the act of passing through to Jacob, and the separating of the speckled cattle to Laban, which reconciles this verse with the 35th. This version reads, I will pass through all thy flocks this day, and do thou remove from thence all the speckled, &c.

Speckled.] This signifies in the Hebrew small specks, or points, and the word immediately following, large spots, like those which frequently appear in cattle.

Of such shall be my hire.] The cattle already speckled, is not meant by Jacob, as appears from his refusing any thing out of Laban's present store, ver. 31. "thou shalt give," but that he would separate the speckled sheep and goats; and then, whatever those of one colour produced afterwards with the above variety, he would take for his wages; that Laban, whenever he pleased to look unto Jacob's cattle, might be convinced that they were really his own, according to agreement.

33 Answer for me, &c.] The patriarch had already experienced Laban's want of honesty, and this covenant was to guard against it for the future; if we translate, When it shall come for my hire, by, When thou shalt answer against my hire, this will appear plainly to have been the design of Jacob in this compact. The Chaldee confirms this version, by rendering the sentence in that manner; the Arabic gives it a farther support, by reading, My equity shall appear to-morrow, when I shall demand my wages.

36 He set three days' journey, &c.] i. e. Three times the distance the flocks were able to travel in one day.

37 Hazel, &c.] The Hebrew word Luz, signifies rather the almond-tree, as we observed before.

35 And he removed that day the he goats that were ringstraked and spotted, and all the she goats that were speckled and spotted, and every one that had some white in it, and all the brown among the sheep, and gave them into the hand of his sons.

36 And he set three days' journey betwixt himself and Jacob: and Jacob fed the rest of Laban's flocks.

37 ¶ And Jacob took him rods of green poplar, and of the hazel and chestnut tree, and pilled white strakes in them, and made the white appear which was in the rods.

38 And he set the rods which he had pilled before the flocks in the gutters in the watering troughs when the flocks came to drink, that they should conceive when they came to drink.

39 And the flocks conceived before the rods, and brought forth cattle ringstraked, speckled, and spotted.

40 And Jacob did separate the lambs, and set the faces of the flocks toward the ringstraked, and all the brown in the flock of Laban; and he put his own flocks by themselves, and put them not unto Laban's cattle.

41 And it came to pass, whensoever the stronger cattle did conceive, that Jacob laid the rods before the eyes of the cattle in the gutters, that they might conceive among the rods.

42 But when the cattle were feeble, he put them not in: so the feebler were Laban's, and the stronger Jacob's.

43 And the man increased exceedingly, and had much cattle, and maid-servants, and men-servants, and camels, and asses.

C H A P.

39 The flocks conceived, &c.] In the Samaritan copy, between the 36th and 37th verses, there is a narrative of the vision described ver. 11. of the following chapter, which, though not to be found in any other version, throws a great light upon this passage, and vindicates the character of Jacob from the aspersions of fraud, freely bestowed on him by infidels. It signifies, in the first place, the reason why he made use of this artifice, which was, the command of God: it obviates the objection drawn from the power of the pilled rods to produce this effect, by ascribing it entirely to the interposition of the Deity; and it further furnishes us with an amiable idea of the divine justice, and the extraordinary providence, which at once protected the patriarchs, and enabled them to get the better of their enemies.

43 And the man increased exceedingly, &c.] It is evident throughout this narrative of Jacob's contract with Laban, that covetousness generally overshoots the mark, and disappoints itself. Thus Laban's covetousness would not allow him to settle upon Jacob any fixed wages, though he owed the greater part of his riches to his care; but he eagerly embraced Jacob's offer, because it seemed an advantageous one; though, by the order of Providence, which takes the crafty in their own snares, he found himself deceived in the end.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXX.

With respect to what is here said of Jacob's conduct, we may conclude that his behaviour was generous, fair, and candid; that he chose the ringstraked cattle without any view but to remove disputes, trusting that God would so order it, agreeable to his petition at Beth-el, that he should have enough, being determined to be contented with what God's providence should think fit to give him; and that when he made use of the rods, it was an act of faith, and in obedience to God's command, without having any previous knowledge of what would be the event. We have no more reason to think this to be the case, because we find nothing but good arose to Jacob from it; whence we may remark, that though the scripture often mentions the misconduct of good men, yet it always takes care to inform us, that evil arose to them in consequence of such actions. We may also observe God's faithfulness; he had promised Jacob at Beth-el to be with him in all places whither he should go, and we find him accordingly blessing Laban because he was with him: so that though Laban had but little when Jacob came to him, it was under him increased to a multitude. We ought too to take notice, that though Jacob, from what he says to Laban in the following chapter, appears to have been a most industrious faithful servant, yet he attributes all the increase of the flock to the blessing of God, and not to his own diligence.

C H A P. XXXI.

1 Jacob is regarded with an evil eye by Laban and his sons; 3 is commanded by God to return to his own land, and proposeth his departure to his wives. 17 He removeth secretly with his family and substance; Rachel stealeth her father's images. 22 Laban pursueth after him; is warned of God, and overtaking Jacob complaineth of the wrong. 31 Jacob, ignorant of the theft, permitteth Laban to search for the images; Rachel's policy to hide them. 36 Jacob's complaint of Laban. 43 The covenant of Jacob and Laban: Laban returneth home.

AND he heard the words of Laban's sons, saying, Jacob hath taken away all that was our father's; and of that which was our father's hath he gotten all this glory.

2 And Jacob beheld the countenance of Laban, and, behold, it was not toward him as before.

3 ¶ And the LORD said unto Jacob, Return unto the land of thy fathers, and to thy kindred; and I will be with thee.

4 And Jacob sent and called Rachel and Leah to the field unto his flock.

5 And said unto them, I see your father's countenance, that it is not toward me as before; but the God of my father hath been with me.

6 And ye know that with all my power I have served your father.

7 And your father hath deceived me, and changed my wages ten times; but God suffered him not to hurt me.

8 If he said thus, The speckled shall be thy wages: then all the cattle bare speckled: and if he said thus, The ringstraked shall be thy hire; then bare all the cattle ringstraked.

9 Thus God hath taken away the cattle of your father, and given them to me.

10 And it came to pass at the time that the cattle conceived, that I lifted up mine eyes, and saw in a dream, and, behold, the rams which leaped upon the cattle were ringstraked, speckled, and grissled.

11 And the angel of God spake unto me in a dream, saying, Jacob: And I said, Here am I.

12 And he said, Lift up now thine eyes, and see, all the rams which leap upon the cattle are ringstraked, speckled, and grissled: for I have seen all that Laban doeth unto thee.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXI.

1 All this glory. This is explained in the ancient versions what is meant by "glory." The Chaldee renders it, Substance; the Syriac, Possession; and the Arabic, Riches.

7 Ten times, &c. i.e. Very often. It appears from Levit. xxvi. 26. Num. xiv. 27. and 1 Sam. i. The number ten is peculiarly remarkable among the rabbinical writers.

11 All the cattle. i.e. The greatest part. See chap. xli. 57.

11 The angel of God, &c. Certainly no created being, but rather God the Son; he being, ver. 13, expressly named, The God of Beth-el. The note of ver. 39. of the foregoing chapter, enables us to fix the time when Jacob had this vision, and shews that he was guided in every step of his conduct by the divine direction.

13 I am the God of Beth-el, &c. Here God communicates himself to the patriarch in terms adapted to the ideas of the surrounding nations, who looked on their deities as local, or confined to a particular place; and, at the same time, recalls to his mind the idea of his distressful circumstances, and the vow he had made at Beth-el.

14 Is there yet any portion, &c. Thus interrogations in the Hebrew frequently carry with them a strong negation, as is evident from the book of Job; and that this is the meaning of this sentence, is confirmed by the Syriac, which renders it, We have not any portion, &c.

15 Sold us, &c. Hence the purchase of slaves, though inconsistent with every social instinct, and with the principles of humanity, seems to have been of great antiquity: and the unkind usage by which Laban extorted so many years servitude from Jacob, at the same time that it shewed him to be void of paternal affection towards his daughters, made them appear in their own eyes as slaves, that were purchased at a dear rate. According to the custom of those times, the husband used to bring a portion to his wife; but the labour of Jacob was the only means he had of acquiring such the pillar, and where thou vowedst a vow unto me: now arise, get thee out of this land, and return unto the land of thy kindred. Before CHRIST 1739.

14 And Rachel and Leah answered and said unto him, Is there yet any portion or inheritance for us in our father's house?

15 Are we not counted of him strangers? for he hath sold us, and hath quite devoured also our money.

16 For all the riches which God hath taken from our father, that is our's, and our children's: now then, whatsoever God hath said unto thee, do.

17 ¶ Then Jacob rose up, and set his sons and his wives upon camels;

18 And he carried away all his cattle, and all his goods which he had gotten, the cattle of his getting, which he had gotten in Padan-aram, for to go to Isaac his father in the land of Canaan.

19 And Laban went to shear his sheep: and Rachel had stolen the images that were her father's.

20 And Jacob stole away unawares to Laban the Syrian, in that he told him not that he fled.

21 So he fled with all that he had; and he rose up, and passed over the river, and set his face toward the mount Gilead.

22 ¶ And it was told Laban on the third day that Jacob was fled.

23 And he took his brethren with him, and pursued after him seven days journey; and they overtook him in the mount Gilead.

24 And God came to Laban the Syrian in a dream by night, and said unto him, Take heed that thou speak not to Jacob either good or bad.

25 Then Laban overtook Jacob. Now Jacob had pitched his tent in the mount: and Laban with his brethren pitched in the mount of Gilead.

26 And Laban said unto Jacob, What hast thou done, that thou hast stolen away unawares to me, and carried away my daughters, as captives taken with the sword?

27 Wherefore didst thou flee away secretly, and steal away from me; and didst not tell me, that I might have sent thee away with mirth, and with songs, with tabret, and with harp?

28 And hast not suffered me to kiss my sons and my daughters? thou hast now done foolishly in so doing.

29 It is in the power of my hand to do you hurt: but the God of your father spake unto me yesternight, saying, Take thou heed that thou speak not to Jacob either good or bad.

dowry, they might truly say, that when Laban defrauded Jacob of his right, he had devoured also their money.

18 The cattle of his getting, &c. These words are omitted in the Septuagint, Arabic, Vulgate, Syriac, and Chaldee, though inserted in the Samaritan. Dr. Kennicott remarks, that they are wanting in the Samaritan manuscript, No. 1. at the Bodleian library. It is asserted, that Jacob, in order to conceal his flight, took only half his cattle with him; which is inconsistent with the express words of Moses.

19 Images, &c. In Hebrew the word teraphim, signifies "idols," appears from ver. 30. where they are termed elohai, or "gods;" but more especially from Zech. x. 2. "the teraphim have uttered vain things." The Vulgate, Septuagint, and Samaritan translations, render the word, Idols. That they were of human form, is evident, from the using the word for the image which Michal put into David's bed, 1 Sam. xix. 14. They were consulted to foretell what was to come, to discover what was lost, or to reveal what was hidden. It is imagined that they received this power either from some particular aspect of the planets, or from some characters engraved upon them; both which suppositions are equally weak. Some apprehend that Rachel stole them to prevent her father from discovering her flight, by consulting them; but others are of opinion, that her intention was, by those means, to secure something which might appease her father's anger, if he should overtake her afterwards.

21 The river, &c. This was the Euphrates, as appears from the Chaldee and Arabic.

23 Seven days journey, &c. Between Haran and Mount Gilead the distance is near two hundred and fifty miles; consequently Laban must have marched each day thirty-five miles.

24 Either good or bad. i.e. With a design to bring him back, or do him any harm.

Before
1739.

30 And now, though thou wouldest needs be gone, because thou sore longedst after thy father's house, yet wherefore hast thou stolen my gods?

31 ¶ And Jacob answered and said to Laban, Because I was afraid: for I said, Peradventure thou wouldest take by force thy daughters from me.

32 With whomsoever thou findest thy gods, let him not live: before our brethren discern thou what is thine with me, and take it to thee. For Jacob knew not that Rachel had stolen them.

33 And Laban went into Jacob's tent, and into Leah's tent, and into the two maidservants' tents; but he found them not. Then went he out of Leah's tent, and entered into Rachel's tent.

34 Now Rachel had taken the images, and put them in the camels' furniture, and sat upon them. And Laban searched all the tent, but found them not.

35 And she said to her father, let it not displease my lord that I cannot rise up before thee; for the custom of women is upon me. And he searched, but found not the images.

36 ¶ And Jacob was wroth, and chode with Laban: and Jacob answered and said to Laban, What is my trespass? what is my sin, that thou hast so hotly pursued after me?

37 Whereas thou hast searched all my stuff, what hast thou found of all thy household stuff? set it here before my brethren and thy brethren, that they may judge betwixt us both.

38 This twenty years have I been with thee; thy ewes and thy she goats have not cast their young, and the rams of thy flock have I not eaten.

39 That which was torn of beasts I brought not unto thee; I bare the loss of it; of my hand didst thou require it, whether stolen by day, or stolen by night.

40 This I was, in the day the drought consumed me, and the frost by night; and my sleep departed from mine eyes.

41 Thus have I been twenty years in thy house; I served thee fourteen years for thy two daughters, and six years for thy cattle: and thou hast changed my wages ten times.

42 Except the God of my father, the God of 30 My gods.] By this Laban seems to have imbibed the doctrine of intercommunity, so universal among the heathens, which taught them not only to worship the local, tutelary gods of their own country, but likewise to adore those of other nations. Thus it is evident he acknowledged the true God, ver. 48. though at the same time his wrath for the loss of his teraphim shews he was a worshipper of idols. It was the constant language of idolaters in all ages, to call their consecrated statues, or images, their gods: because they not only considered them as symbols or representations of the Divinity, but as proper pledges or receptacles of a divine presence; consequently, to rob them of their gods, was to deprive them of the presence and protection of their idols.

32 With whomsoever thou findest thy gods, &c.] From hence it is supposed, that theft was at this time punished with death.

33 And Laban went into Jacob's tent, &c.] It is in the Septuagint, Laban went and searched diligently in Jacob's tent. That this word was omitted in the Hebrew by some transcriber, seems very evident from the words, "but found them not," in the latter part of the verse, which imply a search. The printed Samaritan reads indeed, waiechabab, which signifies, "he prostrated;" but it appears from some Samaritan manuscripts, that instead of waiechabab, we should read waiechababab, which signifies, "to search with care," confirms the translation of the Septuagint, and agrees with what Jacob asserts, ver. 37. "thou hast searched or felt all my stuff."

37 Thou hast searched, &c.] It would be much better if rendered, Thou hast felt or handled.

40 And the frost by night, &c.] It was customary in these countries for the shepherds to watch their flocks in the night, as appears from Luke ii. 8. The solicitude which Jacob describes in this verse, throws a noble splendor upon his character, and represents him as exemplary for his fidelity, as he was for his godliness.

42 The God of my father, &c.] Let us observe, that Jacob, in describing the true God under the tutelary titles of the God of his father, and the God of Abraham, adds, "the fear," not the God, "of Isaac." Grotius says, that this variation is owing to a custom among the Jews, who never style the Deity the peculiar God of the living, as Isaac then was, but always confine this title to the deceased.

Before

Abraham, and the fear of Isaac, had been with me, surely thou hadst sent me away now empty. God hath seen mine affliction and the labour of my hands, and rebuked thee yesternight.

43 ¶ And Laban answered and said unto Jacob, These daughters are my daughters, and these children are my children, and these cattle are my cattle, and all that thou seest is mine: and what can I do this day unto these my daughters, or unto their children which they have borne?

44 Now therefore come thou, let us make a covenant, I and thou; and let it be for a witness between me and thee.

45 And Jacob took a stone, and set it up for a pillar.

46 And Jacob said unto his brethren, Gather stones; and they took stones, and made an heap: and they did eat there upon the heap.

47 And Laban called it Jegar-sahadutha: but Jacob called it Galeed.

48 And Laban said, This heap be a witness between me and thee this day. Therefore was the name of it called Galeed.

49 And Mizpah; for he said, The Lord watch between me and thee, when we are absent one from another.

50 If thou shalt afflict my daughters, or if thou shalt take other wives besides my daughters, no man is with us; see, God is witness betwixt me and thee.

51 And Laban said to Jacob, Behold this heap, and behold this pillar, which I have cast betwixt me and thee;

52 This heap be witness, and this pillar be witness, that I will not pass over this heap to thee, and that thou shalt not pass over this heap and this pillar unto me, for harm.

53 The God of Abraham, and the God of Nahor, the God of their father, judge betwixt us. And Jacob swore by the fear of his father Isaac.

54 Then Jacob offered sacrifice upon the mount, and called his brethren to eat bread: and they did eat bread, and tarried all night in the mount.

55 And early in the morning Laban rose up, and killed his sons and his daughters, and blessed them: and Laban departed, and returned unto his place.

C H A P.

46 Gather stones.] This custom of heaping up a great number of stones, as a memorial of some remarkable action, is of the highest antiquity, and may be traced in the earliest records of the history of all places.

And they did eat there, &c.] The ancients, in making covenants, were accustomed either to offer a sacrifice, or make a feast; and the contracting parties used to sit together, as tokens of their friendship, and their intention to keep unviolated the conditions.

47 And Laban called it Jegar-sahadutha, &c.] Both words used by the two parties, though in different languages, were in sense the same. Laban, who used the Syriac, named it Jegar-sahadutha, which signifies, "the heap of witness;" and Jacob, who spoke in Hebrew, Galeed, which signifies, "the heap of ocular inspection."

53 The God of their father, &c.] Seeing Laban speaks to Jacob, the pronoun "their" can refer only to Abraham and Nahor, and their father was Terah. But the God of Terah is an expression which has no authority from scripture; and besides, Terah was an idolater. The Septuagint entirely omits this sentence, reading, "The God of Abraham and the God of Nahor judge between us;" which shews that it was introduced, and might have happened from the transcriber's beginning to write the same line twice. The difference between the oath taken by Laban and Jacob, is very remarkable: that of Laban is conformable to the idea of a local, gentilitical, and tutelary deity, and the name he ascribes to him was, like that of other tutelary deities, a name of distinction. But Jacob, who had more enlarged ideas of the divine nature, appeals to God as the object of worship, and gives him not a name of distinction, but a name of the highest respect.

54 Jacob offered sacrifice.] This was in gratitude to God for the peace he had obtained with Laban as described.

Called his brethren to eat bread, &c.] That is, he invited Laban and his friends to partake of the remains of the sacrifice, in token of their hearty reconciliation. This shews, that however Jacob and Laban might differ in some modes or forms of worship, yet they agreed in the belief and adoration of the one Supreme Being, since they partook of the same sacrifice which Jacob offered to the true God.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXI.

This chapter fully evinces the great bounty of the Almighty to his people. God, who ordereth all things aright, having blessed Jacob with greater substance in the house of Laban, than he could have obtained in his father's house, without great inconveniences, perhaps irreconcilable and fatal hatred between him and his brother Esau, now orders him to return to the land of his fathers; whereby must be understood not what was properly theirs, but only that in which they sojourned, and which was promised to them for their seed: and as Jacob was an inheritor of the promise, it was proper that he should sojourn in the land, to keep alive the hopes of it to his posterity.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXII.

1 The angels of God met him. Jacob being favoured with a heavenly vision when he first departed from his father's house, the divine Being thought proper again to favour him with the same token of his protection at his return.

2 Mahanaim. i. e. "Two hosts or camps;" because the angels appeared like two armies drawn up on either side for his protection, according to that elegant expression of the Psalmist, xxiv. 7. "The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them."

3 And Jacob sent messengers. Notwithstanding this patriarch had the greatest reason to rely on the protection of the Almighty, yet he thought it his duty to make use of all prudential methods for his safety. He therefore sent this message to Esau, in order to soften his resentment, and to regain his esteem.

The country of Edom. Or the field of Edom, which would be a better translation.

7 Greatly afraid, &c. Though some commentators represent the fear of Jacob as arising from a consciousness of guilt, it was rather the effect of wisdom than cowardice. He had left his brother highly exasperated against him, resolved to put him to death, and owed his life purely to his flight. On his return he hears that Esau was making towards him with no less than four hundred men. This was a number sufficient to raise suspicion, when he recollected what disposition he had left his brother in: it was enough to make him apprehensive of the consequences which such a step might have with respect to his substance; but when he considered how easy a prey his numerous herds of cattle would be to an enemy; ah! when he considered the danger which threatened his wives and children, the dear pledges of his love; he could not help agonizing for their sakes, and shuddering at the approach of an enraged brother! Yet amidst brother, from the hand of Esau: for I fear him, lest he will come and smite me, and the mother with the children. Before CHRIST 1739.

12 And thou saidst, I will surely do thee good; and make thy seed as the sand of the sea, which cannot be numbered for multitude.

13 ¶ And he lodged there that same night; and took of that which came to his hand a present for Esau his brother;

14 Two hundred she-goats; and twenty he-goats, two hundred ewes, and twenty rams.

15 Thirty milch camels with their colts, forty kine and ten bulls, twenty she-asses and ten foals.

16 And he delivered them into the hand of his servants, every drove by themselves; and said unto his servants, Pass over before me, and put a space betwixt drove and drove.

17 And he commanded the foremost, saying, When Esau my brother meeteth thee, and asketh thee, saying, Whose art thou? and whither goest thou? and whose are these before thee?

18 Then thou shalt say, They be thy servant Jacob's; it is a present sent unto my lord Esau: and, behold, also he is behind us.

19 And so commanded he the second, and the third, and all that followed the droves, saying, On this manner shall ye speak unto Esau, when ye find him.

20 And say ye moreover, Behold thy servant Jacob is behind us. For he said, I will appease him with the present that goeth before me, and afterward I will see his face; peradventure he will accept of me.

21 So went the present over before him: and himself lodged that night in the company.

22 And he rose up that night, and took his two wives, and his two women-servants, and his eleven sons, and passed over the ford Jabbok.

23 And he took them, and sent them over the brook, and sent over that he had.

24 ¶ And Jacob was left alone; and there wrestled a man with him until the breaking of the day.

his terror, he shewed the most consummate prudence; he made use of every expedient to divert the impending storm; did all that he could to protract the fate of his wives and children; marched before them to defend them, or die in the attempt; and having done all that was in the power of human wisdom, has recourse to the God of his father for deliverance and protection.

10 I am not worthy of the least. Thus, if we consider the purity and holiness of the Deity, and the infirmity of created beings: if we recollect that he chargeth his angels with folly, and that in his sight no man living shall be justified; if we reflect on the infinity of the divine blessings showered down upon us, and at the same time ponder on the innumerable sins we are guilty of, we must acknowledge with Jacob, that "we are not worthy of the least of all the mercies, and all the truth, he hath shewed unto us."

With my staff, &c. It is rendered in the Chaldee, By myself, or alone, which illustrates the contrast mentioned in the latter end of the verse, "now I am become two bands." The original word signifies not only a staff, but likewise a military weapon, and it is mentioned among the instruments of war, Ezek. xxxix. 9.

11 Smite—the mother with the children. Or, which would be a better translation, Smite the mother upon the children; as it signifies a havock and extirpation of all without mercy, like that mentioned in Hosea, chap. ii. 14. The Arabic translates it, Those that are with me, the mother and the children; but the Syriac, Smite both me, and the mother, and the children. It is a proverbial expression, signifying, extirpation.

24 And there wrestled a man with him, &c. i. e. A celestial being in the form of a man, called God, ver. 28, 30. and probably the Son of God. Information by action was at this time a very familiar mode of instruction, and the deficiencies of language were supplied by significative signs. If we turn back to Jacob's prayer, and consider the circumstances he was in, when it pleased God to wrestle with him, we may perceive that his intention was to inform him of the happy issue of his adventure, and that his petition was granted, by a significative action. But as this is not followed by an express explanation, this circumstance in Jacob's history has afforded abundant mirth to illiterate libertines, and manifested their ignorance likewise: for this information by action concerning only the actor, who little needed to behold the meaning of a mode of instruction, at that time in vulgar use, hath now an obscurity, which the scripture relations of the same mode of information to the prophets are free from, by reason of their being given for the use of the people to whom they were to be explained.

26 And he said, Let me go, for the day breaketh: And he said, I will not let thee go, except thou bless me.

27 And he said unto him, What is thy name? And he said, Jacob.

28 And he said, Thy name shall be called no more Jacob, but Israel: for as a prince hast thou power with God and with men, and hast prevailed.

29 And Jacob asked him, and said, Tell me, I pray thee, thy name: And he said, Wherefore is it that thou dost ask after my name? And he blessed him there.

30 And Jacob called the name of the place Peniel: for I have seen God face to face, and my life is preserved.

31 ¶ And as he passed over Peniel the sun rose upon him, and he halted upon his thigh.

32 Therefore the children of Israel eat not of the sinew which shrank, which is upon the hollow of the thigh, unto this day: because he touched the hollow of Jacob's thigh in the sinew that shrank.

CHAP. XXXIII.

1 The kindness of Jacob and Esau at their meeting. 17 Jacob cometh to Succoth. 18 At Shalem he buyeth a field, and buildeth an altar called El-elohe-Israel.

AND Jacob lifted up his eyes, and looked, and, behold, Esau came, and with him four hundred men. And he divided the children unto Leah, and unto Rachel, and unto the two handmaids.

2 And he put the handmaids and their children foremost, and Leah and her children after, and Rachel and Joseph hindermost.

3 And he passed over before them, and bowed himself to the ground seven times, until he came near to his brother.

4 And Esau ran to meet him, and embraced him,

25 He touched the hollow of his thigh, &c.] This was to convince Jacob how easily he could be overpowered.

28 No more Jacob.] It is in the Arabic, Thy name shall not always be called Jacob only, but Israel likewise. Israel signifies "a prince powerful with God," and alludes to the Hebrew, Skaretha em-Elahim, "Thou hast acted, or behaved, like a prince (in wrestling) with God."

For as a prince, &c.] Jacob, according to our translation, is asserted to have prevailed over men, as well as over the angels; whereas he had been obliged to flee from Esau and Laban, the only two enemies he ever had. The words should therefore be translated, Thou hast acted, or behaved, like a prince with God, and thou shalt also prevail over men. The Vulgate renders it, Because if thou hast been strong or powerful, or prevailed with God, how much more shalt thou prevail with man! The Chaldee, Because thou hast been as a prince with God, and shalt prevail against men.

30 Peniel.] Or (as it is in the next verse) Peniel: signifying, "the face of God."

I have seen God face to face.] i. e. I have been admitted to the greatest familiarity with this representation of the Almighty, and by his mercy enjoyed such happy intercourse with God, as is the portion of those blessed spirits who approach nearest the divine presence.

And my life is preserved.] Thus Jacob preserves and perpetuates, not the memory of his valour or victory, but the mercy of God's free grace.

32 Therefore the children of Israel eat not, &c.] The sinew which is meant, is that which fastens the hip-bone into its socket; comprehending the flesh of that muscle which is connected thereto.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXII.

We find in the beginning of this chapter Jacob, having done what prudence directed, put himself under the divine protection, as that which could avail him most, by an humble and fervent address to God; in which he acknowledges his great goodness towards him, and his faithfulness. Thus should we have recourse to God, the sure and almighty protector, in all our dangers; and thus should we acknowledge all our blessings, all our substance, to be derived from his immediate providence.

5 And he lifted up his eyes, and saw the women and the children; and said, Who are those with thee? And he said, The children which God hath graciously given thy servant.

6 Then the handmaids came near, they and their children, and they bowed themselves.

7 And Leah also with her children came near, and bowed themselves: and after came Joseph near and Rachel, and they bowed themselves.

8 And he said, What meanest thou by all this? drove which I met? And he said, These are to find grace in the sight of my lord.

9 And Esau said, I have enough, my brother; keep that thou hast unto thyself.

10 And Jacob said, Nay, I pray thee, if now I have found grace in thy sight, then receive my present at my hand: for therefore I have seen thy face, as though I had seen the face of God, and thou wast pleased with me.

11 Take, I pray thee, my blessing that is brought to thee, because God hath dealt graciously with me, and because I have enough. And he urged him, and he took it.

12 And he said, Let us take our journey, and let us go, and I will go before thee.

13 And he said unto him, My lord knoweth that the children are tender, and the flocks and herds with young are with me: and if men should overdrive them one day, all the flock will die.

14 Let my lord, I pray thee, pass over before his servant: and I will lead on softly, according as the cattle that goeth before me and the children be able to endure, until I come unto my lord unto Seir.

15 And Esau said, Let me now leave with thee some of the folk that are with me: And he said, What needeth it? let me find grace in the sight of my lord.

16 So Esau returned that day on his way unto Seir.

17 ¶ And

danger, and the situation assigned Rachel and Joseph strongly marks the superior fondness he had for her and the child.

3 Bowed himself—seven times, &c.] These words "seven times" are used to signify many times. See 1 Sam. ii. 5. Prov. xxvi. 25.

4 Esau ran to meet him, &c.] The sacred historian has painted the ardour of Esau's affection in the strongest colours, which shew that his reconciliation was sincere. He does not stay till Jacob comes up to him, but runs to meet him; he embraces him; he hangs, rushes, or falls upon his neck; he kiss him, and, no longer able to support his transport, pours out a stream of affection from his eyes, which mingles with that which issued from the eyes of his brother. "Behold, how good and pleasant a thing it is for brethren to dwell together in unity! &c. Psalm cxxxiii.

8 These are to find grace in the sight, &c.] It was not merely a temporal expedient, invented by Jacob to mollify the resentment of his brother, but in pursuance of a constant custom among the eastern and other nations, who always made a present to the person whom they visited or paid their court to. See Matt. iii. 11.

11 Because I have enough, &c.] This is in the Hebrew, All, and intimates, that Jacob was not inferior to his brother, either in affluence or gratitude to God, who had given him all that he possessed.

12 Let us take our journey, &c.] Esau's invitation to his brother, to accompany him to mount Seir, is a further proof of his perfect reconciliation with Jacob.

13 With young, &c.] This is in the Hebrew, Giving suck, which the Chaldee and Arabic have followed; but the Vulgate, Septuagint, Samaritan, and Syriac, agree with our translation thereof.

14 According as the cattle, &c.] This is in the Hebrew, According to the foot of the work, and to the foot of the children. The Chaldee renders it, according to the pace of my family which is with me, and according to the pace of the little ones. The Syriac is the same; but the Arabic, I will lead them slowly, on account of the substance I have with me, and on account of my sons. This verse may be looked upon as an evasion to Esau's offer, and has given occasion to some to suppose, from the historian's silence, that Jacob, notwithstanding his promise, never went to Mount Seir. But the professed brevity of Moses would rather incline us to imagine, that Jacob might have gone to Seir, though he has not recorded that circumstance; we may suppose, that he visited his father before his return to Canaan and coming to Mamre, which he has likewise omitted.

15 Let me now leave, &c.] Thus the Vulgate renders it; but the Hebrew signifies, I will cause some of my people to stay with thee, and the Septuagint confirm this latter sense.

17 ¶ And Jacob journeyed to Succoth, and built him an house, and made booths for his cattle : therefore the name of the place is called Succoth.

18 ¶ And Jacob came to Shalem a city of Shechem, which is in the land of Canaan, when he came from Padan-aram ; and pitched his tent before the city.

19 And he bought a parcel of a field, where he had spread his tent, at the hand of the children of Hamor, Shechem's father, for an hundred pieces of money.

20 And he erected there an altar, and called it El-elohe-Israel.

1 Dinah is ravished by Shechem. 4 He sueth to marry her.

13 The sons of Jacob offer the condition of circumcision to the Shechemites. 20 Hamor and Shechem persuade them to accept it. 25 The sons of Jacob taking advantage thereof slay them and spoil their city. 30 Jacob reproveth Simeon and Levi.

AND Dinah the daughter of Leah, which she bare unto Jacob, went out to see the daughters of the land.

¶ And when Shechem the son of Hamor the Hivite, prince of the country, saw her, he took her, and lay with her, and defiled her.

3 And his soul clave unto Dinah the daughter of Jacob, and he loved the damsel, and spake kindly unto the damsel.

4 ¶ And Shechem spake unto his father Hamor, saying, Get me this damsel to wife.

5 And Jacob heard that he had defiled Dinah his daughter : now his sons were with his cattle in the field : and Jacob held his peace until they were come.

6 And Hamor the father of Shechem went out unto Jacob to commune with him.

7 And the sons of Jacob came out of the field when they heard it : and the men were grieved, and they were very wroth, because he had wrought folly in Israel in lying with Jacob's daughter : which thing ought not to be done.

8 And Hamor communed with them, saying, The soul of my son Shechem longeth for your daughter : I pray you give her him to wife,

9 And make ye marriages with us, and give your daughters unto us, and take our daughters unto you.

10 And ye shall dwell with us : and the land shall be before you ; dwell and trade ye therein, and get you possessions therein.

11 And Shechem said unto her father and unto her brethren, Let me find grace in your eyes, and what ye shall say unto me I will give.

12 Ask me never so much dowry and gift, and I will give according as ye shall say unto me : but give me the damsel to wife.

13 ¶ And the sons of Jacob answered Shechem and Hamor his father deceitfully, and said, because he had defiled Dinah their sister :

14 And they said unto them, We cannot do this thing, to give our sister to one that is uncircumcised ; for that were a reproach unto us :

15 But in this will we consent unto you : If ye will be as we be, that every male of you be circumcised ;

16 Then

17 To Succoth, &c.] Which name is given it by anticipation, for it appears it was given to this place on account of the booths he made for his cattle : the word succoth signifies "booth."

18 And Jacob came to Shalem, &c.] This is not Jerusalem, Josephus supposes, but another place about forty miles from it, on the borders of the desert ; and probably the same place afterwards called Salim, where John baptized. The name, however, seems to be an appellative ; and the reason why it is so called is, that Jacob being now out of danger, and in a place of safety, he called it Shalem, or peace ; because God had delivered him from Laban and Esau, and placed him in safety, and in that land which his posterity was to inhabit. This sense is confirmed by the various readings in some other versions, and when every circumstance is considered, it is not to be wondered that Jacob should give it such a name.

19 An hundred pieces of money.] Though the Septuagint, Vulgate, Chaldee, Samaritan, Syriac, and Arabic, agree in translating the original words, Lambs ; yet it is the unanimous opinion of all the Jewish writers, and expressly asserted by St. Stephen, Acts vii. 16. that they were pieces of money. To reconcile this difference, some have imagined that the coin was stamped with the figure of a lamb, and received its name from that circumstance : this it is objected, that money was not coined or stamped in those days, but paid by weight, as appears from Gen. xxiii. 6. Exod. xxii. 17. The word keseth, from whence kesita is derived, signifies "truth," and implies that justness of weight, and purity of metal, which rendered money current, as appears from Gen. xxiii. 16. According to the Jewish estimate, Jacob appears to have paid no more than ten shillings for the field ; however inconsiderable this sum may appear to us, yet if we reflect on the proportion between the value of money then and at the present time, it will not be so trifling as it seems at first. One of these pieces of money was the value of a lamb then, and a hundred of them was worth one hundred lambs.

20 El-elohe-Israel.] This is in Hebrew, God, the God of Israel ; the Vulgate renders it, He called upon the most mighty God of Israel ; the Chaldee, And sacrificed upon it before the mighty God of Israel ; the Samaritan, The mighty God of Israel ; the Syriac, He called, or named it, the most mighty God of Israel ; the Arabic, He prayed before the name of the God of Israel ; but the Septuagint, He called upon the God of Israel.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXIII.

This chapter so illustrates the character of Esau, that all his faults are amply atoned for : though the elder brother, though he had received great injuries, yet his affection for his brother is so tender, that he cannot wait for the tediousness of ceremony, but runs to meet him, embraces him, falls on his neck, kisses him, and weeps. What brother can have received greater injuries than Esau had ? and yet what implacable, and never to be mollified hatred do we too often see in brothers ? Let them behold Esau, and blush with shame. The passage in the original is marked with some marginal points, intimating that it is a remarkable passage ; and indeed it is most highly worthy of our observation and imitation. We do not read of any extraordinary interpolation of Providence here, as in the case of Laban ; and therefore may conclude, that reflection and brotherly affection, and a noble generosity of soul, extinguished his resentment, and worked him up even to love and tenderness for a brother that had injured him. It is no less worthy of observation, if we conclude that God wrought this sudden change in the heart of Esau, it shews the power of him who is thus able to turn the hearts of men as he pleases ; and how able a protector he is of us, since in a moment he can make our worst enemies our most tender friends.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXIV.

1 Dinah—went out to see the daughters of the land.] On one of the festival days of the Shechemites, Dinah, who was now about sixteen years of age, and desirous of seeing the dresses and ornaments of the women of that country, rambled from her mother's tent. This transaction must have happened seven or eight years, at least, after Jacob's return into the land of Canaan, because his sons were grown up to manhood.

2 Took her.] i. e. Ravished, or took her by force.

Defiled, &c.] This is in the Hebrew, Afflicted, or humbled. The Septuagint confirm this meaning.

3 Spake kindly, &c.] This is in the Hebrew, Spake to the heart of the damsel. The Septuagint render it, According to the opinion ; which is confirmed by the Samaritan. The Syriac translates it, He comforted the virgin ; and the Arabic, He soothed her grief.

5 And Jacob held his peace until they were come.] Jacob concealed his resentment till his sons returned, who were then with his cattle in the field, and probably at some distance ; it being common for them to range about the country in search of pasture.

7 When they heard it, &c.] This sentence is connected with the following by the Arabic thus : When they heard it, they were very sad, &c. and is supported by the Septuagint, Vulgate, and Syriac ; but our translation connects it with the sentence preceding, assigning it as the reason why the sons of Jacob came out of the field ; which sense is supported by the Chaldee and Samaritan.

8 Hath longed, &c.] Sure no words can express more ardent affection than the original ; and it is remarkable that all the ancient translations seem to have laboured to retain the force of the original. The sons of Jacob, and perhaps Leah herself, were present at this application, which shews that the words "your daughter," were grammatically proper.

10 Trade ye therein.] This is in the Hebrew, To circuit, and alludes to their custom of ranging about for pastures. The Vulgate, Septuagint, Chaldee, Samaritan, Syriac, and Arabic, confirm our sense.

Get you possessions, &c.] This is in the Hebrew, Inherit, or acquire inheritances.

12 Ask me never so much dowry, &c.] Marriage-portions were given by the men in those days, and in the east, especially amongst the Turks and Persians, this custom is preserved even at this time.

13 Deceitfully.] It is rendered, Wisely, in the Chaldee.

And said, because, &c.] This is in the Vulgate, They answered (saying, on account of the rape of their sister) we cannot, &c. The Septuagint particularize who the persons were that made the reply : and Simeon and Levi, the brethren of Dinah said, "We cannot, &c."

16 Then will we give our daughters unto you, and we will take your daughters to us, and we will dwell with you, and we will become one people.

17 But if ye will not hearken unto us, to be circumcised; then we will take our daughter, and we will be gone.

18 And their words pleased Hamor, and Shechem Hamor's son.

19 And the young man deferred not to do the thing, because he had delight in Jacob's daughter: and he was more honourable than all the house of his father.

20 ¶ And Hamor and Shechem his son came unto the gate of their city, and communed with the men of their city, saying,

21 These men are peaceable with us; therefore let them dwell in the land, and trade therein; for the land, behold, it is large enough for them; let us take their daughters to us for wives, and let us give them our daughters.

22 Only herein will the men consent unto us for to dwell with us, to be one people, if every male among us be circumcised; ■ they are circumcised.

23 Shall not their cattle and their substance and every beast of theirs be our's? only let us consent unto them, and they will dwell with us.

24 And unto Hamor and unto Shechem his son hearkened all that went out of the gate of his city; and every male was circumcised, all that went out of the gate of his city.

25 ¶ And it came to pass on the third day, when they were sore, that two of the sons of Jacob, Simeon and Levi, Dinah's brethren, took each man his sword, and came upon the city boldly, and slew all the males.

26 And they slew Hamor and Shechem his son with the edge of the sword, and took Dinah out of Shechem's house, and went out.

27 The sons of Jacob came upon the slain, and spoiled the city, because they had defiled their sister.

17 We will take our daughters, &c.] It is supposed from hence, that Jacob's sons were commissioned to act in his name.

18 And their words pleased Hamor, &c.] It appears from the history, that though Shechem had committed this action, yet he was passionately fond of Dinah. We may also observe, that both Hamor and all the inhabitants of the city had a great affection for Shechem, since they submitted to so painful an operation, merely for their prince's pleasure.

23 Shall not their cattle, &c.] Thus they were moved by principles of interest, as well as respect to their prince, to submit to this ceremony.

24 All that went out of the gate, &c.] i. e. All the inhabitants.

25 Two of the sons of Jacob, &c.] Although the Shechemites had submitted to the painful rite of circumcision, the proposed condition of reconciliation with Jacob's family; yet Simeon and Levi took the advantage of their pain and anguish, when they were least able to resist, to fall upon the city, and destroy all the male inhabitants: an action shocking to humanity; for doubtless many of the sufferers were entirely innocent of their leader's crime; and even the guilty, by submitting to the proposed terms of agreement, had made a proper compensation to Jacob for the injury offered. Well, therefore, might their father detect so base an action, and, ■ his death-bed, cry out in these emphatical words "O my soul, come not thou into their secret: unto their assembly, mine honour, be not thou united: for in their anger they slew a man—Curfed be their anger, for it was fierce; and their wrath, for it ■■ cruel," chap. xlix. 6, 7.

30 Make me to stink, &c.] This is rendered by the Vulgate, Made me odious; by the Chaldee, Ye will occasion, or put enmity between ■■ and the Canaanites; by the Arabic, Ye have rendered me infamous, and corrupted my condition with respect to the Canaanites; and by the Syriac, Ye have offended me ■■ bring evil between me and the inhabitants, &c.

31 And they said, Should he deal, &c.] It is evident Jacob was much concerned at these furious proceedings of his sons; but Simeon and Levi were so warmed with the thoughts of the dishonour done to their sister and family, that they repented not of what they had done, but seem to think all was little enough ■■ vindicate their sister's reputation, that the might not be reputed as a harlot.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXIV.

Well might Jacob, in the above chapter, reproach his sons, and say they had troubled him. Well might he always keep it in remembrance, and mention it with indignation on his death-bed; for nothing could be more treacherous, base, and cruel, than their conduct. We may also learn, what great evils often result from lust; and how detestable and dreadful it is to follow the furious dictates of revenge without consideration.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXV.

1 And God said unto Jacob, &c.] Undoubtedly the national inhumanities of the Chaldeans, the cruelties by which Jacob's sons had exasperated them to make reprisals, and the defection which some of his family were making to idolatry, seem to have been the motives for ordering him to remove his settlement, and repair to that place which he had dedicated to the worship of the true God.

2 Put away the strange gods, &c.] This is in ■ Hebrew, the gods of the stranger. The Chaldee renders, put away the idols of the people that are among you: but the Samaritan, Syriac, and Arabic, support our translation. Jacob, say some, perhaps meant the teraphim, which Rachel had stolen from Laban; but others suppose that they were the idols of the Canaanites or Shechemites, who were taken prisoners and incorporated into his family: and it must be confessed that the Chaldee translation gives some countenance to this sense.

Be clean, &c.] The word here rendered clean, properly signifies, The washing away filth by water. As there is some analogy between external cleanliness and internal, it may denote repentance, by which the soul is cleansed and purified, ■ the body is by the washing it in water. And hence this rite of washing the body with water was used ■ a sign of inward purification, not only among the idolatrous heathens, but also by the worshippers of the true God, both before and under the law. "Wash ye, make ye clean, put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes," Isaiah i. 16. And as ■■ should at all times have their souls adorned with this inward purity, it was highly commendable in Jacob, on this solemn occasion, to enjoin all under his care to cleanse and purify themselves particularly from idolatry, and from those guilty stains lately contracted by shedding innocent blood, as they would otherwise be very unfit to hold ■■ intercourse with their God: as if the patriarch had said, put off you sordid apparel, especially those garments in which you were so lately defiled with blood, and put ■■ the cleanest raiment, as ■■ emblem of your being divested of all impure affections, and clothed with those internal graces which ■■ the ornament of the soul.

4 And ear-rings, &c.] The Syrians were accustomed to dedicate their ear-rings ■■ some idol, which were worn to render their deities propitious; and being thus subservient to the uses of idolatry, we need not wonder they ■■ particularly mentioned by Jacob.

Before CHRIST 1732.

5 And they journeyed; and the terror of God was upon the cities that were round about them, and they did not pursue after the sons of Jacob.

6 ¶ So Jacob came to Luz, which is in the land of Canaan, that is, Beth-el, he and all the people that were with him.

7 And he built there an altar, and called the place El-beth-el; because there God appeared unto him, when he fled from the face of his brother.

8 ¶ But Deborah, Rebekah's nurse, died, and she was buried beneath Beth-el, under an oak: and the name of it was called Allon-bachuth.

9 ¶ And God appeared unto Jacob again, when he came out of Padan-aram, and blessed him.

10 And God said unto him, Thy name is Jacob: thy name shall not be called any more Jacob, but Israel shall be thy name: and he called his name Israel.

11 And God said unto him, I am God Almighty: be fruitful and multiply; a nation and a company of nations shall be of thee, and kings shall come out of thy loins.

12 And the land which I gave Abraham and Isaac, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed after thee will I give the land.

13 And God went up from him in the place where he talked with him.

14 ¶ And Jacob set up a pillar in the place where he talked with him, even a pillar of stone: and he poured a drink offering thereon, and he poured oil thereon.

15 And Jacob called the name of the place where God spake with him, Beth-el:

16 ¶ And they journeyed from Beth-el; and there was but a little way to come to Ephrath: and Rachel travailed, and she had hard labour.

17 And it came to pass, when she was in hard labour, that the midwife said unto her, Fear not; thou shalt have this son also.

18 And it came to pass, as her soul was in departing, (for she died) that she called his name Ben-oni: but his father called him Benjamin.

5 And the terror of God was upon the cities, &c.] By some it is rendered, A great terror. It was doubtless very singular, that the inhabitants of the land should neglect to take signal vengeance on the sons of Jacob, for the cruelty they had exercised on the unfortunate Shechemites: the sacred historian, therefore, thought proper to insert the reason for this supineness, namely, "The terror of the Lord;" which operated so strongly upon their minds, that they durst not attempt to follow the Hebrews, but suffered them to retire unmolested with their property.

7 El-beth-el, &c.] i. e. "The God of Beth-el."

8 Deborah Rebekah's nurse died, &c.] This woman came with her mistress from Mesopotamia to Canaan, when she married Isaac. Her death is here mentioned to show the reason why the oak was called allon-bachuth, that is, "the oak of sorrow."

9 God appeared, &c.] It is in the Chaldee, The angel of God appeared.

10 Israel shall be thy name, &c.] Which name implies, "a prince powerful with God," and was given before by the angel when they wrestled together; but was now repeated to confirm his faith. See chap. xxx. 11, 28.

13 God went up from, &c.] This is in the Chaldee, The glory of the Lord, &c. and the Arabic, The angel of the Lord was taken up, &c. whence we may infer, that God had manifested himself to him by his glorious presence, which now vanished, or else by the ministry of angels, who now disappeared.

14 He poured a drink-offering, &c.] In other words, He poured mixed wine and oil.

18 As her soul was in departing,] Rachel had impatiently longed for children; but was now fatally convinced, that what she considered as the greatest happiness, was really the greatest pain; and thence called this son Ben-oni, "the son of my sorrow."

His father called him Benjamin.] Which name, in the Hebrew, signifies, "the son of my right hand," and might intimate the intense affection which Jacob had for this dear pledge of his beloved wife; the right hand, and the right eye, being used in scripture for something that engrosses our affections; yet as Jacob may be supposed to have used the Syriac language, others interpret the name according to its signification in the Syriac, The son of my days, an old age; which carries with it the idea of equal affection.

21 The tower of Edar.] i. e. "The tower of the flock." It is thought to have been situated near Jerusalem, and is mentioned by the prophet Micah, ch. iv. 8. "And thou, O tower of the flock, &c."

22 And Israel heard—Now the sons, &c.] There is in the Hebrew manuscripts, a blank space left between the words translated "heard"

Before CHRIST 1732.

19 And Rachel died, and was buried in the way to Ephrath, which is Beth-lehem.

20 And Jacob set a pillar upon her grave: that is the pillar of Rachel's grave unto this day.

21 And Israel journeyed, and spread his tent beyond the tower of Edar.

22 ¶ And it came to pass, when Israel dwelt in that land, that Reuben went and lay with Bilhah his father's concubine: and Israel heard it. Now the sons of Jacob were twelve:

23 The sons of Leah; Reuben, Jacob's first-born, and Simeon, and Levi, and Judah, and Issachar, and Zebulon:

24 The sons of Rachel; Joseph and Benjamin:

25 And the sons of Bilhah, Rachel's handmaid; Dan, and Naphtali:

26 And the sons of Zilpah, Leah's handmaid; Gad, and Asher; these are the sons of Jacob, which were born to him in Padan-aram.

27 ¶ And Jacob came unto Isaac his father unto Mamre, unto the city of Arbah, which is Hebron, where Abraham and Isaac sojourned.

28 ¶ And the days of Isaac were an hundred and fourscore years.

29 And Isaac gave up the ghost, and died, and was gathered unto his people, being old and full of days: and his sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

it," and "now the sons." The Jews acknowledge in the margin, that some words are wanting to complete the sense; and the Septuagint has preserved the words that are wanting, by adding, that Jacob detested the crime of Reuben as vile and atrocious. According to this reading, the verse should be translated, And it came to pass when Israel dwelt in that land, that Reuben went and lay with Bilhah his father's concubine; and Israel heard it, and it appeared evil in his sight. "Now the sons of Jacob, &c."

26 Which were born to him in Padan-aram.] Let us observe Benjamin was not born in Padan-aram, but several years after Jacob's return into the land of Canaan, and is therefore to be excepted, as his birth is mentioned in the preceding verses.

29 And Isaac—was gathered unto his people.] i. e. His soul was gathered to the righteous, and his body was laid where his parents were interred.

And his sons Esau and Jacob buried him:] He was buried in the cave of Machpelah, where the remains of Abraham and Sarah, his father and mother, were deposited. See chap. xlix. 31.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXV.

Several things worthy notice in this chapter. First, the travels of Jacob from one place to another, the death of his beloved wife, and the horrid crime committed by his son, should teach us not to expect any lasting peace in this world, and to look forward to the heavenly Canaan, where there is rest for ever. Secondly, wherever Jacob went God appeared to him, and repeated his promise to him; Thirdly, the care that Jacob took to banish idolatry out of his family, should teach us that nothing appear more grateful in the sight of God for the mercies we receive, than setting up his worship in our families. Lastly, that Rachel who longed for children so impatiently, as to say "Give me children or else I die," died in child-bearing. A lively instance of the folly of our wishes!

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXVI.

¶ The daughter of Anah, &c.] We find, ver. 24. that Anah was Zibeon's son; the Hebrew transcriber, therefore, must have written bath, "daughter," instead of ben, "a son;" which might easily have been occasioned by writing twice the word bath in the beginning of the verse. The Septuagint, Syriac, and Samaritan, have avoided this error, by reading, Son.

5 And Aholibamah bare Jeush, and Jaalam, and Korah: these are the sons of Esau, which were born unto him in the land of Canaan.

1740. 6 ¶ And Esau took his wives, and his sons, and his daughters, and all the persons of his house, and his cattle, and all his beasts, and all his substance, which he had got in the land of Canaan; and went into the country from the face of his brother Jacob.

7 For their riches were more than that they might dwell together; and the land wherein they were strangers could not bear them because of their cattle.

¶ Thus dwelt Esau in mount Seir: Esau is Edom.

9 ¶ And these are the generations of Esau the father of the Edomites in mount Seir:

19 These are the sons of Esau, who is Edom, and these are their dukes.

1840. 20 ¶ These are the sons of Seir the Horite, who inhabited the land; Lotan, and Shobal, and Zibeon, and Anah; the dukes of the Horites, the children of Seir in the land of Edom.

22 And the children of Lotan were Hori and Heman; and Lotan's sister was Timna.

23 And the children of Shobal were these; Alvan, and Maniath, and Ebal, Shepho, and Onam.

24 And these are the children of Zibeon; both Ajah, and Anah: this was that Anah that found the mules in the wilderness, as he fed the asses of Zibon his father.

25 And the children of Anah were these; Dishon, and Aholibamah the daughter of Anah.

26 And these are the children of Dishon; Hemdan, and Eshban, and Ithran, and Cheran.

32 And Bela the son of Beor reigned in Edom: and the name of his city was Dinhabah.

33 And Bela died, and Jobab the son of Zerah of Bozrah reigned in his stead.

34 And Jobab died, and Husham of the land of Temani reigned in his stead.

35 And Husham died, and Hadad the son of Bedad, who smote Midian in the field of Moab, reigned in his stead: and the name of his city was Avith.

36 And Hadad died, and Samlah of Masrekah reigned in his stead.

37 And Samlah died, and Saul of Rehoboth by the river reigned in his stead.

38 And Saul died, and Baal-hanan the son of Achbor reigned in his stead.

39 And Baal-hanan the son of Achbor died, and Hadar reigned in his stead: and the name of his city was Pau; and his wife's name was Mehetabel, the daughter of Matred, the daughter of Mezahab.

40 ¶ And these are the names of the dukes that came of Esau, according to their families, after their places, by their names; duke Timnah, duke Alvah, duke Jetheth, 1496.

41 Duke Aholibamah, duke Elah, duke Pinon,

42 Duke Kenaz, duke Teman, duke Mibzar,

43 Duke Magdiel, duke Iram: these be the dukes of Edom, according to their habitations in the land of their possession: he is Esau the father of the Edomites.

C H A P.

6 And went into the country, &c.] There are some instead of "the," put his understanding, by his country, the country of Seir, which he inhabited before he visited his father in the land of Canaan. The Septuagint translation, and the Samaritan text, read, Out of the land of Canaan, which seems to be the true meaning.

8 Esau is Edom.] Notwithstanding the word Esau occurs a second time in the Hebrew, yet it is omitted in the Vulgate, which reads, And Esau dwelt in Mount Seir; he is Edom. One of the Hebrew manuscripts, in the Bodleian library, confirms this omission, by reading, Esau dwelt in Mount Seir; that is, Edom. Esau had the name of Edom, which signifies "red," given him an account of his being of a red colour, at the instant of his birth, chap. xxv. 25.

14 The daughter of Zibeon, &c.] It is in the Samaritan text, and the Septuagint, with great propriety, The son of Zibeon; the Hebrew being undoubtedly corrupted. See the note on ver. 2.

15 These were dukes, &c.] These persons styled dukes were not rulers of provinces, but the heads or chiefs of particular families; for it was many years after that the Horites were conquered, before these were dukes of Edom, which is mentioned ver. 42, 43; but are plainly distinguished from those mentioned above, the former being styled "dukes in the land of Edom," and the latter, "the dukes of Edom."

16 Duke Korah, &c.] We find in ver. 4. that Eliphaz was Esau's son by Adah, and from ver. 11, 12, that Eliphaz had but six sons. It is also certain from ver. 5, and 14, that Korah was the son of Esau

(not of Eliphaz, as asserted in this verse) by Aholibamah, and as such he is properly enumerated in ver. 18. Both the Samaritan text and translation have omitted these two words; which, though found in the Septuagint, Chaldee, Vulgate, Arabic, and Syriac, are undoubtedly interpolated.

24 The mules, &c.] By some the original, bayemin, has been interpreted "baths" and "hot waters;" by others, the first discovery of some useful plant; but the word must be severely tortured to make it capable of either of these significations. The word matza, translated "found," imports the discovery of what has an existence already; consequently it could not mean the invention of breeding mules; besides no mention is made of Anah's feeding horses, but asses, the former of which were essential to his invention; and we may add, that no mules are mentioned in scripture till the days of David. From the Septuagint and Samaritan, bayemin seems to be the proper name of a people, whom Anah fell upon by surprise and defeated; a sense which has the countenance of several other places in scripture.

35 Who smote Midian, &c.] The Syriac, Samaritan, Chaldee, and Arabic, concur in translating it, The Midianites. They were marching to invade him, but were defeated in the field of Moab, which was on the frontiers of his country. Moses recorded this exploit. It proved a calamity to Jethro his father-in-law; and that it was Midian himself, who, according to the Hebrew text, was slain, being at that period one hundred and nine years of age.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXVI.

We here find, that Moses, having given an account of the principal heads of Jacob's posterity, who, as the special seed of Abraham, inherited the land of Canaan, before he proceeds farther in their history, settles the account of Esau's family in the most remarkable branches thereof: and that in order to shew how truly what was before prophetically spoken of him, chap. xxv. 23. and xxvii. 39, was fulfilled. Moses, in this narrative, seems likewise to have had a particular view to let the Israelites distinctly know the tribes of the Edomites, and the country which they inhabited, that as they were their brethren they might not offer to attack them.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXVII.

1 Wherein his father was a stranger, &c.] It is in the Hebrew, In the land of his father's sojournings. The Septuagint render it, In which his father dwelt. The Chaldee, Syriac, and Arabic, Of his father's habitation or dwelling. In either of these senses, the text is free from the objection to which it is exposed by our translation; for it is evident that Isaac was a native of Canaan, had resided in it many years, and could not truly be named a stranger; but as he had made no conquests, and extended his authority no further than the circle of his own family, he might, with the greatest propriety, according to the express sense of the Hebrew, be called a sojourner.

In the land of Canaan.] And particularly in Hebron, where Isaac and Abraham before him had lived.

2 These are the generations] Refer to chap. ii. 4. vi. 9. and xxv. 19. Seventeen years old] According to the Hebrew, Septuagint, Samaritan, Syriac, and Arabic; but the Vulgate renders it, Sixteen years old. In order to reconcile this with the original, we must observe, that a person is said in scripture to be of that year of which he is only turned, as in Exod. xii. 5. To this we may add, that the Jews lay it down as a maxim, that part of the month is as the whole, and that of the year as the whole.

And Joseph brought unto his father, &c.] This is in the Vulgate, And he accused them to his father of the worst of crimes. The Chaldee renders it, Their criminal accusation. The Arabic styles it, The worst species of obsecration; but the Septuagint make the brethren the accusers, translating the words, They brought an evil report of Joseph unto his father. Some say, that Joseph's motive, in accusing his brethren, was no other but that they should be reformed by their father's remonstrances.

3 The son of his old age] A different reason is assigned by an ancient author for Jacob's extraordinary fondness, ascribing it to his personal, as well as his intellectual graces; in the latter of which, especially in prudence, he supposes him to have surpassed all his brethren. The Chaldee supports this opinion, by rendering the words, Because he was a wise son unto him. It must be confessed, that the Vulgate, Septuagint, Samaritan, Syriac, and Arabic concur with the Hebrew, as it is rendered by our translators; yet we may observe, that they have confounded the original words ben zekenaim, "the son of senators or elders," with ben ziknah, "the son of old age." Joseph's being merely the son of Jacob's old age, could scarcely be the reason why his father had more affection for him than his brethren, because his brother Benjamin was fifteen years younger than he: but if we suppose that his father's preference of him was founded on his prudence, which was not only beyond what might have been expected from one of his years, but likewise surpassing that of his other children, the character of Jacob is vindicated from objections, and his extraordinary affection appears consistent with reason. And that this was really the case, seems evident from the sequel of Joseph's history, wherein he is represented as consummately prudent, and one of the ablest counsellors that ever was employed in the most critical and difficult conjunctures.

Many colours.] It is in the Hebrew, many pieces. The Arabic renders it, A silken coat. Whatever the matter might be of which it was made, it is plain that it was composed of different colours: some imagine it to have been woollen with threads of different colours; dren, because he was the son of his old age: and he made him a coat of many colours. Before CHRIST 1729.

4 And when his brethren saw that their father loved him more than all his brethren, they hated him, and could not speak peaceably unto him.

5 ¶ And Joseph dreamed a dream, and told it his brethren: and they hated him yet the more.

6 And he said unto them, Hear, I pray you, this dream which I have dreamed:

7 For, behold, we were binding sheaves in the field, and, lo, my sheaf arose, and also stood upright; and, behold, your sheaves stood round about, and made obeisance to my sheaf.

8 And his brethren said to him, Shalt thou indeed reign over us? or shalt thou indeed have dominion over us? and they hated him yet the more for his dreams, and for his words.

9 ¶ And he dreamed yet another dream, and told it his brethren, and said, Behold, I have dreamed a dream more; and, behold, the sun and the moon and the eleven stars made obeisance to me.

10 And

and others, that it was embroidered with variegated flowers and figures. It is evident that such garments were in high esteem among the eastern nations, and worn by persons of the highest distinction; whence we may infer, that Jacob's cloathing Joseph in a garment of this sort argues his having a peculiar affection for him, and, as it distinguished him above his brethren, gave rise to their envy and machinations against him.

4 And when his brethren saw—they hated] The hatred of Joseph's brethren we must ascribe to his superior wisdom and knowledge.

Could not speak peaceably unto him.] This translation agrees with the Chaldee. The Arabic renders it, They could not salute him; which conveys to us the sense of the historian better than our translation. "Peace be unto thee," was the usual salutation of the eastern nations, and was always looked upon as a compliment of civility: it was this which Joseph's brethren denied him, and consequently treated him with great incivility, and with marks of enmity. This address is still retained in the east, and called, the compliment of peace.

5 Joseph dreamed a dream, &c.] The method of conveying ideas is either by figures or sounds. In conveying ideas by figures, the picture or image of a thing to be conveyed was represented: thus the idea of a horse was represented by a picture of that animal; but this method being attended with inconveniencies, 1. The principal circumstance in the subject was made to stand for the whole; thus a scaling-ladder was painted to represent a siege. 2. The instrument of a thing, whether real or metaphorical, was put for the thing itself; thus an eye eminently placed denoted omniscience, and an eye and a sceptre a monarch. 3. One thing stood for another when any quaint resemblance, or analogy in the representative, could be collected from nature or tradition; thus the sun-rise was designed by the two eyes of the crocodile, because they seem to emerge from its head; and he who had borne misfortunes with courage and surmounted them, was signified by the hyæna, because the skin of that animal was supposed to be invulnerable. In sleep, where the information is rather by figures than by sound, ideas are commonly conveyed by pictures, which are termed dreams; and the whole art of the interpretation of dreams is founded upon this hypothesis; dreams may be divided into speculative and allegorical; the first kind is that which represents a plain and direct picture of the thing predicted; the second is an oblique intimation of it by tropical or symbolical images. The dream of Joseph was of this latter species.

6 This dream, &c.] A Jewish author informs us, that it was a vision; and that he saw it when sent together with his brethren to gather in the harvest; and the subject of it gives some countenance to his declaration.

¶ Shalt thou indeed reign over us? &c.] It is evident that dreams, consisting of symbolic hieroglyphics, were a common mode of information in those times, and generally understood by most persons, as appears from this interrogation of Joseph's brethren. But when they were more complicate, and consisted of mysterious symbols, it was customary to have recourse to interpreters, who founded their solution on the mysterious sense concealed under the sacred symbols which they made their peculiar study, as the Egyptian priests always did.

9 He dreamed yet another dream] Which repetition was not only intended to confirm the event predicted by the former, but to heighten its signification, by foretelling, that not only the brethren, but likewise the parents of Joseph, should acknowledge the superiority of his condition.

The sun and moon, &c.] These heavenly bodies in symbolical hieroglyphics signified persons invested with authority and family power, as appears from Horapolis; and Artemidorus, who wrote the art of interpreting dreams upon the principal of symbolic hieroglyphics, asserts, that he who dreams he has dominion over the stars and other heavenly bodies, shall subdue all the world: agreeable to this interpretation, understood in those times, Jacob might well ask his son, "Shall I and thy mother bow down to thee? &c. &c."

10 And he told it to his father, and to his brethren: and his father rebuked him, and said unto him, What is this dream that thou hast dreamed? Shall I and thy mother and thy brethren indeed come to bow down ourselves to thee to the earth.

11 And his brethren envied him; but his father observed the saying.

12 ¶ And his brethren went to feed their father's flock in Shechem.

13 And Israel said unto Joseph, Do not thy brethren feed the flock in Shechem? come, and I will send thee unto them. And he said to him, Here am I.

14 And he said to him, Go, I pray thee, see whether it be well with thy brethren, and well with the flocks; and bring word again. So he sent him out of the vale of Hebron, and he came to Shechem.

15 And a certain man found him, and, behold, he was wandering in the field: and the man asked him, saying, What seekest thou?

16 And he said, I seek my brethren: tell me, I pray thee, where they feed their flocks.

17 And the man said, They are departed hence; for I heard them say, Let us go to Dothan. And Joseph went after his brethren, and found them in Dothan.

18 ¶ And when they saw him afar off, even before he came near unto them, they conspired against him to slay him.

19 And they said one to another, Behold, this dreamer cometh.

20 Come now therefore, and let us slay him, and cast him into some pit, and we will say, Some evil beast hath devoured him: and we shall see what will become of his dreams.

21 And Reuben heard it, and he delivered him out of their hands; and said, Let us not kill him.

22 And Reuben said unto them, Shed no blood, but cast him into this pit that is in the wilderness, and lay no hand upon him; that he might rid him out of their hands, to deliver him to his father again.

23 ¶ And it came to pass, when Joseph was come unto his brethren, that they stripped Joseph out of his coat of many colours that was on him;

24 And they took him, and cast him into a pit: and the pit was empty, there was no water in it.

25 And they sat down to eat bread: and they lifted up their eyes and looked, and behold, a company of Ishmeelites came from Gilead with their camels bearing spicery and balm and myrrh, going to carry it down to Egypt.

26 And Judah said unto his brethren, What profit is it if we slay our brother, and conceal his blood?

27 Come, and let us sell him to the Ishmeelites, and let not our hand be upon him; for he is our brother and our flesh. And his brethren were content.

28 Then there passed by Midianites merchantmen; and they drew and lifted Joseph out of the pit, and sold Joseph to the Ishmeelites for twenty pieces of silver: and they brought Joseph into Egypt.

29 ¶ And Reuben returned unto the pit; and, behold, Joseph was not in the pit; and he rent his clothes.

30 And he returned unto his brethren, and said, The child is not; and I, whither shall I go?

31 ¶ And they took Joseph's coat, and killed a kid of the goats, and dipped the coat in the blood.

32 And they sent the coat of many colours, and they brought it to their father; and said, This have we found: know now whether it be thy son's coat or no.

33 And he knew it, and said, It is my son's coat; an evil beast hath devoured him; Joseph is without doubt rent in pieces.

34 And Jacob rent his clothes, and put sackcloth upon his loins, and mourned for his son many days.

35 And all his sons and all his daughters rose up to comfort him; but he refused to be comforted, and he said, For I will go down into the grave unto my son mourning. Thus his father wept for him.

36 ¶ And the Midianites sold him into Egypt unto Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh's, and captain of the guard.

C H A P.

11 His father observed the saying.] Instead of Saying it is Speech in the Arabic: but the Syriac, Speeches; applying it to both the dreams. Jacob had been no stranger to these nocturnal informations; and finding them repeated by the divine Being, stored them up in his memory, as predictions of events that would certainly happen.

13 Come, and I will send thee, &c.] It is not wonderful that Jacob was uneasy with regard to his sons, who were feeding their flocks in Shechem, the scene of their late inhuman cruelty; for fear that the inhabitants of the land should take the first favourable opportunity of revenging the death of their countrymen. He therefore thought proper to send Joseph to them, though it was near sixty miles distant from Hebron, the place where he now resided.

17 And found them in Dothan.] Joseph repaired to Shechem, but he found his brethren were retired from thence in quest of pasture; he continued his search till he found them in Dothan, a place about eight miles north from Shechem.

19 Behold, this dreamer cometh.] This is in the Hebrew, Behold, this maker of dreams cometh; a proof that they considered his dreams as fictions of his own inventing.

20 Come now therefore, and let us slay him, &c.] Here we perceive the natural progress of sin. The seeds of envy and emulation grew into actual hatred; and hatred, by an easy transition, degenerated into intentional murder.

22 And Reuben said, &c.] This Reuben was the eldest brother, and consequently had the greatest authority among them; despairing to protect him by any open or direct method, he persuaded them to cast him into a pit, that he might have an opportunity of delivering him again to his father Jacob.

25 A company of Ishmeelites.] Arabians, according to the Chaldee, Syriac, and Arabic; or Arabian merchants descended from Ishmael. See ver. 28.

Spicery, and balm, and myrrh, &c.] These were the ingredients made use of in embalming the dead, as appears from a profane author, who says, that after the body had lain about thirty days in a different preparation, they preserved it with myrrh, cinnamon, and other spices. The merchants carrying down such a large quantity of these ingredients shews, that embalming was at that time become a general practice in Egypt, and the traffick which they carried on in young slaves, which were commodities only for a rich and luxurious people, sufficiently declares the established power and wealth of this celebrated nation.

28 There passed by Midianites.] They are called Ishmeelites in ver. 25. The caravan seems to have consisted of both; for they were near neighbours, and appear to have lived promiscuously, and joined together in trade. And it has always been the custom in the eastern countries for merchants to travel together in companies, for security against wild beasts and robbers.

Twenty pieces of silver.] The word "pieces" is not in the original; but as the sentence is elliptical, the word omitted is generally understood to be a shekel, so that the whole sum would be about forty-seven shillings sterling.

29 He rent his clothes.] Which was one sign of ancient mourning, and used in cases of the greatest distress. From this behaviour of Reuben it is plain, that he was not privy to the transaction of selling Joseph to the Ishmeelites.

30 Whither shall I go?] i. e. Whither shall I fly to conceal myself from my father's anger? For, being the eldest, he considered himself as responsible for Joseph's safety.

34 Jacob rent his clothes, and put sackcloth on his loins, &c.] The hoary patriarch rends his clothes, covers his aged body with sackcloth, and refuses to be comforted. What an affecting scene!

35 I will go down into the grave unto my son mourning, &c.] This is in the Arabic, I will go down into the dust. Some, instead of, Unto my son, read, For the sake of my son: and it must be confessed, that the Hebrew particle al is used in that sense. 2 Sam. xxi. 2. The word sheul, translated "grave," is undoubtedly, in the prophetic writings, used for the mansion, or separate state of departed souls. The Arabic, which renders the words, I will go into the dust, countenances the sense we have given this sentence: and we add besides, that the words imply more, than to be reduced to the same condition; and therefore Jacob might probably say, he would go down to the grave to a dead son, who was never buried, i. e. that he should find no ease to his sorrows, till he was reduced to the same condition.

36 An officer of Pharaoh's, &c.] This is in the Vulgate, Septuagint, Samaritan, and Syriac, An eunuch; probably in allusion to the eastern custom of appointing eunuchs to the great offices of state. But it is plain that the Hebrew word seris does not always signify an eunuch, but is sometimes used to signify a chamberlain, or a person having some considerable office about the king's person; and in this sense we must here take the word, especially as we find that the historian mentions his having a daughter who was married to Joseph. He is likewise dignified in the original by the title of "captain of the guard;" but as the word tabach signifies "to kill," some have thought that it should be translated, chief of the cooks or butchers; while others contend as positively, that it should be a captain of the guard, or soldiers who were dispersed about the royal palace. To clear up this difficulty, we should observe, that Potiphar is styled the priest of On; and it appears, that in the time of Joseph the people of Egypt were divided into three classes, the king, the priests, and the people. The priests were an order in the highest reverence for their piety, their consummate wisdom, and their application to their studies. With their revenues, they supplied all Egypt with public sacrifices, supported ■ number of inferior officers, and maintained their families. They were constantly attached to the person of the king, as his coadjutors, counsellors, and instructors; were exempted from all charges and imposts, and held the second honours under the king in the administration. As Potiphar was priest of On, or Heliopolis, which was superior in nobility to all the other classes of the priesthood, the terms "officer of Pharaoh's," and "captain of the guard," in our translation, imply no more nor less than that he was prime minister, or chamberlain, ■ the Egyptian king. That he could not belong to the soldiery is evident, because the Egyptian priesthood ■ always ■ separate and distinct order, whose office was transmitted to their posterity as an unalienable inheritance.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXVII.

This chapter fully convinces us, that God orders every thing in the world; and orders it for the best for every one who trusteth in him, "that all things work together for good to those that love God." This is what the holy scriptures strongly inculcate; this is what reason teaches; and this alone, really and firmly believed as it ought to be, would banish all trouble from the breasts of men, it would hush all storms which assault us ■ the sea of life, into a peaceful calm; it would pour a healing balm in every wound we might receive in our war with the world; it would sweeten every bitter cup which is necessary for us ■ drink in the present state of things.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXVIII.

1 And it came to pass, at that time, &c. Notwithstanding these words seem to connect the following events with the preceding chapter, yet all the transactions ■ not actually performed after Joseph was sold into Egypt; for Judah's marriage happened long before, even about the time that Jacob ■ of Mesopotamia into Canaan, though the sacred historian thought proper ■ place them here. The words therefore, "in those days, at that time, &c." often refer in scripture to ■ considerable length of time previous to the present.

2 A certain Canaanite, &c. A marriage with a Canaanitish woman was opposite to the received custom of his predecessors, who guarded their sons from making any alliance with this nation. The Chaldee and Tigurine translation render the word, A merchant, in which sense it is likewise used, Prov. xxxi. 24.

3 He called his name Er. This is in Hebrew, A watch, or enemy. 5 Shelah. This signifies in Hebrew, something that breaks, ■ unties; so that the names of all the three sons, which Judah had by this match, presaged their future misfortunes.

No. 4.

11 Then said Judah to Tamar his daughter-in-law, Remain a widow at thy father's house, till Shelah my son be grown: for he said, Lest peradventure he die also, as his brethren did. And Tamar went and dwelt in her father's house.

12 ¶ And in process of time the daughter of Shuah Judah's wife died; and Judah was comforted, and went up unto his sheepshearers to Timnath, he and his friend Hirah the Adullamite.

13 And it was told Tamar, saying, Behold thy father in law goeth up to Timnath to shear his sheep.

14 And she put her widow's garments off from her, and covered her with ■ veil, and wrapped herself, and sat in an open place, which is by the way to Timnath; for she saw that Shelah was grown, and she was not given unto him to wife.

15 When Judah saw her, he thought her to be an harlot; because she had covered her face.

16 And he turned unto her by the way, and said, Go to, I pray thee, let me come in unto thee; (for he knew not that she was his daughter in law.) And she said, What wilt thou give me, that thou mayest come in unto me?

17 And he said, I will send thee ■ kid from the flock. And she said, Wilt thou give me a pledge, till thou send it?

18 And he said, What pledge shall I give thee? And she said, Thy signet, and thy bracelets, and thy staff that is in thine hand. And he gave it her, and came in unto her, and she conceived by him.

19 And she arose, and went away, and laid by her veil from her, and put on the garments of her widowhood.

20 And Judah sent the kid by the hand of his friend the

And he ■ at Chezib, &c. Notwithstanding the Septuagint, Samaritan, and Arabic read the word Chezib ■ the proper name of a place: yet the Vulgate, Chaldee, and Syriac render the sentence, And she ceased to bear any more children after he was born. Grotius asserts, that the word is used to signify, Cease, ■ in Isaiah xiii. 11. but in the place quoted by this learned author, it may be read, Lye, or deceive, and is used in that sense, Micah i. 14. "The houses of Achzib shall be Achzah," i. e. A lye. That the word is used for the proper ■ of ■ place, is evident from the last quotation, and from Josbua xv. 44. but if it is meant in that sense by the sacred historian, it must have been by anticipation, because it received this ■ from the circumstance of Shuah's delivery, whether it was because she then ceased to bear, or that she was delivered of ■ spurious child, which seems ■ be intimated by those translations which lay ■ particular stress on the absence of Judah at the time of her delivery.

7 Wicked in the sight of the Lord, &c. This is in the Hebrew, In the eyes of the Lord; that is, remarkably, or excessively wicked. Though the scripture is silent with respect to the nature of his sin, yet the Jewish rabbins pretend that it was the same with that of his brother, though from a motive quite different.

8 Go in unto thy brother's wife, &c. Which was ■ Egyptian custom. It was therefore no new thing, though adopted by Moses in his institutes, Deut. xxv. 5.

11 Remain a widow, &c. From this we may infer, that the contract of marriage in those days obliged the woman, in case her husband died without issue, to marry his next brother; and that as long ■ any of his brethren remained, they were bound to marry his wife, unless she had ■ child by any of the former.

14 And sat in an open place, &c. It is signified in the original, that she sat in ■ place where two ways met. Among the Jews, ■ well ■ other nations, the harlots were not suffered to ply in the streets, but haunted the common roads without the walls.

15 Thought her ■ be an harlot, because she had covered her face. It may be asked, if the ■ in those days commonly wore veils, how could Judah imagine that Tamar was ■ harlot upon that account? To this it may be replied, that though the words ■ first sight may seem to convey this sense, yet on mature consideration they signify no more than that he did not know her to be his daughter in law; the word translated "harlot" is by the Samaritan rendered ■ vagabond, or ■ without the city, the usual haunts of prostitutes; and Judah finding her in that situation, might very well take her to be a prostitute, because she was veiled; which he would not, nay, he could not have done, had her veil been off, and he had seen his daughter in law.

18 Thy bracelets, &c. This is in the Hebrew, ■ scarf ■ girdle. The Chaldee renders it, Handkerchief; but it is variously rendered by the Syriac and Arabic, which translate it something twisted, &c. It seems indeed to have been made of gold, twisted in the manner of a thread, and suspended from the neck, not, like a bracelet, from the arm.

P

21 Then he asked the men of that place, saying, Where is the harlot, that was openly by the way side? And they said, There was no harlot in this place.

22 And he returned to Judah, and said, I cannot find her; and also the men of the place said, that there was no harlot in this place.

23 And Judah said, Let her take it to her, lest we be ashamed: behold, I sent this kid, and thou hast not found her.

24 And it came to pass about three months after, that it was told Judah, saying, Tamar thy daughter in law hath played the harlot; and also behold, she is with child by whoredom. And Judah said, Bring her forth, and let her be burnt.

25 When she was brought forth, she sent to her father in law, saying, By the man, whose these are, am I with child: and she said, Discern, I pray thee, whose are these, the signet, and bracelets, and staff.

26 And Judah acknowledged them, and said, She hath been more righteous than I; because that I gave her not to Shelah my son. And he knew her again no more.

27 ¶ And it came to pass in the time of her travail, that, behold, twins were in her womb.

28 And it came to pass, when she travailed, that the one put out his hand: and the midwife took and bound upon his hand a scarlet thread, saying, This came out first.

1729. 29 And it came to pass, as he drew back his hand, that, behold, his brother came out; and she said, How hast thou broken forth? this breach be upon thee: therefore his name was called Pharez.

30 And afterward came out his brother, that had the scarlet thread upon his hand: and his name was called Zarah.

21 Where is the harlot, &c.] The Hebrew word used in this verse is kedeshbah, which implies something sacred; accordingly we are of opinion that it was one of those women who worshipped Baal-phegor, or some other impure deity, by an annual prostitution.

23 Lest we be ashamed, &c.] This is in the Hebrew, Become a contempt. The Septuagint, Chaldee, and Syriac, render it, Lest we should be a derision.

26 She hath been more righteous than I, &c.] This is in the Chaldee, She is justified, she hath conceived by me. In the Samaritan, She is truer than me; in the Syriac, She is more innocent than I; and in the Arabic, She has said truly that it was by me.

29 This breach be upon thee, &c.] i. e. Be thou for ever called irruption or breach; which is the meaning of the word Pharez. Perhaps she considered this circumstance as the presage of a future rupture between the two brothers for the right of primogeniture.

30 Zarah.] This is in the Hebrew, He ariseth; because, like the sun, he had given a sign of his coming, by putting out his hand; or from the Arabic, Zaruba, To move, on account of the motion he had made, by withdrawing his hand. It is remarkable that Josephus has omitted the subject of this chapter in his history; a liberty he generally takes with the scripture, whenever it records any transactions that are not for the credit of the Jews his countrymen.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXVIII.

We see with regard to the conduct of Judah, the moral turpitude of the action filled him with conscious shame, and made him rather chuse to suffer the loss of his property, than blemish his reputation, by making any further search after a person of her character. From whence we may learn, that this crime, however lightly made of in these days, was accounted highly shameful in those early times.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXIX.

1 Joseph was brought down, &c.] This is in the Hebrew, Joseph was made to descend into Egypt; and the expression is extremely proper: first, because his descent was involuntary; and, secondly, because Egypt being situated in a lower ground, his journey thither was properly a descent. The historian now resumes his history, which had been interrupted by the transactions relative to Judah's family, highly necessary to our tracing the genealogy of our blessed Saviour, as will appear to the reader, on a perusal of the first chapter of St. Matthew.

2 And the Lord was with Joseph.] This is in the Chaldee, The word of the Lord was an help to Joseph. The Psalmist informs us, that God sent him for certain wise purposes into this country, cv.

C H A P. XXXIX.

Before CHRIST 1729.

1 Joseph is advanced in Potiphar's house. 7 Here reflecteth his mistress's temptation, is falsely accused by her, and cast into prison. 21 God is with him there.

AND Joseph was brought down to Egypt: and Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh, captain of the guard, an Egyptian, bought him of the hands of the Ishmeelites, which had brought him down thither.

2 And the Lord was with Joseph, and he was a prosperous man; and he was in the house of his master the Egyptian.

3 And his master saw that the Lord was with him, and that the Lord made all that he did to prosper in his hand.

4 And Joseph found grace in his sight, and he served him: and he made him overseer over his house, and all that he had he put into his hand.

5 And it came to pass from the time that he had made him overseer in his house, and over all that he had, that the Lord blessed the Egyptian's house for Joseph's sake; and the blessing of the Lord was upon all that he had in the house, and in the field.

6 And he left all that he had in Joseph's hand; and he knew not aught he had, save the bread which he did eat. And Joseph was a goodly person, and well favoured.

7 ¶ And it came to pass after these things, that his master's wife cast her eyes upon Joseph; and she said, Lie with me.

8 But he refused, and said unto his master's wife, Behold, my master wotteth not what is with me in the house, and he hath committed all that he hath to my hand;

9 There is none greater in this house than I; neither hath he kept back any thing from me but thee, because thou art his wife: how then can I do this great wickedness, and sin against God?

10 And

and the patriarch himself avows the same, chap. xlv. 5. His extraordinary vicissitude from the abject state of slavery to the highest post of honour, strongly marks the interposition of divine Providence, which afflicts to bless, and humbles to exalt us.

And he was in the house, &c.] Joseph's master gave him a liberal education, treated him in a manner superior to his condition, and made him overseer of his household, &c.

6 He knew not aught—save the bread, &c.] This is in the Arabic, He did not look into any thing that he had, save the meat, &c. This conveys the idea of a boundless confidence in Joseph's integrity; and, at the same time, raises the character of the master above the conception of the ungenerous and suspicious.

Cast her eyes, &c.] This is in the Hebrew, Lift up her eyes. Modesty is celebrated for a downcast look, and is fearful to stare any person in the face. But lust gazes undaunted, and, by amorous glances endeavours to captivate the object of desire, as Joseph's mistress endeavoured to captivate him by her looks.

¶ But he refused, and said—Behold, my master, &c.] The crime of ingratitude is both shameful and heinous indeed; this was strongly urged by Joseph against committing the crime to which he was so strongly excited. As a man, such conduct towards one of his own equals was absolutely indefensible; but from a servant to his master, who had highly caressed and honoured him, and loaded him with signal favours, it was so utterly unnatural, that whoever attempted it must be extravagantly wicked, and sunk to the very lowest degree of degeneracy. Ingratitude, added to adultery, would have rendered what is, in itself, one of the foulest stains to man's nature, infinitely more black and detestable, and have swelled the guilt of it to so vast a size, that it would scarce have admitted of any further aggravation. When we recollect all the instances we have met with in our reading, we cannot find one so generous, so honest, and so noble, as that of Joseph. When his master had trusted him so unreservedly, he was so unhappy as to appear irresistibly beautiful to his mistress; but when this shameless woman proceeds to solicit him, how gallant is his answer! The same argument which a base mind would have made to itself for committing the evil, was to this brave man the greatest motive for forbearing it, that he could with impunity do it.

9 How can I do this great wickedness, &c.] We see Joseph a slave, and in a strange country; he was tempted by a lascivious and a vindictive mistress; had he complied, he could have been sure both of secrecy and rewards; would have been firmly rooted in his place, and been preferred to greater honour; but if he resisted, he could expect nothing less than to be accused and treated like a criminal, to be deprived of his place, and to lose his liberty, his fame, and perhaps his

10 And it came to pass, ■ she spake to Joseph day by day, that he hearkened not to her, to lie by her, or to be with her.

11 And it came to pass about this time, that Joseph went into the house to do his business, and there was none of the men of the house there within.

12 And she caught him by his garment, saying, Lie with me: and he left his garment in her hand, and fled, and got him out.

13 And it came to pass, when she saw that he had left his garment in her hand, and was fled forth,

14 That she called unto the men of her house, and spake unto them, saying, See, he hath brought in an Hebrew unto us to mock us; he came in unto me to lie with me, and I cried with a loud voice:

15 And it came to pass, when he heard that I lifted up my voice and cried, that he left his garment with me, and got him out.

16 And she laid up his garment by her, until his lord came home.

17 And she spake unto him according to these words, saying, The Hebrew servant which thou hast brought unto us, came in unto me to mock me:

18 And it came to pass, as I lifted up my voice and cried, that he left his garment with me and fled out.

19 And it came to pass, when his master heard the words of his wife, which she spake unto him, saying, After this manner did thy servant to me; that his wrath was kindled.

20 And Joseph's master took him, and put him into the prison, ■ place where the king's prisoners were bound: and he was there in the prison.

21 ¶ But the LORD was with Joseph, and shewed him mercy, and gave him favour in the sight of the keeper of the prison.

his life; yet all this could not influence him. Deaf to the solicitations of his mistress, he chooses to submit to chains, to ignominy, to death, rather than be guilty of so foul a crime, and sin against God. From hence we may learn, that the fear of God is a most effectual preservative against all criminal indulgences. It was this that restrained Joseph from complying with the loose solicitations of his mistress; and will have the same effect on all mankind upon all other occasions, and in every scene of life. It strikes every passion, every spring of human action, and includes in it all the most powerful motives by which the conduct of mankind is determined. If interest be the principal thing that sways us, surely that cannot be so certainly promoted, as by the securing the favour of God, and avoiding his displeasure. If we are governed by our fears, he is the most formidable being in the universe to ■ mind that has perverted its faculties, and transgressed the laws of its maker. If by hope, he is the supreme good. If by love, he is the most amiable and perfect excellence. If by gratitude, he is the author of all our felicity.

10 She spake—day by day. These words convey a very high idea of the patriarch's chastity, which was proof against so many repeated assaults; and his avoiding her company, as as great a testimony of his consummate prudence and wisdom.

11 About this time, &c.] We read in the Hebrew, On ■ certain day; which the Vulgate, Septuagint, Chaldee, Samaritan, Syriac, and Arabic, have faithfully rendered. It was a public festival, to which she had avoided going, under pretence that she was ill.

13 He left his garment, &c.] This is in the ancient translations, A cloak or mantle; which he might easily have quitted, in order to free himself from her embraces.

20 Put him into prison, &c.] It appears from the Psalmist, that the patriarch was treated with the greatest rigour and inhumanity. He was secured with fetters, which ate into his flesh, or put him to the most exquisite tortures, Psalm cv. 18. he was thrust down into the most noisome place of the prison. Such were the sufferings of Joseph, which he endured without murmuring, and submitted, like our blessed Saviour, without attempting to refute the charge which malice had forged, and passion had believed.

21 The Lord was with Joseph.] He seems now to have been quite lost, and abandoned to misery and despair; but vain are the counsels of man; for this very circumstance was the occasion of his being introduced into the presence of Pharaoh, and of his appearing again on the stage of the world with extraordinary lustre and dignity, for the preservation and support of his own family, which afterward sprang up into a great and flourishing people.

And gave him favour, &c.] This sudden revolution in the circumstances of Joseph we may ascribe not only to the interposition of Providence, but likewise to his graceful appearance, and to his industry and fidelity in discharging the goal-keeper's command; in reward for which he rendered the rigours of his confinement more tolerable, and treated him better than the rest of his prisoners.

7 And he asked Pharaoh's officers that were with him in the ward of his lord's house, saying, Wherefore look ye so sadly to day?

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXIX.

The history of Joseph is one of the finest and most remarkable in the scriptures, which affords us the clearest evidence of the providence of God, conducting all things with amazing and stupendous wisdom, and making all things tend to promote the happiness of them that love and fear him. We are led to admire and adore the ways of divine wisdom, which makes use even of the wickedness of men to accomplish his designs. God's design was, to raise Joseph to such ■ degree of greatness and power, as should oblige his brethren to bow down humbly before him; Joseph's brethren opposed it; but what they did to humble him, was the first step by which God led him to elevation and glory, and the horrible calumny of his unchaste mistress, which seemed to complete his misfortunes, was the circumstance which advanced him almost to the throne. This may afford us great comfort under all our troubles, as we may from hence be assured, that God can make whatever shall be designed against us, the means of promoting our real good.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XL.

1 The butler—and the baker.] From the second verse it is evident that these were men in considerable posts in the king's household, where they were styled in the Hebrew, saraisai, which, as we have seen in the note on chap xxxviii. 36. implies an officer of some high and considerable rank.

Had offended, &c.] We are not informed of the crime for which these persons were committed; some have therefore imagined, that it may be inferred from the word translated "lift up thine head," ver. 13. which signifies, To reckon or examine an account, that they were accused of embezzling the king's treasure, by bringing in false accounts, &c. &c.

3 In the house of the captain of the guard.] It seems by this title, that Potiphar, Joseph's former master, was the warden of this prison, and if so, we need not wonder that Joseph's confinement was so easy. Refer to chap. xxxvii. 36.

Was bound.] This should have been rendered, according to the Vulgate, Chaldee, and Arabic, Where Joseph had been bound, or imprisoned; because it is evident from the close of the xxxixth chapter, that he was released from his chains, and employed ■ a deputy.

4 And the captain of the guard charged Joseph with them.] No doubt Potiphar, his old master, who must have now been convinced of his innocence, by the confidence he placed in him; though to conceal the dishonour of his wife, he still confined him.

A season in ward.] The word translated "season," signifies, Days ■ years. The Vulgate renders it, A little while; the Chaldee, Some days; and the Arabic, They were detained for some time. The English word "ward," signifies, Custody or guard.

5 Each man according to the interpretation of his dream, &c.] i. e. Their dreams were very suitable to the respective offices they held, and to the events that were to happen to them some time after.

Before CHRIST 1718. 8 And they said unto him, We have dreamed a dream, and there is ■■■ interpreter of it. And Joseph said unto them, Do not interpretations belong to God? tell me them, I pray you.

9 And the chief butler told his dream to Joseph, and said unto him, In my dream, behold, ■ vine ■■ before me;

10 And in the vine were three branches: and it was as though it budded, and her blossoms shot forth; and the clusters thereof brought forth ripe grapes:

11 And Pharaoh's cup was in my hand: and I took the grapes, and pressed them into Pharaoh's cup, and I gave the cup into Pharaoh's hand.

12 And Joseph said unto him, This is the interpretation of it. The three branches ■■ three days:

13 Yet within three days shall Pharaoh lift up thine head, and restore thee unto thy place: and thou shalt deliver Pharaoh's cup into his hand, after the former manner when thou wast his butler.

14 But think on me when it shall be well with thee, and shew kindness, I pray thee, unto me, and make mention of me unto Pharaoh, and bring me out of this house:

15 For indeed I ■■ stolen away out of the land of the Hebrews: and here also have I done nothing that they should put me into the dungeon.

16 When the chief baker saw that the interpretation was good, he said unto Joseph, I also was in my dream, and, behold, I had three white baskets on my head:

17 And in the uppermost basket there was of all manner of bakemeats for Pharaoh: and the birds did eat them out of the basket upon my head.

8. Do not interpretations belong to God, &c.] Joseph, in this question, may seem to allude to their opinion, which was, that the gods ■■ the authors of dreams, and that the Egyptian priests who interpreted them on the principles of symbolical hieroglyphics, ■■ assisted by them, especially as they imagined that hieroglyphic writing ■■ given to the gods likewise. The argument might likewise be pursued: you acknowledge that your deities are the authors of dreams, and assist your priests in interpreting them; why will you not acknowledge that God whom I serve is possessed of equal power, and can enable ■■ to interpret your dreams, ■■ well as your deities can enable their votaries ■■ give ■■ explanation.

13. Joseph said unto him, This is the interpretation, &c.] It is a received opinion, that our dreams generally consist of such images as make a strong impression upon our minds when awake. The ideas which composed the dream of the chief butler countenance this opinion; and the interpretation which Joseph gave of it as strongly support what we said, in the preceding notes, concerning the principles and art of interpretation of dreams. That the three branches would signify three days, could not be deduced from any of the symbolic characters in Horapollon, ■■ from the rules of Artemidorus, though the restoration of the butler possibly might; whence then did Joseph acquire his interpretation? The scripture informs us, ver. 8. from God.

13. Lift up thine head, &c.] The Hebrew word, translated "lift up," signifies ■■ reckon, muster, or to audit ■■ account, and rosh, the word translated "head," signifies likewise ■■ aggregate, or sum total of any number added together, ■■ may be perceived from comparing Exod. xxx. 12. with Numb. i. 49. wherein both these words are used in that sense; hence we may infer, that their opinion is plausible who imagine, that the crime for which these delinquents were committed, ■■ for ■■ fraud, or bringing in false accounts; and that when they were audited, the butler's account appeared to be just, while that of the baker was confirmed to be fraudulent and false. Our translators have therefore been thought ■■ have rendered this sentence too literally, as it implies that both the butler and baker would have met with the same fate, which is contrary to fact. We must not admit, that some commentators apprehend the sentence implies only that Pharaoh would muster ■■ number the butler among his servants; and, ■■ support this sense, pretend that ■■ certain days the ■■ or muster roll of all the officers of his court were called over, and such ■■ heinously offended were struck out of the roll, while the less guilty were pardoned, released from prison, and restored; the 20th verse of this chapter is referred ■■ as supporting this conjecture, but it must be wrested miserably ■■ support it. If the former expression should be objected to, it may suffice to add, that the lifting up a person's head is often used in scripture to signify deliverance from misery, or the restoring of a person to his former dignity; thus did Evil-merodach lift up the head of Jehoiachin king of Judah, 2 Kings xxv. 27. Thus the Psalmist, when restored to his kingdom, after he had been obliged to fly from thence by his son Absalom, addresses himself to God, ■■ "the lifter up of his head," Psal. iiii. 3. The ancient translations confirm this sense, by rendering the word Pharaoh shall remember thee, or thy office.

Before CHRIST 1718. 18 And Joseph answered and said, This is the interpretation thereof: The three baskets are three days:

19 Yet within three days shall Pharaoh lift up thy head from off thee, and shall hang thee on a tree; and the birds shall eat thy flesh from off thee.

20 ¶ And it came to pass the third day, which was Pharaoh's birthday, that he made a feast unto all his servants: and he lifted up the head of the chief butler and of the chief baker among his servants.

21 And he restored the chief butler unto his butlership again; and he gave the cup into Pharaoh's hand:

22 But he hanged the chief baker: ■■ Joseph had interpreted to them.

23 ¶ Yet did not the chief butler remember Joseph, but forgot him.

C H A P. XLI.

■ Pharaoh's two dreams. ■ His butler telleth him of Joseph. 14 Pharaoh sendeth for and consulteth him. 25 He interpreteth the dreams, and giveth Pharaoh counsel. 38 Joseph is advanced, and marrieth an Egyptian wife. 46 His wife provision in the years of plenty. 50 Ephraim and Manassah are born to him. 53 The famine beginneth.

AND it came to pass at the end of two full years, that Pharaoh dreamed: and, behold, he stood by the river.

2 And, behold, there came up out of the river seven well-favoured kine and fatfleshed; and they fed in ■ meadow.

3 And,

14. But think ■ me when it shall be well with thee, &c.] Thus Joseph being divinely assured of the certainty of his predictions, conjures him to think on the person who foretold the happiness he was to enjoy in a short time.

16. On my head.] It was customary for Egyptian men to carry their burdens on their heads, but the women on their shoulders.

19. Thy head from off thee, &c.] The baker, in relating his dream to Joseph, had, ver. 17. made use of the Hebrew words meal roshi, "upon my head;" and in interpreting the dream, Joseph echoes the words back again to him in this sentence, roshka mealeka, translated, "thy head from off thee." Though it may seem strange to find the historian asserting, that the baker should be beheaded first, and hanged afterwards; yet it was customary to behead a criminal, and then to hang him up. Jeremiah seems to confirm this assertion, when he laments, that "the princes were hanged up by their hands," Lam. v. 12. which intimates that they had before lost their heads.

23. Yet did not the chief butler remember Joseph, &c.] This charge argues him not only to have been guilty of ingratitude, but of a breach of promise, and of inhumanity likewise. He must certainly have been ■ man of narrow mind, to be so soon corrupted with the pleasures of a court, as to forget the danger from whence he had so lately escaped; he must have been ungrateful to have lost all sense of the person who had freed him from anxiety, when tormented with a vision in the horrors of a prison; he must have been void of humanity to have so soon forgotten the miseries of a person who had done him ■ remarkable piece of service, and was left by him languishing in ■ confinement which he had never merited: but luxury and grandeur too soon corrupt the mind, blunt its sense of social happiness, and obliterate every generous sentiment of grief and philanthropy.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XL.

Though severe and unjust the treatment which Joseph met with, he never let fall the least word of murmuring or complaint. The great point he kept always in view was, to do his duty, whatever case or station he was in. He never abandoned himself to despair whilst he was ■ bond-slave, but gave himself up intirely to the service of his master. When condemned unjustly, he had too much generosity to make any remonstrances to bring dishonour on his master, though he might have vindicated himself thereby. And when prudence here required him to recommend himself to the chief butler, he does it with such moderation and charity, as cannot be sufficiently admired: "For indeed I was stolen away out of the land of the Hebrews, and here also I have done nothing that they should put me into the dungeon." He neither names his brethren who had sold him, nor his mistress who had unjustly accused him.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XLI.

1. He stood by the river.] i. e. By the Nile.

2. There came up out of the river.] Egypt owed its fertility to the overflowing of the Nile, and these fat and lean kine are with great propriety represented as rising out of that river.

Before
1715.

3 And, behold, seven other kine came up after them out of the river, ill favoured and leanfleshed; and stood by the other kine upon the brink of the river.

4 And the ill-favoured and leanfleshed kine did eat up the seven well favoured and fat kine. So Pharaoh awoke.

5 And he slept and dreamed the second time: and, behold, seven ears of corn came up upon one stalk, rank and good,

6 And, behold, seven thin ears and blasted with the east wind sprung up after them.

7 And the seven thin ears devoured the seven rank and full ears. And Pharaoh awoke, and, behold, it was a dream.

8 And it came to pass in the morning that his spirit was troubled; and he sent and called for all the magicians of Egypt, and all the wise men thereof: and Pharaoh told them his dream: but there was none that could interpret them unto Pharaoh.

9 ¶ Then spake the chief butler unto Pharaoh, saying, I do remember my faults this day:

10 Pharaoh was wroth with his servants, and put me in ward in the captain of the guard's house, both me and the chief baker:

11 And we dreamed a dream in one night, I and he; we dreamed each man according to the interpretation of his dream.

12 And there was there with us a young man, an Hebrew, servant to the captain of the guard; and we told him, and he interpreted to us our dreams; to each man according to his dream he did interpret.

13 And it came to pass, as he interpreted to us, so it was; me he restored unto mine office, and him he hanged.

14 ¶ Then Pharaoh sent and called Joseph, and they brought him hastily out of the dungeon: and he shaved himself, and changed his raiment, and came in unto Pharaoh.

15 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, I have dreamed a dream, and there is none that can interpret it: and I have heard say of thee, that thou canst understand a dream to interpret it.

In a meadow.] The word in the original is baachu, which is Egyptian, resembles the Arabic acbam, pools, or places overflown with water; and may be translated, Luxuriant pastures, caused by the overflowing of the Nile. It signifies, A flag, which was a common name given to every vegetable that grows in a marshy place.

3 Upon the brink of the river.] The overflowing of the Nile being the cause of fruitfulness, of course when its waters were so included within its banks that the kine resorted thither for drink, nothing else but famine could be expected. Thus if any one sees a river overflown, it is a sign of fertility; but a river sunk within its banks, is a sign of want.

¶ The magicians, &c.] In ver. 8. of the preceding chapter, we have observed that the interpretation of dreams made up a considerable part of the ancient pagan religion; and the Egyptian priests were the first who professed this art. Their interpretation was founded on the symbolic hieroglyphics, in which they were deeply read, and which are generally believed to have been given them by the gods. This system of sacred learning was not only preserved by them in characters termed sacred, but likewise recorded in a dialect of their own invention, and also deemed sacred.

9 I do remember my faults, &c.] This may imply more than a bare recollection of the fault for which he had been committed, the confession of which included a tacit acknowledgment of Pharaoh's mercy; for it may be supposed to imply likewise, a consciousness of his being ungrateful to Joseph, in forgetting his request to make use of his interest with Pharaoh for his liberation.

14 They brought him hastily.] It is in the Hebrew, They made him run.

He shaved himself, &c.] Joseph seems to have copied the manners of the Egyptians and other oriental nations, who used in times of distress to let their beards grow, but at other seasons to shave, and appear remarkably clean in linen garments.

15 That thou canst understand a dream, &c.] This is in the Hebrew, Thou wilt hear a dream to interpret it. But it must be observed, that the word shams signifies both to hear and understand. The Samaritan confirms the literal sense, by reading, When thou hast heard dreams, thou canst interpret them; and the Chaldee and Arabic support this meaning.

16 It is not in me, &c.] In this reply, Joseph disclaims the rules of interpretation used by the Egyptian priests, and attributes all his knowledge to God.

No. 4.

Before
CHRIST
1715.

16 And Joseph answered Pharaoh, saying, It is not in me: God shall give Pharaoh an answer of peace.

17 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, In my dream, behold, I stood upon the bank of the river:

18 And, behold, there came up out of the river seven kine fatfleshed and well favoured; and they fed in a meadow:

19 And, behold, seven other kine came up after them, poor and very ill favoured and leanfleshed, such as I never saw in all the land of Egypt for badness:

20 And the lean and the ill favoured kine did eat up the first seven fat kine:

21 And when they had eaten them up, it could not be known that they had eaten them; but they were still ill favoured, as at the beginning. So I awoke.

22 And I saw in my dream, and, behold, seven ears came up in one stalk, full and good:

23 And, behold, seven ears, withered, thin, and blasted with the east wind, sprung up after them:

24 And the thin ears devoured the seven good ears: and I told this unto the magicians; but there was none that could declare it to me.

25 ¶ And Joseph said unto Pharaoh, The dream of Pharaoh is one: God hath shewed Pharaoh what he is about to do.

26 The seven good kine are seven years; and the seven good ears are seven years: the dream is one.

27 And the seven thin and ill favoured kine that came up after them are seven years; and the seven empty ears blasted with the east wind shall be seven years of famine.

28 This is the thing which I have spoken unto Pharaoh: What God is about to do he sheweth unto Pharaoh.

29 Behold, there come seven years of great plenty throughout all the land of Egypt:

30 And there shall arise after them seven years of famine; and all the plenty shall be forgotten in the land of Egypt; and the famine shall consume the land;

31 And the plenty shall not be known in the land by reason of that famine following; for it shall be very grievous.

32 And for that the dream was doubled unto Pharaoh twice;

17 Pharaoh said unto Joseph, &c.] Telling both his dreams in a more ample manner, though to the same purpose, than before related.

18 There came up out of the river, &c.] In dreams, phantasms were superstitiously thought to be symbolical; God, therefore, when it was his good pleasure to send dreams to Pharaoh, made the foundation of them two well known symbols; and this, doubtless, in order to engage the dreamer's serious attention: but then, to confound the Egyptian interpreters of dreams, these dreams were so circumstanced with matter foreign to the principles of their art, that there was need of an interpretation from above.

25 The dream of Pharaoh is one.] The meaning of this expression is thus explained in the Arabic, The sense or meaning of the two dreams is one, or the same.

God hath shewed Pharaoh, &c.] i. e. The dream is a prediction of some future event. The Jewish rabbins pretend that the magi had interpreted the kine to signify the daughters of Pharaoh.

26 The seven good kine.] Pharaoh had two dreams, one of the seven kine, the other of seven ears of corn. Both of these phantasms were symbols of Egypt; the ears, denoting its extinguished fertility; the kine, its great tutelary patroness, Isis. Pharaoh knew thus much without an interpreter: and hence arose his solicitude and anxiety to understand the rest, as a matter that concerned the public: accordingly when Joseph came to decypher these dreams, he does not tell the king that the two sevens denoted seven years in Egypt, but simply seven years.

Are seven years, &c.] We are informed, that kine signify years: likewise we are informed, that cows denote time, or seasons; if they be fat, they signified fruitful seasons; but lean, scarcity or dearth.

30 The famine shall consume, &c.] This circumstance was plainly signified, ver. 20. by the lean kine eating up the fat ones.

32 Doubled—twice—because the thing is established by God, &c.] The Nile is the natural cause of plenty or famine in Egypt; for when that river in its natural overflowing rises only twelve cubits, a famine ensues; when fourteen, they have a good year; when fifteen, very good; and if it rises to sixteen, they have a luxuriant plenty. Now that this river should overflow so largely for seven years successively as to produce an extraordinary plenty, and during the next seven years rise so little as to lay a long and grievous famine, is a circumstance out of the common course of nature, could only be caused by the interposition of Providence, and could only be foreseen and foretold by the omniscient Deity.

Before CHRIST 1715. twice; it is because the thing is established by God, and God will shortly bring it to pass.

33 Now therefore let Pharaoh look out a man discreet and wise, and set him over the land of Egypt.

34 Let Pharaoh do this, and let him appoint officers over the land, and take up the fifth part of the land of Egypt in the seven plentiful years.

35 And let them gather all the food of those good years that come, and lay up corn under the hand of Pharaoh, and let them keep food in the cities.

36 And that food shall be for store to the land against the seven years of famine, which shall be in the land of Egypt; that the land perish not through the famine.

37 And the thing was good in the eyes of Pharaoh, and in the eyes of all his servants.

38 ¶ And Pharaoh said unto his servants, Can we find such a one as this is, a man in whom the spirit of God is?

39 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, Forasmuch as God hath shewed thee all this, there is none so discreet and wise as thou art:

40 Thou shalt be over my house, and according unto thy word shall all my people be ruled: only in the throne will I be greater than thou.

41 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, See, I have set thee over all the land of Egypt.

42 And Pharaoh took off his ring from his hand, and put it upon Joseph's hand, and arrayed him in vestures of fine linen, and put a gold chain about his neck;

43 And he made him to ride in the second chariot which he had; and they cried before him, Bow the knee: and he made him ruler over all the land of Egypt.

44 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, I am Pharaoh, and without thee shall no man lift up his hand or foot in all the land of Egypt.

35 And lay up corn, &c.] Some think this should have been translated zean, or "spelt," in conformity to the Egyptian manners; for they accounted it a reproach to eat bread made of barley or wheat. Instead of this, they used a fine flour, called by some olyra, and by others zea, or "spelt;" and the bread made with it they named collestis, from its glutinous nature.

38 Can we find, &c.] This is in the Hebrew, Can we find any thing like the man, who has the Spirit of God in him? The Chaldee renders it, Can we find such a man, in whom is the spirit of prophecy from the face of the Lord? and the Arabic, Can we find a man so skilful as this, in whom the Spirit of God is?

40 Shall all my people be ruled.] Several commentators, finding that the original word is translated, Armed, as it is rendered in 1 Chron. xii. 2. imagine, that Pharaoh invested Joseph with the military power; which seems inconsistent with the words immediately following in this verse. The Psalmist, who is the best commentator on this text, Psalm cv. 22. on the contrary, shews that it was the civil power, and the reason why he was presented to this dignity, assigned in ver. 34, 35, and 36, shews it could be no other.

Only in the throne will I be, &c.] From this it appears that the office with which Joseph was invested was purely ministerial.

42 The ring from his hand.] This was a ring or signet which the eastern kings wore as a badge of the royal dignity, and which generally descended to their ancestors. This ceremony, therefore, was not only a mark of Pharaoh's favour, but likewise a mark of the authority with which Joseph was invested.

Vestures of fine linen, &c.] The linen of this country was celebrated for fineness all over the world; it was therefore dyed purple, and was the usual dress of the priests, who were the chief persons in the administration. The ancient translations, for want of attending to this circumstance, have rendered the words, Vestures of silk.

43 Second chariot.] i. e. The chariot which immediately followed his own in any public cavalcade. The Samaritan translation renders it, His double chariot; and the Arabic, He was mounted upon his second horse.

They cried before him.] In other words, they cried to his face. The Vulgate renders it, A herald proclaiming; with which the Septuagint agrees.

Bow the knee, &c.] i. e. His guard that attended him when he rode out in his chariot, called to the people as they passed along, bow the knee to Joseph, as a token of veneration and respect; or they proclaimed him abrech, "this is the father of the king."

45 Zaphnath-paaneah.] This word signifies one to whom hidden things are revealed. It was customary for princes to give foreigners a new name, to denote their naturalization, to take away all invidious distinction, and to declare them worthy of their most intimate favour. See Dan. i. 7.

Before CHRIST 1715. 45 And Pharaoh called Joseph's name Zaphnath-paaneah; and he gave him to wife, Asenath, the daughter of Poti-pherah, priest of On. And Joseph went out over all the land of Egypt.

46 ¶ And Joseph was thirty years old when he stood before Pharaoh king of Egypt. And Joseph went out from the presence of Pharaoh, and went throughout all the land of Egypt.

47 And in the seven plentiful years the earth brought forth by handfuls.

48 And he gathered up all the food of the seven years, which were in the land of Egypt, and laid up the food in the cities: the food of the field, which was round about every city, laid he up in the same.

49 And Joseph gathered corn as the sand of the sea, very much, until he left numbering; for it was without number.

50 ¶ And unto Joseph were born two sons before the years of famine came, which Asenath the daughter of Poti-pherah, priest of On, bare unto him.

51 And Joseph called the name of the first-born, Manasseh: for God, said he, hath made me to forget all my toil, and all my father's house.

52 And the name of the second called he Ephraim: for God hath caused me to be fruitful in the land of my affliction.

53 ¶ And the seven years of plentifulness, that was in the land of Egypt, were ended.

54 And the seven years of dearth began to come, according as Joseph had said: and the dearth was in all lands; but in all the land of Egypt there was bread.

55 And when all the land of Egypt was famished, the people cried to Pharaoh for bread: and Pharaoh said unto all the Egyptians, Go unto Joseph; what he saith to you, do.

56 And

Gave him to wife the daughter of Poti-pherah.] It is evident that the king was in a disposition to do Joseph the highest honours, from the circumstances of the story; and that he principally consulted his establishment in this alliance, appears also plain. The public administration was in the hands of the priesthood, who would unwillingly bear a stranger at the head of affairs. The bringing Joseph, therefore, into their family, an order which was hereditary, was the best expedient to allay their prejudices and envy; and this Pharaoh did most effectually, by marrying him into that cast which was then of greatest name and credit among their people.

Priest of On.] Which is the same with Aven, Ezek. xxx. 17. about twenty-two miles from Memphis, and said to be the metropolis of the Heliopolitan name; and has been since called Heliopolis, as it is here in the Septuagint version, which signifies the city of the sun, and is the same with bethshemesh, "the house of the sun," Jer. xlii. 13.

Went out, &c.] It is, He went as a ruler, or exercising his authority, in the Chaldee and Arabic.

46 Joseph was thirty years old.] Consequently Joseph must have been thirteen years in slavery, as he was but seventeen when he first came to Egypt.

Stood before Pharaoh, &c.] None but the great officers of state were admitted into the royal presence, in the eastern countries; this phrase therefore intimates the dignity of his post.

47 Brought forth by handfuls.] Egypt's fertility was so remarkable, that it was by tradition supposed to be the first place that was inhabited on that account. But how great soever its fruitfulness was by nature, it seems by this account to be so much increased, that the miraculous interposition of providence was not only visible, but likewise striking.

48 Gathered up all the food, &c.] The word "all" cannot be used in its utmost latitude, but must be restrained either to signify the fifth part, mentioned ver. 34. or else all the superfluous corn which he acquired by purchase, and laid up, not only to support the wants of the Egyptians, but likewise those of the neighbouring states, during the famine of seven years.

51 Manasseh.] Which signifies, Forgetfulness. The name alludes to the Hebrew words, nassaneh Elobus, rendered, "God hath made me to forget."

All my toil, and all my father's house.] i. e. All the troubles to which I was exposed while I lived with my father, and all the distress which I endured in Egypt from my brethren's cruelty.

And when all the land of Egypt was famished, &c.] Seeing the increase was extraordinary, Joseph could not have occasioned this scarcity, by exacting only a fifth. But it is probable that the famine was felt sooner in the neighbouring nations than in Egypt, and that the Egyptians had made large exports, in order to supply their necessities.

Before CHRIST 1708. 56 And the famine was over all the face of the earth: And Joseph opened all the storehouses, and sold unto the Egyptians; and the famine waxed sore in the land of Egypt.

57 And all countries came into Egypt to Joseph for to buy corn; because that the famine was so sore in all lands.

C H A P. XLII.

1 Jacob sendeth ten of his sons to buy corn in Egypt. 6 They are imprisoned by Joseph for spies, but set at liberty on condition to bring Benjamin. 21 Their remorse for Joseph, who commandeth his tendernefs, and detaineth Simeon for a pledge. 25 They return with corn and their money. 29 Their relation to Jacob. 35 He is afraid, and refuseth to send Benjamin.

1707. NOW when Jacob saw that there was corn in Egypt, Jacob said unto his sons, Why do ye look one upon another?

2 And he said, Behold, I have heard that there is corn in Egypt: get ye down thither, and buy for us from thence; that we may live, and not die.

3 And Joseph's ten brethren went down to buy corn in Egypt.

4 But Benjamin, Joseph's brother, Jacob sent not with his brethren; for he said, Lest peradventure mischief befall him.

5 And the sons of Israel came to buy corn among those that came: for the famine was in the land of Canaan.

6 ¶ And Joseph was the governor over the land, and he it was that sold to all the people of the land: and Joseph's brethren came and bowed down themselves before him with their faces to the earth.

7 And Joseph saw his brethren, and he knew them, but made himself strange unto them, and spake roughly unto them; and he said unto them, Whence come ye? And they said, From the land of Canaan to buy food.

8 And Joseph knew his brethren, but they knew not him.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XLI.

We find in this chapter an useful admonition respecting the imprisonment of Joseph, who remained in confinement three years. This may seem a long time to us, and as if God was not mindful of him. We should have looked upon him with concern, had we seen him in bonds, and known his innocence; we should have hastened to have freed him. But God, who had a far more indulgent and tender compassion for him, left him in a condition from which we should have delivered him. He knew what was necessary to confirm Joseph in humility, patience, and submission to his will. He knew what was wanting to his virtue, he saw his future temptations and dangers, and prepared him by his bondage for his advancement. Thus he often deals with good men; he strengthens them in patience and humility, and does not expose them to temptation till they are duly prepared to resist it.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XLII.

¶ Saw, &c.] This word in the Hebrew signifies, to understand, and is substituted instead of hearing, as appears from ver. 2. Exod. xx. 18. and from Acts vii. 12.

¶ I have heard, &c.] A confirmation of the sense we have given of the first verse: though it is not at all improbable but Jacob might have seen the corn brought by those persons, who informed him that in Egypt it was to be purchased.

4 Lest peradventure mischief, &c.] Jacob's extraordinary affection to Benjamin was, because he was the son of Rachel, whom he loved more than her sister; and what still heightened his affection was, his imagination that he was the only surviving son of Rachel.

6 Joseph was the governor.] Shallit, the word which we render "governor," has two senses: 1. Absolute and independent authority; or, 2. That derived from another.

And bowed down themselves before him, &c.] Which manner of salutation was not in use among the Egyptians; but by using the customary form of their family, the dreams of Joseph, as far as they had any relation to themselves, had doubtless brought those dreams to Joseph's recollection.

7 And Joseph knew—but they knew not, &c.] Joseph had been separated from them when young, and his features might probably have been so much altered by age, that they could not recollect him; but if we consider the alteration made by dress and grandeur, and that he spake unto them by an interpreter, they could not possibly have had the least suspicion that he was their brother whom they sold.

9 And Joseph remembered the dreams which he dreamed of them, and said unto them, Ye are spies to see the nakedness of the land ye are come.

10 And they said unto him, Nay, my lord, but to buy food are thy servants come.

11 We are all one man's sons; we are true men, thy servants are no spies.

12 And he said unto them, Nay, but to see the nakedness of the land ye are come.

13 And they said, Thy servants are twelve brethren, the sons of one man in the land of Canaan; and, behold, the youngest is this day with our father, and one is not.

14 And Joseph said unto them, That is it that I spake unto you, saying, Ye are spies.

15 Hereby ye shall be proved: By the life of Pharaoh ye shall not go from hence, except your youngest brother come hither:

16 Send one of you, and let him fetch your brother, and ye shall be kept in prison, that your words may be proved, whether there be any truth in you: or else by the life of Pharaoh surely ye are spies.

17 And he put them altogether into ward three days.

18 And Joseph said unto them the third day, This do, and live; for I fear God:

19 If ye be true men, let one of your brethren be bound in the house of your prison: go ye, carry corn for the famine of your houses:

20 But bring your youngest brother unto me; so shall your words be verified, and ye shall not die. And they did so.

21 ¶ And they said one to another, We are verily guilty concerning our brother, in that we saw the anguish of his soul, when he besought us, and we would not hear; therefore is this distress come upon us.

22 And Reuben answered them, saying, Spake I not unto you, saying, Do not sin against the child; and ye would not hear? therefore, behold, also his blood is required.

23 And

9 Ye are spies.] These words should have been rendered interrogatively, Are ye not spies? and is rather to be understood as a charge than a positive declaration.

To see the nakedness of the land, &c.] i. e. To observe the fortifications, and remark the weakness or nakedness of the land. And it should be observed, that Joseph's brethren entered Egypt through those passes, by which alone an invasion was practicable.

11 We are all one man's sons, &c.] Signifying, Thy servants are no spies, but all the sons of one man; and surely it can never be suspected that any person would send all his children on so dangerous a design, nor that a whole country has any thing to fear from the efforts of one family.

15 By the life of Pharaoh, &c.] Which expression is by the generality of interpreters considered as an oath, though the words could not signify any more than, As sure as Pharaoh liveth: or, As sincerely as I desire the life of Pharaoh. If we consider the words attentively, we shall be soon convinced that they only imply a solemn asseveration, that he would certainly do so and so, as he valued the life and honour of his prince. Thus Hannah, when she presented her son to Eli, the priest, makes a similar asseveration, "As thy soul liveth, my lord, I am the woman that stood by thee here praying unto the Lord." That the sons of Jacob understood it only in this sense, is sufficiently evident from the words of Judah to his father, "The man did solemnly protest unto us," chap. xliii. 3. It must however be confessed, that this was the most solemn appeal an Egyptian could make use of.

18 For I fear God.] Either this was a solemn assurance of his veracity, according to the literal sense of the words, and added to gain credit with them; or else it was a tacit reproach of their perfidy and cruelty to him.

20 Bring your youngest brother, &c.] Certainly the roughness with which Joseph treated his brethren may be justified, if we suppose it was with an intention to bring their treatment of him to their minds; and induce them to repent of the evil they had done him. His asperity was designed to try how they were affected each other. Accordingly, his view in insisting upon seeing his brother Benjamin, was no other than to satisfy some suspicions he entertained, that they were capable of treating him with the same inhumanity as he himself had experienced from them when in their power.

21 We are verily guilty concerning our brother, &c.] Calamity is often the most effectual monitor to awaken conscience, and make mankind acquainted with themselves. The behaviour of Joseph's brethren

23 And they knew not that Joseph understood them; for he spake unto them by an interpreter.

24 And he turned himself about from them, and wept; and returned to them again, and communed with them, and took from them Simcon, and bound him before their eyes.

25 ¶ Then Joseph commanded to fill their sacks with corn, and to restore every man's money into his sack, and to give them provision for the way: and thus did he unto them.

26 And they laded their asses with the corn, and departed thence.

27 And as one of them opened his sack to give his ass provender in the inn, he espied his money; for, behold, it was in his sack's mouth.

28 And he said unto his brethren, My money is restored, and, lo, it is even in my sack: and their heart failed them, and they were afraid, saying one to another, What is this that God hath done unto us?

29 ¶ And they came unto Jacob their father unto the land of Canaan, and told him all that befell unto them; saying,

30 The man, who is the lord of the land, spake roughly to us, and took us for spies of the country.

31 And we said unto him, We are true men; we are no spies:

32 We be twelve brethren, sons of our father; one is not, and the youngest is this day with our father in the land of Canaan.

33 And the man, the lord of the country, said unto us, Hereby shall I know that ye are true men; leave one of your brethren here with me, and take food for the famine of your households, and begone;

34 And bring your younger brother unto me: then shall I know that ye are no spies, but that ye are true men: so will I deliver you your brother, and ye shall traffic in the land.

35 ¶ And it came to pass as they emptied their sacks, that, behold, every man's bundle of money was in his sack: and when both they and their father saw the bundles of money, they were afraid.

36 And Jacob their father said unto them, Me have ye bereaved of my children: Joseph is not, and Simcon is not, and ye will take Benjamin away: all these things are against me.

37 And Reuben spake unto his father, saying, Slay brethren affords us a lively instance of this. They, who before were so blinded with envy and passion, as to be insensible of the anguish and supplication of their brother, now relent into pity, when experience had convinced them what poignant grief and distress an innocent supplicant feels, when all his prayers and intreaties are unavailing.

23 He spake unto them by an interpreter. This is in the Hebrew, An interpreter was between them. Joseph, doubtless, did this in order to support an air of majesty, and at the same time to prevent his being discovered by his brethren.

24 And he turned—from them and wept. Notwithstanding Joseph could counterfeit the stranger in his looks, his air, his voice, he still retained the brother in his heart. The confusion and distress of his brethren awakened all his fraternal tenderness, and drew from his eyes tears of compassion.

And took—Simcon, and bound him, &c. He was the principal actor in the murder of the Shechemites, and there is reason to think from his fiery nature, that he was one of the most implacable enemies to Joseph. The rabbins say, that he was the very person who put him in the pit.

28 Their heart failed them, &c. The Hebrew renders it, Their heart went forth; the Arabic translates it, Their hearts were much distressed. Hence we may conclude, that they were under a great consternation, and, as the original expresses it, shuddered at the consequences.

36 All these things are against me. This is in the Hebrew, All these things are calamities upon me; which shews the burden of grief under which Jacob laboured, and is a tacit charge against his sons, as conspiring together to render miserable his old age.

37 Reuben spake unto his father. Reuben was Jacob's first born, and on that account presumed to address him; he had likewise addressed Joseph in Egypt, and might imagine that he should be more certain of succeeding than any other of Jacob's children.

Slay my two sons, if I bring him not unto thee, &c. Notwithstanding it was not in Reuben's power to secure Benjamin's safe return;

AND the famine was sore in the land.

2 And it came to pass, when they had eaten up the corn which they had brought out of Egypt, their father said unto them, Go again, buy us a little food.

3 And Judah spake unto them, saying, The man did solemnly protest unto us, saying, Ye shall not see my face, except your brother be with you.

4 If thou wilt send our brother with us, we will go down and buy thee food:

5 But if thou wilt not send him, we will not go down: for the man said unto us, Ye shall not see my face, except your brother be with you.

6 And Israel said, Wherefore dealt ye so ill with me, as to tell the man whether ye had yet a brother?

7 And they said, The man asked us straitly of our state, and of our kindred, saying, Is your father yet alive? have ye another brother? and we told him according to the tenor of these words: could we certainly know that he would say, Bring your brother down?

8 And Judah said unto Israel his father, Send the lad with me, and we will arise and go; that we may live, and not die, both we, and thou, and also our little ones.

9 I will be surety for him; of my hand shalt thou require him: if I bring him not unto thee, and set him before thee, then let me bear the blame for ever:

10 For except we had lingered, surely now we had returned this second time.

11 And their father Israel said unto them, If it must be so now, do this; take of the best fruits in the land in your vessels, and carry down the man a present, a little balm, and a little honey, spices, and myrrh, nuts, and almonds:

12 And

yet he was so fully convinced of his own and his brethren's intention, and so confident that Joseph would invariably observe his promise, that he dares stake the life of his two sons on the event.

38 Bring down my gray hairs with sorrow to the grave. These words are remarkably pathetic and picturesque; they paint to us the hoary patriarch in the attitude of grief, lamenting the loss of his children, in the most melting expressions of paternal affection.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS CHAP. XLIII.

This chapter displays the happy use of affliction, how effectual it is to awaken conscience, and shew men to themselves when nothing else shall produce that effect. Men never entirely efface the sense which God has impressed upon their hearts, of his presence and justice. They will never succeed in persuading themselves that sin is in its nature indifferent, or was not seen, or will remain unpunished. Their fears may be removed sometimes by the patience and silence of their judge, or the number of accomplices; but when vengeance comes to shew itself, they shall be the first to own that they have deserved it, and their accomplices will then seem to shun as so many witnesses, who are ready to accuse and confound them.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XLIII.

3 Judah spake, &c. For Reuben had already addressed him without success: Levi probably was still odious to him on account of the massacre of the Shechemites; Judah therefore, being the next in birth, and a man of a warm and sanguine disposition, undertakes to persuade him, and speaks to him with much ardour.

8 Send the lad, &c. At this time Benjamin was twenty-four years of age, and had children of his own, but is here called a lad, because he was the youngest of all the sons of Jacob, and the darling of their aged father. The word in the Hebrew properly signifies, A young man, and is so rendered, Sam. xviii. 12.

11 Take of the best fruits. This is in the Hebrew, Take of the praise of the land.

15 ¶ And the men took that present, and they took double money in their hand, and Benjamin; and rose up, and went down to Egypt, and stood before Joseph.

16 And when Joseph saw Benjamin with them, he said to the ruler of his house, Bring these men home, and slay, and make ready; for these men shall dine with me at noon.

17 And the man did as Joseph bade; and the man brought the men into Joseph's house.

18 And the men were afraid, because they were brought into Joseph's house; and they said, Because of the money that was returned in our sacks at the first time are we brought in; that he may seek occasion against us, and fall upon us, and take us for bondmen, and our asses.

19 ¶ And they came near to the steward of Joseph's house, and they communed with him at the door of the house,

20 And said, O sir, we came indeed down at the first time to buy food:

Balm.] This is translated Resin in the Vulgate and Chaldee; but it was certainly the balm of Gilead, a valuable article.

Honey.] This is in the Hebrew, debebb, which signifies likewise "dates," the Jewish rabbins observe; and as Judea abounded in palm-trees, this was one of the fruits of the land. But honey was so common every where, that it could not possibly have been selected as a rarity by Jacob.

Spices.] This is in Hebrew, neboth. The Septuagint translate it by Frankincense, or the aromatics used in sacrifices; it seems indeed to have been storax, a precious aromatic gum, used in most spicy ointments, and thus the Vulgate translates it.

Myrrh, &c.] This is in Hebrew, lot. It was the stacte, or ladanum of the Septuagint. It is supposed to be the gum of the cypress-tree.

12 Take double money.] The money that was returned in the mouth of your sacks, more, to purchase a second supply of corn.

14 If I be bereaved.] The Vulgate, And I shall be without children; the Arabic, I am afraid that I shall be bereaved of my children, as I have been bereaved. The word is understood in different senses, all of which are in distress; it may signify, I resign myself to the will of God; and if it be agreeable to him that I should be robbed of my children, I must be robbed of them; or it may denote the exclamation of sudden distress, generally expressed by the repetition of the cause of sorrow, and this the Hebrew seems expressly to denote, shacholiti, shacholiti, "I am bereaved! I am bereaved!" Or it may paint the melancholy circumstances they would leave him in, without one of his children left behind to comfort him, and full of apprehensions that all his offspring might fall as victims to the resentment of Joseph, whom they had represented as a man austere and rough.

16 Slay.] The Hebrew is, Kill a killing; which expresses a very great slaughter of animals for their feast. From this expression, compared with Joseph's interpretation of the dream of Pharaoh's baker, it is evident that animal food was customary in Egypt long before the time ascribed by Sir Isaac Newton for its introduction.

18 Seek occasion against us, &c.] It is in the Hebrew, To roll himself upon us; this expression is used again, Job xxx. 14. and is borrowed from wrestling, wherein the person who throws his antagonist rolls himself upon him to keep him down, and implies, that Joseph would omit nothing to justify any ill-treatment he might offer.

23 Peace be to you.] A usual salutation of civility; and being used by Joseph's servant, testified his friendly disposition, and quiered their apprehensions.

26 ¶ And when Joseph came home, they brought him the present which was in their hand into the house, and bowed themselves to him to the earth.

27 And he asked them of their welfare, and said, Is your father well, the old man of whom ye spake? Is he yet alive?

28 And they answered, Thy servant our father is in good health, he is yet alive. And they bowed down their heads, and made obeisance.

29 And he lifted up his eyes, and saw his brother Benjamin, his mother's son, and said, Is this your younger brother, of whom ye spake unto me? And he said, God be gracious unto thee, my son.

30 And Joseph made haste; for his bowels did yern upon his brother: and he sought where to weep, and he entered into his chamber, and wept there.

31 And he washed his face, and went out, and refrained himself, and said, Set on bread.

32 And they set on for him by himself, and for them by themselves, and for the Egyptians, which did eat with him, by themselves: because the Egyptians might not eat bread with the Hebrews: for that is an abomination unto the Egyptians.

33 And they sat before him, the first born according to his birthright, and the youngest according to his youth: and the men marvelled one at another.

Treasure.] This word in the Hebrew signifies something hidden or concealed: and may intimate that he was not concerned, or privy to the putting of the money in their sacks; for, adds he, according to the Hebrew, "Your money came to me."

He brought Simeon out unto them.] It is discovered from profane history, that he was dressed very neat and elegant.

26 Bowed themselves, &c.] By which circumstance the accomplishment of Joseph's dream is rendered more complete.

27 Is your father well, &c.] Here the bursts of filial affection and impetuous curiosity are strongly marked by these interrupted expressions, which are extremely natural, and vastly affecting.

29 Is this your younger brother—God be gracious.] Sure never was a stronger picture of nature, than this whole narrative of the interview between Joseph and his brethren. He sees his brother Benjamin, and lest he should be mistaken by the alteration which age had wrought in his lineaments, he asks whether it really was their younger brother. But nature answered his question, and before his brethren could reply, he addresses him with the warm glowings of fraternal love, "God be gracious unto thee, my son." Which was an appellation of the greatest tenderness, and suitable to the character of a supreme magistrate, who is nominated the father of his country with great propriety.

30 Joseph made haste, &c.] The affection of Joseph was now worked up to the highest pitch, and where can we read of a more affecting, a more natural description of the effects of fraternal regard?

32 Because the Egyptians, &c.] It is evident from this verse, that the common provision for the entertainment was animal food, and no one can doubt but Joseph conformed to the Egyptian diet; therefore the reason assigned by the Chaldee paraphrase for the Egyptians refusing to eat with the Hebrews, namely, Their eating sheep, which were worshipped by the Egyptians, is not just. Joseph sat single, out of state, with regard to the Egyptians; the Egyptians sat apart with regard to the shepherds, and both were supplied from the governor's table, which was furnished from the steward's slaughter-house. The enmity, therefore, which subsisted between the Egyptians and Hebrews was not on account of their eating animal food, but on account of their being shepherds; a profession which they abominated on account of the heavy slavery they groaned under from the invasion and conquests of the Hyksos, or royal shepherds, in the reign of Timaüs.

34 Sent messes unto them.] Which was a custom that almost all ancient nations observed.

Benjamin's mess was five times, &c.] An additional proof of Joseph's extraordinary affection, and was intended as a particular

4 And when they were gone out of the city, and not yet far off, Joseph said unto his steward, Up, follow after the men; and when thou dost overtake them, say unto them, Wherefore have ye rewarded evil for good?

5 Is not this it in which my lord drinketh, and whereby indeed he divineth? ye have done evil in so doing.

6 ¶ And he overtook them, and he spake unto them in the same words.

7 And they said unto him, Wherefore saith my lord these words? God forbid that thy servants should do according to this thing:

particular kindness: possibly it might be designed to try whether they had conquered their inclination to envy, which had been the cause of his own slavery. But Joseph's placing his brethren according to their respective ages, and his distinguishing kindness to Benjamin, might be intended for the unravelling of the plot preparative to his discovery of himself, and designed to give credit to his assertions, when he declared himself to be their brother Joseph.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XLIII.

This chapter displays a lively picture of the good old patriarch's firm and pious confidence in God, for obtaining favour with Joseph, at the same time that his grief sorely depressed him in parting with Benjamin; which should teach us, that in all our troubles, the protection and assistance of the Almighty should be implored. We may also remark, that notwithstanding the corruption of a court, Joseph still taught his family to fear God, and retained on his mind ■ sense of true religion; and remark likewise, from the tender and fraternal affection Joseph expressed towards his beloved brother Benjamin, that when religion has its proper influence on the mind, it will evidence itself in the display of every social relative virtue.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XLIV.

2 Put my cup—in the sack's mouth of the youngest, &c.] This artifice Joseph made use of to try the affection of his brethren towards Benjamin, and whether, when they found him chargeable with theft, and in danger of slavery, they would surrender him without difficulty, and return unconcerned to their father Jacob.

5 My lord drinketh, and—divineth &c.] Certainly that this was a common drinking-cup, and not one used in libations or divinations, is expressly asserted in this verse. Besides which, it cannot be supposed that Joseph would apply the same vessel to both uses; nor was it ever customary to do so. It must therefore follow, that the word translated "divineth" is improperly rendered, if it will bear any other sense; and that it will bear another sense appears from chap. xxx. 17. and 1 Kings xx. 33. where it signifies, To try, search, or make experiment, to scrutinize, &c. &c.

■ Behold, the money, &c.] A most excellent defence this, and indeed the argument made use of was ■ very conclusive one. The Vulgate has thus rendered it. The money which we found in the mouths of our sacks we have brought again unto thee from the land of Canaan; how improbable then is it that we should take either gold or silver out of thy master's house?

10 Ye shall be blameless.] It is in the Hebrew, Innocent or faultless; in scripture language, sin is substituted instead of punishment, and innocence instead of impunity. See Gen. xlix. 9. 1 Kings i. 21. Exod. xx. 7. and xxxvii. 7.

11 They speedily, &c.] The Hebrew renders it, They hastened and took down. What could be a stronger proof of their innocence?

23 Rent their clothes, &c.] This is an instance of that kind of beauty which is so highly admired in the works of the greatest masters, who, by singling out one striking circumstance in a narrative,

10 And he said, Now also let it be according unto your words: he with whom it is found shall be my servant; and ye shall be blameless.

11 Then they speedily took down every man his sack to the ground, and opened every man his sack.

12 And he searched, and began at the eldest, and left at the youngest: and the cup was found in Benjamin's sack.

13 Then they rent their clothes, and laded every man his ass, and returned to the city.

14 ¶ And Judah and his brethren came to Joseph's house; for he was yet there: and they fell before him on the ground.

15 And Joseph said unto them, What deed is this that ye have done? wot ye not that such a man as I can certainly divine?

16 And Judah said, What shall we say unto my lord? what shall we speak? or how shall we clear ourselves? God hath found out the iniquity of thy servants: behold, we are my lord's servants, both we, and he also with whom the cup is found.

17 And he said, God forbid that I should do so: but the man in whose hand the cup is found, he shall be my servant; and as for you, get you up in peace unto your father.

18 ¶ Then Judah came near unto him, and said, Oh my lord, let thy servant, I pray thee, speak a word in my lord's ears, and let not thine anger burn against thy servant: for thou art even as Pharaoh.

19 My lord asked his servants, saying, Have ye a father, or a brother?

20 And we said unto my lord, We have ■ father, an old man, and a child of his old age, a little one; and his infuse into the mind a whole series of ideas which are connected with it. When Moses says, "they rent their clothes," he at the same time paints their inward anguish and confusion in more lively colours than the strongest expressions could have done, and pleases the reader more than if he had expressed the whole, by leaving room for the imagination to be exercised.

14 They fell before him on the ground.] Where is the scene could be imagined more affecting than the sight of a whole family with their clothes rent, tears streaming from their eyes, and their bodies lying prostrate on the earth?

15 Wot ye not? This word "wot" is derived from the Saxon witian, "to know;" the sentence therefore should be rendered Know ye not? according to our present mode of writing.

Can certainly divine?] The gift of divination and interpretation of dreams was monopolized by the Egyptian priests; and these priests were the constant companions of the king, and held the chief posts in the administration. Joseph's question alludes to this custom, and implies thus much, You see by my office, that I am one of the great officers of the state, but I am preferred only from the college of priests; distinguished only by the priesthood; and therefore, when I consider the dignity of my office, could you help acknowledging that it was my power to divine or detect your theft?

16 And Judah said, We have read that Judah had persuaded his father, though very reluctant, to sell Benjamin with him; besides which, he was of ■ bold, surprising, warm, and sanguine disposition; and being hurried by his natural impetuosity, undertook to plead the common cause of his father, his brother Benjamin, and the rest of his family.

What shall we speak?] Seeing the crimes they stood charged with were a violation of the sacred rites of hospitality, and the most heinous ingratitude; crimes that are subversive of society, and contrary to the social nature of man. When Judah reflected on the miseries to which Benjamin was exposed; when he thought on the consequences his detention would have on a fond parent, whose life was wrapped up in the life of his son, his grief might reasonably swell too big for words and his consternation express itself in broken sentences like these, "What shall we say unto my lord? what shall we speak? or how shall we clear ourselves?"

God hath found us, &c.] Which may be interpreted as a tacit or oblique acknowledgment of Joseph's charge, in order to appeal to his mercy, and conciliate his favour. This sense seems to be supported by the Chaldee, which renders it, Sin hath been found in thy servants from the face of God. But the Arabic is more explicit, translating, God has made thy servants to fall into their crime. Some commentators imagine that the words "found out" signify to punish; and that the sentence implies an acknowledgment of the justice of God, in taking this method of punishing them for their former iniquities.

18 Thou art even as Pharaoh.] i. e. Equally absolute in thy determinations, equally to be dreaded by us, and, like him, invested with the power of inflicting punishment, and pardoning crimes.

12 And, behold, your eyes see, and the eyes of my brother Benjamin, that it is my mouth that speaketh unto you.

13 And ye shall tell my father of all my glory in Egypt, and of all that ye have seen; and ye shall haste and bring down my father hither.

14 ¶ And he fell upon his brother Benjamin's neck, and wept; and Benjamin wept upon his neck.

15 Moreover he kissed all his brethren, and wept upon them: and after that his brethren talked with him.

16 ¶ And the fame thereof was heard in Pharaoh's house, saying, Joseph's brethren are come: and it pleased Pharaoh well, and his servants.

17 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, Say unto thy brethren, This do ye; lade your beasts, and go, get you unto the land of Canaan;

18 And take your father and your households, and come unto me: and I will give you the good of the land of Egypt, and ye shall eat the fat of the land.

19 Now thou art commanded, this do ye; take you waggons out of the land of Egypt for your little ones, and for your wives, and bring your father, and come.

20 Also regard not your stuff; for the good of all the land of Egypt is your's.

21 ¶ And the children of Israel did so: and Joseph gave them waggons, according to the commandment of Pharaoh, and gave them provision for the way.

22 To all of them he gave each man changes of raiment; but to Benjamin he gave three hundred pieces of silver, and five changes of raiment.

23 And to his father he sent after this manner; ten asses laden with the good things of Egypt, and ten she asses laden with corn and bread and meat for his father by the way.

24 So he sent his brethren away, and they departed: and he said unto them, See that ye fall not out by the way.

25 ¶ And they went up out of Egypt, and came into the land of Canaan to Jacob their father,

26 And told him, saying, Joseph is yet alive, and he is governor over all the land of Egypt. And 12 Your eyes see, and the eyes of my brother Benjamin, &c.] i. e. You must surely be convinced, when you view me attentively, and hear me speak in your own language, that it is certainly your brother Joseph who now talks with you.

15 After that his brethren talked with him.] That is when they were recovered from their astonishment, and he had tenderly embraced them, they began to talk familiarly, without apprehension.

20 Regard not your stuff, &c.] Be no longer solicitous about implements of husbandry, or other moveables; for the land of Egypt will abundantly supply you with whatever you require.

24 See that ye fall not out by the way.] Being a stranger to the querulous tempers of his brethren, Joseph thought proper to admonish them in this gentle manner, which at the same time implied a reproof. Probably he suspected that they might accuse each other with the cruelty they had exercised towards him, or cast invidious reflections on Benjamin, because he had been eminently distinguished from the rest.

26 Jacob's heart, &c.] Thus the tide of joy, which suddenly rushed upon him at hearing that his favourite son, whom he had so long considered dead, was still being, was too impetuous to be resisted in this period.

27 Rejoiced.] Even the bare mention of the name of Joseph, whom he had long accounted dead, revived his sorrows for his loss, and overpowered his spirits. But when he saw the carriages sent by his beloved son, his diffidence vanished, and joy revived his heart, just as fresh oil poured upon a dying lamp, makes it rekindle and burn with a new and more vigorous flame.

28 It is enough; Joseph my son, &c.] This is in the Vulgate, It is sufficient for me: my son is yet alive: the Septuagint, It is a great thing to me, &c. and the Chaldee, The chief thing with me is this, that my son is yet alive. His sons had informed him that Joseph was alive, and that he was governor of Egypt; the latter was what Joseph had particularly ordered them to acquaint him with; but the good patriarch was so little affected with the advancement of his son, that he replies, "It is enough! Joseph my son is yet alive!"

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XLV.

The following important instruction we may gather from what Joseph remarks in this chapter; that however unhappy the first appearances of sufferings may be, and however wicked the intentions

Jacob's heart fainted, for he believed them not.

27 And they told him all the words of Joseph, which he had said unto them: and when he saw the waggons which Joseph had sent to carry him, the spirit of Jacob their father revived:

28 And Israel said, It is enough; Joseph my son is yet alive: I will go and see him before I die.

1 Jacob is comforted by God at Beer-sheba. 5 He goeth thence with his family into Egypt. The number of those that went with him. 28 Joseph meeteth Jacob. 31 He instructeth his brethren how to answer Pharaoh.

AND Israel took his journey with all that he had, and came to Beer-sheba, and offered sacrifices unto the God of his father Isaac.

2 And God spake unto Israel in the visions of the night, and said, Jacob, Jacob. And he said, Here am I.

3 And he said, I am God, the God of thy father: fear not to go down into Egypt; for I will there make of thee a great nation:

4 I will go down with thee into Egypt; and I will also surely bring thee up again: and Joseph shall put his hand upon thine eyes.

5 ¶ And Jacob rose up from Beer-sheba: and the sons of Israel carried Jacob their father, and their little ones, and their wives, in the waggons which Pharaoh had sent to carry him.

6 And they took their cattle, and their goods, which they had gotten in the land of Canaan, and came into Egypt, Jacob, and all his seed with him:

7 His sons, and his sons' sons with him, his daughters, and all his seed brought he with him into Egypt.

¶ And these are the names of the children of Israel, which came out of Egypt, Jacob and his sons: Reuben, Jacob's first-born:

9 And the sons of Reuben; Hanoch, and Phallu, and Hezron, and Carmi.

10 And the sons of Simeon; Jemuel, and Jamin, and Ohad, and Jachin, and Zohar, and Shaul the son of a Canaanitish woman.

11 And

of those who are the instruments of them, they are under the disposal of a wise and good Providence, who knows how to bring good out of evil.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XLVI.

1 Came to Beer-sheba.] Which place lay in his road from Hebron; Abraham had formerly planted a grove there and offered up his adorations to the everlasting God.

The God of Isaac.] As ascribed to God, because Isaac was dead.

2 Here am I.] This is the Vulgate. Samaritan, and Syriac. What is it? and the Arabic, What is thy pleasure? is often used in scripture, in reply to an importunate prayer, and implies a curiosity to know, and readiness to obey the holy will.

3 I am God, the God.] Vulgate, I am the almighty God of thy father; and is supported by the Chaldee and Samaritan. It is an elliptical expression, and the sense is, God has commanded me to say unto thee, &c. &c.

Fear not to go down.] There are several reasons why Jacob might have been disinclined to go into Egypt, had he not been honoured with this vision. Abraham had been injured there; it had been predicted that his seed should be afflicted by the Egyptians; Isaac had been warned not to go thither, and the occupation of his family was odious to the Egyptians. See chap. xii. 15. xvi. 13. xxvi. 2. ver. 34. of this chapter, and xliii. 32.

For I will there make of thee a great nation.] Which prophecy was miraculously fulfilled; there were no more than seventy that went into Egypt, and behold they increased to about six hundred thousand in the space of two hundred and fifteen years.

4 Shall put his hand upon thine eyes.] Which last and solemn office that could be paid a dying parent was generally performed by the nearest relations of the deceased. And the prophecy must have afforded great consolation to Jacob; for what could have given him greater comfort, than to be assured, that the son whom he loved most, should be present with him, and perform this last office of kindness to his beloved father?

7 Brought he with him into Egypt.] The promise God had made to Abraham, to give his posterity the land of Canaan, could not be performed

11 And the sons of Levi; Gershon, Kohath, and Merari.

12 And the sons of Judah; Er, and Onan, and Shelah, and Pharez, and Zarah: but Er and Onan died in the land of Canaan. And the sons of Pharez were Hezron and Hamul.

13 And the sons of Issachar; Tolah, and Phuvah, and Job, and Shimron.

14 And the sons of Zebulun; Sered, and Elon, and Jahleel.

15 These be the sons of Leah, which she bare unto Jacob in Padan-aram, with his daughter Dinah: all the souls of his sons and his daughters were thirty and three.

16 And the sons of Gad; Ziphion, and Haggi, Shuni, and Ezbon, Eri, and Arodi, and Arcli.

17 And the sons of Asher; Jimnah, and Ishuah, and Isui, and Beriah, and Serah their sister: and the sons of Beriah; Heber, and Malchiel.

18 These are the sons of Zilpah, whom Laban gave to Leah his daughter, and these she bare unto Jacob, even sixteen souls.

19 The sons of Rachel Jacob's wife; Joseph, and Benjamin.

20 And unto Joseph in the land of Egypt were born Manasseh and Ephraim, which Asenath the daughter of Potipherah, priest of On, bare unto him.

21 And the sons of Benjamin were Belah, and Becher, and Ashbel, Gera, and Naaman, Ehi, and Rosh, Muppim, and Huppim, and Ard.

22 These are the sons of Rachel, which were born to Jacob: all the souls were fourteen.

23 And the sons of Dan; Hushim.

24 And the sons of Naphtali; Jahzeel, and Guni, and Jezer, and Shillem.

25 These are the sons of Bilhah, which Laban gave unto Rachel his daughter, and she bare these unto Jacob: all the souls were seven.

26 All the souls that came with Jacob into Egypt, which came out of his loins, besides Jacob's sons' wives, all the souls were threescore and six;

27 And the sons of Joseph, which were born him in Egypt, were two souls: all the souls of the house performed till that family was grown strong enough to take and keep possession of it. In the mean time, therefore, they were necessitated to reside amongst idolaters, and to reside unmixed; but whoever examines their history will see, that the Israelites ever had a violent propensity to join themselves to Gentile nations, and to practise their manners. God therefore, in his infinite wisdom, brought them into Egypt, and kept them there during this period, the only place where they could remain, for a time, safe and unconfounded with the nations; the ancient Egyptians being, by numerous institutions, forbidden all fellowship with strangers, and bearing besides a particular aversion to the Israelites who were shepherds. From the Israelites there was a new occasion to adore the footsteps of eternal wisdom, who had chosen Egypt for his elect.

15 Thirty and three. Commentators agree in including Jacob himself in the number, because otherwise there would be only thirty-two. The number of Jacob's posterity by Leah, including Er and Onan, amounted only to thirty-five; but these two are excluded from the pedigree by the historian himself, there consequently remain only thirty-two; how then can we authenticate the sacred text, which asserts, that there were thirty and three? By including Jacob himself in the number, as ver. 27. plainly shews.

21 Sons of Benjamin, &c.] As some commentators suppose that Benjamin was at this time seven-and-twenty years of age, and that he might possibly have two wives, according to the mode of the times, he might certainly have had all the sons mentioned before the descent into Egypt.

28 To direct his face unto Goshen, &c.] This is in the Hebrew, To prepare before him Goshen; the Vulgate renders it, To acquaint him of his coming, that he might meet him in Goshen; which is supported by ver. 29. The Chaldee translates, To prepare for him in Goshen.

29 Presented himself unto him, &c.] It is in the Hebrew, Was seen by him; the Vulgate and Oriental translations render, When he saw him.

30 Now let me die, &c.] It is according to the Hebrew, May I, I will die now; the Vulgate renders it, I shall die gladly, since, &c. and the Chaldee, Though I should die now, I shall be comforted, &c. expression that implies the greatest resignation, joy, and affection, and is familiar to that of Simeon, Luke ii. 29.

of Jacob, which came into Egypt, were threescore and ten. Before CHRIST 1706.

28 ¶ And he sent Judah before him unto Joseph, to direct his face unto Goshen, and they came into the land of Goshen.

29 And Joseph made ready his chariot, and went up to meet Israel his father, to Goshen, and presented himself unto him; and he fell on his neck, and wept on his neck a good while.

30 And Israel said unto Joseph, Now let me die, since I have seen thy face, because thou art yet alive,

31 ¶ And Joseph said unto his brethren, and unto his father's house, I will go up, and shew Pharaoh, and say unto him, My brethren, and my father's house, which were in the land of Canaan, are come unto me;

32 And the men are shepherds, for their trade hath been to feed cattle; and they have brought their flocks, and their herds, and all that they have.

33 And it shall come to pass, when Pharaoh shall call you, and shall say, What is your occupation?

34 That ye shall say, Thy servants' trade hath been about cattle from our youth even until now, both we, and also our fathers; that ye may dwell in the land of Goshen; for every shepherd is an abomination unto the Egyptians.

C H A P. XLVII.

1 Joseph presenteth five of his brethren and his father before Pharaoh. 11 He giveth them habitation and maintenance. 13 He getteth all the money, cattle, and lands of the Egyptians, the lands of the priests only excepted, for Pharaoh. 23 He letteth them the land again for the fifth of the increase. 27 Israel multiplieth in Goshen. 28 Jacob's age: he sweareth Joseph to bury him with his fathers.

THEN Joseph came and told Pharaoh, and said, My father and my brethren, and their flocks, and their herds, and all that they have, are come out of the land of Canaan; and, behold, they are in the land of Goshen.

¶ And he took some of his brethren, even five men, and presented them unto Pharaoh.

32 The men are shepherds, &c.] This is in the Hebrew, They have been men of cattle. See chap. xliii. 32.

34 That ye may dwell in the land of Goshen, &c.] Notwithstanding the Septuagint call it in this verse Gesem, yet in verse 29, they call it Heroopolis. It lay on the north-westerly part of the Arabian gulph, towards the confines of Canaan. It was Abaris, which Pharaoh gave them, and that was then void of cattle. The chief motives which induced Joseph to prefer this settlement for his family, were, to prevent their dispersion, and to provide for their attendance upon his aged father, and likewise to prevent any misunderstanding, or enmity between them and the Egyptians, as they could not look upon them as rivals, on account of their following a profession which they deemed illicit.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XLVI.

First, we here find, that before Jacob set out on his journey, God appeared to him, but not till he had offered sacrifice. From this let us learn, that before we can have reason to expect the Divine favour, we must seek God in a way of duty. Secondly, we find that Jacob did not hesitate in obeying the Divine command. Let this teach us, that whenever an opportunity occurs for us to do good, or Providence calls us out in things of importance, it is our duty to comply, let the task be attended with ever so many difficulties; for if we are found in a way of duty, God will assist us. Lastly, the respect shewn by Joseph to his father, should be a lesson to youth in general, and serve to impress upon their minds humility and reverence.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XLVII.

1 Behold, they are in the land of Goshen.] For they stopt there till they knew the king's pleasure; it was in the entrance of Egypt. See chap. xli. 34.

2 Some of his brethren, &c.] The Hebrew word ketzeb, translated "some," signifies, Extremity or the meanest, as appears from Kings xii. 31. It sometimes signifies, The best, as in Judges xviii. 2. yet it must be confessed, that it signifies likewise, a part, and may be used in that sense, according to the translation, which is supported by the Septuagint, Samaritan, Arabic, and Syriac.

3 And Pharaoh said unto his brethren, What is your occupation? And they said unto Pharaoh, Thy servants are shepherds, both we, and also our fathers.

4 They said moreover unto Pharaoh, For to sojourn in the land are we come; for thy servants have no pasture for their flocks; for the famine is sore in the land of Canaan: now therefore, we pray thee, let thy servants dwell in the land of Goshen.

5 And Pharaoh spake unto Joseph, saying, Thy father and thy brethren are come unto thee:

6 The land of Egypt is before thee; in the best of the land make thy father and brethren to dwell; in the land of Goshen let them dwell: and if thou knowest any men of activity among them, then make them rulers over my cattle.

7 And Joseph brought in Jacob his father, and set him before Pharaoh: and Jacob blessed Pharaoh.

8 And Pharaoh said unto Jacob, How old art thou?

9 And Jacob said unto Pharaoh, The days of the years of my pilgrimage are an hundred and thirty years: few and evil have the days of the years of my life been, and have not attained unto the days of the years of the life of my fathers in the days of their pilgrimage.

10 And Jacob blessed Pharaoh, and went out from before Pharaoh.

11 ¶ And Joseph placed his father and his brethren, and gave them a possession in the land of Egypt, in the best of the land, in the land of Rameses, as Pharaoh had commanded.

12 And Joseph nourished his father, and his brethren, and all his father's household, with bread, according to their families.

13 ¶ And there was no bread in all the land; for the famine was very sore, so that the land of Egypt and all the land of Canaan fainted by reason of the famine.

4. To sojourn, &c.] Their intention not being to settle, but only to sojourn, their request seemed the more modest; and their desire to be situated in the land of Goshen, which lay on the confines of Canaan, shewed them sincere in their intention to return to their own country. The propriety of desiring this place will appear more plainly, if we recollect that the land of Canaan was higher than that of Goshen, which, lying in a low, marshy ground, might afford some sustenance for their cattle, when all the forage of Canaan was entirely consumed. Pharaoh seems to confirm this motive, in ver. 6. wherein he first orders Joseph to settle his family "in the best of the land," and immediately adds, "in the land of Goshen let them dwell."

6. In the land of Goshen, &c.] This sentence is omitted in the Septuagint; and the Arabic renders it, Said; which if it be the ancient Thebais, or country now styled, Al Saïda, is more southerly than that wherein Hieropolis was situated.

7. Jacob blessed Pharaoh.] This word "bless," when applied to God, signifies to thank or praise, to reward, or bestow some singular favour; but when applied to men, it signifies to wish health, prosperity, or happiness. The Septuagint version confirms this exposition, by asserting, that he saluted the king, and prayed for the prosperity of his people.

9. The days of my pilgrimage.] It is concluded from this speech, that Moses taught a future state; and especially since the author of the epistle to the Hebrews hath brought it, chap. xi. 13. as a proof that Jacob and the patriarchs looked for a better country: that Jacob did so is unquestionable; but it can never be allowed, that the words in their literal and obvious meaning express any such thing. Pharaoh is here questioning the patriarch not of human life in general, but of his own; therefore, to make the reply pertinent, Jacob must be understood to mean, by his "pilgrimage," the unsettled way of life, living in tents, and removing from place to place, the convenience of pasturage gave him invitation; and by the "evil of his days," the straits he suffered from the fraud of Laban, and the hatred of his brother Esau. As for the complaint of the "fewness of his days," he himself explains it to be, not on account of the shortness of human life in general, but because, "he had not attained unto the days of the years of the life of his fathers." The sense, therefore, which the writer of the epistle to the Hebrews puts upon these words, must needs be that of the spiritual.

Have not attained, &c.] For Abraham was one hundred and seventy years old, and Isaac one hundred and eighty.

11. Rameses, &c.] Those who imagine that this is the place mentioned Exod. i. 11. and xii. 37. suppose that it is so named here by anticipation. Yet it must be recollected that the land of Egypt was divided among the king, priests, and soldiery; and Rameses, at this time the reigning king of Egypt; the land of Rameses, will then signify only that part of the land which was the king's own property: that it was the best, we need not doubt, and that he had

14 And Joseph gathered up all the money that was found in the land of Egypt, and in the land of Canaan, for the corn which they bought: and Joseph brought the money into Pharaoh's house.

15 And when money failed in the land of Egypt, and in the land of Canaan, all the Egyptians came unto Joseph, and said, Give us bread: for why should we die in thy presence? for the money faileth.

16 And Joseph said, Give me your cattle; and I will give you for your cattle, if money fail.

17 And they brought their cattle unto Joseph: and Joseph gave them bread in exchange for horses, and for the flocks, and for the cattle of the herds, and for the asses: and he fed them with bread for all their cattle for that year.

18 When that year was ended, they came unto him the second year, and said unto him, We will not hide it from my lord, how that our money is spent; my lord also hath our herds of cattle; there is not aught left in the sight of my lord, but our bodies, and our lands:

19 Wherefore shall we die before thine eyes, both we and our land? buy us and our land for bread, and we and our land will be servants unto Pharaoh: and give us seed, that we may live, and not die, that the land be not desolate.

20 And Joseph bought all the land of Egypt for Pharaoh; for the Egyptians sold every man his field, because the famine prevailed over them: so the land became Pharaoh's.

21 And as for the people, he removed them to cities from one end of the borders of Egypt even to the other end thereof.

22 Only the land of the priests bought he not; for the priests had a portion assigned them of Pharaoh, and did eat their portion which Pharaoh gave them: wherefore they sold not their lands.

23 ¶ Then

a right to bestow it on the Israelites, no one can object to. The land invested in the priests, or soldiery, was certainly at that time not in the king's disposal, though that which was his own property was, and that might with the greatest propriety be styled, from his own name, the land of Rameses, as in the verse.

14. Found in the land, &c.] This word which we render "found," signifies, Received, chap. xxvi. 12. and implies that Joseph collected all the money that was received, and brought it into the king's house, or treasury. Joseph was guilty of no injustice in making the Egyptians pay for the corn he sold them, because part of it belonged to Pharaoh, as his fifth, the revenues of Egypt being collected from the produce of the land; and the other part was plainly purchased with the money belonging to Pharaoh.

16. Give your cattle, &c.] Which demand was made with a view of saving their cattle; which they could not provide food for, as they would scarcely purchase corn enough for themselves. Besides, as they were by this means rid of the expense which their cattle would subject them to, they were enabled to supply their own occasional wants.

19. We and our land will be servants unto Pharaoh, &c.] The lands, according to profane history, were divided between the king, the priests, and the soldiery; and were all reserved; and Moses, speaking of this famine, expressly says, they were divided between the king, the priests, and the people. Now, as contrary as these two accounts look, it will be found, upon comparing them, that human testimony fully supports all that Moses hath delivered concerning this matter. Moses tells us, that before the famine, all the land of Egypt was in the hands of the king, the priests, and the people; but that this national calamity made a great revolution in property, and brought the whole possessions of the people into the king's hands; which must needs make a prodigious accession of power to the crown. But Joseph, in whom the minister and patriot supported each other, and jointly concurred to the public service, prevented for some time the ill effects of this accession, by his farming out the new domain to the old proprietors, on very easy terms.

21. From one end of the borders of Egypt even to the other end thereof.] Joseph's motive in transplanting the people, reciprocally, from one end of Egypt to the other, was, to secure Pharaoh in his new property, by defeating the ill effects of that fondness which people naturally have to old paternal inheritances. Others assign a different motive, which they support as follows: in chap. xli. 48. Joseph is said, "to gather up the food of every field, which was round every city, and to have laid it up in that city." So that he removed them into the cities where the corn was laid up, for the better convenience of feeding them.

22. Only the lands of the priests bought he not, &c.] The priests were a distinct order in the state, and had a fixed landed revenue; and 24 And it shall come to pass in the increase, that ye shall give the fifth part unto Pharaoh, and four parts shall be your own, for seed of the field, and for your food, and for them of your households, and for food for your little ones.

25 And they said, Thou hast saved our lives: let us find grace in the sight of my lord, and we will be Pharaoh's servants.

26 And Joseph made it a law over the land of Egypt unto this day, that Pharaoh should have the fifth part: except the land of the priests only, which became not Pharaoh's.

27 ¶ And Israel dwelt in the land of Egypt, in the country of Goshen; and they had possessions therein, and grew, and multiplied exceedingly.

28 ¶ And Jacob lived in the land of Egypt seventeen years: so the whole age of Jacob was an hundred forty and seven years.

29 And the time drew nigh that Israel must die: and he called his son Joseph, and said unto him, If now I have found grace in thy sight, put, I pray thee, thy hand under my thigh, and deal kindly and truly with me: bury me not, I pray thee, in Egypt.

30 But I will lie with my fathers, and thou shalt carry me out of Egypt, and bury me in their burying place. And he said, I will do as thou hast said.

31 And he said, Swear unto me. And he swore unto him. And Israel bowed himself upon the bed's head.

C H A P. XLVIII.

1 Joseph with his sons visiteth his sick father, who strengthened himself to bless them. 3 He repeateth God's promise; taketh Ephraim and Manasseh as his own; and telleth Joseph of his mother's grave. 8 He bleffeth Joseph's two sons with their father, and preferreth the younger before the elder. 21 He prophesieth their return to Canaan, in which he giveth Joseph a double portion.

AND it came to pass after these things, that one told Joseph, Behold, thy father is sick: and he took with him his two sons, Manasseh and Ephraim.

and that when the famine raged so severely that the people were compelled to sell their lands to the crown for bread, the priests still kept theirs unalienated, and were supplied gratis. Thus we see not only the reverence in which the order was held, but the public uses of religion, to which two-thirds of their revenues were applied, kept their property from being violated.

23 I have bought you, &c. What can be more unjust and absurd, than the accusation of Joseph's making the free monarchy of Egypt despotic? for allowing it to suffer such a revolution, who is to be esteemed the author of it? Pharaoh himself? Joseph indeed was prime minister, but he never appears that his master was of that tribe of crazy despots who put their sceptre to the hands of their servants. Moses depicts him as active, vigilant, jealous of his authority, anxious for his country, and little indulgent to his officers of state. But the terms in which he invests Joseph in his office, shews that office to be purely ministerial, "Thou shalt be, &c." Gen. xli. 40. i. e. thou shalt administer justice, but I will reserve to myself the prerogative of issuing forth laws.

29 Under my thigh, &c. According to chap. xxiv. 2.

31 Bowed himself upon the bed's head. Translated in the Chaldee, He worshipped upon the bed's head; the Vulgate, He worshipped God, having turned towards his bed's head; this passage signifies, that he prostrated himself on his bed, supporting himself upon his pillow to return thanks to God for the burial Joseph had promised him; in the same manner as David is said to have done, 1 Kings i. 47. The Septuagint have rendered the sentence, And Israel worshipped upon the top of his staff; the Chaldee is much the same; and the writer of the epistle to the Hebrews, chap. xi. 21. is quoted as confirming the sense of the Septuagint. But to this it is objected, that the writer alludes to a different action, namely, Jacob's blessing Joseph's children, which did not happen till some time after. In this passage the patriarch seems to have been confined to his bed; but in the other, referred to by the writer to the Hebrews, to have received fresh spirits, and to have sat on it, leaning, perhaps, on his staff.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XLVII.

Joseph in this chapter acts with a noble generosity; instead of taking advantage of the necessities of the Egyptians, instead of even insisting on the bargain they had made themselves, he returns them their estates, only laying a tax on them, for the better support of

And one told Jacob, and said, Behold, thy son Joseph cometh unto thee: and Israel strengthened himself, and sat upon the bed.

3 ¶ And Jacob said unto Joseph, God Almighty appeared unto me at Luz in the land of Canaan, and blessed me,

4 And said unto me, Behold, I will make thee fruitful, and multiply thee, and I will make of thee a multitude of people; and will give this land to thy seed after thee for an everlasting possession.

5 And now thy two sons, Ephraim and Manasseh, which were born unto thee in the land of Egypt before I came unto thee into Egypt, are mine; as Reuben and Simeon, they shall be mine.

6 And thy issue, which thou begetteth after them, shall be thine, and shall be called after the name of their brethren in their inheritance.

7 And as for me, when I came from Padan, Rachel died by me in the land of Canaan in the way, when yet there was but a little way to come unto Ephrath; and I buried her there in the way of Ephrath; the same is Beth-lehem.

¶ And Israel beheld Joseph's sons, and said, Who are these?

9 And Joseph said unto his father, They are my sons, whom God hath given me in this place. And he said, Bring them, I pray thee, unto me, and I will bless them.

10 Now the eyes of Israel were dim for age, so that he could not see. And he brought them near unto him; and he kissed them, and embraced them.

11 And Israel said unto Joseph, I had not thought to see thy face: and, lo, God hath shewed me also thy seed.

12 And Joseph brought them out from between his knees, and he bowed himself with his face to the earth.

14 And Israel stretched out his right hand, and laid it upon Ephraim's head, who was the younger, and his left the government, at the rate of a fifth part, which he found by trial, from what was taken up in the seven years of plenty, Egypt could well spare.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XLVIII.

1 One told Joseph, &c. It is in the Hebrew, And it was after these things; and he said unto Joseph, Behold thy father, &c. The Oriental translations agree in rendering, It was told, or news was brought; which implies, that a messenger was dispatched to Joseph.

2 Strengthened himself, &c. It is in Hebrew, He comforteth himself. The Chaldee and other translations render it, Israel was comforted.

5 And now thy two sons, &c. i. e. Shall become the heads of distinct tribes, and have an inheritance in the land of Canaan, equal with the rest of his sons. Thus Jacob bestows a double portion upon Joseph, which was the privilege of the first-born, by making his sons equal with his own.

6 And thy issue which thou begetteth after them, shall be thine, &c. i. e. They shall not make distinct tribes, but be considered as the descendants of my other sons.

7 Rachel died by me, &c. This circumstance Jacob seems to mention as a reason why he adopted Ephraim and Manasseh, being willing to honour her memory, who died in child-birth, by adding her two grandchildren to the number of his own sons.

14 Who was the younger. The preference of the younger before the elder occurs so frequently in Scripture, that it is not a little remarkable; thus Abel was preferred before Cain, Shem before Japheth, Isaac before Ishmael, Jacob before Esau, Judah and Joseph before Reuben, Ephraim before Benjamin, Moses before Aaron, and David before his brethren. May it not likewise be worthy of our notice, that Jacob, who deprived his brother of his father's blessing by stratagem, should be influenced by the divine Being to give by choice the younger son of Joseph the superior blessing?

Guiding his hands wittingly, &c. This word "wittingly" signifies knowingly, and is derived from the Saxon, To know. The Hebrew signifies, He made his hands to know, though Manasseh was the firstborn. The Vulgate, Septuagint, and Chaldee render it, Changing or crossing his hands; and the Arabic, Perverting his hands. If we translate the Hebrew particle chi, "though" or "because," which it generally signifies, instead of for, the sense will be more easy than at present it appears.

It could not be had from Hamor, becauſe his father was a Shechemite, and we find a warlike exploit recorded of the patriarch throughout his hiſtory. The beſt ſolution of this difficulty is as follows: when his ſons had poſſeſſed this country by the maſſacre of the inhabitants, Jacob was obliged to maintain himſelf in the poſſeſſion by force of arms, till he removed to Beth-el, and afterwards to recover it from the Amorites, who, living intermixed with the Hivites, had taken poſſeſſion of it during his abſence. And this aſſigns a reaſon why he ſhould ſay, that he got or recovered it from the Amorites, and not from the Hivites.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XLVIII.

The book of Geneſis, the promiſe of the land of Canaan to the ſeed of Abraham is ſeveral times repeated, as well as in this chapter: it is always ſpoken of with the utmoſt aſſurance, through the long courſe and various revolutions of above four hundred years; and it is ſo even till the death of Moſes, who wrote theſe things, that the deſcendants of Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, to whom the promiſe was made, got poſſeſſion of the land under the command of Joſhua; and then they remained in poſſeſſion of it for ſeveral ages: ſo that here is a plain demonſtration that God certainly made his purpoſe known to the patriarchs long before it was executed; and that Moſes, in writing, only recorded what had been divinely revealed to them; for it was not poſſible for any man of himſelf to ſpeak with ſo much confidence of things long before they happened which depended upon ſo many cauſes and circumſtances to bring them to paſs, and which indeed, we may find by the account of the children of Iſrael's getting poſſeſſion of the land, the greateſt difficulties lay in the way of, and every thing ſeemed againſt. From hence we may learn, that whatever obſtacles are in the way of any of God's promiſes, how little proſpect ſoever there may ſeem of their being accompliſhed, yet we may expect them with full aſſurance.

CHAP. XLIX.

¶ Jacob calleth his ſons to bleſs them. 3 The bleſſing of Reuben; 5 Simeon and Levi; 8 Judah; 13 Zebulun; 14 Iſſachar; 16 Dan; 19 Gad; 20 Aſher; 21 Naphtali; 22 Joſeph; 27 and Benjamin. 29 He chargeth them about his burial, and dieth.

AND Jacob called unto his ſons, and ſaid, Gather yourſelves together, that I may tell you that which ſhall befall you in the laſt days.

3 ¶ Reuben, thou art my firſtborn, my might, and the beginning of my ſtrength, the excellency of dignity, and the excellency of power:

4 Unſtable as water, thou ſhalt not excel; becauſe thou wenteſt up to thy father's bed; then deſileſt thou it: he went up to my couch.

5 ¶ Simeon and Levi are brethren; instruments of cruelty are in their habitations.

6 O my ſoul, come not thou into their ſecret; unto their aſſembly, mine honour, be not thou united: for in their anger they ſlew a man, and in their ſelf-will they digged down a wall.

7 Curſed be their anger, for it was fierce; and their wrath, for it was cruel: I will divide them in Jacob, and ſcatter them in Iſrael.

perſons; ſo that what he ſays relates to them and their poſterity collectively, and not to them perſonally.

3 Reuben, thou art my firſtborn—the excellency of dignity—and power.] Every epithet uſed here refers to the prerogatives of the firſtborn, which conſiſted in the honour of the prieſthood, which was conferred on Levi; the rule of government, on Judah; and a double portion of the inheritance, on Joſeph; theſe Reuben forfeited by his crime in deſiling the bed of his father.

4 Unſtable as water, thou ſhalt not excel.] It is in the Hebrew, Do not thou excel; which words ſome connect with the former thus, The excellency of dignity is poured out like water, i. e. is like water ſpilt upon the ground. But according to our tranſlation the ſenſe is, As water is prone to flow, and ſtill tend downward to an inferior ſituation, ſo ſhalt thou fall from thy pre-eminence, and ſink into a level with the reſt of thy brethren. It is obſerved, nothing great is recorded of this race.

He went up to my couch.] The father warmed with indignation againſt the crime, turns from Reuben, and addreſſes this apoſtrophe to his ſons. This is one of the many beauties in writing with which the ſcriptures abound.

5 Simeon and Levi are brethren, &c.] Becauſe they were ſimilar in their diſpoſitions, being both alike turned to cruelty; they were brethren in iniquity, aſſociates in contriving the deſtruction of the Shechemites: "their ſwords are instruments of cruelty."

6 Secret.] This word is ſometimes rendered counſel, as in Pſalm xlv. 2. when it is ſaid, that Jacob was far from conſenting to their crime, either expreſſly or implicitly: and his apoſtrophizing his ſoul in the next verſe ſhews that he regarded their maſſacre with the higheſt indignation and abhorrence. The Chaldee renders it, My ſoul was not in their ſecrets; and the Arabic, My ſoul did not enter into their conſpiracy.

For in their anger they ſlew a man, and in their ſelf-will, &c.] Which words have been variously rendered by commentators; but the true ſenſe of it ſeems to be, In their anger they ſlew a nation (the Shechemites); and in their ſelf-will, or headſtrong paſſion, they ſlew a prince (Hamor or Shechem); for the word tranſlated, Man, is read in the plural by the ancient verſions; and the word, which in our tranſlation is rendered a wall, may alſo be interpreted, a prince.

7 Curſed be their anger.] Theſe words are connected by ſome verſions with the foregoing ſentences, and the third Cambridge MS. ſupports this opinion, therefore the ſenſe is, In their anger they ſlew the prince; and in their fury they deſtroyed the princes: curſed be their anger for it was fierce, and their fury for it was inflexible.

I will divide them in Jacob, &c.] This was moſt eminently fulfilled in the tribe of Levi, who had no portion or inheritance of their own, but were diſperſed among the other tribes: neither had the tribe of Simeon any inheritance properly of their own; but only a portion in the miſt of the tribe of Judah, from whence ſeveral of them afterwards went in queſt of habitations, and ſo were divided from the reſt, Joſh. xix. 1—9. 1 Chron. iv. 39. A conſtant tradition too has prevailed among the Jews, which is alſo confirmed by the Jeruſalem Targum, that the tribe of Simeon were ſo ſtraited in their ſituation and circumſtances, that great numbers of them were neceſſitated to ſeek a ſubſiſtence among the other tribes, by teaching and inſtructing their children.

8 Judah, thou art he whom thy brethren shall praise.] The allusion made to Judah's name in this passage will be more evident from the Hebrew, wherein it is said, jebudah, jodakab, "shall praise." See chap. xxix. 35. The Chaldee inserts a sentence which is not in the Hebrew, or the other translations, and reads, Judah, I will praise thee, and thou art not confounded; thy brethren shall praise thee. Some say the word jodakab may be rendered, "shall confess thee;" and imagine that the prophecy was fulfilled in the nation being named Jews, and the whole country Judea, from Judah, Esther iii. 6. Mat. xxvii. 37.

Thy hand shall be in the neck of thine enemies.] It is in the Septuagint translated, In the back of thine enemies; in the Chaldee, Thy hand shall prevail against thine enemies, thy enemies shall be dispersed, they shall be turned backwards in thy fight.

Thy father's children shall bow down, &c.] Certainly this part of the prophecy was remarkably fulfilled in God's choosing David out of this tribe, and settling the succession in his descendants, Psalms lxxviii. 68—71. but more remarkably in the Messiah's being born of this tribe, to whom every knee shall bow.

9 Judah is a lion's whelp.] How beautifully magnificent is this continual gradation in the expression of Judah's bravery. He is first compared to a lion's whelp, which fills the mind of the reader with an idea full of terror; but the patriarch, thinking he had not done justice to his valour, adds, He is like a grown lion, as the Hebrew signifies. Thus having added the idea of strength to that of fierceness, one would imagine nothing could be added to the character; but the patriarch is still dissatisfied, and finishes the portrait, by subjoining, He is like a lioness, as the Hebrew word lani signifies; which is by naturalists esteemed fiercer than a lion. What an idea of terror must this convey to the mind! But this prediction is not less sublime than true; for this tribe was distinguished by its valour, and led the van in the army of the twelve tribes, and was the first that possessed the land of Canaan.

From the prey, my son.] Which expression alludes to the custom of the lions, who return to the mountains, after they are satiated with the prey they have gotten in the plains.

An old lion, &c.] This word in the Hebrew signifies "lioness," and it is so rendered by the Vulgate, Samaritan, Chaldee, and Arabic.

10 The scepter shall not depart.] By this famous prophecy it is intimated, that the theocracy should continue over the Jews until Christ came to take possession of his Father's kingdom; for there was never any lawgiver in Judah but God, by the ministry of Moses, until the coming of his Son. But this interpretation of the prophecy is different from the common, which understands it to foretell that the Jewish nation should not be bereft of sovereign power, by falling under a foreign yoke, till the advent of the Messiah. The common notion of the scepter of Judah is explained in these three different ways; first, some suppose it to signify the sovereignty of the Jewish nation at large; secondly, others suppose it to signify the sovereignty of the tribe of Judah; and a third sort contend, that it signifies not a sovereign or regal, but a tribal scepter only. In the sense of a sovereignty of the Jewish nation at large, which is the most general opinion of the three, the prophecy was not only never fulfilled, but has been overthrown; because long before the coming of Shiloh, or of Christ, the scepter or sovereignty of the Jewish people was departed. During the Babylonian captivity, and while they continued in a tributary dependence on the Persians, they could in no reasonable sense be said to have retained their scepter, their sovereignty; and independent rule. Though it should be allowed that by departure, final, not a temporary departure was meant, yet we must confess, that the Romans, who under Pompey reduced Judea to a dependent province, effectually overthrew the prophecy. Pompey took Jerusalem, and left to Hyrcanus, the last of the Asmonean family, only the office of high-priest. From this time to the birth of Christ, it was ever in dependence to the Romans, who disposed of all things at their pleasure. The senate gave the government to Antipater, and then to Herod his son, under the title of king; and Archelaus did not dare to take possession till he had obtained leave of Augustus, who afterwards banished him. Now the precarious rule of a dependent monarch could no more be called a scepter, which, in the figurative mode of all languages, signifies sovereignty, than the condition of the Jews could be said to be sovereign, when this Archelaus was deposed, and Coponius, a Roman knight, made procurator of Judea at this time, which the supporters of this interpretation fix for the departure of the scepter. The second opinion is, that by scepter is signified a civil sovereignty in the tribe of Judah. This has less stability than the other; it supposes that the scepter, or supreme rule of the Jewish people, remained in persons of that tribe from the time of David. But Petavius hath shewn, that from the giving of the prophecy to the time of David (a space of about six hundred years) all the rulers of the Jewish people were of other tribes; the Asmonean princes, particularly, being all of the tribe of Levi. These two senses being found to be intenable, men cast about for a third; and a happy one it was thought to be, which contrived, that scepter should signify domestic, not civil rule; a tribal, not a sovereign scepter, of which they say Judah, at the giving of the prophecy, was already possessed. The subject is a scepter, which could in no sense, not even in the sense of a tribal scepter, be in possession of Judah before he became a tribe. The tribal scepter sprung up from the ashes of Jacob, and flourished in the wilderness, may fairly be presumed from the occasion the Israelites had of a tribal scepter, namely, to fit them for the warfare they were about to undertake, as may be clearly proved from the first chapter of the book of Numbers. The scepter, whatever was its nature, was something in reversion. Jacob's own words, ver. 1. of this chapter, declare the subject of his prophecy to be of things future. Having told his sons, that he would inform them of what would befall them in the last days, when he comes to Judah, he says, "Thy father's children shall bow down before thee." This, if it was any thing, was the promise of a future scepter, and consequently it was a grant. For if Jacob made a declaration concerning some future prerogative, as the words, "thy father's children, &c." shew he did; and that this was the first time that Judah heard of it, as the words, "I will tell you, &c." shew it was: what can this prophecy be, but the grant of a scepter? Of Judah's scepter it is said, "Thy father's children shall bow down before thee." Who were the children, but the eleven tribes? So that here a civil and sovereign scepter is expressly marked out for Judah. Benjamin's, and the remnants of the other tribes adhered to Judah as their head. Now such an adherence can be no other than an acknowledgement of a civil scepter in Judah. From what has been said it appears, that of all the three branches, into which the common interpretation spreads, though they be equally weak, the last betrays its weakness most, and is least suitable to the dignity of the prophecy; the whole body of which has a perpetual reference to one or other of the dispensations of divine grace. What remains for us to conclude, but that the true and real meaning of the scepter of Judah, is that theocratic government which God exercised over the Jewish nation by the vicegerency of judges, kings, and rulers?

Nor a law-giver from between his feet.] The meaning of the word "lawgiver" will follow that of the word "scepter." It has been proved that the former was a sovereign scepter; the lawgiver, therefore, must be sovereign too. The Hebrew word implies both a legislator, and an interpreter or teacher of the law; but the first is its original and proper signification. And thus, Isaiah xxxiii. 22. "The Lord is our judge, the Lord is our lawgiver, the Lord is our king; he will save us;" where the word is used in its proper signification of lawgiver; the other sense of dispenser or interpreter of the law being contained in the titles of judge and king. Now there never was any lawgiver in Judah, but God, by the ministry of Moses, till the coming of his Son; the prophecy therefore in this sense was accomplished in the coming of Christ, as the theocracy of the Jews remained till his abolition of it, and his substituting a spiritual kingdom instead of the temporal theocracy of God, his Father.

Until Shiloh come.] Notwithstanding the word "Shiloh" is variously rendered, yet the most ancient doctors amongst the Jews have unanimously appropriated the term to the Messiah. The Chaldee, Targum, and Talmudic writers all concur in this opinion. Shiloh is Christ. Now Christ is not the successor of those vicegerents of the Jewish states, but of God himself, the king of the Jews. The scepter therefore, which descends to him, through the hands of those vicegerents, is not merely a civil, but a theocratic scepter. This, at the same time, explains the evangelic, or gospel doctrine of Christ's kingdom arising out of the theocracy or kingdom of God. Hence the distinction of Christ's kingdom not being of this world: the theocracy which was administered unto the Jews only, and in a carnal manner, was a kingdom of this world; but when transferred to Shiloh, and extended over all mankind, and administered in a spiritual manner, it became a kingdom not of this world.

And unto him shall the gathering of the people be.] It is in the Hebrew, Gathering together, which signifies, Expectation, and obedience likewise. The Vulgate translates it, The desire, the expectation of nations; in which it is followed by the Septuagint and Syriac. The Chaldee reads, The people shall obey him; the Jerusalem Targum, The kingdoms of the earth shall obey him; or, The people of the age shall bring gifts to the Messiah, the son of David. The present state of christianity shews this prophecy accomplished in part; but to restrain it to the tribe of Judah, and their situation in the land of promise, seems to contradict the whole tenor of the prophecy, and to be contrary to the words in the first verse, "the last days," which are granted to respect the days of the Messiah; and to that dignity which the prediction receives by being considered as an intimation that the kingdom of God, as confined to the Jews, should be superseded by the kingdom of Christ, which would extend to all Adam's children.

11, 12 Binding his foal unto the vine, &c.] Without mentioning the valley of Eschol, and other fruitful places, by the accounts of the best travellers, the mountains about Jerusalem were particularly fitted for the cultivation of the vine, and for the feeding of cattle. The mountains of the country abound with shrubs, and a delicate short grass, both which the cattle are fond of than of such plants as are common to fallow grounds and meadows. The milk of cattle fed in this manner is far more rich and delicious, their flesh is more sweet and nourishing. It may be presumed likewise, that the vine was not neglected in a soil so proper for it to thrive in. The many tokens which are to be met with of ancient vineyards about Jerusalem and Hebron, and the great quantities of grapes and raisins which were from thence brought daily to the markets of Jerusalem, and sent early to Egypt, verify all concerning it that the scriptures have delivered.

13 Zebulun shall dwell at the haven of the sea, &c. Accordingly we find the tribe of Zebulun extended from the sea of Galilee to the Mediterranean, where they had commodious havens for shipping, Job. xix. 10, &c. And how could Jacob have foretold the situation of any tribe, which was determined two hundred years afterwards by casting of lots, unless he had been directed by that divine power who disposeth of all events? It is remarkable, that Zebulun is mentioned before Issachar, though the latter was the eldest. Might not the patriarch prophetically allude to Zebulun's lot being famous for the chief residence of the Messiah, who was himself denominated a Nazarene; from the city of Nazareth, which was his constant abode, and in the tribe of Zebulun?

14 Issachar is a strong ass, &c. In the Septuagint this sentence is rendered, Issachar has desired that which is good; reading thamad, "he desired," for hhamad, "an ass." The Chaldee renders it, Issachar is rich in substance; the Syriac, Issachar is a giant; and the Arabic, Issachar is a body disjoined. The prediction undoubtedly foretels both the natural disposition and the situation of this tribe. It strongly points out its indolent submission to hostile attacks, at the same time that it assigns the cause of that effeminacy, a luxurious life amidst an unbounded plenty. The land of this tribe was the most fertile spot in all the land of Canaan; it was fruitful to admiration, abounding with pastures and nurseries of all kinds, so that it would make any man in love with husbandry. But this fertility raised them enemies; and their country was often infested and attacked by foreign enemies, especially in the time of the judges.

16 Dan shall judge his people as one of the tribes, &c. An allusion to the name Dan, which signifies Judging. The patriarch's meaning is, that Dan, notwithstanding his being the son of a concubine, should not be inferior to his brethren, but that his posterity should be a separate tribe, and be governed by one of their own line, in the same manner as the tribes which descended from his wives.

17 Dan shall be a serpent by the way, an adder in the path, that biteth the horse heels, &c. This is applied by the Chaldee to Samson. "There shall be a serpent who shall be chosen, and shall arise out of the tribe of Dan, the fear of whom shall fall upon the people, and he shall smite the Philistines bravely like a snake; like an asp he shall lie in wait about the path, and he shall slay the strongest of the Philistines, both horse and foot; he shall hough the horses, and break in pieces the chariots, and cast down their riders backwards." The word nachash signifies any serpent; but the word shiphphin, translated adder, may be rendered the cerastes, which hides its body in the sand, and by that artifice springs its prey by surprise. It also intimates, that the Danites should be more remarkable for stratagem in war, than for conquering by open force; and Moses gave them the same character, Deut. xxxiii. 22. In Judges xviii. 27. and xv. and xvi. instances are found of this subtlety.

18 I have waited for thy salvation, &c. Commentators in general think, that this exclamation has a respect to the salvation of mankind by Christ. It doth in the spiritual sense, nay, in a literal: But yet it should be observed, that the terms of the salvation of God, or the Lord, are perpetually employed throughout the whole bible, to signify God's temporal mercies to the patriarchs and their seed.

19 Gad, a troop shall overcome him, &c. This word "troop," alludes to the name of Gad, as will appear from the Hebrew word Gadgedud; i. e. Gad, a troop. This prophecy has been doubly accomplished; for residing in a frontier country, they were exposed to the incursions of the neighbouring people, who sometimes possessed part of their lot, and exercised great cruelties against the inhabitants. These enemies were subdued by Jephtha; and some considerable time afterwards, by the assistance of Reuben and Manasseh, this tribe gained a complete victory over their enemies the 20 Out of Asher his bread shall be fat, &c. This tribe was accordingly remarkable for its plenty, and the produce of the most delicate fruits, Isa. xxxv. 2. and Deut. xxxiii. 24. From these words of Moses, some chuse to apply this prophecy to the delicious oil for which this land was famous, though as it was equally eminent for producing the best corn in Palestine, it would be most reasonable to make the prophecy include both these productions.

21 Naphtali—giveth goodly words. Many imagine that the first part of this verse describes the promptitude of this tribe in military engagements; and that the latter part implies their reluctance to embark in wars, till they had tried all other methods in vain, Judg. iv. and v. 18. and Deut. xxxiii. 23. But others, rejecting the inconsistency of a hind's giving goodly words, observe, that the word ailab, translated "a hind," signifies, A great tree; and that the words "goodly words," or words of beauty, may be rendered, Its branches. According to this interpretation, the verse will signify, "Naphtali is a spreading tree, which produces beautiful branches." A tree producing branches, is a usual symbol for a numerous issue; and the wonderful increase of this tribe, verifies the sense of the prophecy. Naphtali had but four sons when he came into Egypt, yet in less than two hundred and twenty years, when they departed from thence, this tribe amounted to upwards of fifty-three thousand, able to bear arms.

22 Joseph is a fruitful bough, even a fruitful bough by a well. It is in the Hebrew manuscript, Son of the fruitful (vine) "Whose branches," in the Hebrew, Daughters, "run over the wall," Joseph is compared to a fruitful stock of a vine, shooting forth her branches, which should multiply and spread themselves to a great degree.

23 The archers have sorely grieved him, &c. The Hebrew renders it, They have embittered him; they have shot their arrows at him, and hated him. From the Septuagint it appears, that the archers meant are those, that shoot out their arrows, even bitter words, and groundless calumnies; in which sense, the verse particularly points to the slander of Joseph's mistress. Some extend the sense so as to include the perfidy of his brethren, his imprisonment in Egypt, and the ingratitude of Pharaoh's butler who forgot him.

24 But his bow abode in strength. Because his enemies were archers, and had bows and arrows, so had he, and repelled force by force; but then his bow and arrows were of a different sort; the virtues and graces that he was possessed of, which remained unmoved and in their full exercise, notwithstanding the powerful attacks made upon them.

And the arms of his hands were made strong, by—the mighty God of Jacob. Therefore he held his bow, and drew it with great strength against his enemies, as an archer being used the bow, his nerves become strong, and he is not weakened by drawing it, nor weary of using it; but Joseph had not his strength of himself, but from the Lord, the mighty one, that had strengthened his father Jacob, and supported him under all his afflictions.

From thence is the shepherd, the stone, &c. This word "stone," is used for an assured ground of confidence, in the same manner as the word "rock" is used, Psal. xviii. 2. Our blessed Lord is called a stone, Isa. xxviii. 16. The sense of this sentence is, that Joseph, by the blessing of providence, nourished the Israelites, as a shepherd does his flock, and was their confidence and support, in the same manner as a stone supports any edifice.

25 Even by the God, &c. We may render the Hebrew, From the God, &c. Some refer this verse to the 22d, reading the 24th and 25th verses in a parenthesis; but others connect it with the 24th, intimating that the blessings of heaven, &c. proceeded from the same divine Providence, as the delivery of Joseph did. The blessings of heaven are seasonable, rather fertilizing rains. The blessings of the deep are springs and rivers, and the blessings of the breasts, are great quantities of cattle, and a numerous race.

26 The blessings of thy father, &c. And this will appear to be literally true, if we consider that they were greater than those which Abraham or Isaac conferred on their sons; for Jacob blessed Joseph's two sons, whereas Abraham suffered Ishmael, one of his sons, to be banished; and Isaac again bestowed the blessing on Jacob, at the same time rejecting Esau; whereas all the sons of Jacob, which were many,

28 All these are the twelve tribes of Israel: and this is it that their father spake unto them, and blessed them; every one according to his blessing he blessed them.

29 ¶ And he charged them, and said unto them, I am to be gathered unto my people: bury me with my fathers in the cave that is in the field of Ephron the Hittite,

30 In the cave that is in the field of Machpelah, which is before Mamre, in the land of Canaan, which Abraham bought with the field of Ephron the Hittite for possession of burying-place.

31 There they buried Abraham and Sarah his wife; there they buried Isaac and Rebekah his wife; and there I buried Leah.

32 The purchase of the field and of the cave that is therein was from the children of Heth.

Unto the utmost bound of the hills. These words translated "bound" may signify, Desire, and the sense is then illustrated by Deut. xxxiii. 15; and confirmed by the Vulgate. Yet it must be confessed, that "the height of hills" is sometimes used as a metaphor to convey the idea of duration, as in Isa. liv. 10. and in that sense the durableness of the blessings is the object of the prophecy.

On the crown of the head of him that was separate from his brethren. This word which we render Separate, signifies either separated by a vow, or by dignity; and hence Joseph is called the Nazarite of his brethren, because of the eminent dignity to which he was advanced above them. But the words may be likewise rendered, Upon the head, even upon thy crowned head, &c. alluding to Joseph's advancement in Egypt.

27 Benjamin shall ravin as a wolf. In like manner as Judah had been compared to a lion, Issachar to a strong ass, Dan to a serpent, Naphtali to a hind let loose, Joseph to a fruitful bough, or tree, Benjamin is fitly compared to a ravenous wolf, for his courage and success in war. And was not that a fierce and warlike tribe, as appears in several instances, and particularly in the case of the Levite's wife, when they alone waged war against the other tribes, and in two battles overcame them.

In the morning, &c. In this place, the morning and night can mean nothing else but the morning and night of the Jewish state; for this state is the subject of all Jacob's prophecy, from one end to the other; and consequently, it is here foretold of Benjamin that he should continue the very last time of the Jewish state. This interpretation is confirmed by Moses's prophecy, Deut. xxxiii. 12. wherein he used the words "all the day long." What is this "all the day long?" The same, certainly, the morning and night. Does not this import a promise of a longer continuance to Benjamin, than to the other tribes? And was it not fulfilled most exactly?

33 He gathered up his feet into the bed, &c. He sat up in the bed side while he pronounced these benedictions, with his feet hanging down to the ground; but having ended them, he drew his feet into the bed, and reclining his head on his pillow, calmly yielded up his breath into the hands of his beneficent Maker.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XLIX.

This chapter demands our strictest attention, for it contains a number of predictions or prophecies, which are to be fulfilled, at distant periods, through a long succession of years; things depending upon so many various circumstances, upon such remote causes, so hid from all human view, so contrary to all appearances at the time they were spoken of, that it was impossible for any human foresight or conjecture to imagine them. And yet all were exactly and fully accomplished, many of them at distant ages, long after both the prophet and the recorder of the prophebrethren of their return, and taketh an oath of them concerning his bones. 26 He dieth, and is put into a coffin. Before CHRIST 1689.

AND Joseph fell upon his father's face, and wept upon him, and kissed him.

2 And Joseph commanded his servants the physicians to embalm his father: and the physicians embalmed Israel.

3 And forty days were fulfilled for him; for so are fulfilled the days of those which are embalmed: and the Egyptians mourned for him threescore and ten days.

4 ¶ And when the days of his mourning were past, Joseph spake unto the house of Pharaoh, saying, If now I have found grace in your eyes, speak, I pray you, in the ears of Pharaoh, saying,

5 My father made me swear, saying, Lo, I die: in my grave which I have digged for me in the land of Canaan, there shalt thou bury me. Now therefore let me go up, I pray thee, and bury my father, and I will come again.

6 And Pharaoh said, Go up, and bury thy father, according as he made thee swear.

7 ¶ And Joseph went up to bury his father: and with him went up all the servants of Pharaoh, the elders of his house, and all the elders of the land of Egypt,

8 And all the house of Joseph, and his brethren, and his father's house: only their little ones, and their flocks, and their herds, they left in the land of Goshen.

9 And there went up with him both chariots and horsemen: and it was a very great company.

10 And

cies were dead. Nothing can give us an higher idea of the scriptures, than to see things spoken of in them with the most certain assurance, ages before they happened; and this must wonderfully confirm our faith in them, as it is a sure and convincing proof, that they are divine; for it is the prerogative of God alone, or those that are commissioned by him, certainly to foretell future events.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. L.

1 And kissed him. First Joseph closed his father's eyes, as God had promised Jacob he should; and then, according to the custom of those times, parted from the body with a kiss of filial affection.

2 His servants the physicians. Every distemper in Egypt had its peculiar physician, who confined himself to that alone, so that all places were crowded with physicians. A body of these domestics would now appear an extravagant piece of state, even in a first minister. But then it could not be otherwise, where each distemper had its proper physician; so that every great family, as well as city, must needs swarm with the faculty. This was a circumstance for which Egypt was peculiarly distinguished, and is represented by the prophet Jeremiah, chap. xlii. 11. as the characteristic of this people.

The physicians embalmed Israel. For the art of embalming was allotted to the physicians, it being one of the best, if not the only expedient of improving medicaments to an art: for as it was natural that each of the physicians should, in embalming, inspect that part of the corpse to which his practice was confined, he thereby obtained a knowledge of the occult diseases to which it was subject.

3 Forty days were fulfilled—mourned threescore and ten days. Which time of mourning was while the body remained with the embalmers, which was seventy days; this explains why the Egyptians mourned for Jacob threescore and ten days. During this time the body lay in nitre, the use of which was, to dry up the superfluous moisture; and when in the compass of thirty days this was reasonably well effected, the remaining forty were employed in anointing it with gums to preserve it, which was the proper embalming. Previous to this, they first drew out the brain with a hooked iron through the nostrils, filling the vacancy with spices; then an incision was made on the left side of the belly, and all the intestines taken out, except the heart and the kidneys; they were then cleaned and washed with palm wine, and perfumed with aromatic odours. The cavity of the belly being filled with pounded myrrh, cassia, and other aromatics, and the incision sewn up, the process was completed.

4 Joseph spake unto the house of Pharaoh, &c. Among the inhabitants of the east, it was customary for all mourners not to enter the royal presence, and for this reason Joseph made application not to Pharaoh himself but to the great officers of the court.

7 All the servants, &c. The word "All" is put for a great number, as in Matt. iii. 5. The pomp of this woeful procession must be, if we consider that it was conducted for near three hundred miles, very solemn and affecting.

10 And

Before CHRIST 1689. 10 And they came to the threshing-floor of Atad, which is beyond Jordan, and there they mourned with great and fore lamentation: and he made a mourning for his father seven days.

11 And when the inhabitants of the land, the Canaanites, saw the mourning in the floor of Atad, they said, This is a grievous mourning to the Egyptians: wherefore the name of it was called Abel-mizraim, which is beyond Jordan.

12 And his sons did unto him according as he commanded them:

13 For his sons carried him into the land of Canaan, and buried him in the cave of the field of Machpelah, which Abraham bought with the field for a possession of a burying-place of Ephron the Hittite, before Mamre.

14 ¶ And Joseph returned into Egypt, he, and his brethren, and all that went up with him to bury his father, after he had buried his father.

15 ¶ And when Joseph's brethren saw that their father was dead, they said, Joseph will peradventure hate us, and will certainly requite us all the evil which we did unto him.

16 And they sent a messenger unto Joseph, saying, Thy father did command before he died, saying,

17 So shall ye say unto Joseph, Forgive, I pray thee now, the trespasses of thy brethren, and their sin; for they did unto thee evil: and now, we pray thee, forgive the trespasses of the servants of the God of thy father. And Joseph wept when they spake unto him.

18 And his brethren also went and fell down before his face; and they said, Behold, we be thy servants.

19 And Joseph said unto them, Fear not: for am I in the place of God?

20 But as for you, ye thought evil against me; but God meant it unto good, to bring to pass, as it is this day, to save much people alive.

21 Now therefore fear ye not: I will nourish you, and your little ones. And he comforted them, and spake kindly unto them.

22 ¶ And Joseph dwelt in Egypt, he, and his father's house: and Joseph lived an hundred and ten years.

23 And Joseph saw Ephraim's children of the third generation: the children also of Machir the son of Manasse were brought up upon Joseph's knees.

24 ¶ And Joseph said unto his brethren, I die: and God will surely visit you, and bring you out of this land unto the land which he sware to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob.

25 And Joseph took an oath of the children of Israel, saying, God will surely visit you, and ye shall carry up my bones from hence.

26 ¶ So Joseph died, being an hundred and ten years old: and they embalmed him, and he was put in a coffin in Egypt.

10 And they came to the threshing-floor of Atad] This word Atad signifies Brambles, as appears from Judges ix. 14. Psalm lviii. 9. and hence the Arabic translates the passage, The threshing-floor of brambles; perhaps the threshing-floor was encompassed with brambles. Others think Atad was the name of a person eminent in the country for husbandry. The place is supposed to be situated about two leagues from Jericho, on the other side Jordan, and distant from Hebron about fifty miles.

Beyond Jordan, &c.] Both Atad and Abel-mizraim lay to the west of Jordan; but were on the other side of that river, with respect to the place where Moses was when he wrote this history, which was in the wilderness of Arabia, on the east of Jordan. Others translate the word Héber, Passage; and then the sense will be, At the passage of Jordan; which is confirmed by the Samaritan and Arabic.

11 Abel-mizraim, &c.] This is in the Hebrew, The mourning of the Egyptians.

16 Thy father did command, &c.] The wrongs they had done their brother filled their minds with such gloomy apprehensions, that they fancied Joseph had only smothered his resentment out of respect to his father, and would now take ample vengeance on them for their perfidious behaviour, and perhaps what they urge as their father's dying command was a mere fable.

17 And Joseph wept when they spake unto him.] Joseph's tears discovered the compassion and generosity of his soul, and afforded an evident proof of his sincerity, and how unjustly they suspected him capable of such permanent and deep resentment.

19 For am I in the place of God?] Read the note on chap. xxx. 2. The Vulgate renders, Fear not; can we resist the will of God? The Septuagint, Fear not, for I am God's, &c. The Chaldee, Fear not, for I fear God; which is confirmed by the Arabic; but the Syriac renders, I am under God.

Ye thought evil, &c.] A generous and noble apology this for their perfidious treatment; and at the same time it palliates their crime, teaches us, that the eyes of the Lord are over all his works; that he disappoints the malice of wicked men, counteracts their mischievous intentions, and perpetually educes good out of evil.

21 Spake kindly, &c.] This is in the Hebrew, Spake unto their heart.

23 Ephraim's children, of the third generation.] Here Joseph had the pleasure of seeing his father's prophetic blessing upon his sons in part fulfilled; which could not fail of giving him the most confident assurance that the rest would be accomplished in due season.

Were brought up, &c.] It is in the Hebrew, Were born, which is literally preserved by the Vulgate, Septuagint, Syriac, and Arabic; the Chaldee renders it, The sons of Machir were born, whom Joseph educated; the Arabic translates the latter words, In his bosom; which intimates the affectionate tenderness with which Joseph watched over their infant days.

25 Carry up my bones from hence, &c.] Joseph was so confident that God would give them the land of Canaan, that he desires his remains might be kept unburied till the God of their fathers thought proper to visit them.

26 In a coffin, &c.] Without doubt this was one of those chests in which the embalmed bodies of the dead were deposited; they were made in the shape of a man, and deposited in cells, raised against the wall on an end.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. L.

In this chapter we find many excellent lessons: first, the care that Joseph took to bury his father, should teach us to perform, with filial reverence, the last duties to our deceased parents. Secondly, the earnest entreaty of his brethren to forgive them, plainly shews us, that guilt will always create fear, and that such is the way the grand adversary of mankind rewards his vassals. Thirdly, we find that Joseph lived to a good old age, from which circumstance let us learn, that, however it may please God to afflict his people for some time, yet he has it still in his power to reward them, and make them a sufficient amends for their sufferings, both in time and in eternity. Lastly, as Joseph believed the Divine promise, when he gave charge concerning his bones, let us never forget, that we have here no continuing city, and that we look for one whose maker and builder is God eternal in the heavens.

Summary of the Doctrine contained in Moses's FIRST BOOK of GENESIS.

THE doctrine contained in the Book of Genesis inculcates every thing necessary to a godly and virtuous life, and conveys a certain prophecy or promise of a mediatorial generation. The unity of God, and an all-seeing Providence, who rewards virtue, and punishes vice, is plain and conspicuous in every page; and as to sacrifice, used as an expiation for sin, it is evident to the least reflection, that this part of Divine worship must have been immediately ordered by God himself, it never could have entered into the idea of man to make use of it. In this book we likewise find the earliest appointment of a sabbath, or a day of rest and devotion; which ought therefore to have the greatest weight with us, being expressly commanded by God himself: likewise many interesting and moral lessons.

The Second BOOK of MOSES, CALLED EXODUS.

THE ARGUMENT.

The title of this book is derived from the Greek ex, out, and odos, a way; which it received according to the custom of the Greeks, from the principal subject of the book, viz. the departure of the Israelites from Egypt. In Hebrew, it is called, according to the custom of the Jews, Veelleh Shemoth; these names are taken from the two first words. This book comprehends a great variety of incidents, all of which are of the greatest importance. The ways of providence are here described in the most striking light, and displayed in such a manner, as amply vindicates the ways of God to man. In this book we have the history of Moses's birth, education, flight, and the oppression of the Israelites in Egypt; we are informed of his return to Midian, his mission to Pharaoh, the wonders he wrought in Egypt, the departure of the Jews, their passage through the Red-sea and the wilderness. It describes the manner of giving the law, the celebration of the sacred passover, and contains the transactions of about one hundred and forty-five years, from the death of Joseph to the building of the tabernacle.

CHAP. I.

Before CHRIST 1706. 1 The children of Israel after Joseph's death multiply greatly. They are oppressed by a new king, but multiply so much the more. 15 The piety of the midwives in saving the men children alive is rewarded by God. 22 Pharaoh commandeth the male children to be cast into the river.

NOW these are the names of the children of Israel, which came into Egypt; every man and his household came with Jacob.

2 Reuben, Simeon, Levi, and Judah,

3 Issachar, Zebulun, and Benjamin,

4 Dan, and Naphtali; Gad, and Asher.

5 And all the souls that came out of the loins of Jacob were seventy souls: for Joseph was in Egypt already.

6 And Joseph died, and all his brethren, and all that generation.

1635. 7 And the children of Israel were fruitful, and increased abundantly, and multiplied, and waxed exceeding mighty; and the land was filled with them.

8 ¶ Now there arose up a new king over Egypt, which knew not Joseph.

9 And he said unto his people, Behold, the people of the children of Israel are more and mightier than we. Before CHRIST 1635.

10 Come on, let us deal wisely with them; lest they multiply, and it come to pass, that, when there falleth out any war, they join also unto our enemies, and fight against us, and so get them up out of the land.

11 Therefore they did set over them taskmasters to afflict them with their burdens. And they built for Pharaoh treasure cities, Pithom and Raamses.

12 But the more they afflicted them, the more they multiplied and grew. And they were grieved because of the children of Israel.

13 And the Egyptians made the children of Israel to serve with rigour:

14 And they made their lives bitter with hard bondage, in mortar, and in brick, and in all manner of service in the field: all their service, wherein they made them serve, was with rigour.

15 ¶ And the king of Egypt spake to the Hebrew midwives, of which the name of the one was Shiprah, and the name of the other Puah:

16 And he said, When ye do the office of a midwife to the Hebrew women, and see them upon the stools; if it be a son, then ye shall kill him: but if it be a daughter, then she shall live.

17 But

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. I.

1 Now these are—the children, &c.] This exact account of the number of persons who came into Egypt, demonstrates that God had fulfilled his promise to Abraham, in multiplying his seed, Gen. xv. 5.

¶ And Joseph died, and all his brethren, and all that generation.] By recollecting that Levi and Amram lived one hundred and thirty-seven years, chap. vi. 16, 20. we shall easily perceive that a pretty long space of time must here be understood.

8 Which knew not Joseph.] To know, in scripture, signifies approve, esteem, as in Matt. xxv. 12. It may in this place imply, that the king was averse to Joseph's system of policy, and endeavoured to bury his memory in oblivion. In this sense the word is frequently used, Judges ii. 10. ¶ And there arose another generation, which knew not the Lord, &c." Here "knew not" only signify, Despised, set at nought, &c. &c.

9 More and mightier than we.] It appears by the whole turn of this relation, that "more and mightier" signify only, More fruitful and healthy; and that was in truth the case. The Egyptians were at this time very luxurious, while the manners of the Israelites concurred with their condition to render them hardy and fruitful; by an abstemious and laborious course of life. On this account the king expressed his fear. But of what? Certainly not that they should subdue their masters, but that they should escape out of bondage, which, even at the very moment of their egression, was the sole object of the Egyptians' fear; "Lest they multiply, and so get them up out of the land." This was a reasonable apprehension; for Egypt was in every age subject to the incursions of that fierce and barbarous people, the Arabians, and that very side which the Israelites inhabited: who possessing their own district, unmixed with the Egyptians, had the keys of the country in their hands, to admit or exclude an invader, at pleasure. To prevent, then, so probable a danger, their taskmasters ordered to increase their oppressions; and they groan under them without power to resist, till set free by the all powerful hand of the great Jehovah.

No. 5.

10 Lest—they join also unto our enemies, &c.] For the Israelites never considered themselves as settled in Egypt, but as sojourners only; and therefore it is natural to suppose that they had often mentioned their intention of leaving the country, which doubtless contributed to raise this jealousy in Pharaoh.

11 Built for Pharaoh treasure cities, &c.] The word which we render "treasure cities," occurs 2 Chron. xvi. 4. and is there translated "store cities." Its proper signification is, Magazines for preserving stores of corn, as well as treasures of money. The Septuagint render it, Fortified cities. The Syriac and Arabic, Store-houses for corn.

15 The name of the one was Shiprah, and the name of the other Puah.] Both of whom seem to have been the chief of the midwives; and perhaps all the rest acted under their directions. The Egyptian midwives were employed to superintend the delivery of the Hebrew matrons.

16 If it be a son, then ye shall kill him, &c.] We are told by Josephus, that this cruel order was occasioned by a pretended prediction, that a child should be born of the Hebrews who would be a scourge to the Egyptians. We find no intimations of this in the sacred history; only that Pharaoh, dreading the power of the Israelites, was desirous of destroying all the males, it being from them alone any danger was to be dreaded.

18 And the king of Egypt called for the midwives, and said unto them, Why have ye done this thing, and have saved the men children alive?

19 And the midwives said unto Pharaoh, Because the Hebrew women are not as the Egyptian women; for they are lively, and are delivered ere the midwives come in unto them.

20 Therefore God dealt well with the midwives: and the people multiplied, and waxed very mighty.

21 And it came to pass, because the midwives feared God, that he made them houses.

C H A P. II.

1 Moses is born, and laid in an ark among the flags:

5 He is found, and brought up by Pharaoh's daughter:

11 He slayeth an Egyptian; reproveth an Hebrew; and is obliged to flee. 16 The priest of Midian entertaineth him. 23 God respecteth the cry of the Israelites.

AND there went a man of the house of Levi, and took to wife a daughter of Levi.

And the woman conceived, and bare a son: and when she saw him that he was a goodly child, she hid him three months.

3 And when she could not longer hide him, she took for him an ark of bulrushes, and daubed it with slime and with pitch, and put the child therein; and she laid it in the flags by the river's brink.

17 The midwives feared God, &c.] If they had complied with the king's orders, they would not only have been guilty of murder, but perfidy too, by destroying those innocent children they had undertaken to preserve.

19 They are lively, &c.] It is in the Hebrew, for they are midwives themselves. If we consider that the Hebrew women, on account of their being inured to toil and labour, must be of a more robust and vigorous constitution than the Egyptians, the midwives will appear not to have told a lye, though possibly they might have concealed some part of the truth.

21 Because the midwives feared God, that he made them houses.] The sense of these words, apparently, is, that God, in return for their kindness to the Israelites, blest their children, and rendered them prosperous. But we may observe, that "them," in the original, is of the masculine gender, and therefore cannot refer to the midwives. Some, therefore, apply it to the Israelites; and then the sense is, that providence, by means of the piety of the midwives, continued to increase the children of Israel. Some apply this to the increase of the families of the Hebrew midwives. But others refer it to Pharaoh and his servants, who built houses for the midwives, whither the Hebrew women were obliged to repair, in order to be delivered before commissioners appointed for that purpose, that the king's order might not be any longer evaded.

22 And Pharaoh charged all his people, saying, Every son that is born ye shall cast into the river, &c.] Now Pharaoh finding himself disappointed by the midwives, issues orders for his own servants to execute his inhuman command.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. I.

Here we see the quick transition of one generation to another! How necessary that such as wax great or numerous, remember their original meanness! How remarkable is the birth of God's promise, when its full time cometh! In two hundred and fifteen years, Abraham's promised seed had increased seventy persons; in many more, they increased about three millions. How quickly the services done to men are forgotten; while those done to God had in everlasting remembrance! How often God's kindness sharpens man's cruelty! And to what horrid and savage barbarity their selfish designs often push them! But how vain for devils or men to contend with the Lord! Their best-laid attempts against his designs will but promote their accomplishment. God's church often thrives best in the fiery furnace of troubles, one after another! Let us therefore always depend on God; always obey God rather than man.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. II.

1 A man] Whose name was Amram. See Exod. vi. 20. Num. xxvi. 59.

A daughter of Levi.] Whose name was Jochebed, and who was Amram's father's sister. See Exod. vi. 20.

Bare a son.] In chap. vii. 7. we find Moses was not the first-born, his brother Aaron being three years older.

And when she saw him that he was a goodly child, &c.] Moses remarkable for his size and beauty. Heb. xi. 23. Acts vii. 20.

4 And his sister stood afar off, to wit what would be done to him.

5 And the daughter of Pharaoh came down to wash herself at the river; and her maidens walked along by the river's side; and when she saw the ark among the flags, she sent her maid to fetch it.

6 And when she had opened it, she saw the child: and, behold, the babe wept. And she had compassion on him, and said, This is one of the Hebrews' children.

7 Then said his sister to Pharaoh's daughter, Shall I go and call to thee a nurse of the Hebrew women, that she may nurse the child for thee?

8 And Pharaoh's daughter said to her, Go. And the maid went and called the child's mother.

9 And Pharaoh's daughter said unto her, Take this child away, and nurse it for me, and I will give thee thy wages. And the woman took the child, and nursed it.

10 And the child grew, and she brought him unto Pharaoh's daughter, and he became her son. And she called his name Moses: and she said, Because I drew him out of the water.

11 ¶ And it came to pass in those days, when Moses was grown, that he went out unto his brethren, and looked on their burdens: and he spied an Egyptian smiting an Hebrew, one of his brethren.

12 And he looked this way and that way, and when he saw that there was no man, he slew the Egyptian, and hid him in the sand. 1531.

13 And when he went out the second day, behold, two men of the Hebrews strove together, and he said to

3 And when she could no longer hide him.] i. e. When the child grew too big to be concealed any longer, for fear of being informed against by some of her Egyptian neighbours, with whom the Israelites lived intermixed. Thus the person who was afterwards the deliverer of Israel was exposed to the greatest dangers, and had almost fallen himself a sacrifice to an inhuman tyrant! Doubtless the providence of God directed things in this manner, that Moses might conceive a higher detestation of the Egyptians, and labour with a greater zeal to deliver his brethren from the hands of such blood-thirsty people.

Of bulrushes.] Or of papyrus, which was a kind of flaggy shrub or reed, that grew particularly on the banks of the Nile.

And she laid it in the flags, &c.] Several authors, particularly Pliny, tell us, that the Egyptians made boats of the papyrus; and probably the ark in which Moses was placed was made in the form of a boat, that if by any accident it should be carried away by the stream, it might swim in the sea.

4 His sister, &c.] Whose name was Miriam, appears from Numb. xxvi. 59. Moses's parents were induced to expose him from a strong confidence that divine providence would preserve him; Amram had been informed by a dream antecedent to the birth of Moses.

5 Daughter of Pharaoh, &c.] Whose name was Thermuthis.

6 And she had compassion on him.] The princess was irresistibly moved with the sight of so much innocence and beauty in distress.

9 Take this child away, and nurse it for me, &c.] If the child had been found by any other person, the king himself excepted, they must have thrown him into the river; but Pharaoh's daughter is conducted by an invisible hand to the place where the forlorn infant was exposed, and by her put to nurse to his own mother.

And he became her son.] i. e. She adopted him for her own son, and she gave him a princely education. As Moses grew up, he was remarkable for the tallness of his stature, and elegance of his form, shewed a pregnancy of understanding that far surpassed his years, and sufficiently indicated what might be expected from him in time.

She called his name Moses, &c.] Many derive the word Moses from the Egyptian mo, "water," and yses, or yfs, "preserved;" consequently the word implies, Saved from the waters, or preserved from drowning. But Moses, finding the Hebrew word mascha, "to draw out," bear some resemblance in sound and sense to his own name, writes it Mosheh, and introduces Pharaoh's daughter giving this reason why she imposed it, because mesbitihu, "I drew him out of the waters."

11 He went out unto his brethren, &c.] Moses abandoned the pleasures of the Egyptian court, and joined himself to the Hebrews, who were all his brethren, as all being descended from their common father Abraham, "choosing rather (says the apostle to the Hebrews) to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season." Heb. xi. 24.

12 He slew the Egyptian, &c.] Which Egyptian was one of the taskmasters, who fell unmercifully upon the Hebrew, because he did not work so fast as he desired, and almost beat him to death. But the wrongs suffered by the Israelites so animated Moses with abhorrence

Before CHRIST 1531. to him that did the wrong, Wherefore smitest thou thy fellow?

14 And he said, Who made thee a prince and a judge over us? intendest thou to kill me, thou killedst the Egyptian? And Moses feared, and said, Surely this thing is known.

15 Now when Pharaoh heard this thing, he sought to slay Moses. But Moses fled from the face of Pharaoh, and dwelt in the land of Midian: and he sat down by a well.

16 ¶ Now the priest of Midian had seven daughters: and they came and drew water, and filled the troughs to water their father's flock.

17 And the shepherds came and drove them away: but Moses stood up and helped them, and watered their flock.

18 And when they came to Reuel their father, he said, How is it that ye are come so soon to day.

19 And they said, An Egyptian delivered us out of the hand of the shepherds, and also drew water enough for us, and watered the flock.

20 And he said unto his daughters, And where is he? why is it that ye have left the man? call him, that he may eat bread.

21 And Moses was content to dwell with the man: and he gave Moses Zipporah his daughter.

22 And she bare him a son, and he called his name Gershom: for he said, I have been a stranger in a strange land.

23 ¶ And it came to pass in process of time, that horrence against such flagrant oppression, and with such ardent love for his brethren, that he could not suffer this outrage to escape unpunished. But it has been questioned whether, granting the Israelite to have suffered wrong, this action of Moses was justifiable? and whether he should not have appealed to the civil magistrate, in whose hands the society had lodged the power of redressing private wrongs? In reply, it should be remembered, that as the Egyptian kings authorized the oppressing the Israelites, it would have been in vain to apply for redress of their grievances; and, consequently, the society being degenerated into a confederacy in oppression and injustice, it was as lawful to use private force and resistance as against a band of robbers and banditti. It is highly probable that by a divine impulse Moses did this action.

14 And Moses feared, &c.] Many have suspected that there is a contradiction between this account and that of the apostle, Heb. xi. 26. "By faith he forsook Egypt, not fearing the wrath of the king." But these words of the apostle may refer to Moses's courage, in conducting the Israelites out of Egypt, in which action he was so fortified by faith in the divine protection, that he feared not Pharaoh and all his army.

15 And dwelt in the land of Midian, &c.] Midian is supposed to be part of Arabia Petraea, which bordered on Goshen. In this desert he acquired virtues which rendered him capable of undertaking the deliverance of his brethren.

16 Priest of Midian, &c.] This was a priest of the true God, and in great esteem in those parts. The Chaldee translates it, The prince of Midian.

17 And the shepherds came and drove them away, &c.] i. e. The shepherds drove the flocks from the well; for the word "them" is in the masculine gender, and therefore cannot refer to the daughters. Nor will this action of the shepherds appear surprising, if it be considered, that in these countries there is a great scarcity of water; and that every shepherd would endeavour to get the first possession of the wells, lest others, coming thither before them, should not leave water enough to supply their wants.

18 When they came to Reuel their father, &c.] Perhaps this person is called Hobab, the son of Raguel, Numb. x. 29. Ceni, in Judges i. 16. and Jethro, in Exod. iii. 1. so that one and the same person is thought to have been called by four names, Raguel, Reuel, Hobab, Ceni, and Jethro.

21 And he gave Moses Zipporah his daughter.] Notwithstanding the scripture has not mentioned any transaction between the arrival of Moses at Reuel's house, and his marriage of Zipporah; yet, it is highly probable, that Reuel did not give him his daughter till he had been some time in the country, and given sufficient proofs of his virtue and integrity.

22 Called his name Gershom, &c.] i. e. A stranger, or alien. Or in the Hebrew, I have been a stranger, &c.

23 The king of Egypt died.] Whose was Rameses, according to bishop Usher, who places his death in the year of the world 2494; his successor was Amenophis, who drowned in the Red-sea.

Their cry, &c.] This is in the Samaritan, Their groan; in the Arabic, Their prayer or supplication; which is confirmed by the Syriac rendering the words, They prayed, they cried.

24, 25, And God, &c.] Four different words, in these two verses, namely, heard, remembered, looked upon them, had respect unto them, are made use of, the more emphatically to express God's tenderness towards his people.

the king of Egypt died: and the children of Israel sighed by reason of the bondage, and they cried, and their cry came up unto God by reason of the bondage. Before CHRIST 1531.

24 And God heard their groaning, and God remembered his covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob.

25 And God looked upon the children of Israel, and God had respect unto them.

C H A P. III.

1 Moses keepeth Jethro's flock: God appeareth to him in a burning bush: 7 He sendeth him to deliver Israel. 11 Moses inquireth, and is told the name of God. 15 God's message to Israel, and to the king of Egypt. 19 Pharaoh's obstinacy foretold, and its consequences.

NOW Moses kept the flock of Jethro his father in law, the priest of Midian: and he led the flock to the backside of the desert, and came to the mountain of God, even to Horeb. 1491:

2 And the Angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a flame of fire out of the midst of a bush: and he looked, and, behold the bush burned with fire, and the bush was not consumed.

3 And Moses said, I will now turn aside, and see this great sight, why the bush is not burnt.

4 And when the Lord saw that he turned aside to see, God called unto him out of the midst of the bush, and said, Moses, Moses. And he said, Here am I.

5 And he said, Draw not nigh hither: put off thy shoes

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. II.

The hardships which Moses endured in the desert land of Midian, and the virtues he learned in this school of adversity, at a distance from the pleasures of a court, where he had been educated, served him a little to qualify him for the part he was afterwards to act, as the deliverer of God's people.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. III.

1 The backside of the desert.] The word rendered "the back-side," is omitted in the Septuagint and Samaritan. The Arabic reads, The extremities; the Vulgate, The inner parts; and the Chaldee, The best pastures of the desert.

Mountain of God.] These words are omitted in the Septuagint. The Chaldee renders them, He came to Horeb, where the glory of the Lord was revealed; according to this version, it received the title of the mountain of God by anticipation. Yet it must be owned, that in various places of scripture "the mountain of God" signifies only a very lofty one. Josephus pretends that the shepherds were afraid to ascend this mountain, on account of an ancient tradition that some god kept his residence thereupon.

Even to Horeb.] St. Stephen, Acts vii. 30. calls it Sinai, because Horeb and Sinai were two summits of the same mountain. He also informs us that this happened after Moses had dwelt forty years in the land of Midian.

And the angel of the Lord appeared.] Several are of opinion, that by the angel of the Lord is meant the Messiah, the messenger of the covenant; that all-glorious person, who, to make atonement for sinful man, spilt his most precious blood. We are of opinion, that it was the appearance of the Shechinah, or Jehovah himself, accompanied with a glorious retinue of angels as his ministers. And the Vulgate, which renders it, The Lord appeared, partly confirms this meaning.

In a flame of fire.] For the element of fire was frequently made use of by God to notify his presence. Thus when he determined to ratify his covenant with Abraham, "a smoking furnace and a lamp of fire passed between the pieces of the victims." When the people were to be satisfied of the divine mission of Moses, the Lord descended in fire from mount Sinai. When our Saviour initiated in his ministry, the divine glory, or fire, settled upon his head; and when the disciples were filled with the Holy Ghost, fiery cloven tongues manifested his presence, and convinced the spectators of the reality of their inspiration.

Out of the midst of a bush.] The word seneb, which we render "bush," properly signifies a bramble bush; thence the wilderness and adjacent mountains were called Sinai, from their being full of bramble bushes.

And the bush was not consumed.] We are informed by Philo the Jew of the doctrine couched under this extraordinary appearance. The burning bush was a symbol, says he, of the oppressed, and the flaming fire of the oppressor. The bush burning with fire, and not consumed, portended, that they who were oppressed by violence should not be destroyed; the design of their enemies should be frustrated: and the present troubles with which they were afflicted should, in the event, prove advantageous to them.

5 Put off thy shoes from off thy feet, &c.] None can approach the great Creator of the universe with too much reverence. And how great is the condescension of the almighty Being, who fills immensity with his glory, that he deigns to reveal himself to sinful mortals!

Before CHRIST 1491. ^{Before} shoes from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground.

6 Moreover he said, I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moses hid his face; for he was afraid to look upon God.

7 ¶ And the LORD said, I have surely seen the affliction of my people which are in Egypt, and have heard their cry by reason of their taskmasters; for I know their sorrows;

¶ And I am come down to deliver them out of the hand of the Egyptians, and to bring them up out of that land unto a good land and a large, unto a land flowing with milk and honey; unto the place of the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites.

9 Now therefore, behold, the cry of the children of Israel is come unto me: and I have also seen the oppression wherewith the Egyptians oppress them.

10 Come now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth my people the children of Israel out of Egypt.

11 ¶ And Moses said unto God, Who am I, that I should go unto Pharaoh, and that I should bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt?

12 And he said, Certainly I will be with thee; and this shall be a token unto thee, that I have sent thee: When thou hast brought forth the people out of Egypt, ye shall serve God upon this mountain.

13 And Moses said unto God, Behold, when I come unto the children of Israel, and shall say unto them, The God of your fathers hath sent me unto you; and they shall say to me, What is his name? what shall I say unto them?

14 And God said unto Moses, I AM THAT I mortals! Though the divinity be present every where; though the whole world be his august temple, yet we should be remarkably cautious when we approach the place where his honour dwelleth, the house set apart for his worship; for we see that even Moses himself was commanded, when he approached the divine majesty, to put off his shoes from his feet, for the place on which he stood was holy ground.

6 And Moses hid his face] This is in token of profound humility and veneration. The angels themselves said to cover theirs in the presence of God. Isaiah vi. 2.

Upon God.] This is in the Hebrew, To look back towards God. The Chaldee renders it, to look towards the glory of God.

7 Their cry, by reason of their taskmasters, &c.] From the sequel of their history, it will appear, that their cry was not for such a deliverance as was promised to their forefathers, i. e. to be brought up out of Egypt; but for such a one as might enable them to live in ease among their flesh-pots therein.

8 Unto a land flowing with milk and honey, &c.] The sacred writings are full of encomiums on the fertility of the land of Canaan; and the expression, "flowing with milk and honey," was a common proverb, denoting an abundance.

11 And Moses said unto God, Who am I, that I should go unto Pharaoh, &c.] Moses modestly declines the service, from apprehension that it was unlikely that a person so long absent from Egypt should be able to prevail with the people to follow him, or with the prince to release them from his dominion and sway.

12 And this shall be a token unto thee, &c.] i. e. The vision which thou hast seen of the bush burning, but consumed.

14 I AM THAT I AM, &c.] A name was so peculiar and distinct to a local tutelary deity, that the one supreme God had no name, or title of distinction. Out of indulgence, therefore, the weakness of Moses, God was pleased to give himself a name, "I AM THAT I AM, &c." where we may observe (according to the constant method of divine wisdom, when it condescends to the prejudices of men) how in the very instance of indulgence their superstition, he gives a corrective of it. The religion of the Egyptians arose from idolatrous polytheism; and the name here given by implying eternity and self-existence, directly opposeth that superstition.

18 Hath met with us, &c.] We read in the Vulgate, It hath called us; in the Septuagint, Hath called upon us; in the Arabic, Hath commanded us; in the Syriac, Hath appeared to us; and in the Chaldee, Hath been invoked by us. The Hebrew word, nikrah, which signifies "met," is in the Samaritan written nikra, which signifies, "to call:" and as several Hebrew MSS. confirm the latter as the genuine reading, we may safely adopt the same.

19 No, not by a mighty hand.] It is in the Vulgate, Unless by a mighty hand; in the Septuagint, Unless with a mighty hand; in

AM: and he said, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, I AM hath sent me unto you. ^{Before CHRIST 1491.}

15 ¶ And God said moreover unto Moses, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, The LORD God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath sent me unto you: this is my name for ever, and this is my memorial unto all generations.

16 Go, and gather the elders of Israel together, and say unto them, The LORD God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob, appeared unto me, saying, I have surely visited you, and seen that which is done to you in Egypt:

17 And I have said, I will bring thee up out of the affliction of Egypt unto the land of the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites, unto a land flowing with milk and honey.

18 And they shall hearken to thy voice: and thou shalt come, thou and the elders of Israel, unto the king of Egypt, and ye shall say unto him, The LORD God of the Hebrews has met with us: and now let us go, we beseech thee, three days journey into the wilderness, that we may sacrifice to the LORD our God.

19 ¶ And I am sure that the king of Egypt will not let you go, no, not by a mighty hand.

20 And I will stretch out my hand, and smite Egypt with all my wonders which I will do in the midst thereof: and after that he will let you go.

21 And I will give this people favour in the sight of the Egyptians: and it shall come to pass, that, when ye go, ye shall not go empty:

22 But every woman shall borrow of her neighbour, and of her that sojourneth in her house, jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment: and ye shall put them upon your sons and upon your daughters; and ye shall spoil the Egyptians.

CHAP.

the Chaldee, Nor indeed, because his power is great. The Samaritan and Septuagint agree.

20 And I will stretch out my hand] Canaan and Egypt were the two most populous regions at this time in the world; the first distinguished from all others by its violence and unnatural crimes; the latter by its superstitions and idolatries. It concerned God's moral government that a speedy stop should be put to both; the inhabitants of these two being now ripe for divine vengeance. And the instruments he employed to punish their present enormities were designed for the barrier against future, the Israelites went out of Egypt with a high hand, which desolated their haughty tyrants, and were led into the possession of the land of Canaan, whose inhabitants they were utterly to exterminate. Vice and idolatry had now filled up their measure. Egypt, the capital of false religion, being likewise the nursery of arts and sciences, was preserved from total destruction, for the sake of civil and polished manners, which was to derive their source from thence; but the Canaanites were to be utterly exterminated, to vindicate the honour of humanity, and to put a stop to a contagion which changed the reasonable nature into brutal.

Smite Egypt with all my wonders, &c.] Egypt was chosen by God to be the scene of all his wonders in support of his elect people; for this very reason, that through the celebrity of so famed an empire the powers of the true God might be spread abroad, and strike the observation of the whole habitable world, Rom. ix. 7.

22 Every woman shall borrow] The word shaal, which we render "borrow," signifies to ask, as appears from Gen. xxxii. 17. Josh. xix. 50. Judges viii. 24. It likewise signifies, To return any thing obtained by great difficulty and importunity, as in 1 Sam. ii. 28. And therefore the true sense of the passage will be, Every woman shall ask of her neighbour, and of her that sojourneth in her house, jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment, some compensation for the injuries the Israelites have received. Consequently the Egyptians, in compliance with their request, shewed they were willing to pay the tax desired as a ransom for their lives, and a compensation for the injuries they had done the Israelites.

And ye shall spoil, &c.] It is in the Chaldee, Ye shall leave the Egyptians empty; and in the Arabic, Ye shall extirpate the Egyptians.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. III.

Let us here observe, the reverence that is due to God, whenever we approach him in prayer, when we come into his temple, or when we even do but speak of him; and indeed when we consider what a great and glorious Being he is, the profoundest reverence, the lowest abasement, the most fervent veneration, will appear too little when we come before him.

C H A P. IV.

1 Moses' rod is turned into a serpent: 6 His hand is leprous: 10 He is loth to be sent; Aaron is appointed to assist him. 18 Moses departeth from Jethro. 21 God's message to Pharaoh. 24 Zipporah circumciseth her son. 27 Aaron is sent to meet Moses. 29 They go to the Israelites, and the people believe them.

AND Moses answered and said, But, behold, they will not believe me, nor hearken unto my voice: for they will say, The LORD hath not appeared unto thee.

2 And the LORD said unto him, What is that in thine hand? And he said, A rod.

3 And he said, Cast it on the ground. And he cast it on the ground, and it became a serpent; and Moses fled from before it.

4 And the LORD said unto Moses, Put forth thine hand, and take it by the tail. And he put forth his hand, and caught it, and it became a rod in his hand:

5 That they may believe that the LORD God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath appeared unto thee.

6 ¶ And the LORD said furthermore unto him, Put now thine hand into thy bosom. And he put his hand into his bosom: and when he took it out, behold, his hand was leprous as snow.

7 And he said, Put thine hand into thy bosom again. And he put his hand into his bosom again; and plucked it out of his bosom, and, behold, it was turned again as his other flesh.

¶ And it shall come to pass, if they will not believe thee, neither hearken to the voice of the first sign, that they will believe the voice of the latter sign.

9 And it shall come to pass, if they will not believe also these two signs, neither hearken unto thy voice, that thou shalt take the water of the river, and pour it upon the dry land: and the water which thou takest out of the river shall become blood upon the dry land.

10 ¶ And Moses said unto the LORD, O my

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. IV.

¶ Behold, they will not believe me, &c.] The great reluctance Moses here discovers to accept this commission, may seem unaccountably strange, if we consider that from the former part of his history, chap. ii. ver. 12. he was neither wanting in forwardness or zeal to promote the welfare of his brethren. Whence then could his backwardness proceed? Whence! From his thinking that the recovery of the Israelites from the Egyptian superstitions was altogether desperate. And, humanly speaking, he did not judge amiss, ¶ will appear from their behaviour during the whole time God was working their deliverance in so surprising a manner.

3 And it became a serpent, &c.] This word translated = serpent, is rendered by the Vulgate, A snake; and by others, A dragon, prodigiously large.

5 ¶ That they may believe, &c.] i. e. Thou shalt do this before them, in order to convince them, if they have any doubt, that thou hast been sent by me.

6, 7, His hand was leprous as snow—and it was turned again as his other flesh.] A leprosy, especially the white leprosy, is esteemed almost incurable; and the inflicting this disease, and the curing it again instantly, makes the miracle more extraordinary.

¶ And it shall come to pass.] Thus God condescended to give the reason why he is pleased to add another sign to the former; namely, that he might overcome the incredulity which he foresaw would be found in many of the people.

They will believe the voice of the latter sign.] All who cannot be prevailed upon by the first sign, shall be convinced by the second; and if any should be so obstinate as to stand out against the second, they should be convinced by a third. We may observe a great propriety and energy in this expression, "the voice of the sign," since those miracles, in effect, spoke in the ear of reason, and said, Believe in him whom God hath sent to you.

10 Slow of speech, &c.] The two words chebab peh, rendered "slow of speech," signify, in Ezek. iii. 5. a strange language understood with difficulty; in which sense Moses not only insinuates that he was no orator, but also that he had almost lost the true pronunciation of the Egyptian language, in the absence of forty years.

11 And the Lord said unto him, Who hath made man's mouth? &c.] A very strong remark this, and ought to have been taken as a satisfactory answer to the objection of Moses.

13 Send, I pray thee, by the hand, &c.] The word rendered, Nb. 6.

Lord, I am not eloquent, neither heretofore, nor since thou hast spoken unto thy servant: but I am ^{Before CHRIST 1491.} slow of speech, and of a slow tongue.

11 And the LORD said unto him, Who hath made man's mouth? or who maketh the dumb, or deaf, or the seeing, or the blind? have not I the LORD?

12 Now therefore go, and I will be with thy mouth, and teach thee what thou shalt say.

13 And he said, O my Lord, send, I pray thee, by the hand of him whom thou wilt send.

14 And the anger of the LORD was kindled against Moses, and he said, Is not Aaron the Levite thy brother? I know that he can speak well. And also, behold, he cometh forth to meet thee: and when he seeth thee, he will be glad in his heart.

15 And thou shalt speak unto him, and put words in his mouth: and I will be with thy mouth, and with his mouth, and will teach you what ye shall do.

16 And he shall be thy spokesman unto the people: and he shall be, even he shall be to thee instead of a mouth, and thou shalt be to him instead of God.

17 And thou shalt take this rod in thine hand, wherewith thou shalt do signs.

18 ¶ And Moses went and returned to Jethro his father in law, and said unto him, Let me go, I pray thee, and return unto my brethren which are in Egypt, and see whether they be yet alive. And Jethro said to Moses, Go in peace.

19 And the LORD said unto Moses in Midian, Go, return into Egypt: for all the men are dead which sought thy life.

20 And Moses took his wife and his sons, and set them upon an ass, and he returned to the land of Egypt: and Moses took the rod of God in his hand.

21 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, When thou goest to return into Egypt, see that thou do all those wonders before Pharaoh, which I have put in thine hand: but I will harden his heart, that he shall not let the people go.

¶ And

"whom thou wilt send," is in the Hebrew ishlahh, whence the word sebilah, mentioned Gen. xlix. 10. is derived; some have imagined, that Moses here alludes to the Messiah. The Septuagint render, Send by some other person who is able; the Chaldee, Send by the hand of him who is worthy to be sent. Grotius observes, that the Hebrew word jad, a hand, signifies fitness in general; and that Moses's reluctance is an argument of his modesty: but it seems rather more probable, that his backwardness proceeded from his knowledge of the strong attachment which the Hebrews had to the Egyptian idolatries.

17 Thou shalt take this rod, &c.] Now Moses was ordered to take the rod, that he might have a perpetual memorial of the divine omnipotence; and to persuade him, that as God had already converted it into a different form, he was equally able to change it into any other, and endue it with a power which in its natural state it did not possess.

19 For all the men are dead, &c.] This Josephus confines merely to the demise of the Egyptian king, from whom he had fled into Midian; and represents the information of his death as the effect of rumour, not of divine inspiration, as it is affirmed to be in the text. But this circumstance bears a strong resemblance of that in Matt. ii. 20.

20 And his sons.] Notwithstanding the scripture mentions only Gershom, till chap. xviii. 4. of this book we are in that place informed, that he had another named Eliezer, who was so called in allusion to Moses' being aided in his flight from Egypt by the Lord.

Upon an ass, &c.] Though the singular number is used in the Hebrew, yet, from the circumstances of the story, it is evident more than one is implied. May we not therefore assert, that he placed each of them upon an ass? The Septuagint give room to think he did, translating the expression, Beasts of burden, in the plural; and the Arabic bears the same meaning.

21 I will harden his heart, &c.] We should understand this expression so as not to contradict that in chap. ix. 34. where Pharaoh is said to harden it himself; and this may be easily done, if we consider it as signifying, God would suffer him to harden it himself; and that in scripture every thing is ascribed to the immediate agency of the divine Being, though it might be accounted for from natural causes: and God might be said to harden Pharaoh's heart, by giving him up to the perverseness of his own disposition, and the natural effects of his own prejudices.

22 And thou shalt say unto Pharaoh, Thus saith the LORD, Israel is my son, even my firstborn:

23 And I say unto thee, Let my son go, that he may serve me: and if thou refuse to let him go, behold, I will slay thy son, even thy firstborn.

24 ¶ And it came to pass by the way in the inn, that the LORD met him, and sought to kill him.

25 Then Zipporah took a sharp stone, and cut off the foreskin of her son, and cast it at his feet, and said, Surely a bloody husband art thou to me.

26 So he let him go: then she said, A bloody husband thou art, because of the circumcision.

27 ¶ And the LORD said to Aaron, Go into the wilderness to meet Moses. And he went, and met him in the mount of God, and kissed him.

28 And Moses told Aaron all the words of the LORD who had sent him, and all the signs which he had commanded him.

29 ¶ And Moses and Aaron went and gathered together all the elders of the children of Israel:

30 And Aaron spake all the words which the LORD had spoken unto Moses, and did the signs in the sight of the people.

31 And the people believed: and when they heard that the LORD had visited the children of Israel, and that he looked upon their affliction, then they bowed their heads and worshipped.

C H A P. V.

1 Pharaoh chideth Moses and Aaron for their message:

6 He increaseth the task of the Israelites. 10 The people have no straw allowed them. 15 Pharaoh checketh their complaints. 20 They cry out upon Moses and Aaron. 22 Moses complaineth to God.

AND afterward Moses and Aaron went in, and told Pharaoh, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, Let my people go, that they may hold a feast unto me in the wilderness.

22 Israel is my son, &c.] It is explained in the Arabic, that this was said in order to convey honour to the Israelites, and at the same time to express the kindness of God towards them. The Egyptians, and all the surrounding nations, looked upon their herogods, as local, tutelary, and particularly engaged in the protection and prosperity of the nation from which they sprung. God, in allusion to this prejudice, orders Moses to address Pharaoh in the words of this verse; and as he was convinced of the consequences of the doctrine of a tutelary deity, he could not be applied to in any manner more forcible or proper.

24 The Lord met him, &c.] The generality of the translations, and particularly the Syriac, mention Moses as the person whom the Lord met, and sought to kill; but the Arabic says expressly, That the angel of the Lord fell or rushed upon his son, and sought to kill him. Yet the original signifies no more than the angel appeared in an attitude which threatened the child's life, in order to try the affection of his father, and to compel him to the observance of a rite which was the token of the covenant between God and the posterity of Abraham, Gen. xvii. 10.

25 Took a sharp stone] It was a flint stone the Egyptians used to make the incision in the bodies that were to be embalmed. Justin Martyr styles these instruments swords, or knives of stone; in the first ages of the world they were in universal use; and modern discoveries convince us, that in the ruder ages all countries had other instruments but these.

Surely a bloody husband art thou to me.] The Hebrew word chatan, rendered "husband," signifies a son in law, or one espoused to God, and was the name given a child on the day of circumcision; and that the words were applied to the son, not to Moses, who is called a bloody son, on account of the circumcision. According to some, the sense of this passage will run thus: She cast the foreskin at the child's feet, and said, by this blood of the circumcision thou art a member of the church; and the Chaldee is so remarkable, that we have reserved the translation of the whole verse to this place, Zipporah took a stone, and circumcised the foreskin of her son, and offered it before him, and said, Because of the blood of this circumcision, let my husband be given unto us.

26 So he let him go, &c.] Which signifies that the angel suffered Moses to proceed on his journey without further molestation.

30 And did the signs, &c.] By which it appears that Aaron performed the miracles; and agreeable to this, we find, chap. vii. 10. that Aaron did in fact perform the miracle; and as he acted by the command of Moses, and was, as the scripture styles him, his prophet; Moses might be looked upon as the agent, agreeable to the words in chap. iv. 7. and Aaron as the instrument of Moses.

2 And Pharaoh said, Who is the LORD, that I should obey his voice to let Israel go? I know not the LORD, neither will I let Israel go.

3 And they said, The God of the Hebrews hath met with us: let us go, we pray thee, three days' journey into the desert, and sacrifice unto the LORD our God; lest he fall upon us with pestilence, or with the sword.

4 And the king of Egypt said unto them, Wherefore do ye, Moses and Aaron, let the people from their works? get ye unto your burdens.

5 And Pharaoh said, Behold, the people of the land now are many, and ye make them rest from their burdens.

6 ¶ And Pharaoh commanded the same day the taskmasters of the people, and their officers, saying,

7 Ye shall no more give the people straw to make brick, as heretofore: let them go and gather straw for themselves.

¶ And the tale of the bricks, which they did make heretofore, ye shall lay upon them; ye shall not diminish aught thereof: for they be idle; therefore they cry, saying, Let us go and sacrifice to our God.

9 Let there more work be laid upon the men, that they may labour therein; and let them not regard vain words.

10 ¶ And the taskmasters of the people went out, and their officers, and they spake to the people, saying, Thus saith Pharaoh, I will not give you straw.

11 Go ye, get ye straw where ye can find it: yet not aught of your work shall be diminished.

12 So the people were scattered abroad throughout all the land of Egypt to gather stubble instead of straw.

13 And the taskmasters halted them, saying, Fulfil your works, your daily tasks, as when there was straw.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. IV.

From the circumstance of Moses being threatened by a divine vision, on account of his not having circumcised his son, we may learn, that the commands of God, even those which relate only to things external, and indifferent in their own nature, ought to be inviolably observed and performed.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. V.

1 And afterward, &c.] i. e. After they had convinced the elders of Israel of their divine mission.

Thus saith the Lord God of Israel] This is in the Hebrew, Thus saith Jehovah, the God of Israel.

My people] The separation of this people has been arraigned as inconsistent with the divine attributes. It must, however, be owned, that it became the goodness of God to preserve the doctrine of the unity amidst an idolatrous world. Nor could such a separation be made otherwise, than by bringing that part of mankind under God's peculiar protection. Now some people must needs be selected for this purpose, it seems most agreeable to our ideas of divine wisdom, to make the blessings attendant on such a selection, the reward of some exalted virtue in the progenitors of the chosen people. The separation was made for the sake of mankind in general, though one people became the honoured instruments to testify God's faithfulness to his promise made to their fathers, Abraham, &c.

3 Lest he fall upon us with pestilence, &c.] This is rendered, Lest death or slaughter befall us, in the Septuagint.

5 Behold, the people of the land now are many, &c.] Thus Pharaoh not only denies this request, but insinuates, that they were the ring-leaders of sedition, and disturbers of the peace.

6 The taskmasters of the people, and their officers, &c.] The taskmasters were Egyptians, and the officers were Israelites, deputed by them to see that they performed what was exacted of them. The Septuagint and Samaritan render the latter word, Scribes, a term usually applied to the elders of the Israelites.

9 Let there be more work.] It is in the Hebrew, Let the work be made heavy upon the men. The Vulgate renders it, Let them be oppressed with works, and let them fulfil them; the Septuagint, Let their works be made more heavy, and let them be rendered solicitous by them, &c.

Let them not regard vain words.] The Hebrew renders it, In the words of a lyar. The Chaldee renders, In idle words; the Arabic, In vain things; the Vulgate, in lying words; but the Septuagint, Samaritan, and Syriac, agree with the above.

21 The

14 And the officers of the children of Israel, which Pharaoh's taskmasters had set over them, were beaten, and demanded, Wherefore have ye not fulfilled your task in making brick both yesterday and to day, as heretofore?

15 ¶ Then the officers of the children of Israel came and cried unto Pharaoh, saying, Wherefore dealest thou thus with thy servants?

16 There is no straw given unto thy servants, and they say to us, Make brick: and, behold, thy servants are beaten; but the fault is in thine own people.

17 But he said, Ye are idle, ye are idle: therefore ye say, Let us go and do sacrifice to the LORD.

18 Go therefore now, and work; for there shall no straw be given you, yet shall ye deliver the tale of bricks.

19 And the officers of the children of Israel did see that they were in evil case, after it was said, Ye shall not minish ought from your bricks of your daily task.

20 ¶ And they met Moses and Aaron, who stood in the way, as they came forth from Pharaoh:

21 And they said unto them, The LORD look upon you, and judge; because ye have made our favour to be abhorred in the eyes of Pharaoh, and in the eyes of his servants, to put a sword in their hand to slay us.

22 ¶ And Moses returned unto the LORD, and said, LORD, wherefore hast thou so evil entreated this people? why is it that thou hast sent me?

23 For since I came to Pharaoh to speak in thy name, he hath done evil to this people; neither hast thou delivered thy people at all.

C H A P. VI.

1 God reneweth his promise by his name JEHOVAH: 10 He sendeth Moses to Pharaoh. 14 The genealogy of Reuben, 15 of Simeon, 16 and of Levi, of whom 21 [The Lord look upon you, and judge.] It is in the Chaldee, May the Lord appear upon you, and take vengeance. The Samaritan renders the last word, Let him interpret; and the Arabic, Judge against you.

22 [Moses returned, &c.] It is in the Hebrew, To stink. The Septuagint render, To be execrable; the Arabic, Ye have corrupted our state with Pharaoh; and the Syriac, Ye have done evil in our spirit.

23 [Moses returned, &c.] This is rendered, Delivering unto the sword in their hands, in the Syriac.

24 [Moses returned, &c.] All the ancient translations concur in representing it, That he addressed the Lord; and the original will bear this sense, as appears from Psalm lxxiii. 10. xciv. 15. and Isa. xxix. 17.

25 [Since I came to Pharaoh to speak in thy name, he hath done evil to this people, &c.] Here Moses, forgetting that God hath foretold him of Pharaoh's obstinacy, chap. iii. 19. and iv. 21. with some indecent warmth, expostulates with God upon the present ill success of his embassy, and complains that God had done nothing towards fulfilling his promise of delivering the Israelites.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. V.

We may find in this chapter, a true picture of our nature in general. By whatsoever name, or in whatsoever manner, God is pleased to reveal himself to us; how many instances soever of his providences we are struck with, how much and often soever we are obliged by the force of evidence to say, "Surely the Lord is in all!" and to acknowledge that it is his hand that saves and delivers us, and blesteth us in all things; yet no sooner does his wisdom act in any other manner than our weak wisdom thinks it should, but we immediately fall into fears and distrust, as if God's power was at an end, if he could forget his promises, and if his hand shortened that he could not deliver.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. VI.

1 [Then the Lord said unto Moses, &c.] Thus God graciously condescends to satisfy the complaints which Moses had made in the end of the foregoing chapter; telling him, that if he would but be patient awhile, he should see in how wonderful and terrible a manner he would force the obstinate king to dismiss his people, and make him even glad of their departure.

2 [And said unto him, I am the Lord.] Or more properly, I am Jehovah: for the emphasis lies upon the significance of his name, as the reader will judge by the context.

3 [By the name of God Almighty, &c.] i. e. As the God of Abraham, I before condescended to have a name of distinction, but now, in compliance to another prejudice, I condescend to have a name of honour. This seems to be the true interpretation of this very difficult text; for the word Jehovah, whose name is here said to be came Moses and Aaron. 28 Moses in answer to God's charge pleadeth his defect of speech.

Before
1491.

THEN the LORD said unto Moses, Now shalt thou see what I will do to Pharaoh: for with a strong hand shall he let them go, and with a strong hand shall he drive them out of his land.

¶ And God spake unto Moses, and said unto him, I am the LORD:

3 And I appeared unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob, by the name of God Almighty, but by my name JEHOVAH was I not known to them.

4 And I have also established my covenant with them, to give them the land of Canaan, the land of their pilgrimage, wherein they were strangers.

5 And I have also heard the groaning of the children of Israel, whom the Egyptians keep in bondage; and I have remembered my covenant.

6 Wherefore say unto the children of Israel, I am the LORD, and I will bring you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians, and I will rid you out of their bondage, and I will redeem you with a stretched out arm, and with great judgments:

7 And I will take you to me for a people, and I will be to you a God: and ye shall know that I am the LORD your God, which bringeth you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians.

8 And I will bring you in unto the land, concerning the which I did swear to give it to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob; and I will give it to you for an heritage: I am the LORD.

9 And Moses spake so unto the children of Israel: but they hearkened not unto Moses for anguish of spirit, and for cruel bondage.

10 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

11 Go in, speak unto Pharaoh king of Egypt, that he let the children of Israel go out of his land.

12 And Moses spake before the LORD, saying, Behold, the children of Israel have not hearkened unto me; unknown to the patriarchs, frequently occurring in the book of Genesis, had furnished unbelievers with a pretext that the same person could not be the author of the two books of Genesis and Exodus. But the assertion is, that the word Jehovah was not used in the times of the patriarchs; but that the name Jehovah, as a title of honour, (whereby a new idea was affixed to an old word), was unknown to them.

6 [With a stretched out arm, &c.] It is, With a lifted up arm in the Septuagint, Vulgate, Chaldee, and Syriac; but both the expressions convey the idea of great exertion.

7 [I will take you to me for a people.] Let those who ask a reason why God should prefer so perverse and foolish a people to all others, recollect, that one reason has been given already; that it was for the sake of their forefathers; and to fulfill the promise made to the patriarchs. Another may be, that the extraordinary providence, by which they were protected, might become the more visible and illustrious; for had they been endued with the shining qualities of the polished nations, the effects of that providence might have been ascribed to their own wisdom. And their impotence and inability, when left unto themselves, is finely represented in the prophet Ezekiel, chap. xv. 3. by the similitude of the vine tree.

8 [And I will be to you a God, &c.] This promise was in condescension to the Egyptian system of religion, whose idolatries the Israelites had eagerly imbibed; whence the doctrine of a tutelary deity was universally believed.

9 [I am the Lord, &c.] This is connected by the old translation with the preceding sentence, Even in the Lord. In the Hebrew it is only, I Jehovah; and if read in that manner, without the word "am," which is inserted in our translation, it strengthens the sense; "I will bring you, I did swear, I will give it, I Jehovah."

10 [For anguish of spirit, &c.] This is explained by Grotius, Anxiety of mind; the Septuagint makes it, Passanimity, or despondency; and the Syriac, Anguish of Spirit. The Samaritan adds, And they said to Moses, Let us alone, that we may serve the Egyptians; because it is better for us to serve the Egyptians, than to die in the desert. This passage seems to be transcribed from chap. xiv. 12. and is properly introduced in that place, but bears all the marks in this of an interpolation.

12 [Whom of uncircumcised lips.] This word "uncircumcised" among the Jews, is a term of contempt; and it is usual in scripture to call those parts which were unfit to perform their natural functions, uncircumcised. Hence "uncircumcised ears," Jer. vi. 10. are those which either cannot hear, or will not listen. "Uncircumcised in heart," Jer. ix. 26. are those who would not, or could not understand. "Uncircumcised lips," therefore, imply such as are unfit for articulating sounds, or convey the idea of an utterance bad and contemptible.

Before CHRIST 1491. me; how then shall Pharaoh hear me, who am of uncircumcised lips?

13 And the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, and gave them charge unto the children of Israel, and unto Pharaoh king of Egypt, to bring the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt.

14 ¶ These be the heads of their fathers' houses: The sons of Reuben the first-born of Israel; Hanoch, and Pallu, Hezron, and Carmi: these be the families of Reuben.

15 ¶ And the sons of Simeon: Jemuel, and Jamin, and Ohad, and Jachin, and Zohar, and Shaul the son of a Canaanitish woman: these are the families of Simeon.

16 ¶ And these are the names of the sons of Levi according to their generations; Gershon, and Kohath, and Merari; and the years of the life of Levi were ■ hundred thirty and seven years.

17 The sons of Gershon; Libni, and Shimi, according to their families.

18 And the sons of Kohath; Amram, and Izhar, and Hebron, and Uzziel: and the years of the life of Kohath were an hundred thirty and three years.

19 And the sons of Merari; Mahali and Mushi: these are the families of Levi according to their generations.

20 And Amram took him Jochebed his father's sister to wife; and she bare him Aaron and Moses: and the years of the life of Amram were an hundred and thirty and seven years.

21 And the sons of Izhar; Korah, and Nepheg, and Zithri.

22 And the sons of Uzziel; Misael, and Elzaphan, and Zithri.

23 And Aaron took him Elisheba, daughter of Aminadab, sister of Naashon, to wife; and she bare him Nadab, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar.

24 And the sons of Korah; Assir, and Elkanah, and Abiasaph: these are the families of the Korhites.

25 And Eleazar Aaron's son took him one of the daughters of Putiel to wife; and she bare him Phinehas; these are the heads of the fathers of the Levites according to their families.

26 These are that Aaron and Moses, to whom the LORD said, Bring out the children of Israel from the land of Egypt according to their armies.

27 These are they which spake to Pharaoh king of Egypt, to bring out the children of Israel from Egypt: these are that Moses and Aaron.

20. And she bare him Aaron and Moses, &c.] Which verifies the promise of God, Gen. xv. 16. namely, delivering the Israelites out of Egypt in the fourth generation; for Moses was the son of Amram, the son of Kohath, the son of Levi, the son of Jacob.

24. And the sons of Korah, &c.] Korah himself perished in the rebellion against Moses, who was his cousin-german; but his family remained; and were famous in the days of David, being often mentioned in the book of Psalms.

25. Eleazar Aaron's son took him one of the daughters of Putiel.] Putiel, or Phetjel, seems to have been an Egyptian, ■ of whose daughters Eleazar married in Egypt. For the name Putiel seems derived from Phut, the brother of Mizraim, Gen. x. 6. with the addition of El, the name of God.

These are the heads of the fathers of the Levites, &c.] Moses says nothing of the other tribes, it being his intention in this place only to derive his own pedigree and his brother Aaron's from Israel.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ■ CHAP. VI.

How often, in our greatest extremity, God interposeth for our relief! How easily is the hardest work effected when he puts his hand ■ it! if his mighty arm of mercy or judgment be stretched out, when he begins he will make ■ end. How certain is that deliverance for which the character, the covenant, the pity, the purpose, and the power of God, are all engaged! And yet how often the objects thereof, through anguish of spirit, put his strong consolations from them! How often the forwardness of hearers makes ministers despair of success with others, and to repeat the excuses which God hath already answered, and so make him charge them, on their perils, to obey his appointments! O the perverseness of human hearts! When he calls not, what numbers ■ unsent! When he calls to his service, what averfeness ■ comply!

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. VII.

1 A God to Pharaoh.] It is rendered in the old translation, I have made thee Pharaoh's god. This expression is explained already, in chap. iv. 16. but we add, the mysteries which had their origin in Egypt, taught that the popular deities were deified heroes, or dead men, deified ■ account of some noble exertion of power, or eminent intellectual abilities. Pharaoh, who had been initiated, must have been taught this secret; and as he thus learnt that the popular deities were but men, so when he saw Moses performing such wondrous exertions of power, he might justly conclude that he deserved to be reckoned ■ deity, as much as those heroes who were esteemed the objects of popular reverence.

And Aaron—shall be thy prophet.] It is rendered, Thy interpreter, in the Chaldee and Arabic.

5 And the Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord, &c.] Thus it appears, the miracles wrought by Moses in Egypt, were, not only to procure the deliverance of the Israelites, but likewise to explode their superstition, and to punish the crimes by which they supported it. What could be better calculated for this purpose, than to prove, even to the people, (for their priests and chief magistrates knew it before) that every one of their pretended deities were invested with ■ power, either to punish ■ to save them? All the miracles wrought in Egypt, were wrought in opposition to some deity, worshipped by the natives; and, considered in this light, were admirably well fitted to confirm the Israelites in the doctrine of the unity, and appear at the same time a regular chain of facts, proper to reclaim the Egyptians, and to convince the world, that ■ The heavens and the earth are the Lord's, and all that therein is."

10 Rod—became a serpent.] Pharaoh had before asked who Jehovah was? And to shew that he was really God, and that they were sent by him, Aaron throws down his rod, and it becomes ■ serpent, which denoted a deity, in the Egyptian hieroglyphics.

Before

12 For they cast down every man his rod, and they became serpents: but Aaron's rod swallowed up their rods.

13 And he hardened Pharaoh's heart, that he hearkened not unto them; as the LORD had said.

14 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Pharaoh's heart is hardened, he refuseth to let the people go.

15 Get thee unto Pharaoh in the morning; lo, he goeth out unto the water; and thou shalt stand by the river's brink against he come; and the rod which was turned to a serpent shalt thou take in thine hand.

16 And thou shalt say unto him, The LORD God of the Hebrews hath sent me unto thee, saying, Let my people go, that they may serve me in the wilderness: and, behold, hitherto thou wouldest not hear.

17 Thus saith the LORD, In this thou shalt know that I am the LORD: behold, I will smite with the rod that is in mine hand upon the waters which are in the river, and they shall be turned to blood.

18 And the fish that is in the river shall die, and the river shall stink; and the Egyptians shall loathe to drink of the water of the river.

19 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, Take thy rod, and stretch out thine hand upon the waters of Egypt, upon their streams, upon their rivers, and upon their ponds, and upon all their pools of water, that they may become blood; and that there may be blood throughout all the land of Egypt, both in vessels of wood, and in vessels of stone.

20 And Moses and Aaron did so, as the LORD commanded; and he lifted up the rod, and smote the waters that were in the river, in the sight of Pharaoh, and in the sight of his servants; and all the waters that were in the river were turned to blood.

21 And the fish that was in the river died; and the river stank, and the Egyptians could not drink

12 But Aaron's rod, swallowed up &c.] Both parties appear thus far equal; but the superiority became manifest, when Aaron's rod swallowed those of the magicians; an evident prognostic of the event of the ensuing contest, wherein Jehovah vanquished and destroyed all the gods of Egypt in reality, he did in symbols here.

15 Goeth out unto the water, &c.] Either to pay his devotion to the river, or to bathe, in order to purify himself to offer up his adoration to the sun, or some other deity. Moses is directed to take this opportunity to meet with Pharaoh, because he might not have had so easy an access to him at any other place.

20 All the waters—were turned to blood.] The Egyptians looked upon waters as objects of adoration, but especially the river Nile. Therefore God's depriving them of all its utility, was no unlikely means to reclaim them from this species of idolatry. And since they were so barbarously superstitious in their devotions to this river, as to stain its current with human sacrifices; his turning their water into blood, was but a just and suitable punishment for such cruel enormities.

21 And the fish, &c.] Which fish became immediately unfit for use, the nutritive property being instantly changed, into another of a most pestiferous nature. The water was not only of the colour of blood, but it brought great pains and bitter torments upon those who ventured to drink of it. However, Josephus says, that the waters were reduced to this state of putrefaction, only to the Egyptians; and that to the Israelites they continued sweet, potable, and in their natural state.

22 And the magicians—did so, &c.] These magicians were the persons named Jannes and Jambres, Tim. iii. 8. Pliny calls them Jananes and Jotapha, and mentions them as the founders of the sect of magicians. In the Talmud, they are celebrated under the names of Jochani and Marari. The difference between the power which accompanied Moses in this miracle, and that which the magicians were invested with, appears with great advantage in favour of the former; for though the magicians imitated the Jewish legislator in working the miracle, they were not able to remove the calamities to which the miracle exposed them.

23 Neither did he set his heart to this also.] We should, in order to acquire an adequate idea of the greatness of this calamity, recollect that the land of Egypt was not refreshed by gentle showers, or rendered fruitful by the early or latter rain; but that all their water in these parts was supplied by the river Nile; and that river was turned into blood! The magicians, who could imitate the miracle by turning water into blood, were unable to restore the waters of the Nile to their natural state; but Pharaoh did not hearken or attend to this circumstance, and instead of learning wisdom from his misfortunes, grew vain of the power which his magicians displayed.

25 And seven days were fulfilled, &c.] We don't find by this No. 6.

24 And all the Egyptians digged round about the river for water to drink; for they could not drink of the water of the river.

verse how long the plague continued; but only how long a space intervened between the turning of the waters into blood, and the miracle of the frogs. It should be observed, the Bible originally formed one continued narrative, the division into chapters being a modern invention; and if we join this verse with the first of the next chapter, it will run thus, And seven days after the turning of the waters into blood, God spake unto Moses, &c.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. VII.

It is evident, that whatever men have inconsiderately thought, yet sedate, attentive, and unprejudiced reason, will, the longer, and more accurately it weighs the subject, be more and more determined, that no power whatsoever but God can create or change the powers of nature, so that inanimate motion should become animate, and a stick become a serpent. The allowing of this, is in effect allowing a plurality of Gods. It leaves no characteristic to distinguish God by, or on which he may found his claim to worship exclusive of all others, which is the great point the scriptures labour to establish, and which is the foundation of true religion. What is God's claim to sole worship, but that he is the Father of beings, the Creator of all things, the Maker of heaven and earth, the sea, and all that is therein? But if we allow other beings can create things; or bring other beings into existence, we overthrow the existence of this claim, and take away God's characteristic, or that which makes him God. They therefore most grievously err, who think that the wise men of Egypt actually changed their rods into serpents, by the assistance of evil demons or spirits. If their rods were actually changed into serpents, we may conclude for certainty without having the least doubt about it, that it was done by the power of God alone, who might see fit reasons for doing some things the same by their hands, as he did by Aaron's, but with this distinction, that Aaron, who was the messenger, had the superiority preferred to him. Thus his rod swallowed up all the rods of the magicians; and it seems probable that he turned a much greater quantity of water into blood than they did.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. VIII.

1 And the Lord spake unto Moses, Go unto Pharaoh, &c.] Pharaoh's character is rendered more inexcusable, because he has still warning given him, before God sends his plagues upon him, so that, by timely repentance, he might have prevented them.

2 With frogs.] The original word is Egyptian, and signifies toads, which were peculiar to Egypt.

3 Shall bring forth, &c.] It is in the Vulgate and Samaritan, Shall boil out; in the Septuagint, Shall belch out; in the Arabic, Shall swarm out; and in the old English translation, Shall scall with frogges.

¶ Then Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron, and said, Intreat the LORD, that he may take away the frogs from me, and from my people; and I will let the people go, that they may do sacrifice unto the LORD.

9 ¶ And Moses said unto Pharaoh, Glory over me: when shall I intreat for thee, and for thy servants, and for thy people, to destroy the frogs from thee and thy houses, that they may remain in the river only?

10 And he said, To morrow. And he said, Be it according to thy word: that thou mayest know that there is none like unto the LORD our God.

11 And the frogs shall depart from thee, and from thy houses, and from thy servants, and from thy people; they shall remain in the river only.

12 And Moses and Aaron went out from Pharaoh: and Moses cried unto the LORD because of the frogs which he had brought against Pharaoh.

13 And the LORD did according to the word of Moses; and the frogs died out of the houses, out of the villages, and out of the fields.

14 And they gathered them together upon heaps: and the land stank.

15 But when Pharaoh saw that there was respite, he hardened his heart, and hearkened not unto them; as the LORD had said.

18 And the magicians did so with their enchantments to bring forth lice, but they could not: so there were lice upon man and upon beast.

19 Then the magicians said unto Pharaoh, This is the finger of God: and Pharaoh's heart was hardened, and he hearkened not unto them; as the LORD had said.

20 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Rise up early in the morning, and stand before Pharaoh; lo, he cometh forth to the water; and say unto him, Thus saith the LORD, Let my people go, that they may serve me.

21 Else, if thou wilt not let my people go, behold, I will send swarms of flies upon thee, and upon thy servants, and upon thy people, and into thy houses: and the houses of the Egyptians shall be full of swarms of flies, and also the ground whereon they are.

22 And I will sever in that day the land of Goshen, in which my people dwell, that no swarms of flies shall be there; to the end thou mayest know that I am the LORD in the midst of the earth.

23 And I will put a division between my people and thy people: to morrow shall this sign be.

24 And the LORD did so; and there came a grievous swarm of flies into the house of Pharaoh, and into his servants' houses, and into all the land of Egypt: the land was corrupted by reason of the swarm of flies.

25 ¶ And

6 And the frogs came up, &c.] The banks of the Nile being the grand scene of their magical operations, in which blood and frogs made the principal part of the apparatus, so, by commanding the river to produce such an infinite multitude of these creatures to annoy them, he adapted their chastisement to the nature of their crimes; adapted it indeed with wonderful propriety: for frogs were not only the instruments of their abominations, but likewise the emblems of those impure demons whom by their incantations they invoked.

7 Brought up frogs, &c.] The advantage which the miracles of Moses had over those of the magicians, is already pointed out in the note on ver. 22. of the preceding chapter. It will not be amiss to attend to an objection made against this miracle by infidels. It is known, say they, that the Nile, after its inundations, generally leaves a slime, which teems with an infinite multitude of frogs and other vermin: to assert, therefore, that the producing of frogs from a river which abounded with them, is so far from being miraculous, that it should be esteemed a natural and common event. In reply, we beg leave to observe, that miracles are of two sorts; those where the laws of nature are suspended or reversed; and those which only give a new direction to its laws. As it would be impious to bring in natural causes to explain the first sort, so totally to exclude those causes in the latter would be superstitious. Miracles not being an ostentatious, but a necessary instrument of God's moral government, we need not suppose he would create the frogs on this occasion, but make use of those which already lay stored up against the day of visitation. By this his wisdom appears as conspicuous as his power, when it is seen that the animals which had been of no detriment to the Egyptians before were turned into scourges, when their king became tyrannically cruel and impiously rebellious to his divine will.

¶ Intreat the Lord, that he may take away, &c.] So great were the multitude of frogs, that they wasted all that part of Egypt; the river swarmed with them to so great a degree, that all the water was polluted with them, they died and rotted in such numbers. This inconvenience spread all over the land, and every domestic office was stopped by them; they were in their victuals and in their drink, and made their way in many places into their beds. Well might Pharaoh beg Moses to intreat the Lord to take them away. Pharaoh called for Moses, because he saw that the magicians had only added to but could not diminish the plague.

9 Glory over me, &c.] It is in the Hebrew, Have this honour over me. This circumstance is not only calculated to raise our admiration, but likewise to obviate every objection which the prejudices of the Egyptians might suggest; they were permitted to assign their own time when they would have the plague removed, whence they might plainly see, that Jehovah alone was the author both of their sufferings and deliverances; and that no planetary aspect was so favourable or malign, but that he could afflict or relieve them at what time soever he was willing.

12 Because of the frogs, &c.] It is in the Hebrew, Concerning the word of the frogs. The Vulgate renders it, For the promise of the frogs; the Chaldee, For the affair of the frogs; the Samaritan, Arabic, and Syriac, support our translation.

15 He hardened his heart, &c.] This confirms what has been offered on the subject of his obduracy, chap. iv. 21. and vii. 13. and vindicates the attributes of our Creator.

17 Smote the dust of the earth, and it became lice, &c.] It is translated in the Vulgate, Septuagint, Chaldee, and Samaritan, Gnats. Our translation is supported by Josephus; and if we consider how remarkably nice and cleanly the Egyptians are reported to have been, nothing could have shocked them more, nothing could have been more grievous than this plague. The earth was, under the name of Isis, an object of their adoration. To convince them, therefore, that it does not afford its life-sustaining productions, by an independent virtue of its own, but only in consequence of a divine establishment, God reversed the nature of its productions. Before they were nourished by what the earth produced, now they were devoured by it.

18 And the magicians did so, &c.] This is rendered so in the ancient translations as to imply that they used the same visible action to produce life; i. e. they struck the dust with the rod, or endeavoured likewise, but were unable to produce this miracle.

19 The finger of God, &c.] Many apply this expression to the miracle, and then it signifies, that it was undoubtedly the operation of some deity, and consequently above the powers of humanity or magic to imitate. Others apply it to the inability of the magicians to perform this miracle; and in that case it signifies, that they were restrained from being imitated by some superior power.

21 Swarms of flies, &c.] The Hebrew word beahob, signifies A mixture; the Vulgate and Septuagint support our translation; the Septuagint translate it, The dog-flies; the Syriac renders it, Gnats, which seems more consistent with the context; and as this insect, among others, was introduced by the Egyptian hieroglyphics into the muster-roll of their religious symbols, this miracle shewed the natives that the gods worshipped under those symbols were not able to save, though they might be forced to afflict them.

22 I will sever in that day] It is in the Hebrew I will make a glorious distinction or separation, &c. The Vulgate renders, I will make the land of Goshen wonderful.

¶ I am the Lord in the midst of the earth.] This declaration subverted the whole system of the pagans, by laying open the secrets of their mysteries, exploding the doctrine of local tutelary deities, and asserting that there was but one God, who was a respecter of persons; who was confirmed in his essence by place, unlimited in the exercise of his power by distance, and, being every where present, was every where the only object of adoration.

23 Put a division, &c.] It is in the Hebrew, A redemption; which is supported by the Samaritan and Chaldee. The Arabic renders it, I will procure liberty to my people from what shall happen unto thy people, &c.

24 And the Lord did so.] Moses and Aaron are represented in the Samaritan going to Pharaoh, and repeating before him the speech, which God had made to them in the preceding verses, which this translation inserts at length, and it must be confessed, that the initial words of this verse, "And the Lord did so," more naturally follows the repetition of God's speech by Moses before Pharaoh, than the speech of God to Moses, as in the Hebrew text.

¶ The land was corrupted, &c.] It is in the Hebrew, Was destroyed; the Septuagint may be rendered, Was laid waste.

25 ¶ And Pharaoh called for Moses and for Aaron; and said, Go ye, sacrifice to your God in the land.

26 And Moses said, It is not meet so to do; for we shall sacrifice the abomination of the Egyptians to the LORD our God: lo, we shall sacrifice the abomination of the Egyptians before their eyes, and will they not stone us?

27 We will go three days' journey into the wilderness, and sacrifice to the LORD our God, as he shall command us.

28 And Pharaoh said, I will let you go, that ye may sacrifice to the LORD your God in the wilderness; only ye shall not go very far away: intreat for me.

29 And Moses said, Behold, I go out from thee, and I will intreat the LORD that the swarms of flies may depart from Pharaoh, from his servants, and from his people, to-morrow: but let not Pharaoh deal deceitfully any more, in not letting the people go to sacrifice to the LORD.

30 And Moses went out from Pharaoh, and intreated the LORD.

31 And the LORD did according to the word of Moses; and he removed the swarms of flies from Pharaoh and his servants, and from his people; there remained not one.

32 And Pharaoh hardened his heart at this time also, neither would he let the people go.

26 We shall sacrifice the abomination of the Egyptians, &c.] It was esteemed a profanation by the Egyptians to sacrifice any kind of cattle, except swine, bulls, clean calves, and geese; and heifers, rams, and goats, were held sacred either in one province or another. According to this, the Israelites could not have avoided sacrificing the abomination of the Egyptians; and with hatred and revenge they pursued such imaginary impieties, ■ is notorious to all that are acquainted with their history.

29 And Moses said, Behold, I go out—and I will intreat the Lord.] For these plagues were sent for his reformation, not for his destruction; therefore he is not more ready to desire, than Moses is to intreat, and the Lord to grant, the total removal of them.

To-morrow, &c.] Pharaoh is suffered to be ■ while under the smart of the rod, that he might be humbled the more.

There remained not one.] We find, ver. 14. that the frogs remained in heaps and stank. But these flies were all swept away, perhaps by ■ mighty wind, into the deserts of Lybia, or into the sea.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. VIII.

The great point that was intended by all these plagues that were brought upon Egypt, was, not only that Pharaoh, but that all the earth might know that the God of Israel, the creator and possessor of heaven and earth, could do every thing; that all things were in his hand; that all the powers of nature, in whatever shape or being, were ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ than laws of his establishing, which he could suspend or alter in whatsoever manner he pleased.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. IX.

3 The hand of the Lord is upon, &c.] We find this threat is expressed in the present tense in the original, to shew the certainty and suddenness of this calamity.

4 There shall nothing die—that is the children's of Israel.] In order ■ convince the Egyptians, that the God who wrought these miracles among them was the God of Israel, he made ■ visible distinction between the two nations. From whence they might easily draw this conclusion, that the Lord was as gracious to the faithful and obedient, as he was terrible to the ungodly and rebellious.

5 To-morrow the Lord shall do this, &c.] These miraculous judgments came upon them by progressive advances; and proper inter-upon the camels, upon the oxen, and upon the sheep, there shall be ■ very grievous murrain.

4 And the LORD shall sever between the cattle of Israel and the cattle of Egypt: and there shall nothing die of all that is the children's of Israel.

5 And the LORD appointed a set time, saying, To-morrow the LORD shall do this thing in the land.

6 And the LORD did that thing on the morrow, and all the cattle of Egypt died: but of the cattle of the children of Israel died not one.

7 And Pharaoh sent, and, behold, there was not one of the cattle of the Israelites dead. And the heart of Pharaoh was hardened, and he did not let the people go.

10 And they took ashes of the furnace, and stood before Pharaoh; and Moses sprinkled it up toward heaven; and it became a boil breaking forth with blains upon man, and upon beast.

11 And the magicians could not stand before Moses because of the boils; for the boil was upon the magicians, and upon all the Egyptians.

12 And the LORD hardened the heart of Pharaoh, and he hearkened not unto them; as the LORD had spoken unto Moses.

13 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Rise up early in the morning, and stand before Pharaoh, and say unto him, Thus saith the LORD God of the Hebrews, Let my people go, that they may serve me.

16 And

vals of respite were allowed them to consider and reflect upon what had been done; that, seeing, by their punishments, wherein they had offended, they might return from their wickedness, and believe in the Lord.

Between this and the sixth verse, the Samaritan introduces Moses as having access to Pharaoh, and repeating the charges and speech which God commands him to deliver in the preceding verses.

6 All the cattle, &c.] i.e. All those that were in the field, as appears from ver. 19. The deities of the Egyptians were, during the most early ages, described by hieroglyphics, in which beasts, birds, plants, reptiles, and every species of the animal ■ vegetable creation, were used; as symbols, or characters of their deities. The living animals, expressed in hieroglyphic characters, were in process of time deemed sacred on account of this circumstance, though not worshipped till after the time of Moses; the subjecting therefore the living animals to this pestilence (whose pictures, in symbolic hieroglyphics, denoted the peculiar deities of the Egyptians) was, in effect, opposing and warring against the deities themselves.

9 Shall be ■ boil breaking forth, &c.] As Vulcan, or the element of fire, was ■ peculiar deity of the Egyptians, which was borrowed from the Greeks; therefore this plague, which proceeded from the hot ashes, or ashes of the furnace, was wrought in opposition to this deity, and to convince the Egyptians of the vanity of confiding either in his protection ■ aid.

11 Could not stand before Moses, &c.] Hitherto they had been able to contend with him; but now his superiority over them was so manifest, by their being afflicted with the boil, as well as the rest of the Egyptians, that they were not only obliged to acknowledge his pre-eminence, but were ashamed to appear in his sight, or come into Pharaoh's presence, whose person they waited on.

15 I will—smite thee and thy people, &c.] It means in the Hebrew, Now I have, or had, stretched out my hand, and thou hadst been ■ off. And in this sense some interpreters have rendered the words, ■ evade what they think ■ contradiction, which is, that Pharaoh and his people were not destroyed with the pestilence. According to them, this verse should be connected with the following, thus: I had stretched out my hand to destroy thee and thy people by the (late) pestilence, and thou shouldst have been cut off from the earth; but, indeed, for this very cause I have preserved thee, to shew in thee, my power, &c. &c.

16 For

^{Before CHRIST 1491.} 16 And in very deed for this cause have I raised thee up, for to shew in thee my power; and that my name may be declared throughout all the earth.

17 As yet exaltest thou thyself against my people, that thou wilt not let them go?

18 Behold, to-morrow about this time I will cause it to rain a very grievous hail, such as hath not been in Egypt since the foundation thereof even until now.

19 Send therefore now, and gather thy cattle, and all that thou hast in the field, for upon every man and beast which shall be found in the field, and shall not be brought home, the hail shall come down upon them, and they shall die.

20 He that feared the word of the LORD among the servants of Pharaoh made his servants and his cattle flee into the houses:

21 And he that regarded not the word of the LORD left his servants and his cattle in the field.

22 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Stretch forth thine hand toward heaven, that there may be hail in all the land of Egypt, upon man, and upon beast, and upon every herb of the field, throughout all the land of Egypt.

23 And Moses stretched forth his rod toward heaven: and the LORD sent thunder and hail, and the fire ran along upon the ground; and the LORD rained hail upon the land of Egypt.

24 So there was hail, and fire mingled with the hail, very grievous, such as there was none like it in all the land of Egypt since it became a nation.

25 And the hail smote throughout all the land of Egypt all that was in the field, both man and beast; and the hail smote every herb of the field, and brake every tree of the field.

26 Only in the land of Goshen, where the children of Israel were, was there no hail.

27 ¶ And Pharaoh sent, and called for Moses and Aaron, and said unto them, I have sinned this time: the LORD is righteous, and I and my people are wicked.

28 Intreat the LORD (for it is enough) that there be no more mighty thunderings and hail; and I will let you go, and ye shall stay no longer.

29 And Moses said unto him, As soon as I am gone out of the city, I will spread abroad my hands unto the LORD; and the thunder shall cease, neither shall 16 For this cause have I raised thee up, &c.] It is in the Hebrew, I have made thee to stand. The word bagnamad signifies not to raise into being, but to preserve, establish, or restore, as we may see in 1 Kings xv. 4. Prov. xxix. 4.

18 I will cause it to rain a very grievous hail, &c.] One of their chief divinities was the air. And to convince them that the salubrity of their climate, the healthiness of their constitutions, the exuberance, growth, and maturity of their vegetable productions, did not, as they imagined, proceed immediately, independently, and solely from this element; the Lord strengthened the air to reprove their error, and caused it to produce such dreadful storms of hail, thunder, and lightning, which had never been known since the foundation of Egypt; whereby the greatest part of the herbage and fruit was blasted and rendered useless.

20 He that feared, &c.] This conduct of Pharaoh's servants must have been in consequence of the delivery of the preceding message, though that delivery is not recorded in the Hebrew, it is in the Samaritan. Hence we may infer, that if these speeches were originally expressed twice, it seems probable from the irregularity of the Hebrew, we must conclude, that the repetitions, now regularly obtaining in the Samaritan, were designedly omitted in the Hebrew for brevity; and they were omitted very early, as they are expressed only once in the Septuagint, and other copies.

32 The wheat.] Seeing that the Egyptians were averse to eating wheat, this word should be translated rea, or "spelt," which was then in frequent use; and, as modern travellers inform us, in use at present.

Not grown up.] It is in Hebrew, Hidden, or dark. Though some commentators interpret it in the same sense as our translators, yet Bochart judiciously observes, that it signifies, they were not yet raised.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. IX.

In this chapter it should be noticed, that God, and Moses (who acts under his authority) appointed a set or particular time both for bringing on the plagues and removing them, and this too in short a distance as the nature of the appointment would admit;

there be any more hail, that thou mayest know how that the earth is the LORD's.

30 But as for thee and thy servants, I know that ye will not yet fear the LORD God.

31 And the flax and the barley was smitten: for the barley was in the ear, and the flax was balled.

32 But the wheat and the rye were not smitten: for they were not grown up.

33 And Moses went out of the city from Pharaoh, and spread abroad his hands unto the LORD: and the thunders and hail ceased, and the rain was not poured upon the earth.

34 And when Pharaoh saw that the rain and the hail and the thunders were ceased, he sinned yet more, and hardened his heart, he and his servants.

35 And the heart of Pharaoh was hardened, neither would he let the children of Israel go: as the LORD had spoken by Moses.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, Go in unto Pharaoh: for I have hardened his heart, and the heart of his servants, that I might shew these my signs before him:

2 And that thou mayest tell in the ears of thy son, and of thy son's son, what things I have wrought in Egypt, and my signs which I have done among them; that ye may know how that I am the LORD.

3 And Moses and Aaron came in unto Pharaoh, and said unto him, Thus saith the LORD God of the Hebrews, How long wilt thou refuse to humble thyself before me? let my people go, that they may serve me.

4 Else, if thou refuse to let my people go, behold, to morrow will I bring the locusts into thy coasts.

5 And they shall cover the face of the earth, that one cannot be able to see the earth: and they shall eat the residue of that which is escaped, which remaineth unto you from the hail, and shall eat every tree which groweth for you out of the field:

6 And

and once we find it left to Pharaoh himself to fix it; which was done, that the Egyptians, who were possessed with highly superstitious notions of the influences of the heavenly bodies at particular times, should not think that Moses took advantage of his knowledge of these times to work all the wonders which he did.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. X.

1 For I have hardened, &c.] The Hebrew particle chi, rendered "for," may be translated Though, and the sense will then be, Though all my judgments have hitherto had no other effect upon him, than to render him more resolute, more pertinacious, and more obdurate.

2 That thou mayest tell in the ears of thy son, &c.] Notwithstanding the immediate object of the miracles wrought in Egypt, was, the deliverance of the Israelites, yet they had other collateral and future ones; they were intended to give the neighbouring nations a conspicuous, and the Egyptians an ocular demonstration, that the doctrine of local, tutelary deities, was inconsistent with the divine majesty, and that the supposed tutelary god of the Hebrews was likewise the God of all the earth; they were intended as a barrier to idolatry for the future, and were ordered to be transmitted by the Israelites to their latest posterity, as the best expedient to counteract the strong attachment they had to incorporate the idolatrous rites of other nations with those of the worship of the true God, and to prevent their adopting the superstitions of Egypt.

3 And Moses and Aaron came—and said, &c.] The message of God is continued in the Samaritan copy, till the sixth verse, without any interruption; and, instead of the first words of this verse, reads, And ye shall say unto Pharaoh, Thus saith the Lord God of the Hebrews, &c. &c.

4, 5 I will bring the locusts—and they shall cover, &c.] We have strong assurance of the possibility of such an event; for in Scythia they are brought thither by the north-east wind in such numbers, that they form a vast cloud, sometimes fifteen or eighteen miles long, and about ten or twelve broad; which obscures the light of the sun, and produces a sudden darkness amidst the brightest day.

¶ And they shall fill thy houses, and the houses of all thy servants, and the houses of all the Egyptians; which neither thy fathers, nor thy father's fathers have seen, since the day that they were upon the earth unto this day. And he turned himself, and went out from Pharaoh.

7 ¶ And Pharaoh's servants said unto him, How long shall this man be a snare unto us? let the men go, that they may serve the LORD their God: knowest thou not yet that Egypt is destroyed?

¶ And Moses and Aaron were brought again unto Pharaoh: and he said unto them, Go, serve the LORD your God: but who are they that shall go?

8 And Moses said, We will go with our young and with our old, with our sons and with our daughters, with our flocks and with our herds will we go; for we must hold a feast unto the LORD.

9 And he said unto them, Let the LORD be so with you, I will let you go, and your little ones: look to it; for evil is before you.

10 Not so: go now ye that are men, and serve the LORD; for that ye did desire. And they were driven out from Pharaoh's presence.

11 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Stretch out thine hand over the land of Egypt for the locusts, that they may come up upon the land of Egypt, and eat every herb of the land, even all that the hail hath left.

12 And Moses stretched forth his rod over the land of Egypt, and the LORD brought an east wind upon the land all that day, and all that night; and when it was morning, the east wind brought the locusts.

13 And the locusts went up over all the land of Egypt, and rested in all the coasts of Egypt: very grievous were they; before them there were no such locusts; neither after them shall be such.

14 For they covered the face of the whole earth, so that the land was darkened, and they did eat every herb of the land, and all the fruit of the trees which the hail had left: and there remained not any green thing in the trees, or in the herbs of the field, through all the land of Egypt.

6 Unto this day.] After these words, the Samaritan represents Moses going to Pharaoh, and delivering the speech included in the 3d, 4th, and 5th verses of this chapter.

¶ Who are they that shall go?] It is in the Hebrew, Who and who are going? which the Septuagint, Chaldee, Samaritan, Syriac, and Arabic, have preserved in their copies.

¶ And Moses said, We will go with our young and with our old, &c.] The reason why all were to go, was, because they were to hold a feast unto the Lord; and in these solemnities the whole body of the nation assisted, men, women, and children.

10 Let the Lord be so with you, I will let you go.] Notwithstanding some think this be an ironical expression, yet it seems rather to be a strong denial, expressed in the form of an imprecation.

¶ Look to it, for evil, &c.] Which sentence may imply, that Pharaoh perceived the injury they intended him in withdrawing from his kingdom, or that he threatened them with some punishment in case they left it.

13 The east wind brought the locusts.] The word kedim is rendered the south-wind, by the Septuagint; but it should be observed, that the Greeks divided the heavens into two parts, the north and the south; the former of which included the north and west, and the latter the south and east; according to this rule, it is the south wind, properly so called, which brought the locusts into Egypt from Ethiopia, where they abound more than in any country. The winds were worshipped by the Egyptians; and the making use of them as instruments of their punishment, shewed at once the vanity of their superstition, and the wisdom of the almighty God.

15 The face of the whole earth, &c.] Several Jewish commentators imagine, that the swarm of locusts intercepted the light of the sun; which agrees with the sentence, "so that the land was darkened."

16 Called for Moses, &c.] It is in the Hebrew, Pharaoh hastened to call; which is preserved in all the oriental translations, and conveys the idea of his calamity and impatience.

17 Take away from me this death, &c.] A strong expression this; it is preserved in all the ancient translations; and the locusts ranged the fields, killed the vegetables, and destroyed the necessary support of life, it will be found have been no less true than it is strong.

19 A mighty strong west wind.] A wind of the sea, in the Hebrew. ¶ And cast them into the Red sea, &c.] In the Hebrew this sentence conveys the idea of such a removal of them, that it should not be in their power to return.

16 ¶ Then Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron in haste; and he said, I have sinned against the LORD your God, and against you.

17 Now therefore forgive, I pray thee, my sin only this once, and intreat the LORD your God, that he may take away from me this death only.

18 And he went out from Pharaoh, and intreated the LORD.

19 And the LORD turned a mighty strong west wind, which took away the locusts, and cast them into the Red sea; there remained not one locust in all the coasts of Egypt.

20 But the LORD hardened Pharaoh's heart, so that he would not let the children of Israel go.

21 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Stretch out thine hand toward heaven, that there may be darkness over the land of Egypt, even darkness which may be felt.

22 And Moses stretched forth his hand toward heaven; and there was a thick darkness in all the land of Egypt three days.

23 They saw not one another, neither rose any from his place for three days: but all the children of Israel had light in their dwellings.

24 ¶ And Pharaoh called unto Moses, and said, Go ye, serve the LORD; only let your flocks and your herds be stayed: let your little ones also go with you.

25 And Moses said, Thou must give us also sacrifices and burnt offerings, that we may sacrifice unto the LORD our God.

26 Our cattle also shall go with us; there shall not an hoof be left behind; for thereof must we take to serve the LORD our God; and we know not with what we must serve the LORD, until we come thither.

27 ¶ But the LORD hardened Pharaoh's heart, and he would not let them go.

28 And Pharaoh said unto him, Get thee from me, take heed to thyself, see my face no more; for in that day thou seest my face thou shalt die.

29 And Moses said, Thou hast spoken well, I will see thy face again no more.

22 And there was a thick darkness, &c.] The supreme objects of their adoration — the sun, moon, and stars; the first religious adoration paid by the creature was the worship of the heavenly bodies. They were the only deities that were worshipped by the first inhabitants of the earth, and this species of idolatry was the first every where also, as well as in Egypt. But that it was so there, we have good internal evidence, from a circumstance in their hieroglyphics, the most ancient method of recording knowledge, where a star denoted or expressed the idea of the deity. Jehovah to demonstrate his superiority over these exalted parts of nature, suspended their lights and emanations, and covered all the land of Egypt for three days with thick darkness.

23 Neither rose any from his place, &c.] This is rendered, Neither arose any from his bed, in the Septuagint.

25 Thou must give us also sacrifices, &c.] It is in the Hebrew, and thou shalt give in our hands sacrifices, &c. They were not only to sacrifice, but likewise to hold a feast, at which both sacrifices and burnt-offerings were necessary.

29 I will see thy face again no more.] Though the next chapter represents Moses as making the denunciation of the death of the first-born after this promise; yet it may be reconciled with truth, if we allow that the legislator intended to take his leave in the manner he expressed: but God immediately inspiring him with the speech related in the next chapter, he delivered it to Pharaoh before he quitted his palace.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. X.

Here let us observe, that God intends the judgments which he executeth as standing memorials of his supreme power and authority over all creatures, and of his victorious power over the kingdom of Satan, in restraining the malice and chastising the insolence of his and his people's enemies: that there is nothing, for which God more readily quarrels with men, than for their pride: that whole nations are often ruined, through the pride and obstinacy of their governors: that when Satan hath got sinners to the brink of ruin, he uses all his might in pushing them down headlong; that the early engagement of children in the service of God is exceedingly contrary to the inclination and interests of the devil and his agents: that proud men of God's messengers will be obliged to stoop to them at last: that professions of repentance, extorted by punishment, are but hypocritical, and quickly issue in more obstinate relapses into wickedness: that such a selfish

1491.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, Yet will I bring one plague more upon Pharaoh, and upon Egypt; afterwards he will let you go hence: when he shall let you go, he shall surely thrust you out hence altogether.

Speak now in the ears of the people; and let every man borrow of his neighbour, and every woman of her neighbour, jewels of silver, and jewels of gold.

And the LORD gave the people favour in the sight of the Egyptians. Moreover the man Moses was very great in the land of Egypt, in the sight of Pharaoh's servants, and in the sight of the people.

¶ And Moses said, Thus saith the LORD, About midnight will I go out into the midst of Egypt:

And all the first-born in the land of Egypt shall die, from the first-born of Pharaoh that sitteth upon his throne, even unto the first-born of the maid-servant that is behind the mill; and all the first-born of beasts.

And there shall be a great cry throughout all the land of Egypt, such as there was none like it, nor shall be like it any more.

But against any of the children of Israel shall fold convictions, may expect to be given up such hardness of heart, that nothing, however alarming, will impress their conscience: that the effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much; it often, for a time, diverts the just vengeance of God from his insolent enemies: that the wicked need not hasten the godly from among them; for if once a full separation be made, the former will be inexpressibly miserable.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XI.

1 And the Lord said unto Moses.] Or the Lord had said unto Moses. The attentive reader will observe, that the fourth verse of this chapter immediately connects with the end of the preceding, and is a continuation of Moses's conference with Pharaoh; for he himself tells us, chap. x. 29, that he would see Pharaoh's face no more; and true it is said, ver. 8, "he went out from Pharaoh in a great anger," therefore the connection will be plain, if we include the three first verses of this chapter in a parenthesis, and make the words "the Lord said" refer to some time past, "the Lord had said," chap. iii. 20, 21, 22, and iv. 22.

He shall surely thrust, &c.] It is in Hebrew, Thrusting out, i. e. he shall urge you earnestly and hastily to be gone, chap. xii. 31, 33.

Let every man borrow of his neighbour.] We have already observed that the Hebrew word jal, signifies not to borrow, but to ask, to beg, to pray for, as appears from Psalms xxi. 4. cxxii. 6. and Prov. xx. 4.

Jewels of silver, &c.] It is in Hebrew, Vessels of silver. The original word cheli signifies "vessels;" and the rendering it so is far better than jewels, since a silver jewel, or a golden jewel, is not so intelligible as silver and golden vessel or thing in general. It is probable that the chargers, bowls, or spoons of silver and gold, mentioned Numb. vii. were the very vessels given by the Egyptians.

3 And the Lord gave the people, &c.] As this verse in the Hebrew text contains no part of any speech, but is purely the narration of the historian, we totally lose sight of Pharaoh. The interview is intirely at an end, and we wonder to read in the verse following, "And Moses said, Thus saith," &c. when it is not obvious to whom he is addressing himself. Besides this, a great impropriety and anachronism is introduced; for the time when God actually gave the people this favour, was before Moses had declared to Pharaoh the destruction of the first-born, but after that this judgment had been executed; and therefore we find the history of this matter regularly given in chap. xii. 36. The Samaritan, which reads this verse, And I will give this people favour in the sight of the Egyptians, so that they shall give them what they ask; represents the verse as a continuation of God's speech to Moses, gives consistency to the chapter, and preserves the unity of the interview.

4 Thus saith the Lord.] The Samaritan continues the speech till ver. 7. in the person of God, thus: "About midnight I will go forth into the midst of the land of Egypt, &c." And after premising the character of Moses, and insinuating that he was held in great esteem and veneration both by Pharaoh and his great officers, as well as by the inferior class of Egyptians; the Samaritan opens Moses's speech in the fourth, in the following manner, And Moses said unto Pharaoh, Thus saith the Lord, Israel is my son, my first-born; and I said unto thee, Let my son go, that he may serve me: but thou hast refused to let him go: behold, therefore, Jehovah slayeth thy son, thy first-born. After which, it proceeds in repeating the general message contained in the following verses: Thus saith the Lord, &c. If we look back to chap. iv. 21, 22, 23, we shall find, that as Moses was in the way to Egypt, to demand the dismissal of his not a dog move his tongue, against man or beast: that ye may know how that the LORD doth put a difference between the Egyptians and Israel. Before CHRIST 1491.

8 And all these thy servants shall come down unto me, and bow down themselves unto me, saying, Get thee out, and all the people that follow thee: and after that I will go out. And he went out from Pharaoh in a great anger.

¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Pharaoh shall not hearken unto you; that my wonders may be multiplied in the land of Egypt.

10 And Moses and Aaron did all these wonders before Pharaoh: and the LORD hardened Pharaoh's heart, so that he would not let the children of Israel go out of his land.

C H A P. XII.

1 The beginning of the year is changed. 3 The passover is instituted. 11 The rite of the passover. 15 The days of unleavened bread. 21 Moses giveth directions to keep the passover. 29 The first-born are slain. 31 The Israelites are driven out of the land. 37 They come to Succoth. 40 The time of the Israelites' sojourning in Egypt. 43 The ordinance of the passover.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt, saying,

2 This month shall be unto you the beginning of months: it shall be the first month of the year to you.

3 ¶ Speak

brethren, God commanded him, that when he had done all the wonders before Pharaoh, and to no purpose, then he should say unto Pharaoh, "Israel is my son," &c. This then being expressly in the original commission of Moses, we find it not in the speech of Moses in this chapter.

I will go out, &c.] It is in the Chaldee, I will appear; in the Arabic, I will make my angel walk through the land of Egypt.

5 All the first-born, &c.] The death of every first-born of the Egyptians carried so lively a resemblance, and bore so natural a relation to their sin in destroying every male of the Israelites, that they must needs perceive it was inflicted as a punishment for that very cruelty; and consequently must conclude, that the God of Israel took particular cognizance of human transactions, and sooner or later rewarded every man according to his deeds.

8 All the people that follow thee.] It is in Hebrew, All the people that is at thy feet; in the Vulgate, All the people that is subject unto thee; in the Septuagint, All the people whom thou leadest away; in the Chaldee, All the people that is with thee; in the Samaritan, All the people that is behind thy feet. The Syriac and Arabic confirm the Chaldee.

He went out from Pharaoh in a great anger.] It is in the Hebrew, In anger of fury; in the Samaritan text, With ardour, or burning of anger; but in the Samaritan version, With vehemence of anger; which is confirmed by the Arabic. Some contend, that it should be rendered, He went out from Pharaoh, who was in great anger.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XI.

Here are two remarks to be made for our instruction: 1st, That God having commanded the Israelites to carry away with them the gold and silver of the Egyptians, they did it justly, because they did it by the order of God, who is the absolute master of all things in the world, and bestows them upon whom he pleases. 2dly, It is of importance to observe, that the hardness of Pharaoh ought to be attributed to nothing but his own desperate wickedness; and though it be often said in this history, that God hardened Pharaoh's heart, it must not be understood as if God was the author of his obstinacy. God permits, indeed, sinners to harden themselves, and to have opportunities of establishing themselves in their wickedness; yet their destruction proceeds only from themselves, and not from God; who, far from being the cause of it, does all that is necessary to keep them from falling into it.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XII.

1 And the Lord spake unto Moses, &c.] This passage may be in the preterpluperfect tense, And the Lord had spoken; for it appears from ver. 3 and 6, that Moses had this revelation before the tenth day, on which most interpreters think the three days darkness began; and the subject of this chapter was postponed, to prevent the breaking the series of wonders wrought by Moses.

2 This month shall be unto you the beginning of months, &c.] Before, their year commenced about the autumnal equinox; but to commemorate their happy deliverance from Egypt, was to commence from this month, which they called Abib, "an ear of corn," because the corn was then eared in that country, and it answers nearly to our March. It should likewise be observed, that this month is the first of the sacred, not of the civil year. It was at this time that our Lord suffered for our redemption: and there is a tradition among the Jews, that as they were redeemed from Egypt on the fifteenth

3 ¶ I Speak ye unto all the congregation of Israel, saying, In the tenth day of this month they shall take to them every man a lamb, according to the house of their fathers, a lamb for an house.

4 And if the household be too little for the lamb, let him and his neighbour next unto his house take it according to the number of the souls; every man according to his eating shall make your count for the lamb.

5 Your lamb shall be without blemish, a male of the first year: ye shall take it out from the sheep, or from the goats:

6 And ye shall keep it up until the fourteenth day of the same month: and the whole assembly of the congregation of Israel shall kill it in the evening.

7 And they shall take of the blood, and strike it on the two side posts, and on the upper door post of the houses, wherein they shall eat it.

8 And they shall eat the flesh in that night, roast with fire, and unleavened bread; and with bitter herbs they shall eat it.

9 Eat not of it raw, nor sodden at all with water, but roast with fire: his head with his legs, and with the purtenance thereof.

10 And ye shall let nothing of it remain until the morning; and that which remaineth of it until the morning ye shall burn with fire.

11 ¶ And thus shall ye eat it; with your loins girded, your shoes on your feet, and your staff in your hand; and ye shall eat it in haste: it is the LORD's passover.

12 For I will pass through the land of Egypt this night, and will smite all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, both man and beast; and against all the gods of Egypt I will execute judgment: I am the LORD.

13 And the blood shall be to you for a token upon the houses where ye are: and when I see the blood, I will pass over you, and the plague shall not be upon you to destroy you, when I smite the land of Egypt.

14 And this day shall be unto you for a memorial; and ye shall keep it a feast to the LORD throughout your generations; ye shall keep it a feast by an ordinance for ever.

15 ¶ Seven days shall ye eat unleavened bread; even the first day ye shall put away leaven out of your houses: for whosoever eateth leavened bread from the first day until the seventh day, that soul shall be cut off from Israel.

16 And in the first day there shall be an holy convocation, and in the seventh day there shall be an holy convocation to you; no manner of work shall be done in them, save that which every man must eat, that only may be done of you.

day of Nisan, so they should be redeemed by the Messiah on the same day.

3 In the tenth day of this month.] Which interval was allowed them to procure themselves many lambs as were necessary: but in future ages they did not begin their preparation till the thirteenth, or the day before the passover. Though this circumstance be peculiar to the passover in Egypt, yet it justly represents our Saviour's triumphant entry into Jerusalem, on the 10th day of the month, John xii. 1, 12.

They shall take to every man a lamb.] The Hebrew word likewise signifies a kid.

A lamb for an house.] The Hebrew word beth, rendered "a house," signifies also a whole people, the house of Israel; and sometimes a tribe, as the house of Levi. But in this place it denotes those who lived under one master, or head of a family.

4 If the household be too little, &c.] We are told by the rabbinical authors, that these were no less than ten, nor more than twenty persons to one lamb.

5 Your lamb shall be without blemish, a male of the first year, &c.] The lamb was to be without blemish, or perfect, the Hebrew signifies, to represent that moral purity without which no act of worship can be acceptable to God Almighty.

8 Unleavened bread.] i. e. Pure, unmixed, incorrupted, leaven being a kind of corruption. The use of unleavened bread might be enjoined to remind them of sincerity; though others think it was ordered to commemorate their hasty deliverance, which did not allow them time to leaven it.

Before

17 And ye shall observe the feast of unleavened bread; for in this selfsame day have I brought your armies out of the land of Egypt: therefore shall ye observe this day in your generations by an ordinance for ever.

18 In the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month at even, ye shall eat unleavened bread, until the one and twentieth day of the month at even.

19 Seven days shall there be no leaven found in your houses: for whosoever eateth that which is leavened, even that soul shall be cut off from the congregation of Israel, whether he be a stranger, or born in the land.

20 Ye shall eat nothing leavened; in all your habitations shall ye eat unleavened bread.

21 ¶ Then Moses called for all the children of Israel, and said unto them, Draw out and take you a lamb according to your families, and kill the passover.

22 And ye shall take a bunch of hyssop, and dip it in the blood that is in the basin, and strike the lintel and the two side posts with the blood that is in the basin; and none of you shall go out at the door of his house until the morning.

23 For the LORD will pass through to smite the Egyptians; and when he seeth the blood upon the lintel, and on the two side posts, the LORD will pass over the door, and will not suffer the destroyer to come in unto your houses to smite you.

24 And ye shall observe this thing for an ordinance to thee and to thy sons for ever.

25 And it shall come to pass, when ye come to the land which the LORD will give you, according as he hath promised, that ye shall keep this service.

26 And it shall come to pass, when your children shall say unto you, What mean ye by this service?

27 That ye shall say, It is the sacrifice of the LORD's passover, who passed over the houses of the children of Israel in Egypt, when he smote the Egyptians, and delivered our houses. And the people bowed the head and worshipped.

28 And the children of Israel went away, and did as the LORD had commanded Moses and Aaron, so did they.

29 ¶ And it came to pass, that at midnight the LORD smote the firstborn in the land of Egypt, from the firstborn of Pharaoh that sat on his throne unto the firstborn of the captive that was in the dungeon; and all the firstborn of cattle.

30 And Pharaoh rose up in the night, he, and all his servants, and all the Egyptians; and there was a great cry in Egypt; for there was not a house where there was not one dead.

31 ¶ And he called for Moses and Aaron by night, and

With bitter herbs, &c.] In order to remind them of their Egyptian bondage, which made their lives bitter to them.

9 Eat not of it raw, &c.] For fear any of the blood remain in it; but thoroughly roasted, that so it might be wholly eaten up.

11 Shall ye eat it, with your loins girded, your shoes on your feet.] You shall eat in a travelling posture, that you may be ready to set out on your journey at a short warning.

It is the LORD's passover.] i. e. A sacrifice in remembrance of Jehovah's passing over, sparing the Israelites, when he smote the Egyptians.

12 Against all the gods of Egypt I will execute judgment, &c.] Alluding to the idol gods, which the Egyptians worshipped.

16 A holy convocation, &c.] i. e. A solemn festival, the people being assembled by the sound of trumpets, to offer sacrifices, and perform other duties of religion.

18 At even, &c.] All the Jewish feasts began even.

19 Whether he be a stranger, &c.] i. e. A person of another nation who had embraced the Jewish religion; for no other strangers were admitted to this feast.

21 Kill the passover.] Which signifies, kill the paschal lamb.

23 When he seeth the blood, &c.] This whole sacrifice was a type of the Messiah, who took the human nature upon him, and shed his precious blood to wash away the sins of the world.

29 All the firstborn of cattle.] i. e. The best, the prime of their cattle. The Egyptians lived promiscuously with their cattle, so that the angel smote at the same time both them and those animals which they considered as sacred.

^{Before CHRIST 1491} and said, Rise up, and get you forth from among my people, both thee and the children of Israel; and go, serve the Lord, as ye have said.

32 Also take your flocks and your herds, as ye have said, and be gone; and bless me also.

33 And the Egyptians were urgent upon the people, that they might send them out of the land in haste; for they said, We be all dead men.

34 And the people took their dough before it was leavened, their kneading troughs being bound up in their clothes upon their shoulders.

35 And the children of Israel did according to the word of Moses; and they borrowed of the Egyptians jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment:

36 And the Lord gave the people favour in the sight of the Egyptians, so that they lent unto them such things as they required. And they spoiled the Egyptians.

37 And the children of Israel journeyed from Rameses to Succoth, about six hundred thousand on foot, ^{that were men}, beside children.

38 And a mixed multitude went up also with them; and flocks, and herds, ^{even} very much cattle.

39 And they baked unleavened cakes of the dough which they brought forth out of Egypt, for it was not leavened; because they were thrust out of Egypt, and could not tarry, neither had they prepared for themselves any victual.

40 Now the sojourning of the children of Israel, who dwelt in Egypt, was four hundred and thirty years.

41 And it came to pass at the end of the four hundred and thirty years, even the selfsame day it came to pass, that all the hosts of the Lord went out from the land of Egypt.

42 It is a night much to be observed unto the Lord for bringing them out of the land of Egypt: this is that night of the Lord to be observed of all the children of Israel in their generations.

43 And the Lord said unto Moses and Aaron, This is the ordinance of the passover; There shall no stranger eat thereof:

44 But every man's servant that is bought for money, when thou hast circumcised him, then shall he eat thereof.

45 A foreigner and an hired servant shall not eat thereof.

46 In one house shall it be eaten; thou shalt not carry forth ought of the flesh abroad out of the house; neither shall ye break a bone thereof.

47 All the congregation of Israel shall keep it.

48 And when a stranger shall sojourn with thee, and will keep the passover to the Lord, let all his males be circumcised, and then let him come near and keep it; and he shall be as one that is born in the land: for no uncircumcised person shall eat thereof.

32 Bless me also.] i. e. Pray I Jehovah, that I and my people may be delivered from this terrible pestilence.

37 Succoth.] Which signifies Booths, from the tents they erected for their cattle. There was another place of the same name in the land of Canaan, Gen. xxxiii. 17, &c.

Six hundred thousand on foot, &c.] That is, persons fit to bear arms; twenty years old and upwards. But this was not above one-third of the whole number of people that went up out of Egypt. A surprising increase in little more than 1000 hundred years, from seventy persons only!

38 A mixed multitude went up also with them, &c.] Consisting of Egyptians who had embraced the religion of the Hebrews, &c.

41 The hosts of the Lord, &c.] They are termed "the hosts of the Lord," because he led them by a pillar of a cloud by day, and a pillar of fire by night, during their whole rout through the wilderness. From the word "hosts" we learn, that they went out of Egypt like troops marching to meet the enemy, in good order.

46 Neither shall ye break a bone thereof.] Which type 1 particularly fulfilled in Christ, the great Redeemer of mankind, John xix. 33.

48 No uncircumcised person shall eat thereof.] Several Israelites who had neglected this rite in Egypt, were now circumcised, that they might keep the passover.

49 One law shall be to him that is homeborn, and unto the stranger that sojourneth among you. ^{Before CHRIST 1491}

50 Thus did all the children of Israel; as the Lord commanded Moses and Aaron, so did they.

51 And it came to pass the selfsame day, that the Lord did bring the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt by their armies.

CHAP. XIII.

1 The firstborn are sanctified to God. 3 The memorial of the deliverance from Egyptian bondage commanded to be observed yearly. 11 The firstlings of man and beast are set apart to God. 17 The Israelites carry Joseph's bones with them out of Egypt. 20 They come to Shihon, God guiding them by a pillar of a cloud, and of fire.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, 2 Sanctify unto me all the firstborn, whatsoever openeth the womb among the children of Israel, both of man and of beast: it is mine.

3 And Moses said unto the people, Remember this day, in which ye came out from Egypt, out of the house of bondage; for by strength of hand the Lord brought you out from this place: there shall no leavened bread be eaten.

4 This day came ye out in the month Abib.

5 And it shall be when the Lord shall bring thee into the land of the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites, which he sware unto thy fathers to give thee, a land flowing with milk and honey, that thou shalt keep this service in this month.

6 Seven days shalt thou eat unleavened bread, and in the seventh day shall be a feast to the Lord.

7 Unleavened bread shall be eaten seven days; and there shall no leavened bread be seen with thee, neither shall there be leaven seen with thee in all thy quarters.

8 And thou shalt shew thy son in that day, saying, This is done because of that which the Lord did unto me when I came forth out of Egypt.

9 And it shall be for a sign unto thee upon thine hand, and for a memorial between thine eyes, that the Lord's law may be in thy mouth: for with a strong hand hath the Lord brought thee out of Egypt.

10 Thou shalt therefore keep this ordinance in his season from year to year.

11 And it shall be when the Lord shall bring thee into the land of the Canaanites, he sware unto thee and to thy fathers, and shall give it thee,

12 That thou shalt set apart unto the Lord all that openeth the matrix, and every firstling that cometh of a beast which thou hast; the male shall be the Lord's.

13 And every firstling of an ass thou shalt redeem with a lamb; and if thou wilt not redeem it, then thou shalt break his neck: and all the firstborn of man among thy children shalt thou redeem.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XII.

From this history we may learn, how God subdued the fierceness of Pharaoh, and constrained him to let the children of Israel go; and how that people 1 out of Egypt in full liberty, and with great riches. This memorable event proves clearly the love of God 1 his people, and the faithful performance of his promises; we see likewise his pleasure, that the memory of so wonderful 1 deliverance should be preserved by means of the passover; and thereby 1 ought to learn 1 remember God's favours towards us, and all his wonderful works; but especially what Jesus Christ has done to save us; and to 1 him for ever those thanks which 1 due 1 him.

2 Sanctify unto me all the firstborn.] i. e. Let them be accounted sacred, to put them in mind of the tender mercy of the Almighty, in sparing their firstborn; when those of the Egyptians were destroyed.

8 Thou shalt shew thy son in that day, &c.] Moses commands the Israelites to inform their children, when they were settled in Canaan, of the true intent of the passover, that they might offer thanksgivings to God, who had so miraculously delivered the people from the slavish bondage of their persecutors.

14 And it shall be when thy son asketh thee in time to come, saying, What is this? that thou shalt say unto him, By strength of hand the Lord brought us out from Egypt, from the house of bondage.

15 And it came to pass, when Pharaoh would hardly let us go, that the Lord slew all the first-born in the land of Egypt, both the first-born of man, and the first-born of beast: therefore I sacrifice to the Lord all that openeth the matrix, being males; but all the first-born of my children I redeem.

16 And it shall be for a token upon thine hand, and for frontlets between thine eyes: for by strength of hand the Lord brought us forth out of Egypt.

17 And it came to pass, when Pharaoh had let the people go, that God led them not through the way of the land of the Philistines, although that was near; for God said, Lest peradventure the people repent when they see war, and they return to Egypt:

18 But God led the people about, through the way of the wilderness of the Red sea: and the children of Israel went up harnessed out of the land of Egypt.

19 And Moses took the bones of Joseph with him: for he had straitly sworn the children of Israel, saying, God will surely visit you; and ye shall carry up my bones away hence with you.

20 And they took their journey from Succoth, and encamped in Etham, in the edge of the wilderness.

21 And the Lord went before them by day in a pillar of a cloud, to lead them the way; and by night in a pillar of fire, to give them light; to go by day and night:

22 He took not away the pillar of the cloud by day, nor the pillar of fire by night, from before the people.

CHAP. XIV.

1 God instructeth the Israelites in their journey. 5 Pharaoh pursueth after them. 10 The Israelites murmur. 13 Moses comforteth them. 15 God instructeth Moses. 19 The cloud removeth behind the camp. 21 The Israelites pass through the Red sea. 23 The Egyptians go in after them, 26 and are drowned.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, 2 Speak unto the children of Israel, that they turn and encamp before Pi-hahiroth, between Migdol and the sea, over against Baal-zephon: before it shall ye encamp by the sea.

3 For Pharaoh will say of the children of Israel,

17 God led them not through the way of the land of the Philistines, although that was near, &c.] Notwithstanding the distance from Egypt to Canaan, through the land of the Philistines, was a journey only of a few days, yet the Israelites being no strangers to the fierce temper of the Philistines; and the slavery they had endured in Egypt must have broken their spirits, and rendered them unfit for war, God was pleased to lead them a very different way through the desert.

18 God led the people about, &c.] i. e. The pillar of fire went before them, and conducted them in the way through the wilderness, which was not the direct way to Canaan.

20 Encamped in Etham, in the edge of the wilderness.] The place called Etham lay on the border of the wilderness of Shur, next to Egypt.

21 The Lord went before.] Signifying the Shechinah, or divine presence, &c.

In a pillar.] The original word rendered pillar, signifies more generally strength and stability, or a fixed posture; so that in this sense the word pillar will so much denote the form and dimensions of the cloud, the stationary attendance of it to lead them in the way. It is called a pillar, because it extended from the earth to the clouds, and assumed the appearance of a stately column. Its principal use was, to direct the Israelites in the way; but it also defended them from the piercing rays of the sun, which are very troublesome in these hot countries.

By night in a pillar of fire, &c.] In order that they might travel by night as well as by day. These appearances continued till the death of Moses, when the Israelites passed over Jordan, and were directed in their march by the ark of the covenant.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XIII.

The command of God to the people of Israel, to celebrate the pass-over every year, and to consecrate to him the first-born, should teach us to remember the favour that he bestows upon us; and to testify our acknowledgments, by devoting to him our persons, and all that we have most valuable. This history teaches us in particular, that the remembrance of the deliverance wrought for us by Jesus Christ our Lord, ought never to slip out of our minds; but

They are entangled in the land, the wilderness hath shut them in.

Before
CHRIST

4 And I will harden Pharaoh's heart, that he shall follow after them; and I will be honoured upon Pharaoh, and upon all his host: that the Egyptians may know that I am the Lord. And they did so.

5 And it was told the king of Egypt that the people fled: and the heart of Pharaoh and of his servants was turned against the people, and they said, Why have we done this, that we have let Israel go from serving us?

6 And he made ready his chariot, and took his people with him:

7 And he took six hundred chosen chariots, and all the chariots of Egypt, and captains over every one of them.

8 And the Lord hardened the heart of Pharaoh king of Egypt, and he pursued after the children of Israel: and the children of Israel went out with an high hand.

9 But the Egyptians pursued after them, all the horses and chariots of Pharaoh, and his horse-men, and his army, and overtook them encamping by the sea, beside Pi-hahiroth, before Baal-zephon.

10 And when Pharaoh drew nigh, the children of Israel lifted up their eyes, and, behold, the Egyptians marched after them; and they were sore afraid: and the children of Israel cried out unto the Lord.

11 And they said unto Moses, Because there were no graves in Egypt, hast thou taken us away to die in the wilderness? wherefore hast thou dealt thus with us, to carry us forth out of Egypt?

12 Is not this the word that we did tell thee in Egypt, saying, Let us alone, that we may serve the Egyptians? For it had been better for us to serve the Egyptians, than that we should die in the wilderness.

13 And Moses said unto the people, Fear ye not, stand still, and see the salvation of the Lord, which he will shew to you to day: for the Egyptians whom ye have seen to day, ye shall see them again no more for ever.

14 The Lord shall fight for you, and ye shall hold your peace.

15 And the Lord said unto Moses, Wherefore criest thou unto me? speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward.

16 But should be perpetually celebrated in the church by the means of the holy supper, which was instituted with that design by Jesus Christ himself. The wonderful manner in which God led the Israelites into the desert, after their departure from Egypt, in pillars of cloud and fire, makes us see his power, wisdom, and goodness; and affords likewise an instance of the care he has of his children, and the protection wherewith he shields them.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XIV.

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, that they turn.] The people's intention at first was, to have entered the wilderness from Etham, but they are now directed to turn to the right, and keep along the west side of the Red sea.

Before Pi-hahiroth.] Without doubt this is the name of a narrow passage between the mountains on the west side of the Red sea; the word pi, in the Hebrew, signifying a month: it lay about sixteen miles from Etham.

Between Migdal and the sea, &c.] The word Migdal signifies a castle, and was probably a fortress raised on one of the mountains of Pi-hahiroth. This place was situated on the western shore of the Red sea.

3 Pharaoh will say of the children of Israel, They are entangled in the land.] i. e. He will be persuaded that you are hemmed in by rocks on one side, and by the sea on the other.

The wilderness hath shut them in.] We understand from the word "wilderness," wild rugged mountains; for at this time the children of Israel were near the shore of the Red sea, among mountains almost impassable, especially to a numerous army.

4 And I will harden Pharaoh's heart, &c.] i. e. The situation of the Israelites, now inclosed between impassable rocks and mountains on one side, and the sea on the other, will render Pharaoh so hardy and desperate as to attempt to follow, and, by force, bring them back to his Egyptian bondage.

5 All the horses and chariots of Pharaoh, and his horsemen, &c.] The army of the Egyptians consisted only of chariots and horsemen; for they were in haste to overtake them.

15 Wherefore criest thou unto me? &c.] Here we find a most excel-

Before CHRIST 1491. 16 But lift thou up thy rod, and stretch out thine hand over the sea, and divide it: and the children of Israel shall go on dry ground thro' the midst of the sea.

17 And I, behold, I will harden the hearts of the Egyptians, and they shall follow them: and I will get me honour upon Pharaoh, and upon all his host, upon his chariots, and upon his horsemen.

18 And the Egyptians shall know that I am the LORD, when I have gotten me honour upon Pharaoh, upon his chariots, and upon his horsemen.

19 ¶ And the angel of God, which went before the camp of Israel, removed and went behind them; and the pillar of the cloud went from before their face, and stood behind them:

20 And it came between the camp of the Egyptians and the camp of Israel; and it was a cloud and darkness to them, but it gave light by night to these: so that the one came not near the other all the night.

21 ¶ And Moses stretched out his hand over the sea; and the LORD caused the sea to go back by a strong east wind all that night, and made the sea dry land, and the waters were divided.

22 And the children of Israel went into the midst of the sea upon the dry ground: and the waters were a wall unto them on their right hand, and on their left.

23 ¶ And the Egyptians pursued, and went in after them to the midst of the sea, even all Pharaoh's horses, his chariots, and his horsemen.

24 And it came to pass, that in the morning watch the LORD looked unto the host of the Egyptians through the pillar of fire and of the cloud, and troubled the host of the Egyptians,

25 And took off their chariot wheels, that they drove them heavily: so that the Egyptians said, Let us flee from the face of Israel; for the LORD fighteth for them against the Egyptians.

26 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Stretch out thine hand over the sea, that the waters may come again upon the Egyptians, upon their chariots, and upon their horsemen.

27 And Moses stretched forth his hand over the sea, and the sea returned to his strength when the morning appeared; and the Egyptians fled against it; and the LORD overthrew the Egyptians in the midst of the sea. Before CHRIST 1491.

28 And the waters returned, and covered the chariots, and the horsemen, and all the host of Pharaoh that came into the sea after them; there remained not so much as one of them.

29 But the children of Israel walked upon dry land in the midst of the sea: and the waters were a wall unto them on their right hand, and on their left.

30 Thus the LORD saved Israel that day out of the hand of the Egyptians; and Israel saw the Egyptians dead upon the sea shore.

31 And Israel saw that great work which the LORD did upon the Egyptians: and the people feared the LORD, and believed the LORD, and his servant Moses.

CHAP. XV.

1 Moses' song. 20 Miriam and the women join in it. 22 The people want water. 23 The waters at Marah are bitter; a tree sweeteneth them. 27 They remove to Elim.

THEN sang Moses and the children of Israel this song unto the LORD, and spake, saying, I will sing unto the LORD, for he hath triumphed gloriously: the horse and his rider hath he thrown into the sea.

¶ The LORD is my strength and song, and he is become my salvation: he is my God, and I will prepare him an habitation; my father's God, and I will exalt him.

3 The LORD is a man of war: the LORD is his name.

4 Pharaoh's chariots and his host hath he cast into the sea: his chosen captains also are drowned in the Red sea.

5 The depths have covered them: they sank into the bottom as a stone.

6 Thy right hand, O LORD, is become glorious in power: thy right hand, O LORD, hath dashed to pieces the enemy.

7 And in the greatness of thine excellency thou hast overthrown them that rose up against thee: thou sentest forth thy wrath, which consumed them as stubble.

8 And with the blast of thy nostrils the waters were gathered lent moral lesson, namely, that it is not by inactive invocations of God that we are to expect relief from heaven in our exigencies; but by joining with prayer to God our most active and prudent endeavours: to neglect to use the natural means that are in our power, and trust intirely to vows and prayers, is only to tempt providence, and increase the evil.

17 I will harden the hearts of the Egyptians, and they shall follow them.] Sure of all the infatuation that ever possessed the Egyptians, this was the strongest, that they should venture to pursue the Israelites, when they saw, or might have seen, the sea opening her bosom to give them a passage; an evident proof that they were under the protection of the God of nature, whose voice that unruly element was thus miraculously made to obey.

I will give me honour, &c.] i. e. My power and my justice shall be magnified and rendered more conspicuous in the eyes of the world, by means of their miraculous destruction.

21 And the LORD caused the sea to go back, &c.] The Psalmist, lxxvii. 16, gives us a most beautiful and poetical description of this miracle, by representing the waters struck with amazement at the sight of God, and starting back in awe of his majesty: "The waters saw thee, O God, the waters saw thee, they were afraid: the depths also were troubled."

24 The LORD looked upon the host of the Egyptians.] The LORD looked upon them in anger, he viewed them with the marks of his displeasure, by confounding and baffling their measures.

Through the pillar of fire, and of the cloud.] Before, the cloudy part of the pillar had been towards the Egyptians; but it seems probable to imagine, that the other side was now turned towards them, and confounded them with its amazing brightness.

And troubled the host of the Egyptians.] Which was done either by the glorious splendour issuing from the pillar of the cloud flashing in their faces; or, by a dreadful tempest, with thunder and hailstones shot from the cloud, which put them into the greatest disorder: compare Psalm lxxvii. 17.

25 And took off their chariot wheels, &c.] The lightning and tempest destroyed several of their wheels.

27 The sea returned to his strength, &c.] This enormous mass of waters, which had been suspended by the power of God, had now full scope given to its impetuous fury.

31 And the people feared the LORD, &c.] For some time this great miracle filled their minds with awful ideas of God; but these were immediately defaced by the first pressure of difficulty; and this temporary fit of religion turned into infidelity towards God, and impatient murmurings against their leader.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XIV.

This chapter represents to us the blindness and stubbornness of the king of Egypt, who, after all the plagues wherewith God had smitten him, obstinately pursued the people of Israel; the wonderful deliverance that God wrought for that people, in making them pass on foot through the Red sea; and the total destruction of Pharaoh, who perished in the waters of the said sea. In this history we are to observe very attentively on one side what obstinate sinners are capable of; and with what blindness and fury they hasten to their ruin; on the other hand, the mighty power that God displays for the deliverance of his children, and the destruction of his enemies.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XV.

1 Then sang Moses, &c.] The song of Moses is the most ancient piece of poetry in the world: but in what kind of measure it is composed, is not easy to determine; nor is this of any great consequence, since every competent judge must own, that it contains something much more essential to poetry, elevation of sentiment, and loftiness of expression; and is an instance of the true use to which poetry ought to be applied, namely, to sing the praise of God, and his glorious works.

2 The LORD is my strength and song, and he is become my salvation.] i. e. The LORD is my powerful protector, the object of my praise, the author of my safety, and glorious deliverance.

He is my God, and I will prepare him an habitation, &c.] It would be better if rendered, He is my God, and I will honour him; my father's God, and I will exalt him. For the original word has two senses; to build one a comely dwelling, and, to honour; the latter of which is preferable here, as it answers to the other member of the sentence, "My father's God, and I will exalt him."

3 The LORD is a man of war, &c.] It is in the Arabic, The LORD is mighty in war; which is much more elegant than the present translation.

6 Thy right hand, O LORD, is become glorious, &c.] i. e. This, O God, was the work of thy divine power, which is magnified for the overthrow of such adversaries.

8 With the blast thy nostrils.] This is a poetical expression for the wind, which blew vehemently by order of the Almighty. It strongly marks

Before CHRIST 1491. gathered together, the floods stood upright as an heap, and the depths were congealed in the heart of the sea.

9 The enemy said, I will pursue, I will overtake, I will divide the spoil; my lust shall be satisfied upon them: I will draw my sword, my hand shall destroy them.

10 Thou didst blow with thy wind, the sea covered them: they sank ■ lead in the mighty waters.

11 Who is like unto thee, O LORD, among the gods? who is like thee, glorious in holiness, fearful in praises, doing wonders?

12 Thou stretchedst out thy right hand, the earth swallowed them.

13 Thou in thy mercy hast led forth the people which thou hast redeemed: thou hast guided them in thy strength unto thy holy habitation.

14 Thy people shall hear, and be afraid: sorrow shall take hold on the inhabitants of Palestina.

15 Then the dukes of Edom shall be amazed; the mighty men of Moab, trembling shall take hold upon them; all the inhabitants of Canaan shall melt away.

16 Fear and dread shall fall upon them; by the greatness of thine arm they shall be as still as a stone; till thy people pass over, O LORD, till the people pass over, which thou hast purchased.

17 Thou shalt bring them in, and plant them in the mountain of thine inheritance, in the place, O LORD, which thou hast made for thee to dwell in, in the sanctuary, O LORD, which thy hands have established.

18 The LORD shall reign for ever and ever.

19 For the horse of Pharaoh went in with his chariots and with his horsemen into the sea, and the LORD brought again the waters of the sea upon them; but the children of Israel went on dry land in the midst of the sea.

20 ¶ And Miriam the prophetess, the sister of Aaron, took a timbrel in her hand; and all the women went out after her with timbrels and with dances.

21 And Miriam answered them, Sing ye to the LORD, for he hath triumphed gloriously; the horse and his rider hath he thrown into the sea.

22 So Moses brought Israel from the Red sea, and they went out in the wilderness of Shur; and they went three days in the wilderness, and found no water.

23 ¶ And when they came to Marah, they could marks the power of God, intimating, that merely by breathing ■ the sea, he had made that unruly element to fly back. The royal Psalmist, xxii. 6. uses nearly the same expression, when he tells us, "That all the hosts of heaven were made by the breath of his mouth."

9 The enemy said, I will pursue, &c.] i. e. How did the enemy swell with revenge, and feast upon the hope of satiating their malice and fury upon us, when God, by one blast of his displeasure, put ■ period at once to their lives and expectations!

11 Who is like unto thee, &c.] Great and powerful Jehovah! what are all the imaginary deities of the heathen world, when compared to thy transcendent and infinite perfections!

12 The earth swallowed them.] The earth received them into its capacious bosom, wherein the sea is contained.

13 Thou hast guided them in thy strength unto thy holy habitation.] Here the Almighty is considered as a shepherd, leading his people in peaceful society, like ■ flock, to their promised rest in the land of Canaan.

14 Thy people shall hear, &c.] That is, the fame of these wonders shall go before us, striking terror into all the people whose countries we ■ to possess, and into such ■ shall attempt to obstruct our passage thither.

17 The mountain of thine inheritance, &c.] An apparent reference to the mountains which stood within the walls of Jerusalem, on ■ of which the temple was built: "He brought them to the border of his sanctuary; even to the mountain which his right hand had purchased," Psalm lxxviii. 54.

20 Took a timbrel in her hand, &c.] This ■ custom from the earliest ages, to use musical instruments in the service of their Maker, especially in celebrating the divine praises, which is the most spirited part of worship, and indeed the most ravishing and exalted employment of a rational being.

26 If thou wilt diligently hearken to the voice of the Lord thy God, &c.] not drink of the waters of Marah, for they were bitter: therefore the name of it was called Marah.

24 And the people murmured against Moses, saying, What shall we drink?

25 And he cried unto the LORD; and the LORD shewed him ■ tree, which when he had cast into the waters, the waters were made sweet; there he made for them ■ statute and an ordinance, and there he proved them,

26 And said, If thou wilt diligently hearken to the voice of the LORD thy God, and wilt do that which is right in his sight, and wilt give ear to his commandments, and keep all his statutes, I will put none of these diseases upon thee, which I have brought upon the Egyptians: for I am the LORD that healeth thee.

27 ¶ And they came to Elim, where were twelve wells of waters, and threescore and ten palm trees: and they encamped there by the waters.

C H A P. XVI.

■ The Israelites come to Sin, and murmur for want of bread. 4 God promiseth them bread and flesh from heaven. 13 Quails and manna are sent. 16 The ordering of the manna. 22 A double provision of it is made on the sixth day. 27 None to be found on the sabbath. 32 An omer of it is preserved.

AND they took their journey from Elim, and all the congregation of the children of Israel came unto the wilderness of Sin, which is between Elim and Sinai, on the fifteenth day of the second month after their departing out of the land of Egypt.

2 And the whole congregation of the children of Israel murmured against Moses and Aaron in the wilderness:

3 And the children of Israel said unto them, Would to God we had died by the hand of the LORD in the land of Egypt, when we sat by the flesh pots, and when we did eat bread to the full: for ye have brought us forth into this wilderness, to kill this whole assembly with hunger.

4 ¶ Then said the LORD unto Moses, Behold, I will rain bread from heaven for you; and the people shall go out and gather a certain rate every day, that I may prove them, whether they will walk in my law, or no.

5 And it shall come to pass, that on the sixth day they shall prepare that which they bring in; and it shall be twice as much as they gather daily.

6 And

All now required of them was, to do justice, love mercy, and walk humbly with their God. They were not yet loaded with that yoke of ceremonies which God, because of the hardness of their hearts, thought proper afterwards to lay upon them.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XV.

The song of the children of Israel should serve to stir us up to praise the Lord for his favours; but chiefly to be always celebrating the mercy and power which he has made appear in our redemption. We should next reflect upon the murmurings to which the children of Israel abandoned themselves after their deliverance, upon their wanting of water: in that we see the distrust and ingratitude of men who can so soon forget the blessings of God, and so easily fall into impatience. We may also observe therein, the assistance of the Lord, who, notwithstanding those murmurings, spared them, and ceased not to make them sensible of the effects of his love.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XVI.

2 And the whole congregation of the children of Israel murmured, &c.] Certainly this murmuring was much more general than that mentioned in the preceding chapter: for there it is only said, "the people murmured;" but here "the whole congregation."

3 Would to God we had died, &c.] In other words, Happy would it have been for us had we perished with the firstborn of Egypt. Is this thy gratitude, O Israel, to thy God for all his benefits! "O Judah, thy goodness is like the morning cloud, and ■ the early dew it goeth away!" Hosea vi. 4. Surely they might, without any high degree of faith, have trusted in God, by whose command they had undertaken that dangerous expedition, that he would not suffer them to die in it by hunger or thirst.

4 The people shall—gather ■ certain rate every day, &c.] This food ■ down in daily showers, that they might be kept in ■ perpetual and thankful dependence upon providence.

6 And Moses and Aaron said unto all the children of Israel, At even, then ye shall know that the LORD hath brought you out from the land of Egypt:

7 And in the morning, then ye shall see the glory of the LORD; for that he heareth your murmurings against the LORD: and what are we, that ye murmur against us?

8 And Moses said, This shall be, when the LORD shall give you in the evening flesh to eat, and in the morning bread to the full; for that the LORD heareth your murmurings which ye murmur against him: and what are we? your murmurings are not against us, but against the LORD.

9 And Moses spake unto Aaron, Say unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, Come near before the LORD: for he hath heard your murmurings.

10 And it came to pass, as Aaron spake unto the whole congregation of the children of Israel, that they looked toward the wilderness, and, behold, the glory of the LORD appeared in the cloud.

11 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

12 I have heard the murmurings of the children of Israel: speak unto them, saying, At even ye shall eat flesh, and in the morning ye shall be filled with bread; and ye shall know that I am the LORD your God.

13 ¶ And it came to pass, that at even the quails came up, and covered the camp: and in the morning the dew lay round about the host.

14 And when the dew that lay was gone up, behold, upon the face of the wilderness there lay a small round thing, as small as the hoar frost on the ground.

15 And when the children of Israel saw it, they said one to another, It is manna: for they wist not what it was. And Moses said unto them, This is the bread which the LORD hath given you to eat.

16 ¶ This is the thing which the LORD hath commanded, Gather of it every man according to his eating, an omer for every man, according to the number of your persons; take ye every man for them which are in his tents.

17 And the children of Israel did so, and gathered, some more, some less.

18 And when they did mete it with an omer, he that gathered much had nothing over, and he that gathered little had no lack; they gathered every man according to his eating.

19 And Moses said, Let no man leave of it till the morning.

20 Notwithstanding they hearkened not unto Moses; but some of them left of it until the morning, and it bred worms, and stank: and Moses was wroth with them.

21 And they gathered it every morning, every man according to his eating: and when the sun waxed hot, it melted.

10 And, behold, the glory of the Lord, &c.] The Israelites were suddenly struck with ■ unwonted brightness from the pillar of the cloud.

13 Quails, &c.] Many think it should have been translated locusts, which they apprehend answers best ■ the circumstances of the narration both here and in Numb. xi. 31.

15 It is manna, &c.] The people took it for common ■ from its resembling it; though it was, in reality, ■ very different thing: the ■ is hardened by the heat of the sun, whereas this melted and flowed away in streams.

23 To morrow is the rest, &c.] Hence it seems reasonable to conclude, that rest ■ the sabbath ■ now first appointed: that however religiously they might have observed a day in seven before, in memory of the six days creation, yet they did not cease from all labour till now; for in that case the rulers of the people would have ■ need to be informed thereof.

one man: and all the rulers of the congregation came and told Moses.

23 And he said unto them, This is that which the LORD hath said, To morrow is the rest of the holy sabbath unto the LORD: bake that which ye will bake to day, and seethe that ye will seethe; and that which remaineth over lay up for you to be kept until the morning.

24 And they laid it up till the morning, as Moses bade: and it did not stink, neither was there any worm therein.

25 And Moses said, Eat that to day; for to day is ■ sabbath unto the LORD: to day ye shall not find it in the field.

26 Six days ye shall gather it; but on the seventh day, which is the sabbath, in it there shall be none.

27 ¶ And it came to pass, that there went out some of the people on the seventh day for to gather, and they found none.

28 And the LORD said unto Moses, How long refuse ye to keep my commandments and my laws?

29 See, for that the LORD hath given you the sabbath, therefore he giveth you on the sixth day the bread of two days: abide ye every man in his place, let no man go out of his place on the seventh day.

30 So the people rested on the seventh day.

31 And the house of Israel called the name thereof manna: and it was like coriander seed, white: and the taste of it was like wafers made with honey.

32 ¶ And Moses said, This is the thing which the LORD commandeth, Fill an omer of it to be kept for your generations; that they may see the bread where-with I have fed you in the wilderness, when I brought you forth from the land of Egypt.

33 And Moses said unto Aaron, Take a pot, and put an omer full of manna therein, and lay it up before the LORD, to be kept for your generations.

34 As the LORD commanded Moses, so Aaron laid it up before the testimony, to be kept.

35 And the children of Israel did eat manna forty years, until they came to a land inhabited; they did eat manna, until they came unto the borders of the land of Canaan.

36 Now an omer is the tenth part of an ephah.

AND all the congregation of the children of Israel journeyed from the wilderness of Sin, after their journeys, according to the commandment of the LORD, and pitched in Rephidim: and there was no water for the people to drink.

ways murmuring against Moses, and longing after Egypt, from whence they came. One may also observe the goodness of God for putting ■ stop to those murmurings, and providing food for them, by sending them manna; but what is most worthy of our consideration here, is, that which Jesus Christ tells us in the gospel, John vi. that the children of Israel did not eat the true bread from heaven; that the ■ whereof they did eat in the wilderness, could not preserve them from death; whereas in Jesus Christ we have that true bread which ■ down from heaven, and gives us life everlasting. Let us beseech him to give ■ always that heavenly food, while we are in the wilderness of this world; and let us make ■ better use of it than the Jews did formerly of the manna that God gave them.

3 And the people thirsted there for water; and the people murmured against Moses, and said, Wherefore is this that thou hast brought us up out of Egypt, to kill us and our children and our cattle with thirst?

4 And Moses cried unto the LORD, saying, What shall I do unto this people? they be almost ready to stone me.

5 And the LORD said unto Moses, Go on before the people, and take with thee of the elders of Israel; and thy rod, wherewith thou smotest the river, take in thine hand, and go.

6 Behold, I will stand before thee there upon the rock in Horeb; and thou shalt smite the rock, and there shall come water out of it, that the people may drink. And Moses did so in the sight of the elders of Israel.

7 And he called the name of the place Massah, and Meribah, because of the chiding of the children of Israel, and because they tempted the LORD, saying, Is the LORD amongst us or not?

8 ¶ Then came Amalek, and fought with Israel, in Rephidim.

9 And Moses said unto Joshua, Choose us out men, and go out, fight with Amalek: to morrow I will stand on the top of the hill with the rod of God in mine hand.

10 So Joshua did as Moses had said to him, and fought with Amalek; and Moses, Aaron, and Hur went up to the top of the hill.

11 And it came to pass, when Moses held up his hand, that Israel prevailed: and when he let down his hand, Amalek prevailed.

12 But Moses' hands were heavy; and they took a stone, and put it under him, and he sat thereon; and Aaron and Hur stayed up his hands, the one on the one side, and the other on the other side; and his hands were steady until the going down of the sun.

13 And Joshua discomfited Amalek and his people with the edge of the sword.

14 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Write this for a memorial in a book, and rehearse it in the ears of Joshua: for I will utterly put out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven.

15 And Moses built an altar, and called the name of it JEHOVAH-nissi:

3 And the people thirsted there for water, &c.] For now the water they had brought from Elim was spent; therefore they chid Moses for bringing them into such an inconvenient station.

5 Take with thee of the elders of Israel, &c.] In order to be witnesses that thou dost really bring water out of the rock.

6 I will stand before thee there upon the rock.] i. e. The glory of the Lord in a cloud shall appear in this place, to strengthen thy faith, and convince the people of Israel that the water is given them by a divine power.

And Moses did so, &c.] Moses accordingly smote the rock, and brought water out in such plenty, that it ran down like rivers, Psalm lxxviii. 15, 16. It became a continual fountain or stream of water, which rendered this part of Arabia habitable in future ages. Travellers into these parts tell us, that at the foot of mount Horeb is a monastery well supplied with a cool limpid stream, that flows down from the mountain.

7 And he called the name—Massah, and Meribah.] Massah signifies "temptation," and Meribah "chiding."

Is the Lord among us, or not?] i. e. Are we under his special Providence or protection, or are we not?

8 Then came Amalek, &c.] Notwithstanding this battle with Amalek is recorded after the miracle at Horeb, yet it certainly happened before it; for it is here said that they came and fought with Israel, in Rephidim; which circumstance is cleared up, by comparing this passage with Deut. xxv. 18. where we read, that "Amalek met, or fell upon them by the way, and smote the hindmost of them, even all that were feeble, when they were faint and weary; that is, when they were fainting with thirst, in their march to Horeb."

14 I will utterly put out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven.] Now God denounces this heavy doom upon them, to terrify others from the like malice. They were partly destroyed by Saul, David, and the children of Simeon, according to the divine menace.

15 Called the name of it JEHOVAH-nissi.] i. e. Jehovah my banner.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XVII.

The miracle wrought by Moses, in bringing water out of the rock, to allay the thirst, and stop the murmurings of the Israelites, No. 7.

1 Jethro bringeth to Moses his wife and two sons. 7 Moses entertaineth him. 9 Jethro bleisseth God for his goodness to Israel. 13 He counselleth Moses to provide fit persons, who may assist him in judging the people; his counsel is accepted. 27 Jethro departeth.

WHEN Jethro, the priest of Midian, Moses' father in law, heard of all that God had done for Moses, and for Israel his people, and that the LORD had brought Israel out of Egypt;

¶ Then Jethro, Moses' father in law, took Zipporah, Moses' wife, after he had sent her back,

3 And her two sons; of which the name of the one was Gershom; for he said, I have been an alien in a strange land;

4 And the name of the other was Eliezer; for the God of my father, said he, was mine help, and delivered me from the sword of Pharaoh:

5 And Jethro, Moses' father in law, came with his sons and his wife unto Moses into the wilderness, where he encamped at the mount of God:

6 And he said unto Moses, I thy father in law Jethro am come unto thee, and thy wife, and her two sons with her.

7 ¶ And Moses went out to meet his father in law, and did obeisance, and kissed him; and they asked each other of their welfare; and they came into the tent.

8 And Moses told his father in law all that the LORD had done unto Pharaoh and to the Egyptians for Israel's sake, and all the travail that had come upon them by the way, and how the LORD delivered them.

9 ¶ And Jethro rejoiced for all the goodness which the LORD had done to Israel, whom he had delivered out of the hand of the Egyptians.

10 And Jethro said, Blessed be the LORD, who hath delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians, and out of the hand of Pharaoh, who hath delivered the people from under the hand of the Egyptians.

11 Now I know that the LORD is greater than all gods:

obliges us to reflect upon the incredulity of that people, who were always distrusting the power of God, and rebelling against Moses. We may also observe the great patience of the Lord, in working this new miracle for their sakes. As for their victory over the Amalekites, that is an instance of the just punishment of God inflicted on the enemies of his people; but we must particularly take notice, that God granted this victory to the prayers of Moses. It is an example whereby we may learn, that calling upon the name of God, and perseverance in prayer, is the most effectual way to obtain his assistance, and triumph over all our enemies, both spiritual and temporal.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XVIII.

1 Jethro, the priest of Midian, &c.] In the Hebrew it signifies both prince and priest. That he was the latter, appears from his offering sacrifice; and there is also great reason to think that he was the former. It was an uncommon thing for these two offices to be united in the same person. It is very probable that Jethro arrived in the camp of Israel immediately after the battle with Amalek, though he did not give Moses the advice for the better administration of justice till some considerable time after, when God delivered the law from mount Sinai.

¶ Took Zipporah, Moses' wife, after he had sent her back.] We find in chap. iv. 26, Moses sent his wife back from the inn, where her child was circumcised; because, probably, he thought she and her children would live more comfortably at home with her father, than among such frightful spectacles of public disaster and terror in Egypt.

4 Eliezer, &c.] i. e. "My God is mine help;" to remind him of his obligations to God; for protecting him from Pharaoh.

¶ And he said unto Moses, &c.] It appears from ver. 7. that it was a message.

¶ And Moses told his father in law all that the Lord had done unto Pharaoh, &c.] It is highly probable from this passage, that Jethro's visit happened in order of time as here related; for had it happened after the giving of the law, it can hardly be imagined that Moses would have omitted to mention God's glorious appearance on mount Sinai, and the law he had delivered to them.

11 Now I know that the Lord is greater than all gods.] Now I am fully ^{Before} ^{CHRIST} ^{1491.} gods: for in the thing wherein they dealt proudly he was above them.

12 And Jethro, Moses' father in law, took a burnt offering and sacrifices for God: and Aaron came, and all the elders of Israel, to eat bread with Moses' father in law before God.

13 ¶ And it came to pass on the morrow that Moses sat to judge the people: and the people stood by Moses from the morning unto the evening.

14 And when Moses' father in law saw all that he did to the people, he said, What is this thing that thou doest to the people? why sittest thou thyself alone, and all the people stand by thee from morning unto even?

15 And Moses said unto his father in law, Because the people come unto me to enquire of God:

16 When they have a matter, they come unto me; and I judge between one and another, and I do make them know the statutes of God and his laws.

17 And Moses' father in law said unto him, The thing that thou doest is not good.

18 Thou wilt surely wear away, both thou, and this people that is with thee: for this thing is too heavy for thee; thou art not able to perform it thyself alone.

19 Hearken now unto my voice, I will give thee counsel, and God shall be with thee: be thou for the people to God-ward, that thou mayest bring the causes unto God:

20 And thou shalt teach them ordinances and laws, and shalt shew them the way wherein they must walk, and the work that they must do.

21 Moreover thou shalt provide out of all the people able men, such as fear God, men of truth, hating covetousness: and place such over them, to be rulers of thousands, and rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens:

22 And let them judge the people at all seasons: and it shall be, that every great matter they shall bring unto thee, but every small matter they shall judge: so shall it be easier for thyself, and they shall bear the burden with thee.

23 If thou shalt do this thing, and God command thee so, then thou shalt be able to endure, and all this people shall also go to their place in peace.

fully persuaded that Jehovah, the God whom the Israelites adore, is greater than all the gods of Egypt, or of any other nation.

For in the thing wherein they dealt proudly he was above them.] The Lord shewed himself superior to all gods, by confounding the Egyptians; even when, presuming on the assistance of their gods, they proudly threatened the ruin of the Israelites.

12 To eat bread] i. e. To partake of the sacrifice that had been offered, for this comprehends the whole meal, as in other places.

Before God] i. e. Before the divine presence appeared in the cloud. Or it may be understood in general, that they behaved in a religious manner under the impression of the divine presence, ■ it is said of Daniel, that "he gave thanks in his house before God," chap. vi. 10.

15 Come—to enquire of God.] Moses in particular cases, consulted the oracle of God, and received from heaven an answer by an audible voice.

19 Be thou for the people to God-ward, that thou mayest bring the causes unto God.] i. e. Do thou interpret the mind of God to the people, and bring the causes of the people to God. Jethro here desires Moses to confine himself to his proper offices, as a prophet; for the prophets had a double promise, to reveal the will of God to the people, and to represent their causes to God, and sometimes to ask counsel at his oracle.

21 Rulers of thousands, &c.] It seems these several courts of judicature have been duly subordinate to each other; so that causes, which could not be decided by the "decurio," or judge of ten, were brought before the judge of fifty, and so on, till they frequently came before Moses, whose business it was to lay them before God.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XVIII.

We hear, in the first place, that Jethro, the father in law of Moses, came to see him, not only to bring him his wife and children, but chiefly to rejoice with him, and with all the people, upon God's delivering them from the bondage of Egypt. This example of piety and charity should excite us to share in the good that happens to our brethren, and especially to rejoice when the glory of God is promoted, and when he causes his power and justice to appear in the eyes of all the world. Secondly, That which is said in this chapter concerning the establishment of judges and magistrates, and the qualities they ought to have, is a lesson, first, ■

24 So Moses hearkened to the voice of his father in law, and did all that he had said. ^{Before} ^{CHRIST} ^{1491.}

25 And Moses chose able men out of all Israel, and made them heads over the people, rulers of thousands, rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens.

26 And they judged the people at all seasons: the hard causes they brought unto Moses, but every small matter they judged themselves.

27 ¶ And Moses let his father in law depart; and he went his way into his own land.

C H A P. XIX.

1 The people come to Sinai. 3 God's message unto the people out of the mount. 7 Moses delivereth it, and returneth the people's answer. 10 The people are ordered to be prepared against the third day; the mountain is not to be touched. 14 The people are sanctified. 16 The fearful presence of God upon the mount.

I N the third month, when the children of Israel were gone forth out of the land of Egypt, the same day came they into the wilderness of Sinai.

■ For they were departed from Rephidim, and were come to the desert of Sinai, and had pitched in the wilderness; and there Israel camped before the mount.

3 ¶ And Moses went up unto God, and the Lord called unto him out of the mountain, saying, Thus shalt thou say to the house of Jacob, and tell the children of Israel,

4 Ye have seen what I did unto the Egyptians, and how I bare you on eagle's wings, and brought you unto myself.

5 Now therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people: for all the earth is mine:

6 And ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests, and an holy nation. These are the words which thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel.

7 ¶ And Moses came and called for the elders of the people, and laid before their faces all these words which the Lord commanded him.

8 And all the people answered together, and said, All that the Lord hath spoken we will do. And Moses returned the words of the people unto the Lord.

9 And the Lord said unto Moses, Lo, I come unto thee in a thick cloud, that the people may hear when I speak those who are in civil employments, to teach them to discharge them with diligence and integrity; to be persons fearing God, virtuous, just, and, above all, disinterested, and far from filthy lucre. In the next place, we ought all to acknowledge of how great consequence it is that there should be magistrates, for the producing of order in societies; that their establishment comes from God; and that every body ought to submit to them.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XIX.

3 And Moses went up unto God, &c.] Moses ascended the mountain, the symbol of the divine presence having rested thereupon.

4 How I bare you on eagle's wings, &c.] This bird is remarkable for soaring high, even above the clouds, where neither rains nor snows fall, no thunders break, but the air is always calm and serene. The meaning thereof is, that they had passed the sea, and escaped the greatest dangers from their enemies, as if they had been borne aloft on eagles' wings.

5 If ye will obey my voice] Thus it appears that national virtue and a pious obedience to the will of God, was the unalterable condition on which the divine protection, and all the other national blessings were promised to this people.

A peculiar treasure unto me, &c.] i. e. You shall be the objects of my peculiar care, as jewels and valuable treasure are of kings. I will establish my kingdom among you, with such laws as shall not only distinguish you from all other nations, but make you superior.

6 And ye shall be to me a kingdom of priests.] i. e. As sacred, and therefore ■ dear to God, as if they were all priests, not in ■ only, but such as live suitably to their profession.

An holy nation, &c.] That is, ■ nation that shall exhibit shining examples of piety and goodness to ■ degenerate world.

■ All that the Lord hath spoken ■ will do, &c.] Now they consent to have God for their king, and promise to be obedient to his laws. And then they became the subjects of the divine government in ■ peculiar sense; the theocracy, therefore, so famous in the Jewish history, had now its beginning.

9 In a thick cloud, &c.] The voice of God was delivered out of the midst of the fire, which burnt the mountain: in allusion to which, God is often, in scripture, called "a consuming fire." But with respect to the people, clouds and darkness were round about him.

Before CHRIST 1491. speak with thee, and believe thee for ever. And Moses told the words of the people unto the LORD.

10 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Go unto the people, and sanctify them to day and to morrow, and let them wash their clothes, 11 And be ready against the third day: for the third day the LORD will come down in the sight of all the people upon mount Sinai.

12 And thou shalt set bounds unto the people round about, saying, Take heed to yourselves, that ye go not up into the mount, or touch the border of it: whosoever toucheth the mount shall be surely put to death:

13 There shall not an hand touch it, but he shall surely be stoned, or shot through; whether it be beast or man, it shall not live: when the trumpet soundeth long, they shall come up to the mount.

14 ¶ And Moses went down from the mount unto the people, and sanctified the people: and they washed their clothes.

15 And he said unto the people, Be ready against the third day: come not at your wives.

16 ¶ And it came to pass on the third day in the morning, that there were thunders and lightnings, and a thick cloud upon the mount, and the voice of the trumpet exceeding loud; so that all the people that was in the camp trembled.

17 And Moses brought forth the people out of the camp to meet with God; and they stood at the nether part of the mount.

18 And mount Sinai was altogether on a smoke, because the LORD descended upon it in fire: and the smoke thereof ascended as the smoke of a furnace, and the whole mount quaked greatly.

19 And when the voice of the trumpet sounded long, and waxed louder and louder, Moses spake, and God answered him by a voice.

20 And the LORD came down upon mount Sinai, on the top of the mount: and the LORD called Moses up to the top of the mount; and Moses went up.

10 Go unto the people and sanctify them to day and to morrow.] The people were to purify themselves from all uncleanness; to abstract their minds from the world, by a cessation from their ordinary employments, by prayer and fasting, and by abstinence from even lawful pastimes.

13 There shall not an hand touch it, &c.] Which severe order was given to impress the minds of a stiff-necked people with a profound veneration for the author of their laws. The words should have been rendered, Let not a hand touch him; referring to the person who should dare to venture within the consecrated bounds; a crime which they should look upon with such detestation, that they should instantaneously stone or shoot the offender.

18 Because the Lord descended upon it in fire] The great and divine majesty descended in a cloud with a glorious retinue of angels, who appeared like flames of fire, as Moses himself seems to expound it, "He came with ten thousands of saints; from his right hand went a fiery law for them," Deut. xxxiii. 2.

And the whole mount quaked greatly] The Psalmist alludes to this when he says, "The earth shook, the heavens also dropped at the presence of God, the God of Israel," Psal. lxxviii. 8.

20 And the Lord called Moses up, &c.] Moses was called up to the very place where the Shechinah or divine glory was, and entered into the midst of the cloud, where God is said to have spoken to him face to face, as a man speaketh to his friend, chap. xxxiii. 11. so bishop Patrick understands it: but it appears, from chap. xx. 21. compared with Deut. v. 4, 5, that even Moses himself was not permitted to enter within the cloud of glory, but only drew near to the thick darkness with which it was encompassed, and so stood between Jehovah or the divine presence and the people.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XIX.

What is chiefly to be observed in this chapter, is, that the first thing God did, after delivering his people out of Egypt, was to engage them to fear him, and to make laws for them; to which purpose, he directed them to sanctify themselves, that they might hear the publication of the ten commandments, when he came down upon mount Sinai, in a dreadful appearance. The instruction that we ought to draw from thence, is, that God has not redeemed and chosen us for his people, but to the end that we should serve him, and reverence his holy laws; and that those that break them, shall not escape his vengeance.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XX.

22 And let the priests also, which come near to the LORD, sanctify themselves, lest the LORD break forth upon them.

23 And Moses said unto the LORD, The people cannot come up to mount Sinai: for thou chargedst us, saying, Set bounds about the mount, and sanctify it.

24 And the LORD said unto him, Away, get thee down, and thou shalt come up, thou, and Aaron with thee: but let not the priests and the people break through to come up unto the LORD, lest he break forth upon them.

25 So Moses went down unto the people, and spake unto them.

AND God spake all these words, saying, 2 I am the LORD thy God, which have brought thee out of the land of Egypt, and out of the house of bondage.

3 ¶ Thou shalt have no other gods before me.

4 Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth:

5 Thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them: for I the LORD thy God am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me;

6 And shewing mercy unto thousands of them that love me, and keep my commandments.

7 Thou

stances of pomp and terror, as natural means to extort a political obedience, more than to raise and improve a religious and moral disposition.

2 I am the Lord thy God which have brought thee out of the land of Egypt, &c.] The primary words of this sentence, I am the Lord, "I am Jehovah," contain the reasons for man's obedience to the divine laws, and extend to all rational beings throughout the world.

3 Thou shalt have no other Gods before me.] i. e. In my sight or presence; and God as present in all places, it becomes an absolute prohibition of having any other god. But as the precept forbids the worship of any other god, so it also commands the worship of that Being to whom we owe our creation, whom we must believe and acknowledge the parent of the universe, and should therefore hearken to his voice, and obey the dictates of his will only.

4 Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image.] Thus we see the sin of idolatry is of two kinds; the worship of a false God forbidden in the first commandment, and the worship of the true God under a false representation, forbidden more particularly in this second commandment.

Or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above] i. e. Thou shalt not worship the host of heaven, the sun, moon, and stars, or any imaginary invisible powers in them; neither represent God under the similitude of these things; for the whole heavens are the works of the Almighty.

Or that is in the earth beneath] i. e. Thou shalt not represent the Almighty under the similitude of a man or beast, or pay divine honours to any creature whatsoever.

Or that is in the water, &c.] Because the Egyptians worshipped the crocodile; therefore this prohibition was added here, to prevent the Israelites from committing that kind of idolatry. The particular design of the law was, to bring them back to the pure, primitive, and spiritual worship of Jehovah.

5 For I the Lord thy God am a jealous God.] Thus the Israelites were bound by special ties to worship God with such unalienable affection, as a chaste spouse bears to her husband. And, in pursuance of the same metaphor, God is called a jealous God; that is, his unalienable right to our services will suffer him to bear a rival or competitor in his worship.

Visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, &c.] We are to understand by the word "visiting" punishing with signal judgments. And the true sense of it is, that God will punish the transgressors of his laws, especially the transgressors of this commandment, with signal judgments, in such a manner, that the woeful effects thereof shall reach even to their posterity, and that for several generations.

7 Thou

Before CHRIST 1491. 7 Thou shalt not take the name of the LORD thy God in vain; for the LORD will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain.

8 Remember the sabbath day, to keep it holy.

9 Six days shalt thou labour, and do all thy work:

10 But the seventh day is the sabbath of the LORD thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy manservant, nor thy maidservant, nor thy cattle, nor the stranger that is within thy gates:

11 For in six days the LORD made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day: wherefore the LORD blessed the seventh day, and hallowed it.

12 ¶ Honour thy father and thy mother: that thy days may be long upon the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

13 Thou shalt not kill.

14 Thou shalt not commit adultery.

15 Thou shalt not steal.

16 Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbour.

17 Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's wife, nor his manservant, nor his maidservant, nor his ox, nor his ass; nor any thing that is thy neighbour's.

18 ¶ And all the people saw the thunderings, and the lightnings, and the noise of the trumpet, and the mountain smoking: and when the people saw it, they removed, and stood afar off.

19 And they said unto Moses, Speak thou with us, and we will hear: but let not God speak with us, lest we die.

20 And Moses said unto the people, Fear not: for God is come to prove you, and that his fear may be before your faces, that ye sin not.

21 And the people stood afar off, and Moses drew near unto the thick darkness where God was.

22 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Thus thou shalt say unto the children of Israel, Ye have seen that I have talked with you from heaven.

7 Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain, &c.] A general prohibition this against false or vain swearing, especially against the horrid crime of perjury; and in the latter sense our blessed Saviour himself cites this law, Matt. v. 33. "Ye have heard that it hath been said by them of old time, Thou shalt not forswear thyself;" so that the principal thing here forbidden is perjury, or making use of the name of God, by way of appeal to him — omniscient, and to whom belongs the final decision of all cases of equity, in attestation and support of falsehood; a crime repugnant to all our ideas of God, and utterly subversive of public regularity.

8 Remember the sabbath day, &c.] That is, remember the day of rest, which God hath appointed thee to observe; for the word "sabbath" properly signifies rest. That we should with grateful sense reflect upon the glorious works of God, especially that grand and fundamental one, wherein his goodness, wisdom, and power, are so illustriously displayed, the creation of the world; that we should not be unmindful of the special favours of God, nor spend all our time in taking care of our bodies and the business of this life, but should assign a competent portion of time for the relaxation of our mind, and for attending to the concerns of our immortal souls.

10 The seventh day is the sabbath of the Lord thy God, &c.] i. e. The seventh day is sacred to Jehovah thy God, being that on which he rested from his works of creation; we are to perform our works on that sacred day but those of mercy and necessity.

11 Rested the seventh day, &c.] This word "rested" is not to be understood literally, as if creating the world was any labour to God, but the expression is accommodated to our ideas, and signifies ceasing.

12 Honour thy father and thy mother, &c.] Thus our duty to our earthly parents is next to that we owe to God. When we reflect that they are, under God, the authors of our being; that they have preserved and supported us, when it was impossible for us to support ourselves; we shall be convinced, that we justly owe them the filial duty which this commandment requires.

13 Thou shalt not kill.] These words are better rendered, in an old translation used in the communion service of the established church, "Thou shalt do no murder;" for the life of a man may be taken away without committing murder, or being guilty of breaking the commandment, in Gen. ix. 6. "Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed."

14 Thou shalt not commit adultery.] Adultery is a crime of the deepest dye; it is a violation of the most sacred bond of all so-

23 Ye shall not make with me gods of silver, neither shall ye make use of gods of gold.

24 ¶ An altar of earth thou shalt make unto me, and shalt sacrifice thereon thy burnt offerings, and thy peace offerings, thy sheep, and thine oxen: in all places where I record my name I will come unto thee, and I will bless thee.

25 And if thou wilt make me an altar of stone, thou shalt not build it of hewn stone: for if thou lift up thy tool upon it, thou hast polluted it.

26 Neither shalt thou go up by steps unto mine altar, that thy nakedness be not discovered thereon.

NOW these are the judgments which thou shalt set before them.

¶ If thou buy an Hebrew servant, six years he shall serve: and in the seventh he shall go out free for nothing.

3 If he came in by himself, he shall go out by himself: if he were married, then his wife shall go out with him.

4 If his master have given him a wife, and she have borne him sons or daughters; the wife and her children shall be her master's, and he shall go out by himself.

5 And if the servant shall plainly say, I love my master, my wife, and my children; I will not go out free:

6 Then his master shall bring him unto the judges: he shall ciety, upon which the happiness of mankind more immediately and expressly depends: it sows the seed of implacable dissention between families, and dissolves the friendship of the most intimate acquaintance.

15 Thou shalt not steal.] The great bond of human society is justice; take away this, and mankind will no longer be distinguished from the wild beasts of the forests, where the weakest are devoured by the strongest.

16 Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbour.] Next to the life and property of our neighbour, there is nothing, generally, dearer to man than their reputation or good name: nay, it has been accounted more valuable than life itself in many cases.

17 Thou shalt not covet, &c.] This precept is intended to prohibit all unjust desires or appetites, and consequently strikes at the root of all evil dispositions.

24 An altar of earth shalt thou make unto me.] i. e. An altar of plain turfs, which could easily be had in the wilderness, and therefore most proper for the Israelites in their wandering situation.

25 If thou wilt make me an altar, &c.] i. e. If thou wilt erect an altar of stone, the whole structure must be as plain and simple as possible: to convince a gross people it was not the costliness of the materials, nor the external modes and forms of worship that God regarded, but the devotion of the mind with which it was accompanied.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXI.

We have heard the ten commandments which God formerly published from his own mouth. We are to consider, first, That these commandments concern us as well as the Jews, for our Saviour, as he says himself, Matt. v. "came not to abolish but to fulfil the law." Secondly, That this law does not only forbid actual sins, nor regulate our actions alone, but even our thoughts and desires, and that God will judge us all by this law, as it is explained in the gospel. Thirdly, The dread that came upon the Israelites when God published his law, should put us in mind of the warning of St. Paul, Heb. xii. 18—28. which see.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXI.

¶ Now these are the judgments.] After the chief heads of the moral law were thus solemnly given, Moses was commanded to prescribe several other particular laws concerning the judicial and civil government of the civil state, the rights between man and man, and those relating to the ceremonial parts of worship under the Jewish dispensation.

Before CHRIST 1491. shall also bring him to the door, or unto the door post; and his master shall bore his ear through with an awl; and he shall serve him for ever.

7 ¶ And if a man sell his daughter to be a maid-servant, she shall not go out as the men-servants do.

8 If she please not her master, who hath betrothed her to himself, then shall he let her be redeemed: to sell her unto a strange nation he shall have no power, seeing he hath dealt deceitfully with her.

9 And if he hath betrothed her unto his son, he shall deal with her after the manner of daughters.

10 If he take him another wife; her food, her raiment, and her duty of marriage, shall he not diminish.

11 And if he do not these three unto her, then shall she go out free without money.

12 ¶ He that smiteth a man, so that he die, shall be surely put to death.

13 And if a man lie not in wait, but God deliver him into his hand; then I will appoint thee a place whither he shall flee.

14 But if a man come presumptuously upon his neighbour, to slay him with guile; thou shalt take him from mine altar that he may die.

15 And he that smiteth his father, or his mother, shall be surely put to death.

16 ¶ And he that stealeth a man, and selleth him, or if he be found in his hand, he shall be surely put to death.

17 ¶ And he that curseth his father, or his mother, shall surely be put to death.

19 If he rise again, and walk abroad upon his staff, then shall he that smote him be quit: only he shall pay for the loss of his time, and shall cause him to be thoroughly healed.

20 ¶ And if a man smite his servant, or his maid, with a rod, and he die under his hand; he shall be surely punished.

21 Notwithstanding, if he continue a day or two, he shall not be punished: for he is his money.

22 ¶ If men strive, and hurt a woman with child, so that her fruit depart from her, and yet no mischief follow: he shall be surely punished, according as the woman's husband will lay upon him; and he shall pay as the judges determine.

23 And if any mischief follow, then thou shalt give life for life,

6 Bore his ear] In order to shew his obligation to hearken, and obey his master's commands.

Shall serve him for ever] That is, till the year of Jubilee sets him free of course, or till his master's death.

7 She shall not go out as the men-servants do.] The real meaning of this passage seems to be this: that if a father, through extreme poverty, is obliged to sell his daughter for a maid-servant, she shall be treated in a different manner from those who have been sold by the judges, and obtain her freedom on terms much easier.

9 After the manner of daughters.] That is, he shall portion her as one of his daughters.

10 If he take him another wife, her food, her raiment, and her duty of marriage, &c.] i. e. if after the son had married her, he took another wife besides, he was still to perform to this all the duties of marriage, namely, give her food and raiment, and, at certain times (which were determined by law) to cohabit with her as her husband.

14 Thou shalt take him from mine altar that he may die.] Because to make the altar a place of refuge for voluntary crimes, would be to make piety a screen for wickedness, and God a patron of iniquity: hence we see how directly contrary to the divine law the papists act, who make their churches asylums for the most atrocious criminals.

20 If a man smite his servant, &c.] i. e. whoever beats a servant, or slave (though a Gentile) so that he die under his hand, he shall be treated as a murderer.

27 And if he smite out his man-servant's tooth, he shall let him go free for his tooth's sake.

28 ¶ And if an ox gore a man or a woman, that they die: then the ox shall be surely stoned, and his flesh shall not be eaten; but the owner of the ox shall be quit.

29 But if the ox were wont to push with his horn in time past, and it hath been testified to his owner, and he hath not kept him in, but that he hath killed a man or a woman; the ox shall be stoned, and his owner also shall be put to death.

30 If there be laid on him a sum of money, then he shall give for the ransom of his life whatsoever is laid upon him.

31 Whether he have gored a son, or have gored a daughter, according to this judgment shall it be done unto him.

32 If the ox shall push a man-servant, or a maid-servant; he shall give unto their master thirty shekels of silver, and the ox shall be stoned.

33 ¶ And if a man shall open a pit, or if a man shall dig a pit, and not cover it, and an ox or an ass fall therein:

34 The owner of the pit shall make it good, and give money unto the owner of them; and the dead beast shall be his.

35 ¶ And if one man's ox hurt another's, that he die; then shall they sell the live ox, and divide the money of it; and the dead ox also shall they divide.

36 Or if it be known that the ox hath used to push in time past, and his owner hath not kept him in; he shall surely pay ox for ox; and the dead shall be his own.

CHAP. XXII.

1 Laws concerning theft; 5 damage; 7 trusts, and trespasses in case of trust; 14 borrowing; 16 fornication; 18 witchcraft; 19 bestiality; 20 idolatry; 21 oppressing of strangers, the widow, or fatherless; 25 usury and pledges; 28 reverence to magistrates; 29 first fruits; 31 eating torn flesh.

IF a man shall steal an ox, or a sheep, and kill it, or sell it, he shall restore five oxen for an ox, and four sheep for a sheep.

¶ If a thief be found breaking up, and be smitten that he die, there shall no blood be shed for him.

3 If the sun be risen upon him, there shall be blood shed the cruelty of tyrannical masters, the legislature mercifully ordains, that a master shall lose the service of his slave, not only for depriving him of an eye but even of a tooth.

33 If a man shall open a pit, &c.] In those hot countries it was a common practice to dig for springs, and make large pits or cisterns as receptacles for rain water, which if left uncovered, cattle might easily fall into them.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXI.

From this chapter we may gather that those who strike or wound their neighbours ought not to go unpunished. Secondly, That those who occasion any evil or mischief to another, whether willingly or accidentally, should bear the penalty, and make reparation for it. Thirdly, that although slavery obtained among the Jews, God did not intend thereby that they should treat their slaves cruelly. Most other people did; from whence it appears, that Christians should use yet more gentleness towards their servants.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXII.

¶ If a thief be found, &c.] Notwithstanding this permission of killing the person who attempts our houses in the night-time, when the world is buried in sleep and darkness, yet we ought to be careful in making use of it; for our consciences will never acquit us for taking away the life of a fellow-creature, unless we have very good reason to believe that he had a design upon our own.

3 If the sun be risen, &c.] It being then easy to pursue him, and call the neighbours to our assistance. Besides, his coming at that time was an indication that he had a design upon our lives.

Before CHRIST 1491. shed for him, for he should make full restitution; if he have nothing, then he shall be sold for his theft.

4 If the theft be certainly found in his hand alive, whether it be ox, or ass, or sheep; he shall restore double.

5 ¶ If a man shall cause a field or vineyard to be eaten, and shall put in his beast, and shall feed in another man's field: of the best of his own field, and of the best of his own vineyard shall he make restitution.

6 If a fire break out, and catch in thorns, so that the stacks of corn, or the standing corn, or the field, be consumed therewith; he that kindleth the fire shall surely make restitution.

7 ¶ If a man shall deliver unto his neighbour money or stuff to keep, and it be stolen out of the man's house; if the thief be found, let him pay double.

¶ If the thief be not found, then the master of the house shall be brought unto the judges, to see whether he have put his hand unto his neighbour's goods.

9 For all manner of trespass, whether it be for ox, for ass, for sheep, for raiment, or for any manner of lost things, which another challengeth to be his, the case of both parties shall come before the judges; and whom the judges shall condemn, he shall pay double unto his neighbour.

10 If a man deliver unto his neighbour an ass, or an ox, or a sheep, or any beast, to keep; and it die, be hurt, or driven away, no man seeing it:

11 Then shall an oath of the Lord be between them both, that he hath not put his hand unto his neighbour's goods; and the owner of it shall accept thereof; and he shall not make it good.

12 And if it be stolen from him, he shall make restitution unto the owner thereof.

13 If it be torn in pieces, then let him bring it for witness, and he shall not make good that which was torn.

14 ¶ And if a man borrow aught of his neighbour, and it be hurt, or die, the owner thereof being not with it, he shall surely make it good.

15 But if the owner thereof be with it, he shall not make it good: if it be an hired thing, it came for his hire.

16 ¶ And if a man entice a maid that is not betrothed, and lie with her, he shall surely endow her to be his wife.

17 If her father utterly refuse to give her unto him, he shall pay money according to the dowry of virgins.

18 ¶ Thou shalt not suffer a witch to live.

19 ¶ Whosoever lieth with a beast shall surely be put to death.

If a fire break out, &c.] The chief intention of this law was, to make men careful how they lighted fires, even at a distance from corn or buildings; because from such practices often the most terrible consequences have ensued.

16 If a man entice, &c.] It is devoutly to be wished that this law was revived in this christian country.

18 Thou shalt not suffer a witch to live.] The motive for this precept is, because all witches, whether real or pretended, were open professors, and practisers of idolatry, and consequently enemies to the Jewish polity and state.

21 Thou shalt neither vex a stranger nor oppress him, &c.] Thus hospitality was enjoined to the Jews, as a duty they were strictly to observe; for this reason, because Abraham, and the other patriarchs, their forefathers, had been strangers and pilgrims, wandering and unsettled, and depending, under Providence, on the hospitality of foreign people.

25 Thou shalt not be to him as an usurer, &c.] i. e. An exacting creditor, urgent and rigid.

26 By that the sun goeth down.] We are told by the Hebrew canons, that when one takes a pledge of his neighbour, if he be a poor man, and his pledge be a thing that he hath need of, it is commanded that he restore the pledge, when he needeth; he is to restore him his bedding at night, that he may sleep on it; and his working-tools by day, that he may not neglect his business; if he does not restore the instrument of the day, by day, and the instrument of the night, at night, he transgresseth the law.

29 Ripe fruits] i. e. Wheat, barley, grapes, figs, dates, olives, and pomegranates.

Liquors, &c.] i. e. oil and wine.

20 ¶ He that sacrificeth unto any god, save unto the Lord only, he shall be utterly destroyed.

21 ¶ Thou shalt neither vex a stranger, nor oppress him: for ye were strangers in the land of Egypt.

22 Ye shall not afflict any widow, or fatherless child.

23 If thou afflict them in any wise, and they cry at all unto me, I will surely hear their cry;

24 And my wrath shall wax hot, and I will kill you with the sword; and your wives shall be widows, and your children fatherless.

25 ¶ If thou lend money to any of my people that is poor by thee, thou shalt not be to him as an usurer, neither shalt thou lay upon him usury.

26 ¶ If thou at all take thy neighbour's garment to pledge, thou shalt deliver it unto him by that the sun goeth down:

27 For that is his covering only, it is his raiment for his skin: wherein shall he sleep? and it shall come to pass, when he crieth unto me, that I will hear: for I am gracious.

28 ¶ Thou shalt not revile the gods, nor curse the ruler of thy people.

29 ¶ Thou shalt not delay to offer the first of thy ripe fruits, and of thy liquors: the first born of thy sons shalt thou give unto me.

30 Likewise shalt thou do with thine oxen, and with thy sheep: seven days it shall be with his dam; on the eighth day thou shalt give it me.

31 ¶ And ye shall be holy men unto me: neither shall ye eat any flesh that is torn of beasts in the field; ye shall cast it to the dogs.

C H A P. XXIII.

THOU shalt not raise a false report: put not thine hand with the wicked to be an unrighteous witness.

¶ Thou shalt not follow a multitude to do evil; neither shalt thou speak in a cause to decline after many to wrest judgment.

4 ¶ If thou meet thine enemy's ox or his ass going astray, thou shalt surely bring it back to him again.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXII.

We have several instructions in this chapter. The first (which is repeated several times) is, that he who has wronged another, either by theft, cheating, even unwittingly, is obliged to make restitution: that things that have been pledged or deposited with any one, should be faithfully returned. That oaths should be revered: uncleanness and idolatry abominated. God also declares herein, how great a crime it is to oppress widows and strangers, and rigorously to exact our due from the poor; that these sins that cry to God, and provoke him to wrath. Here likewise we learn to speak of magistrates with respect; and the command laid upon the Jews to offer their first-fruits to God, shews that religion and holiness lay under an obligation of devoting some part of those goods that God hath given us, to divine service, and to works of charity.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXIII.

¶ Put not thine hand with the wicked, &c.] i. e. join not with a wicked man to promote, by being a false witness, a bad cause.

2, 3, Thou shalt not follow a multitude, &c.] Notwithstanding the ancient translations support ours, yet the word rabbini, translated "a multitude," is by some supposed to signify, rich and powerful persons; and then the contrast of these two verses will appear with great elegance; for as in the former, the judge is forbid to be biased in favour of the great; so in the latter, he is prohibited to be moved by distresses so as to pervert judgment.

4 If thou meet thine enemy's ox, &c.] Notwithstanding private injuries are sufficient reasons to justify our not treating a man as a friend, or familiar companion, yet they never justify our denying him the common

5 If thou see the ass of him that hateth thee lying under his burden, and wouldst forbear to help him, thou shalt surely help with him.

6 ¶ Thou shalt not wrest the judgment of thy poor in his cause.

7 Keep thee far from a false matter; and the innocent and righteous slay thou not: for I will not justify the wicked.

¶ And thou shalt take no gift: for the gift blindeth the wise, and perverteth the words of the righteous.

9 ¶ Also thou shalt not oppress a stranger: for ye know the heart of a stranger, seeing ye were strangers in the land of Egypt.

10 ¶ And six years thou shalt sow thy land, and shalt gather in the fruits thereof:

11 But the seventh year thou shalt let it rest and lie still; that the poor of thy people may eat: and what they leave, the beasts of the field shall eat. In like manner thou shalt deal with thy vineyard, and with thy oliveyard.

12 ¶ Six days thou shalt do thy work, and on the seventh day thou shalt rest: that thine ox and thine ass may rest, and the son of thy handmaid, and the stranger, may be refreshed.

13 ¶ And in all things that I have said unto you be circumspect: and make no mention of the name of other gods, neither let it be heard out of thy mouth.

14 ¶ Three times thou shalt keep a feast unto me in the year.

15 Thou shalt keep the feast of unleavened bread: (thou shalt eat unleavened bread seven days, as I commanded thee, in the time appointed of the month Abib; for in it thou camest out from Egypt: and none shall appear before me empty:)

16 And the feast of harvest, the first fruits of thy labours, which thou hast sown in thy field: and the feast of ingathering, which is in the end of the year, when thou hast gathered in thy labours out of the field.

17 Three times in the year all thy males shall appear before the LORD God.

18 ¶ Thou shalt not offer the blood of my sacrifice with leavened bread; neither shall the fat of my sacrifice remain until the morning.

19 The first of the firstfruits of thy land thou shalt bring into the house of the LORD thy God. Thou shalt not see the kid in his mother's milk.

20 ¶ Behold, I send an Angel before thee, to keep thee in the way, and to bring thee into the place which I have prepared.

21 Beware of him, and obey his voice, provoke him not; for he will not pardon your transgressions: for my name is in him.

22 ¶ But if thou shalt indeed obey his voice, and do all that I speak; then I will be an enemy unto thine enemies, and an adversary unto thine adversaries.

23 For mine Angel shall go before thee, and bring thee in unto the Amorites, and the Hittites, and the Perizzites, and the Canaanites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites: and I will cut them off.

24 Thou shalt not bow down to their gods, nor serve them, nor do after their works: but thou shalt utterly overthrow them, and quite break down their images.

25 And ye shall serve the LORD your God, and he shall bless thy bread, and thy water; and I will take sickness away from the midst of thee.

26 There shall nothing cast their young, nor be barren in thy land: the number of thy days I will fulfil.

27 I will send my fear before thee, and will destroy all the people to whom thou shalt come, and I will make all thine enemies turn their backs unto thee.

28 And I will send hornets before thee, which shall drive out the Hivite, the Canaanite, and the Hittite, from before thee.

29 I will not drive them out from before thee in one year; lest the land become desolate, and the beast of the field multiply against thee.

30 By little and little I will drive them out from before thee, until thou be increased, and inherit the land.

31 And I will set thy bounds from the Red sea even unto the sea of the Philistines, and from the desert unto the river: for I will deliver the inhabitants of the land into your hands: and thou shalt drive them out before thee.

32 Thou shalt make no covenant with them, nor with their gods.

33 They shall not dwell in thy land, lest they make thee sin against me: for if thou serve their gods, it will surely be a snare unto thee.

common offices of humanity, for this would be a breach of the law of nations. Though we remember a man is not our friend, yet we ought not to forget that he is a man like us.

¶ Let it rest and lie still, &c. This command was in order to beget in them a pious trust to God, and an humble dependence on his providence. It was likewise a curb to avarice, and taught them to exercise humanity towards their slaves and beasts, and shew mercy and liberality to the indigent.

¶ Three times thou shalt make a feast, &c. The feast of the passover, pentecost, and tabernacles, at which three solemn seasons the whole body of the nation assembled.

¶ The feast of harvest, &c. This is also called the feast of weeks, because it was seven weeks after the passover; and pentecost, which in Greek signifies the fiftieth, because it fell on the fiftieth day after the passover.

¶ The feast of ingathering, &c. Which is called the feast of tabernacles, Lev. xxiii. 34.

¶ I send an Angel, &c. Whether this was one of the heavenly orders, who, though superior to mankind, are created, or whether it was Christ, commentators have not ventured to determine; some indeed take the word to be an appellative, and signify only a messenger, and in that sense apply it particularly to Joshua.

¶ Thy bread, and thy water, &c. Which denotes provision of all kinds.

¶ The number of thy days I will fulfil. The number of days here spoken of, is the common period of human life, that time, which was seventy or eighty years, as in Psalm xc. 10.

27 I will send my fear, &c. i. e. I will strike a terror and panic into the inhabitants of Canaan.

28 And I will send hornets before thee, &c. All these words are generally understood metaphorical, though Joshua tells they were literally performed, Joshua xxiv. 12.

33 It will surely be a snare unto thee. i. e. it will be a means of seducing you into idolatry, and will involve you in the punishment due to such crimes.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXIII.

We find in this chapter the five following principal instructions: 1st, To avoid slander and evil reports. 2dly, That judges ought to do justice uprightly, without having respect to persons, and especially without taking any bribes. 3dly, That the Jews should observe the sabbath day, and moreover let the land rest the seventh year; which taught them to trust in God's providence, and to be charitable to the poor, which is a duty, as well as it was that of the Jews. 4thly, That the three solemn feasts of the Israelites were appointed for preserving among them the remembrance of those favours which God had done their nation, which duty of gratitude is also to be practised by us. Lastly, The promise which God made of sending his Angel to bring the Jews into the land of Canaan, and the command he gave them to hearken to the voice of that Angel, and not to provoke him, should be a warning to us, not to provoke the Lord by our disobedience, who is present, and in the midst of us after a particular manner than he was amongst the Jews.

EXPLANATORY

Before
1491.

AND he said unto Moses, Come up unto the LORD, thou, and Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel; and worship ye afar off.

2 And Moses alone shall come near the LORD: but they shall not come nigh; neither shall the people go up with him.

And Moses came and told the people all the words of the LORD, and all the judgments: and all the people answered with one voice, and said, All the words which the LORD hath said will we do.

4 And Moses wrote all the words of the LORD, and rose up early in the morning, and builded an altar under the hill, and twelve pillars, according to the twelve tribes of Israel.

5 And he sent young men of the children of Israel, which offered burnt offerings, and sacrificed peace offerings of oxen unto the LORD.

6 And Moses took half of the blood, and put it in basons; and half of the blood he sprinkled on the altar.

7 And he took the book of the covenant, and read in the audience of the people: and they said, All that the LORD hath said will we do, and be obedient.

8 And Moses took the blood, and sprinkled it on the people, and said, Behold the blood of the covenant, which the LORD hath made with you concerning all these words.

9 Then went up Moses, and Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel;

10 And they saw the God of Israel: and there was under his feet as it were a paved work of sapphire stone, and as it were the body of heaven in his clearness.

11 And upon the nobles of the children of Israel he laid not his hand: also they saw God, and did eat and drink.

12 And the LORD said unto Moses, Come up to me into the mount, and be there: and I will give thee tables of stone, and a law, and commandments which I have written; that thou mayest teach them.

13 And Moses rose up, and his minister Joshua: and Moses went up into the mount of God.

14 And he said unto the elders, Tarry ye here for us, until we come again unto you: and, behold, Aaron and Hur are with you: if any man have any matters to do, let him come unto them.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXIV.

1 Nadab, and Abihu, &c.] The eldest sons of Aaron.

4 All the words.] i. e. The ten commandments, which are called chap. xxxviii. 28. "the ten words."

An altar—and twelve pillars, &c.] This altar was to represent God, the one and chief party in the covenant; and the twelve pillars, the twelve tribes, the other party in the said covenant.

5 Young men.] Who were the eldest sons of the principal families, appointed to the priesthood.

Burnt offerings, and—peace offerings, &c.] Sometimes burnt offerings signify sacrifices in general, but properly only such as were wholly consumed by fire. Peace offerings were made in gratitude for favours received.

8 On the people.] This may be understood of the twelve pillars which represented the people. It is to be observed, that by sprinkling the blood of the sacrifices on both parties, was anciently the way of making covenants.

The blood of the covenant, &c.] The relation between God and the Israelites as their king, their civil magistrate, and their tutelar God arose from their free consent, and is therefore, with great propriety, termed a covenant, both here, and in other places.

10 They saw the God of Israel.] The Jewish and Christian religion both teach, that God is of a spiritual nature, and invisible; we are not therefore to imagine that they saw any visible shape, but only the symbol of the divine majesty, or signs of his glory. Accordingly, the Chaldee expounds it, They saw the glory of the God of Israel.

Under his feet.] i. e. The lower part of the divine appearance, or glory.

A paved work of sapphire stone, and as—the body of heaven in his clearness.] Which signifies the pure azure sky.

11 He laid his hand, &c.] An allusion perhaps to their being exempted from the danger threatened, for too near approach to the mountain, chap. xix.

17 And the sight of the glory of the LORD was like devouring fire on the top of the mount in the eyes of the children of Israel.

18 And Moses went into the midst of the cloud, and gat him up into the mount: and Moses was in the mount forty days and forty nights.

promises, and the covenant between God and the people were confirmed, should induce us to consider, that God having chosen us to be his people, and having made known his will to us, we are indispensibly obliged to keep his laws: that we also solemnly promised him to do it; and that this covenant has been confirmed, as St. Paul says, not with the blood of calves or goats, but by the blood of Jesus Christ, who offered himself up to God a sacrifice without spot or blemish, that he might purify our consciences from dead works to serve the living God. From whence we may conclude, that they who shall break this commandment must expect terrible punishments.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXV.

2 An offering, &c.] This word in the Hebrew signifies An heave-offering; it is likewise used for something separated and given to the Creator.

4 Scarlet.] It is in Hebrew the worm of scarlet; because in dying that colour they made use of those insects.

Goats' hair.] Which hair is in vast esteem in the oriental countries, and preferred very much before either the wool of sheep or lambs.

5 Badgers' skins.] It is imagined that a badger is pronounced by the law to be an unclean beast, this cannot be the meaning of the word tichassem; some therefore render it, Rams' skins, of a red, and of a purple colour; and this is supported by the Vulgate, Septuagint, and the Samaritan. We read in the Arabic Plack skins.

Shittim wood.] Which is generally thought to be the wood of the cedar-tree; though some think it rather the wood of a certain tree which grows common in some part of the wilderness, and resembles the acacia of Egypt.

10 An ark.] This is a chest or coffer, overlaid with gold. It was called, "the ark of the covenant," being the symbol of the covenant which God made with his people, and contained the two tables, the pot of manna, and Aaron's miraculous rod.

Two cubits and a half, &c.] i. e. About four feet five inches long, and two feet six inches high and broad.

11 A crown of gold round about.] That is, a cornice, or rich moulding of massy gold, to go round the top of it.

16 Testimony

Before

12 And thou shalt cast four rings of gold for it, and put them in the four corners thereof; and two rings shall be in the one side of it, and two rings in the other side of it.

13 And thou shalt make staves of shittim wood, and overlay them with gold.

14 And thou shalt put the staves into the rings by the sides of the ark, that the ark may be borne with them.

15 The staves shall be in the rings of the ark: they shall not be taken from it.

16 And thou shalt put into the ark the testimony which I shall give thee.

17 ¶ And thou shalt make a mercy seat of pure gold: two cubits and a half shall be the length thereof, and a cubit and a half the breadth thereof.

18 And thou shalt make two cherubims of gold, of beaten work shalt thou make them, in the two ends of the mercy seat.

19 And make one cherub on the one end, and the other cherub on the other end: even of the mercy seat shall ye make the cherubims on the two ends thereof.

20 And the cherubims shall stretch forth their wings on high, covering the mercy seat with their wings, and their faces shall look one to another; toward the mercy seat shall the faces of the cherubims be.

21 And thou shalt put the mercy seat above upon the ark; and in the ark thou shalt put the testimony that I shall give thee.

22 And there I will meet with thee, and I will commune with thee from above the mercy seat, from between the two cherubims which are upon the ark of the testimony: of all things which I shall give thee in commandment unto the children of Israel.

23 ¶ Thou shalt also make a table of shittim wood: two cubits shall be the length thereof, and a cubit the breadth thereof, and a cubit and a half the height thereof.

24 And thou shalt overlay it with pure gold, and make thereto a crown of gold round about.

25 And thou shalt make unto it a border of an hand breadth round about, and thou shalt make a golden crown to the border thereof round about.

26 And thou shalt make for it four rings of gold, and put the rings in the four corners that are on the four feet thereof.

27 Over against the border shall the rings be for places of the staves to bear the table.

28 And thou shalt make the staves of shittim wood, and overlay them with gold, that the table may be borne with them.

16 Testimony, &c.] i. e. The tables of the law.

27 A mercy seat, &c.] It was here the Shekinah generally be-[] visible; it was of beaten gold, and fixed, with the cherubims that overshadowed it, in a frame, [] as Moses describes it, a crown of [] oblong square form, which inclosed the upper part of the ark in the nature of a rim.

18 Two cherubims of gold, &c.] It appears from this general description of Moses, these cherubims were human figures, with wings stretched out, covering the mercy seat, and, [] it may be reasonably concluded, in a bowing posture. These represented the angels which stand before the celestial glory; [] the sanctuary did heaven, and the mercy seat the throne of the Almighty.

22 There I will meet with, &c.] It [] from this part of the sanctuary the oracles were sometimes delivered [] Moses in [] audible voice, Numb. vi. 39. Hitherto the description is limited to the holy of holies; what follows relates to the principal furniture of the holy place, or outward part.

30 Shewbread, &c.] That is, the bread of presence, set before God's presence continually.

31 And thou shalt make a candlestick of pure gold.] The branches of this candlestick were placed [] equal distances, adorned with six flowers like lilies, as many knobs resembling apples, and also little bowls like half almond shells; these were placed alternate and equidistant; upon each of the branches there was a golden lamp, which was lighted every evening, and extinguished every morning.

No. 8.

29 And thou shalt make the dishes thereof, and spoons thereof, and covers thereof, and bowls thereof, to cover withal: of pure gold shalt thou make them.

30 And thou shalt set upon the table shewbread before me alway.

31 ¶ And thou shalt make a candlestick of pure gold: of beaten work shall the candlestick be made: his shaft, and his branches, his bowls, his knobs, and his flowers, shall be of the same.

32 And six branches shall come out of the sides of it; three branches of the candlestick out of the one side, and three branches of the candlestick out of the other side;

33 Three bowls made like unto almonds, with a knop and a flower on one branch; and three bowls made like almonds in the other branch, with a knop and a flower: so in the six branches that come out of the candlestick.

34 And in the candlestick shall be four bowls made like unto almonds, with their knobs and their flowers.

35 And there shall be a knop under two branches of the same, and a knop under two branches of the same, and a knop under two branches of the same, according to the six branches that proceed out of the candlestick.

36 Their knobs and their branches shall be of the same: all of it shall be one beaten work of pure gold.

37 And thou shalt make the seven lamps thereof: and they shall light the lamps thereof, that they may give light over against it.

38 And the tongs thereof, and the snuffdishes thereof, shall be of pure gold.

39 Of a talent of pure gold shall he make it, with all these vessels.

37 They shall light the lamps thereof.] The lighting of lamps in religious worship was also a custom of Egypt.

39 A talent of pure gold, &c.] Every talent contained three thousand shekels, or five thousand four hundred and sixty-four pounds sterling.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS CHAP. XXV.

From God's being so particular in prescribing a form of worship for the Israelites, [] to understand, that [] all times we must be decent and orderly in [] approaches to him. As the ceremonial law had a splendid appearance; we must learn, that [] works of obedience must, on all occasions, shine with the most conspicuous lustre. As God commanded that a tabernacle [] should be built for the regular performance of divine service, we must observe, that it is our duty to build places for his worship, according to the rules prescribed in the gospel. And as those things were calculated only for the use of the people while they sojourned in the wilderness; let [] learn that we have [] fixed abode here, and be seeking after that everlasting haven of rest, which God has promised [] all who love him.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXVI.

1 Moreover thou shalt make the tabernacle.] Tabernacle in the Hebrew signifies A tent; this sacred place was therefore to be constructed in such a manner, [] to be easily set up, and taken down; which was necessary, on account of their frequent marches.

14 And

Before CHRIST 1491. 3 The five curtains shall be coupled together one to another; and other five curtains shall be coupled one to another.

4 And thou shalt make loops of blue upon the edge of the curtain from the feldge in the coupling; and likewise shalt thou make in the uttermost edge of another curtain, in the coupling of the second.

5 Fifty loops shalt thou make in the one curtain, and fifty loops shalt thou make in the edge of the curtain that is in the coupling of the second; that the loops may take hold one of another.

6 And thou shalt make fifty taches of gold, and couple the curtains together with the taches: and it shall be one tabernacle.

7 ¶ And thou shalt make curtains of goats' hair to be covering upon the tabernacle: eleven curtains shalt thou make.

8 The length of one curtain shall be thirty cubits, and the breadth of one curtain four cubits: and the eleven curtains shall be all of one measure.

9 And thou shalt couple five curtains by themselves, and six curtains by themselves, and shalt double the sixth curtain in the forefront of the tabernacle.

10 And thou shalt make fifty loops on the edge of the one curtain that is outmost in the coupling, and fifty loops in the edge of the curtain which coupleth the second.

11 And thou shalt make fifty taches of brass, and put the taches into the loops, and couple the tent together, that it may be one.

12 And the remnant that remaineth of the curtains of the tent, the half curtain that remaineth, shall hang over the backside of the tabernacle.

13 And a cubit on the one side, and a cubit on the other side of that which remaineth in the length of the curtains of the tent, it shall hang over the sides of the tabernacle on this side and on that side, to cover it.

14 ¶ And thou shalt make a covering for the tent of rams' skins dyed red, and a covering above of badgers' skins.

15 ¶ And thou shalt make boards for the tabernacle of shittim wood standing up.

16 Ten cubits shall be the length of a board, and a cubit and a half shall be the breadth of one board.

17 Two tenons shall there be in one board, set in order one against another: thus shalt thou make for all the boards of the tabernacle.

18 And thou shalt make the boards for the tabernacle, twenty boards on the south side southward.

19 And thou shalt make forty sockets of silver under the twenty boards; two sockets under one board for his two tenons, and two sockets under another board for his two tenons.

20 And for the second side of the tabernacle on the north side there shall be twenty boards:

21 And their forty sockets of silver; two sockets under one board, and two sockets under another board.

And thou shalt make a covering, &c.] The tabernacle had three different sorts of coverings; ■ on the outside, made of fine linen, curiously embroidered in various colours of crimson, scarlet, purple, and hyacinth; another of goats' hair, neatly woven; and a third of badgers' skins, some dyed red, and some ■ azure blue; these were to preserve the rich curtains from wet, and the tabernacle itself from the injuries of the weather.

18. Twenty boards on the south side southward.] Each board being about thirty ■ inches broad, the whole length of the tabernacle must have been about seven yards and a half. The Septuagint render the word we have translated "boards," Pillars, which seems to be the true reading, by St. Paul's allusion, 1 Tim. iii. 5.

31. Thou shalt make a veil, &c.] Which veil divided the tabernacle into two parts, and separated the holy from the most holy place; it was adorned with cherubims, festoons, and other ornaments, curiously embroidered upon it.

33. The most holy.] In the New Testament this place is made ■ figure of heaven, into which Christ our high-priest is entered, as our fore-runner.

34. Thou shalt put the mercy seat upon the ark of the testimony in the most holy place.] The tabernacle ■ a type of our Redeemer dwelling in our nature: the mercy-seat, placed upon the ark of the testimony, was an emblem of him from whose mouth we received a law founded 22 And for the sides of the tabernacle westward thou shalt make six boards. Before CHRIST 1491.

23 And two boards shalt thou make for the corners of the tabernacle in the two sides.

24 And they shall be coupled together beneath, and they shall be coupled together above the head of it unto one ring: thus shall it be for them both: they shall be for the two corners.

25 And they shall be eight boards, and their sockets of silver, sixteen sockets; two sockets under one board, and two sockets under another board.

26 And thou shalt make bars of shittim wood; five for the boards of the one side of the tabernacle, 27 And five bars for the boards of the other side of the tabernacle, and five bars for the boards of the side of the tabernacle, for the two sides westward.

28 And the middle bar in the midst of the boards shall reach from end to end.

29 And thou shalt overlay the boards with gold, and make their rings of gold for places for the bars: and thou shalt overlay the bars with gold.

30 And thou shalt rear up the tabernacle according to the fashion thereof which was shewed thee in the mount.

31 And thou shalt make a veil of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen of cunning work ■ with cherubims shall it be made:

32 And thou shalt hang it upon four pillars of shittim wood overlaid with gold: their hooks shall be of gold, upon the four sockets of silver.

33 And thou shalt hang up the veil under the taches, that thou mayest bring in thither within the veil the ark of the testimony: and the veil shall divide unto you between the holy place and the most holy.

34 And thou shalt put the mercy seat upon the ark of the testimony in the most holy place.

35 And thou shalt set the table without the veil, and the candlestick over against the table on the side of the tabernacle toward the south: and thou shalt put the table on the north side.

36 ¶ And thou shalt make an hanging for the door of the tent, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen, wrought with needlework.

37 And thou shalt make for the hanging five pillars of shittim wood, and overlay them with gold, and their hooks shall be of gold: and thou shalt cast five sockets of brass for them.

C H A P. XXVII.

1 The altar of burnt offering with the vessels thereof.

9 The court of the tabernacle inclosed with hangings and pillars. 18 The measure of the court, and the furniture of brass. 20 The oil for the lamp.

AND thou shalt make an altar of shittim wood, five cubits long, and five cubits broad; the altar shall be foursquare: and the height thereof shall be three cubits.

2 And

upon better promises, by whose intercession we have access, with boldness, to the throne of grace; and whose satisfaction is our true propitiatory, or mercy-seat.

36 The door of the tent, &c.] The ark and mercy-seat were placed at the west end of the tabernacle, so that the door fronted the east; and the Israelites, in worshipping the great Jehovah, turned their faces towards the west, and from the sun, the idol of the neighbouring nations.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXVI.

Let ■ observe, that ■ the tabernacle was often removed from ■ place to another, so will the church of Christ; for God will remove the gospel from those people who make an improper use of it. Let ■ learn, that as the service of the tabernacle was to last no longer than the death of Christ; so when the end of his coming is answered, he will appear ■ second time unto salvation.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXVII.

1 And thou shalt make an altar of shittim wood.] If it be asked, how it was possible to prevent the burning of the altar, by reason of the continual fire, it may be answered, that the top, with its crown ■ frame, was fixed so ■ to be ■ some small distance above the wood of the altar.

2 And

Before CHRIST 1491. 2 And thou shalt make the horns of it upon the four corners thereof: his horns shall be of the same: and thou shalt overlay it with bras.

3 And thou shalt make his pans to receive his ashes, and his shovels, and his basons, and his flesh-hooks, and his fire pans: all the vessels thereof thou shalt make of bras.

4 And thou shalt make for it a grate of network of bras; and upon the net thou shalt make four brasen rings in the four corners thereof.

5 And thou shalt put it under the compass of the altar beneath, that the net may be even to the midst of the altar.

6 And thou shalt make staves for the altar, staves of shittim wood, and overlay them with bras.

7 And the staves shall be put into the rings, and the staves shall be upon the two sides of the altar, to bear it.

8 Hollow with boards shalt thou make it: ■ it was shewed thee in the mount, so shall they make it.

■ ¶ And thou shalt make the court of the tabernacle: for the south side southward there shall be hangings for the court of fine twined linen of an hundred cubits long for one side:

10 And the twenty pillars thereof and their twenty sockets shall be of bras; the hooks of the pillars and their fillets shall be of silver.

11 And likewise for the north side in length there shall be hangings of an hundred cubits long, and his twenty pillars and their twenty sockets of bras; the hooks of the pillars and their fillets of silver.

12 And for the breadth of the court on the west side shall be hangings of fifty cubits: their pillars ten, and their sockets ten.

13 And the breadth of the court on the east side eastward shall be fifty cubits.

14 The hangings of one side of the gate shall be fifteen cubits: their pillars three, and their sockets three.

15 And on the other side shall be hangings fifteen cubits: their pillars three, and their sockets three.

16 And for the gate of the court shall be an hanging of twenty cubits, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen, wrought with needlework: and their pillars shall be four, and their sockets four.

2 And thou shalt make the horns of it, &c.] We are to understand by "Horns" little pyramids, or spires, made out of the same wood with the altar, and placed ■ at each corner; their use was, both to tie the sacrifice to, and also to keep the wood from falling off. It was customary for those who fled to the altar for refuge, ■ lay hold of these horns.

3 Basons] Which were to receive the blood of the sacrifice. Flesh hooks] Or forks, for taking up the pieces of sacrifice, in order to lay them right ■ the fire.

9 Court of the tabernacle] Which ■ or court-yard without any covering, inclosed with hangings, and supported by pillars overlaid with silver; towards the upper end stood the tabernacle, between which and the entrance, ■ placed the altar of burnt offerings, in the open air, that so the smoke might not soil the inside of the tabernacle. Thus the habitation of God ■ divided into three parts; the outward court, which ■ in the open view of all; the holy place, which received light from the seven lamps of the golden candlestick; and the holy of holies, which had no external light, but the presence of God rested on the mercy seat between the cherubims.

An hundred cubits long, &c.] i. e. About fifty-eight yards.

18 And the height five cubits, &c.] i. e. Near five yards; so that the tabernacle, which was almost ■ high again as the inclosure, might easily be seen by the people.

20 Pure oil olive] i. e. Such ■ runs freely from the olives ■ being bruised.

To burn always] Three of the lamps were kept burning by day, and the remainder were lighted in the evening. This was not only necessary on account of the darkness of the holy place, but was likewise typical of the constant vigilance and preparation necessary in this life of probation and uncertainty. This is beautifully alluded to in the parable of the wife and foolish virgins, Matt. xxv.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXVII.

First, By the fire being continually burning on the altar, we may learn, that the fear and love of God should be continually kept alive in our hearts. Secondly, By the lamp being kept burning 17 All the pillars round about the court shall be filleted with silver; their hooks shall be of silver, and their sockets of bras. Before CHRIST 1491.

18 ¶ The length of the court shall be an hundred cubits, and the breadth fifty every where, and the height five cubits of fine twined linen, and their sockets of bras.

19 All the vessels of the tabernacle in all the service thereof, and all the pins thereof, and all the pins of the court, shall be of bras.

20 ¶ And thou shalt command the children of Israel, that they bring thee pure oil olive beaten for the light, to cause the lamp to burn always.

21 In the tabernacle of the congregation without the veil, which is before the testimony, Aaron and his sons shall order it from evening to morning before the LORD: it shall be a statute for ever unto their generations on the behalf of the children of Israel.

2 ¶ And thou shalt make holy garments for Aaron thy brother for glory and for beauty.

3 And thou shalt speak unto all that are wise hearted, whom I have filled with the spirit of wisdom, that they may make Aaron's garments to consecrate him, that he may minister unto ■ in the priest's office.

4 And these are the garments which they shall make; ■ breastplate, and an ephod, and a robe, and a brodered coat, ■ mitre, and a girdle: and they shall make holy garments for Aaron thy brother, and his sons, that he may minister unto me in the priest's office.

And further, that God would have us, in all afflictions, and in the whole of our conduct, to be as lamps burning in a dark day. Let ministers of the gospel, in a more immediate manner, attend to this; because whatever darkness may be in the world, they are, by their precept and example, to give light.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXVIII.

2 Holy garments, &c.] Which ■ were permitted to wear but the priests, and by them only at such times as they ministered before God.

3 Wise-hearted, whom I have filled with the spirit of wisdom, &c.] This ■ the usual term to express skilful artists, not only in the Hebrew, but in other dead languages. God dispenses divers gifts and endowments to different people; and mechanical ingenuity is to be ascribed to God as the author, who forms the mind with all its powers; for from him cometh every good and perfect gift.

4 A breast plate] Where the ephod crossed the high-priest's breast, there ■ square ornament called the breast-plate, or pectoral; it was set with twelve precious stones in gold in four rows, three in each row, with the names of the twelve tribes engraven, on each stone one. The whole ■ fastened to the ephod at four corners; the top by ■ golden hook or ring, ■ the end of ■ wreathed chain ■ each shoulder-piece; the bottom, to the girdle of the ephod, by two blue strings or ribbons, having likewise two rings or hooks.

An ephod] Which ■ a kind of square cloak, about two feet in length, hanging down from the shoulders, curiously wrought with gold, and other variegated embroidery; on the top, on each side, were two shoulder-pieces, to which were fastened two precious stones, set in gold, upon which ■ engraven the names of the twelve tribes, six on each stone.

A robe] Which ■ a long garment made of blue cloth, hanging down to the heels; it ■ fashioned like a surplice, the skirts wrought with blue, purple, and scarlet yarn, in the shape of pomegranates, between each of which hung a bell of gold.

5 And they shall take gold, and blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen.

6 ¶ And they shall make the ephod of gold, of blue, and of purple, of scarlet, and fine twined linen, with cunning work.

7 It shall have the two shoulder pieces thereof joined at the two edges thereof; and so it shall be joined together.

8 And the curious girdle of the ephod, which is upon it, shall be of the same, according to the work thereof; even of gold, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen.

9 And thou shalt take two onyx stones, and grave on them the names of the children of Israel:

10 Six of their names on one stone, and the other six ~~names~~ of the rest on the other stone, according to their birth.

11 With the work of an engraver in stone, like the engravings of a signet, shalt thou engrave the two stones with the names of the children of Israel: thou shalt make them to be set in ouches of gold.

12 And thou shalt put the two stones upon the shoulders of the ephod for stones of memorial unto the children of Israel: and Aaron shall bear the names before the Lord upon his two shoulders for a memorial.

13 And thou shalt make ouches of gold;

14 And two chains of pure gold at the ends; of wreathen work shalt thou make them, and fasten the wreathen chains to the ouches.

15 ¶ And thou shalt make the breastplate of judgment with cunning work; after the work of the ephod thou shalt make it; of gold, of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet, and of fine twined linen shalt thou make it.

16 Four square it shall be being doubled; a span shall be the length thereof, and a span shall be the breadth thereof.

17 And thou shalt set in it settings of stones, even four rows of stones: the first row shall be a sardius, a topaz, and a carbuncle: this shall be the first row.

18 And the second row shall be an emerald, a sapphire, and a diamond.

19 And the third row a ligure, an agate, and an amethyst.

20 And the fourth row a beryl, and an onyx, and a jasper: they shall be set in gold in their inclosings.

21 And the stones shall be with the names of the children of Israel, twelve, according to their names, like the engravings of a signet; every one with his name shall they be according to the twelve tribes.

22 And thou shalt make upon the breastplate chains at the ends of wreathen work of pure gold.

23 And thou shalt make upon the breastplate two rings of gold, and shalt put the two rings on the two ends of the breastplate.

24 And thou shalt put the two wreathen chains of gold in the two rings which are on the ends of the breastplate.

25 And the other two ends of the two wreathen chains thou shalt fasten in the two ouches, and put them on the shoulder pieces of the ephod before it.

26 And thou shalt make two rings of gold, and thou shalt put them upon the two ends of the breastplate in the border thereof, which is in the side of the ephod inward.

27 And two other rings of gold thou shalt make, and shalt put them on the two sides of the ephod underneath, toward the forepart thereof, over against the other coupling thereof, above the curious girdle of the ephod.

28 And they shall bind the breastplate by the rings thereof unto the rings of the ephod with a lace of blue, that it may be above the curious girdle of the ephod, and that the breastplate be not loosed from the ephod.

29 And Aaron shall bear the names of the children of Israel in the breastplate of judgment upon his heart, when he goeth in unto the holy place, for a memorial before the Lord continually.

30 ¶ And thou shalt put in the breastplate of judgment the Urim and the Thummim; and they shall be upon Aaron's heart, when he goeth in before the Lord: and Aaron shall bear the judgment of the children of Israel upon his heart before the Lord continually.

31 ¶ And thou shalt make the robe of the ephod all of blue.

32 And there shall be an hole in the top of it, in the midst thereof: it shall have a binding of woven work round about the hole of it, as it were the hole of an habergeon, that it be not rent.

33 And beneath upon the hem of it thou shalt make pomegranates of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet, round about the hem thereof; and bells of gold between them round about:

34 A golden bell and a pomegranate, a golden bell and

A brodered coat] It is in Hebrew, A coat with eyes; whence some imagine that it had eyes or spangles, varied with little holes. This was the undermost garment, not much unlike a shirt; it was made of fine linen, embroidered, stuck pretty close to the body, and likewise reached to the heels.

A mitre] Which was made of fine linen; it covered the head, and upon the forehead there was a plate of gold, whereon were engraven these words, "Holiness to the Lord;" and this was tied behind the head with two ribbons, fastened to its two ends.

And a girdle] Which was made of gold thread, and others of different colours; it was brought from behind the neck, and over the two shoulders, then put cross upon the stomach, carried round the waist, and brought back again about the body, where it girded the tunic like a fash, and so fell down before, hanging low as the feet.

11 Like the engraving of a signet] That is, en creux, or hollow like the impression of a seal. As the engraving in stone is an affair of some difficulty, and was one of the latter inventions of luxury, we may from hence guess the high antiquity of the polite arts in Egypt, from whom the Jews, or the artificers at this time employed by them, had certainly borrowed them.

Set in ouches of gold] The word "ouch" was originally used to express a spangle, or glittering ornament, made of small plates of gold and silver, and of sparks, when applied to jewels.

17 A sardius] This is a precious stone of a red flaming colour, semi-pellucid, or half transparent, and sometimes with a yellow cast in it. Our modern jewellers call it a cornelian.

A topaz] This is a transparent stone, and of a most beautiful yellow or gold colour.

A carbuncle] This is a species of ruby, of a glowing red colour, and is surnamed from "carbo" an hot coal.

18 An emerald] This gem is of a most lively green, transparent, and free from the least mixture of any other colour.

A sapphire] This is of a fine blue colour.

A diamond] This gem is esteemed above all others, on account of its superior lustre and hardness.

19 A ligure] This is generally thought to be a kind of jacinth, nearly of the colour of amber.

An agate] This is partly transparent, and partly opaque, for the most part variegated with veins, and disposed in a very elegant manner.

An amethyst] This is a precious stone of a violet colour, bordering on purple, or nearly the colour of red wine.

20 A beryl] This is a gem of a pale green, generally known by the name of aqua marina, from its resemblance to sea water in colour.

An onyx] The ground of this gem resembles an human nail in colour, from whence it derives its name; it is variegated in a very regular manner with zones of a brown colour.

A jasper, &c.] This is generally of a green colour, speckled with yellow, brown, white, and blue.

30 The Urim and the Thummim] We have various opinions concerning the true meaning of these words; but the most probable appears to be this, That when Moses was commanded to put into the breast-plate the Urim and Thummim, i. e. lights and perfections, it implied, that he should choose the most precious set of stones, and cause them to be polished in the most elegant manner, in order to increase their natural lustre. What we read, ver. 30, confirms this conjecture, where after God had given particular directions for making the breast-plate, he adds, "And thou shalt put in the breast-plate of judgment the Urim and Thummim," which, when literally translated, runs thus: And thou shalt give to the breast-plate of judgment those lights and perfections, viz. of the twelve stones.

They shall be upon Aaron's heart, when he goeth in before the Lord] The manner in which God was consulted by Urim and Thummim, hath been variously conjectured: it seems to have been in the following manner: the high-priest presented himself with his breast-plate on, over all his other robes, and stood opposite the mercy-seat, where the Shekinah, or visible glory rested, and then God gave him answers from thence with an audible voice, as he did to Moses.

The judgment, &c.] i. e. The breast-plate of judgment.

Before CHRIST 1491. and a pomegranate, upon the hem of the robe round about.

35 And it shall be upon Aaron to minister: and his sound shall be heard when he goeth in unto the holy place before the LORD, and when he cometh out, that he die not.

36 ¶ And thou shalt make a plate of pure gold, and grave upon it, like the engravings of a signet, HOLINESS TO THE LORD.

37 And thou shalt put it on a blue lace, that it may be upon the mitre; upon the forefront of the mitre it shall be.

38 And it shall be upon Aaron's forehead, that Aaron may bear the iniquity of the holy things, which the children of Israel shall hallow in all their holy gifts; and it shall be always upon his forehead, that they may be accepted before the LORD.

39 ¶ And thou shalt embroider the coat of fine linen, and thou shalt make the mitre of fine linen, and thou shalt make the girdle of needle-work.

40 ¶ And for Aaron's sons thou shalt make coats, and thou shalt make for them girdles, and bonnets thou shalt make for them, for glory and for beauty.

41 And thou shalt put them upon Aaron thy brother, and his sons with him; and shalt anoint them, and consecrate them, and sanctify them, that they may minister unto me in the priest's office.

42 And thou shalt make them linen breeches to cover their nakedness; from the loins even unto the thighs they shall reach.

43 And they shall be upon Aaron, and upon his sons, when they come in unto the tabernacle of the congregation, or when they come near unto the altar to minister into the holy place; that they bear not iniquity, and die: it shall be a statute for ever unto him and his seed after him.

35 His sound shall be heard when he goeth in, &c.] We are not told what the number of bells are, only their use. When the high-priest was going into the sanctuary, he wore these little bells on the hem of his robe, as well to give notice to the people to prepare and fix their attention, as out of respect to the divine presence, residing in the sanctum sanctorum, or holy of holies; first desiring, as it were, permission to enter, and that he might not, for an unbecomingly intrusion, be punished with death.

36 HOLINESS TO THE LORD.] Which motto could not fail to remind the priest, that he was consecrated to Jehovah, the great God of all the world.

38 That Aaron may bear the iniquity of the holy things, &c.] i. e. That he may obtain pardon for the omissions and deficiencies of the people, in their performance of religious duties, &c.

40 Bonnets, &c.] We have in this particular an instance wherein the Jewish habit was ordained in opposition to that of the Egyptians; for the Egyptian priests ministered always bareheaded, but the Jewish had their heads covered.

42 Linen breeches, &c.] Which was in opposition to the unchaste ritual of the neighbouring nations, who, in their adoration of Baal-peor, were guilty of several indecencies.

43 A statute for ever, &c.] i. e. as long as the Jewish state shall continue, or there shall be any priesthood of the order of Aaron, they shall appear before God in these garments.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXVIII.

From the particular care that was taken of the sacrifices, we may learn first, That God would have us, in all places of worship, to have the ordinances so conducted, as to make a lasting impression on our mind. Secondly, From the grand appearance that the robes of the high-priest made, let us learn, that in our whole conduct in life our light should so shine before men, that others seeing our good works, may glorify our Father who is in heaven. Lastly, by holiness the Lord being inscribed on the breast-plate, let us learn that we should carry along with us, not only holiness of heart through life, but we should keep a holy jealousy over all

9 And thou shalt gird them with girdles, Aaron, and his sons, and put the bonnets on them: and the priest's office shall be their's for a perpetual statute: and thou shalt consecrate Aaron and his sons.

10 And thou shalt cause a bullock to be brought before the tabernacle of the congregation: and Aaron and his sons shall put their hands upon the head of the bullock.

11 And thou shalt kill the bullock before the LORD, by the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

12 And thou shalt take of the blood of the bullock, and put it upon the horns of the altar with thy finger, and pour all the blood beside the bottom of the altar.

13 And thou shalt take all the fat that covereth the inwards, and the caul that is above the liver, and the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, and burn them upon the altar.

14 But the flesh of the bullock, and his skin, and his dung, shalt thou burn with fire without the camp: it is a sin offering.

15 Thou shalt also take one ram; and Aaron and his sons shall put their hands upon the head of the ram.

16 And thou shalt slay the ram, and thou shalt take his blood, and sprinkle it round about upon the altar.

17 And thou shalt cut the ram in pieces, and wash the inwards of him, and his legs, and put them unto his pieces, and unto his head.

18 And thou shalt burn the whole ram upon the altar.

our actions, and on every occasion take care not to offend, lest we bring upon ourselves the displeasure of God.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXIX.

1 And this is the thing, &c.] In this chapter, we have a succinct account of the manner of consecrating the Jewish priests, the ceremonies of which were doubtless in order to give them and the people a deep sense of the sacredness of their office. The high priest was a manifest type of Jesus Christ, our great high-priest, who is gone into the heavens, there to appear before God, and make intercession for us, as is fully and sublimely explained by St. Paul, Heb. vii.

4 And shalt wash them with water.] This was an ancient ceremony, for ablution was observed in acts of worship as an emblem of inward purity.

5 Thou shalt take the garments, &c.] A typical representation that after the priests had by spiritual washing purified themselves from sin, they were to be clothed with the garments of righteousness, of which the holy vestments were types or symbols. Psalm cxxxii. 9, 16.

6 The holy crown] i. e. The golden plate, upon which was engraved, Holiness to the Lord.

10 Shalt put their hands upon the head of the bullock] Denoting by this that they disburdened themselves of their sins, and laid them upon the head of the sacrifice to be killed. This prefigured Christ the great sacrifice, upon whom was laid the iniquity of all people.

Tabernacle of the congregation, &c.] It is in the Hebrew, Tabernacle of the meeting; so called, because the people met or assembled there to perform their religious duties.

13 All the fat, &c.] i. e. the omentum, or caul; it might typically represent the necessity of mortifying all those vices which stupify and deaden the soul; or teach the necessity of giving God the best of our substance.

14 Without the camp, &c.] This intimated, that the guilt of sin was carried out far from the people. So Christ suffered without the gate.

15 Thou shalt take one ram, &c.] Heifers, rams, and goats, were esteemed sacred animals, because in symbolic hieroglyphics they were used

Before altar : it is a burnt offering unto the LORD : it is a sweet savour, ■■ offering made by fire unto the LORD.

CHRIST 1491.

19 And thou shalt take the other ram ; and Aaron and his sons shall put their hands upon the head of the ram.

20 Then shalt thou kill the ram, and take of his blood, and put it upon the tip of the right ear of Aaron, and upon the tip of the right ear of his sons, and upon the thumb of their right hand, and upon the great toe of their right foot, and sprinkle the blood upon the altar round about.

21 And thou shalt take of the blood that is upon the altar, and of the anointing oil, and sprinkle it upon Aaron, and upon his garments, and upon his sons, and upon the garments of his sons with him : and he shall be hallowed, and his garments, and his sons, and his sons' garments with him.

■ Also thou shalt take of the ram the fat and the rump, and the fat that covereth the inwards, and the caul above the liver, and the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, and the right shoulder ; for it is a ram of consecration :

23 And one loaf of bread, and one cake of oiled bread, and one wafer out of the basket of the unleavened bread that is before the LORD :

24 And thou shalt put all in the hands of Aaron, and in the hands of his sons ; and shalt wave them for a wave-offering before the LORD.

25 And thou shalt receive them of their hands, and burn them upon the altar for ■ burnt offering, for ■ sweet savour before the LORD : it is an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

26 And thou shalt take the breast of the ram of Aaron's consecration, and wave it for a wave offering before the LORD : and it shall be thy part.

27 And thou shalt sanctify the breast of the wave offering, and the shoulder of the heave offering, which is waved, and which is heaved up, of the ram of the consecration, even of that which is for Aaron, and of that which is for his sons :

28 And it shall be Aaron's and his sons' by a statute for ever from the children of Israel : for it is an heave offering : and it shall be an heave offering from the children of Israel of the sacrifice of their peace offerings, even their heave offering unto the LORD.

29 And the holy garments of Aaron shall be his son's after him, to be anointed therein, and to be consecrated in them.

30 And that son that is priest in his stead shall put them on seven days, when he cometh into the tabernacle of the congregation to minister in the holy place.

31 And thou shalt take the ram of the consecration, and seethe his flesh in the holy place.

32 And Aaron and his sons shall eat the flesh of the ram, and the bread that is in the basket, by the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

33 And they shall eat those things wherewith the used to represent some deity ; the picture of the ■■ at first, and the living animal in process of time, were peculiarly worshipped at Thebes ; and in opposition ■ this species of idolatry, this command was probably given them.

20 Put it upon the tip of the right ear, &c.] In scripture, the ■■ is used, ■ the symbol of obedience, the hand of action, and the foot as the symbol of the path or conduct of life ; the priests were therefore taught by this ceremony to apply their ears diligently ■ the study of the law, to employ their hands with the like diligence in the work of the sacred ministry, and to direct their feet to walk according to the commandments of God.

27 The wave offering, and—the heave offering, &c.] These phrases "wave" and "heave" ■■ used to denote any offering whatever ; however, the rabbins made ■ distinction, and tell us, that the first ■■ waved up and down, east, west, north, and south ; to signify that God was the Lord of the earth ■ well as the heavens ; the last was only lifted up towards heaven, in token of its being devoted to God.

30 Shall put them on seven days, &c.] i. e. the seven days of consecration, before he entered upon his office, during which time the priests were not ■ stir from the door of the tabernacle by night ■ by day. It is worthy of remark, that the number "seven" is much regarded in sacred matters. The blood of the atonement was sprinkled before the mercy-seat seven times ; the consecrating oil was atonement was made, to consecrate and to sanctify them : but a stranger shall not eat thereof, because they are holy.

Before CHRIST 1491.

34 And if aught of the flesh of the consecrations, or of the bread, remain unto the morning, then thou shalt burn the remainder with fire : it shall not be eaten, because it is holy.

35 And thus shalt thou do unto Aaron, and to his sons, according to all things which I have commanded thee : seven days shalt thou consecrate them.

36 And thou shalt offer every day ■ bullock for a sin offering for atonement : and thou shalt cleanse the altar, when thou hast made an atonement for it, and thou shalt anoint it, to sanctify it.

37 Seven days thou shalt make an atonement for the altar, and sanctify it ; and it shall be ■ altar most holy : whatsoever toucheth the altar shall be holy.

38 ¶ Now this is that which thou shalt offer upon the altar ; two lambs of the first year day by day continually.

39 The one lamb thou shalt offer in the morning ; and the other lamb thou shalt offer at even :

40 And with the one lamb ■ tenth deal of flour mingled with the fourth part of an hin of beaten oil ; and the fourth part of an hin of wine for a drink offering.

41 And the other lamb thou shalt offer at even, and shalt do thereto according to the meat offering of the morning, and according to the drink offering thereof, for ■ sweet savour, ■■ offering made by fire unto the LORD.

42 This shall be a continual burnt offering throughout your generations at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation before the LORD : where I will meet you, to speak there unto thee.

43 ¶ And there I will meet with the children of Israel, and the tabernacle shall be sanctified by my glory.

44 And I will sanctify the tabernacle of the congregation, and the altar : I will sanctify also both Aaron and his sons, to minister to me in the priest's office.

45 And I will dwell among the children of Israel, and will be their God.

46 And they shall know that I am the LORD their God, that brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, that I may dwell among them : I am the LORD their God.

CHAP. XXX.

1 The altar of incense. 11 The ransom of souls. 17 The brasen laver. 22 The holy anointing oil. 34 The composition of the perfume.

AND thou shalt make an altar to burn incense upon : of shittim wood shalt thou make it.

2 A cubit shall be the length thereof, and a cubit the breadth thereof ; four square shall it be : and two cubits shall be the height thereof : the horns thereof shall be of the same.

3 And sprinkled on the altar seven times ; the leper was sprinkled seven times ; the days appointed for his cleansing were seven ; the time for the consecration of priests was seven days, ■ also for purifying the unclean : Naaman was commanded to wash in Jordan seven times ; Jericho was seven days besieged ; every seventh day was a sabbath ; every seventh year ■ year of rest ; and every seven times seven the year of jubilee.

40 A tenth deal] That is a tenth part of the ephah, sometimes called ■ omer, equivalent to about half ■ peck English measure. An hin, &c.] i. e. about our gallon.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXIX.

In this chapter we read first, the solemn rites made use of at the consecration of Aaron and his sons, which should teach us, that some sort of solemnity should be observed at the ordination of ministers. Secondly, The law concerning morning and evening sacrifices should also teach us, that nothing can excuse ■ from beginning the day, and ending it, in begging the divine blessing upon our labour and sleep, and giving thanks to God for his mercies. Lastly, As God promised that he would dwell among the children of Israel, as long as the memory of his name was kept up ; so Christians may be assured of his favour, in attending to their duty, and ■ all occasions shewing mercy and kindness ■ each other.

4 And two golden rings shalt thou make to it under the crown of it, by the two corners thereof, upon the two sides of it shalt thou make it; and they shall be for places for the staves to bear it withal.

5 And thou shalt make the staves of shittim wood, and overlay them with gold.

6 And thou shalt put it before the veil that is by the ark of the testimony, before the mercy seat that is over the testimony, where I will meet with thee.

7 And Aaron shall burn thereon sweet incense every morning: when he dresseth the lamps he shall burn incense upon it.

■ And when Aaron lighteth the lamps at even, he shall burn incense upon it, ■ perpetual incense before the LORD throughout your generations.

9 Ye shall offer ■ strange incense thereon, nor burnt sacrifice, nor meat offering; neither shall ye pour drink offering thereon.

10 And Aaron shall make ■ atonement upon the horns of it once in a year with the blood of the sin offering of atonements: once in the year shall he make atonement upon it throughout your generations: it is most holy unto the LORD.

11 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

12 When thou takest the sum of the children of Israel after their number, then shall they give every man a ransom for his soul unto the LORD, when thou numberest them; that there be no plague among them, when thou numberest them.

13 This they shall give, every one that passeth among them that are numbered, half ■ shekel after the shekel of the sanctuary: (a shekel is twenty gerahs:) an half shekel shall be the offering of the LORD.

14 Every one that passeth among them that are numbered, from twenty years old and above, shall give an offering unto the LORD.

15 The rich shall not give more, and the poor shall not give less than half a shekel, when they give an offering unto the LORD, to make ■ atonement for your souls.

16 And thou shalt take the atonement money of the children of Israel, and shalt appoint it for the service of the tabernacle of the congregation; that it may be ■ memorial unto the children of Israel before the LORD, to make an atonement for your souls.

17 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

19 For Aaron and his sons shall wash their hands and their feet thereat:

20 When they go into the tabernacle of the congregation, they shall wash with water, that they die not; or when they come near to the altar to minister, to burn offering made by fire unto the LORD:

21 So they shall wash their hands and their feet, that they die not: and it shall be a statute for ever to them, even to him and to his seed throughout their generations.

22 ¶ Moreover the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

23 Take thou also unto thee principal spices, of pure myrrh five hundred shekels, and of sweet cinnamon half so much, even two hundred and fifty shekels, and of sweet calamus two hundred and fifty shekels,

24 And of cassia five hundred shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary, and of oil olive one hin:

25 And thou shalt make it an oil of holy ointment, an ointment compound after the art of the apothecary: it shall be an holy anointing oil.

27 And the table and all his vessels, and the candlestick and his vessels, and the altar of incense, 28 And the altar of burnt offering with all his vessels, and the laver and his foot.

29 And thou shalt sanctify them that they may be most holy: whatsoever toucheth them shall be holy.

30 And thou shalt anoint Aaron and his sons, and consecrate them, that they may minister unto me in the priest's office.

31 And thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel, saying, This shall be an holy anointing oil unto me throughout your generations.

33 Whosoever compoundeth any like it, or whosoever putteth any of it upon ■ stranger, shall even be cut off from his people.

34 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Take unto thee sweet spices, stacte, and onycha, and galbanum, these sweet spices with pure frankincense: of each shall there be a like weight:

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXX.

6 Where I will meet thee, &c.] Refer to chap. xxv. 22.

7 Sweet incense, &c.] It appears from ver. 34. this incense was compounded of many fragrant and odoriferous spices.

9 Strange incense, &c.] i. e. Either such as is used by idolatrous nations, or such as is not expressly prescribed by God himself.

12 Then shall they give every ■ ransom for his soul, &c.] Which tax was a pious acknowledgment to God, for having redeemed them from the bondage of Egypt, and delivered them with his own hand from so many dangers and difficulties.

13 Half a shekel] This was about fourteen pence of our money. After the shekel of the sanctuary] Many have supposed that there was ■ ordinary and an holy shekel, and that the latter was twice ■ much as the former; but it is most probable there ■ but one kind of shekel, which is here called, "of the sanctuary," because there was ■ kept there as ■ proof, or standard, by which all these coins were maintained in their just value, weight, and goodness.

Twenty gerahs, &c.] A gerah was something ■ than a penny.

15 The rich shall not give more, and the poor shall not give less, &c.] Thus all souls are equal, alike in the esteem of God, who made them all.

18 A laver of brass, &c.] On account of its extraordinary size, this ■ called the brazen sea. It was placed in the court of the tabernacle, ■ far from the altar of burnt offerings.

Five hundred shekels] This was something ■ than twenty pounds weight.

Sweet calamus, &c.] A spicy root this, belonging to a particular flag or iris, called "calamus aromaticus," or sweet cane.

24 Cassia, &c.] Seeing that the drug now known by the name of cassia is not aromatic, it is imagined that the ancient costus is here meant, which was sometimes burnt on the heathen altars, the best sort of which grew in Arabia. There are said to be various kinds of it; but that in use with ■ is brought from the East Indies, and has ■ fragrant smell, not unlike that of violets.

34 Stacte] This was the best sort of myrrh, ■ that which flows spontaneously from the tree. Some think it was liquid storax, which is the produce of ■ particular tree growing near Suez, in Arabia, and in great esteem among the eastern people.

Onycha] Various are the opinions concerning this onycha. Some take it for the shell of ■ fish which fed upon spikenard, found in certain pools and lakes, the best of which Diderides affirms, was brought from the Red sea. The Arabic translation has it, Laudanum, ■ aromatic gum, made use of by the Arabians in the composition of their perfumes. Others think it was bdellium.

Galbanum] Which was the gum or liquor of a plant resembling fennel, which was common in Syria. Some translations distinguish the galbanum here rendered, by calling it galbanum of sweet odour, ■ distinguish it from the common sort, which is of a disagreeable scent. There was a particular species, the product of mount Amaria, in Syria, of a very pleasing odour.

Frankincense, &c.] A dry resinous substance this, of an agreeable smell, common in some parts of Arabia, particularly in that called Sabæa.

^{Before CHRIST 1491.} 36 And thou shalt beat some of it very small, and put of it before the testimony in the tabernacle of the congregation, where I will meet with thee: it shall be unto you most holy.

37 And as for the perfume which thou shalt make, ye shall not make to yourselves according to the composition thereof; it shall be unto thee holy for the LORD.

38 Whosoever shall make like unto that, to smell thereto, shall even be cut off from his people.

C H A P. XXXI.

1 Bezaleel and Aholiab are called, and qualified for the work of the tabernacle. 12 The observance of the sabbath is again commanded. 18 Moses receiveth the two tables.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, 2 See, I have called by name Bezaleel the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah:

3 And I have filled him with the spirit of God, in wisdom, and in understanding, and in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanship,

4 To devise cunning works, to work in gold, and in silver, and in brass,

5 And in cutting of stones, to set them, and in carving of timber, to work in all manner of workmanship.

6 And I, behold, I have given with him Aholiab, the son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan: and in the hearts of all that are wise hearted I have put wisdom, that they may make all that I have commanded thee;

7 The tabernacle of the congregation, and the ark of the testimony, and the mercy seat that is thereupon, and all the furniture of the tabernacle,

8 And the table and his furniture, and the pure candlestick with all his furniture, and the altar of incense,

9 And the altar of burnt offering with all his furniture, and the laver and his foot,

10 And the cloths of service, and the holy garments for Aaron the priest, and the garments of his sons, to minister in the priest's office,

11 And the anointing oil, and sweet incense for the holy place: according to all that I have commanded thee shall they do.

36 Put of it before the testimony, &c.] i. e. Upon the altar of incense, placed before the ark, but without the veil.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXX.

By the altar of incense being placed before the veil, we are to learn, first, That till Christ came, there would be a state of darkness that would resemble the shade made by a veil. Secondly, As the money paid by way of ransom for the people was to support the tabernacle; so it is our duty to contribute towards supporting such places as are set apart for the service of the Divine Being. Thirdly, The priests were commanded to wash themselves, before they performed any services; and this should teach us, that in all our approaches to God we should be divested of every impurity. Lastly, The strict charge given to them not to employ the oil to any purpose but that which had been prescribed, implies, that great respect should be shewn to every thing set apart for religious use.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXI.

2 See, I have called by name] Or, in other words, I have chosen, or appointed him.

Bezaleel, the son of Uri, &c.] i Chron. ii. 18—20. this genealogy is fully described.

The pure candlestick, &c.] It was so denominated, either from its being consecrated, or because it was made of pure gold; though most probably for the latter reason.

10 The cloths of service, &c.] i. e. The veil, curtains, and coverings of the tabernacle, the hangings of the court, and all the coverings which served in their removals, to wrap up the holy things in.

13 Verily my sabbaths ye shall keep] The Hebrew particle ach being used as an exceptive particle, the words may be rendered, Nevertheless my sabbath ye shall keep. Notwithstanding I have been thus particular in my directions concerning the number, form, and materials of all these things, yet do not imagine that all I require consists merely in such externals, which will not acquit you of your neglect of other duties, and, in particular, the observation of my sabbath.

It is a sign between me and you, &c.] For by this you signify, that you are the worshippers of the one Supreme Being, who in the space of six days created all things, and the seventh rested or ceased from his works.

14 Every one that defileth it, &c.] Seeing the sabbath was pecu-

12 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, 13 Speak thou also unto the children of Israel, saying, Verily my sabbaths ye shall keep: for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations; that ye may know that I am the LORD that doth sanctify you.

14 Ye shall keep the sabbath therefore; for it is holy unto you: every one that defileth it shall surely be put to death: for whosoever doeth any work therein, that soul shall be cut off from among his people.

15 Six days may work be done; but in the seventh is the sabbath of rest, holy to the LORD: whosoever doeth any work in the sabbath day, he shall surely be put to death.

16 Wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the sabbath, to observe the sabbath throughout their generations, for a perpetual covenant.

17 It is a sign between me and the children of Israel for ever: for in six days the LORD made heaven and earth, and on the seventh day he rested, and was refreshed.

18 ¶ And he gave unto Moses, when he had made an end of communing with him upon mount Sinai, two tables of testimony, tables of stone, written with the finger of God.

C H A P. XXXII.

1 The people in the absence of Moses cause Aaron to make a calf. 7 God is angered thereby. 11 At the intreaty of Moses he is appeased. 15 Moses cometh down with the tables: 19 He breaketh them: 20 He destroyeth the calf. 21 Aaron's excuse for himself. 25 Moses causeth the idolaters to be slain. 30 He prayeth for the people. 33 God's answer.

AND when the people saw that Moses delayed to come down out of the mount, the people gathered themselves together unto Aaron, and said unto him, Up, make us gods, which shall go before us; for as for this Moses, the man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.

2 And

liarily given to the Jews, as a sign of the covenant between them and God, the violation of this day, omitting the moral events it produced, was in effect an infringement of the covenant, consequently an act of rebellion, and justly punished with immature death, as the words "cut off" imply.

15 The sabbath of rest, &c.] It is in the Hebrew, The rest of rests; and signifies, that of all others, this day ought most religiously to be observed, and kept with great punctuality.

18 Tables of stone, written with the finger of God.] Several consider this as a metaphorical expression, implying, that the words of the decalogue were written by the hand of Moses, by the particular direction of God; though the phrase seems rather to signify, that God employed neither Moses, nor any other instrument in writing them, but that by his own powerful operation it was performed.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXI.

In this chapter we find, that God did not leave it to the people to make choice of proper persons for the service; and from hence we may learn, first, That we have no right to nominate any other officers for his service than are mentioned in his word. Secondly, That although the Israelites had been long oppressed in Egypt, yet they had many ingenious persons among them; which points out to us, that God can give many things to the oppressed which have been denied by their cruel taskmasters. Thirdly, From the frequent mention here made of the sabbath, we may observe, that as God knows of how much value divine worship is to us, so he would have it carefully attended to. Lastly, Let the care that God took to enjoin the whole law, remind us to make that part which is moral the unalterable rule of our conduct.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXII.

1 Up, make us gods] This should have been rendered in the singular, Up, make us a god. From hence it is evident, that the Israelites had imbibed the idolatrous notions of the Egyptians, who worshipped the golden calf. They had waited above a month for Moses's return from the mount, but now despairing of it, they thought it necessary to have a god of some kind, to direct them in their way through the wilderness. Some are of opinion that the Israelites evidently intended the worship of the true God under this similitude; accordingly we find, ver. 5. their feast was proclaimed to the Lord, or Jehovah. However, not only to worship a false deity, but also the

■ And Aaron said unto them, Break off the golden earrings, which are in the ears of your wives, of your sons, and of your daughters, and bring them unto me.

3 And all the people brake off the golden earrings which were in their ears, and brought them unto Aaron.

4 And he received them at their hand, and fashioned it with ■ graving tool, after he had made it a molten calf: and they said, These be thy gods, O Israel, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

5 And when Aaron saw it, he built an altar before it; and Aaron made proclamation, and said, Tomorrow is a feast to the LORD.

6 And they rose up early on the morrow, and offered burnt offerings, and brought peace offerings; and the people sat down to eat and to drink, and rose up to play.

7 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Go, get thee down; for thy people, which thou broughtest out of the land of Egypt, have corrupted themselves:

■ They have turned aside quickly out of the way which I commanded them: they have made them a molten calf, and have worshipped it, and have sacrificed thereunto, and said, These be thy gods, O Israel, which have brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

9 And the LORD said unto Moses, I have seen this people, and, behold, it is a stiffnecked people:

10 Now therefore let me alone, that my wrath may wax hot against them, and that I may consume them: and I will make of thee ■ great nation.

11 ¶ And Moses besought the LORD his God, and said, LORD, why doth thy wrath wax hot against thy people, which thou hast brought forth out of the land of Egypt with great power, and with a mighty hand?

12 Wherefore should the Egyptians speak, and say, For mischief did he bring them out, to slay them in the mountains, and to consume them from the face of the earth? Turn from thy fierce wrath, and repent of this evil against thy people.

13 Remember Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, thy servants, to whom thou swarest by thine own self, and saidst unto them, I will multiply your seed as the stars of heaven, and all this land that I have spoken of will I give unto your seed, and they shall inherit it for ever.

14 And the LORD repented of the evil which he thought to do unto his people.

Which shall go before us, &c.] As their intention was to return into Egypt, they flattered themselves, that by carrying before them the god so highly adored in that country, the Egyptians would forgive their defection, and receive them again into their country.

4 And fashioned it with a graving tool] The verb tsur here translated "fashioned," signifies "to bind or tie up," and cherret denotes "a bag" as well as ■ graving tool; this passage therefore may be rendered, And he received them, (viz. the golden ear-rings) at their hand, and tied them in ■ bag, and caused them to be cast into ■ molten calf.

A molten calf, &c.] Which was in imitation of the Egyptian god Apis or Serapis, which was a living ox, ■ well as an image made in the likeness of an ox.

5 Aaron made proclamation, &c.] Many have endeavoured to excuse the conduct of Aaron upon this occasion, but certainly it will admit of no palliation: such examples of human frailty and weakness ought to teach us to be constantly on our guard, and carefully to avoid every temptation of sin.

6 To play.] This in the Hebrew signifies, To laugh. It was the custom of the Egyptians when they had found out their god Apis, to bring him with great pomp and solemnity to Memphis, the royal city, the children going before in procession, and the company singing a song of praise to the deity. This rejoicing of the Israelites might therefore be in imitation of the Egyptian custom.

7 Thy people, &c.] This is ■ term of disdain, by which God disavowed them from being his people, who had so grievously corrupted themselves by idolatry.

9 A stiffnecked people.] That is, refractory. It is ■ metaphorical expression, taken from oxen, that will ■ yield their necks to the yoke.

18 And he said, It is not the voice of them that shout for mastery, neither is it the voice of them that cry for being overcome: but the noise of them that sing do I hear.

19 ¶ And it came to pass, ■ soon ■ he came nigh unto the camp, that he saw the calf, and the dancing: and Moses' anger waxed hot, and he cast the tables out of his hands, and brake them beneath the mount.

20 ¶ And he took the calf which they had made, and burnt it in the fire, and ground it to powder, and strawed it upon the water, and made the children of Israel drink of it.

21 ¶ And Moses said unto Aaron, What did this people unto thee, that thou hast brought so great a sin upon them?

22 And Aaron said, Let not the anger of my lord wax hot; thou knowest the people, that they are set on mischief.

23 For they said unto me, Make us gods, which shall go before us: for as for this Moses, the man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.

24 And I said unto them, Whosoever hath any gold, let them break it off. So they gave it me: then I cast it into the fire, and there came out this calf.

25 ¶ And when Moses saw that the people were naked; (for Aaron had made them naked unto their shame among their enemies:)

26 Then Moses stood in the gate of the camp, and said, Who is on the LORD's side? let him come unto me. And all the sons of Levi gathered themselves together unto him.

27 And he said unto them, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, Put every man his sword by his side, and go in and out from gate to gate throughout the camp, and slay every man his brother, and every man his companion, and every man his neighbour.

28 And the children of Levi did according to the word of Moses: and there fell of the people that day about three thousand men.

29 For Moses had said, Consecrate yourselves to day to the LORD, even every man upon his son, and upon his brother; that he may bestow upon you a blessing this day.

30 ¶ And

14 The Lord repented, &c. This is a figurative expression, adapted to the sentiments and affections of human nature.

19 Brake them beneath the mount.] Designedly, by which he gave them to understand, they had broken their solemn covenant with God, through their idolatry.

20 He took the calf which they had made, and burnt it in the fire] By this we understand, that Moses calcined it, and reduced it to dust.

Made the children of Israel drink of it.] i. e. he cast the powder into the brook that descended out of the mount of Horeb (Deut. ix. 21.) which being the only water in the thirsty desert, the Israelites were obliged to drink of it. This was to render them the ■ sensible of their folly, in worshipping that for a god which was to pass through their bodies in ■ few hours.

22 They are set on mischief.] i. e. the people are prone to the sin of idolatry.

24 I cast it into the fire, and there ■ out this calf.] Aaron here dissembles, and endeavours to extenuate his crime, by pretending that the calf was made rather by chance than design.

25 Were naked, &c.] Many understand by this, that they were divested of their virtue and piety; but (though this was true) the most natural signification seems to be, that they wanted arms, and for that reason were ■ able to resist the Levites, a few of whom slew 3000 of the people, as in ver. 28.

26 All the sons of Levi gathered themselves together, &c.] By this we learn, that not only all the other tribes had joined in the idolatrous feast, but ■ some of the Levites, because Moses commands them to slay every ■ his brother, and every man his companion, in case he should come in his way.

29 Consecrate yourselves to day, &c.] We may render this passage thus, Consecrate yourselves to-day to the Lord, because every ■ hath been against his son, and against his brother, &c. &c.

30 ¶ And it came to pass on the morrow, that Moses said unto the people, Ye have sinned a great sin: and now I will go up unto the LORD; peradventure I shall make an atonement for your sin.

31 And Moses returned unto the LORD, and said, Oh, this people have sinned a great sin, and have made them gods of gold.

32 Yet now, if thou wilt forgive their sin—; and if not, blot me, I pray thee, out of thy book which thou hast written.

33 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Whosoever hath sinned against me, him will I blot out of my book.

34 Therefore now go, lead the people unto the place of which I have spoken unto thee: behold, mine Angel shall go before thee: nevertheless in the day when I visit I will visit their sin upon them.

35 And the LORD plagued the people, because they made the calf, which Aaron made.

C H A P. XXXIII.

1 The Lord refuseth to go with the people. 4 The people mourn thereat. 7 The tabernacle is removed out of the camp. 9 The Lord talketh familiarly with Moses out of the cloudy pillar. 12 Moses prayeth for the continuance of God's presence, 18 and desireth to see the glory of God.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, Depart, and go up hence, thou and the people which thou hast brought up out of the land of Egypt, unto the land which I swore unto Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob; saying, Unto thy seed will I give it:

2 And I will send an angel before thee; and I will drive out the Canaanite, the Amorite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite, the Hivite, and the Jebusite:

¶ Unto a land flowing with milk and honey: for I will not go up in the midst of thee; for thou art a stiff-necked people: lest I consume thee in the way.

4 ¶ And when the people heard these evil tidings, they mourned: and no man did put on him his ornaments.

5 For the LORD had said unto Moses, Say unto the children of Israel, Ye are a stiff-necked people: I will come up into the midst of thee in a moment, and consume thee: therefore now put off thy ornaments from thee, that I may know what to do unto thee.

6 And the children of Israel stripped themselves of their ornaments by the mount Horeb.

32 If not, blot me, I pray thee] This is certainly an expression of great affection towards his countrymen; since he preferred even death to being the beholder of so horrid and terrible a sight.

Out of thy book which thou hast written.] Which expression alludes to the custom of numbering the people, by inserting their names in a register, or scroll.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXII.

This chapter leads us to consider, first, The great sin of the Israelites, who, notwithstanding so many warnings that God had given them to shun idolatry, and the solemn promises lately made by them, fell into that sin. Secondly, That although they pretended to worship the true God, under the figure of a golden calf, yet they were guilty of real idolatry; which shews, that it is absolutely forbidden to worship any image; and that those things which God had forbid, cannot be rendered lawful by the intention. Thirdly, We may likewise observe the weakness of Aaron, who, instead of opposing the idolatry, consented to it; and learn to resist all evil pretences with courage. Fourthly, The great charity of Moses, who interceded with so much zeal for the children of Israel, should serve for an example, and a motive too, to intercede and pray for sinners. The punishment which the Levites executed upon the idolatrous people must be acknowledged to be very just, though it was very severe, God having expressly ordered to put to death those that were guilty of idolatry. Lastly, This chapter should bring to our mind what St. Paul says, 1 Cor. x. that these things are examples, to the intent that we should not lust after evil things, as did the Israelites; and that we should not imitate them in their idolatry, &c.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXIII.

2 I will send an angel before thee, &c.] This angel was a being of an order inferior to that which went before them in the cloud, as appears from ver. 3. See Exod. xxiii. 20. Deut. vii. 22. Job. xxiv. 11.

7 ¶ And Moses took the tabernacle, and pitched it without the camp, afar off from the camp, and called it the Tabernacle of the congregation. And it came to pass, that every one which sought the LORD went out unto the tabernacle of the congregation, which was without the camp.

8 And it came to pass, when Moses went out unto the tabernacle, that all the people rose up, and stood every man at his tent door, and looked after Moses, until he was gone into the tabernacle.

9 ¶ And it came to pass, as Moses entered into the tabernacle, the cloudy pillar descended, and stood at the door of the tabernacle, and the LORD talked with Moses.

10 And all the people saw the cloudy pillar stand at the tabernacle door: and all the people rose up and worshipped, every man in his tent door.

11 And the LORD spake unto Moses face to face, as a man speaketh unto his friend. And he turned again into the camp: but his servant Joshua, the son of Nun, a young man, departed not out of the tabernacle.

12 ¶ And Moses said unto the LORD, See, thou sayest unto me, Bring up this people: and thou hast not let me know whom thou wilt send with me. Yet thou hast said, I know thee by name, and thou hast also found grace in my sight.

13 Now, therefore, I pray thee, if I have found grace in thy sight, shew me now thy way, that I may know thee, that I may find grace in thy sight: and consider that this nation is thy people.

14 And he said, My presence shall go with thee, and I will give thee rest.

15 And he said unto him, If thy presence go not with me, carry us not up hence.

16 For wherein shall it be known here that I and thy people have found grace in thy sight? is it not in that thou goest with us? so shall we be separated, I and thy people, from all the people that are upon the face of the earth.

17 And the LORD said unto Moses, I will do this thing also that thou hast spoken: for thou hast found grace in my sight, and I know thee by name.

18 ¶ And he said, I beseech thee, shew me thy glory.

19 And he said, I will make all my goodness pass before thee, and I will proclaim the name of the LORD before thee; and will be gracious to whom I will be gracious, and will shew mercy on whom I will shew mercy.

20 And

5 I will come up into the midst of thee, &c.] With greater propriety may this be rendered thus, Should I come up into the midst of thee, I would consume thee in a moment.

6 By the mount, &c.] It is in the Hebrew, "from the mount," i. e. at some distance from it.

7 The tabernacle, &c.] Which must have been either the tent of Moses, or some other; for the sacred tabernacle was not yet built.

9 Cloudy pillar, &c.] This appearance shewed that Moses had not moved the tabernacle without the approbation of God.

11 The Lord spake unto Moses face to face.] i. e. God revealed his will to him, not in dreams and visions, nor in awful and tremendous circumstances, but in an audible voice, and in a familiar manner.

Young man, &c.] At this time Joshua must have been upwards of fifty. The Hebrew word naar, signifies "a minister or servant," as appears from Gen. xiv. 24. and if we translate it so here, the inconsistency of the text will be removed, it will run thus: His servant Joshua who ministered unto him, departed, &c.

12 I know thee by name, &c.] This word "know," is in scripture often used for to approve of, or favour; and the words "by name" signify, in an especial manner.

13 Shew me now thy way, &c.] Which request may either signify, that Moses was desirous of knowing the manner in which God designed to behave towards the Israelites, after their defection; or that he besought him to discover his mercy towards them for the future.

19 I will make all my goodness pass before thee] By this we understand that God would display his glory before him in such a manner, as should not harm, but rather gratify and delight him; or it may signify his gracious intentions concerning the Israelites.

I will proclaim] This implies, either that God would give him notice by a voice of his glorious presence, or else, that he would give him assurance of the truth of his promises.

Will be gracious to whom I will be gracious, &c.] That is, I know the hearts of all men, I am the only true judge who are the proper objects of my mercy and grace

22 And it shall come to pass, while my glory passeth by, that I will put thee in a cleft of the rock, and will cover thee with my hand while I pass by:

C H A P. XXXIV.

■ Moses is commanded to prepare new tables, and to go up again to the top of the mount. 4 The name of the Lord is there proclaimed before him. ■ Moses intreateth God to go with the people. 10 God maketh a covenant with them, in which he restraineth idolatry; and 18, 21, 22, 23, 25 repeateth certain duties before prescribed. 27 Moses continueth in the mount forty days, and by God's command writeth upon the tables the ten commandments. 29 On his return his face shineth, and he covereth it with a veil.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, Hew thee two tables of stone like unto the first: and I will write upon these tables the words that were in the first tables, which thou brakest.

■ And be ready in the morning, and come up in the morning unto mount Sinai, and present thyself there to me in the top of the mount.

3 And no man shall come up with thee, neither let any man be seen throughout all the mount; neither let the flocks nor herds feed before that mount.

4 ¶ And he hewed two tables of stone like unto the first; and Moses rose up early in the morning, and went up unto mount Sinai, as the LORD had commanded him, and took in his hand the two tables of stone.

5 And the LORD descended in the cloud, and stood with him there, and proclaimed the name of the LORD.

6 And the LORD passed by before him, and proclaimed, The LORD, The LORD God, merciful and gracious, long suffering, and abundant in goodness and truth,

7 Keeping mercy for thousands, forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin, and that will by no means clear the guilty; visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, and upon the children's children, unto the third and to the fourth generation.

■ ¶ And Moses made haste, and bowed his head toward the earth, and worshipped.

9 And he said, If now I have found grace in thy sight, O LORD, let my Lord, I pray thee, go among us; for it is a stiffnecked people; and pardon our iniquity and our sin, and take us for thine inheritance.

20 There shall no man see me and live.] This is because of the weakness and infirmities of human nature, on the one hand, which cannot bear the resplendence of the divine presence, and of iniquity on the other, because God is of purer eyes than to behold sin.

23 Thou shalt see my back parts: but my face shall not be seen.] Here Moses speaks of God in terms borrowed from gross sense: for though God is a pure Spirit, without either body or parts, yet we can understand nothing but by the mediation of ■ senses, it was absolutely necessary for him to use such terms. By his back-parts, we may understand the brightness of his majesty, though not in its full splendor; by his face, his full glory, and his brightness unveiled; and by his hand, with which he covered Moses, may be denoted a cloud which he cast about him, that he might receive hurt by the resplendence of the divine rays.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXIV. Here, by the example of the Israelites, who strip themselves of their ornaments, after they had been punished for their idolatry, we are taught to humble ourselves, and to shew marks of our contrition when God is angry with us. Secondly, The manner in which God spake, and communicated himself to Moses, shews that he ■ a very weak prophet, and that his laws and his doctrine came from God, and consequently ■ they ought ■ be considered by us with great respect. Thirdly, It is also to be observed, in the prayers that Moses continued to pour forth for the Israelites, the extreme tenderness he had for them, and his great zeal for the glory of God. Fourthly, God's answer to 11 Observe thou that which I command thee this day: behold, I drive out before thee the Amorite, and the Canaanite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite, and the Hivite, and the Jebusite.

12 Take heed to thyself, lest thou make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land whither thou goest, lest it be for a snare in the midst of thee:

13 But ye shall destroy their altars, break their images, and cut down their groves:

Moses, when that prophet besought him to let him see his glory, shews us, that God dwells in inaccessible light, as St. Paul says, 1 Tim. vi. and that no ■ can see him in this life. This ought to convince us that Jesus Christ our Lord is infinitely above Moses; since he has seen God, and was with him from the beginning, John i. Lastly, We ought to believe, that though we cannot see God in this life, we shall see him as he is in the life to come; and this hope should engage us to purify ourselves as he is pure, 1 John iii.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXIV.

■ Hew thee two tables of stone, &c.] We see by this command how greatly God had been offended, for the first tables were the work of God, and written with his finger; but these were the work of men.

6 Merciful and gracious, long suffering, and abundant in goodness and truth.] Our daily experience must necessarily convince ■ how truly these epithets belong to God Almighty.

7 And that will by no means clear the guilty, &c.] Though the word "guilty" is not in the original, the sense requires this addition.

9 For it is a stiffnecked people, &c.] Here the particle "for," may be better rendered "though," and then the sense will be, Pardon ■ iniquities and our sin, though we ■ a stiffnecked people.

15 Go a whoring.] Whoredom and adultery are the terms generally used to imply their idolatries.

29 ¶ And it came to pass, when Moses came down from mount Sinai with the two tables of testimony in Moses' hand, when he came down from the mount, that Moses wist not that the skin of his face shone while he talked with him.

30 And when Aaron and all the children of Israel saw Moses, behold, the skin of his face shone; and they were afraid to come nigh him.

31 And Moses called unto them; and Aaron and all the rulers of the congregation returned unto him: and Moses talked with them.

32 And afterwards all the children of Israel came nigh: and he gave them in commandment all that the LORD had spoken with him in mount Sinai.

33 And till Moses had done speaking with them, he put a veil on his face.

34 But when Moses went in before the LORD to speak with him, he took the veil off, until he came out. And he came out, and spake unto the children of Israel that which he was commanded.

35 And the children of Israel saw the face of Moses, that the skin of Moses' face shone: and Moses put the veil upon his face again, until he went in to speak with him.

AND Moses gathered all the congregation of the children of Israel together, and said unto them, These are the words which the LORD hath commanded, that ye should do them.

2 ¶ Six days shall work be done, but on the seventh day there shall be to you an holy day, a sabbath of rest to the LORD: whosoever doeth work therein shall be put to death.

¶ Ye shall kindle no fire throughout your habitations upon the sabbath day.

4 ¶ And Moses spake unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, saying, This is the thing which the LORD commanded, saying,

5 Take ye from among you an offering unto the LORD: whosoever is of a willing heart, let him bring it, an offering of the LORD; gold and silver, and brass,

29 The skin of his face shone, &c.] The word we render "Shone" in the Hebrew, signifies, Was horned; being permitted so near approach to the divine glory, he carried off (though unknown to himself) such a beamy lustre, as played about his head and face for a considerable time. The heathens (perhaps from hence) used to represent their gods with a beamy glory around their heads. The Roman emperors, who were honoured in sort of deities, were likewise thus represented. Pliny in his panegyric, makes the shining head of Domitian the subject of some banter. Homer in like manner makes Minerva irradiate the head and armour of Diomedes, &c.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXIV.

In this chapter we observe three things: First, That the laws about the first-born, first-fruits, sabbath, and feasts, established by the great wisdom of God, in the end that the Israelites might remember the favours that God had shewed them; and to prevent them from imitating the customs and superstitions of the idolatrous nations. Secondly, That when the Israelites celebrated their solemn festivals, God hindered their enemies from coming into their country, which was a very particular mark of the divine protection over this people, and should be a lesson to us, that God blesses those who serve him, and defends them from the dangers to which they might be exposed by their obedience. Thirdly, The shining of Moses' face, when he came down from 22 And they came, both men and women, many as were willing hearted, and brought bracelets, and ear rings, and rings, and tablets, all jewels of gold: and every man that offered offered an offering unto the LORD.

23 And every man, with whom was found blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen, and goats' hair, and red skins of rams, and badgers' skins, brought them.

24 Every one that did offer an offering of silver and brass, brought the LORD's offering: and every man, with whom was found shittim wood for any work of the service, brought it.

25 And all the women that were wise hearted did spin with their hands, and brought that which they had spun, both of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet, and of fine linen.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXV.

1 And Moses gathered, &c.] Here the historian resumes his account of the priests, which had been interrupted by his relation of the molten calf, and proceeds to the execution of the divine will.

2 Six days, &c.] By the frequent repetition of this precept, we see its great importance. It is repeated here, to prevent the people from violating the sabbath by too great assiduity in erecting the tabernacle.

3 Ye shall kindle no fire, &c.] That is, they might not kindle a fire even to dress their meat, nor for any servile work, only to warm themselves when the weather was cold.

22 Tablets, &c.] Many think these were golden buckles worn on the girdle; but others imagine it was a kind of ribbon or girdle, worn by the women round their breasts.

23 With whom was found blue, &c.] All yarn or wool of this colour, was woven into garments and hangings for the use of the tabernacle.

25 Brought that which they had spun, &c.] For these were the offerings of the lower sorts of people. See chap. xxv. 4.

Before CHRIST 1491. 27 And the rulers brought onyx stones, and stones to be set, for the ephod, and for the breastplate ; 28 And spice, and oil for the light, and for the anointing oil, and for the sweet incense. 29 The children of Israel brought a willing offering unto the LORD, every man and woman, whose heart made them willing to bring for all manner of work, which the LORD had commanded to be made by the hand of Moses. 30 ¶ And Moses said unto the children of Israel, See, the LORD hath called by name Bezaleel the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah ; 31 And he hath filled him with the spirit of God, in wisdom, in understanding, and in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanship ; 32 And to devise curious works, to work in gold, and in silver, and in brass ; 33 And in the cutting of stones, to set them, and in carving of wood, to make any manner of cunning work. 34 And he hath put in his heart that he may teach, both he, and Aholiab, the son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan. 35 Them hath he filled with wisdom of heart, to work all manner of work, of the engraver, and of the cunning workman, and of the embroiderer, in blue, and in purple, in scarlet, and in fine linen, and of the weaver, even of them that do any work, and of those that devise cunning work.

CHAP. XXXVI.

1 The offerings are delivered to the workmen. 4 The liberality of the people is restrained. ¶ The curtains with cherubims. 14 The curtains of goats' hair. 19 The covering of skins. 20 The boards with their sockets. 31 The bars. 35 The veil. 37 The hanging for the door.

THEN wrought Bezaleel and Aholiab, and every wise hearted man, in whom the LORD put wisdom and understanding to know how to work all manner of work for the service of the sanctuary, according to all that the LORD had commanded.

2 And Moses called Bezaleel and Aholiab, and every wise hearted man, in whose heart the LORD had put wisdom, even every one whose heart stirred him up to come unto the work to do it :

3 And they received of Moses all the offering, which the children of Israel had brought for the work of the service of the sanctuary, to make it withal. And they brought yet unto him free offering every morning.

4 ¶ And all the wise men, that wrought all the work of the sanctuary, came every man from his work which they made ;

5 And they spake unto Moses, saying, The people bring much more than enough for the service of the work, which the LORD commanded to make.

6 And Moses gave commandment, and they caused it to be proclaimed throughout the camp, saying, Let neither man nor woman make any more work for the offering of the sanctuary. So the people were restrained from bringing.

7 For the stuff they had was sufficient for all the work to make it, and too much.

¶ And every wise hearted man among them

Before CHRIST 1491. that wrought the work of the tabernacle, made ten curtains of fine twined linen, and blue, and purple, and scarlet : with cherubims of cunning work made he them.

9 The length of one curtain was twenty and eight cubits, and the breadth of one curtain four cubits : the curtains were all of one size.

10 And he coupled the five curtains one unto another : and the other five curtains he coupled one unto another.

11 And he made loops of blue on the edge of one curtain from the selvedge in the coupling : likewise he made in the uttermost side of another curtain, in the coupling of the second.

12 Fifty loops made he in one curtain, and fifty loops made he in the edge of the curtain which was in the coupling of the second : the loops held one curtain to another.

13 And he made fifty taches of gold, and coupled the curtains one unto another with the taches : so it became one tabernacle.

14 ¶ And he made curtains of goats' hair for the tent over the tabernacle : eleven curtains he made them.

15 The length of one curtain was thirty cubits, and four cubits was the breadth of one curtain : the eleven curtains were of one size.

16 And he coupled five curtains by themselves, and six curtains by themselves.

17 And he made fifty loops upon the uttermost edge of the curtain in the coupling, and fifty loops made he upon the edge of the curtain which coupled the second.

18 And he made fifty taches of brass to couple the tent together, that it might be one.

19 ¶ And he made a covering for the tent of rams' skins dyed red, and a covering of badgers' skins above that.

20 ¶ And he made boards for the tabernacle of shittim wood, standing up.

21 The length of a board was ten cubits, and the breadth of a board one cubit and a half.

22 One board had two tenons, equally distant one from another : thus did he make for all the boards of the tabernacle.

23 And he made boards for the tabernacle ; twenty boards for the south side southward :

24 And forty sockets of silver he made under the twenty boards ; two sockets under one board for his two tenons, and two sockets under another board for his two tenons.

25 And for the other side of the tabernacle, which is toward the north corner, he made twenty boards,

26 And their forty sockets of silver ; two sockets under one board, and two sockets under another board.

27 And for the sides of the tabernacle westward he made six boards.

28 And two boards made he for the corners of the tabernacle in the two sides.

29 And they were coupled beneath, and coupled together at the head thereof, to one ring ; thus he did to both of them in both the corners.

30 And there were eight boards : and their sockets were sixteen sockets of silver, under every board two sockets.

31 ¶ And

27 The rulers brought onyx stones, &c.] They brought such precious stones as the lower class of people could not furnish, together with gold, silver, spices, and oil, &c. &c.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXVI.

The cheerfulness and liberality shewn by the people of Israel, in giving what was necessary to the tabernacle, should stir us up to contribute freely to the service of God, and with pleasure to devote our goods to pious and charitable uses. We may also learn from this chapter, that every one, according to his condition, should contribute to the edification of the church, and that there are none but ought to do it, as far as God gives them strength and means.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXVI.

1 Then wrought Bezaleel, &c.] We do find the particle "then" in the Hebrew : Junius therefore connects this passage with the last verse of the preceding chapter, and reads the whole sentence in the future tense : thus, Bezaleel therefore shall do the work, and Aholiab, and every wise hearted man, &c.

3 And they brought yet unto him free offerings every morning.] This was out of an earnest desire to shew their zeal for God's service, as they had lately done for erecting the molten calf.

5 The people bring much more than enough, &c.] Believing, perhaps, that these external performances would atone for the omission of the weightier duties of religion and morality.

34 And he overlaid the boards with gold, and made their rings of gold to be places for the bars, and overlaid the bars with gold.

35 ¶ And he made a veil of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen: with cherubims made he it of cunning work.

36 And he made thereunto four pillars of shittim wood, and overlaid them with gold: their hooks were of gold; and he cast for them four sockets of silver.

37 ¶ And he made an hanging for the tabernacle door of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen, of needlework;

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXVI.

In the first place, the particular directions here given concerning the building of the tabernacle are sufficient to convince us of the great care God took of his external worship: hence we may learn, that decent external rites are at all times necessary in divine worship. Secondly, By the artists being inspired to execute the different pieces of workmanship, we are taught, that whenever God has any thing to accomplish, either for his own glory or the good of his church, he will be sure to furnish the means. Lastly, From the whole, let us be careful to make a proper use of the gospel, that does not come to us burdened with rites and ceremonies, but calculated to promote our truest interests.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXVII.

The care that God took to keep the children of Israel from falling into idolatry, should shew us, that God, as a most tender and benevolent father, provides at all times for the happiness of his creatures, that they may trust in him for the future, and act consistent with his will. Secondly, The alacrity with which the artists performed their work, should prompt us to diligence in the discharge of every duty. Lastly, Though it is not possible to assign a reason why so many articles were made for the use of the tabernacle, yet we ought to be satisfied that it was by the appointment of God, and consequently for the best purposes.

3 And he made all the vessels of the altar, the pots, and the shovels, and the basons, and the fleshhooks, and the firepans: all the vessels thereof made he of bras.

Of the women assembling, &c.] The word translated "assembling" is tzabo, which signifies, A troop, or army. The Septuagint renders it, Which watched; the Chaldee, Which were to be armed, &c. and the Arabic, Which assembled in troops. The propriety of applying this military term to this assembly of women, will appear if we consider that not only the Levites, but likewise the rest of the Israelites, assembled in companies, at the temple, or tabernacle, and alternately relieved each other; whence they are styled in the Psalms, the armed watch. 1 Sam. ii. 22. Psal. xxi. 2. and cxxx. 147.

18 The height in the breadth, &c.] We shall perceive the propriety of this Hebrew idiom, if we consider that it refers to two different states of the hanging, both as it lay down on the ground, and as it hung up; that is, as its breadth when it lay along, was its height

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXVIII.

First, We are to observe, that the people spared no cost in adorning the sanctuary of God. Let this teach us who ought to be the living temples of our God, that we should be fruitful in every good work. Secondly, Let us learn from their cheerfulness, that good works alone, are the most certain marks of genuine repentance, without which, we never enjoy the divine favour. Lastly, No sorts of riches can be better employed, than such as are used to promote the interests of true religion and virtue.

First, We have seen a remarkable instance of the great ingenuity of these men, in making the most of their figures, that ever were seen; but as their knowledge was freely bestowed upon them, we must consider ~~them~~ as the givers of wisdom, and every thing we enjoy. Secondly, As the servants finished the tabernacle exactly according to the directions given, we may note, that the same God who called by before Moses on the mount, and gave him the original directions, inspired the hearts of these servants to complete the work in a proper manner. We thus here learn how necessary it is to be made divine, in every thing we do; in which we may be enabled to persevere to the end, obtain a blessing, and glorify God.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XL.

¶ On the first day of the first month, &c. i.e. On the first day of the second year after their coming out of Egypt. On the fifteenth day of the first month the Israelites came out of Egypt; on the fiftieth day after, the law was given, with several intervening delays. Moses spent at least eighty days upon the mount: half of the year must therefore be expired, or perhaps more, before they began work upon the tabernacle: and, half a year, or somewhat less, the whole was finished.

15. In anointing, priesthood, &c. i.e. By this first unction, the inferior priests shall be consecrated once for all, and installed in their office; and the calling shall pass to their generations from father to son, unto the end of the ceremonial worship, the anointing being no more required to be reiterated in their posterity; for they were the high-priests only, who were anointed in following times.

34. A cloud covered the tabernacle, &c. i.e. This was that testimony of the divine presence which had led them hither, and for some time had rested on the tent of Moses, and which had now took possession of the tabernacle, where it continued in the form of a cloud by day, and a pillar of fire by night. The shekinah now made awful and pompous entry into the tabernacle, through the outer part of which it passed into the most holy place, the presence chamber, No. 9.

19 And he spread abroad the tent over the tabernacle, and put the covering of the tent above upon it; as the LORD commanded Moses. Before CHRIST 1491.

20 ¶ And he took and put the testimony into the ark, and set the staves on the ark, and put the mercy seat above upon the ark:

22 ¶ And he put the table in the tent of the congregation, upon the side of the tabernacle northward, without the veil.

23 And he set the bread in order upon it before the LORD; as the LORD had commanded Moses.

24 ¶ And he put the candlestick in the tent of the congregation, over against the table, on the side of the tabernacle southward.

25 And he lighted the lamps before the LORD, as the LORD commanded Moses.

26 ¶ And he put the golden altar in the tent of the congregation before the veil:

27 And he burnt sweet incense thereon; as the LORD commanded Moses.

28 ¶ And he set up the hanging at the door of the tabernacle.

33 ¶ And he reared up the court round about the tabernacle and the altar, and set up the hanging of the court gate. So Moses finished the work.

34 ¶ Then a cloud covered the tent of the congregation, and the glory of the LORD filled the tabernacle.

35 And Moses was not able to enter into the tent of the congregation, because the cloud abode thereon, and the glory of the LORD filled the tabernacle.

36 And when the cloud was taken up from over the tabernacle, the children of Israel went onward in all their journeys:

37 But if the cloud were not taken up, then they journeyed not till the day that it was taken up.

38 For the cloud of the LORD was upon the tabernacle by day, and fire was on it by night, in the sight of the house of Israel, throughout all their journeys.

and there seated itself between the cherubims. Thus the Lord testified his acceptance of their service, his intire reconciliation to them as his people, and his gracious residence among them.

36. When the cloud was taken up, &c. i.e. Which cloud was the guide to the camp of Israel through the wilderness. While it continued in the tabernacle, they rested; when it removed, they removed also, and followed it, being purely under a divine conduct.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XL.

First, as the Jewish tabernacle was made according to the order of God, let that teach us that no man has a right to set up a new religion, without a special call from God. Secondly, As God was pleased so to dispose every thing, as to suit the conveniences of the people, it is the duty of princes, and even inferior magistrates, when they establish places for divine worship, to take care that the people may be as well accommodated as possible. Lastly, As all these things, both in this and the preceding chapters, were typical of Christ, let us bless God that we live under the gospel dispensation, where shadows and types are done away by the death of our Redeemer; who was the end of the law for salvation to all those who believe his word, and obey his commandments.

LEVITICUS.

THE ARGUMENT.

This book contains an account of the Jewish service and worship, and describes the office of the Levitical priesthood; for which reason it is termed, both by the Latin and Greek translations, Leviticus. It contains several interesting particulars, which serve to establish the divinity of Moses's legation. The historical parts are but few, though very instructive; taking up no more than about the space of one month.

1 The burnt offerings, 3 of the herd, 10 of the flocks, 14 of the fowls.

AND the LORD called unto Moses, and spake unto him out of the tabernacle of the congregation, saying

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, If any man of you bring an offering unto the LORD, ye shall bring your offering of the cattle, even of the herd, and of the flock.

3 ¶ If his offering be a burnt sacrifice of the herd, let him offer a male without blemish: he shall offer it of his own voluntary will at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation before the LORD.

4 And he shall put his hand upon the head of the burnt offering; and it shall be accepted for him to make atonement for him.

5 And he shall kill the bullock before the LORD: and the priests, Aaron's sons, shall bring the blood, and sprinkle the blood round about upon the altar that is by the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

6 And he shall slay the burnt offering, and cut it into his pieces.

7 And the sons of Aaron the priest shall put fire upon the altar, and lay the wood in order upon the fire.

8 And the priests, Aaron's sons, shall lay the parts, the head, and the fat, in order upon the wood that is on the fire which is upon the altar.

9 But his inwards and his legs shall he wash in water: and the priest shall burn all on the altar, to be a burnt sacrifice, an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

10 ¶ And if his offering be of the flocks, namely, of the sheep, or of the goats, for a burnt sacrifice; he shall bring it a male without blemish.

11 And he shall kill it on the side of the altar northward before the LORD: and the priests, Aaron's sons, shall sprinkle his blood round about upon the altar.

12 And he shall cut it into his pieces, with his head and his fat: and the priest shall lay them in order on the wood that is on the fire which is upon the altar.

13 But he shall wash the inwards and the legs with water: and the priest shall bring it all, and burn it upon the altar: it is a burnt sacrifice, an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

14 ¶ And if the burnt sacrifice for his offering to the LORD be of fowls, then he shall bring his offering of turtledoves, or of young pigeons.

15 And the priest shall bring it unto the altar, and wring off his head, and burn it on the altar; and the blood thereof shall be wrung out at the side of the altar.

16 And he shall pluck away his crop with his feathers, and cast it beside the altar on the east part, by the place of the ashes.

17 And he shall cleave it with the wings thereof, but shall not divide it asunder: and the priest shall burn it upon the altar, upon the wood that is upon the fire: it is a burnt sacrifice, an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. I.

2 If any man of you bring an offering, &c.] We should observe, that the offering of sacrifices is here a positive but rather a permissive injunction of Moses. The very light of nature directs man, some way or other, to do honour to his Maker, and pay homage to his Lord: sacrifices, attended with a great variety of ceremonies, had been common in the world long before the Mosaic institution; and the lawgiver takes it for granted, that the people would be inclined to bring their offerings to the Lord.

3 Of his voluntary will, &c.] There was a stated number of burnt offerings for the whole congregation, continually offered up year by year; two were daily offered, called the morning and evening sacrifice, besides the additional ones on every sabbath, new moon, and festival; those for private persons, and to be offered on particular occasions and emergencies, are specified in the law; but besides these, there were many offered voluntarily.

5 He shall kill, &c.] It is in the Greek, They shall kill; meaning the priests or Levites, whose charge it was.

7 Shall put fire upon the altar, &c.] i. e. Shall keep up, by adding fresh fuel, and preserve the fire, which fell from heaven, Lev. ix. 24. upon the altar: for the law says afterwards, "the fire upon the altar shall be burning in it, it shall not be put out," chap. vi. 12.

9 The priest shall burn, &c.] One of the inferior priests, and not the high priest is here meant.

14 If the burnt sacrifice be of fowls, &c.] The people who could not afford a sheep or a goat, might offer a bird; a sufficient argument that it was not the gift, but only the disposition of the giver that was regarded by God; a turtledove being as acceptable to the supreme Being, as the choicest of the herd and the flock.

15 And the priest shall bring it unto the altar, &c.] i. e. The south-east horn of it; near which was the place of ashes, into which the crop and its feathers were cast.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. I.

Besides the great sacrifices at stated times, there were others of a voluntary nature; hence we learn, that besides our attendance on public worship, we should set apart particular times for worshipping God in private. Nothing is more pleasing to him than when with hearts free, open, and sincere, we approach God in a way of duty. Let us also admire the great goodness of God, who demanded nothing in sacrifice, but what suited the circumstances of the person to give. God requires truth and sincerity of heart, as more valuable than all the creation; and as he is so condescending as to consider the poor, so it is our duty to sympathize with them, and relieve their wants.

AND when any will offer a meat offering unto the LORD, his offering shall be of fine flour; and he shall pour oil upon it, and put frankincense thereon.

2 And he shall bring it to Aaron's sons the priests: and he shall take thereof his handful of the flour thereof, and of the oil thereof, with all the frankincense thereof: and the priest shall burn the memorial of it upon the altar, to be an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD:

3 And the remnant of the meat offering shall be Aaron's and his sons'; it is a thing most holy of the offerings of the LORD made by fire.

4 ¶ And if thou bring an oblation of a meat offering baken in the oven, it shall be unleavened cakes of fine flour mingled with oil, or unleavened wafers anointed with oil.

5 ¶ And if thy oblation be a meat offering taken in a pan, it shall be of fine flour unleavened, mingled with oil.

6 Thou shalt part it in pieces, and pour oil thereon: it is a meat offering.

7 ¶ And if thy oblation be a meat offering baken in the fryingpan, it shall be made of fine flour with oil.

8 And thou shalt bring the meat offering that is made of these things unto the LORD: and when it is presented unto the priest, he shall bring it unto the altar.

9 And the priest shall take from the meat offering a memorial thereof, and shall burn it upon the altar: it is an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

10 And that which is left of the meat offering shall be Aaron's and his sons': it is a thing most holy of the offerings of the LORD made by fire.

11 No meat offering, which ye shall bring unto the LORD, shall be made with leaven: for ye shall burn no leaven, nor any honey, in any offering of the LORD made by fire.

12 ¶ As for the oblation of the first fruits, ye shall offer them unto the LORD: but they shall not be burnt on the altar for a sweet savour.

13 ¶ And every oblation of thy meat offering shalt thou season with salt: neither shalt thou suffer the salt of the covenant of thy God to be lacking from thy meat offering: with all thine offerings thou shalt offer salt.

14 ¶ And if thou offer a meat offering of thy first-fruits unto the LORD, thou shalt offer for the meat offering of thy first-fruits green ears of corn dried by the fire, even corn beaten out of full ears.

15 And thou shalt put oil upon it, and lay frankincense thereon: it is a meat offering.

16 And the priest shall burn the memorial of it, part of the beaten corn thereof, and part of the oil thereof, with all the frankincense thereof: it is an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. II.

1 A meat offering, &c.] Being for the most part made of the flour of wheat, might with greater propriety be called a heat offering.

11 A meat offering—shall be made with leaven, &c.] To remind them partly of their great deliverance out of Egypt, when they were forced to carry away their dough before it was leavened; and partly in opposition to the custom of the heathens in such cases, who made their sacrificed bread of the lightest and sweetest kind possible.

12 They shall not be burnt, &c.] We find in Numb. xviii. 13, that the first-fruits were not offered to God by fire; but after consecration, were for the priest's use.

16 Shall burn the memorial, &c.] From the meat offerings that were offered on the altar, the priest took an handful, and burnt for a memorial, the remainder being for the use of the priests.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. II.

With respect to the offerings, part of them were given to the priests; which should teach us, that faithful ministers are intitled to part of the fruits of industry. The vast number of ceremonies shew the infinite goodness of God, in taking so much pains to preserve the people from falling into idolatry; and as all these rites and ceremonies were binding on the children of Israel, let us take heed that we neglect not to perform every duty of the gospel.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. III.

1 A sacrifice of peace offering, &c.] A sacrifice of thanksgiving for any kind of blessing. The burnt offerings had regard to God, as he is, in himself, the best of beings, most perfect, and most excellent; were purely expressive of adoration, and therefore were wholly burned; but the peace offering had regard to God, as he is the great benefactor to his creatures, and the giver of all good things; and therefore these were divided between the altar, the priest, and the owner. The priest, who was ordained for men in things pertaining to God, gave part of the peace offerings to God, burning it upon his altar; part he gave to the offerer, to be eaten by him with his family and friend; and part was his portion. This participation, as it were of the offering, spoke harmony and agreement, was a symbol of friendship and fellowship between God and man, and a confirmation of the covenant of peace.

5 Upon the burnt sacrifice, &c.] It is to be remarked, that the offerings never begun with the sacrifices of peace offerings or thanksgiving, but with those of expiation or atonement; and the peace offering is enjoined upon after the burnt sacrifice, shew that no work of service or homage can be acceptable to God, if the expiation or atonement for sin do not precede it.

9 The whole rump, &c.] The whole rump of the sheep was to be burned with the fat of the inwards upon the altar, because in those countries it was very large and fat.

1 The sin offering of ignorance for the priest, 13 for the congregation, 22 for a ruler, 27 for any of the people.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, ■ Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, If a soul shall sin through ignorance against any of the commandments of the LORD concerning things which ought not to be done, and shall do against any of them:

3 If the priest that is anointed do sin according to the sin of the people; then let him bring for his sin, which he hath sinned, a young bullock without blemish unto the LORD for a sin offering.

4 And he shall bring the bullock unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation before the LORD; and shall lay his hand upon the bullock's head, and kill the bullock before the LORD.

5 And the priest that is anointed shall take of the bullock's blood, and bring it to the tabernacle of the congregation.

6 And the priest shall dip his finger in the blood, and sprinkle of the blood seven times before the LORD, before the veil of the sanctuary.

7 And the priest shall put some of the blood upon the horns of the altar of sweet incense before the LORD, which is in the tabernacle of the congregation; and shall pour all the blood of the bullock at the bottom of the altar of the burnt offering, which is at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

8 And he shall take off from it all the fat of the bullock for the sin offering; the fat that covereth the inwards, and all the fat that is upon the inwards,

9 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, which is by the flanks, and the caul above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away,

10 As it was taken off from the bullock of the sacrifice of peace offerings: and the priest shall burn them upon the altar of the burnt offering.

11 And the skin of the bullock, and all his flesh, with his head, and with his legs, and his inwards, and his dung,

12 Even the whole bullock shall he carry forth without the camp unto a clean place, where the ashes are poured out, and burn him on the wood with fire: where the ashes are poured out shall he be burnt.

13 ¶ And if the whole congregation of Israel sin

17 Throughout all your dwellings, &c.] Meaning not only in the public sacrifices, but also in private dwellings; where those kinds of fat not being offered to God, it is likely were thrown away, as the blood was, and not eaten, or made use of.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. III.

From the necessity the poor were under to offer sacrifices to God, let us learn first, That we should deny ourselves many indulgences; in order to remove the burden from the poor. Secondly, From the victims being burnt, that God would have us subdue all our lusts, and that our devotions should ascend, as on a flame, up to his throne. Lastly, Seeing God took so much care of the Israelites, he will also take equal care of us, if we love and serve him.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. IV.

2 Shall sin through ignorance, &c.] If any person committed sin presumptuously, and with an avowed contempt of the law, that offender was to be cut off; but if the offender was either ignorant of the law, as in divers instances we may suppose many were, so numerous and various were the injunctions and prohibitions; or if he was surprised into a transgression of the law unawares; in these cases relief was provided by the remedial law of the sin offering.

through ignorance, and the thing be hid from the eyes of the assembly, and they have done somewhat against any of the commandments of the LORD concerning things which should not be done, and are guilty.

14 When the sin, which they have sinned against it, is known, then the congregation shall offer a young bullock for the sin, and bring him before the tabernacle of the congregation.

15 And the elders of the congregation shall lay their hands upon the head of the bullock before the LORD: and the bullock shall be killed before the LORD.

16 And the priest that is anointed shall bring of the bullock's blood to the tabernacle of the congregation.

17 And the priest shall dip his finger in some of the blood, and sprinkle it seven times before the LORD, even before the veil.

18 And he shall put some of the blood upon the horns of the altar which is before the LORD, that is in the tabernacle of the congregation, and shall pour out all the blood at the bottom of the altar of the burnt offering, which is at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

19 And he shall take all his fat from him, and burn it upon the altar.

20 And he shall do with the bullock as he did with the bullock for a sin offering, so shall he do with this: and the priest shall make an atonement for them, and it shall be forgiven them.

21 And he shall carry forth the bullock without the camp, and burn him as he burned the first bullock: it is a sin offering for the congregation.

22 ¶ When a ruler hath sinned, and done somewhat through ignorance against any of the commandments of the LORD his God concerning things which should not be done, and is guilty;

23 Or if his sin, wherein he hath sinned, come to his knowledge; he shall bring his offering, a kid of the goats, a male without blemish:

24 And he shall lay his hand upon the head of the goat, and kill it in the place where they kill the burnt offering before the LORD; it is a sin offering.

25 And the priest shall take of the blood of the sin offering with his finger, and put it upon the horns of the altar of burnt offering, and shall pour out his blood at the bottom of the altar of burnt offering.

26 And he shall burn all the fat upon the altar, as the fat of the sacrifice of peace offerings; and the priest shall make an atonement for him as concerning his sin, and it shall be forgiven him.

27 ¶ And if any one of the common people sin through ignorance, while he doeth somewhat against any of the commandments of the LORD concerning things which ought not to be done, and be guilty.

28 Or

The offender might expiate by sacrifice for crimes, if committed ignorantly; for which, if they had been done presumptuously, the criminal was to have been destroyed without mercy.

3 If the priest, &c.] The priest's office did not so far excuse his offences, that they should be forgiven without a sacrifice; nor yet on the other hand did it so far aggravate them, but that they should be forgiven him, if he brought his sacrifice.

12 Without the camp—where the ashes are poured out, &c.] How expressively typical this circumstance is of Christ, who suffered without the gate, in the place of a scull, where the ashes of dead men, as those of the altar, were poured out. And of this the apostle takes notice, making the same application of this ceremony: "the bodies of those beasts, whose blood is brought into the sanctuary by the high priest for sin, are burnt without the camp: wherefore Jesus also, that he might sanctify the people with his own blood, suffered without the gate: let us go therefore unto him without the camp, &c." Heb. xiii. 11, 12, 13.

13 If the whole congregation of Israel sin through ignorance, &c.] This is the law for expiating the sin of the whole community, and not only of the representatives only and the rulers of the people, some commentators understand it.

23 Or if his sin, &c.] And if his sin, &c. or, as soon as his sin, &c.

30 And the priest shall take of the blood thereof with his finger, and put it upon the horns of the altar of burnt offering, and shall pour out all the blood thereof at the bottom of the altar.

31 And he shall take away all the fat thereof, as the fat is taken away from off the sacrifice of peace offerings; and the priest shall burn it upon the altar for a sweet savour unto the LORD; and the priest shall make an atonement for him, and it shall be forgiven him.

32 And if he bring ■ lamb for ■ sin offering, he shall bring it a female without blemish.

33 And he shall lay his hand upon the head of the sin offering, and slay it for ■ sin offering in the place where they kill the burnt offering.

34 And the priest shall take of the blood of the sin offering, with his finger, and put it upon the horns of the altar of burnt offering, and shall pour out all the blood thereof at the bottom of the altar:

35 And he shall take away all the fat thereof, as the fat of the lamb is taken away from the sacrifice of the peace offering; and the priest shall burn them upon the altar, according to the offerings made by fire unto the LORD: and the priest shall make an atonement for his sin that he hath committed, and it shall be forgiven him.

CHAP. V.

1 The trespass offering of one that sinneth in concealing his knowledge, in touching an unclean thing, or in making an oath; from the flock, 7 or of fowls, 11 or of flour. 14 The trespass offering in cases of sacrilege, 17 and in sins of ignorance.

AND if a soul sin, and hear the voice of swearing, and is a witness, whether he hath seen or known of it; if he do not utter it, then he shall bear his iniquity.

2 Or if a soul touch any unclean thing, whether it be a carcase of an unclean beast, or a carcase of unclean cattle, or the carcase of unclean creeping things, and if it be hidden from him; he also shall be unclean, and guilty.

3 Or if he touch the uncleanness of man, whatsoever uncleanness it be that a man shall be defiled withal, and it be hid from him; when he knoweth of it, then he shall be guilty.

4 Or if a soul swear, pronouncing with his lips to do evil or to do good, whatsoever it be that a man shall pronounce with an oath, and it be hid from him; when he knoweth of it, then he shall be guilty in one of these.

5 And it shall be, when he shall be guilty in one of these things, that he shall confess that he hath sinned in that thing:

28 A female without blemish, &c.] This is the only circumstance wherein the sin offering for one of the common people differs from that for ■ ruler. There a male kid was required, here ■ female.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. IV.

In this chapter we are first to learn, that God would have us repent of every sin, seeing sacrifices were enjoined for sins of ignorance. Secondly, As the rulers or magistrates were obliged to offer sacrifice, we are taught, that no person was exempted from repentance, even for sins of ignorance. Thirdly, As the sinner laid his hand upon the head of the victim, so we are, if we would be saved, to lay hold of the gospel by faith. Lastly, That though these ceremonies had ■ virtue in themselves, yet God made them efficacious by his power.

10 And he shall offer the second for a burnt offering, according to the manner: and the priest shall make an atonement for him for his sin which he hath sinned, and it shall be forgiven him.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. V.

We are here taught, first, That it is a heinous crime not to declare the truth, when called upon. Secondly, When we have committed any sin through ignorance, and are conscious of it, we ought to confess it, in order to obtain forgiveness.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. VI.

2 And lie unto his neighbour, &c.] This is a continuation of the law of the trespass offering; and the kinds of trespasses which are here instanced, are, denying a trust; defrauding a partner; disowning a wrong and robbery; deceiving in dealings; and detaining what is found. Though all these instances relate to a neighbour, yet they are called trespasses against the Lord, not only because of the affront which is hereby given to his master and our master, but because also the sins here mentioned are principally such as are committed in secret, and may therefore emphatically be said to be committed against the Lord, to whom alone the secrets of all hearts are disclosed.

9 Command Aaron and his sons, &c.] The instructions hitherto given to Moses were concerning the sacrifices that were to be offered, but the instructions he was to give to the priests begin here.

13 The fire shall ever be burning, &c.] We are taught by this law to keep up in our minds a constant disposition to all acts of piety and devotion, a habitual affection to divine things, so as to be always ready to every good work and word.

17 For their portion, &c.] Such was the law of the burnt offerings, that it imposed upon the priests a great deal of care and work, and allowed them little profit; for the flesh was wholly burned, and the priests had nothing but the skin: but to make them amends, the greatest part of the meat offering belonged to them.

20 In the day, &c.] It would read better, from, or after the day.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. VI.

As those who had goods deposited in their hands were not to detain them unjustly, so the same law is binding upon us. Secondly, As the priests were to have much of the victim sacrificed, as would serve them in victuals; so under the gospel dispensation, we

Before CHRIST 1490. LIKEWISE this is the law of the trespass offering: it is most holy.

2 In the place where they kill the burnt offering shall they kill the trespass offering: and the blood thereof shall he sprinkle round about upon the altar.

4 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is on them, which is by the flanks, and the caul that is above the liver, with the kidneys, it he shall take away.

5 And the priest shall burn them upon the altar for an offering made by fire unto the LORD: it is a trespass offering.

6 Every male among the priests shall eat thereof: it shall be eaten in the holy place: it is most holy.

7 As the sin offering is, so is the trespass offering: there is one law for them: the priest that maketh atonement therewith shall have it.

8 And the priest that offereth any man's burnt offering, even the priest shall have to himself the skin of the burnt offering which he hath offered.

9 And all the meat offering that is baked in the oven, and all that is dressed in the frying pan, and in the pan, shall be the priest's that offereth it.

10 And every meat offering, mingled with oil, and dry, shall all the sons of Aaron have, one as much as another.

11 ¶ And this is the law of the sacrifice of peace offerings, which he shall offer unto the LORD.

12 If he offer it for ■ thanksgiving, then he shall offer with the sacrifice of thanksgiving unleavened cakes mingled with oil, and unleavened wafers anointed with oil, and cakes mingled with oil, of fine flour, fried.

13 Besides the cakes, he shall offer for his offering leavened bread with the sacrifice of thanksgiving of his peace offerings.

14 And of it he shall offer one out of the whole oblation for an heave offering unto the LORD, and it shall be the priest's that sprinkleth the blood of the peace offerings.

15 And the flesh of the sacrifice of his peace offerings for thanksgiving shall be eaten the same day that it is offered; he shall not leave any of it until the morning.

16 But if the sacrifice of his offering be a vow, or ■ voluntary offering; it shall be eaten the same day that he offereth his sacrifice: and on the morrow also the remainder of it shall be eaten:

17 But the remainder of the flesh of the sacrifice on the third day shall be burnt with fire.

18 And if any of the flesh of the sacrifice of his peace offerings be eaten at all on the third day, it shall not be accepted, neither shall it be imputed unto him that offereth it: it shall be an abomination, and the soul that eateth it shall bear his iniquity.

19 And the flesh that toucheth any unclean thing shall not be eaten: it shall be burnt with fire: and ■ for the flesh, all that be clean shall eat thereof.

20 But the soul that eateth of the flesh of the sacrifice of peace offerings, that pertain unto the LORD,

Before CHRIST 1490. having his uncleanness upon him, even that soul shall be cut off from his people.

21 Moreover the soul that shall touch any unclean thing, as the uncleanness of man, or any unclean beast, or any abominable unclean thing, and eat of the flesh of the sacrifice of peace offerings, which pertain unto the LORD, even that soul shall be cut off from his people.

22 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

23 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, Ye shall eat no manner of fat, of ox, or of sheep, or of goat.

24 And the fat of the beast that dieth of itself, and the fat of that which is torn with beasts, may be used in any other use: but ye shall in no wise eat of it.

25 For whosoever eateth the fat of the beast, of which men offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD, even the soul that eateth it shall be cut off from his people.

26 Moreover ye shall eat no manner of blood, whether it be of fowl or of beast, in any of your dwellings.

27 Whatsoever soul it be that eateth any manner of blood, even that soul shall be cut off from his people.

28 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

29 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, He that offereth the sacrifice of his peace offerings unto the LORD shall bring his oblation unto the LORD of the sacrifice of his peace offerings.

30 His own hands shall bring the offerings of the LORD made by fire, the fat with the breast, it shall he bring, that the breast may be waved for ■ wave offering before the LORD.

31 And the priest shall burn the fat upon the altar: but the breast shall be Aaron's and his sons'.

32 And the right shoulder shall ye give unto the priest for an heave offering of the sacrifices of your peace offerings.

33 He among the sons of Aaron, that offereth the blood of the peace offerings, and the fat, shall have the right shoulder for his part.

34 For the wave breast and the heave shoulder have I taken of the children of Israel from off the sacrifices of their peace offerings, and have given them unto Aaron the priest and unto his sons by a statute for ever from among the children of Israel.

35 ¶ This is the portion of the anointing of Aaron, and of the anointing of his sons, out of the offerings of the LORD made by fire, in the day when he presented them to minister unto the LORD in the priest's office;

36 Which the LORD commanded to be given them of the children of Israel, in the day that he anointed them, by a statute for ever throughout their generations.

37 This is the law of the burnt offering, of the meat offering, and of the sin offering, and of the trespass offering, and of the consecrations, and of the sacrifice of the peace offering;

38 Which the LORD commanded Moses in mount Sinai, in the day that he commanded the children of Israel to offer their oblations unto the LORD, in the wilderness of Sinai.

C H A P.

we are to provide ministers ■ proper subsistence. Lastly, With respect to the fire burning continually on the altar, we should reflect, that it is our duty and privilege to keep the fear and love of God always in every act we do.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. VII.

7 Sin offering—trespass offering, &c.] Both sin offering and trespass offering are sometimes put one for the other; but strictly the former implies an offering for an offence committed directly against God; the latter, for an offence committed more immediately against man.

■ Shall have to himself the skin of the burnt offering, &c.] This is meant only of the burnt offerings which were offered by particular persons; for the profit of the daily offerings for the congregation went to the repair of the sanctuary.

11 Peace offerings, &c.] These offerings were made either in thankfulness for some special mercy received; or in performance of some vow, which a man made when he was in distress; or in supplication for some special mercy which a man was in expectation and pursuit of.

23 No manner of fat, &c.] Not meaning the fat mixed with the meat, but only that which is upon the inwards, and upon the two kidneys.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. VII.

The manner in which the trespass offering was offered up, points out what ■ necessary thing true repentance is; and as the sacrifice could not be offered up without action, so true repentance is an active thing; for unless there is ■ total change in the conversation, ■ real repentance has taken place. Lastly, From God's enjoining the Israelites to support the priests, we are taught to treat with reverence every thing set apart for divine service, especially the ministers of the word.

1 Moses consecrateth Aaron and his sons. 14 Their sin offering. 18. Their burnt offering. 22 The ram of consecration. 31 The place and time of their consecration.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,
2 Take Aaron and his sons with him, and the garments, and the anointing oil, and a bullock for the sin offering, and two rams, and a basket of unleavened bread;

3 And gather thou all the congregation together unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

4 And Moses did as the LORD commanded him; and the assembly was gathered together unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

5 And Moses said unto the congregation, This is the thing which the LORD commanded to be done.

6 And Moses brought Aaron and his sons, and washed them with water.

7 And he put upon him the coat, and girded him with the girdle, and clothed him with the robe, and put the ephod upon him, and he girded him with the curious girdle of the ephod, and bound it unto him therewith.

8 And he put the breastplate upon him: also he put in the breastplate the Urim and Thummim.

9 And he put the mitre upon his head; also upon the mitre, even upon his forefront, did he put the golden plate, the holy crown; as the LORD commanded Moses.

10 And Moses took the anointing oil, and anointed the tabernacle and all that was therein, and sanctified them.

11 And he sprinkled thereof upon the altar seven times, and anointed the altar and all his vessels, both the laver and his foot, to sanctify them.

12 And he poured of the anointing oil upon Aaron's head, and anointed him, to sanctify him.

13 And Moses brought Aaron's sons, and put coats upon them, and girded them with girdles, and put bonnets upon them; as the LORD commanded Moses.

14 ¶ And he brought the bullock for the sin offering: and Aaron and his sons laid their hands upon the head of the bullock for the sin offering.

15 And he slew it; and Moses took the blood, and put it upon the horns of the altar round about with his finger, and purified the altar, and sanctified it, to make reconciliation upon it.

16 And he took all the fat that was upon the inwards, and the caul above the liver, and the two kidneys, and their fat, and Moses burnt it upon the altar.

17 But the bullock, and his hide, his flesh, and his dung, he burnt with fire without the camp; as the LORD commanded Moses.

18 ¶ And he brought the ram for the burnt offering: and Aaron and his sons laid their hands upon the head of the ram.

19 And he killed it; and Moses sprinkled the blood upon the altar round about.

20 And he cut the ram into pieces; and Moses burnt the head, and the pieces, and the fat.

21 And he washed the inwards and the legs in water; and Moses burnt the whole ram upon the altar: it was a burnt sacrifice for a sweet savour, and an offering made by fire unto the LORD; as the LORD commanded Moses.

22 The ram of consecration, &c.] This of consecration was a kind of peace offering.

33 Ye shall not go out of the door] It would have been better if rendered, Ye shall not go from the door; for the consecration was not performed in, but at the door of the tabernacle; nor were they permitted to enter the sanctuary, till the ceremony was concluded.

24 And he brought Aaron's sons, and Moses put of the blood upon the tip of their right ear, and upon the thumbs of their right hands, and upon the great toes of their right feet: and Moses sprinkled the blood upon the altar round about.

25 And he took the fat, and the rump, and all the fat that was upon the inwards, and the caul above the liver, and the two kidneys, and their fat, and the right shoulder:

26 And out of the basket of unleavened bread, that was before the LORD, he took one unleavened cake, and a cake of oiled bread, and one wafer, and put them on the fat, and upon the right shoulder:

27 And he put all upon Aaron's hands, and upon his sons' hands, and waved them for a wave offering before the LORD.

28 And Moses took them from off their hands, and burnt them on the altar upon the burnt offering: they were consecrations for a sweet savour: it is an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

29 And Moses took the breast, and waved it for a wave offering before the LORD: for of the ram of consecration it was Moses' part; as the LORD commanded Moses.

30 And Moses took up the anointing oil, and of the blood which was upon the altar, and sprinkled it upon Aaron, and upon his garments, and upon his sons, and upon his sons' garments, with him; and sanctified Aaron, and his garments, and his sons, and his sons' garments with him.

31 ¶ And Moses said unto Aaron and to his sons, Boil the flesh at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: and there eat it with the bread that is in the basket of consecrations, as I commanded, saying, Aaron and his sons shall eat it.

32 And that which remaineth of the flesh and of the bread shall ye burn with fire.

33 And ye shall not go out of the door of the tabernacle of the congregation in seven days, until the days of your consecration be at an end: for seven days shall he consecrate you.

34 As he hath done this day, so the LORD hath commanded to do, to make an atonement for you.

35 Therefore shall ye abide at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation day and night seven days, and keep the charge of the LORD, that ye die not: for so I am commanded.

36 So Aaron and his sons did all things which the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. VIII.

The solemn consecration of the priests shews, that no person has right to take upon him the work of the ministry, till he is ordained; and the holiness enjoined such, should excite them to be exemplary in their lives. Lastly, The readiness with which Moses obeyed the Divine command, should teach us to be obedient in all things.

3 And unto the children of Israel thou shalt speak, saying, Take ye a kid of the goats for a sin offering; and a calf and a lamb, both of the first year, without blemish, for a burnt offering;

4 Also a bullock and a ram for peace offerings, to sacrifice before the LORD; and a meat offering mingled with oil: for to-day the LORD will appear unto you.

5 And they brought that which Moses commanded before the tabernacle of the congregation: and all the congregation drew near and stood before the LORD.

6 And Moses said, This is the thing which the LORD commanded that ye should do: and the glory of the LORD shall appear unto you.

7 And Moses said unto Aaron, Go unto the altar, and offer thy sin offering, and thy burnt offering, and make an atonement for thyself, and for the people: and offer the offering of the people, and make an atonement for them; as the LORD commanded.

8 ¶ Aaron therefore went unto the altar, and slew the calf of the sin offering, which was for himself.

9 And the sons of Aaron brought the blood unto him; and he dipped his finger in the blood, and put it upon the horns of the altar, and poured out the blood at the bottom of the altar:

10 But the fat, and the kidneys, and the caul above the liver of the sin offering, he burnt upon the altar; as the LORD commanded Moses.

11 And the flesh and the hide he burnt with fire without the camp.

12 And he slew the burnt offering; and Aaron's sons presented unto him the blood, which he sprinkled round about upon the altar.

13 And they presented the burnt offering unto him, with the pieces thereof, and the head: and he burnt them upon the altar.

14 And he did wash the inwards and the legs, and burnt them upon the burnt offering on the altar.

15 ¶ And he brought the people's offering, and took the goat, which was the sin offering for the people, and slew it, and offered it for sin, as the first.

16 And he brought the burnt offering, and offered it according to the manner.

17 And he brought the meat offering, and took an handful thereof, and burnt it upon the altar, beside the burnt sacrifice of the morning.

18 He slew also the bullock and the ram for a sacrifice of peace offerings, which was for the people: and Aaron's sons presented unto him the blood, which he sprinkled upon the altar round about,

19 And the fat of the bullock and of the ram, the rump, and that which covereth the inwards, and the kidneys, and the caul above the liver:

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. IX.

8 And slew the calf of the sin offering, which was for himself. As these were the first offerings that ever were made by the levitical priesthood, according to the new enacted law of sacrifices, so the historian is very particular in relating the manner of offering them, that it might appear how exactly they agreed with the institution.

23 Went into the tabernacle, &c. It is not said what Moses and Aaron went into the tabernacle to do: some of the Jewish writers say, they went in to pray for the appearance of the divine glory: most probably they went in, that Moses might instruct Aaron how to perform the service that was to be done there.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. IX.

As Aaron offered up sacrifices first for himself; so ministers should practise the duties they teach. God's appearing visible to the people encourages us to hope, that whenever we properly address God in prayer, he will send his blessing; and the prostration of the Israelites teaches us, that in all our approaches to God, we should give him homage with our bodies, as well as with our hearts.

AND Nadab and Abihu, the sons of Aaron, took either of them his censer, and put fire therein, and put incense thereon, and offered strange fire before the LORD, which he commanded them not.

2 And there went out fire from the LORD, and devoured them, and they died before the LORD.

3 Then Moses said unto Aaron, This is it that the LORD spake, saying, I will be sanctified in them that come nigh me, and before all the people I will be glorified. And Aaron held his peace.

4 And Moses called Mishael and Elzaphan, the sons of Uzziel the uncle of Aaron, and said unto them, Come near, carry your brethren from the sanctuary out of the camp.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. X.

1 Offered strange fire before the Lord, which he commanded them not. These last words, "which he commanded them not," certainly imply a prohibition of any other fire than what lately came out from before the Lord, and remained upon the altar, though the history makes no mention of it: and then the crime of Nadab and Abihu consisted in kindling the incense with fire different from what the Lord had ordered them to use.

3 Aaron held his peace. Thus Aaron patiently submitted to the will of God in this sad providence; was dumb, and opened not his mouth, because it was the will of the Lord.

6 Uncover not your heads, &c. Do not shew signs of grief and lamentation. The original signifying both to make bare, and to uncover the head, which was customary in the times of mourning; whilst others understanding the word in the latter acceptation, refer it to the taking off their mitres, and stripping their heads of their ornaments.

7 For the anointing oil of the Lord is upon you, &c. That is, as you are consecrated to God, you must dedicate your affections to him likewise; nor let worldly, inferior objects, possess your minds, and exercise your passions, but devote them all entirely to God.

12 ¶ And Moses spake unto Aaron, and unto Eleazar and unto Ithamar, his sons that were left, Take the meat offering that remaineth of the offerings of the LORD made by fire, and eat it without leaven beside the altar: for it is most holy:

13 And ye shall eat it in the holy place, because it is thy due, and thy sons' due, of the sacrifices of the LORD made by fire: for so I am commanded.

14 And the wave breast and heave shoulder shall ye eat in a clean place; thou, and thy sons, and thy daughters with thee: for they be thy due, and thy sons' due, which are given out of the sacrifices of peace offerings of the children of Israel.

15 The heave shoulder and the wave breast shall they bring with the offerings made by fire of the fat, to wave it for a wave offering before the LORD; and it shall be thine, and thy sons' with thee, by a statute for ever; as the LORD hath commanded.

16 ¶ And Moses diligently sought the goat of the sin offering, and behold, it was burnt: and he was angry with Eleazar and Ithamar, the sons of Aaron which were left alive, saying,

17 Wherefore have ye not eaten the sin offering in the holy place, seeing it is most holy, and God hath given it you to bear the iniquity of the congregation, to make atonement for them before the LORD?

18 Behold, the blood of it was not brought in within the holy place: ye should indeed have eaten it in the holy place, as I commanded.

19 And Aaron said unto Moses, Behold, this day have they offered their sin offering and their burnt offering before the LORD; and such things have befallen me: and if I had eaten the sin offering to-day, should it have been accepted in the sight of the LORD?

1 What beasts may, and what may not be eaten: 9 What fishes: 13 What fowls: 29 The creeping things which are unclean.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and to Aaron, saying unto them, ¶ Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, These are the beasts which ye shall eat among all the beasts that are on the earth.

3 Whatsoever parteth the hoof, and is clovenfooted, and cheweth the cud, among the beasts, that shall ye eat.

4 Nevertheless these shall ye not eat of them that chew the cud, or of them that divide the hoof: as the camel, because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof; he is unclean unto you.

5 And the coney, because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof; he is unclean unto you.

6 And the hare, because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof; he is unclean unto you.

7 And the swine, though he divide the hoof, and be clovenfooted, yet he cheweth not the cud; he is unclean to you.

8 Of their flesh shall ye not eat, and their carcase shall ye not touch; they are unclean to you.

9 ¶ These shall ye eat of all that are in the waters: whatsoever hath fins and scales in the waters, in the seas, and in the rivers, them shall ye eat.

10 And all that have not fins and scales in the seas, and in the rivers, of all that move in the waters, and of any living thing which is in the waters, they shall be an abomination unto you:

11 They shall be even an abomination unto you; ye shall not eat of their flesh, but ye shall have their carcases in abomination.

12 Whatsoever hath no fins nor scales in the waters, that shall be an abomination unto you.

13 ¶ And these are they which ye shall have in abomination among the fowls; they shall not be eaten, they are an abomination: the eagle, and the ossifrage, and the ospray,

14 And the vulture, and the kite after his kind;

15 Every raven after his kind;

16 And the owl, and the night hawk, and the cuckow, and the hawk after his kind,

17 And the little owl, and the cormorant, and the great owl,

18 And the swan, and the pelican, and the gier eagle,

19 And the stork, the heron after her kind, and the lapwing, and the bat.

20 All fowls that creep, going upon all four, shall be an abomination unto you.

21 Yet these may ye eat of every flying creeping thing that goeth upon all four, which have legs above their feet, to leap withal upon the earth;

22 Even these of them ye may eat; the locust after his kind, and the bald locust after his kind, and the beetle after his kind, and the grasshopper after his kind.

23 But all other flying creeping things, which have four feet, shall be an abomination unto you.

24 And for these ye shall be unclean: whosoever toucheth the carcase of them shall be unclean until the even.

25 And whosoever beareth ought of the carcase of them shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even.

26 The carcases of every beast which divideth the hoof, and is not clovenfooted, nor cheweth the cud, are unclean unto you: every one that toucheth them shall be unclean.

27 And whatsoever goeth upon his paws, among all manner of beasts that go on all four, those are unclean unto you: whoso toucheth their carcase shall be unclean until the even.

19 If I had eaten the sin offering to-day, should it have been accepted in the sight of the Lord? As if he had said, Would the great judge of the whole earth have been pleased with me, had I, in such confusion and heaviness of heart, eaten the sacrifice? The voice both of nature and religion declares, that men ought to celebrate feasts with a cheerful heart; but was it possible for me, in this melancholy occasion, to dispose myself properly for such a service?

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. X.

By the dreadful end of Nadab and Abihu we learn what a dangerous thing it is to minister in divine ordinances without real knowledge, lively faith, and sincere repentance; and that we must worship God in spirit and in truth, with pure consciences, and not introduce human inventions. By Aaron's being forbidden to mourn for his sons, we are directed to lament only, when God cuts off a notorious sinner, that he should have incurred such punishment by his wickedness and rebellion.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XI.

¶ These are the beasts which ye shall eat, &c.] Respecting the beasts, allowed to be eaten, the rule laid down is general and plain, namely, those beasts, and those only, which did both part the hoof and chew the cud, were accounted clean.

¶ These shall ye not eat, &c.] Several are the reasons assigned, why God was pleased to allow some kinds of beasts, and to prohibit others. By this he exercised the obedience of his people, not only in the solemnities of his altar, but in matters of daily occurrence at their own table, that they might at all times remember that they were under his authority. By this he would teach his people, to distinguish themselves from other people, not only in their religious worship, but in the common actions of life: some assert, that the meats forbidden were unwholesome or hurtful, or held in veneration among the infidels.

18 The gier eagle] i. e. The vulture eagle; gier being an old English word for vulture.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XI.

From God's appointing what creatures were ■ be used for food, we learn, that he is the universal Lord of nature, and has ■ right to prescribe to his creatures; and we should admire his goodness in prohibiting whatever is hurtful. When God is pleased to reveal the knowledge of himself to any people, he would have them keep up the perpetual remembrance of his name. We are also taught, that as the Israelites were so strictly enjoined to keep their bodies pure from infection by an improper use of meats and drinks, so it is necessary for us to keep our minds free from guilt, that we be considered not merely ■ nominal Christians, but as the temples of the Holy Ghost.

45 For I am the LORD that bringeth you up out of the land of Egypt, to be your God: ye shall therefore be holy, for I am holy.

46 This is the law of the beasts, and of the fowl, and of every living creature that moveth in the waters, and of every creature that creepeth upon the earth:

47 To make ■ difference between the unclean and the clean, and between the beast that may be eaten and the beast that may not be eaten.

CHAP. XII.

1 The purification of a woman after childbirth: 6 her offerings for her purifying.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, ■ Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, If a woman have conceived seed, and borne a man child: then she shall be unclean seven days, according to the days of the separation for infirmity shall she be unclean.

3 And in the eighth day the flesh of his foreskin shall be circumcised.

4 And she shall then continue in the blood of her purifying three and thirty days; she shall touch no hallowed thing, nor come into the sanctuary, until the days of her purifying be fulfilled.

5 But if she bear a maid child, then she shall be unclean two weeks, as in her separation: and she shall continue in the blood of her purifying three-score and six days.

6 ¶ And when the days of her purifying are fulfilled, for a son, or for a daughter, she shall bring ■ lamb of the first year for a burnt offering, and a young pigeon, or ■ turtledove, for ■ sin offering, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, unto the priest:

7 Who shall offer it before the LORD, and make ■ atonement for her; and she shall be cleansed from the issue of her blood. This is the law for her that hath borne a male or a female.

8 And if she be not able to bring a lamb, then she shall bring two turtles, or two young pigeons; the one for the burnt offering, and the other for the sin offering: and the priest shall make an atonement for her, and she shall be clean.

CHAP. XIII.

1, 9, 18, 24, 29, 38 The laws and tokens whereby the priest is to be guided in discerning the leprosy in man or woman; 47 and in a garment.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron, saying,

2 When

4 Three and thirty days; she shall touch no hallowed thing, &c.] Which law not only served to represent that reverence and respect which is due to the public worship of God, but was also a political institution, and supported by natural reason, the weakness of women at this time requiring repose and little company.

5 She shall be unclean two weeks, &c.] We see the purification was doubled for the birth of ■ female; which law seemed to remind them of the fall of man, in which the woman was the first and principal in the transgression.

6 She shall bring a lamb of the first year, &c.] Probable it is, that this law, as well as several others, were intended only during the peregrination of the Jewish commonwealth.

7 She shall be cleansed, &c.] i. e. She shall be restored to the liberty of attending the public worship, and of partaking of the holy things.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XII.

As women are forbidden to attend divine worship for a certain time, let us learn to be modest, decent, and humane, in all our actions. God's compassion to the infirmities of women should teach us to use them with tenderness, as the weaker vessels. The poor condition of the mother of our Lord, who had only the smallest thing to offer for her purification, should induce us to esteem the riches of Christ above all things, and his cross as our highest honour.

Before
CHRIST

■ When a man shall have in the skin of his flesh a rising, a scab, or bright spot, and it be in the skin of his flesh like the plague of leprosy; then he shall be brought unto Aaron the priest, or unto one of his sons the priests:

3 And the priest shall look on the plague in the skin of the flesh: and when the hair in the plague is turned white, and the plague in sight be deeper than the skin of his flesh, it is a plague of leprosy: and the priest shall look on him, and pronounce him unclean.

4 If the bright spot be white in the skin of his flesh, and in sight be not deeper than the skin, and the hair thereof be turned white; then the priest shall shut up him that hath the plague seven days:

5 And the priest shall look on him the seventh day: and, behold, if the plague in his sight be at a stay, and the plague spread not in the skin, then the priest shall shut him up seven days more:

6 And the priest shall look on him again the seventh day: and, behold, if the plague be somewhat dark, and the plague spread not in the skin, the priest shall pronounce him clean: it is but a scab: and he shall wash his clothes, and be clean.

7 But if the scab spread much abroad in the skin, after that he hath been seen of the priest for his cleansing, he shall be seen of the priest again:

■ And if the priest see, that, behold, the scab spreadeth in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is a leprosy.

9 ¶ When the plague of leprosy is in a man, then he shall be brought unto the priest;

10 And the priest shall see him: and, behold, if the rising be white in the skin, and it have turned the hair white, and there be quick raw flesh in the rising;

11 It is an old leprosy in the skin of his flesh, and the priest shall pronounce him unclean, and shall not shut him up: for he is unclean:

12 And if a leprosy break out abroad in the skin, and the leprosy cover all the skin of him that hath the plague from his head even to his foot, wheresoever the priest looketh;

13 Then the priest shall consider: and, behold, if the leprosy hath covered all his flesh, he shall pronounce him clean that hath the plague: it is all turned white: he is clean.

14 But when raw flesh appeareth in him, he shall be unclean.

15 And the priest shall see the raw flesh, and pronounce him to be unclean: for the raw flesh is unclean: it is a leprosy.

16 Or if the raw flesh turn again, and be changed unto white, he shall come unto the priest:

17 And the priest shall see him: and, behold, if the plague be turned into white; then the priest shall pronounce him clean that hath the plague: he is clean.

18 ¶ The flesh also, in which, even in the skin thereof, was a boil, and is healed,

19 And in the place of the boil there be a white rising, or a bright spot, white, and somewhat reddish, and it be shewed to the priest;

20 And if, when the priest seeth it, behold, it be in sight lower than the skin, and the hair thereof be turned white; the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is a plague of leprosy broken-out of the boil.

21 But if the priest look on it, and, behold, there be no white hairs therein, and if it be not lower than the skin, but be somewhat dark; then the priest shall shut him up seven days:

22 And if it spread much abroad in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is a plague.

23 But if the bright spot stay in his place, and spread not, it is a burning boil; and the priest shall pronounce him clean.

24 ¶ Or if there be any flesh, in the skin whereof there is a hot burning, and the quick flesh that burneth have a white bright spot, somewhat reddish, or white;

25 Then the priest shall look upon it: and, behold, if the hair in the bright spot be turned white, and it be in sight deeper than the skin; it is a leprosy broken out of the burning: wherefore the priest shall pronounce him unclean; it is the plague of leprosy.

26 But if the priest look on it, and, behold, there be no white hair in the bright spot, and it be no lower than the other skin, but be somewhat dark; then the priest shall shut him up seven days:

27 And the priest shall look upon him the seventh day; and if it be spread much abroad in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is the plague of leprosy.

28 And if the bright spot stay in his place, and spread not in the skin, but it be somewhat dark; it is a rising of the burning, and the priest shall pronounce him clean: for it is an inflammation of the burning.

29 ¶ If a man or woman have a plague upon the head or the beard;

30 Then the priest shall see the plague: and behold, if it be in sight deeper than the skin; and there be in it a yellow thin hair; then the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is a dry scall, even a leprosy upon the head or beard.

31 And if the priest look on the plague of the scall, and, behold, it be not in sight deeper than the skin; and that there is no black hair in it: then the priest shall shut up him that hath the plague of the scall seven days:

32 And in the seventh day the priest shall look on the plague: and, behold, if the scall spread not, and there be in it no yellow hair, and the scall be not in sight deeper than the skin;

33 He shall be shaven, but the scall shall he not shave; and the priest shall shut up him that hath the scall seven days more:

34 And in the seventh day the priest shall look on the scall: and, behold, if the scall be not spread in the skin, nor be in sight deeper than the skin; then the priest shall pronounce him clean: and he shall wash his clothes, and be clean.

35 But if the scall spread much in the skin after his cleansing;

36 Then the priest shall look on him: and, behold, if the scall be spread in the skin, the priest shall not seek for yellow hair; he is unclean.

37 But if the scall be in his sight at a stay, and that there is black hair grown up therein; the scall is healed, he is clean: and the priest shall pronounce him clean.

38 ¶ If

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XIII.

2 The plague of leprosy, &c.] It appears that the ancient leprosy was one of those diseases with which Providence occasionally afflicts mankind in certain ages and countries, and which continue but a short period. Calmer says, this distemper is owing to little worms or animalcula, which, though not discernable to the eye, may be easily discovered by microscopes, frequently happens in other cutaneous disorders. Galen says, it renders the part affected utterly insensible, which at length by falling off, anticipate the death of the unhappy patient.

10 Quick raw flesh, &c.] Signifying sound flesh.

13 It is all turned white: he is clean.] i.e. When the whole body is turned white, it is not a symptom of leprosy: but when some parts of the skin were remarkably white, and others retained the natural colour, that preternatural whiteness was to be deemed to arise from a leprosy, and so became unclean.

29 A plague upon the head, &c.] The Latins called this Mentagra, from its seat, which was generally in the chin. It began in the chin, spread all over the face, and from thence proceeded to the neck, breast, and hands. It was so intolerable, so filthy a disorder, that any death was reckoned preferable to it.

Before CHRIST 1490. 38 ¶ If a man also or a woman have in the skin of their flesh bright spots, even white bright spots; 39 Then the priest shall look: and, behold, if the bright spots in the skin of their flesh be darkish white; it is ■ freckled spot that groweth in the skin; he is clean. 40 And the man whose hair is fallen off his head, he is bald; yet is he clean. 41 And he that hath his hair fallen off from the part of his head toward his face, he is forehead bald: yet is he clean. 42 And if there be in the bald head, or bald forehead, ■ white reddish sore; it is ■ leprosy sprung up in his bald head, or his bald forehead. 43 Then the priest shall look upon it: and, behold, if the rising of the sore be white reddish in his bald head, or in his bald forehead, as the leprosy appeareth in the skin of the flesh. 44 He is ■ leprous man, he is unclean: the priest shall pronounce him utterly unclean; his plague is in his head. 45 And the leper in whom the plague is, his clothes shall be rent, and his head bare, and he shall put a covering upon his upper lip, and shall cry, Unclean, unclean. 46 All the days wherein the plague shall be in him he shall be defiled; he is unclean: he shall dwell alone; without the camp shall his habitation be. 47 ¶ The garment also that the plague of leprosy is in, whether it be a woollen garment, or a linen garment; 48 Whether it be in the warp, or woof; of linen, or of woollen; whether in a skin, or in any thing made of skin; 49 And if the plague be greenish or reddish in the garment, or in the skin, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any thing of skin; it is a plague of leprosy, and shall be shewed unto the priest: 50 And the priest shall look upon the plague, and shut up it that hath the plague seven days: 51 And he shall look on the plague on the seventh day: if the plague be spread in the garment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in ■ skin, or in any work that is made of skin; the plague is ■ fretting leprosy ■ it is unclean. 52 He shall therefore burn that garment, whether warp or woof, in woollen or in linen, or any thing of skin, wherein the plague is: for it is ■ fretting leprosy; it shall be burnt in the fire. 53 And if the priest shall look, and, behold, the plague be not spread in the garment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any thing of skin; 54 Then the priest shall command that they wash the thing wherein the plague is, and he shall shut it up seven days more: 55 And the priest shall look on the plague, after that it is washed: and, behold, if the plague have not changed his colour, and the plague be not spread; it is unclean; thou shalt burn it in the fire: it is fret inward, whether it be bare within or without. 56 And if the priest look, and, behold, the plague be somewhat dark after the washing of it; then he shall rend it out of the garment, or out of the skin, or out of the warp, or out of the woof: 57 And if it appear still in the garment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any thing of skin; it is a spreading plague: thou shalt burn that wherein the plague is with fire. 58 And the garment, either warp, or woof, or whatsoever thing of skin it be, which thou shalt wash, if the plague be departed from them, then it shall be washed the second time, and shall be clean. 59 This is the law of the plague of leprosy in a garment of woollen or linen, either in the warp, or woof, or any thing of skins; to pronounce it clean, or to pronounce it unclean.

C H A P. XIV.

2 The rites and sacrifices in cleansing the leper. 33 The signs of leprosy in a house. 48 The cleansing of that house.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, 2 ¶ This shall be the law of the leper in the day of his cleansing: He shall be brought unto the priest: 3 And the priest shall go forth out of the camp; and the priest shall look, and, behold, if the plague of leprosy be healed in the leper; 4 Then shall the priest command to take for him that is to be cleansed two birds alive and clean, and cedar wood, and scarlet, and hyssop: 5 And the priest shall command that one of the birds be killed in an earthen vessel over running water: 6 As for the living bird, he shall take it, and the cedar wood, and the scarlet, and the hyssop, and shall dip them and the living bird in the blood of the bird that was killed over the running water: 7 And he shall sprinkle upon him that is to be cleansed from the leprosy seven times, and shall pronounce him clean, and shall let the living bird loose into the open field. 8 And he that is to be cleansed shall wash his clothes, and shave off all his hair, and wash himself in water, that he may be clean: and after that he shall come into the camp, and shall tarry abroad out of his tent seven days. 9 But it shall be on the seventh day, that he shall shave all his hair off his head and his beard and his eyebrows, even all his hair he shall shave off: and he shall wash his clothes, also he shall wash his flesh in water, and he shall be clean. 10 And on the eighth day he shall take two he lambs without blemish, and one ewe lamb of the first year without blemish, and three tenth deals of fine flour for a meat offering, mingled with oil, and one log of oil. 11 And 45 His clothes shall be rent—his head bare.] Which were marks of sorrow; and another was, covering the upper lip, which was performed either with the hand, or by throwing the skirt of their garments over their heads. These ceremonies seem intended not only to preserve passengers from legal impurity, but likewise from catching the disease by contagion.

Shall cry, Unclean, unclean.] In order to warn every one not to touch, or come near him. See Lam. iv. 15.

47 The garment also, &c.] This leprosy in the garments, and in the houses, chap. xiv. 34. in no wise resembled the infection of the plague in clothes, utensils and houses, infected by exhalations of the air, excrements, and the like; which lying upon the superficies, might be cleansed and purified; but it was a corruption peculiar to those times and places, rotting and gnawing them, and spreading as in a living body. We find no mention elsewhere of any such disease.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XIII.

From the tenor of this chapter, we may remark the care which God took to preserve the health of his people: let this consideration excite us to love and obey him as our most generous benefactor and preserver. We are also herein taught, that it becomes us to be cleanly in our persons; for God hates nastiness; and cleanliness is next to godliness.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XIV.

2 Shall be brought unto the priest, &c.] i. e. Without the camp, to a place appointed by the priest.

4 Cedar wood, and scarlet, and hyssop.] The hyssop bound with scarlet round a stick of cedar, served as an instrument to sprinkle the blood and water. The juice or resin of cedar, together with hyssop, were esteemed medicinal for cutaneous distempers; the former was particularly used in curing the elephantiasis, a species of leprosy known only in Egypt; and hyssop was of virtue to dissolve spots, and recover the colour of the skin. By scarlet, in this place, is meant scarlet-wood, which perhaps was likewise looked upon as fanative in such diseases.

7 And shall let the living bird loose into the open field.] Which was done to shew that the leper being cleansed, was no longer under restraint and confinement, but was restored to a free conversation with his neighbours, the bird was ■ the rest of its species.

10 ¶ he lambs—and one ewe lamb.] These being necessary, he ■ offer three sacrifices, viz. ■ trespass offering, a sin offering, and a burnt offering.

One log of oil.] A log contained upwards of half a pint of our measure.

Before CHRIST 1490. 11 And the priest that maketh him clean shall present the man that is to be made clean, and those things before the LORD, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation :

12 And the priest shall take one he lamb, and offer him for ■ trespass offering, and the log of oil, and wave them for a wave offering before the LORD.

13 And he shall slay the lamb in the place where he shall kill the sin offering and the burnt offering, in the holy place: for as the sin offering is the priest's, so is the trespass offering: it is most holy :

14 And the priest shall take some of the blood of the trespass offering, and the priest shall put it upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot.

15 And the priest shall take some of the log of oil, and pour it into the palm of his own left hand :

16 And the priest shall dip his right finger in the oil that is in his left hand, and shall sprinkle of the oil with his finger seven times before the LORD :

17 And of the rest of the oil that is in his hand shall the priest put upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot, upon the blood of the trespass offering :

18 And the remnant of the oil that is in the priest's hand he shall pour upon the head of him that is to be cleansed: and the priest shall make an atonement for him before the LORD.

19 And the priest shall offer the sin offering, and make an atonement for him that is to be cleansed from his uncleanness; and afterward he shall kill the burnt offering :

20 And the priest shall offer the burnt offering and the meat offering upon the altar: and the priest shall make an atonement for him, and he shall be clean.

21 And if he be poor, and cannot get so much; then he shall take one lamb for a trespass offering to be waved, to make ■ atonement for him, and one tenth deal of fine flour mingled with oil for ■ meat offering, and a log of oil ;

22 And two turtledoves, or two young pigeons, such as he is able to get; and the one shall be a sin offering, and the other ■ burnt offering.

23 And he shall bring them on the eighth day for his cleansing unto the priest, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, before the LORD.

24 And the priest shall take the lamb of the trespass offering, and the log of oil, and the priest shall wave them for a wave offering before the LORD.

25 And he shall kill the lamb of the trespass offering, and the priest shall take some of the blood of the trespass offering, and put it upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot :

26 And the priest shall pour of the oil into the palm of his own left hand :

27 And the priest shall sprinkle with his right finger some of the oil that is in his left hand seven times before the LORD.

28 And the priest shall put of the oil that is in his hand upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot, upon the place of the blood of the trespass offering :

29 And the rest of the oil that is in the priest's hand he shall put upon the head of him that is to be cleansed, to make an atonement for him before the LORD.

30 And he shall offer the one of the turtledoves, or of the young pigeons, such as he can get ;

31 Even such as he is able to get, the one for a sin offering, and the other for a burnt offering, with the meat offering: and the priest shall make an atonement for him that is to be cleansed before the LORD.

32 This is the law of him in whom is the plague of leprosy, whose hand is not able to get that which pertaineth to his cleansing.

33 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

34 When ye be come into the land of Canaan, which I give to you for a possession, and I put the plague of leprosy in ■ house of the land of your possession ;

35 And he that owneth the house shall come and tell the priest, saying, It seemeth to me that there is as it were ■ plague in the house :

36 Then the priest shall command that they empty the house, before the priest go into it to see the plague, that all that is in the house be not made unclean: and afterward the priest shall go in to see the house :

37 And he shall look on the plague, and, behold, if the plague be in the walls of the house with hollow strakes, greenish or reddish, which in sight are lower than the wall ;

38 Then the priest shall go out of the house to the door of the house, and shut up the house seven days :

39 And the priest shall come again the seventh day, and shall look: and, behold, if the plague be spread in the walls of the house ;

40 Then the priest shall command that they take away the stones in which the plague is, and they shall cast them into an unclean place without the city :

41 And he shall cause the house to be scraped within round about, and they shall pour out the dust that they scrape off without the city into an unclean place :

42 And they shall take other stones, and put them in the place of those stones; and he shall take other mortar, and shall plaister the house.

43 And if the plague come again, and break out in the house, after that he hath taken away the stones, and after he hath scraped the house, and after it is plaistered ;

44 Then the priest shall come and look, and, behold, if the plague be spread in the house it is a fretting leprosy in the house: it is unclean.

45 And he shall break down the house, the stones of it, and the timber thereof, and all the mortar of the house; and he shall carry them forth out of the city into an unclean place.

46 Moreover he that goeth into the house all the while that it is shut up shall be unclean until the even.

47 And he that lieth in the house shall wash his clothes; and he that eateth in the house shall wash his clothes.

48 ¶ And if the priest shall come in, and look upon it, and, behold, the plague hath not spread in the house, after the house was plaistered: then the priest shall pronounce the house clean, because the plague is healed.

49 And he shall take to cleanse the house two birds, and cedar wood, and scarlet, and hyssop :

50 And

12 And offer him for a trespass offering, &c.] We ■ not to suppose there ■ any trespass in the disease itself, but that sin being the cause of diseases, that sacrifice ■ act of humiliation for sin, from whence all the evils and miseries incident ■ our nature take their rise. The very pagans themselves acknowledged the moral to be the cause of natural evil.

18 And the remnant of the oil, &c.] The oil typified the healing, or recovery from the leprosy, ■ the blood did the remission of sins, &c.

19 And afterward he shall kill the burnt offering.] This being of the nature of a present to God, in gratitude for having worked his cure, was not to be offered till by the previous offerings for trespass and sin, the man made public profession of his sincere repentance, without which he could not meet with acceptance from God.

34 And I put the plague of leprosy in ■ house, &c.] We cannot assign ■ natural cause of this strange plague, but must resolve it unto the power of the God of nature; for shall there be evil in a city, and the Lord hath not done it? Thus we read of the plague of Athens, the plague of Florence, Marseilles, &c. &c.

57 This

Before
CHRIST
1490.

50 And he shall kill the one of the birds in an earthen vessel over running water.

51 And he shall take the cedar wood, and the hyssop, and the scarlet, and the living bird, and dip them in the blood of the slain bird, and in the running water, and sprinkle the house seven times.

52 And he shall cleanse the house with the blood of the bird, and with the running water, and with the living bird, and with the cedar wood, and with the hyssop, and with the scarlet:

53 But he shall let go the living bird out of the city into the open fields, and make an atonement for the house: and it shall be clean.

54 This is the law for all manner of plague of leprosy, and scall,

55 And for the leprosy of a garment, and of a house,

56 And for a rising, and for a scab, and for a bright spot:

57 To teach when it is unclean, and when it is clean: this is the law of leprosy.

CHAP. XV.

1 The uncleanness of men in their issues, and their cleansing. 19 The uncleanness of women in their issues, and their cleansing.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and to Aaron, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When any man hath a running issue out of his flesh, because of his issue he is unclean.

3 And this shall be his uncleanness in his issue: whether his flesh run with his issue, or his flesh be stopped from his issue, it is his uncleanness.

4 Every bed whereon he lieth that hath the issue, is unclean: and every thing, whereon he sitteth, shall be unclean.

5 And whosoever toucheth his bed shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

6 And he that sitteth on any thing whereon he sat that hath the issue shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

7 And he that toucheth the flesh of him that hath the issue shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

8 And if he that hath the issue spit upon him that is clean; then he shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

9 And what saddle soever he rideth upon that hath the issue shall be unclean.

10 And whomsoever toucheth any thing that was under him shall be unclean until the even: and he that beareth any of those things shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

11 And whomsoever he toucheth that hath the issue, and hath not rinsed his hands in water, he shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

12 And the vessel of earth, that he toucheth which hath the issue, shall be broken: and every vessel of wood shall be rinsed in water.

13 And when he that hath an issue is cleansed of his issue; then he shall number to himself seven days for his cleansing, and wash his clothes, and bathe his flesh in running water, and shall be clean. Before CHRIST 1490.

14 And on the eighth day he shall take to him two turtledoves, or two young pigeons, and come before the LORD unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and give them unto the priest.

15 And the priest shall offer them, the one for a sin offering, and the other for a burnt offering; and the priest shall make an atonement for him before the LORD for his issue.

16 And if any man's seed of copulation go out from him, then he shall wash all his flesh in water, and be unclean until the even.

17 And every garment, and every skin, whereon is the seed of copulation, shall be washed with water, and be unclean until the even.

18 The woman also with whom man shall lie with seed of copulation, they shall both bathe themselves in water, and be unclean until the even.

19 ¶ And if a woman have an issue, and her issue in her flesh be blood, she shall be put apart seven days: and whosoever toucheth her shall be unclean until the even.

20 And every thing that she lieth upon in her separation shall be unclean: every thing also that she sitteth upon shall be unclean.

21 And whosoever toucheth her bed shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

22 And whosoever toucheth any thing that she sat upon shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

23 And if it be on her bed, or on any thing whereon she sitteth, when he toucheth it, he shall be unclean until the even.

24 And if any man lie with her at all, and her flowers be upon him, he shall be unclean seven days; and all the bed whereon he lieth shall be unclean.

25 And if a woman have an issue of her blood many days out of the time of her separation, or if it run beyond the time of her separation; all the days of the issue of her uncleanness shall be the days of her separation: she shall be unclean.

26 Every bed whereon she lieth all the days of her issue shall be unto her as the bed of her separation: and whatsoever she sitteth upon shall be unclean, as the uncleanness of her separation.

27 And whosoever toucheth those things shall be unclean, and shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

28 But if she be cleansed of her issue, then she shall number to herself seven days, and after that she shall be clean.

29 And on the eighth day she shall take unto her two turtles, or two young pigeons, and bring them unto the priest, to the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

30 And the priest shall offer the one for a sin offering, and the other for a burnt offering, and the priest shall make an atonement for her before the LORD for the issue of her uncleanness.

31 Thus shall ye separate the children of Israel from their uncleanness; that they die not in their uncleanness, 57 This is the law of leprosy.] i. e. The conclusion of the law of leprosy. There is no repetition of that law in Deuteronomy, only a general memorandum, "Take heed in the plague of leprosy," Deut. xxiv. 8.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XIV.

An instructive lesson is afforded us by the ceremonies used by the priest respecting the cure of the leprosy; which is, that though it is our duty to make use of all proper means for the recovery of health, yet we are not to trust in them: and the malignant nature of the leprosy points out, how odious sin is in the sight of God.

32 This is the law of him in whom is the plague of leprosy, whose hand is not able to get that which pertaineth to his cleansing.

33 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

34 When ye be come into the land of Canaan, which I give to you for a possession, and I put the plague of leprosy in a house of the land of your possession;

35 And he that owneth the house shall come and tell the priest, saying, It seemeth to me that there is as it were a plague in the house:

41 And he shall cause the house to be scraped within round about, and they shall pour out the dust that they scrape off without the city into an unclean place:

42 And they shall take other stones, and put them in the place of those stones; and he shall take other mortar, and shall plaister the house.

43 And if the plague come again, and break out in the house, after that he hath taken away the stones, and after he hath scraped the house, and after it is plaistered;

44 Then the priest shall come and look, and, behold, if the plague be spread in the house it is a fretting leprosy in the house: it is unclean.

45 And he shall break down the house, the stones of it, and the timber thereof, and all the mortar of the house; and he shall carry them forth out of the city into an unclean place.

46 Moreover he that goeth into the house all the while that it is shut up shall be unclean until the even.

47 And he that lieth in the house shall wash his clothes; and he that eateth in the house shall wash his clothes.

48 ¶ And if the priest shall come in, and look upon it, and, behold, the plague hath not spread in the house, after the house was plaistered: then the priest shall pronounce the house clean, because the plague is healed.

49 And he shall take to cleanse the house two birds, and cedar wood, and scarlet, and hyssop:

nature of a present to God, in gratitude for having worked his cure, was not to be offered till by the previous offerings for trespass and sin, the man made public profession of his sincere repentance, without which he could not meet with acceptance from God.

34 And I put the plague of leprosy in a house, &c.] We cannot assign a natural cause of this strange plague, but must resolve it unto the power of the God of nature; for shall there be evil in a city, and the Lord hath not done it? Thus we read of the plague of Athens, the plague of Florence, Marseilles, &c. &c.

53 But he shall let go the living bird out of the city into the open fields, and make an atonement for the house: and it shall be clean.

3 And this shall be his uncleanness in his issue: whether his flesh run with his issue, or his flesh be stopped from his issue, it is his uncleanness.

7 And he that toucheth the flesh of him that hath the issue shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

8 And if he that hath the issue spit upon him that is clean; then he shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

9 And what saddle soever he rideth upon that hath the issue shall be unclean.

10 And whomsoever toucheth any thing that was under him shall be unclean until the even: and he that beareth any of those things shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

11 And whomsoever he toucheth that hath the issue, and hath not rinsed his hands in water, he shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

CHAP. XVI.

How the high priest must enter into the holy place. 11
The sin offering for himself. 15 For the people. 20
The scapegoat. 29 The yearly feast of the expiations.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses after the death of the two sons of Aaron, when they offered before the LORD, and died;

2 And the LORD said unto Moses, Speak unto Aaron thy brother, that he come not at all times into the holy place within the veil before the mercy seat, which is upon the ark; that he die not: for I will appear in the cloud upon the mercy seat.

3 Thus shall Aaron come into the holy place: with a young bullock for a sin offering, and a ram for a burnt offering.

4 He shall put on the holy linen coat, and he shall have the linen breeches upon his flesh, and shall be girded with a linen girdle, and with the linen mitre shall he be attired: these are holy garments; therefore shall he wash his flesh in water, and so put them on.

5 And he shall take of the congregation of the children of Israel two kids of the goats for a sin offering, and one ram for a burnt offering.

6 And Aaron shall offer his bullock of the sin offering, which is for himself, and make an atonement for himself, and for his house.

7 And he shall take the two goats, and present them before the LORD at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

8 And Aaron shall cast lots upon the two goats; one lot for the LORD, and the other lot for a scapegoat.

9 And Aaron shall bring the goat upon which the LORD's lot fell, and offer him for a sin offering.

31 When they defile my tabernacle that is among them.] Hence it is plain, that these laws were instituted to impress the minds of that carnal people with respect and veneration for the worship of God. If, then, such kind of natural and unavoidable pollutions as were their affliction, and not their sin, rendered them unfit for communion either with God or man; how thankful ought we to be for our privileges, under the Christian dispensation, that we are not subject to these carnal ordinances, and that nothing but sin can now defile us!

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XV.

Seeing that all impurities among the Israelites were to be purged away, and an atonement made for them by many ceremonies under the law, so Christians are not to expect pardon and forgiveness of their sins, unless they come to the throne of grace as true penitents. By the priest performing all these ceremonies, is pointed out to us Jesus Christ, our more excellent high-priest, who having offered up himself as a sacrifice for our sins, is now set down at the right hand of God, and become a most powerful advocate and intercessor for us.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XVI.

1 And the Lord spake unto Moses after the death of the two sons of Aaron, &c.] This chapter should have immediately succeeded the tenth, where the death of these two persons is related; but it is placed here, as it gave occasion to declare the preceding laws concerning those uncleannesses that rendered the Israelite incapable of approaching the sanctuary.

2 That he come not at all times, &c.] Except the high-priest none was permitted to enter in the holy place within the veil, generally called the most holy place, and even he only once a year, which was on the day of general expiation or atonement.

For I will appear in the cloud upon the mercy seat.] This is to be understood of the incense which the high priest burnt, when he entered into the most holy place, the mercy seat being at that time covered with this cloud.

3 With a young bullock for a sin offering, &c.] Before the high-priest thus entered into the most holy place, he was to prepare himself, by 10 But the goat on which the lot fell to be the scapegoat, shall be presented alive before the LORD, to make an atonement with him, and to let him go for a scapegoat into the wilderness.

11 ¶ And Aaron shall bring the bullock of the sin offering, which is for himself, and shall make an atonement for himself, and for his house, and shall kill the bullock of the sin offering which is for himself:

12 And he shall take a censer full of burning coals of fire from off the altar before the LORD, and his hands full of sweet incense beaten small, and bring it within the veil:

13 And he shall put the incense upon the fire before the LORD, that the cloud of the incense may cover the mercy seat that is upon the testimony, that he die not:

14 And he shall take of the blood of the bullock, and sprinkle it with his finger upon the mercy seat eastward; and before the mercy seat shall he sprinkle of the blood with his finger seven times.

15 ¶ Then shall he kill the goat of the sin offering, that is for the people, and bring his blood within the veil, and do with that blood as he did with the blood of the bullock, and sprinkle it upon the mercy seat, and before the mercy seat:

16 And he shall make an atonement for the holy place, because of the uncleannesses of the children of Israel, and because of their transgressions in all their sins: and so shall he do for the tabernacle of the congregation, that remaineth among them in the midst of their uncleannesses.

17 And there shall be no man in the tabernacle of the congregation when he goeth in to make an atonement in the holy place, until he come out, and have made an atonement for himself, and for his household, and for all the congregation of Israel.

18 And he shall go out unto the altar that is before the LORD, and make an atonement for it; and shall take of the blood of the bullock, and of the blood of the goat, and put it upon the horns of the altar round about.

19 And he shall sprinkle of the blood upon it with his finger seven times, and cleanse it, and hallow it from the uncleannesses of the children of Israel.

¶ 20 And offering his sacrifices for himself and family; a bullock for a sin offering, and a ram for a burnt offering.

4 He shall put on the holy linen coat, &c.] Because this was a day of general repentance and humiliation for sin, the high-priest, in token thereof, was to wear those linen clothes only which he wore in common with the inferior priests.

6 For his house.] i. e. For all the priests.

8 For a scapegoat.] The meaning of the Hebrew word hazazel has much puzzled many commentators. The most probable opinion is, that this goat was symbolically charged with the sins of the whole nation, and therefore being unworthy to be offered to the Lord, or to be admitted into the rest of the flock, was to be sent away to Hazazel, the foul spirit, dwelling in the wilderness; signifying, thereby the total oblivion or remission of their sins. Deserts and uninhabited places are represented in scripture as the peculiar residences of demons and impure spirits. See Matt. iv. 1. and xii. 43. Luke viii. 20.

9 Lot fell, &c.] This is in Hebrew, Ascended, or went up; alluding to the lots being taken out of the urn or vessel.

12 And bring it within the veil.] i. e. Within the holy of holies, which was separated by a veil from the holy place. This appears to have been the first time of Aaron's entering into this place.

13 He shall put the incense upon the fire, &c.] Thus he was ordered, at his entrance, to cast incense on the burning coals; by which the holy place was filled with a cloud of smoke, preventing him from seeing the ark, lest he should have been overpowered by the refulgence issuing from thence.

14 And he shall take of the blood, &c.] To perform which he was obliged to come without the veil.

15 Then shall he kill, &c.] This was upon the third time of his entering the holy of holies upon this day.

16 He shall make an atonement for the holy place, &c.] As an acknowledgment that this place was, through the sins of the past year, rendered an unworthy dwelling for the divine presence.

17 There shall be no man in the tabernacle of the congregation, &c.] In like manner our gospel high-priest Christ Jesus, "his own self bare our sins in his body on the tree;" he "trod the wine-press alone, and of the people there were none with him."

21 And

21 And Aaron shall lay both his hands upon the head of the live goat, and confess over him all the iniquities of the children of Israel, and all their transgressions in all their sins, putting them upon the head of the goat, and shall send him away by the hand of a fit man into the wilderness :

22 And the goat shall bear upon him all their iniquities unto a land not inhabited : and he shall let go the goat in the wilderness.

23 And Aaron shall come into the tabernacle of the congregation, and shall put off the linen garments, which he put on when he went into the holy place, and shall leave them there :

24 And he shall wash his flesh with water in the holy place, and put on his garments, and come forth, and offer his burnt offering, and the burnt offering of the people, and make an atonement for himself, and for the people.

25 And the fat of the sin offering shall he burn upon the altar.

26 And he that let go the goat for the scapegoat shall wash his clothes, and bathe his flesh in water, and afterward come into the camp.

27 And the bullock for the sin offering, and the goat for the sin offering, whose blood was brought in to make atonement in the holy place, shall one carry forth without the camp ; and they shall burn in the fire their skins, and their flesh, and their dung.

28 And he that burneth them shall wash his clothes, and bathe his flesh in water, and afterward he shall come into the camp.

29 ¶ And this shall be a statute for ever unto you : that in the seventh month, on the tenth day of the month, ye shall afflict your souls, and do no work at all, whether it be one of your own country, or a stranger that sojourneth among you :

30 For on that day shall the priest make an atonement for you, to cleanse you, that ye may be clean from all your sins before the LORD.

21 And confess over him] We do not find that God prescribed any particular form of confession at this time ; though in the latter ages the Jewish church had a mode of confession which is transmitted to us by tradition.

All the iniquities—transgressions—sins, &c.] By sins are signified offences committed through ignorance or mistake, and not deliberately ; by iniquities, such as were committed deliberately, against the negative precepts ; and by transgressions, those sins which were committed against the positive injunctions.

Putting them upon the head of the goat, &c.] Thus it was that the sins of the world were laid upon our Saviour, Isaiah liii. 6. 1 Pet. ii. 24. The true sense of Christ's dying for us, is, that the punishment of our sins were transferred upon him, in the same manner as the punishment due to the sins of the Israelites were transferred to the goat.

22 Bear upon him all their iniquities unto a land not inhabited, &c.] Which was a symbolical representation, that by faith and repentance they might obtain pardon for all their sins.

24 He shall wash his flesh with water] Thus as Christ's entering into the wilderness on the day of atonement was typified by the ceremony of the scapegoat ; his baptism on the same day was prefigured by the legal ceremony of Aaron's washing his body in the holy place.

Put on his garments, &c.] i. e. His ordinary clothes, and not his pontificals, which he never wore but when he went into the sanctuary.

29 For ever] Signifying so long as the Jewish dispensation shall last ; and till the type shall be superseded by the antitype.

The seventh month, &c.] Which was called Tisri, answering to our September ; the sacred year commenced with the month Abib, which answered to our March.

30 That ye may be clean from all your sins, &c.] Certainly the sins which are meant in this passage could only be such as had sacrifices provided for them. Violations of the great duties of the moral law, such as murder, adultery, idolatry, &c. were punished with death.

32 And the priest whom he shall anoint, and whom he shall consecrate, &c.] It would be better rendered, And the priest, who shall be anointed, and who shall be consecrated.

34 To make an atonement—once a year, &c.] It is said that the ceremonies used by the modern Jews on the day of expiation are greatly different from those of the ancients. They prepare themselves for this day of humiliation by prayer ; which done, they repair to their burial place, beg pardon for their sins, in consideration of the merit of the saints there interred ; and then plunge themselves into the

1 The blood of all slain beasts must be offered to the Lord at the door of the tabernacle, and no sacrifices made to devils. 10 All eating of blood is forbidden, 15 and of that which dieth of itself, or is torn.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, 2 Speak unto Aaron, and unto his sons, and unto all the children of Israel, and say unto them ; This is the thing which the LORD hath commanded, saying,

3 What man soever there be of the house of Israel, that killeth an ox, or lamb, or goat, in the camp, or that killeth it out of the camp,

4 And bringeth it not unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, to offer an offering unto the LORD before the tabernacle of the LORD ; blood shall be imputed unto that man ; he hath shed blood ; and that man shall be cut off from among his people :

5 To the end that the children of Israel may bring their sacrifices, which they offer in the open field, even that they may bring them unto the LORD, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, unto the priest, and offer them for peace offerings unto the LORD.

water, to complete the ablution. In the evening the solemnity begins, when they repair to the synagogue, singing and carrying a wax taper lighted ; the women light up candles in their houses, and draw omens from them ; if they burn clear, they suppose their sins are pardoned ; if dull, they are tormented with scruples : and if the tallow or wax runs, they dread the divine vengeance. The next day they go to the synagogue again, and in a long prayer declare, that all the oaths and promises, not having been performed within the year, are void, since atonement has been made for sin. Thus the solemnity concludes, when the rabbi, with uplifted hands, gives a benediction to the people, who, in token of respect, put their hands before their eyes, and cover their faces. They then sound a horn in commemoration of the jubilee, and every one departs home, fully persuaded his sins are forgiven him. When they are come to their respective dwellings, they dress themselves in clean white clothes, sit down at table, and break their fasts, having till then entirely abstained from eating and drinking.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XVI.

This chapter directs our eye to the following important truths : that Christ, by the sacrifice of himself, has made an atonement for the sins of all those who believe and obey his gospel. That the priests offered sacrifices for their own sins ; but Christ, when offered up the cross, a lamb without spot : he knew no sin, though made sin for us : that the high priest must once a year go into the holy place : but Christ, by his death, has opened heaven to all believers. And since the blood of these sacrifices could not take away sin, but were only shadows of good things to come, let us bless God for Jesus Christ, the great antitype, whose blood cleanseth from all sin.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XVII.

3 What man soever there be of the house of Israel, that killeth an ox, or lamb, &c.] Notwithstanding the ox or lamb was killed for food, well if it had been for sacrifice ; for these animals, slain by an Israelite for family use, were first of all presented to God by way of peace offering ; the blood was poured out at the bottom of the altar, and the fat burnt thereon ; this law however was restrained only to beasts that were sacrificed, after they came into the land of Canaan.

4 Blood shall be imputed unto that man, &c.] i. e. He was to suffer for such offence as a murderer who had spilt innocent blood : such was the rigour of the laws against idolatry.

8 And thou shalt say unto them, Whatsoever man there be of the house of Israel, or of the strangers which sojourn among you, that offereth a burnt offering or sacrifice,

9 And bringeth it not unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, to offer it unto the LORD; even that man shall be cut off from among his people.

10 ¶ And whatsoever man there be of the house of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn among you, that eateth any manner of blood; I will even set my face against that soul that eateth blood, and will cut him off from among his people.

11 For the life of the flesh is in the blood: and I have given it to you upon the altar to make an atonement for your souls: for it is the blood that maketh an atonement for the soul.

12 Therefore I said unto the children of Israel, No soul of you shall eat blood, neither shall any stranger that sojourneth among you eat blood.

C H A P. XVIII.

1 The Israelites must not follow the practices of Egypt and Canaan, but the ordinances of God. 6 Unlawful marriages. 19 Unlawful lusts.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, I am the LORD your God.

7 And they shall no more offer their sacrifices unto devils, &c.] The word in Hebrew properly signifies a goat, and denotes those idols which were worshipped under the symbol of a goat; a species of idolatry to which the Israelites were greatly addicted while in Egypt, and which some of them retained in the wilderness. The Zabians worshipped demons under the figure of goats, imagining them to appear in that form, whence they called them seginim, that is, "rough or rugged," like hairy goats. This custom being almost universal, gave occasion to this injunction.

10 Or of the strangers that sojourn among you] We are to understand by strangers, proselytes or converts from paganism. The scripture mentions three sorts of strangers; professed idolaters, who were not permitted to dwell in the land of Israel; those who did not practise idolatry, but yielded to some of the chief grounds of true religion, and were permitted to dwell in the gates or cities of Israel; from whence they were called proselytes of the gate; and lastly, pagan converts, who were bound to observe all the laws equally with the Jews: these are the strangers mentioned in this chapter, who were usually denominated proselytes of righteousness.

I will even set my face against that soul, &c.] This expression is never made use of concerning any other sins but those of idolatry and eating of blood.

11 For the life of the flesh is in the blood, &c.] That is, the life of the beast consisting in the blood, I have ordained it to expiate your sin; that by its death in your stead, your life may be preserved.

13 He shall even pour out the blood thereof, and cover it with dust]

3 After the doings of the land of Egypt, wherein ye dwelt, shall ye not do: and after the doings of the land of Canaan, whither I bring you, shall ye not do: neither shall ye walk in their ordinances.

4 Ye shall do my judgments, and keep my ordinances, to walk therein: I am the LORD your God.

5 Ye shall therefore keep my statutes, and my judgments: which if a man do, he shall live in them: I am the LORD.

6 ¶ None of you shall approach to any that is near of kin to him, to uncover their nakedness: I am the LORD.

7 The nakedness of thy father, or the nakedness of thy mother, shalt thou not uncover: she is thy mother: thou shalt not uncover her nakedness.

8 The nakedness of thy father's wife shalt thou not uncover: it is thy father's nakedness.

9 The nakedness of thy sister, the daughter of thy father, or daughter of thy mother, whether she be born at home, or born abroad, even their nakedness thou shalt not uncover.

10 The nakedness of thy son's daughter, or of thy daughter's daughter, even their nakedness thou shalt not uncover: for their's is thine own nakedness.

11 The nakedness of thy father's wife's daughter, begotten of thy father, she is thy sister, thou shalt not uncover her nakedness.

12 Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy father's sister: she is thy father's near kinswoman.

13 Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy mother's sister: for she is thy mother's near kinswoman.

14 Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy father's brother, thou shalt not approach to his wife: she is thine aunt.

15 Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy daughter in law: she is thy son's wife: thou shalt not uncover her nakedness.

16 Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy brother's wife: it is thy brother's nakedness.

17 Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of a woman and her daughter, neither shalt thou take her son's daughter, or her daughter's daughter, to uncover her nakedness; for they are her near kinswomen: it is wickedness.

18 Neither shalt thou take a wife to her sister, to vex her, to uncover her nakedness, beside the other in her life time.

19 ¶ Also thou shalt not approach unto a woman to uncover her nakedness, as long as she is put apart for her uncleanness.

20 Moreover thou shalt not lie carnally with thy neighbour's wife, to defile thyself with her.

21 And

Because it was sacred, being a ransom for the forfeited lives of sinners; it was therefore to be treated with reverence, and covered out of sight, lest any beast should lick it up, or lest idolatry (as was their custom) should render it subservient to superstitious purposes.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XVII.

Seeing the Jews were to worship none but the Lord Jehovah; neither are we to introduce any thing of a carnal nature into his worship or ordinances. We have abundant reason to bless God that we enjoy the gospel in its purity, without being burdened with so many ceremonies.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XVIII.

5 Which if a man do, he shall live in them] Both the Chaldee and Arabic render it, He shall live by them to life eternal. But man, by original sin, is deprived of the power of attaining perfect obedience; this then must be understood of the disciplinary and external observance of the law, which hath moreover its temporary reward.

I am the Lord] It is in the Hebrew, I am Jehovah, who keep my covenant and fulfil my promises; therefore he who keeps my laws shall surely live.

6 None of you shall approach to any that is near of kin, &c.] All these laws relate to the seventh commandment; and they are agreeable to nature and right reason, are without doubt obligations on us as under the gospel.

CHAP. XIX.

A repetition of sundry laws.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, and say unto them, Ye shall be holy: for I the Lord your God am holy.

3 Ye shall fear every man his mother, and his father, and keep my sabbaths: I am the Lord your God.

4 Turn ye not unto idols, nor make to yourselves molten gods: I am the Lord your God.

21 Thou shalt not let any of thy seed pass through the fire to Molech, &c.] This Molech whose name signifies, A prince, was the tutelary deity of the Ammonites, and was peculiarly, or by way of eminence, applied to the sun, the prince of the heavenly bodies. The manner in which the pagans dedicated their children to this idol was twofold, either by making them pass through the fire, or by offering them to him in sacrifice. The ceremony of passing through the fire was a rite of initiation, whereby the parents consecrated their children to this deity; and the Hebrew word rendered "pass through," which signifies, To go over to any party, shews that this is the meaning of this sentence. Whether this rite was performed by waving a child in the flames; whether they passed between two fires, which were kindled at a small distance from each other, agreeable to the rite of the ancient Druids, or danced through the fire; yet that the children were not, in this rite, sacrificed, is evident from 2 Kings xvi. 3. where Ahaz is asserted to have made his son pass through the fire; who was so far from being destroyed in this ceremony, that we find his son named Hezekiah not only surviving this rite, but likewise outliving his father, and succeeding him in the throne.

23 Neither shalt thou lie with any beast, &c.] Which most unnatural crime was not only practised among the Egyptians, but likewise deemed a sacred rite of their religion, as appears from Strabo, &c.

25 The land itself vomiteth out her inhabitants.] A figurative speech taken from an overcharged stomach, which loaths the food it cannot digest: it describes the heinousness of sin in a most expressive manner.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XVIII.

We may observe, in this chapter, the horrid crimes of uncleanness into which the Canaanites had been drawn; and in order to prevent the Israelites from falling into the same, God gave them laws concerning marriages. Hence we should learn to shun uncleanness, and avoid what is contrary to the laws of Moses and of the gospel, which so expressly enjoin purity and chastity. Observe also that God here most positively declares, that the crimes committed by the inhabitants of a country, defile that country, and bring down the curse of God upon it, when they become frequent, and a stop is put to the committing them.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XIX.

1 Ye shall fear, &c.] i. e. Ye shall reverence, or honor.

7 And if it be eaten at all on the third day, it is abominable; it shall not be accepted.

11 Ye shall not steal, neither deal falsely, neither lie one to another.

12 And ye shall not swear by my name falsely, neither shalt thou profane the name of thy God: I am the Lord.

13 Thou shalt not defraud thy neighbour, neither rob him: the wages of him that is hired shall not abide with thee all night until the morning.

14 Thou shalt not curse the deaf, nor put a stumbling block before the blind, but shalt fear thy God: I am the Lord.

15 Ye shall do no unrighteousness in judgment: thou shalt not respect the person of the poor, nor honour the person of the mighty: but in righteousness shalt thou judge thy neighbour.

16 Thou shalt not go up and down as a talebearer among thy people: neither shalt thou stand against the blood of thy neighbour: I am the Lord.

18 Thou shalt not avenge, nor bear any grudge against the children of thy people, but thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself: I am the Lord.

19 Ye

9 Thou shalt not wholly reap the corners of thy field, &c.] It appears from this precept that the Jewish laws were founded on mercy and charity; and gives us an high idea of the benevolence of the Mosaic dispensation.

11, 12 Ye shall not steal, &c.] Refer to Exod. xx. 15. By dealing falsely, is meant the denying any thing deposited; and by lying, not only all falsehood, but especially that species by which any one was deprived of his property, &c.

13 The wages of him that is hired, shall not abide with thee all night, &c.] From this it appears they were on an account to refuse the wages of a labouring person, when he required them; for these were generally the sole means of his subsistence, the detaining them was the greatest cruelty and oppression. The excellence of the Mosaic law is therefore manifested in this merciful provision for the poor and industrious.

14 Thou shalt not curse the deaf, &c.] To calumniate or curse any one, is unlawful and repugnant to the laws of humanity; but to curse the deaf, who was incapable of vindicating himself, carried with it the highest degree of barbarity, and indicated a base and fordid mind.

16 Thou shalt not go up and down as a talebearer, &c.] Because such practice is uncharitable, and odious to God and man: it is also contrary to the precept of our blessed Saviour, which enjoins us first to take the beam out of our own eye, before we see, i. e. expose the mote in our brother's eye. Matt. vii. 5.

17 Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thine heart.] Both hatred and malice are diabolical. To be angry upon some occasions, however, is reasonable. That precept of the apostle is most just, "Be angry, and sin not." Our blessed Saviour has set this precept in a beautiful light, Matt. xviii. 15.

Rebuke thy neighbour, and not suffer sin upon him.] The greatest kindness we shew is to reprove the offender, and to reclaim those who are fallen into an error, by bringing them back into the right way.

18 Thou shalt not avenge.] Revenge is as odious and detestable a crime as a man well commit, and was prohibited both by the law of Moses, and that of our blessed Redeemer.

But thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.] i. e. Do him as you would be done by.

I am the Lord.] i. e. The creator of all men, and who has commanded them to love another, and whom alone vengeance belongs, and who expects obedience to his laws.

19 Ye shall keep my statutes. Thou shalt not let thy cattle gender with a diverse kind: thou shalt not sow thy field with mingled seed: neither shall a garment mingled of linen and woollen come upon thee.

20 And whosoever lieth carnally with a woman, that is a bondmaid, betrothed to an husband, and not at all redeemed, nor freedom given her; she shall be scourged; they shall not be put to death, because she was not free.

21 And he shall bring his trespass offering unto the LORD, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, even a ram for a trespass offering.

22 And the priests shall make an atonement for him with the ram of the trespass offering before the LORD for his sin which he hath done: and the sin which he hath done shall be forgiven him.

23 And when ye shall come into the land, and shall have planted all manner of trees for food, then ye shall count the fruit as uncircumcised: three years shall it be uncircumcised unto you; it shall not be eaten of.

24 But in the fourth year all the fruit thereof shall be holy to praise the LORD withal.

25 And in the fifth year shall ye eat of the fruit thereof, that it may yield unto you the increase thereof: I am the LORD your God.

26 Ye shall not eat any thing with the blood: neither shall ye use enchantment, nor observe times.

27 Ye shall not round the corners of your heads, neither shalt thou mar the corners of thy beard.

28 Ye shall not make any cuttings in your flesh for the dead, nor print any marks upon you: I am the LORD.

29 Do not prostitute thy daughter, to cause her to be a whore; lest the land fall to whoredom, and the land become full of wickedness.

19 Thou shalt not let thy cattle gender with a diverse kind. The reason of this prohibition was partly to preserve the different species of animals as they were first created, and partly to restrain the vanity and curiosity of men from attempting to alter the form or nature of God's creatures, by endeavouring to make a greater diversity than he thought proper to create at the beginning.

Thou shalt not sow thy field with mingled seed. This was perhaps to set bounds to the husbandman's covetousness; and only so, but the sowing ground with mixed seeds, is thought by some an effectual way to wear it out.

A garment mingled of linen and woollen, &c. The intention of this prohibition was to guard the Israelites from the idolatrous superstition of the Egyptians and Sabians; whose priests wore such mixtures from a persuasion that they were endued with some magical power.

23 Three years shall it be uncircumcised unto you: it shall not be eaten of. Here God requires the first fruits to be dedicated to his service, in like manner as he had before commanded that the first of all other things should be appropriated to his use; but he certainly has no undoubted right to the very best of all, he would not accept of them till they were arrived to perfection, nor was man to be allowed to eat of them before he had the first fruits.

26 Use enchantment, nor observe times. i. e. Place no confidence in diviners, and vain pretenders to prescience; be not superstitious in observing certain days indifferent in themselves; neither regard common accidents in a prognostic or judicial light; nor be so weak and timorous to be alarmed at every trivial matter.

27 Ye shall not round the corners of your heads. Because it was the superstitious practice of the Arabians to cut the extremities of their hair round, in order to resemble their god Bacchus.

Corners of thy beard. The reason of this prohibition was to preserve the Israelites from the superstition of the Egyptians, who, in their mournings of Isis, used to shave their heads and beards, and at other times suffered the hair of their beards to grow only on their chin.

28 Ye shall not make any cuttings in your flesh, &c. Here the heathenish rite of cutting their flesh in honour of the deceased, is prohibited; not any of the mere tokens of affection and mourning.

29 Do not prostitute thy daughter, &c. It seems this species of uncleanness was practised by the heathens in their idolatrous worship.

31 Regard not them that have familiar spirits. i. e. Regard not those who pretend a familiarity with evil spirits; they were mere cheats and impostors, and amused the credulous vulgar with dark and ambiguous predictions, such as were calculated to answer the event, let it happen which way it would.

Neither seek after wizards, &c. The Hebrew word tyrannin, is derived from yadabn, "to know;" and answers to those persons whom we call fortune-tellers, or conjurers.

32 Thou shalt rise up before the hoary head, &c. This command was judiciously adopted in the Mosaic institutions, as paying reverence

30 Ye shall keep my sabbaths, and reverence my sanctuary: I am the LORD.

31 Regard not them that have familiar spirits, neither seek after wizards, to be defiled by them: I am the LORD your God.

32 Thou shalt rise up before the hoary head, and honour the face of the old man, and fear thy God: I am the LORD.

33 And if a stranger sojourn with thee in your land, ye shall not vex him.

34 But the stranger that dwelleth with you shall be unto you as one born among you, and thou shalt love him as thyself; for ye were strangers in the land of Egypt: I am the LORD your God.

35 Ye shall do no unrighteousness in judgment, in meteyard, in weight, or in measure.

36 Just balances, just weights, a just ephah, and a just hin, shall ye have: I am the LORD your God, which brought you out of the land of Egypt.

37 Therefore shall ye observe all my statutes, and all my judgments, and do them: I am the LORD.

to the aged is one of the dictates of nature, and has been enjoined by all the wise legislators of antiquity. The prophet describes it as a mark of degeneracy, when the child shall behave himself proudly against the ancient, Isaiah iii. 5. Juvenal tells us, it was esteemed highly criminal, in the most virtuous age of the world, for a young man not to rise to an elder.

35 In meteyard, &c. The Hebrew word for "meteyard" is middah, which signifies the measure of a continued quantity. In weight; by this means they paid and received money, and sold brass, iron, &c. In measure; the Hebrew word mesurah, denotes the measure of discrete quantity, such as corn, salt, &c. and of liquors, of wine, oil, &c.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XIX.

Most of these laws were given to the Jews, to keep them from following idolatrous customs; God forbid the mixture of kinds, that they might avoid superstition and idolatry. He forbade them to eat of the first fruits, to teach them, that whatever the earth produced, was owing to his bounty. The other laws teach us how great a wickedness it is to consult forcerers; forbid us to afflict ourselves immoderately for the dead; that impurity is a sin, which ought to be punished; to respect old age; to do justice to strangers; and keep true weights and measures.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XX.

1 And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying. All the principal laws in the two preceding chapters are here recapitulated, and enforced, with penalties; which have been already explained.

2 That giveth any of his seed unto Molech, &c. On chap. xviii. 21. we have observed, that the worship of Molech was two-fold; in one of which the priests suffered their children to pass through the fire to Molech, as a rite of initiation: besides which, they had another, wherein they sacrificed their children; which the word "give" seems to imply, because it is used in that sense, when we say, that "Christ gave himself for us." That it was different from the passing through the fire, mentioned in chap. xviii. seems evident from the different functions given to each, because in the first place no punishment is threatened, but in this the penalty of death is denounced. The manner in which children were sacrificed to Molech, is thus described: the image of Molech was of brass, having in the inside seven cells, the first of which was allotted for flour, the second for turtle doves, the third for an ewe, the fourth for a ram, the fifth for a calf, the sixth for an ox, and the seventh for a child; which being included in this image, as the victims were in the wicker idols of the Druids, were, by the means of a fire, burnt to death; while the people danced about the idol, beating timbrels, in order to drown the cries of the infant which was thus inhumanly tormented.

3 And I will set my face against that man, and will cut him off from among his people; because he hath given of his seed unto Molech, to defile my sanctuary, and to profane my holy name.

4 ¶ And if the people of the land do any ways hide their eyes from the man, when he giveth of his seed unto Molech, and kill him not:

5 Then I will set my face against that man, and against his family, and will cut him off, and all that go whoring after him, to commit whoredom with Molech, from among their people.

6 ¶ And the soul that turneth after such as have familiar spirits, and after wizards, to go whoring after them, I will even set my face against that soul, and will cut him off from among his people.

7 ¶ Sanctify yourselves therefore, and be ye holy: for I am the LORD your God.

¶ And ye shall keep my statutes, and do them: I am the LORD which sanctify you.

9 ¶ For every one that curseth his father or his mother shall be surely put to death: he hath cursed his father or his mother; his blood shall be upon him.

10 ¶ And the man that committeth adultery with another man's wife, even he that committeth adultery with his neighbour's wife, the adulterer and the adulterers shall surely be put to death.

11 ¶ And the man that lieth with his father's wife hath uncovered his father's nakedness: both of them shall surely be put to death; their blood shall be upon them.

12 And if a man lie with his daughter in law, both of them shall surely be put to death: they have wrought confusion; their blood shall be upon them.

13 ¶ If a man also lie with mankind, as he lieth with a woman, both of them have committed an abomination: they shall surely be put to death; their blood shall be upon them.

14 ¶ And if a man take a wife and her mother, it is wickedness: they shall be burnt with fire, both he and they; that there be no wickedness among you.

15 ¶ And if a man lie with a beast, he shall surely be put to death: and ye shall slay the beast.

16 And if a woman approach unto any beast, and lie down thereto, thou shalt kill the woman and the beast: they shall surely be put to death; their blood shall be upon them.

17 ¶ And if a man shall take his sister, his father's daughter, or his mother's daughter, and see her nakedness, and she see his nakedness; it is a wicked thing; and they shall be cut off in the sight of their people: he hath uncovered his sister's nakedness; he shall bear his iniquity.

18 ¶ And if a man shall lie with a woman having her sickness, and shall uncover her nakedness; he hath discovered her fountain, and she hath uncovered the fountain of her blood: and both of them shall be cut off from among their people.

19 ¶ And thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy mother's sister, nor of thy father's sister: for he uncovereth his nearkin: they shall bear their iniquity.

20 And if a man shall lie with his uncle's wife, he hath uncovered his uncle's nakedness: they shall bear their sin; they shall die childless.

21 And if a man shall take his brother's wife, it is an unclean thing: he hath uncovered his brother's nakedness; they shall be childless.

22 ¶ Ye shall therefore keep all my statutes, and all my judgments, and do them: that the land, whither I bring you to dwell therein, spue you not out.

23 And ye shall not walk in the manners of the nation, which I cast out before you: for they committed all these things, and therefore I abhorred them:

24 But I have said unto you, Ye shall inherit their land, and I will give it unto you to possess it, a land that floweth with milk and honey: I am the LORD your God, which have separated you from other people.

25 Ye shall therefore put difference between clean beasts and unclean, and between unclean fowls and clean: and ye shall not make your souls abominable by beast, or by fowl, or by any manner of living thing that creepeth on the ground, which I have separated from you as unclean.

26 And ye shall be holy unto me: for I the LORD am holy, and have severed you from other people, that ye should be mine.

27 ¶ A man also or woman that hath a familiar spirit, or that is a wizard, shall surely be put to death: they shall stone them with stones: their blood shall be upon them.

CHAP. XXI.

1 Of the priests' mourning. 6 Of their holiness. 7 Of their marriages. 9 Of the priest's daughter convicted of playing the harlot. 10 Of the high priest's holiness. 13 Of his marriage. 16 The priests that have blemishes must not minister in the sanctuary.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, Speak unto the priests the sons of Aaron, and say unto them, There shall none be defiled for the dead among his people:

2 But for his kin, that is near unto him, that is, for his mother, and for his father, and for his son, and for his daughter, and for his brother,

3 And for his sister a virgin, that is nigh unto him, which hath had no husband; for her may he be defiled.

4 But he shall not defile himself, being a chief man among his people, to profane himself.

5 They shall not make baldness upon their head, neither shall they shave off the corner of their beard, nor make any cuttings in their flesh.

6 ¶ They shall be holy unto their God, and not profane the name of their God: for the offerings of the LORD made by fire, and the bread of their God, they do offer: therefore they shall be holy.

7 ¶ They also adulterers, both men and women, and those that cursed father and mother. Observe the repeated exhortations of God to the Jews, that they should not imitate the Canaanites, but become a holy people to him. Thus Christians being separated from the world, should not be conformed to it, but be holy in all manner of conversation.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXI.

1 There shall none be defiled for the dead, &c.] We read that if any touched a dead body, looked at it, entered an house where a corpse lay, assisted at a funeral, or even touched a grave, he was unclean for seven days. The Hebrew canons say, that if a man came within six feet of the dead, he was unclean.

2 But for his kin that is near unto him, &c.] God here indulges a natural affection, and dispenses with their attendance for the space of seven days, in case of the death of a parent, a child, or a brother: to have denied the payment of these last duties, would have favoured of cruelty and rigour, but God ever esteems mercy before sacrifice.

4 He shall not defile himself, being a chief man, &c.] It would be better if translated, "He shall not defile himself for the chief man of the nation," &c.

4 If the people of the land do any ways hide their eyes, &c.] That is, if his neighbours, commiserating his folly, instead of abominating his sin, should conceal him, and refuse to appear as witnesses against him, or if the magistrates connived at him, God would set his face against that man or magistrate, and against his family.

17 They shall be cut off in the sight of their people, &c.] i. e. They shall be publicly put to death.

18 If a man shall lie with a woman having her sickness, &c.] Doubtless the observation of this law was prescribed, lest the Jewish commonwealth should be overstocked with weak and sickly people. God fixed a stigma upon leprous persons, because they were supposed to have been conceived at this time.

27 A man also or woman that hath a familiar spirit—shall surely be put to death, &c.] Signifying those who pretended to a spirit of divination, or to practise conjuring and sorcery.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XX.

The prohibition of burning children, and offering them to the idol Molech, shews us to what horrible cruelties idolatrous people abandon themselves, in the service of their false gods; and what men, who know not God, are capable of. God ordered those who applied themselves to sorcerers, to be punished with death; as 7 ¶ They shall not take a wife that is a whore, or profane; neither shall they take a woman put away from her husband: for he is holy unto his God.

¶ Thou shalt sanctify him therefore; for he offereth the bread of thy God: he shall be holy unto thee: for I the LORD, which sanctify you, am holy.

9 ¶ And the daughter of any priest, if she profane herself by playing the whore, she profaneth her father: she shall be burnt with fire.

10 ¶ And he that is the high priest among his brethren, upon whose head the anointing oil was poured, and that is consecrated to put on the garments, shall not uncover his head, nor rend his clothes;

11 Neither shall he go in to any dead body, nor defile himself for his father, or for his mother;

12 Neither shall he go out of the sanctuary, nor profane the sanctuary of his God; for the crown of the anointing oil of his God is upon him: I am the LORD.

13 ¶ And he shall take a wife in her virginity.

14 A widow, or a divorced woman or profane, or an harlot, these shall he not take: but he shall take a virgin of his own people to wife.

15 Neither shall he profane his seed among his people: for I the LORD do sanctify him.

16 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

17 Speak unto Aaron, saying, Whosoever he be of thy seed in their generations that hath any blemish, let him not approach to offer the bread of his God.

18 For whatsoever man he be that hath a blemish, he shall not approach: a blind man, or a lame, or he that hath a flat nose, or any thing superfluous,

19 Or a man that is brokenfooted, or brokenhanded,

20 Or a crookbackt, or a dwarf, or that hath a blemish in his eye, or be scurvy, or scabbed, or hath his stones broken;

21 No man that hath a blemish of the seed of Aaron the priest shall come nigh to offer the offerings of the LORD made by fire: he hath a blemish; he shall not come nigh to offer the bread of his God.

22 He shall eat the bread of his God, both of the most holy, and of the holy.

23 Only he shall not go in unto the veil, nor come nigh unto the altar, because he hath a blemish; that he profane not my sanctuaries: for I the LORD do sanctify them.

24 And Moses told it unto Aaron and to his sons, and unto all the children of Israel.

7 They shall not take a wife, &c.] The priest, in order to preserve the dignity of his office, is prohibited from marrying with such persons as would lessen him in the eyes of the people.

9 She profaneth her father, &c.] i.e. By disparaging the good example and education she received, she wounds her father's honour, as well as stains her own character.

10 Nor rend his clothes.] In spite of this prohibition, we find that on some occasions it was customary with them to rend their clothes, as in case of blasphemy; this prohibition, therefore, was doubtless restrained to the high priest's garments, and the times of mourning.

11 Nor defile himself for his father, &c.] It was not lawful for the high priest to enter a house where a dead body lay, though it were even that of his father or mother.

12 Neither shall he go out of the sanctuary, &c.] The priest was by no means to neglect his administration, though news was brought him of the death of his nearest and dearest relative; such was the regard to be paid to God's service.

17 That hath any blemish, &c.] i.e. Any defect or imperfection, whether natural or accidental.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXI.

These laws were given in two principal views; First, to restrain both priests and people from idolatry, and the manners of the idolaters; and to prevent, in the persons or families of the priests, the same

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, ¶ Speak unto Aaron and to his sons, that they separate themselves from the holy things of the children of Israel, and that they profane not my holy name in those things which they hallow unto me: I am the LORD.

3 Say unto them, Whosoever he be of all your seed among your generations, that goeth unto the holy things, which the children of Israel hallow unto the LORD, having his uncleanness upon him, that soul shall be cut off from my presence: I am the LORD.

4 What man soever of the seed of Aaron is a leper, or hath a running issue, he shall not eat of the holy things, until he be clean. And whoso toucheth any thing that is unclean by the dead, or a man whose seed goeth from him;

5 Or whosoever toucheth any creeping thing, whereby he may be made unclean, or a man of whom he may take uncleanness, whatsoever uncleanness he hath;

6 The soul which hath touched any such shall be unclean until even, and shall not eat of the holy things, unless he wash his flesh with water.

7 And when the sun is down, he shall be clean, and shall afterward eat of the holy things; because it is his food.

8 That which dieth of itself, or is torn with beasts, he shall not eat to defile himself therewith: I am the LORD.

9 They shall therefore keep mine ordinance, lest they bear sin for it, and die therefore, if they profane it: I the LORD do sanctify them.

10 ¶ There shall no stranger eat of the holy thing: a sojourner of the priest, or an hired servant, shall not eat of the holy thing.

11 But if the priest buy any soul with his money, he shall eat of it, and he that is born in his house: they shall eat of his meat.

12 If the priest's daughter also be married unto a stranger, she may not eat of an offering of the holy things.

13 But if the priest's daughter be a widow, or divorced, and have no child, and is returned unto her father's house, as in her youth, she shall eat her father's meat: but there shall no stranger eat thereof.

14 ¶ And if a man eat of the holy thing unwittingly, then he shall put the fifth part thereof unto it, and shall give it unto the priest with the holy thing.

15 And they shall not profane the holy things of the children of Israel, which they offer unto the LORD;

16 Or suffer them to bear the iniquity of trespass, when they eat their holy things: for I the LORD do sanctify them.

disorders that were to be seen among the priests of false religions. Secondly, That the holiness of the priests might render religion itself more venerable; and their good example might teach the rest of the Israelites to be holy also. The reflection that we ought to make herefrom, with regard to the Christian church, is, that the pastors and ministers of religion, should be distinguished by a holy and exemplary life; and their families ought to be very regular.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXII.

¶ That they separate themselves, &c.] It is in the Greek, Let them take heed of the holy things; that is, not to defile them; for they were not to presume to officiate in the sanctuary, being unclean, by reason of any ceremonial pollution.

3 Shall be cut off from my presence, &c.] i.e. He shall for ever be deprived of the priesthood by the judge; or else shall be taken away by premature death, by the hand of God.

4 He shall not eat of the holy things until he be clean, &c.] The leper might eat of the tythes, but not of the wave-bread, or heave-shoulder.

10 There shall no stranger eat of the holy thing.] This word "stranger," signifies any person, whether a gentile, proselyte, or a Jew, not being of the priest's family.

14 And shall give it unto the priest with the holy thing.] The man was to pay the full value of the thing so eaten, and a fifth part more.

21 And whosoever offereth a sacrifice of peace offerings unto the LORD to accomplish his vow, or ■ freewill offering in beeves or sheep, it shall be perfect to be accepted; there shall be no blemish therein.

22 Blind, or broken, or maimed, or having a wen, or scurvy, or scabbed, ye shall not offer these unto the LORD, nor make an offering by fire of them upon the altar unto the LORD.

23 Either a bullock or ■ lamb that hath any thing superfluous or lacking in his parts, that mayest thou offer for ■ freewill offering; but for ■ vow it shall not be accepted.

24 Ye shall not offer unto the LORD that which is bruised, or crushed, or broken, or cut; neither shall ye make any offering thereof in your land.

25 Neither from a stranger's hand shall ye offer the bread of your God of any of these; because their corruption is in them, and blemishes be in them: they shall not be accepted for you.

26 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

29 ¶ And when ye will offer a sacrifice of thanksgiving unto the LORD, offer it at your own will.

31 Therefore shall ye keep my commandments, and do them: I am the LORD.

28 Cow or ewe, ye shall not kill it and her young both in one day.] The very great humanity and tenderness expressed in this precept, reflects no small honour upon the divine law-giver; for there is something cruel in the idea of butchering both parent and offspring at the same time, and to bring the dam to the altar, while it is still mourning the loss of its young, slain in its sight. The law here enjoined, is similar with that in Deut. xxii. 6. "If ■ bird is found sitting upon the young or upon the eggs, thou shalt not take the dam with the young."

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXII.

From this chapter, we are taught to reverence the ordinances of God, who is greatly to be feared in the assembly of his saints; and that as the children of Israel were not to offer any thing that had a blemish on it, so it is our duty to present unto God our best services.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXIII.

2 Concerning the feasts of the Lord, &c.] The day of atonement under this general term is comprehended, which was not ■ festival, but ■ fast, or a day of solemn humiliation; therefore the Hebrew word moghade, should have been rendered "solemn assemblies, or seasons," which it properly signifies.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,
■ Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, Concerning the feasts of the LORD, which ye shall proclaim to be holy convocations, even these are my feasts.

3 ¶ Six days shall work be done: but the seventh day is the sabbath of rest, an holy convocation; ye shall do no work therein: it is the sabbath of the LORD in all your dwellings.

4 ¶ These are the feasts of the LORD, even holy convocations, which ye shall proclaim in their seasons.

5 In the fourteenth day of the first month at even is the LORD's passover.

6 And on the fifteenth day of the same month is the feast of unleavened bread unto the LORD: seven days ye must eat unleavened bread.

7 In the first day ye shall have an holy convocation: ye shall do no servile work therein.

■ But ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD seven days: in the seventh day is an holy convocation: ye shall do no servile work therein.

9 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

10 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye be come into the land which I give unto you, and shall reap the harvest thereof, then ye shall bring a sheaf of the firstfruits of your harvest unto the priest:

11 And he shall wave the sheaf before the LORD, to be accepted for you: on the morrow after the sabbath the priest shall wave it.

12 And ye shall offer that day when ye wave the sheaf ■ a lamb without ■ blemish of the first year for ■ burnt offering unto the LORD.

13 And the meat-offering thereof shall be two tenth deals of fine flour mingled with oil, an offering made by fire unto the LORD for a sweet savour: and the drink offering thereof shall be of wine, the fourth part of an hin.

14 And ye shall eat neither bread, nor parched corn, nor green ears, until the selfsame day that ye have brought an offering unto your God: it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations in all your dwellings.

15 ¶ And ye shall count unto you from the morrow after the sabbath, from the day that ye brought the sheaf of the wave offering; seven sabbaths shall be complete:

16 Even unto the morrow after the seventh sabbath shall uncomfortable; and because in the height of the summer season, in those countries, they could but ill be spared from their employ, in gathering in the harvest and vintage.

10 When ye be come into the land—and shall reap the harvest.] It would be better if translated, "are about to reap the harvest;" for the sheaf was to be brought before the rest of the harvest was cut.

The first fruits of your harvest unto the priest.] Which first-fruits being presented to the priest, he waved them towards the four quarters of the world, in token of their being consecrated to the Lord of the universe, and by this all the sheaves of the field were made holy. As the sheaf was lifted up and waved, and the lamb was offered on that day, so Christ died, and offered himself up to God, for us, and for our salvation.

11 On the morrow after the sabbath, &c.] On the second day of the unleavened bread (and not the weekly sabbath) this ceremony was performed, the first being termed = sabbath or rest," because it was a festival, in which they were to desist from all servile work.

14 And ye shall eat neither bread, &c.] i. e. Ye shall eat nothing of this year's growth, till you have first made ■ offering to God.

15 From the morrow after the sabbath.] Consult the note on ver. 11. Seven sabbaths, &c.] Doubtless the word "sabbath," here signifies, A week, so that it should have been rendered, Seven weeks complete, from the sixteenth day of the second month, ■ the second of unleavened bread.

16 Unto the morrow after the seventh sabbath, shall ye number fifty days, and—offer a new meat offering, &c.] They called the first pentecost, or the feast of weeks, it being observed fifty days, or seven weeks, after the passover. shall ye number fifty days; and ye shall offer meat offering unto the LORD.

17 Ye shall bring out of your habitations two wave loaves of two tenth deals: they shall be of fine flour; they shall be baked with leaven; they are the first fruits unto the LORD.

18 And ye shall offer with the bread seven lambs without blemish of the first year, and one young bullock, and two rams: they shall be for a burnt offering unto the LORD, with their meat offering, and their drink offerings, even an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

19 Then ye shall sacrifice one kid of the goats for a sin offering, and two lambs of the first year for a sacrifice of peace offerings.

20 And the priest shall wave them with the bread of the firstfruits for a wave offering before the LORD, with the two lambs: they shall be holy to the LORD for the priest.

21 And ye shall proclaim on the selfsame day, that it may be an holy convocation unto you: ye shall do no servile work therein: it shall be a statute for ever in all your dwellings throughout your generations.

22 ¶ And when ye reap the harvest of your land, thou shalt not make clean riddance of the corners of thy field when thou reapest, neither shalt thou gather any gleanings of thy harvest: thou shalt leave them unto the poor, and to the stranger: I am the LORD your God.

23 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

24 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, In the seventh month, in the first day of the month, shall ye have a sabbath, a memorial of blowing of trumpets, an holy convocation.

25 Ye shall do no servile work therein: but ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

26 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

27 Also on the tenth day of this seventh month there shall be a day of atonement: it shall be an holy convocation unto you; and ye shall afflict your souls, and offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

28 And ye shall do no work in that same day: for it is a day of atonement, to make an atonement for you before the LORD your God.

29 For whatsoever soul it be that shall not be afflicted in that same day, he shall be cut off from among his people.

30 And whatsoever soul it be that doeth any work in that same day, the same soul will I destroy from among his people.

31 Ye shall do no manner of work: it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations in all your dwellings.

32 It shall be unto you a sabbath of rest, and ye shall afflict your souls: in the ninth day of the month

17 They shall be baked with leaven, &c.] We find this a difference from the established law relating to other meat offerings of this kind; but then we should consider, that part of the latter were burnt upon altars, whereas the former were only waved before the Lord, and given to the priest for his portion.

19 One kid of the goats for a sin offering, &c.] A bullock was the offering for particular sins of the congregation, but for the sins of the nation in general, a kid of the goats. The reason assigned by some for this difference, is the following: The more grievous the sin was, the viler was the sacrifice; there being no greater than idolatry, nor viler sacrifice than a she-goat; this was therefore appointed for the expiation of that trespass.

24 A memorial of blowing of trumpets, &c.] Which word may be rendered more properly, A festival for commemorating and praising God, with the sound of the trumpets. They blew the trumpet every new moon; but in that of the seventh month, it was to be done with a more than ordinary solemnity.

34 The fifteenth day of this seventh month shall be the Feast of Tabernacles, &c.] Which feast was instituted in memory of their having dwelt in tents in the wilderness for forty years, under the protection of the Almighty. The first day of this festival was ushered in by a general procession, in which they carried branches of palm trees in their hands, waving them about towards the four winds, and singing psalms and hymns suitable to the occasion, at the same time crying out, Hosannah; or, save we beseech thee.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXIV.

The law about the oil for the lamps relates only to the external and ceremonial service of the Jews. The show-bread, consisting of twelve loaves, which were always exposed in the sanctuary, was a solemn acknowledgment, made by all the Israelites, that they held all good things from God, which should teach Christians to be content with the blessings he bestows upon them. The law against blasphemy, and the example of him who was stoned, is very remarkable and awful, and should inspire us with extreme horror for blasphemy.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXV.

2 The land shall have a sabbath, &c.] Thus we find the sanctification of the sabbath was the most ancient of all divine institutions, calculated to preserve the knowledge and worship of God among men; Moses therefore not only revived the observance of the weekly sabbath, but likewise instituted a sabbatical year for the advancement of the honour due to God.

4 A sabbath of rest unto the land.] This sabbath or year of rest was appointed, that the tired land might acquire strength, which is a usual practice, but for an holy and religious rest, dedicated to God's service, and typical of the eternal rest in heaven.

8 Thou shalt number seven sabbaths of years, &c.] Moses, besides the sabbatical year, instituted another, to be celebrated every fiftieth year, when all debts were released, all debts cancelled, possessions restored. This law was a wise provision for fixing the Jews in the land of Canaan, and for preserving the distinction between tribes and families, in which that of the Levites, who were born, might certainly be of the tribe of Judah, and lineage of David, as prophesied and predicted.

9 The trumpet of the jubile, &c.] It is in the Hebrew, jirugbah, the trumpet of loud sound, in which the trumpets were sounded at the beginning, in every quarter of the land, to signify that the jubile year was to be celebrated with great joy, it being intended to deliver them from their Egyptian bondage, and to prevent them from

Before CHRIST 1490. shall ye number fifty days; and ye shall offer a new meat offering unto the LORD.

17 Ye shall bring out of your habitations two wave loaves of two tenth deals: they shall be of fine flour; they shall be baked with leaven; they are the first fruits unto the LORD.

18 And ye shall offer with the bread seven lambs without blemish of the first year, and one young bullock, and two rams: they shall be for a burnt offering unto the LORD, with their meat offering, and their drink offerings, even an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

19 Then ye shall sacrifice one kid of the goats for a sin offering, and two lambs of the first year for a sacrifice of peace offerings.

20 And the priest shall wave them with the bread of the firstfruits for a wave offering before the LORD, with the two lambs: they shall be holy to the LORD for the priest.

21 And ye shall proclaim on the selfsame day, that it may be an holy convocation unto you: ye shall do no servile work therein: it shall be a statute for ever in all your dwellings throughout your generations.

22 ¶ And when ye reap the harvest of your land, thou shalt not make clean riddance of the corners of thy field when thou reapest, neither shalt thou gather any gleanings of thy harvest: thou shalt leave them unto the poor, and to the stranger: I am the LORD your God.

23 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

24 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, In the seventh month, in the first day of the month, shall ye have a sabbath, a memorial of blowing of trumpets, an holy convocation.

25 Ye shall do no servile work therein: but ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

26 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

27 Also on the tenth day of this seventh month there shall be a day of atonement: it shall be an holy convocation unto you; and ye shall afflict your souls, and offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

28 And ye shall do no work in that same day: for it is a day of atonement, to make an atonement for you before the LORD your God.

29 For whatsoever soul it be that shall not be afflicted in that same day, he shall be cut off from among his people.

30 And whatsoever soul it be that doeth any work in that same day, the same soul will I destroy from among his people.

31 Ye shall do no manner of work: it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations in all your dwellings.

32 It shall be unto you a sabbath of rest, and ye shall afflict your souls: in the ninth day of the month at even, from even unto even, shall ye celebrate your sabbath.

33 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

34 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, The fifteenth day of this seventh month shall be the feast of tabernacles for seven days unto the LORD.

35 On the first day shall be an holy convocation: ye shall do no servile work therein.

36 Seven days ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD: on the eighth day shall be an holy convocation unto you; and ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD: it is a solemn assembly; and ye shall do no servile work therein.

37 These are the feasts of the LORD, which ye shall proclaim to be holy convocations, to offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD, a burnt offering, and a meat offering, a sacrifice, and drink offerings, every thing upon his day:

38 Beside the sabbaths of the LORD, and beside your gifts, and beside all your vows, and beside all your free-will offerings, which ye give unto the LORD.

39 Also in the fifteenth day of the seventh month, when ye have gathered in the fruit of the land, ye shall keep a feast unto the LORD seven days: on the first day shall be a sabbath, and on the eighth day shall be a sabbath.

40 And ye shall take you on the first day the boughs of goodly trees, branches of palm trees, and the boughs of thick trees, and willows of the brook; and ye shall rejoice before the LORD your God seven days.

41 And ye shall keep it a feast unto the LORD seven days in the year. It shall be a statute for ever, in your generations: ye shall celebrate it in the seventh month.

42 Ye shall dwell in booths seven days; all that are Israelites born shall dwell in booths:

43 That your generations may know that I made the children of Israel to dwell in booths, when I brought them out of the land of Egypt: I am the LORD your God.

44 And Moses declared unto the children of Israel the feasts of the LORD.

CHAP. XXIV.

1 The oil for the lamps. 5 The shewbread. 10 Shelomith's son blasphemeth; his sentence; and the law of blasphemy. 17 The law of murder; 18 of damage. 23 The blasphemer is stoned.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, 2 Command the children of Israel, that they bring unto thee pure oil olive beaten for the light, to cause the lamps to burn continually.

3 Without the veil of the testimony, in the tabernacle of the congregation, shall Aaron order it from the evening

36 It is a solemn assembly, &c. The Hebrew word qatsresh, "a restraint," or "detention," was a term used for the last day of every great festival, because all work was prohibited, and the people were detained in the holy places.

39 On the eighth day shall be a sabbath, &c. Because the feast happened in the time of vintage, when the fruits of the earth were gathered, it is called in Exod. xxiii. 16. the feast of ingatherings. This day was peculiarly appropriated to this end, as the seven days preceding were to the commemorating their dwelling in tents; because on the seven preceding days, the Jews did dwell in tents, but on this eighth day they returned to their habitations.

40 Ye shall rejoice before the Lord, &c. They were to spend these seven days in rejoicing, and returning thanks to God, who had brought them from the barren wilderness, to a fertile country.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXIII.

We here find, that God enjoined the Jews to celebrate every year a general fast; and that there should be made a solemn atonement for sin; therefore fasting and humiliation, are duties absolutely necessary; but since the atonement was repeated every year, it was a sign that sin was not then expiated, as it has been since, by the sacrifice of Christ. The feast of tabernacles should remind us of the continual goodness of God; and we should particularly bless him, for redeeming us by his Son.

EXPLANATORY

17 They shall be baked with leaven, &c. We find this is different from the established law relating to other meat offerings of this kind; but then we should consider, that part of the latter were burnt upon altars, whereas the former were only waved before the Lord, and given to the priest for his portion.

19 One kid of the goats for a sin offering, &c. A bullock was the offering for particular sins of the congregation, but for the sins of the nation in general, a kid of the goats. The reason assigned by some for this difference, is the following: The more grievous the sin was, the viler was the sacrifice; there being no greater sin than idolatry, nor viler sacrifice than the goat; this was therefore appointed for the expiation of that trespass.

24 A memorial of blowing of trumpets, &c. Which words might be rendered more properly, A festival for commemorating and praising God, with the sound of the trumpets. They blew the trumpet every new moon; but in that of the seventh month, it was to be done with a more than ordinary solemnity.

34 The fifteenth day of this seventh month shall be the feast of tabernacles, &c. Which feast was instituted in memory of their having dwelt in tents in the wilderness for forty years, under the protection of the Almighty. The first day of this festival was ushered in by a general procession, in which they carried branches of palm-trees in their hands, waving them about towards the four winds, and singing psalms and hymns suitable to the occasion, at the same time crying out, Hosannah; or, save we beseech thee.

Before CHRIST 1490. evening unto the morning before the LORD continually: it shall be a statute for ever in your generations.

4 He shall order the lamps upon the pure candlestick before the LORD continually.

5 ¶ And thou shalt take fine flour, and bake twelve cakes thereof: two tenth deals shall be in one cake.

6 And thou shalt set them in two rows, six on a row, upon the pure table before the LORD.

7 And thou shalt put pure frankincense upon each row, that it may be on the bread for a memorial, even an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

8 Every sabbath he shall set it in order before the LORD continually, being taken from the children of Israel by an everlasting covenant.

9 And it shall be Aaron's and his sons': and they shall eat it in the holy place: for it is most holy unto him of the offerings of the LORD made by fire by a perpetual statute.

10 ¶ And the son of an Israelitish woman, whose father was an Egyptian, went out among the children of Israel: and this son of the Israelitish woman and a man of Israel strove together in the camp.

11 And the Israelitish woman's son blasphemed the name of the LORD, and cursed. And they brought him unto Moses: (and his mother's name was Shelomith, the daughter of Dibri, of the tribe of Dan:)

12 And they put him in ward, that the mind of the LORD might be shewed them.

13 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

14 Bring forth him that hath cursed without the camp, and let all that heard him lay their hands upon his head, and let all the congregation stone him.

15 And thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel, saying, Whosoever curseth his God shall bear his sin.

16 And he that blasphemeth the name of the LORD, he shall surely be put to death, and all the congregation shall certainly stone him: as well the stranger, as he that is born in the land, when he blasphemeth the name of the LORD, shall be put to death.

17 ¶ And he that killeth any man shall surely be put to death.

18 ¶ And he that killeth a beast shall make it good; beast for beast.

19 And if a man cause a blemish in his neighbour; as he hath done, so shall it be done to him;

20 Breach for breach, eye for eye, tooth for tooth:

as he hath caused a blemish in a man, so shall it be done to him again.

21 And he that killeth a beast, he shall restore it: and he that killeth a man, he shall be put to death.

22 Ye shall have one manner of law, well for the stranger, as for one of your own country: for I am the LORD your God.

23 ¶ And Moses spake unto the children of Israel, that they should bring forth him that had cursed out of the camp, and stone him with stones. And the children of Israel did as the LORD commanded Moses.

CHAP. XXV.

1 The sabbath of the seventh year. 2 The jubile in the fiftieth year. 14 Oppression forbidden. 18 A blessing promised to obedience. 23 The redemption of land, 29 and of houses. 35 Compassion to be had of the poor: and usury restrained. 39 The usage of bondservants. 47 The redemption of servants.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses in mount Sinai, saying,

¶ Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye come into the land which I give you, then shall the land keep a sabbath unto the LORD.

3 Six years thou shalt sow thy field, and six years thou shalt prune thy vineyard, and gather in the fruit thereof;

4 But in the seventh year shall be a sabbath of rest unto the land, a sabbath for the LORD: thou shalt neither sow thy field, nor prune thy vineyard.

5 That which groweth of its own accord of thy harvest thou shalt not reap, neither gather the grapes of thy vine undressed: for it is a year of rest unto the land.

6 And the sabbath of the land shall be meat for you; for thee, and for thy servant, and for thy maid, and for thy hired servant, and for thy stranger that sojourneth with thee,

7 And for thy cattle, and for the beasts that are in thy land, shall all the increase thereof be meat.

8 ¶ And thou shalt number seven sabbaths of years unto thee, seven times seven years; and the space of the seven sabbaths of years shall be unto thee, forty and nine years.

9 Then shalt thou cause the trumpet of the jubile to

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXIV.

¶ In two rows, &c.] The cakes were placed one upon another, and set lengthways over the breadth of the table. They were ten hands breadth long, five hands breadth broad, and seven fingers thick.

¶ On the bread, &c.] According to the Hebrew it may be rendered, "for the bread," that is offered unto God instead of the bread which was given unto the priest.

¶ This son of the Israelitish woman and a man of Israel strove together, &c.] We are informed by the Jews, that this person attempted to set up his tent among the Danites, in right of his mother, who belonged to their tribe; and that being opposed by the Israelites, and told, that as his father was an Egyptian, he had no right to do so, that he was thereupon so hurried away by rage, that he uttered blasphemies against the Most High.

¶ Blasphemed, &c.] Some imagine that his cause came before the judges, and that their determination was, he had no right to the privileges of a true Israelite; and that being aggrieved by the divine appointment, which made this distinction between the Israelites, and strangers, he audaciously reproached both the law and the law-maker, and set them all at defiance.

¶ That the mind of the Lord might be shewed them.] By which is meant that Moses was to pronounce sentence, according to the directions of God.

¶ Let all the congregation stone him.] Accordingly each person present cast his stone at the blasphemer, signifying that himself was wounded by the blow levelled by the impious person at the Almighty. The putting blasphemers to death has been looked upon as a moral law, as well among Christians as Jews, and therefore such were condemned by Justinian of old.

¶ Eye for eye, tooth for tooth, &c.] Notwithstanding Christians live under a milder dispensation, and perhaps for that reason may think this to have been a very severe decree; yet the laws of other nations, as well as the Jewish, shew they did not think it unreasonable; for it obtained a place among the celebrated Roman laws of the twelve tribes.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXIV.

The law about the oil for the lamps relates only to the external and ceremonial service of the Jews. The shew-bread, consisting of twelve loaves, which were always exposed in the sanctuary, was a solemn acknowledgment, made by all the Israelites, that they held all good things from God; which should teach Christians to be grateful for the blessings he bestows upon them. The law against blasphemers, and the example of him who was stoned, is very remarkable and awful, and should inspire us with extreme horror for blasphemy.

to found, on the tenth day of the seventh month, in the day of atonement shall ye make the trumpet sound throughout all your land.

10 And ye shall hallow the fiftieth year, and proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof: it shall be a jubile unto you; and ye shall return every man unto his possession, and ye shall return every man unto his family.

11 A jubile shall that fiftieth year be unto you: ye shall not sow, neither reap that which groweth of itself in it, nor gather the grapes in it of thy vine undressed.

12 For it is the jubile; it shall be holy unto you: ye shall eat the increase thereof out of the field.

13 In the year of this jubile ye shall return every man unto his possession.

14 ¶ And if thou sell aught unto thy neighbour, or buyest aught of thy brother's hand, ye shall not oppress one another:

15 According to the number of years after the jubile thou shalt buy of thy neighbour, and according unto the number of years of the fruits he shall sell unto thee:

16 According to the multitude of years thou shalt increase the price thereof, and according to the fewness of years thou shalt diminish the price of it; for according to the number of the years of the fruits doth he sell unto thee.

17 Ye shall not therefore oppress one another; but thou shalt fear thy God: for I am the LORD your God.

18 ¶ Wherefore ye shall do my statutes, and keep my judgments, and do them; and ye shall dwell in the land in safety.

19 And the land shall yield her fruit, and ye shall eat your fill, and dwell therein in safety.

20 And if ye shall say, What shall we eat the seventh year? behold, we shall not sow, nor gather in our increase:

21 Then I will command my blessing upon you in the sixth year, and it shall bring forth fruit for three years.

22 And ye shall sow the eighth year, and eat yet of old fruit until the ninth year; until her fruits come in ye shall eat of the old store.

23 ¶ The land shall not be sold for ever: for the land is mine; for ye are strangers and sojourners with me.

24 And in all the land of your possession ye shall grant a redemption for the land.

25 If thy brother be waxen poor, and hath sold away some of his possession, and if any of his kin come to redeem it, then shall he redeem that which his brother sold.

26 And if the man have none to redeem it, and himself be able to redeem it; from the like oppression of their own brethren. It is very remarkable, that the last year of our Saviour's life was a year of jubile, and the very last that ever was kept; which verifies the confession of the book of Zohar, wherein we are told, that "the divine glory should be freedom and redemption in a year of jubile."

15 According to the number of years, &c.] In this law there was not the least injustice, nor any reason to complain; since every purchaser of an estate was well apprised of the year of jubile; and in the sale of lands it was always considered, when they sold at a higher or lower price, according as the jubile was nearer or more remote.

20 If ye shall say, What shall we eat, &c.] In order that they might not object against so wise and good a law, the Almighty graciously promised them, that their lands should bring forth so abundantly in the preceding year, as should be sufficient to supply all their wants.

23 The land is mine, &c.] God in this expression speaks to them in conformity to their idea of him as a local deity, who preferred the land of Judea to all other countries for his personal residence.

29 If a man sell a dwelling house, &c.] Houses in the city, if not redeemed within a year, were never more to return to their first owner, not even at the jubile; but country houses, as being a part of their hereditary estates, were subject to the same law as their estates. This provision seems to have been made for the encouragement of strangers and proselytes to come and settle among them, who, though they could not purchase land to them and their heirs, yet

27 Then let him count the years of the sale thereof, and restore the overplus unto the man to whom he sold it; that he may return unto his possession.

28 But if he be not able to restore it to him, then that which is sold shall remain in the hand of him that hath bought it until the year of jubile: and in the jubile it shall go out, and he shall return unto his possession.

29 ¶ And if a man sell a dwelling house in a walled city, then he may redeem it within a whole year after it is sold; within a full year may he redeem it.

30 And if it be not redeemed within the space of a full year, then the house that is in the walled city shall be established for ever to him that bought it throughout his generations: it shall not go out in the jubile.

31 But the houses of the villages which have no wall round about them shall be counted as the fields of the country: they may be redeemed, and they shall go out in the jubile.

32 Notwithstanding the cities of the Levites, and the houses of the cities of their possession, may the Levites redeem at any time.

33 And if a man purchase of the Levites, then the house that was sold, and the city of his possession, shall go out in the year of jubile: for the houses of the cities of the Levites are their possession among the children of Israel.

34 But the field of the suburbs of their cities may not be sold; for it is their perpetual possession.

35 ¶ And if thy brother be waxen poor, and fallen in decay with thee; and thou shalt relieve him: yea, though he be a stranger, or a sojourner; that he may live with thee.

36 Take thou no usury of him, or increase: but fear thy God; that thy brother may live with thee.

37 Thou shalt not give him thy money upon usury, nor lend him thy victuals for increase.

38 I am the LORD your God, which brought you forth out of the land of Egypt, to give you the land of Canaan, and to be your God.

39 ¶ And if thy brother that dwelleth by thee be waxen poor, and be sold unto thee; thou shalt not compel him to serve as a bondservant:

40 But as an hired servant, and as a sojourner, he shall be with thee, and shall serve thee unto the year of jubile:

41 And then shall he depart from thee, both he and his children with him, and shall return unto his own family, and unto the possession of his fathers shall he return.

42 For they are my servants, which I brought forth out of the land of Egypt: they shall not be sold as bondmen.

43 Thou shalt not rule over him with rigour; but shalt fear thy God.

might purchase houses within walled cities, as being most convenient for those who were supposed to live by trade.

34 But the field of the suburbs, &c.] The Hebrews inform us, that round the cities of the Levites, a thousand cubits (about a quarter of a mile) was measured for their suburbs; without which, all round, were measured two thousand more, to feed their cattle in, and for vineyards: this portion being undivided, and lying in common, no particular person had any power to bargain for it.

36 May live with thee.] That is, may live happily with thee.

39 Thou shalt not compel him to serve as a bond servant.] That is, he should not be treated as a slave whom they bought of other nations, or took in their wars, over whom they had an absolute dominion, and might sell them and their children at pleasure.

42 They are my servants, &c.] The meanest, as well as the most opulent Israelite, was the peculiar servant and worshipper of the true God, and therefore as serving one common master, they were secured from the slavery and oppression of their brethren.

43 Thou shalt not rule over him with rigour, &c.] The practice against which this precept is levelled, is but too frequent among men; and it is a melancholy consideration, that Christians should violate it, by their inhuman treatment of their negro-slaves in the American colonies; and notwithstanding the Jewish rabbins assert, that a man may use his slave as he pleases, provided he does not maim him; yet this is contrary to religion and humanity.

44 Both thy bondmen, and thy bondmaids, which thou shalt have, shall be of the heathen that are round about you; of them shall ye buy bondmen and bondmaids.

45 Moreover of the children of the strangers that do sojourn among you, of them shall ye buy, and of their families that are with you, which they begat in your land: and they shall be your possession.

46 And ye shall take them as an inheritance for your children after you, to inherit them for possession; they shall be your bondmen for ever: but over your brethren the children of Israel, ye shall not rule one over another with rigour.

47 ¶ And if a sojourner or stranger wax rich by thee, and thy brother that dwelleth by him wax poor, and sell himself unto the stranger or sojourner by thee, or to the stock of the stranger's family:

48 After that he is sold he may be redeemed again; one of his brethren may redeem him:

49 Either his uncle, or his uncle's son, may redeem him, or any that is nigh of kin unto him of his family may redeem him; or if he be able, he may redeem himself.

50 And he shall reckon with him that bought him from the year that he was sold to him unto the year of jubile: and the price of his sale shall be according unto the number of years, according to the time of an hired servant shall it be with him.

51 If there be yet many years behind, according unto them he shall give again the price of his redemption out of the money that he was bought for.

52 And if there remain but few years unto the year of jubile, then he shall count with him, and according unto his years shall he give him again the price of his redemption.

53 And as a yearly hired servant shall he be with him: and the other shall not rule with rigour over him in thy sight.

54 And if he be not redeemed in these years, then he shall go out in the year of jubile, both he, and his children with him.

55 For unto me the children of Israel are servants; they are my servants whom I brought forth out of the land of Egypt: I am the LORD your God.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXV.

In this chapter we find, 1st, How great a sin it is before God, to lend money to necessitous persons upon hard and unjust terms; and that the poor and strangers are to be treated with equity and humanity. The second is, That God would not have the Jews subject those of their own nation to slavery, nor use too much rigour to strange slaves; which should teach Christian masters not to be too rigorous towards their own servants; and to remember that their servants, and they themselves too, have a master in heaven; and that with him there is no respect of persons, Eph. vi. 9.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXVI.

1 A standing image. Supposed to have been a kind of rude stones which the heathens erected to their gods, and to which they paid divine worship.

Any image of stone, &c. The words in the original signify a picture stone, or stones painted with pictures, like those of the Egyptian hieroglyphics. The Septuagint render it, A stone consecrated to the gods in pictures, or the tutelary deities of the country.

4 I will give you rain in due season, &c. It was unusual in Canaan and Syria, to have rain but at two seasons; in the spring before harvest, and at the end of autumn at seed time; called by the prophet, "the former and the latter rain," Jer. v. 24. When either of these failed, the year was quite barren; hence these countries were subject to famine. This promise therefore of rain in due season was a most gracious one, and a blessing invaluable.

3 ¶ If ye walk in my statutes, and keep my commandments, and do them;

4 Then I will give you rain in due season, and the land shall yield her increase, and the trees of the field shall yield their fruit:

5 And your threshing shall reach unto the vintage, and the vintage shall reach unto the sowing time: and ye shall eat your bread to the full, and dwell in your land safely.

6 And I will give peace in the land, and ye shall lie down, and none shall make you afraid: and I will rid evil beasts out of the land, neither shall the sword go through your land.

7 And ye shall chase your enemies, and they shall fall before you by the sword.

8 And five of you shall chase an hundred, and an hundred of you shall put ten thousand to flight: and your enemies shall fall before you by the sword.

9 For I will have respect unto you, and make you fruitful, and multiply you, and establish my covenant with you.

10 And ye shall eat old store, and bring forth the old because of the new.

11 And I will set my tabernacle among you: and my soul shall not abhor you.

12 And I will walk among you, and will be your God, and ye shall be my people.

13 I am the LORD your God, which brought you forth out of the land of Egypt, that ye should not be their bondmen; and I have broken the bands of your yoke, and made you go upright.

14 ¶ But if ye will not hearken unto me, and will not do all these commandments;

15 And if ye shall despise my statutes, or if your soul abhor my judgments, so that ye will not do all my commandments, but that ye break my covenant:

16 I also will do this unto you; I will even appoint over you terror, consumption, and the burning ague, that shall consume the eyes, and cause sorrow of heart: and ye shall sow your seed in vain, for your enemies shall eat it.

17 And I will set my face against you, and ye shall be slain before your enemies: they that hate you shall reign over you; and ye shall flee when none pursueth you.

18 And if ye will not yet for all this hearken unto me, then I will punish you seven times more for your sins.

19 And I will break the pride of your power; and I will make your heaven as iron, and your earth as brass:

20 And your strength shall be spent in vain: for your land shall not yield her increase, neither shall the trees of the land yield their fruits.

21 And

5 Your threshing shall reach unto the vintage, &c. Here God promised that their fruits should be produced in such abundance, that they should scarce have time enough to receive and dispose of one blessing before another was showered upon them: before they had reaped their corn, their vintage would be ready; and before the vintage was finished, the sowing season would commence. "The plowman overtook the reaper, and the treader of grapes him that sowed seed." Amos ix. 13.

10 Bring forth the old because of the new. Ye shall have so large a stock of the old corn remaining at harvest, that ye shall be obliged to remove the former, in order to make room for the latter.

13 Made you go upright. This is a metaphor taken from a person lightened of his load; it signifies, liberty, ease, and pleasure.

16 Terror, consumption, and the burning ague, &c. The Hebrew word rendered "terror," signifies the disease called an epilepsy, or falling sickness. "Consumption" is, in the interlineary translations, rendered the phthisick; but in the Vulgate, Septuagint, and Chaldee, want or famine. The Hebrew word sachepath is variously rendered. Some imagine it to be an hectic fever.

19 I will make your heaven as iron, and your earth as brass. This is a figurative expression, conveying a awful idea of the anger of God; the heavens are represented as impenetrable to rain, as iron; and the earth as having its vegetation stores locked up beneath a surface of brass; from whence a dreadful famine must be the consequence.

-Before
1491.

21 And if ye walk contrary unto me, and will not hearken unto me; I will bring seven times more plagues upon you according to your sins.

22 I will also send wild beasts among you, which shall rob you of your children, and destroy your cattle, and make you few in number; and your high ways shall be desolate.

23 And if ye will not be reformed by me by these things, but will walk contrary unto me;

24 Then will I also walk contrary unto you, and will punish you yet seven times for your sins.

25 And I will bring a sword upon you, that shall avenge the quarrel of my covenant: and when ye are gathered together within your cities, I will send the pestilence among you; and ye shall be delivered into the hand of the enemy.

26 And when I have broken the staff of your bread, ten women shall bake your bread in one oven, and they shall deliver you your bread again by weight: and ye shall eat, and not be satisfied.

27 And if ye will not for all this hearken unto me, but walk contrary unto me;

28 Then I will walk contrary unto you also in fury; and I, even I, will chastise you seven times for your sins.

29 And ye shall eat the flesh of your sons, and the flesh of your daughters shall ye eat.

30 And I will destroy your high places, and cut down your images, and cast your carcases upon the carcases of your idols, and my soul shall abhor you.

31 And I will make your cities waste, and bring your sanctuaries unto desolation, and I will not smell the savour of your sweet odours.

32 And I will bring the land into desolation: and your enemies which dwell therein shall be astonished at it.

33 And I will scatter you among the heathen, and will draw out a sword after you: and your land shall be desolate, and your cities waste.

34 Then shall the land enjoy her sabbaths, as long as it lieth desolate, and ye be in your enemies' land; even then shall the land rest, and enjoy her sabbaths.

35 As long as it lieth desolate it shall rest; because it did not rest in your sabbaths, when ye dwelt upon it.

36 And upon them that are left alive of you I will send a faintness into their hearts in the lands of their enemies; and the sound of a shaken leaf shall chase them; and they shall flee, as fleeing from a sword; and they shall fall when none pursueth.

22 I will also send wild beasts, &c.] This is a metaphorical expression, signifying wicked and tyrannical rulers, who prey upon the lives and fortunes of their people.

26 Ten women shall bake your bread in one oven, &c.] So great was to be the threatened scarcity, that one oven should be sufficient to bake the bread for ten families.

28 Seven times for your sins.] i. e. I will punish you with new and more grievous punishments: fulfilled in their captivity in the days of Manassah, Jehoiakin, and Zedekiah. These latter calamities, both for extent and duration, were at least seven times greater than their sufferings by the Philistines, and neighbouring nations.

29 Ye shall eat the flesh of your sons, &c.] This is the forest calamity that could befall a people. It is described in Dut. xxviii. 53, &c. and happened in this rebellious people in the siege of Samaria, 2 Kings vi. 29. in the siege of Jerusalem, before the Babylonish captivity, Lam. iv. 10. and in the destruction of it by the Romans; the horrors of which were very tremendous.

30 I will destroy your high places] i. e. The places where you worship your idols and images.

34 Then shall the land rest, and enjoy her sabbaths.] Which before your covetousness would not suffer to rest in the sabbatical years. This expression intimates, that the very ground would be re-created, when rid of its sinful inhabitants, for whom it was wearied and fatigued in bringing forth food.

36 The sound of a shaken leaf shall chase them, &c.] i. e. I will fill them with such timidity, that they shall be afraid of their own shadow, and tremble at the shaking of a leaf.

38 The land of your enemies shall eat you up.] i. e. You shall be swallowed up or lost in the body of another nation, and shall never return more to the promised land. This sentence was executed in the captivity of the tribes, who never did return, nor were ever heard of.

37 And they shall fall one upon another, as it were before a sword, when none pursueth: and ye shall have no power to stand before your enemies.

38 And ye shall perish among the heathen, and the land of your enemies shall eat you up.

39 And they that are left of you shall pine away in their iniquity in your enemies' lands; and also in the iniquities of their fathers shall they pine away with them.

40 ¶ If they shall confess their iniquity, and the iniquity of their fathers, with their trespasss which they trespassed against me, and that also they have walked contrary unto me;

41 And that I also have walked contrary unto them, and have brought them into the land of their enemies; if then their uncircumcised hearts be humbled, and they then accept of the punishment of their iniquity:

42 Then will I remember my covenant with Jacob, and also my covenant with Isaac, and also my covenant with Abraham will I remember; and I will remember the land.

43 The land also shall be left of them, and shall enjoy her sabbaths, while she lieth desolate without them: and they shall accept of the punishment of their iniquity: because, even because they despised my judgments, and because their soul abhorred my statutes.

44 And yet for all that, when they be in the land of their enemies, I will not cast them away, neither will I abhor them to destroy them utterly, and to break my covenant with them: for I am the Lord their God.

45 But I will for their sakes remember the covenant of their ancestors, whom I brought forth out of the land of Egypt in the sight of the heathen, that I might be their God: I am the Lord.

46 These are the statutes and judgments and laws, which the Lord made between him and the children of Israel in Mount Sinai by the hand of Moses.

C H A P. XXVII.

1 He that maketh a singular vow must be the Lord's. 3 The estimation of the person; 9 of a beast given by vow; 14 of a house; 16 of a field, and the redemption thereof. 26 No man may sanctify the Lord's firstlings. 28 No devoted thing may be redeemed. 30 The wife is holy, and may not be changed.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, 2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When a man shall make a singular vow, the persons shall be for the Lord by thy estimation.

3 ¶ And

40—45 If they shall confess—I will for their sakes remember the covenant, &c.] One of the passages of scripture is this from whence the Jews derive their hopes of a temporal deliverance; but since the Mosaic dispensation is at an end, they can lay no claim to such promises, unless they previously embrace Christianity; unless they confess their iniquity in crucifying the Lord of glory, the true Messiah; which when they do, God will for their sakes, that is, their ancestors who believed in Christ that was to come, remember the land.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXVI.

We ought to listen very attentively to the curses contained in this chapter; and which, we see clearly, were all to happen to the people of Israel, by reason of their sins. God visited them upon divers occasions, by famine, death, war, and other scourges; and at last delivered them up to their enemies, and drove them out of the land of Canaan, when they were carried away captive into Assyria and Babylon, and at last destroyed by the Romans. But we also see here the promises of the re-establishment of the Jews, which partly happened when they returned from their captivity; and which will be entirely accomplished in the latter times, when they shall be converted. These are noble and strong evidences of the divinity of the scriptures; and this example of the Jews should make us dread the curses denounced in the gospel against impenitent sinners; especially since those curses are much more terrible than those we have now read.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXVII.

2 When a man shall make a singular vow] i. e. When he shall promise in a solemn manner to separate any common thing to a sacred use. This chapter concerning vows is added as an appendix, closing up the book of statutes.

^{Before CHRIST 1491.} 3 ¶ And thy estimation shall be of the male from twenty years old even unto sixty years old, even thy estimation shall be fifty shekels of silver, after the shekel of the sanctuary.

4 And if it be a female, then thy estimation shall be thirty shekels.

5 And if it be from five years old even unto twenty years old, then thy estimation shall be of the male twenty shekels, and for the female ten shekels.

6 And if it be from a month old even unto five years old, then thy estimation shall be of the male five shekels of silver, and for the female thy estimation shall be three shekels of silver.

7 And if it be from sixty years old and above; if it be a male, then thy estimation shall be fifteen shekels, and for the female ten shekels.

8 But if he be poorer than thy estimation, then he shall present himself before the priest, and the priest shall value him; according to his ability that vowed shall the priest value him.

9 ¶ And if it be a beast, whereof men bring an offering unto the Lord, all that any man giveth of such unto the Lord shall be holy.

10 He shall not alter it, nor change it, good for a bad, or a bad for a good: and if he shall at all change beast for beast, then it and the exchange thereof shall be holy.

11 And if it be any unclean beast, of which they do not offer a sacrifice unto the Lord, then he shall present the beast before the priest:

12 And the priest shall value it, whether it be good or bad: as thou valuest it, who art the priest, so shall it be.

13 But if he will at all redeem it, then he shall add a fifth part thereof unto thy estimation.

14 ¶ And when a man shall sanctify his house to be holy unto the Lord, then the priest shall estimate it, whether it be good or bad: as the priest shall estimate it, so shall it stand.

15 And if he that sanctified it will redeem his house, then he shall add the fifth part of the money of thy estimation unto it, and it shall be his.

16 ¶ And if a man shall sanctify unto the Lord some part of a field of his possession, then thy estimation shall be according to the seed thereof: an homer of barley seed shall be valued at fifty shekels of silver.

17 If he sanctify his field from the year of jubile, according to thy estimation it shall stand.

18 But if he sanctify his field after the jubile, then the priest shall reckon unto him the money according to the years that remain, even unto the year of the jubile, and it shall be abated from thy estimation.

The persons shall be for the Lord by thy estimation. When a man consecrated himself or his child to the service of the tabernacle, such as sweeping the floor, carrying out ashes, running on errands, or the like, the persons so consecrated shall be for the Lord: that is, God will accept the good will; but seeing there was an whole tribe devoted to this service, those who were vowed, were not wanted, but were to be redeemed; and the redemption-money was appropriated to defray the expence of repairing the tabernacle, and other matters.

10 He shall not alter, nor change, &c. The word here rendered "Alter" signifies the substituting any other kind of beast or thing in its stead; but "change," the giving any other beast of the same species, instead of it.

16 An homer of barley seed shall be valued at fifty shekels, &c. i. e. As much land as an homer of barley will sow, shall be rated at fifty shekels, which was equivalent to about five pounds seven shillings of our money. The homer, Exod. xvi. 16, 36, was the tenth part of an ephah; but the homer, or measure spoken of in this place, ten ephahs, that is about ten bushels.

16 He shall add the fifth part, &c. If afterwards the owner was inclined to redeem himself, he might not purchase his redemption so cheap as another, but was to add a fifth part of the price; thus God would lead men into a serious consideration before they made a vow.

29 None devoted, which shall be devoted of men, shall be redeemed; but shall surely be put to death. These words have been the occasion of much dispute among some commentators; but the true meaning seems to be this: every thing which is devoted of men shall not be

19 And if he that sanctified the field will in any wife redeem it, then he shall add the fifth part of the money of thy estimation unto it, and it shall be assured to him. ^{Before CHRIST 1491.}

20 And if he will not redeem the field, or if he have sold the field to another man, it shall not be redeemed any more.

21 But the field, when it goeth out in the jubile, shall be holy unto the Lord, as a field devoted; the possession thereof shall be the priest's.

22 And if a man sanctify unto the Lord a field which he hath bought, which is not of the fields of his possession;

23 Then the priest shall reckon unto him the worth of thy estimation, even unto the year of the jubile: and he shall give thine estimation in that day, as a holy thing unto the Lord.

24 In the year of the jubile the field shall return unto him of whom it was bought, even to him to whom the possession of the land did belong.

25 And all thy estimations shall be according to the shekel of the sanctuary; twenty gerahs shall be the shekel.

26 ¶ Only the firstling of the beasts, which should be the Lord's firstling, no man shall sanctify it; whether it be ox, or sheep: it is the Lord's.

27 And if it be of an unclean beast, then he shall redeem it according to thine estimation, and shall add a fifth part of it thereto: or if it be not redeemed, then it shall be sold according to thy estimation.

28 ¶ Notwithstanding no devoted thing, that a man shall devote unto the Lord of all that he hath, both of man and beast, and of the field of his possession, shall be sold or redeemed: every devoted thing is most holy unto the Lord.

29 None devoted, which shall be devoted of men, shall be redeemed; but shall surely be put to death.

30 ¶ And all the tythe of the land, whether of the seed of the land, or of the fruit of the tree, is the Lord's: it is holy unto the Lord.

31 And if a man will at all redeem ought of his tithes, he shall add thereto the fifth part thereof.

32 And concerning the title of the herd, or of the flock, even of whatsoever passeth under the rod, the tenth shall be holy unto the Lord.

33 He shall not search whether it be good or bad, neither shall he change it: and if he change it at all, then both it and the change thereof shall be holy; it shall not be redeemed.

34 These are the commandments which the Lord commanded Moses for the children of Israel in mount Sinai.

The

redeemed, but shall surely die, i. e. he shall die in that devoted state. Our translation indeed has it, "he shall surely be put to death;" which is not to be understood of being sacrificed, or put to a violent death; but that he is to continue till death in a devoted state. See 1 Sam. i. 11.

32 Whosoever passeth under the rod, &c. This the Jews pretend alludes to the tything rod, coloured with ocher, with which the person placed himself at the door of the fold, numbered the cattle as they came out, and marked every tenth with his rod. The manner of decimating cattle was this: they shut up all the lambs, kids, or calves, in a stable, having but one door, so narrow that two could not pass abreast, and then brought their dams to the door, that the young ones hearing their voice, might strive to get out by passing under the rod; as fast as they came out, those who stood by marked every tenth with red lead, and whether a male or female, with or without blemish, the owner said, This shall be consecrated to pay the tithes.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXVII.

This chapter affords us chiefly the following instruction: That vows ought to be religiously observed; and that when a thing has been devoted to God, and to holy uses, it cannot be applied to any other, without the guilt of sacrilege. We learn hence likewise, that we should not be guilty of any fraud in that which we set apart for divine service, or other religious uses; but act sincerely, and give with pleasure, even the best and most precious of our substance.

EXPLANATORY

The Fourth BOOK of MOSES,

C A L L E D

N U M B E R S.

T H E A R G U M E N T.

This book receives its title from the numbering the Israelites in the second year after they came out of Egypt. It is here worth observing, that though the names of the five books of Moses were borrowed from the Greek, yet this is the only book whose title is rendered into English, each of the other books retaining the Greek words, viz. Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, and Deuteronomy. This book recites several remarkable events of the historical kind, besides many additional laws, civil and religious, comprehending, in the whole, a space of about thirty-eight years and nine months.

C H A P. I.

1 God commandeth Moses to number the people. 5 The princes of the tribes. 17 The numbering of the people. 20, 22, &c. The number of each tribe. 44 The sum total. 47 The Levites are exempted for the service of the tabernacle.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, in the tabernacle of the congregation, on the first day of the second month, in the second year after they were come out of the land of Egypt, saying,

2 Take ye the sum of all the congregation of the children of Israel, after their families, by the house of their fathers, with the number of their names, every male by their polls;

3 From twenty years old and upward, all that are able to go forth to war in Israel: thou and Aaron shall number them by their armies.

4 And with you there shall be a man of every tribe; every one head of the house of his fathers.

5 ¶ And these are the names of the men that shall stand with you: of the tribe of Reuben; Elizur the son of Shedeur.

6 Of Simeon; Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai.

7 Of Judah; Nashon the son of Amminadab.

8 Of Issachar; Nethaneel the son of Zuar.

9 Of Zebulun; Eliab the son of Helon.

10 Of the children of Joseph: of Ephraim; Elishama the son of Ammihud: of Manasseh; Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur.

11 Of Benjamin; Abidan the son of Gideoni.

12 Of Dan; Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai.

13 Of Asher; Pagiel the son of Ocran.

14 Of Gad; Eliafaph the son of Deuel.

15 Of Naphtali; Ahira the son of Enan.

16 These were the renowned of the congregation, princes of the tribes of their fathers, heads of thousands in Israel. Before
CHRIST
1490.

17 ¶ And Moses and Aaron took these men which are expressed by their names:

18 And they assembled all the congregation together on the first day of the second month, and they declared their pedigrees after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, by their polls.

19 As the LORD commanded Moses, so he numbered them in the wilderness of Sinai.

20 ¶ And the children of Reuben, Israel's eldest son, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of their names, by their polls, every male from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

21 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Reuben, were forty and six thousand and five hundred.

22 ¶ Of the children of Simeon, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, those that were numbered of them, according to the number of the names, by their polls, every male from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

23 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Simeon, were fifty and nine thousand and three hundred.

24 ¶ Of the children of Gad, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war; arms, and obliging them to go forth to battle, was common among other nations, as well as the Jews; and hence it is, we read of such mighty armies being sent into the field, as appears scarcely credible in these days.

25 Those

5 Of the tribe of Reuben, &c.] We should observe, that the tribes are not placed in the order of their birth, but of their mothers who bare them, the children of Leah first; then of Rachel; and lastly, the children of the two handmaids.

14 The son of Deuel.] Who is called Reuel, chap. ii. 14.

16 These were the renowned of the congregation, princes, &c.] i. e. They were persons of rank and distinction in their respective tribes; this is evident, from their noble offerings at the dedication of the altar, chap. vii. 2. It is very probable they were judges and officers.

23 Of the tribe of Simeon, &c.] Seeing that he had six children at his descent into Egypt, and Reuben but four, the greater increase of this tribe may be accounted for upon natural reasons. This observation will also hold good of the increase of the tribe of Gad, when compared with this, though the exertion of an extraordinary providence must be called in to account for the vast increase of the tribes of Judah, Issachar, and Dan.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. I.

1 The Lord spake unto Moses] Now it was about thirteen months since the Israelites had left Egypt, twelve of which they had resided at Mount Sinai, in which place they received all the preceding laws; but before they left this station, Moses and Aaron received an order from God to make a general muster, and take an exact poll of all the Hebrew men, from twenty years of age and upwards, the Levites excepted.

On the first day of the second month, &c.] For several reasons this general muster of the people seems to have been ordered; for by it the accomplishment of the promise God made to Abraham, of multiplying his seed, was evidently seen to be fulfilled, by their increase from seventy-five persons, to upwards of six hundred thousand. By this means also, God's promise for ascertaining the genealogy of the Messiah, by a careful distinction of each particular tribe, family, and household. The word "all," is not to be understood absolutely, for the women were excepted; all the males under twenty years of age, the Levites, and those who were disabled through age or infirmity. The custom of numbering all that were capable of bearing

Before CHRIST 1490. 25 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Gad, were forty and five thousand six hundred and fifty.

26 ¶ Of the children of Judah, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of their names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war ;

27 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Judah, were threescore and fourteen thousand and six hundred.

28 ¶ Of the children of Issachar, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war ;

29 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Issachar, were fifty and four thousand and four hundred.

30 ¶ Of the children of Zebulun, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war ;

31 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Zebulun, were fifty and seven thousand and four hundred.

32 ¶ Of the children of Joseph, namely, of the children of Ephraim, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war ;

33 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Ephraim, were forty thousand and five hundred.

34 ¶ Of the children of Manasseh, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war ;

35 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Manasseh, were thirty and two thousand and two hundred.

36 ¶ Of the children of Benjamin, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of their names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war ;

37 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Benjamin, were thirty and five thousand and four hundred.

38 ¶ Of the children of Dan, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war ;

39 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Dan, were threescore and two thousand and seven hundred.

40 ¶ Of the children of Asher, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war ;

41 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Asher, were forty and one thousand and five hundred.

42 ¶ Of the children of Naphtali, throughout their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war ;

43 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Naphtali, were fifty and three thousand and four hundred.

44 ¶ These are those that were numbered, which Moses and Aaron numbered, and the princes of Israel, being twelve men: each one was for the house of his fathers :

45 So were all those that were numbered of the children of Israel, by the house of their fathers, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war in Israel ;

46 Even all they that were numbered were six hundred thousand and three thousand and five hundred and fifty.

47 ¶ But the Levites after the tribe of their fathers were not numbered among them.

48 For the LORD had spoken unto Moses, saying,

49 Only thou shalt not number the tribe of Levi, neither take the sum of them among the children of Israel :

50 But thou shalt appoint the Levites over the tabernacle of testimony, and over all the vessels thereof, and over all things that belong to it: they shall bear the tabernacle, and all the vessels thereof; and they shall minister unto it, and shall encamp round about the tabernacle.

51 And when the tabernacle setteth forward, the Levites shall take it down: and when the tabernacle is to be pitched, the Levites shall set it up: and the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death.

52 And the children of Israel shall pitch their tents, every man by his own camp, and every man by his own standard, throughout their hosts.

53 But the Levites shall pitch round about the tabernacle of testimony, that there be no wrath upon the congregation of the children of Israel: and the Levites shall keep the charge of the tabernacle of testimony.

54 And the children of Israel did according to all that the LORD commanded Moses, so did they.

CHAP. II.

1 The order of the tribes in their tents and in their marches. 3 Judah, Issachar, Zebulun, on the east; the first division. 10 Reuben, Simeon, Gad, on the south; the second division. 17 The place of the tabernacle with the Levites in the midst. 18 Ephraim, Manasseh, Benjamin, on the west; the third division. 25 On the north Dan, Asher, Naphtali; these bring up the rear. 32 Recapitulation.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

2 Every man of the children of Israel shall pitch by his own standard, with the ensign of their father's house: far off about the tabernacle of the congregation shall they pitch.

3 ¶ And faithfulness in fulfilling his promises, for in about two hundred years, they were increased from seventy, to upwards of six hundred thousand. God's goodness is also manifest in supporting the Israelites in the desert; for when he pleases to bestow blessings upon his creatures, he can even change, or set aside the order of nature.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. II.

¶ Every man, &c.] The whole body of the people were divided into four large battalions, and the standard seems to have been in the common banner, under which every three tribes were united; besides which, it is supposed that each tribe had a separate ensign, in the nature of our colours, each of which was of the same colour with the 46 All they that were numbered, &c.] Thus the sum total of this muster, six hundred and three thousand, five hundred and fifty men, is the very same with that mentioned Exod. xxxviii. 26. It may be that a few odd numbers are omitted in both, since it cannot well be supposed that not a man of them had died since their last numbering, which was seven months before.

47 The Levites were not numbered, &c.] Seeing that they were separated for the service of the tabernacle.

53 The Levites shall pitch round about the tabernacle, &c.] For they were intended to be a constant guard, to prevent any of the people from approaching nearer than was allowed, and by that means incurring the Divine wrath.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. I. This vast increase of the children of Israel, is an evidence of God's

3 ¶ And on the east side toward the rising of the sun shall they of the standard of the camp of Judah pitch throughout their armies: and Nathon the son of Aminadab shall be captain of the children of Judah.

4 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were threescore and fourteen thousand and six hundred.

5 And those that do pitch next unto him shall be the tribe of Issachar: and Nethaneel the son of Zuar shall be captain of the children of Issachar.

6 And his host, and those that were numbered thereof, were fifty and four thousand and four hundred.

7 Then the tribe of Zebulun; and Eliab the son of Helon shall be captain of the children of Zebulun.

8 And his host, and those that were numbered thereof, were fifty and seven thousand and four hundred.

9 All that were numbered of the camp of Judah were an hundred thousand and fourscore thousand and six thousand and four hundred, throughout their armies. These shall first set forth.

10 ¶ On the south side shall be the standard of the camp of Reuben according to their armies: and the captain of the children of Reuben shall be Elizur the son of Shedeur.

11 And his host, and those that were numbered thereof, were forty and six thousand and five hundred.

12 And those which pitch by him shall be the tribe of Simeon: and the captain of the children of Simeon shall be Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai.

13 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were fifty and nine thousand and three hundred.

14 Then the tribe of Gad: and the captain of the sons of Gad shall be Eliasaph the son of Reuel.

15 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were forty and five thousand and six hundred and fifty.

16 All that were numbered in the camp of Reuben were an hundred thousand and fifty and one thousand and four hundred and fifty, throughout their armies. And they shall set forth in the second rank.

17 ¶ Then the tabernacle of the congregation shall set forward with the camp of the Levites in the midst of the camp: as they encamp, so shall they set forward, every man in his place by their standards.

18 ¶ On the west side shall be the standard of the camp of Ephraim according to their armies: and the captain of the sons of Ephraim shall be Elishama the son of Ammihud.

19 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were forty thousand and five hundred.

20 And by him shall be the tribe of Manasseh: and the captain of the children of Manasseh shall be Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur.

21 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were thirty and two thousand and two hundred.

22 Then the tribe of Benjamin: and the captain of the sons of Benjamin shall be Abidan the son of Gideon.

23 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were thirty and five thousand and four hundred.

24 All that were numbered of the camp of Ephraim were an hundred thousand and eight thousand and an hundred, throughout their armies. And they shall go forward in the third rank.

25 ¶ The standard of the camp of Dan shall be on the north side by their armies: and the captain of the children of Dan shall be Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai.

26 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were threescore and two thousand and seven hundred.

27 And those that encamp by him shall be the tribe of Asher: and the captain of the children of Asher shall be Pagiel the son of Ocran.

28 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were forty and one thousand and five hundred.

29 Then the tribe of Naphtali: and the captain of the children of Naphtali shall be Ahira the son of Enan.

30 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were fifty and three thousand and four hundred.

31 All they that were numbered in the camp of Dan were an hundred thousand and fifty and seven thousand and six hundred. They shall go hindmost with their standards.

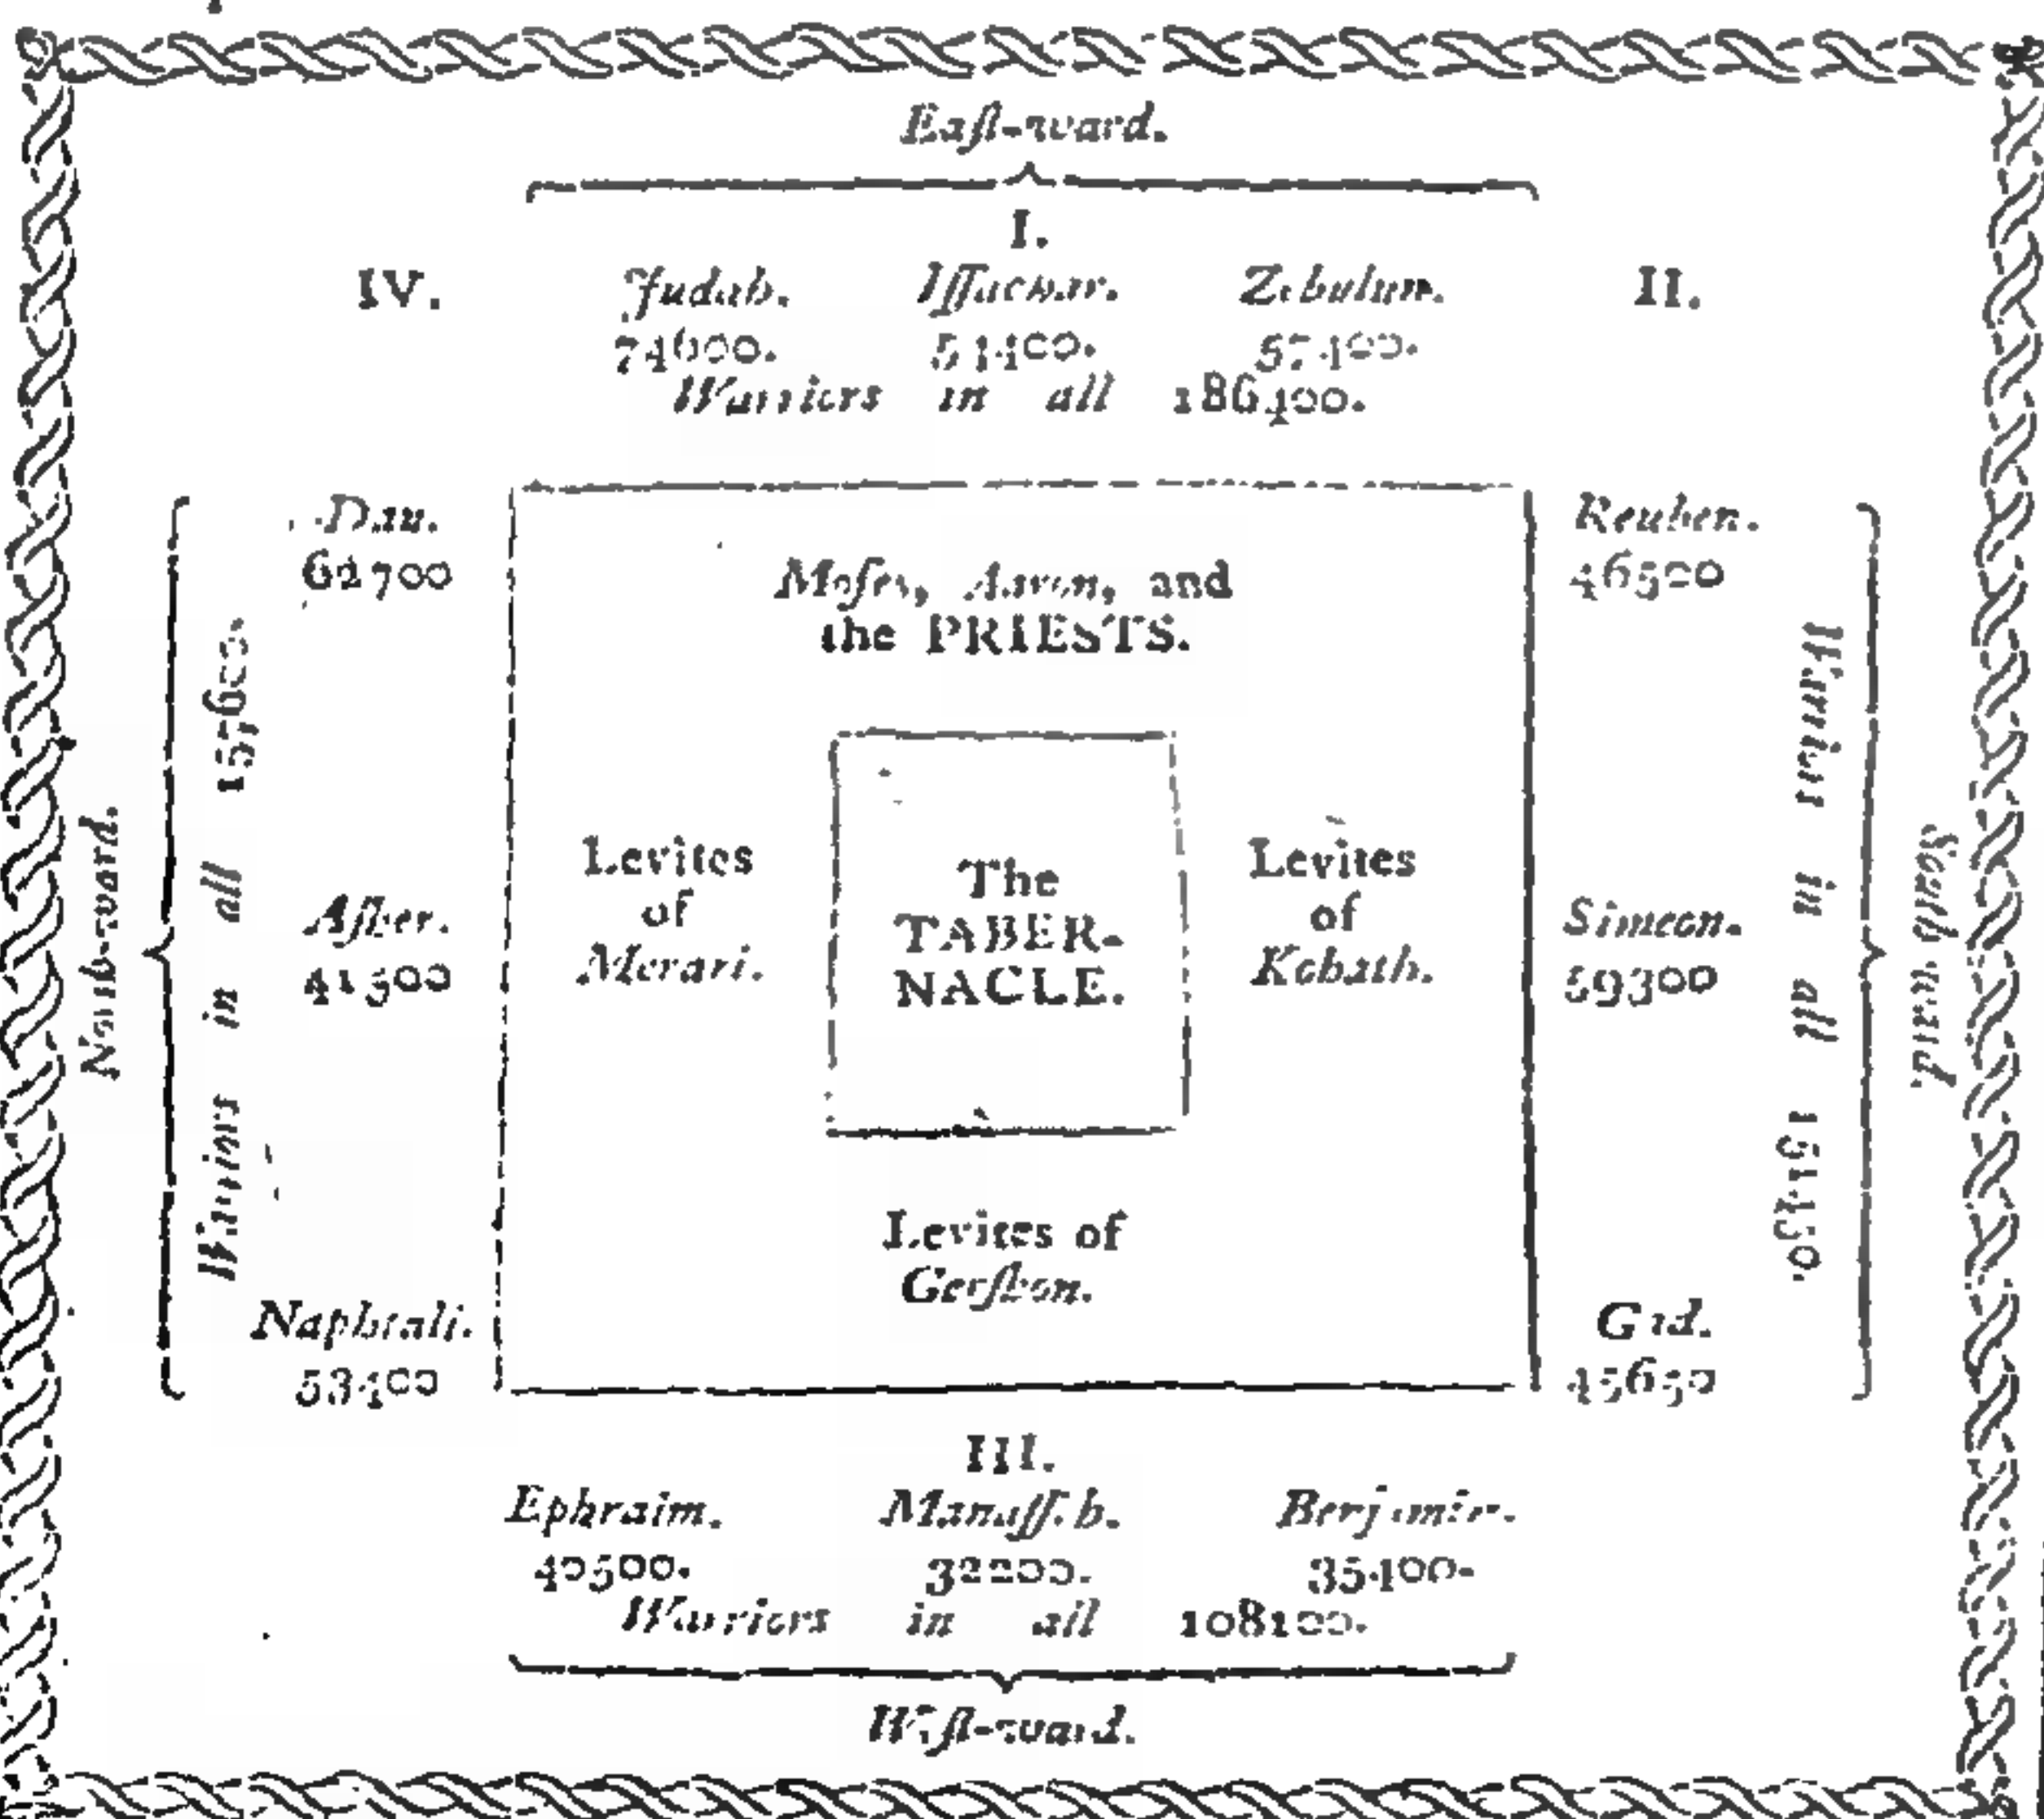

32 ¶ These are those which were numbered of the children of Israel by the house of their fathers: all those that were numbered of the camps throughout their hosts, were six hundred thousand and three thousand and five hundred and fifty.

33 But the Levites were not numbered among the children of Israel; as the Lord commanded Moses.

34 And the children of Israel did according to all that the Lord commanded Moses: so they pitched by their standards, and so they set forward, every one after their families, according to the house of their fathers.

the stone on Aaron's pectoral, on which the name of the tribe whereunto it belonged, was written. In this manner they pitched their tents about the tabernacle, agreeable to the following plan of their encampments.

17 So shall they set forward every man in his place by their standards. The following was the encampment of the Israelites: In the centre was the tabernacle, in the front of which Moses and Aaron, with the priests, were encamped; and behind the tabernacle, on the right and left, the Levites of Kohath, Merari, and Gershon; in the front, eastward, were encamped the tribes of Judah, Issachar and Zebulun, 186,400 warriors; on the right southward, lay the tribes of Reuben, Simeon, and Gad, 151,450 warriors; to the left, northward, the tribes of Dan, Asher, and Naphtali, 157,600 warriors; and in the rear, westward, the tribes of Ephraim, Manasseh, and Benjamin, 108,100 warriors. The Jews tell us, that the camp of Israel made a square of twelve miles, or three miles on a side.

34 And so they set forward, &c.] As soon as the Israelites were to decamp, which was always when the pillar of the cloud was taken up from the tabernacle, the trumpet sounded, and upon the first alarm, the standard of Judah being raised, the three tribes belonging to it set forward; whereupon the tabernacle was immediately taken down, and the Gershonites and the Merarites attended the waggon, with the boards and staves of it. These being on their march, a second alarm was sounded, upon which the standard of Reuben's camp advanced, with the three tribes under it; after them followed the Kohathites, bearing the sanctuary, which, being more sacred, and not cumbersome as the pillars and boards of the tabernacle, was not put into a waggon, but carried upon their shoulders; next follows the standard of Ephraim's camp, with his three tribes; and last of all the three tribes under the standard of Dan, brought up the rear.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. II.

The beautiful and regular order in which the Israelites march, may serve as a lesson to Christians, that their walk be uniformly upright and sincere. The tabernacle being in the midst of the camp, intimates to us, that the love of Christ should possess our inmost soul. By the constant attendance of the children of Israel on the tabernacle, we are directed to a diligent attendance on the duties of religion, and the worship of God.

CHAP. III.

1 The sons of Aaron. 5 The Levites are given to the priests for the service of the tabernacle, 11 instead of the firstborn. 14 The Levites are numbered by their families. 21 The families, number, and charge of the Gershonites, 27 of the Kohathites, 33 of the Merarites. 38 The place and charge of Moses and Aaron. 40 The firstborn are freed by the Levites. 44 The overplus are redeemed.

THESE also are the generations of Aaron and Moses in the day that the LORD spake with Moses in mount Sinai.

2 And these are the names of the sons of Aaron; Nadab the firstborn, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar.

3 These are the names of the sons of Aaron, the priests which were anointed, whom he consecrated to minister in the priest's office.

4 And Nadab and Abihu died before the LORD, when they offered strange fire before the LORD, in the wilderness of Sinai, and they had no children: and Eleazar and Ithamar ministered in the priest's office in the sight of Aaron their father.

5 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

6 Bring the tribe of Levi near, and present them before Aaron the priest, that they may minister unto him.

7 And they shall keep his charge and the charge of the whole congregation before the tabernacle of the congregation, to do the service of the tabernacle.

8 And they shall keep all the instruments of the tabernacle of the congregation, and the charge of the children of Israel, to do the service of the tabernacle.

9 And thou shalt give the Levites unto Aaron and his sons: they are wholly given unto him out of the children of Israel.

10 And thou shalt appoint Aaron and his sons, and they shall wait on their priest's office: and the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death.

11 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying;

12 And I, behold I have taken the Levites from among the children of Israel instead of all the firstborn that openeth the matrix among the children of Israel: therefore the Levites shall be mine;

13 Because all the firstborn are mine; for on the day that I smote all the firstborn in the land of Egypt I hallowed unto me all the first born in Israel, both man and beast: mine shall they be: I am the LORD.

14 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, saying,

15 Number the children of Levi after the house of their fathers, by their families: every male from a month old and upward shalt thou number them.

16 And Moses numbered them according to the word of the LORD, he was commanded.

17 And these were the sons of Levi by their names; Gershon, and Kohath, and Merari.

18 And these are the names of the sons of Gershon by their families; Libni, and Shimei.

19 And the sons of Kohath by their families; Amram, and Izehar, Hebron, and Uzziel.

20 And the sons of Merari by their families; Mahli, and Mushi. These are the families of the Levites according to the house of their fathers.

21 ¶ Of Gershon was the family of the Libnites, and the family of the Shimites: these are the families of the Gershonites.

22 Those that were numbered of them, according to the number of all the males, from a month old and upward, even those that were numbered of them were seven thousand and five hundred.

23 The families of the Gershonites shall pitch behind the tabernacle westward.

24 And the chief of the house of the father of the Gershonites shall be Eliasaph the son of Lael.

25 And the charge of the sons of Gershon in the tabernacle of the congregation shall be the tabernacle, and the tent, the covering thereof, and the hanging for the door of the tabernacle of the congregation,

26 And the hangings of the court, and the curtain for the door of the court, which is by the tabernacle, and by the altar round about, and the cords of it for all the service thereof.

27 ¶ And of Kohath was the family of the Amramites, and the family of the Izeharites, and the family of the Hebronites, and the family of the Uzzielites: these are the families of the Kohathites.

28 In the number of all the males, from a month old and upward, were eight thousand and six hundred, keeping the charge of the sanctuary.

29 The families of the sons of Kohath shall pitch on the side of the tabernacle southward.

30 And the chief of the house of the father of the families of the Kohathites shall be Elizaphan the son of Uzziel.

31 And their charge shall be the ark, and the table, and the candlestick, and the altars, and the vessels of the sanctuary wherewith they minister, and the hanging, and all the service thereof.

32 And Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest shall be chief over the chief of the Levites, and have the oversight of them that keep the charge of the sanctuary.

33 ¶ Of Merari was the family of the Mahlites, and the

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. III.

¶ These also are the generations, &c.] The true signification of the word "generations" is, Posterity and descendants; but Aaron's posterity being only mentioned, it is most natural to understand it in this place, as implying passages in their history, or a relation of what happened to them. The word is used, Gen. ii. 4. in this sense.

¶ And Eleazar and Ithamar ministered in the priest's office, &c.] Probably the reason why Aaron's sons were settled in the priesthood, while those of Moses were only Levites, was, because the sons of Moses had an Egyptian to their mother, and were not descended from any of the tribes of Israel. Besides this, Aaron was the eldest brother, and the priesthood was generally considered as an appendage to the primogeniture, or the title of eldest born.

¶ And present them before Aaron the priest, that they may minister unto him.] i. e. That they may receive their orders of Aaron, and assist him and the rest of the priests who were the immediate messengers of God. In the wilderness the Levites had a peculiar charge, not only to guard the tabernacle, by keeping watch about it day and night, but also to take it down, carry it in their removals, and set it up again when they rested: when settled in Canaan, they had less to do of this kind, though still the charge of the tabernacle lay upon them, and they ministered to the priests as before. The Levites killed the sacrifices; the priests only sprinkled the blood, and burned the fat; the Levites prepared the incense, the priests burned it. In David's time, some of the Levites were appointed singers, and players upon instruments, in the morning and evening service; others were porters at the several gates of the tabernacle, and afterwards of the temple, as guards of the sacred treasury, and of such things as were dedicated to God; and they were distributed into different classes, for the more regular discharge of their duties.

No. 12.

¶ They are wholly given unto him out of the children of Israel.] i. e. They were separated from the body of Israel, to serve under the priests, in the sacred ministry of the tabernacle; and as they attended on the public service, so they had a public maintenance allowed them.

¶ I have taken the Levites—instead of all the firstborn, &c.] Each first-born was consecrated to the service of the Lord, in memory of their preservation in Egypt; but God was now pleased to release the Israelites from this obligation, by substituting the tribe of Levi to be the perpetual ministers of religion, instead of the first-born males. The Levites obtained this favour for their religious zeal against the idolaters, Exod. xxxii. 28.

¶ Every male from a month old, &c.] All the other tribes were numbered from twenty years old and upwards, to know how many were fit to bear arms; but the Levites were numbered only to know how many they were in all, that so they might be exchanged for an equal number of the first-born; therefore it was required all should be numbered, without distinction, even from a month old, the age at which the first-born was appointed to be redeemed.

¶ The families of the Gershonites shall pitch behind the tabernacle westward.] Thus the camp of the priests and Levites was ordered to be of a square form, like that of the other Israelites. The sons of Gershon lay on the west side; the sons of Kohath, on the south; the sons of Merari, on the north; and the tents of Moses and Aaron pitched before the entrance of the tabernacle on the east.

34 And those that were numbered of them, according to the number of all the males, from a month old and upward, were six thousand and two hundred.

35 And the chief of the house of the father of the families of Merari was Zuriel the son of Abihail : these shall pitch on the side of the tabernacle northward.

36 And under the custody and charge of the sons of Merari shall be the boards of the tabernacle, and the bars thereof, and the pillars thereof, and the sockets thereof, and all the vessels thereof, and all that serveth thereto.

37 And the pillars of the court round about, and their sockets, and their pins, and their cords.

38 ¶ But those that encamp before the tabernacle toward the east, even before the tabernacle of the congregation eastward, shall be Moses, and Aaron and his sons, keeping the charge of the sanctuary for the charge of the children of Israel : and the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death.

39 All that were numbered of the Levites, which Moses and Aaron numbered at the commandment of the LORD, throughout their families, all the males from a month old and upward, were twenty and two thousand.

40 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Number all the firstborn of the males of the children of Israel from a month old and upward, and take the number of their names.

41 And thou shalt take the Levites for me (I am the LORD) instead of all the firstborn among the children of Israel ; and the cattle of the Levites instead of all the firstlings among the cattle of the children of Israel.

42 And Moses numbered, as the LORD commanded him, all the firstborn among the children of Israel.

43 And all the firstborn males by the number of names, from a month old and upward, of those that were numbered of them, were twenty and two thousand two hundred and threescore and thirteen.

44 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

45 Take the Levites instead of all the firstborn among the children of Israel, and the cattle of the Levites instead of their cattle ; and the Levites shall be mine : I am the LORD.

46 And for those that are to be redeemed of the two hundred and threescore and thirteen of the firstborn of the children of Israel, which are more than the Levites ;

47 Thou shalt even take five shekels apiece by the poll, after the shekel of the sanctuary shalt thou take them : (the shekel is twenty gerahs :)

48 And thou shalt give the money, wherewith the odd number of them is to be redeemed, unto Aaron and to his sons.

49 And Moses took the redemption money of them that were over and above them that were redeemed by the Levites :

50 Of the firstborn of the children of Israel took he the money ; a thousand three hundred and threescore and five shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary :

51 And Moses gave the money of them that were redeemed unto Aaron and to his sons, according to the word of the LORD, as the LORD commanded Moses.

CHAP. IV.

1 The age and time of service of the Kohathites. 4 They are appointed to bear the sanctuary and its vessels, after that the priests have taken down and covered them. 16 The charge of Eleazar. 17 The care of the priests required in covering the holy things. 21 The age, time of service, and burden, of the Gershonites ; 29 and of the Merarites. 34 The number of the Kohathites, 38 of the Gershonites, 42 and of the Merarites.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

2 Take the sum of the sons of Kohath from among the sons of Levi, after their families, by the house of their fathers.

3 From thirty years old and upward even until fifty years old, all that enter into the host, to do the work in the tabernacle of the congregation.

4 ¶ This shall be the service of the sons of Kohath in the tabernacle of the congregation, about the most holy things :

5 And when the camp setteth forward, Aaron shall come, and his sons, and they shall take down the covering veil, and cover the ark of testimony with it :

6 And shall put thereon the covering of badgers' skins, and shall spread over it a cloth wholly of blue, and shall put in the staves thereof.

7 And upon the table of shewbread they shall spread a cloth of blue, and put thereon the dishes, and the spoons, and the bowls, and covers to cover withal : and the continual bread shall be thereon :

8 And they shall spread upon them a cloth of scarlet, and cover the same with a covering of badgers' skins, and shall put in the staves thereof.

9 And they shall take a cloth of blue, and cover the candlestick of the light, and his lamps, and his tongs, and his snuffdishes, and all the oil vessels thereof, wherewith they minister unto it :

10 And they shall put it and all the vessels thereof within a covering of badgers' skins, and shall put it upon a bar.

11 And

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. IV.

3 From thirty years old.] All who were numbered out of the other tribes to go forth to war, were from twenty years of age and upwards ; but of the Levites, for the service of God, only from thirty to fifty. God requires the prime of our years and the best of our strength.

To do the work in the tabernacle, &c.] This should have been translated " about the tabernacle," they not being permitted to enter into it. The work of the Levites was, the carrying the ark, and other sacred things, on their shoulders, which was very laborious ; but then such persons were selected out of the afore-mentioned families of the Levites, as were most strong and able for the purpose.

6 The covering of badgers' skins.] The veil was the first covering of the ark ; then there were two others, one of leather, and the other of blue stuff. The use of these coverings was not only to defend the sacred things from the weather, but likewise to conceal them from the curious eyes of the multitude. Some imagine that the Hebrew words which we translate " badgers' skins," are improperly rendered, the badger being esteemed unclean by the Mosaic law.

Put in the staves thereof.] The Hebrew word veshamu, signifies " to put," not to put in ; the staves were never taken out, the impropriety of our translation will appear the more evidently. They were only to order them so ; that they might fall into the two notches which were made in the staves, to prevent the ark from sliding.

14 Spread

38 The stranger, &c.] We are to understand " stranger," in this place, any one, except Aaron and his sons ; by this they were forbid to invade the priest's office, and the priests were charged to be the door-keepers of God's house, and not to suffer any to enter in, who were forbidden by the law. The Jews inform us, that in after times, there was hung over the door of the temple a golden sword, on which was engraven, " The stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death."

39 Were twenty and two thousand.] The total of the particular sums mentioned, ver. 22, 28, and 34, amount to twenty-two thousand three hundred ; but the three hundred here omitted, because it is supposed that number was the first-born of the Levites themselves ; who, such, did already belong to God.

43 And all the first-born males—were twenty and two thousand two hundred and threescore and thirteen.] We should remember, that those only were numbered, who had been born since the slaughter of the Egyptians, which was not much above a year ago, it being only from that time that the first-born were to be consecrated to God ; else it might seem strange, that from more than six hundred thousand full-grown men, there should be no more first-born sons.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. III.

The great care God took to divide the Levites, according to the proper duties assigned them, is worthy to be remembered, and affords a lesson to the church in future ages, to make a suitable provision for those who minister in holy things ; and that the concerns of religion are, of all others, the most important.

Merarites	-	3,200	3,000	6,200

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, ■ Command the children of Israel, that they put out of the camp every leper, and every one that hath an issue, and whosoever is defiled by the dead:

3 Both male and female shall ye put out, without the camp shall ye put them; that they defile not their camps, in the midst whereof I dwell.

4 And the children of Israel did so, and put them out without the camp: as the LORD spake unto Moses, so did the children of Israel.

5 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

6 Speak unto the children of Israel, When a man or woman shall commit any sin that men commit, to do a trespass against the LORD, and that person be guilty;

7 Then they shall confess their sin which they have done: and he shall recompense his trespass with the principal thereof, and add unto it the fifth part thereof, and give it unto him against whom he hath trespassed.

■ But if the man have no kinsman to recompense the trespass unto, let the trespass be recompensed unto the LORD, even to the priest; beside the ram of the atonement, whereby an atonement shall be made for him.

9 ¶ And every offering of all the holy things of the children of Israel, which they bring unto the priest, shall be his.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. IV.

By the particular distinction which God made between the Levites, and those of other tribes, we ■ taught that those who are his ambassadors, commissioned by him to offer salvation to guilty sinners, should be treated with peculiar respect: we also learn from hence, the great importance of the work of the ministry, which should not be rashly entered upon, without suitable qualification; but should be engaged in with great diffidence, and prayer to God for ability. The impression which the consideration of this important office made upon the mind of the pious Mr. Herbert was so deep, that it is said, in his life, he continued incessant in prayer all the night before he was ordained, without allowing himself a moment for sleep.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. V.

■ That they put out of the camp every leper, &c. Probable it is, the camp of each tribe had a vacant space left, which was reckoned without the camp, and that they lodged the unclean there by themselves; since to banish them quite beyond the bounds of the camp, at great distance from their friends and relations, seems too severe. These legal pollutions were a figure of the pollutions of sin; and the removing them out of the camp represented the exclusion of impure and impenitent sinners out of the kingdom of heaven.

6 That person be guilty. That is, be sensible of his guilt.

7 Then they shall confess, &c. Or if they shall confess. Instead of "and he shall recompense," it should be rather read, Then he shall recompense.

13. No witness against her, &c. i. e. No witness of her having committed the sin; for if her crime could be proved upon evidence, the woman was not to be tried after the manner here prescribed, but ■ to be put to death.

14. And he be jealous of his wife, &c. Thus it was necessary that

11 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, 12 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, If any man's wife go aside, and commit a trespass against him,

13 And a man lie with her carnally, and it be hid from the eyes of her husband, and he kept close, and she be defiled, and there be no witness against her, neither she be taken with the manner.

14 And the spirit of jealousy come upon him, and he be jealous of his wife, and she be defiled: or if the spirit of jealousy come upon him, and he be jealous of his wife, and she be not defiled:

15 Then shall the man bring his wife unto the priest, and he shall bring her offering for her, the tenth part of an ephah of barley meal; he shall pour no oil upon it, nor put frankincense thereon; for it is an offering of jealousy, an offering of memorial, bringing iniquity to remembrance.

16 And the priest shall bring her near, and set her before the LORD:

17 And the priest shall take holy water in an earthen vessel; and of the dust that is in the floor of the tabernacle the priest shall take, and put it into the water:

18 And the priest shall set the woman before the LORD, and uncover the woman's head, and put the offering of memorial in her hands, which is the jealousy offering: and the priest shall have in his hand the bitter water that causeth the curse:

19 And the priest shall charge her by an oath and say unto the woman, If no man have lain with thee, and if thou hast not gone aside to uncleanness with another instead of thy husband, be thou free from this bitter water that causeth the curse:

20 But if thou hast gone aside to another instead of thy husband, and if thou be defiled, and some man have lain with thee beside thine husband:

21 Then the priest shall charge the woman with an oath of cursing, and the priest shall say unto the woman, The LORD make thee a curse and an oath among thy people, when the LORD doth make thy thigh to rot, and thy belly to swell;

22 And this water that causeth the curse shall go into thy bowels, to make thy belly to swell, and thy thigh to rot: and the woman shall say, Amen, amen.

23 And the priest shall write these curses in a book, and he shall blot them out with the bitter water.

24 And he shall cause the woman to drink the bitter water that causeth the curse: and the water that causeth the curse shall enter into her, and become bitter.

25 Then

there should appear some just cause for suspicion. before the husband could oblige his wife to submit to the trial of the bitter water. The rule prescribed was, If the husband had said unto his wife, be not thou in secret with such a man; and notwithstanding the admonition, it should be afterwards proved that she was in secret with that man, he might then compel her to drink the bitter water.

18 Uncover the woman's head. The Jews by this understood the shaving the woman's head, cutting off her curls, or at least taking off her head-dress. They add, that they tore her clothes down to her breast, and tied them with a packthread; others say, that her clothes were exchanged for a black suit, in token of mourning, and in this manner she was exposed to the people.

Bitter water, &c. It is thought by an ancient writer it was so named on account of its being mixed with wormwood; but Nachman asserts, that nothing was mixed with it but dust, yet that it nevertheless tasted bitter. It is probable that this is only a figurative expression, alluding to the terrible effects it had upon the guilty.

19 He shall charge her by an oath, &c. i. e. He shall adjure her, in the name of God, to declare the truth, assuring her, if she was conscious of her innocence, she had nothing to fear; but if she was guilty, she must expect to suffer every thing threatened in the law.

23 He shall blot them out with the bitter water. It would have been better if rendered, He shall blot them out into the bitter water; for he was to scrape them into it, or else wash them with it, till they were quite obliterated, that the woman might, as it were, drink the words of the execration.

24 He shall cause the woman to drink, &c. i. e. If she said, I am pure, they then proceeded to trial; but in case she refused to make confession of her guilt, and to drink the bitter water; they compelled her to do it: if she said, I am defiled, the priest then flung down the water, and cast her offering among the ashes, and she was not put to death, but was divorced, and lost her dowry.

Before
CHRIST
1490.

25 Then the priest shall take the jealousy offering out of the woman's hand, and shall wave the offering before the LORD, and offer it upon the altar :

26 And the priest shall take an handful of the offering, even the memorial thereof, and burn it upon the altar, and afterward shall cause the woman to drink the water.

27 And when he hath made her to drink the water, then it shall come to pass, that, if she be defiled, and have done trespass against her husband, that the water that causeth the curse shall enter into her, and become bitter, and her belly shall swell, and her thigh shall rot: and the woman shall be a curse among her people.

28 And if the woman be not defiled, but be clean; then she shall be free, and shall conceive seed.

29 This is the law of jealousies, when a wife goeth aside to another instead of her husband, and is defiled;

30 Or when the spirit of jealousy cometh upon him, and he be jealous over his wife, and shall set the woman before the LORD, and the priest shall execute upon her all this law.

31 Then shall the man be guiltless from iniquity, and this woman shall bear her iniquity.

CHAP. VI.

■ The law of the Nazarite in the days of his separation, 13 and after the completion of those days. 22 The form of blessing the people.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, ■ Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When either man or woman shall separate themselves to vow ■ vow of a Nazarite, to separate themselves unto the LORD :

3 He shall separate himself from wine and strong drink, and shall drink no vinegar of wine, or vinegar of strong drink, neither shall he drink any liquor of grapes, nor eat moist grapes, or dried.

4 All the days of his separation shall he eat nothing that is made of the vine tree, from the kernels even to the husk.

5 All the days of the vow of his separation there shall no razor come upon his head: until the days be fulfilled, in the which he separateth himself unto the LORD, he shall be holy, and shall let the locks of the hair of his head grow.

27 The water that causeth the curse shall enter into her, &c.] We are informed by the Jews, that if she was guilty, the consequences were immediately seen in her countenance; for she grew pale, and her eyes seemed ready to start out of her head; and lest the temple should be polluted by her death, she was immediately carried out, and died instantly, with all the ignominious circumstances related in the curse.

29 This is the law of jealousies, &c.] i. e. the methods to be observed in discovering the crime of adultery; but this ceremony was never made use of after the return of the Jews from the Babylonish captivity, and for these reasons: first, because adulteries became so frequent, that the performing the ceremonies on these occasions would have engrossed the whole time of the priests; and secondly, because they deemed it unpardonable to erase the name of God so often in the waters of bitterness: when the husband, therefore, had any just ground of suspecting his wife's fidelity, and could produce witnesses to depose that they had seen her privately with the suspected person, contrary to the charge of her husband, she was immediately divorced, and deprived of her dowry. It is observable, that the Jews were not the only people who had recourse to such portentous and extraordinary methods for discovering the truth, in case of suspected guilt. The heathens had in like manner their waters of conviction. The inhabitants of the Gold Coast gave a solemn portion called bitter water, by way of trial, upon any light suspicion of injury, and especially of adultery. Among our Saxon ancestors, the manner of trial by fire-ordeal, and others of the same kind, had a great affinity to this of the Jews, it being expected that God would work ■ miracle to clear the innocent, or convict the guilty.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. V.

From this chapter we learn, that exact and complete restitution should be made for wrongs done to our neighbour, and if the person wronged cannot be found, what is restored should be devoted and given to God. The law concerning the waters of jealousy, sets forth the heinous nature of the sin of adultery; which though it be not now punished in the same manner ■ among the Jews, yet God will, in the great day of account, inflict ■ more heavy punishment upon impenitent sinners who have been guilty of it.

No. 12.

6 All the days that he separateth himself unto the LORD he shall come at no dead body.

7 He shall not make himself unclean for his father, or for his mother, for his brother, or for his sister, when they die: because the consecration of his God is upon his head.

8 All the days of his separation he is holy unto the LORD.

9 And if any man die very suddenly by him, and he hath defiled the head of his consecration; then he shall shave his head in the day of his cleansing, on the seventh day shall he shave it.

10 And on the eighth day he shall bring two turtles, or two young pigeons, to the priest, to the door of the tabernacle of the congregation :

11 And the priest shall offer the one for ■ sin offering, and the other for ■ burnt offering, and make an atonement for him, for that he sinned by the dead, and shall hallow his head that same day.

12 And he shall consecrate unto the LORD the days of his separation, and shall bring ■ lamb of the first year for a trespass offering: but the days that were before shall be lost, because his separation was defiled.

13 ■ And this is the law of the Nazarite, when the days of his separation are fulfilled: he shall be brought unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation :

14 And he shall offer his offering unto the LORD, one he lamb of the first year without blemish for ■ burnt offering, and one ewe lamb of the first year without blemish for a sin offering, and one ram without blemish for peace offerings,

15 And a basket of unleavened bread, cakes of fine flour mingled with oil, and wafers of unleavened bread anointed with oil, and their meat offering, and their drink offerings.

16 And the priest shall bring them before the LORD, and shall offer his sin offering, and his burnt offering:

17 And he shall offer the ram for ■ sacrifice of peace offerings unto the LORD, with the basket of unleavened bread: the priest shall offer also his meat offering, and his drink offering.

18 And the Nazarite shall shave the head of his separation at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and shall take the hair of the head of his separation, EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. VI.

2 When either man or woman shall separate themselves.] Thus we find a woman might make the vow of a Nazarite as well as a man; but then she must be at her own disposal, and not under the power of ■ parent or husband, by whose authority the vow might be annulled.

A vow of ■ Nazarite, &c.] The word translated "Nazarite" signifies Separated; because such as came under this vow separated themselves from others by ■ peculiar abstinence, lived apart from company, and consequently from the gaieties and diversions of the world. There were two sorts of these vows, the one perpetual, or for life; the other for a certain time only; the latter of which is here observed.

4 From the kernels even to the husk.] i. e. no liquor made from any part of the grape.

5 There shall no razor come upon his head, &c.] The person who took the vow was to let the locks of his hair and beard grow, to denote his austerity, renunciation of the pleasures of the world, and betaking himself to ■ severer way of life. And such persons not only let their hair grow, but also wore an hairy garment, as St. John did, Matt. iii. 4. and Elijah before him, ■ Kings i. 8.

7 The consecration of his God is upon his head.] The word here rendered "consecration," signifies also a crown. A celebrated French writer therefore reads it, "The crown of his God is upon his head. So the wise man tells us, that "the hoary head is ■ crown of glory, if it be found in the way of righteousness," Prov. xvi. 31.

9 He hath defiled the head of his consecration, &c.] The whole person being defiled, consequently the hair of his head was ■ which therefore was unfit to be offered to God, and burnt to his honour; whence the polluted hair was to be shaved clean off, that new might grow in its stead.

11 He sinned by the dead, &c.] i. e. he hath contracted a legal uncleanness, which, tho' it was involuntary, was a breach of the ceremonial law, and was to be purged after this manner.

12 The days that were before shall be lost, &c.] i. e. shall not be reckoned; for if he had vowed to be a Nazarite for ■ whole year, and had happened to touch a dead carcase in the twelfth month, all the preceding eleven months were accounted nothing, but he was to renew his vow for another year.

20 And the priest shall wave them for a wave offering before the LORD: this is holy for the priest, with the wave breast and heave shoulder: and after that the Nazarite may drink wine.

21 This is the law of the Nazarite who hath vowed, and of his offering unto the LORD for his separation, beside that that his hand shall get: according to the vow which he vowed, so he must do after the law of his separation.

¶ The offering of the princes at the dedication of the tabernacle, which is disposed of among the Levites. 10, 12, &c. The offerings of the princes severally at the dedication of the altar. 89 God speaketh to Moses from the mercy seat.

AND it came to pass on the day that Moses had fully set up the tabernacle, and had anointed it, and sanctified it, and all the instruments thereof, both the altar and the vessels thereof, and had anointed them, and sanctified them;

2 That the princes of Israel, heads of the house of their fathers, who were the princes of the tribes, and were over them that were numbered, offered:

3 And they brought their offering before the LORD, six covered waggons, and twelve oxen; a waggon for two of the princes, and for each one an ox: and they brought them before the tabernacle.

4 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

25 The Lord make his face shine upon thee, &c.] This is a metaphor taken from the sun, whose kindly influences cheer and enliven the face of nature: in like manner does divine favour shine forth upon the soul, comforting and cherishing it.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. VI.

Vows ought to be strictly kept; and Christians are more especially called upon to devote themselves to God by a life of sobriety, temperance, purity of manners, and exemplary conduct. The blessing which the priest pronounced over the people of Israel is an excellent pattern of prayer, teaching us, that the favour and blessing of God is the fountain of all our happiness; that we ought incessantly to implore that blessing, as well for ourselves as others; and that the ministers of the Lord especially ought to pour out their constant prayers for the people over whom they are set.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. VII.

1 On the day that Moses had fully set up the tabernacle, &c.] i. e. In the first day after the things relating to the tabernacle, the priests, Levites, &c. were finished; the camp formed, and the tribes ranged under their several standards.

10 Princes offered for dedicating of the altar, &c.] There being a great number of the sacrifices offered, it is inferred that the wilderness could not be entirely desert, but must have had pastures in many places; since the Israelites had still so many cattle, as to be able to supply the offerings here mentioned, as well as to celebrate the passover, which required a very great number both of kids and lambs. Thus we find mention made of the flocks of the Amalekites, and of those of Nabal, in the wilderness of Paran, 1 Sam. xv. 9.

11 They shall offer—each prince on his day, &c.] It is impossible to determine absolutely when the offerings began; though it may be reasonably computed thus; the tabernacle was erected on the first day of the first month of the second year after the Israelites came out of Egypt, Exod. xl. 17. In the consecration of that and the altar,

5 Take it of them, that they may be to do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation: and thou shalt give them unto the Levites, to every man according to his service. Before CHRIST 1490.

6 And Moses took the waggons and the oxen, and gave them unto the Levites.

7 Two waggons and four oxen he gave unto the sons of Gershon, according to their service:

8 And four waggons and eight oxen he gave unto the sons of Merari, according unto their service, under the hand of Ithamar the son of Aaron the priest.

9 But unto the sons of Kohath he gave none: because the service of the sanctuary belonging unto them was that they should bear upon their shoulders.

10 ¶ And the princes offered for dedicating of the altar in the day that it was anointed, even the princes offered their offering before the altar.

11 And the LORD said unto Moses, They shall offer their offering, each prince on his day, for the dedicating of the altar.

12 ¶ And he that offered his offering the first day was Nahshon the son of Amminadab, of the tribe of Judah:

13 And his offering was one silver charger, the weight thereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary; both of them were full of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat offering:

14 One spoon of ten shekels of gold, full of incense:

15 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt offering:

16 One kid of the goats for a sin offering:

17 And for a sacrifice of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he goats, five lambs of the first year: this was the offering of Nahshon the son of Amminadab.

18 ¶ On the second day Nethaneel the son of Zuar, prince of Issachar, did offer:

19 He offered for his offering one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat offering:

20 One spoon of gold of ten shekels, full of incense:

21 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt offering:

22 One kid of the goats for a sin offering:

23 And for a sacrifice of peace offerings two oxen, five

&c. were consumed seven days, chap. xxix. 37. The consecration of the priests began on the eighth day, which lasted seven days longer, Lev. viii. 33. The passover and the feasts of unleavened bread were kept on the fourteenth day, and lasted till the twenty-second, Numb. ix. 5. The remainder of the month we may suppose to have been spent in delivering the laws mentioned in Leviticus. Upon the first day of the second month began the numbering of the people, Numb. i. which may be supposed to have lasted three days: the Levites were numbered on the fourth, Numb. iii. 4. The next day we may imagine they were offered to God, and given to the priests. On the sixth day their consecration followed, chap. viii. 7. Their several charges were delivered on the seventh, chap. iv. After which we may suppose the princes began to offer on the eighth day of the second month, which lasted twelve days, that is to say, till the nineteenth inclusive, and on the twentieth of the second month they removed to the wilderness of Paran.

13 One silver charger] Every vessel of the sanctuary was of gold: this charger therefore, or broad dish, seems to have been designed for the altar of burnt offerings in the court of the tabernacle: its use was probably to receive the flesh, which was offered at the altar, or the fine flour for meat offerings.

An hundred and thirty shekels, &c.] That is, about sixty-five ounces.

14 One spoon, &c.] The Hebrew word signifies any concave or hollow vessel; its use therefore might be to take up the incense, in order to throw it on the coals in the censer. In the solemn expiation, indeed, the high priest was to take up the incense in his hand, and throw it on the fire, Lev. xvi. 12. But it might be ordered otherwise on special occasions.

19 He offered for his offering one silver charger, &c.] Here it may not be improper to observe, that the reason for these offerings of the princes, or heads of the several tribes, being all of them of the same number and value, was probably in order to prevent all vain boasting and emulation among them, as being men of equal rank and authority.

89 Heard the voice of one speaking unto him from off the mercy seat, &c.] Here Moses informs us in what manner God communicated his will to him ; not by any impression on his mind, in a vision, or by the representation of things to him in a dream ; but by a clear and distinct voice, which he heard of one speaking to him from between the cherubim, he stood in the outer court of the sanctuary ; but at the same time saw no image or similitude. Hence the most holy place, containing the ark and the mercy seat, from whence this divine voice proceeded, was called the oracle." See Kings vi. 19.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. VII.

When we reflect on the cheerfulness with which the people contributed towards finishing the tabernacle, we may conclude that their repentance for their idolatry was sincere, which they evinced by pious work ; in like manner should we bestow of our temporal things for the support of the gospel, and be always ready to distribute, willingly to communicate ; and also with Moses, draw near with humble boldness to the mercy seat of our Redeemer, who shed his blood upon the cross for our sins.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. VIII.

2 Shall give light over against the candlestick.] It would have been better if rendered, Shall shine from before the face of the candlestick ; i. e. shall give light to every part of the room ; for as the sanctuary had no windows, consequently it had no light but what proceeded from the lamps placed on the candlestick.

3 He lighted the lamps thereof.] It was customary to light the middlemost lamp from the fire on the altar, and then all the others were lighted from that lamp.

¶ Then let them take a young bullock with his meat-offering, even fine flour mingled with oil, and another young bullock shalt thou take for a sin offering.

9 And thou shalt bring the Levites before the tabernacle of the congregation : and thou shalt gather the whole assembly of the children of Israel together :

10 And thou shalt bring the Levites before the LORD : and the children of Israel shall put their hands upon the Levites :

11 And Aaron shall offer the Levites before the LORD for an offering of the children of Israel, that they may execute the service of the LORD.

12 And the Levites shall lay their hands upon the heads of the bullocks : and thou shalt offer the one for a sin offering, and the other for a burnt offering, unto the LORD, to make an atonement for the Levites.

13 And thou shalt set the Levites before Aaron, and before his sons, and offer them for an offering unto the LORD.

14 Thus shalt thou separate the Levites from among the children of Israel : and the Levites shall be mine.

15 And after that shall the Levites go in to do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation : and thou shalt cleanse them, and offer them for an offering.

16 For they are wholly given unto me from among the children of Israel ; instead of such as open every womb, even instead of the firstborn of all the children of Israel, have I taken them unto me.

17 For all the firstborn of the children of Israel are mine, both man and beast : on the day that I smote every firstborn in the land of Egypt I sanctified them for myself.

18 And I have taken the Levites for all the firstborn of the children of Israel.

19 And I have given the Levites as a gift to Aaron and to his sons from among the children of Israel, to do the service of the children of Israel in the tabernacle of the congregation, and to make an atonement for the children of Israel : that there be no plague among the children of Israel, when the children of Israel come nigh unto the sanctuary.

20 And Moses, and Aaron, and all the congregation of the children of Israel, did to the Levites according unto all that the LORD commanded Moses concerning the Levites, so did the children of Israel unto them.

21 And the Levites were purified, and they washed their clothes, and Aaron offered them as an offering before the LORD : and Aaron made an atonement for them to cleanse them.

22 And after that went the Levites in to do their service :

Over against the candlestick, &c.] Or rather, he lighted the lamps placed on all the branches of the candlestick. Maimonides asserts, that the six lamps which were fastened on the branches which proceeded from the candlestick, had all of them their faces and their wicks turned towards the middlemost lamp, which was on the body of the candlestick.

7 Sprinkle water of purifying upon them, &c.] i. e. water of purification from sin ; which was prepared with the ashes of a red heifer, that had been offered up for a burnt offering, chap. xix. 17.

10 The children of Israel shall put their hands upon the Levites.] By this action, the Israelites expressed their separating the Levites to the service of the sanctuary, instead of their first-born ; and their transferring to the former the charge which would otherwise have belonged to the latter.

11 Aaron shall offer, &c.] It is in the Hebrew, Aaron shall wave the Levites for a wave offering. Le Clerc supposes that they were only presented before God at the altar, or went round about it, at Aaron's command ; for the word often signifies to offer in general.

14 The Levites shall be mine.] The Levites were to attend wholly on the service of the tabernacle, God's peculiar servants and ministers ; and for that reason they were exempted from all taxes and military services.

15 Thou shalt cleanse them, &c.] This ought to be rendered, After thou hast cleansed them.

19 That there be no plague, &c.] In order to prevent others from incurring the judgments due to irreverence and profanation, by presumptuously intermeddling in sacred things, I have given the Levites to Aaron and his sons, that they may officiate in the house of God, and prevent others from approaching.

Before CHRIST 1490. service in the tabernacle of the congregation before Aaron, and before his sons: as the LORD had commanded Moses concerning the Levites, so did they unto them.

23 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

24 This is it that belongeth unto the Levites: from twenty and five years old and upward they shall go in to wait upon the service of the tabernacle of the congregation:

25 And from the age of fifty years they shall cease waiting upon the service thereof, and shall serve no more:

26 But shall minister with their brethren in the tabernacle of the congregation, to keep the charge, and shall do no service. Thus shalt thou do unto the Levites touching their charge.

C H A P. IX.

1 The passover is commanded again. 6 The case of some that were unclean. 9 A second passover is allowed for such, and for the absent at the first. 15 The cloud guideth the removals and encampments of the Israelites.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, in the first month of the second year after they were come out of the land of Egypt, saying,

2 Let the children of Israel also keep the passover at his appointed season.

3 In the fourteenth day of this month, at even, ye shall keep it in his appointed season: according to all the rites of it, and according to all the ceremonies thereof, shall ye keep it.

4 And Moses spake unto the children of Israel, that they should keep the passover.

5 And they kept the passover on the fourteenth day of the first month at even in the wilderness of Sinai: according to all that the LORD commanded Moses, so did the children of Israel.

6 ¶ And there were certain men, who were defiled by the dead body of a man, that they could not keep the passover on that day: and they came before Moses and before Aaron on that day:

7 And those men said unto him, We are defiled by the dead body of a man: wherefore are we kept back, that we may not offer an offering of the LORD in his appointed season among the children of Israel?

8 And Moses said unto them, Stand still, and I will hear what the LORD will command concerning you.

9 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

10 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, If any man of you or of your posterity shall be unclean by reason of a dead body, or be in a journey afar off, yet he shall keep the passover unto the LORD.

26 And shall do no service, &c.] i. e. They shall not do any servile work, but shall only instruct others how such work is to be performed.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. VIII.

The purification insisted upon in this chapter, denotes the necessity there is that our consciences be sprinkled with the blood of Christ; and as the Levites were to be touched by the people, and to present sacrifices for themselves, we may learn that it is our duty to draw nigh to God, through the merits of Jesus Christ, who is now our high priest in heaven; and also, that both ministers and people, are in duty bound to crave mercy of God, as no man liveth and sinneth not.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. IX.

¶ The Lord spake, &c.] It should be translated, "The Lord had spoken," because the subject of this narrative was transacted a month before, though, for particular reasons, not recorded till now.

5 They kept the passover on the fourteenth day of the first month at even, in the wilderness, &c.] Which was the second time of their keeping this feast, after their coming out of Egypt; and the last time of their keeping it, till they entered into the land of Canaan.

7 Wherefore are we kept back, &c.] We are told that the law of the passover required every Israelite to eat of it; but they who had contracted any ceremonial pollution were, by the subsequent laws, forbidden to eat of the holy things. Here, then, was a very difficult dilemma, for if they neglected to come to this sacred ordinance, they were guilty of a contempt of it; and if they came polluted,

11 The fourteenth day of the second month at even they shall keep it, and eat it with unleavened bread and bitter herbs. Before CHRIST 1490.

12 They shall leave none of it unto the morning, nor break any bone of it: according to all the ordinances of the passover they shall keep it.

13 But the man that is clean, and is not in a journey, and forbearth to keep the passover, even the same soul shall be cut off from among his people: because he brought not the offering of the LORD in his appointed season, that man shall bear his sin.

14 And if a stranger shall sojourn among you, and will keep the passover unto the LORD; according to the ordinance of the passover, and according to the manner thereof, so shall he do: ye shall have one ordinance both for the stranger, and for him that was born in the land.

15 ¶ And on the day that the tabernacle was reared up the cloud covered the tabernacle, namely, the tent of the testimony: and at even there was upon the tabernacle as it were the appearance of fire, until the morning.

16 So it was alway: the cloud covered it by day, and the appearance of fire by night.

17 And when the cloud was taken up from the tabernacle, then after that the children of Israel journeyed: and in the place where the cloud abode, there the children of Israel pitched their tents.

18 At the commandment of the LORD the children of Israel journeyed, and at the commandment of the LORD they pitched: as long as the cloud abode upon the tabernacle they rested in their tents.

19 And when the cloud tarried long upon the tabernacle many days, then the children of Israel kept the charge of the LORD, and journeyed not.

20 And so it was, when the cloud was a few days upon the tabernacle; according to the commandment of the LORD they abode in their tents, and according to the commandment of the LORD they journeyed.

21 And so it was, when the cloud abode from even unto the morning, and that the cloud was taken up in the morning, then they journeyed: whether it was by day or by night that the cloud was taken up, they journeyed.

22 Or whether it were two days, or a month, or a year, that the cloud tarried upon the tabernacle, remaining thereon, the children of Israel abode in their tents, and journeyed not: but when it was taken up, they journeyed.

23 At the commandment of the LORD they rested in their tents, and at the commandment of the LORD they journeyed; they were guilty of a profanation of it. So that to lay their complaint before Moses was necessary, and a proof of their wisdom.

6 I will hear what the Lord will command, &c.] i. e. I will go into the sanctuary, and consult the oracle of God.

10 If any man—be unclean by reason of a dead body, &c.] Likewise this is to be understood of all other cases of legal uncleanness.

13 Shall be cut off, &c.] i. e. Shall be separated from the community, either by death, banishment, or excommunication, though it is generally thought to imply a cutting off by death at once.

14 If a stranger, &c.] A clause here is added in favour of strangers. This kind of admission of those who were not native Israelites, (though it was necessary they should be circumcised) to eat of the passover, was an intimation of the favour God designed to bestow upon the Gentiles at the coming of Christ; namely, that he would make Jew and Gentile one nation.

16 The cloud covered it by day, and the appearance of fire by night.] What appeared like a cloud by day, appeared as a fire all night; a cloud only, would not have been visible by night; nor would a fire have been so discernible in the broad day.

21 Whether it was by day or by night that the cloud was taken up—they journeyed.] How impatient soever the people might be to arrive at the promised land, where they expected the enjoyment of so many temporal blessings; and how tedious and troublesome soever their journeys proved, we never find them (though otherwise refractory enough) murmuring when this signal was made them, whether it happened by night or day. As long and as far as the cloud moved, so long and so far they marched; and wherever it rested, there they pitched their tents also.

Before CHRIST 1490. journeyed: they kept the charge of the LORD, at the commandment of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

By the hand of Moses.] For Moses was their law-giver and director, and who, at every march and encampment, accompanied the divine signal with a solemn prayer, saying, when the ark set forward, "Rise up, Lord, let thine enemies be scattered;" and when it rested, "Return, O Lord, unto the many thousands of Israel," &c.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. IX.

Since the Jews celebrated the passover ■ God had appointed, so we should invariably attend upon all the divine ordinances, and the duties that relate to the service of God. Secondly, as those who were outwardly defiled, were not allowed to keep the passover till a month after, when they were purified; much less are obstinate and impenitent sinners to present themselves before God, or partake of the Lord's supper, till purified by sincere repentance. Thirdly, It was a glorious privilege of the Jews, to be led by the cloud in the desert, which betokened the presence of God; but how much more happy are we, to be guided by the light of the gospel, which shews us the way wherein ■ walk, during our stay here below, preparatory to our arrival in heaven, our true country, where all imperfection will be done away!

12 And the children of Israel took their journeys out of the wilderness of Sinai; and the cloud rested in the wilderness of Paran.

13 And they first took their journey according to the commandment of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

14 ¶ In the first place went the standard of the camp of the children of Judah according to their armies: and over his host was Nahshon the son of Amminadab.

15 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Issachar was Nethaneel the son of Zuar.

16 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Zebulun was Eliab the son of Helon.

17 And the tabernacle was taken down: and the sons of Gershon and the sons of Merari set forward, bearing the tabernacle.

18 ¶ And the standard of the camp of Reuben set forward according to their armies: and over his host was Elizur the son of Shedeur.

19 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Simeon was Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai.

20 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Gad was Eliasaph the son of Deuel.

21 And the Kohathites set forward, bearing the sanctuary: and the other did set up the tabernacle against they came.

22 ¶ And the standard of the camp of the children of Ephraim set forward according to their armies: and over his host was Elishama the son of Ammihud.

23 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Manassah was Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur.

24 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Benjamin was Abidan the son of Gideon.

25 ¶ And the standard of the camp of the children of Dan set forward, which was the rereward of all the camps throughout their hosts: and over his host was Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai.

8 The sons of Aaron shall blow with the trumpets, &c.] None but the priests were appointed to this office, that the people might pay the greater regard to the soundings, as if they heard God calling upon them by his ministers to attend his summons.

For ever, &c.] i. e. As long as your establishment lasts.

9 If ye go to war.] The Israelites, previous to their going to war, were called together to impute a blessing ■■ their arms; and a fast was proclaimed by the sound of trumpet, at the same time that an alarm of war was sounded. "Blow ye the trumpet, in Zion," says the prophet, "sanctify ■ fast, call ■ solemn assembly." Joel ii. 15.

10 That they may be to you for a memorial, &c.] Stimulating you to worship God with fervour and earnestness.

12 The wilderness of Paran.] This wilderness of Paran is thought to signify, in a strict sense, that part of the deserts of Arabia, only between Hazaroth ■ the west, and Mount Seir on the east; but in a larger sense, it seems to denote all the desert lying between the wilderness of Shur westward; towards Egypt and Mount Seir or the land of Edom, eastward; and between the land of Canaan northward; and the Red Sea southward; in which sense it seems to be meant by Moses, in this place, as also in Dent. i. 19.

17 The tabernacle ■■ taken down, &c.] The taking down and removing the tabernacle, denotes the instability of that legal figurative worship, the unsettled state of the church, and all its members in this world; as also the removal of the church from one place ■ another, from Jews to Gentiles, &c.

21 The other did set up the tabernacle against they came.] We understand by "the other," the Gershonites and Merarites, who before had set forward with the waggons, bearing the boards, pillars, &c. of the sanctuary, between the standard of Judah and Reuben.

25 And the standard of the camp, &c.] This passage should have been translated, "Dan set forward, gathering to it all the camps;" that is, all the rest of the people who did not belong to any particular camp, but to all the camps in general.

CHAP. XI.

■ The burning at Taberah is quenched by Moses' prayer.
4 The people lust for flesh, and lothe manna. 10 Moses complaineth of his charge. 16 God promiseth to divide the burden of it among seventy elders, and to give the people flesh for a month. 21 Moses' faith is staggered. 24 God giveth of his spirit unto the seventy elders. 31 Quails are given in wrath at Kibroth-hattaavah.

AND when the people complained, it displeased the LORD: and the LORD heard it; and his anger was kindled; and the fire of the LORD burnt among them, and consumed them that were in the uttermost parts of the camp.

2 And the people cried unto Moses; and when Moses prayed unto the LORD, the fire was quenched.

3 And he called the name of the place Taberah: because the fire of the LORD burnt among them.

29 Hobab, the son of Raguel, &c.] We find Raguel is another name for Jethro, who being returned to his own country, Hobab his son, and the brother of Moses's wife, had accompanied Moses all the time the Israelites encamped at Sinai, which was not far from Midian; but since the people were now marching towards Canaan, he was desirous of returning to his father.

31 Leave me not, &c.] Here Moses urges his request with some warmth; because Hobab having lived all his days on the borders of the wilderness, was consequently acquainted with every part of it, and able to shew them the conveniences and inconveniences of the places they passed through, and to advise them how to conduct themselves in case they should be attacked by the neighbouring nations.

Thou mayest be to us instead of eyes.] That is as a guide to the blind. The Syriac has it, Thou shalt be dear to us in our eyes.

33 The ark of the covenant of the Lord went before them.] That is, the ark of the Lord marched in their presence, the cloud being over it in the midst of their army.

To search out a resting place, &c.] i. e. direct them whither to find one.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. X.

The instructions we are to draw from this chapter, are, from the excellent rules laid down by Moses for calling the people together to divine worship, to observe decency and good order in all sacred matters, becomes those who profess the holy religion of Jesus: and, secondly, That the ark of the covenant was carried before the people when they marched, so it is our duty, through the whole of our christian course or pilgrimage through this world, to follow Christ, who is to us what the ark was to the children of Israel.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XI.

■ The people complained.] The people began secretly to murmur among themselves, being weary of living on manna, and wanting variety of food.

fell ■ lusting: and the children of Israel also wept again, and said, Who shall give us flesh to eat?

5 We remember the fish, which we did eat in Egypt freely: the cucumbers, and the melons, and the leeks, and the onions, and the garlick:

6 But now our soul is dried away: there is nothing at all, beside this manna, before our eyes.

7 And the manna was as coriander seed, and the colour thereof as the colour of bdellium.

■ And the people went about, and gathered it, and ground it in mills, or beat it in a mortar, and baked it in pans, and made cakes of it: and the taste of it was as the taste of fresh oil.

9 And when the dew fell upon the camp in the night, the manna fell upon it.

10 ¶ Then Moses heard the people weep throughout their families, every man in the door of his tent: and the anger of the LORD was kindled greatly: Moses also was displeased.

11 And Moses said unto the LORD, Wherefore hast thou afflicted thy servant? and wherefore have I not found favour in thy sight, that thou layest the burden of all this people upon me?

12 Have I conceived all this people? have I begotten them, that thou shouldest say unto me, Carry them in thy bosom, as a nursing father beareth the sucking child, unto the land which thou swarest unto their fathers?

13 Whence should I have flesh to give unto all this people? for they weep unto me, saying, Give us flesh, that we may eat.

14 I am not able to bear all this people alone, because it is too heavy for me.

15 And if thou deal thus with me, kill me, I pray thee, out of hand, if I have found favour in thy sight; and let me not see my wretchedness.

16 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Gather unto me seventy men of the elders of Israel, whom thou knowest to be the elders of the people, and officers over them; and bring them unto the tabernacle of the congregation, that they may stand there with thee.

17 And I will come down and talk with thee there: and I will take of the spirit which is upon thee, and will put it upon them; and they shall bear the burden of the people with thee, that thou bear it not thyself alone.

18 And say thou unto the people, Sanctify yourselves against to morrow, and ye shall eat flesh: for ye have

The fire of the Lord, &c.] Many by this expression understand lightning, which is called "the fire of God," Kings i. 12. Job i. 16. proceeding either immediately from heaven, or from the pillar of the cloud: others think it might be one of those horrid blighting winds, common in the deserts of Arabia, and which the prophet speaks of, Ezek. xix. 12.

2 Was quenched, &c.] The fire ceased from destroying the people.

4 Who shall give us flesh, &c.] This sudden and abrupt question is an expression of a vehement, impatient desire, mixed with despair, as in Psalm cxiii. 5.

5 We remember the fish, &c.] Now the Egyptian proselytes, who appear to have been the fomenters of this murmuring, having spread the spirit of dissension among the Israelites; they openly reproach their deliverer, having decoyed them from a very plentiful country, abounding with a variety of delicious fish, such as the lake Moeris and the river Nile in Egypt were famed for; and a rich soil, producing the best herbs, salads, and fruits; all of which they had now exchanged for a miserable, starving condition, and had nothing but manna to cloy them.

10 The anger of the Lord, &c.] This and similar passages of scripture are not to be taken in a literal sense; for God is moved or actuated by passion, such expressions are only accommodated to our capacities and manner of speaking.

14 I am not able to bear all this people, &c.] i. e. I have not strength to undergo the toil of bearing all their complaints, and appeasing their tumults.

15 Let me not see my wretchedness.] This is an expression of great affection towards so ungrateful a people. The meaning is, let me not live to see the miseries which they inevitably drawing upon themselves by their murmurings, while the enemies of God insult over them, and rejoice in their downfall.

18 Sanctify yourselves, &c.] i. e. Make yourselves ready to receive this present from God with gratitude.

Before CHRIST 1490. have wept in the ears of the LORD, saying, Who shall give us flesh to eat? for it was well with us in Egypt: therefore the LORD will give you flesh, and ye shall eat.

19 Ye shall not eat one day, nor two days, nor five days, neither ten days, nor twenty days;

20 But even a whole month, until it come out at your nostrils, and it be loathsome unto you: because that ye have despised the LORD which is among you, and have wept before him, saying, Why came we forth out of Egypt?

21 ¶ And Moses said, The people, among whom I am, are six hundred thousand footmen; and thou hast said, I will give them flesh, that they may eat a whole month.

22 Shall the flocks and the herds be slain for them, to suffice them? or shall all the fish of the sea be gathered together for them, to suffice them?

23 And the LORD said unto Moses, Is the LORD's hand waxed short? thou shalt see now whether my word shall come to pass unto thee or not.

24 ¶ And Moses went out, and told the people the words of the LORD, and gathered the seventy men of the elders of the people, and set them round about the tabernacle.

25 And the LORD came down in a cloud, and spake unto him, and took of the spirit that was upon him, and gave it unto the seventy elders: and it came to pass, that, when the spirit rested upon them, they prophesied, and did not cease.

26 But there remained two of the men in the camp, the name of the one was Eldad, and the name of the other Medad: and the spirit rested upon them; and they were of them that were written, but went not out unto the tabernacle: and they prophesied in the camp.

27 And there ran a young man, and told Moses, and said, Eldad and Medad do prophesy in the camp.

28 And Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of Moses, one of his young men, answered and said, My lord Moses, forbid them.

29 And Moses said unto him, Enviest thou for my sake? would God that all the LORD's people were prophets, and that the LORD would put his spirit upon them.

20 Until it come out at your nostrils, &c.] i. e. Until your impatient appetites be glutted, and you are convinced to your shame and confusion, of your monstrous ingratitude to the Lord.

23 Is the Lord's hand waxed short?] i. e. Is not the same omnipotence that created the world, the same power that divided the sea, and opened the rocks, still able to procure bread for his people?

25 Took of the spirit that was upon him, and gave it to the seventy elders, &c.] Which signifies he bestowed upon them the gifts of inspiration or prophecy, whereby they were enabled with uncommon power of words, and supernatural strength and vivacity of argument, to set forth the praises of God, the excellencies of his laws, and to persuade the people to a passive submission to his will.

26 There remained two of the men in the camp, &c.] i. e. Two of those seventy elders whom Moses had now ordained.

29 Enviest thou for my sake?] Moses reproves his adviser, and rejects his counsel; because, supposing they had been guilty of an irregularity, Joshua was too warm upon them. Hence we learn, that our zeal should always be tempered with meekness and wisdom.

Would God that all the Lord's people were prophets, &c.] Here Moses wishes that they were all inspired to sing the praises of Jehovah, and recommend virtue and religion one to another: but then he wishes also that the Lord would put his Spirit upon them, and would not have those set up for prophets who are not properly qualified. Let those vain, formal, and illiterate pretenders consider this, who intrude themselves into the sacred office.

31 There went forth a wind from the Lord] i. e. A south wind, Psalm xxviii. and it is said to be "from the Lord," because it was ordered and directed by his special power and providence.

And brought quails from the sea, &c.] As in Exod. xvi. 13.

33 The wrath of the Lord was kindled, &c.] For they were not in the same distressful circumstances now as before: when they first murmured, they were really in want of provision, and therefore God pitied their distress, and sent them a supply: but now they complained not from necessity, but wantonness, since they had plenty of manna for their present use.

34 Kibroth-hattaavah, &c.] Which signifies, the graves of lust; because those were buried there who by their lust had occasioned the plague.

Before CHRIST 1490. 30 And Moses gat him into the camp, he and the elders of Israel.

31 ¶ And there went forth a wind from the LORD, and brought quails from the sea, and let them fall by the camp, as it were a day's journey on this side, and as it were a day's journey on the other side, round about the camp, and as it were two cubits high upon the face of the earth.

32 And the people stood up all that day, and all that night, and all the next day, and they gathered the quails: he that gathered least gathered ten homers: and they spread them all abroad for themselves round about the camp.

33 And while the flesh was yet between their teeth, ere it was chewed, the wrath of the LORD was kindled against the people, and the LORD smote the people with a very great plague.

34 And he called the name of that place Kibroth-hattaavah: because there they buried the people that lusted.

35 And the people journeyed from Kibroth-hattaavah unto Hazeroth; and abode at Hazeroth.

C H A P. XII.

1 God rebuketh the sedition of Miriam and Aaron. 10 Miriam's leprosy: Moses prayeth for her. 14 God commandeth her to be shut out of the camp seven days. 16 The people encamp in the wilderness of Paran.

AND Miriam and Aaron spake against Moses because of the Ethiopian woman whom he had married: for he had married an Ethiopian woman.

2 And they said, Hath the LORD indeed spoken only by Moses? hath he not spoken also by us? And the LORD heard it.

3 (Now the man Moses was very meek, above all the men which were upon the face of the earth.)

4 And the LORD spake suddenly unto Moses, and unto Aaron, and unto Miriam, Come out ye three unto the tabernacle of the congregation. And they three came out.

5 And the LORD came down in the pillar of the cloud, and stood in the door of the tabernacle, and called Aaron and Miriam: and they both came forth.

6 And he said, Hear now my words: If there be a prophet among you, I the LORD will make myself

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XI.

This history teaches us, that we should not lust after evil things, as the children of Israel lusted: that we should not be displeased at the favour of God to others, nor prefer earthly things to heavenly: that God punished the children of Israel, by giving them flesh, as they desired, which shews that God gives men sometimes in his wrath what they ask of him; and they are often punished in obtaining their wishes. Lastly, The answer and wish of Moses, that all the Lord's people were prophets, admonishes us not to envy the blessings that God bestows upon others; but, on the contrary, to rejoice as often as we see the glory of God promoted, either by ourselves or our neighbours.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XII.

1 Because of the Ethiopian woman, &c.] Which, as most interpreters think, is of Zipporah, whom Aaron and Miriam in contempt called an Ethiopian, though it should have been rendered the Cushite, or Arabian woman, she being a native of Midian, a district of Arabia.

2 And they said, Hath the Lord indeed spoken only by Moses, &c.] Several have conjectured that this difference between Moses, his brother, and sister, arose from hence—When Jethro his father-in-law was in the camp, Moses, pursuant to his advice, appointed judges to determine inferior causes; and afterwards finding his son Hobab very serviceable to him, he intreated him to stay with him, reposing great confidence in him; in the preceding chapter too we read that seventy elders were nominated by Moses, without consulting Aaron and Miriam; the story of their quarrel therefore being immediately subjoined, it seems as if they thought themselves neglected, and that they were displeased because their advice was not asked in an affair of such importance; but being afraid to charge Moses directly, they vented their spleen upon his wife, giving her opprobrious names, and probably complained to the people of the too great influence which Zipporah and Hobab had over Moses.

Before myself known in a vision, and will speak unto him in a dream.

7 My servant Moses is not so, who is faithful in all mine house.

With him will I speak mouth to mouth, even apparently, and not in dark speeches; and the similitude of the LORD shall he behold: wherefore then were ye not afraid to speak against my servant Moses?

9 And the anger of the LORD was kindled against them, and he departed.

10 ¶ And the cloud departed from off the tabernacle; and, behold, Miriam became leprous, white as snow: and Aaron looked upon Miriam, and, behold, she was leprous.

11 And Aaron said unto Moses, Alas, my lord, I beseech thee, lay not the sin upon us, wherein we have done foolishly, and wherein we have sinned.

12 Let her not be as one dead, of whom the flesh is half consumed when he cometh out of his mother's womb.

13 And Moses cried unto the LORD, saying, Heal her now, O God, I beseech thee.

14 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, If her father had but spit in her face, should she not be ashamed seven days? let her be shut out from the camp seven days, and after that let her be received in again.

15 And Miriam was shut out from the camp seven days: and the people journeyed not till Miriam was brought in again.

16 ¶ And afterward the people removed from Hazeroth, and pitched in the wilderness of Paran.

C H A P. XIII.

1 The names of the men who are sent to search the land: 17 Their instructions: 21 Their acts: 26 Their relation.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, 2 Send thou men, that they may search the land of Canaan, which I give unto the children of Israel: of every tribe of their fathers shall ye send a man, every one a ruler among them.

7 My servant Moses is not so] Moses is a prophet of a superior rank, to whom I impart my mind in a far more noble and extensive manner; who in his interviews with God is not intranced in visions, but is always awake, and perfect master of himself.

Who is faithful in all mine house.] Because he executed the divine commands with great exactness, doing nothing of himself, as he was falsely accused. Moses in this was a type of Christ, who is constituted head of the christian church, though with a far greater extent of authority and power, Heb. iii. 2.

The similitude of the Lord shall he behold, &c.] This according to the present translation, is directly contrary to what Moses himself expressly declares, Deut. iv. 25. that he saw no similitude; it should therefore be rendered as follows, being connected with the foregoing words: Not in dark speeches, and in a figure, shall he behold the Lord.

10 The cloud departed from off the tabernacle.] It stood at a distance, till Miriam was removed from the tabernacle, and carried out of the camp.

Miriam became leprous] Miriam's leprosy did not proceed, as was the usual case, from a previous ill disposition of the blood and juices, but it seized her instantaneously, and was turned suddenly into that infinity of small imperceptible and corroding worms which naturally were the more immediate cause of that distemper; a just punishment for her detraction and pride!

Aaron looked upon Miriam, and behold she was leprous.] It seems the reason why Aaron was exempted from this punishment was because he was appointed to be a judge of leprosy, which office he could not have performed, had he been a leper himself; and because as he was so lately consecrated an high priest, God did not think proper, for the preservation of his authority, so soon to render him vile and contemptible in the eyes of the people; it is thought too that Miriam might be the first in the transgression, and that she drew Aaron (who seems in other instances to have been a person of too much facility) over to her party.

11 Lay not the sin upon us, &c.] Sensible of the superior dignity of Moses, and of his own folly, Aaron begs of him in the most submissive terms to forgive him, and to intercede with God for the life of his sister, who must have died of her distemper, had not the divine power miraculously interposed.

14 If her father had but spit in her face, &c.] Which was a token of great anger and contempt; a daughter under such circumstances would be ashamed for some time to look her father in the face; and as Miriam had by her dissension offended Moses her civil parent, and

3 And Moses by the commandment of the LORD sent them from the wilderness of Paran: all those were heads of the children of Israel.

4 And these were their names: of the tribe of Reuben, Shammua the son of Zaccur.

5 Of the tribe of Simeon, Shaphat the son of Hori.

6 Of the tribe of Judah, Caleb the son of Jephunneh.

7 Of the tribe of Issachar, Igal the son of Joseph.

8 Of the tribe of Ephraim, Oshea the son of Nun.

9 Of the tribe of Benjamin, Palti the son of Raphu.

10 Of the tribe of Zebulun, Gaddiel the son of Sodi.

11 Of the tribe of Joseph, namely, of the tribe of Manasseh, Gaddi the son of Sufi.

12 Of the tribe of Dan, Ammiel the son of Gemalli.

13 Of the tribe of Asher, Sethur the son of Michael.

14 Of the tribe of Naphtali, Nahbi the son of Vophsi.

15 Of the tribe of Gad, Geuel the son of Machi.

16 These are the names of the men which Moses sent to spy out the land. And Moses called Oshea the son of Nun Jehoshua.

17 ¶ And Moses sent them to spy out the land of Canaan, and said unto them, Get you up this way southward, and go up into the mountain:

18 And see the land, what it is; and the people that dwelleth therein, whether they be strong or weak, few or many;

19 And what the land is that they dwell in, whether it be good or bad; and what cities they be that they dwell in, whether in tents, or in strong holds;

20 And what the land is, whether it be fat or lean, whether there be wood therein, or not. And be ye of good courage, and bring of the fruit of the land. Now the time was the time of the firstripe grapes.

21 ¶ So they went up, and searched the land from the wilderness of Zin unto Rehob, as men come to Hamath.

22 And they ascended by the south, and came unto Hebron; where Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai, the children of Anak, were. (Now Hebron was built seven years before Zoan in Egypt.)

23 And

in opposing him had displeased God her spiritual father, she ought to take shame to herself, and likewise on account of her distemper undergo that temporary exile, which was prescribed for legal impurities. Job. xxx. 10. Isaiah l. 6. Lev. xxi. 8. Numb. vi. 9.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XII.

From the events in this chapter we may remark, that good men are often exposed to crosses and trials, even from those who ought to support and assist them: that God punishes those who maltreat his servants; and, lastly, that Moses prayeth for Miriam, though he was so much injured by her; which teaches us to do good to those that do us evil, and to pray for them, rather than wish them evil, or do any to them.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XIII.

2 Send thou men, that they may search the land, &c.] In Deut. i. 22, 23, it appears that the people first requested that spies might be sent, and therefore Moses in sending them did it in compliance to their humour.

16 Moses called Oshea the son of Nun Jehoshua.] We find in Exod. xvii. 9, when he went to fight the Amalekites, he was called Joshua, a word of the same import with Jesus, which signified a saviour; and he is more than once called by that name in the Septuagint translation. He was a type of Christ; for as he led the Israelites into Canaan, so does our blessed Saviour bring us to the heavenly Canaan, the rest which remaineth for the people of God."

18 See the land, what it is, &c.] From this we may suppose that little commerce had been carried on between Egypt and Canaan since Jacob's days; otherwise they could not have been unacquainted with these matters.

19 Whether in tents, or in strong holds.] It is in the Vulgate and Septuagint, Whether in cities with or without walls.

21 The wilderness of Zin] Which lay near Kadesh-barnea, the south-east of Canaan. There was a place called the wilderness of Sin, Exod. xvi. 1. which lay on the south-west; and therefore must not be confounded with the former.

Unto Bebob, &c.] Which city stood north of Canaan, near the sea coast, not far from Zidon.

22 The children of Anak, &c.] They were a gigantic race of men, who took their name from Anak their progenitor; they were so terrible to their neighbours, that it became a proverbial saying among them, Who can stand before the children of Anak?

23 And they came unto the brook of Eshcol, and cut down from thence a branch with one cluster of grapes, and they bare it between two upon a staff; and they brought of the pomegranates, and of the figs.

24 The place was called the brook Eshcol, because of the cluster of grapes which the children of Israel cut down from thence.

25 And they returned from searching of the land after forty days.

26 ¶ And they went and came to Moses, and to Aaron, and to all the congregation of the children of Israel, unto the wilderness of Paran, to Kadesh; and brought back word unto them, and unto all the congregation, and shewed them the fruit of the land.

27 And they told him, and said, We came unto the land whither thou sentest us, and surely it floweth with milk and honey; and this is the fruit of it.

28 Nevertheless the people be strong that dwell in the land, and the cities are walled, and very great: and moreover we saw the children of Anak there.

29 The Amalekites dwell in the land of the south: and the Hittites, and the Jebusites and the Amorites, dwell in the mountains: and the Canaanites dwell by the sea, and by the coast of Jordan.

30 And Caleb stilled the people before Moses, and said, Let us go up at once, and possess it; for we are well able to overcome it.

31 But the men that went up with him said, We be not able to go up against the people: for they are stronger than we.

32 And they brought up an evil report of the land which they had searched unto the children of Israel, saying, The land, through which we have gone to search it, is a land that eateth up the inhabitants thereof; and all the people that we saw in it are men of a great stature.

33 And there we saw the giants, the sons of Anak, which come of the giants: and we were in our own sight as grasshoppers, and so we were in their sight.

C H A P. XIV.

1 The people murmur at the news. 6 Joshua and Caleb labour to pacify them. 11 God threateneth them. 13 Moses intercedeth with God, and obtaineth pardon; 26

23 A branch with one cluster of grapes, and they bare it between two upon a staff, &c.] This is both on account of its weight, and to preserve it from bruising. That there are vines and grapes of prodigious size in the eastern and southern parts of the world, is recorded by several writers; particularly Strabo, Pliny, Olearius, and the learned Huet.

30 Let us go up at once, and possess it, &c.] So great was the confidence of Caleb, that he entertained no doubt of conquest; therefore he said not, Let us go up and conquer it, but, "Let us go up at once, and possess it," as if it was already conquered.

32 A land that eateth up the inhabitants thereof, &c.] These words seem to relate to the vast number of inhabitants, and to signify they were so numerous, that the land was scarce sufficient for their maintenance.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XIII.

God was pleased to send spies into Canaan, to encourage his people to obtain that country, and strengthen their faith in his promises. Those spies, who frightened the people, represent to us such persons as, instead of animating themselves to do their duty, and overcome difficulties in their way to heaven, lose their courage, and dishearten others by pretending that the difficulties are insurmountable, and the duties of holiness beyond our reach. But Joshua and Caleb describe to us those zealous persons who do not suffer themselves to be misled by the multitude, but who always cleave to God and their duty, and are not discouraged at the sight of those conflicts which they are to undergo, relying on the divine aid for support.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XIV.

1 All the congregation lifted up their voice, and cried, &c.] Thus nothing but lamentations were heard, and grievous complaints of the melancholy condition of themselves and families; who, they falsely supposed, after all their hardships, were now to be exposed to the mercy of their cruel enemies.

but the murmurers are excluded from entering into the promised land. 36 The men who raised the evil report concerning the land die by a plague. 40 The people, that against the will of God would invade the land, are smitten by the inhabitants of it.

AND all the congregation lifted up their voice, and cried: and the people wept that night.

2 And all the children of Israel murmured against Moses and against Aaron: and the whole congregation said unto them, Would God that we had died in the land of Egypt! or would God we had died in the wilderness!

3 And wherefore hath the Lord brought us unto this land, to fall by the sword, that our wives and our children should be a prey? were it not better for us to return into Egypt?

4 And they said one to another, Let us make a captain, and let us return into Egypt.

5 Then Moses and Aaron fell on their faces before all the assembly of the congregation of the children of Israel.

6 ¶ And Joshua the son of Nun, and Caleb the son of Jephunneh, which were of them that searched the land, rent their clothes;

7 And they spake unto all the company of the children of Israel, saying, The land, which we passed through to search it, is an exceeding good land.

8 If the Lord delight in us, then he will bring us into this land, and give it us; a land which floweth with milk and honey.

9 Only rebel not ye against the Lord, neither fear ye the people of the land; for they are bread for us: their defence is departed from them, and the Lord is with us: fear them not.

10 But all the congregation bade stone them with stones. And the glory of the Lord appeared in the tabernacle of the congregation before all the children of Israel.

11 ¶ And the Lord said unto Moses, How long will this people provoke me? and how long will it be ere they believe me, for all the signs which I have shewed among them?

12 I will smite them with the pestilence, and disinherit them, and will make of thee a greater nation and mightier than they.

13 ¶ And Moses said unto the Lord, Then the Egyptians

3 Wherefore hath the Lord brought us unto this land, &c.] The people not only accuse Moses, but even God himself, as if he had dealt deceitfully with them.

4 Let us make us a captain, and let us return into Egypt.] Thus their outrageous disposition had insatuated their minds; for how could they propose to get thither without food? could they imagine God would send it them from heaven, after they had so shamefully forsaken him? how were they to find their way, when the cloud which directed them was withdrawn? or if they did, how were they to contend with the nations that should oppose them in their passage; and, after all, when they came into Egypt, what reception could they expect from a people who had suffered so severely through them? It is amazing, that notwithstanding all these difficulties, they should persist in their madness, and resolve to choose a new commander to lead them back again! Nehemiah tells us, chap. ix. 17. that they did actually appoint them a captain.

5 Then Moses and Aaron fell on their faces, &c.] i. e. To deprecate the wrath of God.

¶ If the Lord delight in us, &c.] i. e. If we do not forfeit his favour, he will enable us to drive out the Canaanites, and settle us in the possession of this land.

9 They are bread for us.] This signifies an easy prey. See chap. xxiv. 8.

Their defence is departed from them, &c.] i. e. They have filled up the measure of their iniquities, and the divine protection is withdrawn from them; which, if we do not forfeit it by our rebellion, is insured to us.

11 And the Lord said unto Moses] The Lord spoke out of the cloud upon the tabernacle.

How long will this people provoke me?] This suggests that they had often provoked him, and had done it long ago, and still continued to do so; and he had long bore their provocations; but it was not reasonable, nor could it be expected by Moses or any other, that he would bear them much longer.

Before CHRIST 1490. Egyptians shall hear it, (for thou broughtest up this people in thy might from among them;)

14 And they will tell it to the inhabitants of this land: for they have heard that thou LORD art among this people, that thou LORD art seen face to face, and that thy cloud standeth over them, and that thou goest before them, by day time in a pillar of a cloud, and in a pillar of fire by night.

15 Now if thou shalt kill all this people as one man, then the nations which have heard the fame of thee will speak, saying,

16 Because the LORD was not able to bring this people into the land which he sware unto them, therefore he hath slain them in the wilderness.

17 And now I beseech thee, let the power of my LORD be great, according as thou hast spoken, saying,

18 The LORD is long suffering, and of great mercy, forgiving iniquity and transgression, and by no means clearing the guilty, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation.

19 Pardon, I beseech thee, the iniquity of this people according unto the greatness of thy mercy, and as thou hast forgiven this people, from Egypt even until now.

20 And the LORD said, I have pardoned according to thy word:

21 But as truly as I live, all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the LORD.

22 Because all those men which have seen my glory, and my miracles, which I did in Egypt and in the wilderness, have tempted me now these ten times, and have not hearkened to my voice;

23 Surely they shall not see the land which I sware unto their fathers, neither shall any of them that provoked me see it:

24 But my servant Caleb, because he had another spirit with him, and hath followed me fully, him will I bring into the land whereinto he went; and his seed shall possess it.

25 (Now the Amalekites and the Canaanites dwelt in the valley.) To morrow turn you, and get you into the wilderness by the way of the Red sea.

26 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

27 How long shall I bear with this evil congregation, which murmur against me? I have heard the murmurings of the children of Israel, which they murmur against me.

28 Say unto them, As truly as I live, saith the LORD, as ye have spoken in mine ears, so will I do to you.

29 Your carcases, shall fall in this wilderness; and all that were numbered of you, according to your

Before CHRIST 1490. whole number, from twenty years old and upward, which have murmured against me.

30 Doubtless ye shall not come into the land, concerning which I sware to make you dwell therein, save Caleb the son of Jephunneh, and Joshua the son of Nun.

31 But your little ones, which ye said should be a prey, them will I bring in, and they shall know the land which ye have despised:

32 But as for you, your carcases, they shall fall in this wilderness.

33 And your children shall wander in the wilderness forty years, and bear your whoredoms, until your carcases be wasted in the wilderness.

34 After the number of the days in which ye searched the land, even forty days, each day for a year, shall ye bear your iniquities, even forty years, and ye shall know my breach of promise.

35 I the LORD have said, I will surely do it unto all this evil congregation, that are gathered together against me: in this wilderness they shall be consumed, and there they shall die.

36 ¶ And the men, which Moses sent to search the land, who returned, and made all the congregation to murmur against him, by bringing up a slander upon the land,

37 Even those men that did bring up the evil report upon the land, died by the plague before the LORD.

38 But Joshua the son of Nun, and Caleb the son of Jephunneh, which were of the men that went to search the land, lived still.

39 And Moses told these sayings unto all the children of Israel: and the people mourned greatly.

40 ¶ And they rose up early in the morning, and gat them up into the top of the mountain, saying, Lo, we be here, and will go up unto the place which the LORD hath promised: for we have sinned.

41 And Moses said, Wherefore now do ye transgress the commandment of the LORD? but it shall not prosper.

42 Go not up, for the LORD is not among you; that ye be not smitten before your enemies.

43 For the Amalekites and the Canaanites are there before you, and ye shall fall by the sword: because ye are turned away from the LORD, therefore the LORD will not be with you.

44 But they presumed to go up unto the hill top: nevertheless the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and Moses, departed not out of the camp.

45 Then the Amalekites came down, and the Canaanites which dwelt in that hill, and smote them, and discomfited them, even unto Hormah.

CHAP.

15 [Then the nations which have heard the fame of thee will speak, saying.] Here Moses is more solicitous for the honour of God, than anxious about his own interest. He pleads that the eyes both of Egypt and Canaan were upon them; that great expectations were raised concerning them; and if God suffered this people, who had made so great noise in the world, to be all consumed, he insinuates that those heathen nations would rashly conclude, that it was for want of power in their God, to bring them safely through the wilderness into the promised land!

17 [Let the power of my LORD be great, &c.] i. e. Let the fame of thy power be magnified among the nations, by subduing the enemies of the LORD's people.

18 [And by no means clearing the guilty, &c.] We do not find the word "guilty" in the original, and as it is directly opposite to the intention of Moses' petition, the passage would be better rendered as follows: Who will not make quite desolate, though he visit the iniquity of the father upon the children, &c.

19 [As thou hast forgiven this people, from Egypt even until now.] i. e. Spare them this once; add this one instance of divine mercy and patience to the many thou hast already given.

21 [All the earth shall be filled with the glory of the LORD.] i. e. All the earth shall acknowledge and confess the justice of the LORD's proceeding against his people Israel.

25 [Dwell in the valley.] This should be rendered, Lie in wait for you in the valley.

[Turn you, &c.] i. e. Since ye have not courage enough, notwithstanding all the promises made you, to force the Canaanites, it will be most prudent in you to remove hence; and instead of proceeding to take possession of the land, to return through the wilderness towards the Red sea, from whence ye came.

33 [Your children shall wander in the wilderness forty years.] What a terrible reflection this! to be doomed themselves to perish in the wilderness, and not be suffered to enter the promised land, on the borders of which they were just arrived; and that their posterity should be doomed to wander in the wilderness forty years, in quest of food, after the manner of the Arabian shepherds.

[And bear your whoredoms, &c.] i. e. Shall feel the fatal effects of your idolatry and defection from your God.

34 [My breach of promise.] More properly, my resentment.

40 [We be here, and will go up, &c.] The people now repented of their folly, acknowledged their error, and would very willingly have taken possession of the land, in which they were averse before; but it was now too late, the decree was gone forth, and the consumption of the people determined.

44 [They presumed to go up, &c.] Being desperately resolved, as they were, to act diametrically opposite to God's command in every thing: he bid them go, and they would not; he forbade them, and they would.

[Hormah.] Which city was situated in the south of Canaan, but had not this name, which signifies "utter destruction," till many years after; when the Canaanites who inhabited it were devoted to utter destruction. See chap. xxi. 3. Moses is thought to have composed the nineteenth psalm in memory of this event; in which he gives us a most lively image of the shortness and frailty of human life.

12 According to the number that ye shall prepare, so shall ye do to every one according to their number.

13 All that are born of the country shall do these things after this manner, in offering an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

14 ¶ And if a stranger sojourn with you, or who-soever be among you in your generations, and will offer an offering made by fire, of ■ sweet savour unto the LORD; as ye do, so he shall do.

15 One ordinance shall be both for you of the congregation, and also for the stranger that sojourneth with you, an ordinance for ever in your generations: ■ ye are, so shall the stranger be before the LORD.

16 One law and one manner shall be for you, and for the stranger that sojourneth with you.

19 Then it shall be, that, when ye eat of the bread of the land, ye shall offer up an heave offering unto the LORD.

20 Ye shall offer up ■ cake of the first of your dough for an heave offering: as ye do the heave offering of the threshing floor, so shall ye heave it.

21 Of the first of your dough ye shall give unto the LORD an heave offering in your generations.

22 ¶ And if ye have erred, and not observed all these commandments, which the LORD hath spoken unto Moses,

23 Even all that the LORD hath commanded you by the hand of Moses, from the day that the LORD commanded Moses, and henceforward among your generations;

24 Then it shall be, if aught be committed by ignorance without the knowledge of the congregation, that all the congregation shall offer one young bullock for a burnt offering, for ■ sweet savour unto the LORD, with his meat offering, and his drink offering, according to the manner, and one kid of the goats for a sin offering.

25 And the priest shall make an atonement for all the congregation of the children of Israel, and it shall be forgiven them; for it is ignorance: and they shall bring their offering, ■ sacrifice made by fire unto the LORD, and their sin offering before the LORD, for their ignorance:

26 And it shall be forgiven all the congregation of the children of Israel, and the stranger that sojourneth among them; seeing all the people were in ignorance.

27 ¶ And if any soul sin through ignorance, then he shall bring ■ she goat of the first year for ■ sin offering.

28 And the priest shall make an atonement for the soul that sinneth ignorantly, when he sinneth by ignorance before the LORD, to make an atonement for him; and it shall be forgiven him.

29 Ye shall have one law for him that sinneth through ignorance, both for him that is born among the children of Israel, and for the stranger that sojourneth among them.

30 ¶ But the soul that doeth aught presumptuously, whether he be born in the land, or a stranger, the same reproacheth the LORD; and that soul shall be cut off from among his people.

31 Because he hath despised the word of the LORD, and hath broken his commandment, that soul shall utterly be cut off; his iniquity shall be upon him.

32 ¶ And while the children of Israel were in the wilderness, they found a man that gathered sticks upon the sabbath day.

33 And they that found him gathering sticks brought him unto Moses and Aaron, and unto all the congregation.

34 And they put him in ward, because it was not declared what should be done to him.

The fourth part of an hin of oil.] i. e. A quart of oil.

14 And if a stranger sojourn with you, &c.] We are to understand by a "stranger," one who had renounced idolatry, and become ■ proselyte to the Jewish religion. This law, which made no distinction between them and the Israelites in matters relating to divine worship, was wisely calculated to encourage strangers to embrace their religion, and to engage the Hebrews to shew them hospitality.

19 The bread of the land, &c.] i. e. Such corn as is used in making bread, comprehending wheat, barley, rye, or oats.

32 A man that gathered sticks upon the sabbath day.] Undoubtedly the use of those sticks was to make a fire with; but as they were commanded ■ bake and seethe what they had occasion for on the day before the sabbath, this offence was a violation of the law of the sabbath; and consequently an implicit contempt of the Creator to whose honour it was dedicated.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XIV.

From the examples of the Jews, who on account of their rebellion and unbelief, ■ excluded from the land of Canaan, and died in the wilderness, we may learn, that those who provoke the Lord by distrust and disobedience, shall ■ inherit his promises. The punishment inflicted on the ten spies, and the promise God made ■ Joshua and Caleb, shew us, that they who are the occasion of offences, and draw others into sin, shall receive the punishment due ■ it; but that God is kind, and will bless those that ■ faithful to him. Lastly, The defeat of the children of Israel by the Canaanites, points out to us, that whatever is undertaken against the will of God, can never succeed.

1 The rebellion of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram. 4 Moses opposeth it. 12 He sendeth for Dathan and Abiram, who refuse to come. 16 Korah and his company bring incense before the Lord. 23 Moses separateth the people from the tents of the rebels, and denounceth their judgment. 31 The earth swalloweth up some, a fire consumeth the rest. 36 The censers are reserved to holy use. 41 The people murmur. 44 God's anger is kindled. 46 Aaron by Moses' direction stayeth the plague, in which fourteen thousand and seven hundred perished.

NOW Korah, the son of Izhar, the son of Kohath, the son of Levi, and Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab, and On, the son of Peleth, sons of Reuben, took men :

35 The man shall be surely put to death, &c.] The chief reason why the breach of the sabbath is ordered to be so severely punished, is, because it was an implicit denial of God to be the creator of the world. The sabbath was a sign, by which the worshippers of that Omnipotent Being were distinguished from idolaters, who thought the world to be eternal, and adored the heavenly luminaries, the sun, moon, and stars, as deities, and a multiplicity of other nominal gods: the violation of this institution therefore implied a defection from the true religion to idolatry and polytheism.

38 That they make them fringes in the borders of their garments, &c.] Which ornament was intended to distinguish them in their dress, as circumcision did their persons, from other nations : so that whenever they looked upon this mark, they might be reminded of their being worshippers of the true God, as holy and peculiar people. Many of the Jews considered these ornaments in a very different light, and prided themselves in wearing them. The Pharisees, in our Saviour's time, as appears in Matt. xxiii. 5. used to enlarge their fringes, in order to make them more observable, and gain them the reputation of superior sanctity.

39 To go a whoring.] An usual phrase in scripture for idolatry, Exod. xxxiv. 15. God is ever considered as the spiritual spouse of his church.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XV.

In this chapter, we observe the difference between sins committed through ignorance, and wilful sins, both which are to be atoned for by repentance. Sins committed through stubbornness are very heinous, since no sacrifices could atone for them, but they were punished with death ; which was the case of the man that had gathered sticks on the sabbath day. The law concerning the fringes that the Jews were to wear upon their cloaths, was to put them in mind never to depart from the commandments of God : may we take warning from hence, always to have the law of the Lord before our eyes, and to conform ourselves according to it.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XVI.

1 Now Korah] We are not informed by the sacred historian at what time, and in what encampment, this rebellion of Korah happened ; but the general opinion is, that the cause of the mutiny was owing to his resentment upon the advancement of Aaron and his family to the office of high-priest. Being sensible he had no hopes of aiming at that dignity as matters now stood, he was determined to endeavour after it, by compelling them to change their measures, or by depriving them forcibly of their authority ; and, therefore, in order to render himself more certain of success, he drew Dathan and Abiram, and others of the Reubenites, into rebellion ; and being

■ And they rose up before Moses, with certain of the children of Israel, two hundred and fifty princes of the assembly, famous in the congregation, men of renown :

3 And they gathered themselves together against Moses and against Aaron, and said unto them, Ye take too much upon you, seeing all the congregation are holy, every one of them, and the LORD is among them : wherefore then lift ye up yourselves above the congregation of the LORD ?

4 ¶ And when Moses heard it, he fell upon his face :

5 And he spake unto Korah and unto all his company, saying, Even to morrow the LORD will shew who are his, and who is holy ; and will cause him to come near unto him, even him whom he hath chosen will he cause to come near unto him.

6 This do ; Take your censers, Korah, and all his company ;

7 And put fire therein, and put incense in them before the LORD to morrow : and it shall be that the man whom the LORD doth choose, he shall be holy : ye take too much upon you, ye sons of Levi.

8 And Moses said unto Korah, Hear, I pray you, ye sons of Levi :

9 Seemeth it but a small thing unto you, that the God of Israel hath separated you from the congregation of Israel, to bring you near to himself to do the service of the tabernacle of the LORD, and to stand before the congregation to minister unto them ?

10 And he hath brought thee near to him, and all thy brethren the sons of Levi with thee : and seek ye the priesthood also ?

11 For which cause both thou and all thy company are gathered together against the LORD : and what is Aaron, that ye murmur against him ?

12 ¶ And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram, sons of Eliab : which said, We will not come up :

13 Is it a small thing that thou hast brought us up out joined by two hundred and fifty persons of authority among the other tribes, they became a party, and declared themselves for a change of government.

On, the son of Peleth] Here "On" is mentioned as one of the chiefs of the faction, but is not mentioned afterwards ; it is imagined, therefore, that either he repented, and deserted their party, or that he did not render himself so remarkable as Dathan and Abiram, who suffered for their obstinacy.

Sons of Reuben] i. e. of the posterity and tribe of Reuben. As Korah was disgusted at the preferment of Aaron to the priesthood, and perhaps too because Elizaphan was appointed chief of the family of the Kohathites ; so it is probable that the Reubenites, the first-born of Israel, were offended at the preference given to Judah, and that they themselves were not placed in the front of the camp.

Took men.] We do not find the word "men" in the original, and since "took" is the first word in the text, it would be more natural if translated thus : Korah took both Dathan and Abiram, &c. i. e. he drew them over to his party, or formed an association or conspiracy with them.

3 Against Moses and against Aaron] As if Moses had advanced his brother and family to the priesthood by his own authority, and not by the direction of God.

7 Ye take too much upon you, &c.] i. e. The priesthood ought not to be confined to your family alone ; you ought to think it sufficient to be on a level with your brethren, who are all members of the community, and alike favoured with the divine presence and protection.

4 And when Moses heard it, &c.] We are not to suppose this prostration a sign of fear, though, if we believe Josephus, the insurgents approached him in a riotous manner, and threatened to stone him. This prostration was intended for the same end as that mentioned chap. xvi. 5. that is, for deprecating God's displeasure against the Israelites, and for supplicating his direction in so dangerous a crisis.

5 Will cause him to come near unto him, &c.] Signifying that person who is to serve him in the sacred offices of priest.

9 Seemeth it but a small thing, &c.] As if he had said, you ought, instead of repining, because Aaron's family is advanced above yours, to consider your own privileges, who are distinguished above the other tribes, by being ordained Levites.

11 What is Aaron, &c.] Aaron has done nothing of himself ; God is the doer of all, Exod. xxi. 7.

12 Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram, &c.] Moses suspecting they had been drawn into the conspiracy by the artifice and insinuations of Korah, sends for them to argue the case mildly.

13 Thou hast brought us up out of a land that floweth with milk and honey, &c.] A sarcastical reflection this seems Moses, who, in his description of the promised land, used to paint it as "a land flowing with milk and honey."

out of a land that floweth with milk and honey, to kill us in the wilderness, except thou make thyself altogether prince over us?

14 Moreover thou hast not brought us into a land that floweth with milk and honey, or given us inheritance of fields and vineyards: wilt thou put out the eyes of these men? we will not come up.

15 And Moses was very wroth, and said unto the LORD, Respect not thou their offering: I have not taken one ass from them, neither have I hurt one of them.

16 ¶ And Moses said unto Korah, Be thou and all thy company before the LORD, thou, and they, and Aaron, to morrow.

17 And take every man his censer, and put incense in them, and bring ye before the LORD every man his censer, two hundred and fifty censers; thou also, and Aaron, each of you his censer.

18 And they took every man his censer, and put fire in them, and laid incense thereon, and stood in the door of the tabernacle of the congregation with Moses and Aaron.

19 And Korah gathered all the congregation against them unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: and the glory of the LORD appeared unto all the congregation.

20 And the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

21 Separate yourselves from among this congregation, that I may consume them in a moment.

22 And they fell upon their faces, and said, O God, the God of the spirits of all flesh, shall one man sin, and wilt thou be wroth with all the congregation?

23 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

24 Speak unto the congregation, saying, Get you up from about the tabernacle of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram.

25 And Moses rose up and went unto Dathan and Abiram; and the elders of Israel followed him.

26 And he spake unto the congregation, saying, Depart, I pray you, from the tents of these wicked men, and touch nothing of theirs: lest ye be consumed in all their sins.

27 So they gat up from the tabernacle of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram, on every side: and Dathan and Abiram came out, and stood in the door of their tents, and their wives, and their sons, and their little children.

28 And Moses said, Hereby ye shall know that the LORD hath sent me to do all these works; for I have not done them of mine own mind.

29 If these men die the common death of all men, or if they be visited after the visitation of all men; then the LORD hath not sent me.

Dost thou think to blind us, so that none of us shall be able to discern this imposture? or shall we suffer thee to lead us about after this manner, like blind men, whether thou pleasest, sometimes towards Canaan, and now back again towards Egypt?

15 Moses was very wroth This seems to contradict Moses's character, of being the meekest man upon earth, therefore the Septuagint render, It was very grievous to him; or it made him very sad; and the Arabic, It was very troublesome to Moses.

I have not taken an ass, &c. A proverbial expression, implying, that he had not deprived them of the least of their property.

17 Before the Lord, &c. i. e. at the door of the tabernacle.

19 Korah gathered all the congregation against them, &c. This was a plain indication, that the people were inclined to dispute the authority of Moses and Aaron.

22 God of the spirits of all flesh, &c. i. e. O thou God and father of the spirits of all flesh, wilt thou not have mercy upon those spirits which thou hast created, whose frame thou knowest, and canst distinguish between the leaders and misled.

24 From about the tabernacle, &c. Some have thought these rebels had erected a tabernacle in the midst of their tents, in which they met in council, and hung out a flag of defiance against Moses: hence called the tabernacle of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram.

that appertain unto them, and they go down quick into the pit; then ye shall understand that these men have provoked the LORD.

31 ¶ And it came to pass, as he had made an end of speaking all these words, that the ground clave asunder that was under them:

32 And the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up, and their houses, and all the men that appertained unto Korah, and all their goods.

33 They, and all that appertained to them, went down alive into the pit, and the earth closed upon them: and they perished from among the congregation.

34 And all Israel that were round about them fled at the cry of them: for they said, Lest the earth swallow us up also.

35 And there came out a fire from the LORD, and consumed the two hundred and fifty men that offered incense.

36 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

37 Speak unto Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest, that he take up the censers out of the burning, and scatter thou the fire yonder; for they are hallowed.

38 The censers of these sinners against their own souls, let them make them broad plates for a covering of the altar: for they offered them before the LORD, therefore they are hallowed: and they shall be a sign unto the children of Israel.

39 And Eleazar the priest took the brazen censers, wherewith they that were burnt had offered; and they were made broad plates for a covering of the altar:

40 To be a memorial unto the children of Israel, that no stranger, which is not of the seed of Aaron, come near to offer incense before the LORD; that he be not as Korah, and as his company: as the LORD said to him by the hand of Moses.

41 ¶ But on the morrow all the congregation of the children of Israel murmured against Moses and against Aaron, saying, Ye have killed the people of the LORD.

42 And it came to pass, when the congregation was gathered against Moses and against Aaron, that they looked toward the tabernacle of the congregation: and, behold, the cloud covered it, and the glory of the LORD appeared.

43 And Moses and Aaron came before the tabernacle of the congregation.

44 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

45 Get you up from among this congregation, that I may consume them as in a moment. And they fell upon their faces.

46 ¶ And Moses said unto Aaron, Take a censer, and put fire therein from off the altar, and put on incense, and go quickly unto the congregation, and make an atonement for them: for there is wrath gone out from the LORD; the plague is begun.

47. And ment; for God has many arrows in his quiver; nor is he limited to one way of punishing; but the earth, when he pleaseth, shall execute his vengeance, as well as the fire.

Into the pit, &c. The word in Hebrew which we render "pit" sometimes signifies the grave, and sometimes the region of departed souls: here it denotes that pit or cavity in the earth into which the bodies and substance of these men were swallowed up.

35 A fire from the Lord, and consumed the two hundred and fifty men, &c. i. e. the men who had assumed the priests office. This was the more astonishing, as Moses and Aaron were then among them, though they received no hurt.

41 All the congregation—of Israel murmured, &c. We might naturally expect that such a signal vengeance would have effectually silenced all murmurings and discontent; but it had a different effect upon this inflexible people; for the very next day they assembled in a tumultuous manner, charging Moses and Aaron with the blood of these people.

42 They looked toward the tabernacle, &c. Certainly the faith and intrepidity of Moses and Aaron on this occasion are rendered very conspicuous in this passage, which shew that they firmly relied on the interposition of Providence in their favour, who, in order to establish their faith, and comfort them in this critical juncture, manifested his glorious presence in the cloud toward the tabernacle.

1 God commandeth the rods of the tribes to be brought before the testimony. 6 They are laid up, and Aaron's rod only flourisheth. 13 It is left for a monument against the rebels.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, 2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and take of every one of them a rod according to the house of their fathers, of all their princes according to the house of their fathers twelve rods: write thou every man's name upon his rod.

3 And thou shalt write Aaron's name upon the rod of Levi: for one rod shall be for the head of the house of their fathers.

4 And thou shalt lay them up in the tabernacle of the congregation before the testimony, where I will meet with you.

5 And it shall come to pass, that the man's rod, whom I shall choose, shall blossom: and I will make to cease from me the murmurings of the children of Israel, whereby they murmur against you.

6 And Moses spake unto the children of Israel, and every one of their princes gave him a rod apiece, for each prince one, according to their father's houses, even twelve rods: and the rod of Aaron was among their rods:

7 And Moses laid up the rods before the LORD in the tabernacle of witness.

And it came to pass, that on the morrow Moses went into the tabernacle of witness; and, behold, the rod of Aaron for the house of Levi was budded, and brought forth buds, and bloomed blossoms, and yielded almonds.

49 They that died in the plague were fourteen thousand and seven hundred, &c.] Seeing that the people, instead of being led to repentance by the dreadful catastrophe of Korah and his accomplices, murmured on account of the death of those delinquents, God now silences their complaints by the slaughter of numbers.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XVI.

The terrible punishments these rebellious Israelites drew upon themselves by their incorrigibility and hardness of heart, shews us, that they who will not be humbled by lesser judgments, only expose themselves to greater; and that God not only punishes the authors of disorders and offences, but likewise, those who suffer themselves to be drawn away to do evil.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XVII.

5 I will make to cease from me the murmurings of the children of Israel, &c.] i. e. I will work such a miracle as shall be sufficient to prevent their murmuring any more; and shall be a standing testimony to them, of the persons on whom I have conferred the priesthood.

6 Every one of their princes gave him a rod apiece, &c.] Some have thought that these rods were twigs cut off from an almond tree; and probably from one and the same tree, that there might be no manner of difference between them.

8 Was budded, and brought forth buds, and bloomed blossoms, and yielded almonds.] There was in some parts of the rod an appearance of buds coming forth; in others they were fully thrust out; in others they were opened into blossoms; and in other parts those blossoms had grown into almonds. This was truly astonishing; and we find that the Israelites were so thoroughly convinced by this miraculous sign, that they never after called the authority of Aaron's priesthood in question.

10 Before the testimony.] Much enquiry has been made to ascertain, whether Aaron's rod was put within the ark of the covenant, or only by it; God commanded Moses only to put it in the tabernacle, there to be preserved. St. Paul says it was placed within the ark, Heb. iv. 4. together with a pot of manna, and the tables of the

To be kept for a token, &c.] i. e. To convince the consciences of men, and to silence all disputes concerning the priesthood. We find no mention in scripture, how long this wonderful rod continued in this sacred repository. When the ark was brought into the temple of Solomon, no notice is taken of it; and yet it is reasonable to think it was preserved for a considerable time in the verdure in which it now appeared, for the conviction of future ages.

12 We die, we perish, we all perish.] A natural picture this of the great consternation of their minds. The Israelites were ever in extremes; either daring and presumptuous, or desponding and abject.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XVII.

From this chapter we perceive, that after God had supported the ministry of Aaron, by punishing those who had set themselves up against him, he was pleased to confirm it again by this new miracle: from whence we may learn, that it is in no case lawful to oppose divine ordinances; that we must submit ourselves to those whom God has established in his church, or the government thereof; and that no one ought to oppose them, or usurp their office and authority.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XVIII.

1 Shall bear the iniquity of the sanctuary, &c.] i. e. You shall take care that such people as are legally defiled, do not approach the tabernacle. This charge lieth upon you, and if you suffer these institutions to be profaned through your negligence, you shall bear the punishment of such profanation. These declarations proved useful for removing the envy of the people from the priests, whose dignity they saw attended with so great danger.

4 A stranger shall not, &c.] In the Hebrew, the word "stranger" implies not only a person of a different nation, but likewise any Israelite who was not a Levite.

Before CHRIST 1471. your priest's office for every thing of the altar, and within the veil; and ye shall serve: I have given your priest's office unto you as a service of gift: and the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death.

8 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Aaron, Behold, I also have given thee the charge of mine heave offerings of all the hallowed things of the children of Israel; unto thee have I given them by reason of the anointing, and to thy sons, by an ordinance for ever.

9 This shall be thine of the most holy things, reserved from the fire: every oblation of their's, every meat offering of their's, and every sin offering of their's, and every trespass offering of their's, which they shall render unto me, shall be most holy for thee and for thy sons.

10 In the most holy place shalt thou eat it; every male shall eat it: it shall be holy unto thee.

11 And this is thine; the heave offering of their gift, with all the wave offerings of the children of Israel: I have given them unto thee, and to thy sons, and to thy daughters with thee, by a statute for ever: every one that is clean in thy house shall eat of it.

12 All the best of the oil, and all the best of the wine, and of the wheat, the first fruits of them which they shall offer unto the LORD, them have I given thee.

13 And whatsoever is first ripe in the land, which they shall bring unto the LORD, shall be thine; every one that is clean in thine house shall eat of it.

14 Every thing devoted in Israel shall be thine.

15 Every thing that openeth the matrix in all flesh, which they bring unto the LORD, whether it be of men or beasts, shall be thine: nevertheless the first born of man shalt thou surely redeem, and the firstling of unclean beasts shalt thou redeem.

16 And those that are to be redeemed from a month old shalt thou redeem, according to thine estimation, for the money of five shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary, which is twenty gerahs.

17 But the firstling of a cow, or the firstling of a sheep, or the firstling of a goat, thou shalt not redeem; they are holy: thou shalt sprinkle their blood upon the altar, and shall burn their fat for an offering made by fire, for a sweet savour unto the LORD.

18 And the flesh of them shall be thine, as the wave breast and as the right shoulder are thine.

19 All the heave offerings of the holy things, which the children of Israel offer unto the LORD, have I given thee, and thy sons and thy daughters with thee, by a statute for ever: it is a covenant of salt for ever before the LORD unto thee and to thy seed with thee.

20 And the LORD spake unto Aaron, Thou shalt have no inheritance in their land, neither shalt thou have any part among them: I am thy part and thine inheritance among the children of Israel.

¶ By reason of the anointing, &c.] i. e. Because thou art anointed with sacred oil, and consecrated to the office of a priest.

9 Every oblation, &c.] The Hebrew word kerban, rendered here "oblation," is a general term, comprehending all the particulars specified afterwards; it includes not only the animal sacrifices, but likewise the inanimate oblations, termed meat offerings.

10 In the most holy place, &c.] i. e. The court of the tabernacle, which was termed "most holy," in respect of the camp.

19 A covenant of salt, &c.] i. e. A firm and inviolable covenant, or one that shall continue as long as the dispensation lasts. A perpetual covenant was termed "a covenant of salt," because salt is of a preserving nature. It was a symbol of friendship and fidelity. Perhaps it was usual, in all solemn covenants which were confirmed by sacrifice, to offer salt with the sacrifice, to denote the perpetuity of the covenant.

20 Neither shalt thou have any part among them: I am thy part, &c.] So ample was the provision made for the priests, that their proportion, without any share of the land of Canaan, upon computation, will be found to have been far richer than that of any other persons.

23 Shall bear their iniquity, &c.] i. e. The effect or consequent punishment of their iniquity.

Before CHRIST 1471. 21 ¶ And, behold, I have given the children of Levi all the tenth in Israel for an inheritance for their service which they serve, even the service of the tabernacle of the congregation.

22 Neither must the children of Israel henceforth come nigh the tabernacle of the congregation, lest they bear sin, and die.

23 But the Levites shall do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation, and they shall bear their iniquity: it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations, that among the children of Israel, they have no inheritance.

24 But the tithes of the children of Israel, which they offer as an heave offering unto the LORD, I have given the Levites to inherit: therefore I have said unto them, Among the children of Israel they shall have no inheritance.

25 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

26 Thus speak unto the Levites, and say unto them, When ye take of the children of Israel the tithes which I have given you from them for your inheritance, then ye shall offer up an heave offering of it for the LORD, even a tenth part of the tribe.

27 And this your heave offering shall be reckoned unto you, as though it were the corn of the threshing floor, and as the fulness of the winepress.

28 Thus ye also shall offer an heave offering unto the LORD of all your tithes, which ye receive of the children of Israel; and ye shall give thereof the LORD's heave offering to Aaron the priest.

29 Out of all your gifts ye shall offer every heave offering of the LORD, of all the best thereof, even the hallowed part thereof out of it.

30 Therefore thou shalt say unto them, When ye have heaved the best thereof from it, then it shall be counted unto the Levites as the increase of the threshing-floor, and as the increase of the winepress.

31 And ye shall eat it in every place, ye and your households: for it is your reward for your service in the tabernacle of the congregation.

32 And ye shall bear no sin by reason of it, when ye have heaved from it the best of it: neither shall ye pollute the holy things of the children of Israel, lest ye die.

CHAP. XIX.

1 The water of separation made of the ashes of a red heifer. 11 The law for the use of it in purification of the unclean.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

2 This is the ordinance of the law, which the LORD hath commanded, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel, that they bring thee a red heifer without spot, wherein is no blemish, and upon which never came yoke:

3 And

31 In every place, &c.] i. e. At their own houses, or wherever it was agreeable.

32 Lest ye die.] It is in the Hebrew. Nor shall ye eat: as they did, who intermeddled with those sacred things which God had reserved for his ministers.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XVIII.

By God's regulating the offices of the priests and Levites, and providing for their subsistence, we are taught, that all things ought to be done in the church according to order; that provision should be made in the church, for the maintenance of the pastors, and those that serve in it; and that if the Jews were obliged to give the tithes and first fruits, &c. for the maintenance of the priests, Christians also are no less obliged to devote some part of their goods to the service of God, of the poor, and to other holy uses.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XIX.

2 A red heifer, &c.] According to the original, the word properly signifies, A young cow, between the age of a calf and an heifer; one that is not past three years old, and which has not yet felt the yoke. The reason why a heifer was required for this sacrifice, was probably in opposition to the superstition of the Egyptians, who, though they offered bullocks in sacrifice, yet held cows in great veneration.

Before CHRIST 1471. 3 And ye shall give her unto Eleazar the priest, that he may bring her forth without the camp, and she shall slay her before his face :

4 And Eleazar the priest shall take of her blood with his finger, and sprinkle of her blood directly before the tabernacle of the congregation seven times :

5 And one shall burn the heifer in his sight ; her skin, and her flesh, and her blood, with her dung, shall he burn :

6 And the priest shall take cedar wood, and hyssop, and scarlet, and cast it into the midst of the burning of the heifer.

7 Then the priest shall wash his clothes, and he shall bathe his flesh in water, and afterward he shall come into the camp, and the priest shall be unclean until the even.

8 And he that burneth her shall wash his clothes in water, and bathe his flesh in water, and shall be unclean until the even.

9 And a man that is clean shall gather up the ashes of the heifer, and lay them up without the camp in a clean place, and it shall be kept for the congregation of the children of Israel for a water of separation : it is a purification for sin.

10 And he that gathereth the ashes of the heifer shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even : and it shall be unto the children of Israel, and unto the stranger that sojourneth among them, for a statute for ever.

11 ¶ He that toucheth the dead body of any man shall be unclean seven days.

12 He shall purify himself with it on the third day, and on the seventh day he shall be clean : but if he purify not himself the third day, then the seventh day he shall not be clean.

13 Whosoever toucheth the dead body of any man that is dead, and purifieth not himself, defileth the tabernacle of the LORD ; and that soul shall be cut off from Israel : because the water of separation was not sprinkled upon him, he shall be unclean ; his uncleanness is yet upon him.

14 This is the law, when a man dieth in a tent : all that come into the tent, and all that is in the tent, shall be unclean seven days.

15 And every open vessel, which hath no covering bound upon it, is unclean.

16 And whosoever toucheth one that is slain with a sword in the open fields, or a dead body, or a bone of a man, or a grave, shall be unclean seven days.

17 And for an unclean person they shall take of the ashes of the burnt heifer of purification for sin, and running water shall be put thereto in a vessel :

18 And a clean person shall take hyssop, and dip it in the water, and sprinkle it upon the tent, and upon all the vessels, and upon the persons that were there, and upon him that touched a bone, or one slain, or one dead, or a grave :

19 And the clean person shall sprinkle upon the unclean on the third day, and on the seventh day : and on the seventh day he shall purify himself, and wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and shall be clean at even.

20 But the man that shall be unclean, and shall not purify himself, that soul shall be cut off from among the congregation, because he hath defiled the sanctuary of the LORD : the water of separation hath not been sprinkled upon him ; he is unclean.

21 And it shall be a perpetual statute unto them, that he that sprinkleth the water of separation shall wash his clothes ; and he that toucheth the water of separation shall be unclean until even.

22 And whatsoever the unclean person toucheth shall be unclean ; and the soul that toucheth it shall be unclean until even.

CHAP. XX.

1 The children of Israel come to Zin, where Miriam dieth.

2 They murmur for want of water. 7 Moses smiting the rock bringeth forth water. 12 God is displeased with Moses and Aaron at Meribah. 14 Moses at Kadesh desireth a passage through Edom, which is denied. 22 At mount Hor Aaron resigneth his place to Eleazar, and dieth.

THEN came the children of Israel, even the whole congregation, into the desert of Zin in the first month : and the people abode in Kadesh ; and Miriam died there, and was buried there. 1453.

2 ¶ And there was no water for the congregation : and they gathered themselves together against Moses and against Aaron.

3 And the people chode with Moses, and spake, saying, Would God that we had died when our brethren died before the LORD !

4 And why have ye brought up the congregation of the LORD into this wilderness, that we and our cattle should die there ?

5 And wherefore have ye made us to come up out of Egypt, to bring us into this evil place ? it is no place of seed, or of figs, or of vines, or of pomegranates ; neither is there any water to drink.

6 And Moses and Aaron went from the presence of the assembly unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and they fell upon their faces : and the glory of the LORD appeared unto them.

7 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

8 Take the rod, and gather thou the assembly together, thou, and Aaron thy brother, and speak ye unto

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XX.

1 Then came the children of Israel—into the desert of Zin, in the first month] Now the people having wandered in the wilderness, near forty years, and that generation of murmurers being almost extinct, they are again brought back to Kadesh. It is probable during that period there were no new laws delivered.

Miriam died there, and was buried there.] Miriam was sister of Moses and Aaron, and daughter of Amram and Jochebed ; she was born about ten or twelve years before Moses, and about the year of the world 2424, and was probably about ten or twelve years of age at the time her brother was exposed upon the banks of the Nile, where she was watching when Pharaoh's daughter found him. She was enlightened with the supernatural gift of prophecy, as she herself insinuates, chap. xii. 2. She died in the first month of the fortieth year after the Israelites left Egypt.

2 There was no water for the congregation] Now the water which had hitherto supplied them from Horeb, failed ; intimating that they were now to quit the wilderness, and be introduced into the land of promise, a land abounding with rivers and springs.

And they gathered themselves together against Moses and against Aaron.] Notwithstanding this new generation had so evidently seen the accomplishment of the divine judgments threatened to their parents, who were now almost all dead ; yet the pain of thirst threw them into the very same sin of mutinying and murmuring.

8 Assembly, &c.] We must suppose this to be the whole concourse of the congregation of the people.

X x

10 Hear

3 Ye shall give her unto Eleazar, &c.] If the high-priest had been employed in the following work, he would have been defiled ; a thing which he was carefully to avoid ; but it was an affair of great concern, it was to be performed by one next in dignity to Aaron.

9 A water of separation : it is a purification for sin.] Long has it been a matter of dispute, why this water, mixed with the ashes of a red heifer, should purify the unclean, and yet pollute not only those who assisted at the slaying, burning, or gathering the ashes of it ; but even those who sprinkled the unclean person with it. This sacrifice was a type of Christ, who of much greater efficacy towards the purifying and sanctifying of men, than that of bulls and goats, the ashes of a heifer, or any other legal sacrifice. See Heb. xiii. 11, 12, and ix. 13.

20 That soul shall be cut off, &c.] By neglecting the purification prescribed, the ceremonial pollution became a mortal guilt, for which the offender was to be cut off. It is a dangerous thing to despise divine institutions, how inconsiderable soever they may seem.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XIX.

The red colour of the heifer may serve to denote the heinous nature of sin and rebellion against God, and setting his commands at defiance. As the sins of the people could not be expiated without blood, that circumstance may direct our view to the efficacy of the blood of Christ, which cleanseth from all sin ; and that God commanded the children of Israel to avoid external impurity by touching an infected person, so we should carefully avoid the conversation of such persons who would tend to corrupt our morals.

Before CHRIST 1453. unto the rock before their eyes; and it shall give forth his water, and thou shalt bring forth to them water out of the rock: so thou shalt give the congregation and their beasts drink.

9 And Moses took the rod from before the LORD as he commanded him.

10 And Moses and Aaron gathered the congregation together before the rock, and he said unto them, Hear now, ye rebels; must we fetch you water out of this rock?

11 And Moses lifted up his hand, and with his rod he smote the rock twice: and the water came out abundantly, and the congregation drank, and their beasts also.

12 And the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron, Because ye believed me not, to sanctify me in the eyes of the children of Israel, therefore ye shall not bring this congregation into the land which I have given them.

13 This is the water of Meribah; because the children of Israel strove with the LORD, and he was sanctified in them.

14 ¶ And Moses sent messengers from Kadesh unto the king of Edom, Thus saith thy brother Israel, Thou knowest all the travel that hath befallen us:

15 How our fathers went down into Egypt, and we have dwelt in Egypt a long time; and the Egyptians vexed us, and our fathers:

16 And when we cried unto the LORD, he heard our voice, and sent an angel, and hath brought us forth out of Egypt: and, behold, we are in Kadesh, a city in the uttermost of thy border:

17 Let us pass, I pray thee, through thy country: we will not pass through the fields, or through the vineyards, neither will we drink of the water of the wells: we will go by the king's high way, we will not turn to the right hand nor to the left, until we have passed thy borders.

18 And Edom said unto him, Thou shalt not pass by me, lest I come out against thee with the sword.

19 And the children of Israel said unto him, We will go by the high way: and if I and my cattle drink of thy water, then I will pay for it: I will only, without doing any thing else, go through on my feet. Before CHRIST 1453.

20 And he said, Thou shalt not go through. And Edom came out against him with much people, and with a strong hand.

21 Thus Edom refused to give Israel passage through his border: wherefore Israel turned away from him.

22 ¶ And the children of Israel, even the whole congregation, journeyed from Kadesh, and came unto mount Hor.

23 And the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron in mount Hor, by the coast of the land of Edom, saying,

24 Aaron shall be gathered unto his people: for he shall not enter into the land which I have given unto the children of Israel, because ye rebelled against my word at the water of Meribah.

25 Take Aaron and Eleazar his son, and bring them up unto mount Hor:

26 And strip Aaron of his garments, and put them upon Eleazar his son: and Aaron shall be gathered unto his people, and shall die there.

27 And Moses did as the LORD commanded: and they went up into mount Hor in the sight of all the congregation.

28 And Moses stripped Aaron of his garments, and put them upon Eleazar his son; and Aaron died there in the top of the mount: and Moses and Eleazar came down from the mount.

29 And when all the congregation saw that Aaron was dead, they mourned for Aaron thirty days, even all the house of Israel.

Sundry journeys of the Israelites, with their song on finding water. 21 Sihon is overcome, 33 and Og.

2 And Israel vowed a vow unto the LORD, and said, If

10 Hear now, ye rebels; must we fetch you water out of this rock? To this passage it is the Psalmist seems to allude, where he says of Moses, that "he spoke unadvisedly with his lips," Psalm cvi. 33. Perhaps he might be guilty of arrogating too much to himself and Aaron on this occasion; for he says, without mentioning God, "must we fetch you water out of this rock?" as if they could do it by their own power.

11 And Moses lifted up his hand, and with his rod he smote the rock twice, &c.] Moses not waiting at all for the eruption of the water upon the first stroke, had somewhat the appearance of impatience; add to which, that this behaviour was in public, in the sight of the Israelites, to whom Moses and Aaron were designed to be examples of faith, patience, meekness, and hope.

12 Because ye believed me not] i. e. they had a less degree of faith than was required, or than they ought to have had at this time; for it is evident they did not actually disbelieve, since they smote the rock, which was an intimation that they entertained some hope of the water flowing from thence, upon the sign given.

13 Shall not bring this congregation into the land, &c.] As Moses, the minister of the law, conducted the people through the wilderness to the borders of the promised land, but could not bring them into it, but Joshua put them into possession; so neither can the works of the law, or legal dispensation, put us in possession of heaven; it is our spiritual Joshua, or Jesus, only can do this.

13 Meribah] i. e. "strife or contention." In Deut. xxxii. 51. it is called Meribah Kadesh, to distinguish it from that other Meribah at Horeb, where the Israelites were guilty of the same crime, Exod. xvii. 7.

14 Moses sent messengers from Kadesh unto the king of Edom] In Deut. xx. 10. we read, "When thou comest nigh unto a city to fight against it, then proclaim peace unto it." On this text the Jews have founded a tradition, that the Israelites were obliged to send a herald, to offer peace to every city and people in their name, before they made any attempts to conquer it by the sword; if they accepted it, they became tributaries only; if not, they were devoted to destruction. The reason for sending this message was, because the nearest passage to the land of Canaan was through the country of Edom or Idumea.

Thus saith thy brother Israel, &c.] Moses, in his message, kindly reminds them of their relation and descent; the Edomites being the posterity of Esau, and the Israelites of Jacob, who were brothers.

20 Thou shalt not go through, &c.] Thus as Esau hated Jacob on account of his having obtained the blessing, so in his descendants that hatred now revived, when Jacob's posterity were just going to inherit that blessing.

22 Mount Hor.] Which mountain, or rather chain of mountains, was in the eastern border of the land of Edom, and was probably so named from Hori, the first possessor of it, Gen. xxxvi. 30.

24 Shall be gathered unto his people, &c.] Aaron is not cut off, it was usually expressed concerning those who died by the hand of justice; but he is gathered unto his people, as one who died in the arms of divine grace.

28 And Aaron died there in the top of the mount, &c.] He was born in the year of the world 2430: he was three years older than his brother. In point of dignity, he was considered next to him, being immediately appointed by God to exercise the office of priesthood in the tabernacle, and his sons for ever after him. He had four sons by his wife Elisheba, namely, Nadab and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar. He died in the arms of Moses his brother, and Eleazar his son, A. M. 2552, at the age of one hundred and twenty-three years, and was buried by Moses and his sons in a cave of this mountain.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XX.

We may remark, from this chapter, the many mercies the Israelites received from God, and the many chastisements inflicted on them for their murmurings: that God, nevertheless, gave them water after a wonderful manner; that Moses and Aaron were not permitted to enter the land of Canaan, through their unbelief; and that Aaron died about the same time: which represents to us, on the one hand, the hardness and incredulity of sinners, on whom neither mercies nor chastisements have any effect. We also learn, that God punishes the want of faith, even in the faithful themselves; and though he pardons their infirmities, he does not always exempt them from temporal punishments.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXI.

¶ And Israel vowed a vow, &c.] See Lev. xxviii. 29. This was that species of vow distinguished by the title of cherem. The devoting whole nations to destruction may, to the inconsiderate, appear cruel;

MOSES & the BRAZEN SERPENT

Num 21. C. 9. V.

Before CHRIST 1453. If thou wilt indeed deliver this people into my hand, then I will utterly destroy their cities.

3 And the LORD hearkened to the voice of Israel, and delivered up the Canaanites; and they utterly destroyed them and their cities: and he called the name of the place Hormah.

4 ¶ And they journeyed from mount Hor by the way of the Red sea, to compass the land of Edom: and the soul of the people was much discouraged because of the way.

5 And the people spake against God, and against Moses, Wherefore have ye brought us up out of Egypt to die in the wilderness? for there is no bread, neither is there any water; and our soul lotheth this light bread.

6 And the LORD sent fiery serpents among the people, and they bit the people; and much people of Israel died.

7 ¶ Therefore the people came to Moses, and said, We have sinned, for we have spoken against the LORD, and against thee; pray unto the LORD, that he take away the serpents from us. And Moses prayed for the people.

¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Make thee a fiery serpent, and set it upon a pole: and it shall come to pass, that every one that is bitten, when he looketh upon it, shall live.

9 And Moses made a serpent of brass, and put it upon a pole, and it came to pass, that if a serpent had bitten any man, when he beheld the serpent of brass, he lived.

10 ¶ And the children of Israel set forward, and pitched in Oboth.

11 And they journeyed from Oboth, and pitched at Ije-abarim, in the wilderness which is before Moab, toward the sunrising.

12 From thence they removed, and pitched in the valley of Zared.

13 From thence they removed and pitched on the other side of Arnon, which is in the wilderness that cometh out of the coasts of the Amorites: for Arnon is the border of Moab, between Moab and the Amorites.

1452. 14 Wherefore it is said in the book of the wars of the LORD, What he did in the Red sea, and in the brooks of Arnon.

15 And at the stream of the brooks that goeth down to the dwelling of Ar, and lieth upon the border of Moab.

16 And from hence they went to Beer: that is the well whereof the LORD spake unto Moses, Gather the people together, and I will give them water.

17 Then Israel sang this song, Spring up, O well; sing ye unto it:

Before CHRIST 1452. 18 The princes digged the well, the nobles of the people digged it, by the direction of the lawgiver, with their slaves. And from the wilderness they went to Mattanah.

19 And from Mattanah to Nahaliel: and from Nahaliel to Bamoth:

20 And from Bamoth in the valley, that is in the country of Moab, to the top of Pisgah, which looketh towards Jeshimon.

21 ¶ And Israel sent messages unto Sihon king of the Amorites, saying,

22 Let me pass through thy land: we will not turn into the fields, or into the vineyards; we will not drink of the waters of the well: but we will go along by the king's high way, until we be past thy borders.

23 And Sihon would not suffer Israel to pass through his border: but Sihon gathered all his people together, and went out against Israel in the wilderness: and he came to Jahaz, and fought against Israel.

24 And Israel smote him with the edge of the sword, and possessed his land from Arnon unto Jabok, even unto the children of Ammon: for the border of the children of Ammon was strong.

25 And Israel took all these cities: and Israel dwelt in all the cities of the Amorites, in Heshbon, and in all the villages thereof.

26 For Heshbon was the city of Sihon the king of the Amorites, who had fought against the former king of Moab, and taken all his land out of his hand, even unto Arnon.

27 Wherefore they that speak in proverbs say, Come into Heshbon, let the city of Sihon be built and prepared:

28 For there is a fire gone out of Heshbon, a flame from the city of Sihon: it hath consumed Ar of Moab, and the lords of the high places of Arnon.

29 Woe to thee, Moab! thou art undone, O people of Chemosh: he hath given his sons that escaped, and his daughters, into captivity unto Sihon king of the Amorites.

30 We have shot at them; Heshbon perished even unto Dibon, and we have laid them waste even unto Nophah, which reacheth unto Medeba.

31 Thus Israel dwelt in the land of the Amorites.

32 And Moses sent to spy out Jaazer, and they took the villages thereof, and drove out the Amorites that were there.

33 ¶ And they turned and went up by the way of Bashan: and Og the king of Bashan went out against them, he, and all his people, to the battle at Edrei.

34 And the LORD said unto Moses, Fear him not: for 9 And Moses made a serpent of brass] i. e. A figure of the shaph, the serpent above-mentioned.

When he beheld the serpent of brass, he lived.] From God alone this healing virtue was derived, who was pleased in this manner to display his great power, to make the Israelites sensible that those serpents were sent by him; and that if he was their enemy, he could employ any instrument to their destruction, and if their friend, he could provide a remedy for the worst of evils.

24 Israel smote him with the edge of the sword, &c.] Now the Amalekites were become irreclaimably wicked, and had "filled up the measure of their iniquity," the Almighty gave them up to national destruction, according to his prediction, Deut. xxxiii. 34.

27 They that speak in proverbs] i. e. Those who speak or write in a lofty or figurative style, such as the following poem appears to be, which was the composition of some ancient poet among the Amorites, Sihon's victory over the Moabites.

Come into Heshbon, let the city of Sihon be built, &c.] i. e. Let Heshbon now become the city of Sihon, and be made fit for his royal seat.

28 For there is a fire gone out of Heshbon, &c.] Here the poet rises into raptures, and prophesies the conquest of the whole country, by the desolating army of Sihon marching out of Heshbon.

29 O people of Chemosh, &c.] This name he calls the Moabites, in account of their worshipping the god Chemosh, Kings xi. 7. Chemosh is understood to be the sun.

33 Bashan] Which mountain is much celebrated in scripture, for its rich pastures, excellent breed of cattle, and stately oaks.

GENERAL

yet it should be remembered, that these nations had grown so abandoned in vice, that they had already provoked God to denounce their extermination, in order to vindicate his own attributes, and prevent their example from proving contagious.

3 Hormah.] i. e. "Utter destruction." See note on chap. xiv. 45.

5 There is no bread, neither is there any water, &c.] Their ungovernable rage caused them to utter falsehoods; for they had both, being fed with manna from heaven, and supplied with water from the rock.

6 The Lord sent fiery serpents among the people, &c.] We are informed by the sacred historian, that they were exceedingly numerous in this place, Deut. viii. 15. and as we have not met with any instance of their proving fatal in the preceding part of this history, we must suppose that the Israelites were hitherto preserved from their rage by an extraordinary providence, which being suspended on account of their crimes, they were exposed to the attacks of these creatures. It was now in the heat of summer, when creatures of this kind are naturally most venomous, and they raised such fires and sudden inflammations wheresoever they fell, as occasioned death in some of the guilty, and violent pains in all.

8 Make thee a fiery serpent] The Jews here held it a matter of great surprise and perplexity, why God, who had forbidden all manner of images, should upon this occasion command one to be made; but had they known the nature of Christ's sufferings, they would have quickly perceived that it was an eminent type of his crucifixion.

Before CHRIST 1452. for I have delivered him into thy hand, and all his people, and his land; and thou shalt do to him as thou didst unto Sihon king of the Amorites, which dwelt at Heshbon.

35 So they smote him, and his sons, and all his people, until there was none left him alive: and they possessed his land.

C H A P. XXII.

1 The Israelites encamp in the plains of Moab. ■ Balak's first message for Balaam is refused. 15 His second message prevaileth. 22 An angel opposeth Balaam on the way; his as's seeth the angel, and endeavoureth to avoid him; Balaam smiteth the as's; God openeth the as's mouth; the angel reproveth Balaam, but suffereth him to proceed on his journey. 36 Balak goeth out to meet him.

AND the children of Israel set forward, and pitched in the plains of Moab on this side Jordan by Jericho.

2 ¶ And Balak the son of Zippor saw all that Israel had done to the Amorites.

■ And Moab was sore afraid of the people, because they were many: and Moab was distressed because of the children of Israel.

4 And Moab said unto the elders of Midian, Now shall this company lick up all that are round about us, as the ox licketh up the grass of the field. And Balak the son of Zippor was king of the Moabites at that time.

5 He sent messengers therefore unto Balaam the son of Beor to Pethor, which is by the river of the land of the children of his people, to call him, saying, Behold, there is a people come out of Egypt: behold, they cover the face of the earth and they abide over against me:

■ Come now, therefore, I pray thee, curse me this people; for they are too mighty for me: peradventure I shall prevail, that we may smite them, and that I may drive them out of the land: for I wot that he whom thou blestest is blessed, and he whom thou curstest is cursed.

7 And the elders of Moab and the elders of Midian departed with the rewards of divination in their hands; and they came unto Balaam, and spake unto him the words of Balak.

■ And he said unto them, Lodge here this night, and I will bring you word again, as the LORD shall Before CHRIST 1452. speak unto me: and the princes of Moab abode with Balaam.

9 And God came unto Balaam, and said, What men are these with thee?

10 And Balaam said unto God, Balak the son of Zippor, king of Moab, hath sent unto me, saying,

11 Behold, there is a people come out of Egypt, which covereth the face of the earth: come now, curse them; peradventure I shall be able to overcome them, and drive them out.

12 And God said unto Balaam, Thou shalt not go with them; thou shalt not curse the people: for they are blessed.

13 And Balaam rose up in the morning, and said unto the princes of Balak, Get you into your land: for the LORD refuseth to give me leave to go with you.

14 And the princes of Moab rose up, and they went unto Balak, and said, Balaam refuseth to come with us.

15 ¶ And Balak sent yet again princes, more, and more honourable than they.

16 And they came to Balaam, and said to him, Thus saith Balak the son of Zippor, Let nothing, I pray thee, hinder thee from coming unto me:

17 For I will promote thee unto very great honour, and I will do whatsoever thou sayest unto me: come therefore, I pray thee, curse me this people.

18 And Balaam answered and said unto the servants of Balak, If Balak would give me his house full of silver and gold, I cannot go beyond the word of the LORD my God, to do less or more.

19 Now therefore, I pray you, tarry ye also here this night, that I may know what the LORD will say unto me more.

20 And God came unto Balaam at night, and said unto him, If the men come to call thee, rise up, and go with them; but yet the word which I shall say unto thee, that shalt thou do.

21 And Balaam rose up in the morning, and saddled his as's, and went with the princes of Moab.

■ And God's anger was kindled because he went: and the angel of the LORD stood in the way for an adversary against him. Now he was riding upon his as's, and his two servants were with him.

23 And the as's saw the angel of the LORD standing in the way, and his sword drawn in his hand: and the as's turned aside out of the way, and went into the field: and Balaam smote the as's, to turn her into the way.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXI.

The defeat of the kings mentioned in this chapter indicates a beginning of the accomplishment of those promises that God had made to the children of Israel, that he would give them the land of Canaan, even whilst Moses lived. From the history of the fiery serpents ■ may observe the punishment of the Israelites for their frequent murmurings; and also the wonderful manner by which the people were healed of the bite of those serpents; but, above all, this history ought to lead our minds to Christ, the great antitype, who died on the cross to expiate sin.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXII.

1 In the plains of Moab, &c.] The plains so called formerly belonged to Moab, but were now in the possession of the Amorites: they lay opposite to the fords of Jordan; that river flowing between them and the town of Jericho.

4 Moab said unto the elders of Midian] i. e. By his messengers, whom he sent unto the kings and princes of Midian, inviting them to join with him as confederates against the Israelites, whom he represented ■ their common enemy.

As the ox licketh up the grass of the field, &c.] He shewed by this metaphor with what ease the Israelites would conquer them, and what an universal desolation they would make, in case they did ■ meet with timely opposition.

5 He sent messengers therefore unto Balaam, &c.] We find that the scripture expressly calls Balaam ■ prophet; and some are of opinion, that he had been ■ good man, till loving the wages of unrighteousness, he apostatized from God; and, betaking himself ■ idolatry, fell under the delusion of Satan.

6 Curse me this people, &c.] Many of the wisest nations among the heathens believed the persons of their prophets ■ be in such great esteem with the gods, that they would listen to, and ratify their benedictions or execrations; and that such had effect not only on private persons, but even whole communities.

9 God came unto Balaam, &c.] i. e. God manifested his will to him by an angel, ver. 23.

12 They are blessed.] i. e. They are under the protection of heaven, and no imprecations against them will avail.

18 If Balak would give me his house full of silver and gold, &c.] Thus far his regard to the divine command had some ascendancy over his covetousness and ambition; but yet those passions were not intirely subdued, since the next words shew, he would have gratified them, if he could by any ■ have satisfied his conscience.

19 Tarry ye also here this night, &c.] Now the iniquity of his heart began to disclose itself: he had ■ avaricious eye on the tempting rewards, and therefore hinted to the messengers, that there ■ some hope upon his intercessions, that the counsels of heaven might be altered; and that the unchangeable Being might possibly recede from his former decree.

■ If the ■ come to call thee, rise up and go with them] Balaam would not hearken to the voice of God, and so was left to perish by his own devices; and was, with the princes of Moab, slain by the Israelites, Job. xiii. 22.

But yet the word which I shall say unto thee, that shalt thou do.] We ■ to understand by this, that he might go with the messengers of Balak, provided they did not require him to do any thing contrary to what God had before commanded him.

21 Balaam rose up in the morning, &c.] Balaam's great haste betrayed the inclinations of his heart, shewed how much he hankered after the wages of unrighteousness, and discovered his wicked intention of cursing the Israelites.

22 God's anger ■ kindled because he went, &c.] i. e. Because he went voluntarily, and waited ■ for the messengers to call him; in ■ probability, he set out with an intention to curse Israel, according ■ the earnest desire of Balak.

23 The as's saw the angel—and—turned aside out of the way, &c.] The as's was terrified, it seems, by the dazzling appearance of the angel; which yet the eye of Balaam did not perceive, being blinded

^{Before CHRIST 1452.} 24 But the angel of the Lord stood in a path of the vineyards, ■ wall being on this side, and a wall on that side.

25 And when the asss saw the angel of the Lord, she thrust herself unto the wall, and crushed Balaam's foot against the wall: and he smote her again.

26 And the angel of the Lord went further, and stood in a narrow place, where was no way to turn either to the right hand or to the left.

27 And when the asss saw the angel of the Lord, she fell down under Balaam: and Balaam's anger was kindled, and he smote the asss with a staff.

28 And the Lord opened the mouth of the asss, and she said unto Balaam, What have I done unto thee, that thou hast smitten me these three times?

29 And Balaam said unto the asss, Because thou hast mocked me: I would there were a sword in mine hand, for now would I kill thee.

30 And the asss said unto Balaam, Am not I thine ass, upon which thou hast ridden ever since I was thine unto this day? was I ever wont to do so unto thee? And he said, Nay.

31 Then the Lord opened the eyes of Balaam, and he saw the angel of the Lord standing in the way, and his sword drawn in his hand: and he bowed down his head, and fell flat on his face.

32 And the angel of the Lord said unto him, Wherefore hast thou smitten thine ass these three times? behold, I went out to withstand thee, because thy way is perverse before me:

33 And the ass saw me, and turned from me these three times: unless she had turned from me, surely now also I had slain thee, and saved her alive.

34 And Balaam said unto the angel of the Lord, I have sinned; for I knew not that thou stoodest in the way against me: now therefore, if it displease thee, I will get me back again.

35 And the angel of the Lord said unto Balaam, Go with the men: but only the word that I shall speak unto thee, that thou shalt speak. So Balaam went with the princes of Balak.

36 ¶ And when Balak heard that Balaam was come, he went out to meet him unto a city of Moab, which is in the border of Arnon, which is in the utmost coast.

37 And Balak said unto Balaam, Did I not earnestly send unto thee to call thee? wherefore camest thou not unto me? am I not able indeed to promote thee to honour?

blinded with the glare of filthy lucre, with bribery and corruption; and having his head and heart filled with the greatest expectations from Balak.

28 Opened the mouth of the ass, &c.] Probably the end of this extraordinary miracle was, to shew the mercenary prophet, that his passions had blinded and stupified him; that he had not even the sense and discernment of a brute, and that it would be a dangerous and vain attempt for him to proceed to prevaricate, and not to say to Balak what God should put in his mouth.

29 Balaam said unto the ass] Possibly Balaam might not regard or attend to the wonder through excess of rage or madness; and his threatening to kill the beast implies that his passion was downright frenzy, and the behaviour of a man quite beside himself, who, though awake, had not the proper use of his faculties.

Because thou hast mocked me, &c.] i. e. exposed me to scorn.

31 The Lord opened the eyes of Balaam] This was done either by presenting the angel to his view, who was concealed before; or else by awakening his attention, so as that he might take notice of the angel, whom he had not hitherto perceived.

He bowed down his head, and fell flat on his face.] i. e. Through fear and astonishment.

35 Go with the men, &c.] Thus a man of so covetous a disposition as Balaam, not daring to imprecate evil against the Israelites, though prompted by the greatest rewards, was a sufficient token and assurance to the Moabites, that they were the peculiar care of Providence.

39 Kirjath-huzoth.] It is in the Hebrew, The city of stones, or of many stones. Perhaps it was another name for Ar, the metropolis of Moab.

41 Balak took Balaam, and brought him up into the high places of Baal, &c.] "Baal" signifies Lord; and was a name given many different deities, both male and female.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXII.

From the conduct of Balaam, we may infer, that covetous men will

^{Before CHRIST 1452.} 38 And Balaam said unto Balak, Lo, I am come unto thee: have I now any power at all to say any thing? the word that God putteth in my mouth, that shall I speak.

39 And Balaam went with Balak, and they came unto Kirjath-huzoth.

40 And Balak offered oxen and sheep, and sent to Balaam, and to the princes that were with him.

41 And it came to pass on the morrow, that Balak took Balaam, and brought him up into the high places of Baal, that thence he might see the utmost part of the people.

CHAP. XXIII.

1 Balak's sacrifice. 7 Balaam's first parable. 14 Balak sacrificeth again. 18 Balaam's second parable. 25 Balak is displeased with Balaam; but bringeth him to the top of Peor, and sacrificeth there.

AND Balaam said unto Balak, Build me here seven altars, and prepare me here seven oxen and seven rams.

2 And Balak did as Balaam had spoken; and Balak and Balaam offered on every altar a bullock and a ram.

3 And Balaam said unto Balak, Stand by thy burnt offering, and I will go: peradventure the Lord will come to meet me: and whatsoever he sheweth me I will tell thee. And he went to an high place.

4 And God met Balaam: and he said unto him, I have prepared seven altars, and I have offered upon every altar a bullock and a ram.

5 And the Lord put a word in Balaam's mouth, and said, Return unto Balak, and thus thou shalt speak.

6 And he returned unto him, and, lo, he stood by his burnt sacrifice, he, and all the princes of Moab.

7 ¶ And he took up his parable, and said, Balak the king of Moab hath brought me from Aram, out of the mountains of the east, saying, Come, curse me Jacob, and come, defy Israel.

8 How shall I curse, whom God hath not cursed? or how shall I defy, whom the Lord hath not defied?

9 For from the top of the rocks I see him, and from the hills I behold him: lo, the people shall dwell alone, and shall not be reckoned among the nations.

10 Who can count the dust of Jacob, and the number of the fourth part of Israel? Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his!

11 And Balak said unto Balaam, What hast thou done even act against the dictates of their consciences, to gratify their avarice; but that God can effectually employ the meanest instruments to stop their mad career, especially when they are bent on the destruction of the people of the Most High. From Balaam's being ordered to continue his journey when he would have returned, we may learn, that God accepts of no forced obedience, which proceeds from fear; and that when sinners embark in undertakings contrary to his, he will produce a quite contrary effect from their evil designs, by making it appear that he will be always master, and cause them to bring about his purposes, even against their own minds.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXIII.

1 Seven altars and seven rams.] According to the religious rites, these sacrifices were observed in worshipping the God of Israel.

3 He went to an high place.] It is in the margin, He went solitarily, or into the most retired part of the grove; for he was already an high place.

7 His parable, &c.] i. e. his prophetic speech.

8 How shall I curse, &c.] i. e. How can I perform an impossibility, and curse those whom God Almighty has determined to bless.

9 The people shall dwell alone, &c.] i. e. shall be separated from all other nations, by laws, religion, and manners peculiar to themselves.

10 Who can count the dust of Jacob?] This is in the Septuagint, Who can count the seed of Jacob? A people like the dust in multitude.

Let me die the death of the righteous] Thus he vainly wishes to die like those who were in the favour of God, after having enjoyed a prosperous, if not wicked, life in this world.

Let my last end be like his.] According to the Hebrew, "last end," properly signifies, a future state after death. The desire of Balaam, therefore, is a striking proof that a future state was generally believed and acknowledged in those early and remote days.

Before CHRIST 1452. done unto me? I took thee to curse mine enemies; and, behold, thou hast blessed them altogether.

12 And he answered and said, Must I not take heed to speak that which the LORD hath put in my mouth?

13 And Balak said unto him, Come, I pray thee, with me unto another place, from whence thou mayest see them: thou shalt see but the utmost part of them, and shalt not see them all: and curse me them from thence.

14 ¶ And he brought him into the field of Zophim, to the top of Pisgah, and built seven altars, and offered a bullock and a ram on every altar.

15 And he said unto Balak, Stand here by thy burnt offering, while I meet the LORD yonder.

16 And the LORD met Balaam, and put a word in his mouth, and said, Go again unto Balak, and say thus.

17 And when he came to him, behold, he stood by his burnt offering, and the princes of Moab with him. And Balak said unto him, What hath the LORD spoken?

18 ¶ And he took up his parable, and said, Rise up, Balak, and hear; hearken unto me, thou son of Zippor:

19 God is not a man, that he should lie; neither the son of man, that he should repent: hath he said, and shall he not do it? or hath he spoken, and shall he not make it good?

20 Behold, I have received commandment to bless: and he hath blessed; and I cannot reverse it.

21 He hath not beheld iniquity in Jacob, neither hath he seen perverseness in Israel: the LORD his God is with him, and the shout of a king is among them.

22 God brought them out of Egypt; he hath as it were the strength of an unicorn.

23 Surely there is no enchantment against Jacob, neither is there any divination against Israel: according to this time it shall be said of Jacob and of Israel, What hath God wrought!

24 ¶ Behold, the people shall rise up as a great lion, and lift up himself as a young lion: he shall not lie down until he eat of the prey, and drink the blood of the slain.

25 ¶ And Balak said unto Balaam, Neither curse them at all, nor bless them at all.

26 But Balaam answered and said unto Balak,

14 The field of Zophim, &c.] i. e. the field of the watchmen, who were placed on the top of Pisgah, a very high mountain in the country of Moab, to give notice of an enemy's approach. It seems to have been a plain on the top of the mountain, where these watchmen were placed.

16 The Lord met Balaam, &c.] i. e. The Lord came to him personally, in a glorious manifestation of the Shechinah; which so amazed and confounded him, that he never afterwards went to enquire what he should say.

19 God is not a man that he should lie.] i. e. It is in vain for me to importune a Being, who is in his nature immutable, to reverse the blessings he has promised to Israel, or to curse those whom he hath said he will bless.

21 He hath not beheld iniquity in Jacob, &c.] This is rendered in the Vulgate, There is no idol in Jacob, neither is there any image seen in Israel. Intimating, that notwithstanding the Israelites might have been guilty of violating the divine laws in many instances, yet so long as they kept themselves from the worship of false gods, the true one whom they served, would preserve them from their enemies, and crown all their undertakings with success.

22 He hath as it were the strength of an unicorn.] Several commentators take the Hebrew word rem, translated "unicorn" for the rhinoceros; a creature which, from its make, and the structure of its body, appears to be the strongest of quadrupeds, the elephant excepted. Many think it signifies the algazel, a gazellus, a kind of mountain wild goat, of a considerable size, very common in Arabia.

23 There is no enchantment against Jacob, &c.] There are no imprecations whatever, uttered by a diviner, can affect a people who are under the immediate protection of the Almighty.

28 Balak brought Balaam to the top of Peor, &c.] Peor was the most famous eminence in all the country of Moab, where Baal is supposed to have had a temple, and was therefore called Baal-Peor.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXIII.

We may observe from this chapter, that though Balak used all

Before CHRIST 1452. Told not I thee, saying, All that the LORD speaketh, that I must do?

27 And Balak said unto Balaam, Come, I pray thee, I will bring thee unto another place; peradventure it will please God that thou mayest curse me them from thence.

28 And Balak brought Balaam unto the top of Peor, that looketh toward Jeshimon.

29 And Balaam said unto Balak, Build me here seven altars, and prepare me here seven bullocks and seven rams.

30 And Balak did as Balaam had said, and offered a bullock and a ram on every altar.

CHAP. XXIV.

1 Balaam, leaving divinations, prophesieth the happiness of Israel. 10 Balak in anger dismisseth him. 15 He prophesieth of the Star of Jacob, and the destruction of some nations.

AND when Balaam saw that it pleased the LORD to bless Israel, he went not, as at other times, to seek for enchantments, but he set his face toward the wilderness.

2 And Balaam lifted up his eyes, and he saw Israel abiding in his tents according to their tribes; and the spirit of God came upon him.

3 And he took up his parable, and said, Balaam the son of Beor hath said, and the man whose eyes are open hath said:

4 He hath said, which heard the words of God, which saw the vision of the Almighty, falling into a trance, but having his eyes open:

5 How goodly are thy tents, O Jacob, and thy tabernacles, O Israel!

6 As the valleys are they spread forth, as gardens by the river's side, as the trees of lign aloes which the LORD hath planted, and as cedar trees beside the waters.

7 He shall pour the water out of his buckets, and his seed shall be in many waters, and his king shall be higher than Agag, and his kingdom shall be exalted.

8 God brought him forth out of Egypt; he hath as it were the strength of an unicorn: he shall eat up the nations his enemies, and shall break their bones, and pierce them through with his arrows.

9 He

most endeavours to induce Balaam to curse the Israelites; and though the prophet, allured by the promises made him, was inclined to curse them, yet God did not permit him, but obliged him to bless them; by which we may learn, that God always rules over the wicked; that he does not suffer them to do his children the harm they desire; nay, that he makes use of them to do good to them; and that nothing can hurt those whom God blesses and favours.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXIV.

1 He went not, as at other times, to seek for enchantments, &c.] i. e. he did not use unwarrantable arts, as before.

3 And the man, whose eyes are open, hath said.] The words should be rendered, The man who had his eyes shut, but now open; alluding to his not seeing the angel.

4 Falling into a trance, but having his eyes open.] Or rather, "falling," and his eyes were opened; in allusion to what happened in the way.

6 As the valleys.] Seeing that the word nechalim signifies either brooks, or valleys, this sentence may be rendered, As streams of water they are extended. The imagery which composes this beautiful simile, conveys the highest degree of beauty, order, and utility.

As the trees of lign aloes, &c.] This tree (which is the common aloe) grows in Arabia and the East Indies, and diffuses a very fragrant odour.

7 He shall pour the water out of his buckets.] i. e. God shall bless them with plentiful harvests; which rain greatly contributes in those countries.

His seed shall be in many waters.] Or rather, by many waters; it shall be sown in a well watered ground, and produce a plentiful crop; probably implying the great increase of the Israelites.

His king shall be higher than Agag, &c.] Agag was a general name for the kings of the Amalekites; he was very powerful: but, says Balaam, "his king," i. e. Christ, the king of Israel, shall be higher than Agag; shall be exalted above all the kings of the earth.

8 Shall eat up, &c.] i. e. He shall utterly destroy or extirpate.

9 He

Before CHRIST 1452. ■ He couched, he lay down as ■ lion, and as a great lion: who shall stir him up? Blessed is he that blesteth thee, and cursed is he that curseth thee.

10 ¶ And Balak's anger was kindled against Balaam, and he smote his hands together: and Balak said unto Balaam, I called thee to curse mine enemies, and, behold, thou hast altogether blessed them these three times.

11 Therefore now flee thee to thy place: I thought to promote thee unto great honour: but, lo, the LORD hath kept thee back from honour.

12 And Balaam said unto Balak, Spake I not also to thy messengers which thou sentest unto me, saying,

13 If Balak would give me his house full of silver and gold, I cannot go beyond the commandment of the LORD, to do either good or bad of mine own mind; but what the LORD saith, that will I speak?

14 And now, behold, I go unto my people: come therefore and I will advertise thee what this people shall do to thy people in the latter days.

15 ¶ And he took up his parable, and said, Balaam the son of Beor hath said, and the man whose eyes are open hath said:

16 He hath said, which heard he words of God, and knew the knowledge of the most high, which saw the vision of the Almighty, falling into a trance, but having his eyes open:

17 I shall see him, but not now: I shall behold him, but not nigh: there shall come a Star out of Jacob, and a Scepter shall rise out of Israel, and shall smite the corners of Moab, and destroy all the children of Sheth.

18 And Edom shall be a possession, Seir also shall be a possession for his enemies; and Israel shall do valiantly.

19 Out of Jacob shall come he that shall have dominion, and shall destroy him that remaineth of the city.

20 And when he looked on Amalek, he took up his parable, and said, Amalek was the first of the nations; but his latter end shall be that he perish for ever.

21 And he looked on the Kenites, and took up

Before CHRIST 1452. his parable, and said, Strong is thy dwelling place, and thou puttest thy nest in a rock.

22 Nevertheless the Kenite shall be wasted, until Asshur shall carry thee away captive.

23 And he took up his parable, and said, Alas, who shall live when God doeth this!

24 And ships shall come from the coast of Chittim, and shall afflict Asshur, and shall afflict Eber, and he also shall perish for ever.

25 And Balaam rose up, and went and returned to his place: and Balak also went his way.

CHAP. XXV.

1 Israel at Shittim commit whoredom and idolatry. 6 Phinehas killeth Zimri and Cozbi. 10 God therefore giveth him an everlasting priesthood. 16 God commandeth Moses to vex the Midianites.

AND Israel abode in Shittim, and the people began to commit whoredom with the daughters of Moab.

2 And they called the people unto the sacrifices of their gods: and the people did eat, and bowed down to their gods.

3 And Israel joined himself unto Baal-peor: and the anger of the LORD was kindled against Israel.

4 And the LORD said unto Moses, Take all the heads of the people, and hang them up before the LORD against the sun, that the fierce anger of the LORD may be turned away from Israel.

5 And Moses said unto the judges of Israel, Slay ye every one his men that were joined unto Baal-peor.

6 ¶ And, behold, one of the children of Israel came and brought unto his brethren a Midianitish woman in the sight of Moses, and in the sight of all the congregation of the children of Israel, who were weeping before the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

7 And when Phinehas, the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest, saw it, he rose up from among the congregation, and took a javelin in his hand;

8 And he went after the man of Israel into the tent, and thrust both of them through, the man of Israel, and the 22 Nevertheless the Kenite shall be wasted, until Asshur shall carry thee away captive.] i. e. The power and number of the Kenites shall decline, till in the end they are carried away captive by the Assyrians.

23 Alas! who shall live when God doeth this!] i. e. Who shall escape the ravages of the Assyrians, when God shall permit them to over-run a great part of the world!

24 Ships shall come from the coast of Chittim] By Chittim we are to understand Greece, Gen. x. 4. This prophecy was fulfilled by Alexander the Great.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXIV.

These prophecies of Balaam import, that a great king should destroy the Moabites and the Edomites; that the Amalekites should likewise be destroyed; that the Kenites should be carried away into captivity by the Assyrians; that afterwards the Assyrians should be conquered by the people of Chittim, that is, by the Macedonians. These prophecies are all of them remarkable, because they foretel what was to happen several ages after to all those people.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXV.

1 Shittim] Shittim was in the plains of Moab.

The people began to commit whoredom with the daughters of Moab.] Balaam devised this mean stratagem to deprive the Israelites of the favour of the Almighty, and to bring them under a curse.

They called the people the sacrifices of their gods, &c.] The feasts following these sacrifices, were accompanied with music and dancing, which had a great tendency to inflame their carnal appetites, which these fair deluders would permit them to satisfy, till they had first consented to worship their idols.

4 Take all the heads of the people, and hang them up] It would be better thus, take all the heads of the people thy assistance, and hang them up; i. e. all those that have quitted God for Baal-peor.

Before the LORD] i. e. Before the sanctuary.

Against the sun, &c.] i. e. Openly and publicly.

5 Slay ye every one his men, &c.] It seems the judges were very dilatory in executing this order; seeing God himself thought proper to visit the principal offenders with exemplary punishment.

8 Thrust both of them through, &c.] Phinehas did this by the express

9 He couched, &c.] Signifying, that the Israelites should conquer the Canaanites, and settle in their land, and that all attempts to disturb them would prove ineffectual.

10 Smote his hands together, &c.] So to make a loud explosion. This was an expression of great anger and concern, Ezek. xxi. 17.

11 The LORD hath kept thee back from honour.] Signifying, that he had deprived himself of great advantages by being more solicitous of pleasing Jehovah, than Baal-peor.

14 Come—and I will advertise thee, &c.] Here Balaam probably gave to Balak that wicked politic counsel mentioned chap. xxi. 16.

17 I shall see him, but not now; I shall behold him, but not nigh.] The meaning of the passage is, I see him (the person of whom he is about to speak) though not yet in being: I behold him, though as yet afar off.

There shall come a Star out of Jacob, and a Sceptre shall arise out of Israel] This prophecy belongs principally to Christ: the metaphor here used of a star was of a mysterious kind, and is to be understood only relating to Christ, the eternal Son of God, who was the star seen by the eastern sages, Matt. ii. 2. and "the bright and morning star," Rev. xxii. 16.

Shall smite the corners of Moab.] i. e. Shall totally destroy the Moabites. It means, spiritually, Christ's glorious victory over the Gentiles, by captivating their minds to the love of goodness, and subduing their will and affections to the service of the true God.

And destroy all the children of Sheth.] It may reasonably be concluded, that not all mankind in general (as the words seem to imply) but some particular persons, were intended by "the children of Sheth." The Jerusalem Targum translates it, the sons of the east.

19 Out of Jacob shall come he that shall have dominion, &c.] This prophecy was fulfilled literally in David, and was spiritually accomplished in Christ.

26 Amalek was the first of the nations] They were possessed of these countries before the days of Abraham and Lot. See Gen. iv.

But his latter end shall be that he perish for ever.] This prediction was literally fulfilled by Saul. 1 Sam. xv. 18.

21 And he looked on the Kenites, &c.] By the Kenites we should understand the Midianites, Jethro's posterity, who is called the Kenite, Judges i. 16.

^{Before CHRIST 1452.} the woman through her belly. So the plague was stayed from the children of Israel.

9 And those that died in the plague were twenty and four thousand.

10 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

11 Phinehas, the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest, hath turned my wrath away from the children of Israel, while he was zealous for my sake among them, that I consumed not the children of Israel in my jealousy.

12 Wherefore say, Behold, I give unto him my covenant of peace:

13 And he shall have it, and his seed after him, even the covenant of an everlasting priesthood; because he was zealous for his God, and made an atonement for the children of Israel.

14 Now the name of the Israelite that was slain, even that was slain with the Midianitish woman, was Zimri, the son of Salu, a prince of a chief house among the Simconites.

15 And the name of the Midianitish woman that was slain was Cozbi, the daughter of Zur; he was head over a people, and of a chief house in Midian.

16 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

17 Vex the Midianites, and smite them:

18 For they vex you with their wives, wherewith they have beguiled you in the matter of Peor, and in the matter of Cozbi, the daughter of a prince of Midian, their sister, which was slain in the day of the plague for Peor's sake.

CHAP. XXVI.

1 The sum of all Israel is taken in the plains of Moab.

5 The families of Reuben; 12 Of Simcon; 15 Of Gad; 19 of Judah; 23 of Issachar; 26 of Zebulun; 28 of Manasseh; 35 of Ephraim; 38 of Benjamin; 42 of Dan; 44 of Asher; 48 of Naphtali. 52 The law of dividing among them the inheritance of the land. 57 The families and number of the Levites. 63 None were left of them who were numbered at Sinai, but Caleb and Joshua.

AND it came to pass after the plague, that the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest, saying,

2 Take the sum of all the congregation of the children of Israel, from twenty years old and upward, throughout their fathers' house, all that are able to go to war in Israel.

3 And Moses and Eleazar the priest spake with them in the plains of Moab by Jordan near Jericho, saying,

4 Take the sum of the people, from twenty years old and upward; as the LORD commanded Moses and the children of Israel, which went forth out of the land of Egypt.

5 ¶ Reuben, the eldest son of Israel: the children of Reuben; Hanoch, of whom cometh the family of the Hanochites: of Pallu, the family of the Palluites:

express command of Moses, the supreme magistrate, who ordered the judges of the people to fall upon those who had joined themselves to Baal-Peor, and slay every one his men, ver. 5.

9. [Those that died in the plague were twenty and four thousand.] In 1 Cor. x. 8. St. Paul mentions only twenty-three thousand, who fell in one day; whence it seems as if one thousand were slain by the judges, and twenty and three thousand by the hand of the Almighty.

11. [He was zealous for my sake, &c.] That is, he was jealous with my jealousy. Such was his zeal for the honour of God, and the national interest, he could not bear so notorious a breach of allegiance.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXV.

The sin committed by the Israelites with the Moabitish women, should warn us to resist with more eagerness the temptations of 61 And Nadab and Abihudied, when they offered strange fire before the Lord.

64 But among these there was not a man of them whom Moses and Aaron the priest numbered, when they numbered the children of Israel in the wilderness of Sinai.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ■ CHAP. XXVI.

God's care for his people was a great act of mercy ; he caused them to be numbered, in order to prevent disputes when they divided the land. Their number was nearly the same as it was forty years before ; upwards of six hundred thousand men, besides women and children, had died ; from which we may learn, what a heinous sin it is to murmur against God. Caleb and Joshua, the contrary, particularly mentioned, because they believed in the promise God had made, and were not afraid of the Canaanites.

EXPLANATORY

Before
CHRIST
1452.

THEN came the daughters of Zelophehad, the son of Hephher, the son of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, of the families of Manasseh the son of Joseph: and these are the names of his daughters; Mahlah, Noah, and Hoglah, and Milcah, and Tirzah.

2 And they stood before Moses, and before Eleazar the priest, and before the princes and all the congregation, by the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, saying,

Our father died in the wilderness, and he was not in the company of them that gathered themselves together against the LORD in the company of Korah; but died in his own sin, and had no sons.

4 Why should the name of our father be done away from among his family, because he hath no son? Give unto us therefore possession among the brethren of our father.

5 And Moses brought their cause before the LORD.

6 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

7 The daughters of Zelophehad speak right: thou shalt surely give them a possession of an inheritance among their father's brethren; and thou shalt cause the inheritance of their father to pass unto them.

8 And thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel, saying, If a man die, and have no son, then ye shall cause his inheritance to pass unto his daughter.

9 And if he have no daughter, then ye shall give his inheritance unto his brethren.

10 And if he have no brethren, then ye shall give his inheritance unto his father's brethren.

11 And if his father have no brethren, then ye shall give his inheritance unto his kinsman that is next to him of his family, and he shall possess it: and it shall be unto the children of Israel a statute of judgment, as the LORD commanded Moses.

12 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Get thee up into this mount Abarim, and see the land which I have given unto the children of Israel.

13 And when thou hast seen it, thou also shalt be gathered unto thy people, as Aaron thy brother was gathered.

14 For ye rebelled against my commandment in the desert of Zin, in the strife of the congregation, to sanctify me at the water before their eyes: that is the water of Meribah in Kadish in the wilderness of Zin.

15 ¶ And Moses spake unto the LORD, saying,

16 Let the LORD, the God of the spirits of all flesh, set a man over the congregation, 17 Which may go out before them, and which may go in before them, and which may lead them out, and which may bring them in; that the congregation of the LORD be not as sheep which have no shepherd.

18 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Take thee Joshua the son of Nun, a man in whom is the spirit, and lay thine hand upon him;

19 And set him before Eleazar the priest, and before all the congregation; and give him a charge in their sight.

20 And thou shalt put some of thine honour upon him, that all the congregation of the children of Israel may be obedient.

21 And he shall stand before Eleazar the priest, who shall ask counsel for him after the judgment of Urim before the LORD: at his word shall they go out, and at his word they shall come in, both he, and all the children of Israel with him, even all the congregation.

22 And Moses did as the LORD commanded him: and he took Joshua, and set him before Eleazar the priest, and before all the congregation:

23 And he laid his hands upon him, and gave him a charge, as the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXVII.

1 Then came the daughters of Zelophehad, &c. Who apprehending that, being females, they were to be excluded from all settled inheritance in the lands and estates of the country, drew up a representation of their case, and presented it to Moses, then in the great court of judicature at the tabernacle.

3 He died in his own sin, &c. i. e. he did not die as an associate in the rebellion, but as a common sinner, to whom death is due. His sin was personal, and therefore did not affect his children.

4 Why should the name of our father be done away? &c. As soon as any one's family was extinct, his name was rased out of the genealogical tables.

12 Get thee up into this mount Abarim, &c. It appears from Deut. xxxii. 49, that these words were spoken after all that follows in this book, and in Deuteronomy.

14 Ye rebelled, &c. Peruse chap. xx. ver. 12.

18 Take thee Joshua, the son of Nun Now as the high office of judge of Israel required a person of the most eminent qualifications, God appointed Joshua to succeed Moses, though he was not only of another family, but another tribe; viz. that of Ephraim.

Lay thine hand upon him, &c. By this ceremony, Moses transferred the public trust upon Joshua, which was delegated to him from God.

20 Put some of thine honour upon him, &c. Here Moses is ordered to permit Joshua to share with him immediately in the government, that the people might thereby have the greater respect for this his successor.

21 He shall stand before Eleazar the priest Which privilege shews the pre-eminence Joshua had above other Israelites, who, though not admitted to so near an intercourse with God as Moses, was nevertheless assured, he should not want direction from the oracle, in any doubt, by consulting the high priest, who was to receive the answer.

After the judgment of Urim, &c. Read note on Exod. xxviii. 30.

22 Moses did as the Lord commanded him, &c. Which shews him to have been governed by a principle of disinterestedness, which places him above all other law-givers, who generally took care to advance their own family.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXVII.

By the law concerning the daughters of Zelophehad, it appears that God designed to preserve the distinction of families and inheritances among the Jews, and that daughters should have their right; from whence we should learn to administer impartial justice to all, respecting property. The establishing Joshua in the place of Moses, is a token of God's love to his people; and shews us, that when he removes any of his servants from us, he usually raises up others to succeed them.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXVIII.

1 The Lord spake unto Moses, saying. As the stated sacrifices and service of the tabernacle had now for many years been very much interrupted by reason of the frequent and tedious journeys of the Israelites; God commands Moses to repeat them to the people in the following order, of daily, weekly, monthly, and anniversary sacrifices.

10 This is the burnt offering of every sabbath, beside the continual burnt offering, and his drink offering.

11 ¶ And in the beginnings of your months ye shall offer a burnt offering unto the LORD; two young bullocks, and one ram, seven lambs of the first year without spot;

12 And three tenth deals of flour for a meat offering, mingled with oil, for one bullock; and two tenth deals of flour for a meat offering, mingled with oil, for one ram;

13 And a several tenth deal of flour mingled with oil for a meat offering unto one lamb; for a burnt offering of a sweet savour, a sacrifice made by fire unto the LORD.

14 And their drink offerings shall be half an hin of wine unto a bullock, and the third part of an hin unto a ram, and a fourth part of an hin unto a lamb: this is the burnt offering of every month throughout the months of the year.

16 ¶ And in the fourteenth day of the first month is the passover of the LORD.

17 And in the fifteenth day of this month is the feast: seven days shall unleavened bread be eaten.

18 In the first day shall be an holy convocation; ye shall do no manner of servile work therein:

20 And their meat offering shall be of flour mingled with oil: three tenth deals shall ye offer for a bullock, and two tenth deals for a ram;

21 A several tenth deal shalt thou offer for every lamb, throughout the seven lambs:

22 And one goat for a sin offering, to make an atonement for you.

23 Ye shall offer these beside the burnt offering in the morning, which is for a continual burnt offering.

24 After this manner ye shall offer daily throughout the seven days, the meat of the sacrifice made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD: it shall be offered beside the continual burnt offering, and his drink offering.

25 And on the seventh day ye shall have an holy convocation; ye shall do no servile work.

Before CHRIST 1452. 26 ¶ Also in the day of the first fruits, when ye bring a new meat offering unto the LORD, after your weeks be out, ye shall have an holy convocation; ye shall do no servile work.

27 But ye shall offer the burnt offering for a sweet savour unto the LORD; two young bullocks, one ram, seven lambs of the first year;

28 And their meat offering of flour mingled with oil, three tenth deals unto one bullock, two tenth deals unto one ram,

29 A several tenth deal unto one lamb, throughout the seven lambs;

7 ¶ And ye shall have on the tenth day of this seventh month an holy convocation; and ye shall afflict your souls: ye shall not do any work therein:

8 But ye shall offer a burnt offering unto the LORD for a sweet savour; one young bullock, one ram, and seven lambs of the first year; they shall be unto you without blemish:

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXVIII.

From this chapter, we may discern the watchfulness of God over his people, by a new promulgation of the law before the death of Moses, and just after the investiture of Joshua. Hence we should learn to treasure up the word of God in our hearts, and practise it in our lives. By the first day of every month being set apart for the exercise of religious duties, we are to observe, that we should dedicate much of our time as possible, to the worship of God.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXIX.

1 And in the seventh month, &c.] The fifth national and annual sacrifice was performed on the feast of trumpets, about the time of our September. As the scripture no where gives the reason of this festival, authors are much divided about it. Some of the fathers were of opinion, it was in memory of the law given on mount Sinai, at which time the trumpet and thunder was heard. Others have conceived that it was intended to put mankind in remembrance of the general resurrection, which is to be ushered in with the sound of the trumpet, Lev. xxiii. 24.

9 And on the sabbath day two lambs, &c.] The second national sacrifice was weekly. On this day the burnt offerings and meat offerings were ordered to be double, as ver. 10 shews.

11 And in the beginnings of your months ye shall offer, &c.] The third stated sacrifice was monthly, to be offered upon the first day of every month. As one of the most natural divisions of time is, by the periodical revolutions of the moon, which, in these serious climates, could be easily discerned by all; so it is natural to think, that the solemn celebration of the new moon, in honour to the true God, was in use even before the rise of idolatry, and probably made a part of the patriarchal religion.

15 Unto the Lord, &c.] i. e. Not to the moon, as was practised by the Egyptians, and other nations.

16 And in the fourteenth day—is the passover, &c.] This fourth and national sacrifice was annually, viz. the great passover festival, with the feast of unleavened bread, annexed to it. Exod. xii. 5, 6.

26 Also in the day of the first fruits, &c.] The first national sacrifice was also annual, viz. at the harvest-festival, when the first fruits of corn were to be offered up.

After your weeks be out, &c.] Seven weeks to be accounted from Easter to Pentecost, Lev. xxiii. 15, 16.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

12 ¶ And on the fifteenth day of the seventh month ye shall have an holy convocation; ye shall do no servile work, and ye shall keep a feast unto the LORD seven days:

13 And ye shall offer a burnt offering, a sacrifice made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD; thirteen young bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs of the first year; they shall be without blemish:

14 And their meat offering shall be of flour mingled with oil, three tenth deals unto every bullock of the thirteen bullocks, two tenth deals to each ram of the two rams,

15 And several tenth deal to each lamb of the fourteen lambs:

16 And one kid of the goats for a sin offering; beside the continual burnt offering, his meat offering, and his drink offering.

17 ¶ And on the second day ye shall offer twelve young bullocks, two rams, fourteen lambs of the first year, without spot:

18 And their meat offering and their drink offerings for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner:

19 And one kid of the goats for a sin offering; beside the continual burnt offering, and the meat offering thereof, and their drink offerings.

20 ¶ And on the third day eleven bullocks, two rams, fourteen lambs of the first year without blemish;

21 And their meat offering and their drink offerings for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner:

22 And one goat for a sin offering; besides the continual burnt offering, and his meat offering, and his drink offering.

23 ¶ And on the fourth day ten bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs of the first year without blemish:

24 Their meat offering and their drink offerings for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner:

25 And one kid of the goats for a sin offering; beside the continual burnt offering, his meat offering, and his drink offering.

26 ¶ And on the fifth day nine bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs of the first year without spot:

27 And their meat offering, and their drink offerings for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner:

28 And one goat for a sin offering; beside the continual burnt offering, and his meat offering, and his drink offering.

29 ¶ And on the sixth day eight bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs of the first year without blemish:

30 And their meat offering and their drink offerings for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner:

31 And one goat for a sin offering; beside the continual burnt offering, his meat offering, and his drink offering.

13 Thirteen young bullocks, &c.] Undoubtedly these troublesome services, and expensive sacrifices, made their religion a very grievous yoke, under which the best men among them groaned, longing for the coming of the Messiah; when, their own doctors say, "No sacrifices shall remain but those of thanksgiving, praise and prayer." It appears from the account, that there were every year sacrificed at the tabernacle and temple, at the national charge, the following number of beasts; viz lambs, 1101; bullocks, 132; rams, 72; kids, 21; goats, 2; exclusive of a prodigious number of voluntary vow and trespass offerings.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXIX.

We may here learn, that no religion can be of God, that does not inculcate the doctrine of repentance; nor is repentance genuine, unless it be habitual. As the sacrifices were not so numerous on the last day as the others, we are hereby admonished not to trust in any thing for salvation but the merits of Christ, and to turn to him by faith and repentance.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXX.

1 And Moses spake unto the heads of the tribes, &c.] This law was

32 ¶ And on the seventh day seven bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs of the first year without blemish:

33 And their meat offering and their drink offerings for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner:

34 And one goat for a sin offering; besides a continual burnt offering, his meat offering, and his drink offering.

35 ¶ On the eighth day ye shall have a solemn assembly: ye shall do no servile work therein:

36 But ye shall offer a burnt offering, a sacrifice made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD: one bullock, one ram, seven lambs of the first year without blemish:

37 Their meat offering and their drink offerings for the bullock, for the ram, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner:

38 And one goat for a sin offering; beside the continual burnt offering, and his meat offering, and his drink offering.

39 These things ye shall do unto the LORD in your set feasts, beside your vows, and your freewill offerings, for your burnt offerings, and for your meat offerings, and for your drink offerings, and for your peace offerings.

40 And Moses told the children of Israel according to all that the LORD commanded Moses.

CHAP. XXX.

1 Vows are not to be broken. 3 The exceptions of a maid's vow, of a wife's, 9 of a widow's, or of her that is divorced.

AND Moses spake unto the heads of the tribes concerning the children of Israel, saying, This is the thing which the LORD hath commanded.

2 If a man vow a vow unto the LORD, or swear an oath to bind his soul with a bond, he shall not break his word, he shall do according to all that proceedeth out of his mouth.

3 ¶ If a woman also vow a vow unto the LORD, and bind herself by a bond, being in her father's house in her youth;

4 And her father hear her vow, and her bond wherewith she hath bound her soul, and her father shall hold his peace at her: then all her vows shall stand, and every bond wherewith she hath bound her soul shall stand.

5 But if her father disallow her in the day that he heareth; not any of her vows, or of her bonds wherewith she hath bound her soul, shall stand: and the LORD shall forgive her, because her father disallowed her.

6 ¶ And if she had at all an husband, when she vowed, or uttered ought out of her lips, wherewith she bound her soul;

7 And her husband heard it, and held his peace at her in the day that he heard it: then her vows shall stand, and her bonds wherewith she bound her soul shall stand.

8 But delivered to them, that they might instruct those committed to their charge, explain the law to them, give them necessary cautions upon it, and also call them to account for the breach of their vows.

¶ If a man vow a vow unto the Lord.] We see vows were early in use among the Jews; thus Jacob vowed a tenth of all his acquisitions to the Lord, when he retired to Padan-arum for fear of his brother Esau, Gen. xxviii. 20. and Hannah, desirous of a son, in order to obtain her request, vowed before-hand, to consecrate him to God, 1 Sam. ii. 21.

An oath to bind his soul, &c.] To man a promise is but a bond upon the estate; but a promise to God, is a bond upon the soul.

3 If a woman also vow a vow, &c.] The women at their own disposal, were bound, if possible, to perform their vows; but if a woman unmarried, and consequently at her parent's disposal, should vow a vow, the law here orders that her vow should be no longer obligatory, than in respect to her parents consent to it at first making thereof; and it was the same with regard to wives, orphans, and servants, who are under the power of their husbands, guardians, masters, &c.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

■ But if her husband disallowed her on the day that he heard it; then he shall make her vow which she vowed, and that which she uttered with her lips, wherewith she bound her soul, of none effect: and the LORD shall forgive her.

9 ¶ But every vow of ■ widow, and of her that is divorced, wherewith they have bound their souls, shall stand against her.

10 And if she vowed in her husband's house, or bound her soul by ■ bond with an oath;

11 And her husband heard it, and held his peace at her, and disallowed her not: then all her vows shall stand, and every bond wherewith she bound her soul shall stand.

12 But if her husband hath utterly made them void on the day he heard them; then whatsoever proceeded out of her lips concerning her vows, or concerning the bond of her soul, shall not stand; her husband hath made them void; and the LORD shall forgive her.

13 Every vow, and every binding oath to afflict the soul, her husband may establish it, or her husband may make it void.

14 But if her husband altogether hold his peace at her from day to day; then he establisheth all her vows, or all her bonds, which are upon her: he confirmeth them, because he held his peace at her, in the day that he heard them.

15 But if he shall any ways make them void after that he hath heard them; then he shall bear her iniquity.

16 These are the statutes, which the LORD commanded Moses, between a man and his wife, between the father and his daughter, being yet in her youth in her father's house.

CHAP. XXXI.

1 The Midianites are spoiled, and Balaam slain. 13 Moses is wroth with the officers for saving the women alive, and ordereth the soldiers with their captives and spoil to be purified. 21 Eleazar sheweth the law of purification. 25 The proportion whereby the prey is to be divided. 48 The voluntary oblation of the officers unto the treasury of the Lord.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,
2 Avenge the children of Israel of the Midianites: afterward shalt thou be gathered unto thy people.

3 And Moses spake unto the people, saying, Arm some of yourselves unto the war, and let them go against the Midianites, and avenge the LORD of Midian.

4 Of every tribe a thousand, throughout all the tribes of Israel, shall ye send to the war.

5 So they were delivered out of the thousands of Israel, ■ thousand of every tribe, twelve thousand armed for war.

6 And Moses sent them to the war, ■ thousand of 14 If her husband—hold his peace, &c.] The husband's silence, or not contradicting it at the first proposal, shall be interpreted a consent, nor shall it be in the husband's or father's power to retract that consent, or hinder her from performing her vow; if he does, ■ He shall bear her iniquity; ■ God shall punish him, and not her, for a breach of sacred faith.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXX.

From this chapter we are taught, that all lawful vows should be performed, and that nothing (if we have ability) can release us from them; that rash vows, and such as we have no right to make, may be annulled, provided it be done lawfully, and by those who have proper right and authority; and that God takes care to preserve the power of fathers, husbands, and guardians.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXI.

■ Avenge the children of Israel of the Midianites, &c.] The Midianites were the posterity of Abraham by Keturah; some of them settled south of Canaan, among whom Jethro lived, and they retained the worship of the true God; but these were settled east of Canaan, and were idolaters, neighbours to, and in confederacy with the Moabites. In conformity to the counsel given them by Balaam, these latter had seduced the Israelites to uncleanness, and the worship of their gods; for which Moses is here ordered to send an army against them, and utterly to destroy them.

4 Of every tribe a thousand, &c.] This small number was to let every tribe, them; and Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest, to the war, with the holy instruments, and the trumpets to blow in his hand.

No. 14.

7 And they warred against the Midianites, as the LORD commanded Moses; and they slew all the males.

8 And they slew the kings of Midian, beside the rest of them that were slain; namely, Evi, and Reken, and Zur, and Hur, and Reba, five kings of Midian: Balaam also the son of Beor they slew with the sword.

9 And the children of Israel took all the women of Midian captives, and their little ones, and took the spoil of all their cattle, and all their flocks, and all their goods.

10 And they burnt all their cities, wherein they dwelt, and all their goodly castles, with fire.

11 And they took all the spoil, and all the prey, both of men and of beasts.

12 And they brought the captives, and the prey, and the spoil, unto Moses, and Eleazar the priest, and unto the congregation of the children of Israel, unto the camp at the plains of Moab, which are by Jordan near Jericho.

13 ¶ And Moses, and Eleazar the priest, and all the princes of the congregation, went forth to meet them without the camp.

14 And Moses was wroth with the officers of the host, with the captains over thousands, and captains over hundreds, which came from the battle.

15 And Moses said unto them, Have ye saved all the women alive?

16 Behold, these caused the children of Israel, through the counsel of Balaam, to commit trespass against the LORD in the matter of Peor, and there was a plague among the congregation of the LORD.

17 Now therefore kill every male among the little ones, and kill every woman that hath known man by lying with him.

18 But all the women children, that have not known a man by lying with him, keep alive for yourselves.

19 And do ye abide without the camp seven days: whosoever hath killed any person, and whosoever hath touched any slain, purify both yourselves and your captives on the third day, and on the seventh day.

20 And purify all your raiment, and all that is made of skins, and all work of goats' hair, and all things made of wood.

21 ¶ And Eleazar the priest said unto the men of war which went to the battle, This is the ordinance of the law which the LORD commanded Moses;

22 Only the gold, and the silver, the brass, the iron, the tin, and the lead,

23 Every thing that may abide the fire, ye shall make it go through the fire, and it shall be clean: nevertheless them see they were to rely more upon God, than the strength of their army.

6 And Phinehas] It has been thought, that from the late courageous act of Phinehas, chap. xxv. 8. he was appointed to command the troops who were to avenge the Lord of Midian. But as Moses in the war with the Amorites, had sent the forces under the conduct of Joshua, it was most probable he was commander at that time; and that the province appointed Phinehas was only to take care of the holy things.

With the holy instruments and the trumpets, &c.] It is the most probable opinion that by these instruments the ark of the covenant, and what was included therein, are to be understood.

7 They slew all the males.] i. e. They slew all they met with, giving no quarter. But it is not to be understood of all the males of the nation; because the Midianites of this country, who are reckoned with the children of the east, Judges vi. 3. were a potent and formidable enemy to Israel, in the days of Gideon.

17 Kill every male.] Moses ordered the male children to be slain, that he might thereby extirpate the whole nation, as far as lay in his power, and prevent their revenging the death of their parents, in case they were suffered to live to man's estate.

And kill every woman that hath known man, &c.] Because they had been the chief instruments of drawing the Israelites to idolatry.

18 But all the women children—keep alive, &c.] For being young, they might be brought to embrace the Jewish religion.

Before CHRIST 1452. nevertheless it shall be purified with the water of separation: and all that abideth not the fire ye shall make go through the water.

24 And ye shall wash your clothes on the seventh day, and ye shall be clean, and afterward ye shall come into the camp.

25 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

26 Take the sum of the prey that was taken, both of man and of beast, thou, and Eleazar the priest, and the chief fathers of the congregation:

27 And divide the prey into two parts; between them that took the war upon them, who went out to battle, and between all the congregation:

28 And levy a tribute unto the LORD of the men of war which went out to battle: one soul of five hundred, both of the persons, and of the beeves, and of the asses, and of the sheep:

29 Take it of their half, and give it unto Eleazar the priest, for an heave offering of the LORD.

30 And of the children of Israel's half, thou shalt take one portion of fifty, of the persons, of the beeves, of the asses, and of the flocks, of all manner of beasts, and give them unto the Levites, which keep the charge of the tabernacle of the LORD.

31 And Moses and Eleazar the priest did as the LORD commanded Moses.

32 And the booty, being the rest of the prey which the men of war had caught, was six hundred thousand and seventy thousand and five thousand sheep,

33 And threescore and twelve thousand beeves,

34 And threescore and one thousand asses,

35 And thirty and two thousand persons in all, of women that had not known man by lying with him.

36 And the half, which was the portion of them that went out to war, was in number three hundred thousand and seven and thirty thousand and five hundred sheep:

37 And the LORD's tribute of the sheep was six hundred and threescore and fifteen.

38 And the beeves were thirty and six thousand; of which the LORD's tribute was threescore and twelve.

39 And the asses were thirty thousand and five hundred; of which the LORD's tribute was threescore and one.

40 And the persons were sixteen thousand: of which the LORD's tribute was thirty and two persons.

41 And Moses gave the tribute, which was the LORD's heave offering, unto Eleazar the priest, as the LORD commanded Moses.

42 And of the children of Israel's half, which Moses divided from the men that warred,

43 (Now the half that pertained unto the congregation was three hundred thousand and thirty thousand and seven thousand and five hundred sheep,

44 And thirty and six thousand beeves,

45 And thirty thousand asses and five hundred,

46 And sixteen thousand persons;)

47 Even of the children of Israel's half, Moses took one portion of fifty, both of man and of beast, and gave them unto the Levites, which kept the charge of the tabernacle of the LORD; as the LORD commanded Moses.

48 ¶ And the officers which were over thousands

52 Sixteen thousand seven hundred and fifteen shekels.] This was about five talents and a half, or 27,919l. sterling. Three hundred shekels made a talent.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXI.

Several things are observable in this history of the victory gained over the Midianites; namely, the subduing the enemies of the Israelites; that Balaam, and the women who had caused the peo-

Before CHRIST 1452. of the host, the captains of thousands, and captains of hundreds, came near unto Moses:

49 And they said unto Moses, Thy servants have taken the sum of the men of war which are under our charge, and there lacketh not one man of us.

50 We have therefore brought an oblation for the LORD, what every man hath gotten, of jewels, of gold, chains, and bracelets, rings, earrings, and tablets, to make an atonement for our souls before the LORD.

51 And Moses and Eleazar the priest took the gold of them, even all wrought jewels.

52 And all the gold of the offering that they offered up to the LORD, of the captains of thousands, and of the captains of hundreds, was sixteen thousand seven hundred and fifty shekels.

53 (For the men of war had taken spoil, every man for himself.)

54 And Moses and Eleazar the priest took the gold of the captains of thousands and of hundreds, and brought it into the tabernacle of the congregation, for a memorial for the children of Israel before the LORD.

C H A P. XXXII.

■ The Reubenites and Gadites sue for their inheritance on the east side of Jordan. 6 Moses reproveth them. 16 They offer conditions; 20 he is content; and assigneth the land to them, and to half the tribe of Manasseh. 34 They build cities, and conquer what remained.

NOW the children of Reuben and the children of Gad had a very great multitude of cattle: and when they saw the land of Jazer, and the land of Gilead, that, behold, the place was a place for cattle;

2 The children of Gad and the children of Reuben came and spake unto Moses, and to Eleazar the priest, and unto the princes of the congregation, saying,

3 Ataroth, and Dibon, and Jazer, and Nimrah, and Heshbon, and Elealeh, and Shebam, and Nebo, and Beon,

4 Even the country which the LORD smote before the congregation of Israel, is ■ land for cattle, and thy servants have cattle:

5 Wherefore, said they, if we have found grace in thy sight, let this land be given unto thy servants for a possession, and bring us not over Jordan.

6 ¶ And Moses said unto the children of Gad and to the children of Reuben, Shall your brethren go to war, and shall ye sit here?

7 And wherefore discourage ye the heart of the children of Israel from going over into the land which the LORD hath given?

8 Thus did your fathers, when I sent them from Kadesh-barnca to see the land.

9 For when they went up unto the valley of Ethcol, and saw the land, they discouraged the heart of the children of Israel, that they should not go unto the land which the LORD had given them.

10 And the LORD's anger was kindled the same time, and he sware, saying,

11 Surely none of the men that came up out of Egypt, from twenty years old and upward, shall see the land which I sware unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob; because they have not wholly followed me:

12 Save

ple to sin, were slain; the division of the spoil equally between those who were in the war, and those who remained in the camp; and that the officers presented to God the most valuable things taken from the Midianites, teaching us to do him homage for all our prosperity, and devote all his gifts to his service and glory.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXII.

1 Now the children of Reuben, &c.] The tribes of Reuben, Gad, and the half tribe of Manasseh, observing that the country was fertile, and stored with good pasturage, desired they might be permitted to settle there, having large stocks of cattle.

7 Wherefore discourage ye the heart, &c.] Moses suspected that it ■ either cowardice, or ■ love of ease, that made them petition to stay where they were, which ill example might have proved of bad consequence in disheartening the rest of their brethren.

17 But

Before CHRIST 1452. 12 Save Caleb the son of Jephunneh the Kenezite, and Joshua the son of Nun: for they have wholly followed the LORD.

13 And the LORD's anger was kindled against Israel, and he made them wander in the wilderness forty years, until all the generation, that had done evil in the sight of the LORD, was consumed.

14 And, behold, ye are risen up in your fathers' stead, an increase of sinful men, to augment yet the fierce anger of the LORD toward Israel.

15 For if ye turn away from after him, he will yet again leave them in the wilderness; and ye shall destroy all this people.

16 ¶ And they came near unto him, and said, We will build sheepfolds here for our cattle, and cities for our little ones:

17 But we ourselves will go ready armed before the children of Israel, until we have brought them unto their place: and our little ones shall dwell in the fenced cities because of the inhabitants of the land.

18 We will not return unto our houses, until the children of Israel have inherited every man his inheritance.

19 For we will not inherit with them on yonder side Jordan, or forward; because our inheritance is fallen to us on this side Jordan eastward.

20 ¶ And Moses said unto them, If ye will do this thing, if ye will go armed before the LORD to war,

21 And will go all of you armed over Jordan before the LORD, until he hath driven out his enemies from before him;

22 And the land be subdued before the LORD: then afterward ye shall return, and be guiltless before the LORD, and before Israel; and this land shall be your possession before the LORD.

23 But if ye will not do so, behold, ye have sinned against the LORD: and be sure your sin will find you out.

24 Build ye cities for your little ones, and folds for your sheep; and do that which hath proceeded out of your mouth.

25 And the children of Gad and the children of Reuben spake unto Moses, saying, Thy servants will do as my LORD commandeth.

26 Our little ones, our wives, our flocks, and all our cattle, shall be there in the cities of Gilead:

27 But thy servants will pass over, every man armed for war, before the LORD to battle, as my lord saith.

28 So concerning them Moses commanded Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the chief fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel:

29 And Moses said unto them, If the children of Gad and the children of Reuben will pass with you over Jordan, every man armed to battle, before the LORD, and the land shall be subdued before you; then ye shall give them the land of Gilead for a possession:

30 But if they will not pass over with you armed, they shall have possessions among you in the land of Canaan.

31 And the children of Gad and the children of 17 But we ourselves will go ready armed, &c.] The offer which they made to go in the front of the battle, and risk their lives against such potent enemies, without any farther advantage to themselves, was an expression of their faith in God, and love to their brethren.

33 Even the cities of the country round about.] We should observe, that these tribes were first settled before the others, so they were afterwards displaced before them, being, for their idolatry, first carried captive into Assyria, 1 Chron. v. 25, 26. Probably their early defection from the true religion, was owing to their being placed at so great a distance from the public worship. We see by this, how Providence proportions his dispensations by balancing prosperity and adversity, and setting the one against the other.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXII.

This chapter points out to us, that the distribution made to the two tribes and a half, of the country beyond Jordan, was the begin-

Reuben answered, saying, As the LORD hath said unto thy servants, so will we do. Before CHRIST 1452.

32 We will pass over armed before the LORD into the land of Canaan, that the possession of our inheritance on this side Jordan may be our's.

33 And Moses gave unto them, even to the children of Gad, and to the children of Reuben, and unto half the tribe of Manasseh the son of Joseph, the kingdom of Sihon king of the Amorites, and the kingdom of Og king of Bashan, the land, with the cities thereof in the coasts, even the cities of the country round about.

34 ¶ And the children of Gad built Dibon, and Ataroth, and Aroer,

35 And Atroth, Shopan, and Jaazer, and Jogbehah,

36 And Beth-nimrah, and Beth-haran, fenced cities: and folds for sheep,

37 And the children of Reuben built Heshbon, and Elealeh, and Kirjathaim.

38 And Nebo, and Baal-meon, (their names being changed,) and Shibmah: and gave other names unto the cities which they builded.

39 And the children of Machir the son of Manasseh went to Gilead, and took it, and dispossessed the Amorite which was in it.

40 And Moses gave Gilead unto Machir the son of Manasseh; and he dwelt therein.

41 And Jair the son of Manasseh went and took the small towns thereof, and called them Havoth-jair.

42 And Nobah went and took Kenath, and the villages thereof, and called it Nobah, after his own name.

CHAP. XXXIII.

1 Two and forty journeys of the Israelites. 50 The Canaanites are to be destroyed.

THESE are the journeys of the children of Israel, which went forth out of the land of Egypt with their armies under the hand of Moses and Aaron.

2 And Moses wrote their goings out according to their journeys by the commandment of the LORD: and these are their journeys according to their goings out.

3 And they departed from Rameses in the first month: on the fifteenth day of the first month, on the morrow after the passover the children of Israel went out with an high hand in the sight of all the Egyptians.

4 For the Egyptians buried all their first-born, which the LORD had smitten among them: upon their gods also the LORD executed judgments.

5 And the children of Israel removed from Rameses, and pitched in Succoth.

6 And they departed from Succoth, and pitched in Etham, which is in the edge of the wilderness.

7 And they removed from Etham, and turned again unto Pi-hahiroth, which is before Baal-zephon: and they pitched before Migdol.

8 And they departed from before Pihahiroth, and passed through the midst of the sea into the wilderness, and ning of the accomplishment of the promises God made to his people, to give them all that country; and also that God ordered they should be assisting in the reduction of the land of Canaan, for their brethren who had helped them to subdue that part of the country; we are here instructed to act justly towards, and assist each other, on all lawful occasions.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXIII.

These are the journeys of the children of Israel, &c.] Moses was particularly commissioned to preserve their history for the benefit of posterity; therefore he here recapitulates the principal stages of this long journey, setting them all before the reader in one view, that all who would take pains to examine things, might be satisfied by what a train of miracles such a multitude of people were fed every day, for forty years together, in a barren and inhospitable desert.

Before CHRIST 1452. and went three days' journey in the wilderness of Etham, and pitched in Marah.

36 And they removed from Ezion-gaber, and pitched in the wilderness of Zin, which is Kadesh.

37 And they removed from Kadesh, and pitched in mount Hor, in the edge of the land of Edom. Before CHRIST 1452.

38 And Aaron the priest went up into mount Hor, at the commandment of the Lord, and died there, in the fortieth year after the children of Israel were come out of the land of Egypt, in the first day of the fifth month.

39 And Aaron was an hundred and twenty and three years old when he died in mount Hor.

40 And king Arad the Canaanite, which dwelt in the south of the land of Canaan, heard of the coming of the children of Israel.

41 And they departed from mount Hor, and pitched in Zalmonah.

42 And they departed from Zalmonah, and pitched in Punon.

47 And they removed from Almon-diblathaim, and pitched in the mountains of Abarim before Nebo.

48 And they departed from the mountains of Abarim, and pitched in the plains of Moab by Jordan near Jericho.

49 And they pitched by Jordan, from Beth-jesimoth even unto Abel-shittim in the plains of Moab.

50 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses in the plains of Moab by Jordan near Jericho, saying,

51 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye are passed over Jordan into the land of Canaan;

52 Then ye shall drive out all the inhabitants of the land from before you, and destroy all their pictures, and destroy all their molten images, and quite pluck down all their high places:

53 And ye shall dispossess the inhabitants of the land, and dwell therein: for I have given you the land to possess it.

54 And ye shall divide the land by lot for an inheritance among your families: and to the more ye shall give the more inheritance, and to the fewer ye shall give the less inheritance: every man's inheritance shall be in the place where his lot falleth; according to the tribes of your fathers ye shall inherit.

55 But if ye will not drive out the inhabitants of the land from before you; then it shall come to pass, that those which ye let remain of them shall be pricks in your eyes, and thorns in your sides, and shall vex you in the land wherein ye dwell.

56 Moreover it shall come to pass, that I shall do unto you, as I thought to do unto them.

45 Dibon-gad.] Thus named after the conquest, to distinguish it from Dibon, in the tribe of Reuben.

51 Speak unto the children of Israel, &c.] One intention of the Israelites sojourning so long in the wilderness, might be, that the people might forget the idols of Egypt, and be purified from their infection; and that the new generation that entered Canaan, might be such as had not known the superstitious practices of their fathers.

52 Pluck down all their high places.] i. e. The groves and altars erected in mountains, which places they supposed nearer to their deities, than other parts of the earth.

54 Ye shall divide the land by lot, &c.] This partition of the country by lot, was a most prudent contrivance; tending to prevent effectually all disagreements among such obstinate people; the lots were to bear a proportion to each tribe and family.

Pricks in your eyes, and thorns in your sides, &c.] The eye being a part the most sensibly affected by pain, this image pathetically expresses the grievous afflictions they should suffer by those of the inhabitants whom they neglected to extirpate, according to the divine command.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXIII.

The several journies of the Israelites indicate to us, that we have a continuing city here, but should look for an heavenly one: their various changes shew the transitoriness of all sublunary things; which should remind us, that peace of conscience only is durable, which will follow from the performance of the divine commands, and that we should beg of God to accept of our most imperfect services through the merits of Christ.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXIV.

2 Command the children of Israel, and say unto them, &c.] The Israelites had first a charge concerning the manner of treating the inhabitants, whose country they were to possess; and in the next place,

Before CHRIST 1452. them, When ye come into the land of Canaan; (this is the land that shall fall unto you for inheritance, even the land of Canaan with the coasts thereof;)

3 Then your south quarter shall be from the wilderness of Zin along by the coast of Edom, and your south border shall be the outmost coast of the salt sea eastward:

4 And your border shall turn from the south to the ascent of Akrabbim, and pass on to Zin: and the going forth thereof shall be from the south to Kadesh-barnea, and shall go on to Hazar-addar, and pass on to Azmon:

5 And the border shall fetch compass from Azmon unto the river of Egypt, and the goings out of it shall be at the sea.

6 And as for the western border, ye shall even have the great sea for border: this shall be your west border.

7 And this shall be your north border: from the great sea ye shall point out for you mount Hor:

8 From mount Hor ye shall point out your border unto the entrance of Hamath, and the goings forth of the border shall be to Zedad:

9 And the border shall go on to Ziphron, and the goings out of it shall be at Hazar-enan: this shall be your north border:

10 And ye shall point out your east border from Hazar-enan to Shepham:

11 And the coast shall go down from Shepham to Riblah, on the east side of Ain; and the border shall descend, and shall reach unto the side of the sea of Chinnereth eastward:

12 And the border shall go down to Jordan, and the goings out of it shall be at the salt sea: this shall be your land with the coasts thereof round about.

13 And Moses commanded the children of Israel, saying, This is the land which ye shall inherit by lot, which the Lord commanded to give unto the nine tribes, and to the half tribe:

14 For the tribe of the children of Reuben according to the house of their fathers, and the tribe of the children of Gad according to the house of their fathers, have received their inheritance; and half the tribe of Manasseh have received their inheritance:

15 The two tribes and the half tribe have received their inheritance on this side Jordan near Jericho eastward, toward the sunrising.

Idumea and the deserts of Arabia are the determined border of the land of Canaan on the south.

7 Ye shall point out for you mount Hor.] This was a long ridge of hills, of which one part might be called Hor, the other parts Shenir, Sirion, Sion, Misar; see Deut. iii. 9. and iv. 18. and Psalm xlii. 6. and therefore the general name is sometimes expressed in the plural Hormonim, i. e. the Hormonian hills.

9 The goings out of it shall be at Hazar-enan, &c.] i. e. "The village of the fountain;" viz. of Jordan, which took its rise in that track.

11 And the coast shall go down from Shepham to Riblah.] Shepham and Riblah were two towns on the banks of the river Jordan; so that the eastern bounds of the land began from the head of Jordan, and extended along the whole course of the river to the Dead-sea, until it met with the south bounds in the borders of Edom.

The sea of Chinnereth, &c.] Which is called the sea of Tiberias, or Galilee, in the New Testament.

CHAP. XXXV.

1 The Levites are to have eight and forty cities (six of them to be cities of refuge) with their suburbs of a certain measure. 9 The laws of murder and manslaughter. 31 No satisfaction to be taken for either of them.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses in the plains of Moab by Jordan near Jericho, saying,

2 Command the children of Israel, that they give unto the Levites of the inheritance of their possession cities to dwell in; and ye shall give also unto the Levites suburbs for the cities round about them.

3 And the cities shall they have to dwell in; and the suburbs of them shall be for their cattle, and for their goods, and for all their beasts.

4 And the suburbs of the cities, which ye shall give unto the Levites, shall reach from the wall of the city and outward a thousand cubits round about.

5 And ye shall measure from without the city on the east side two thousand cubits, and on the south side two thousand cubits, and on the west side two thousand cubits, and on the north side two thousand cubits; and the 13 This is the land which ye shall inherit, &c.] It appears from the foregoing description, that they were placed in a very pleasant country, being bounded on the south by lofty mountains, which sheltered them from the sultry air of the Arabian deserts; on the west, by the Mediterranean sea, which afforded them refreshing breezes; on the north, by mount Lebanon, which kept off the colder blasts from that quarter; and, on the east, by the delightful plains of Jordan.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXIV.

We are to remark from this chapter, that the different habitations, pointed out by Moses before the Israelites took possession of Canaan, afterwards took place just as he had predicted; that Moses testified his obedience, and reliance on God's faithfulness to his promise, by making known the will of God to the children of Israel; and that God gave clear proof of his love, by appointing proper leaders for his people before the death of Moses.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXV.

■ That they give unto the Levites of the inheritance of their possession cities to dwell in.] These people were plentifully provided for, by the laws concerning tithes and offerings; but it was also necessary, that when they came to Canaan, proper habitations should be appointed for them, where they might live comfortably and usefully.

Suburbs, &c.] Which mean certain spaces of ground about and belonging to the cities, for pastures, orchards, gardens, sheep-houses, barns, and other little rural conveniences.

6 And among the cities which ye shall give unto the Levites there shall be six cities for refuge, which ye shall appoint for the manslayer, that he may flee thither: and to them ye shall add forty and two cities.

7 So all the cities which ye shall give to the Levites shall be forty and eight cities: them shall ye give with their suburbs.

8 And the cities which ye shall give shall be of the possession of the children of Israel: from them that have many ye shall give many; but from them that have few ye shall give few: every one shall give of his cities unto the Levites according to his inheritance which he inheriteth.

9 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

10 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye be come over Jordan into the land of Canaan;

11 Then ye shall appoint you cities to be cities of refuge for you; that the slayer may flee thither, which killeth any person at unawares.

12 And they shall be unto you cities for refuge from the avenger; that the manslayer die not, until he stand before the congregation in judgment.

13 And of these cities which ye shall give, six cities shall ye have for refuge.

14 Ye shall give three cities on this side Jordan, and three cities shall ye give in the land of Canaan, which shall be cities of refuge.

15 These six cities shall be a refuge, both for the children of Israel, and for the stranger, and for the sojourner among them: that every one that killeth any person unawares may flee thither.

16 And if he smite him with an instrument of iron, so that he die, he is a murderer: the murderer shall surely be put to death.

17 And if he smite him with throwing a stone, wherewith he may die, and he die, he is a murderer: the murderer shall surely be put to death.

18 Or if he smite him with an hand weapon of wood, wherewith he may die, and he die, he is a murderer: the murderer shall surely be put to death.

19 The revenger of blood himself shall slay the murderer: when he meeteth him, he shall slay him.

20 But if he thrust him of hatred, or hurl at him by laying of wait, that he die;

21 Or in enmity smite him with his hand, that he die: he that smote him shall surely be put to death; for he is a murderer: the revenger of blood shall slay the murderer, when he meeteth him.

22 But if he thrust him suddenly without enmity, or have cast upon him any thing without laying of wait,

23 Or with any stone, wherewith a man may die, seeing him not, and cast it upon him, that he die, and was not his enemy, neither sought his harm.

24 Then the congregation shall judge between the 6 Six cities for refuge, &c.] Thus the Levites were to have, in all, forty-eight cities, ver. 7. out of these, six were to be privileged places, or cities of refuge, whither any person, who had the misfortune to kill another undesignedly, might flee and take sanctuary. These asylums were very different from those of other nations; they did not screen them who were guilty of wilful murder; but such, according to the tenor of the same law, were to be dragged even from the horns of the altar.

16 If he smite him with an instrument of iron, &c.] It was presumed, if he assaulted a man with a weapon, he intended him mischief; though perhaps there was no malice prepened, and he did it in anger.

27 And the revenger of blood find him without the borders—and—kill the slayer; he shall not be guilty, &c.] If Christians, who have fled to Christ for succour, forsake and wander from him, how can they, without an absurdity, expect to be protected and saved by him!

30 One witness shall not testify against any person, &c.] Undoubtedly there should be two; for the witness who affirms, and the accused who denies, make an equal balance; a third, therefore, is necessarily required, to incline the scale.

slayer and the revenger of blood according to these judgments:

25 And the congregation shall deliver the slayer out of the hand of the revenger of blood, and the congregation shall restore him to the city of his refuge, whither he was fled: and he shall abide in it unto the death of the high priest, which was anointed with the holy oil.

26 But if the slayer shall at any time come without the border of the city of his refuge, whither he was fled;

27 And the revenger of blood find him without the borders of the city of his refuge, and the revenger of blood kill the slayer; he shall not be guilty of blood:

28 Because he should have remained in the city of his refuge until the death of the high priest: but after the death of the high priest the slayer shall return into the land of his possession.

29 So these things shall be for a statute of judgment unto you throughout your generations in all your dwellings.

30 Whoso killeth any person, the murderer shall be put to death by the mouth of witnesses: but one witness shall not testify against any person to cause him to die.

31 ¶ Moreover ye shall take no satisfaction for the life of a murderer, which is guilty of death: but he shall be surely put to death.

32 And ye shall take no satisfaction for him that is fled to the city of his refuge, that he should come again to dwell in the land, until the death of the priest.

33 So ye shall not pollute the land wherein ye are: for blood it defileth the land: and the land cannot be cleansed of the blood that is shed therein, but by the blood of him that shed it.

34 Defile not therefore the land which ye shall inhabit, wherein I dwell: for I the LORD dwell among the children of Israel.

C H A P. XXXVI.

¶ The inconvenience of the inheritance of daughters is set forth. 5 It is remedied by their being restrained to marry in their own tribes. 10 The daughters of Zelophehad are married to their father's brothers' sons.

AND the chief fathers of the families of the children of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, of the families of the sons of Joseph, came near, and spake before Moses, and before the princes, the chief fathers of the children of Israel:

2 And they said, The LORD commanded my lord to give the land for an inheritance by lot to the children of Israel: and my lord was commanded by the LORD to give the inheritance of Zelophehad our brother unto his daughters.

3 And if they be married to any of the sons of the other tribes of the children of Israel, then shall their inheritance be taken from the inheritance of our fathers, and shall be put to the inheritance of the tribe whereunto they are received: so shall it be taken from the lot of our inheritance.

4 And

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXV.

The habitations for the Levites teach us to provide for those who minister in holy things; and the laws about murderers denote the heinousness of the crime, the curse and punishment entailed upon it; and the extreme horror even the thought, and especially whatever may lead to the crime, should affect with.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXVI.

¶ The chief fathers of the families, &c.] The portion that had been given to the daughters of Zelophehad, and the laws which ordered the estates of those who died without issue male, should descend to their daughters, gave the elders of Israel some reason to fear, that by these heiresses marrying into different tribes, the parts allotted to each would be confounded; as these estates would of course be alienated from their own tribe, and incorporated into another by the rights of their husbands; nor would the year of jubile rectify this inconvenience, since these inheritances would, by the common right of marriage, descend, at the jubile, to the heirs of those women who married in another tribe. These considerations induced them to present a petition to Moses, to define him by a particular law to prevent this inconvenience.

Before CHRIST 1451. 4 And when the jubile of the children of Israel shall be, then shall their inheritance be put unto the inheritance of the tribe whereunto they are received: so shall their inheritance be taken away from the inheritance of the tribe of our fathers.

5 ¶ And Moses commanded the children of Israel according to the word of the LORD, saying, The tribe of the sons of Joseph hath said well.

6 This is the thing which the LORD doth command concerning the daughters of Zelophehad, saying, Let them marry to whom they think best; only to the family of the tribe of their father shall they marry.

7 So shall not the inheritance of the children of Israel remove from tribe to tribe: for every one of the children of Israel shall keep himself to the inheritance of the tribe of his fathers.

¶ And every daughter, that possesseth an inheritance in any tribe of the children of Israel, shall be wife unto one of the family of the tribe of her father,

6 Let them marry to whom they think best, &c.] Notwithstanding they were not to marry to those of another tribe or family, but in their own tribe. This was enjoined to preserve order in the commonwealth; and particularly to prevent the mixture of the tribe of Judah (from which the Messiah was to descend) with other tribes.

8 Every daughter that possesseth an inheritance, &c.] The heiresses were to observe what is here commanded: but those who had no inheritance, might marry into what tribe they pleased.

12 They were married into the families, &c.] This is in the Hebrew, To some who were of the families; that is, into one of the families of Manasseh, from whom several families descended; for they did not marry promiscuously, but into their father's family, viz. that of Hephher.

Before CHRIST 1451. that the children of Israel may enjoy every man the inheritance of his fathers, 9 Neither shall the inheritance remove from one tribe to another tribe; but every one of the tribes of the children of Israel shall keep himself to his own inheritance.

10 ¶ Even as the LORD commanded Moses, so did the daughters of Zelophehad:

11 For Mahlah, Tirzah, and Hoglah, and Milcah, and Noah, the daughters of Zelophehad, were married unto their father's brother's sons.

12 And they were married into the families of the sons of Manasseh the son of Joseph, and their inheritance remained in the tribe of the family of their father.

13 These are the commandments and the judgments, which the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses unto the children of Israel in the plains of Moab by Jordan near Jericho.

13 These are the commandments and the judgments, &c.] We are to understand by "commandments," in this place, the precepts relating to the worship of God, and by "judgments," the laws of civil polity.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXVI. In what concerns private property, we are hereby taught to act with judgment, prudence and discretion, if we expect the divine blessing. As the people consulted Moses in difficult cases, let us learn to seek advice from God in prayer, relying on the divine promise for assistance; and that to be regular in our conduct, will make us in some measure resemble the blessed above, where all is harmony, order, peace, and love.

The Fifth BOOK of MOSES,

DEUTERONOMY.

THE ARGUMENT.

This book is called from the Greek, Deuteronomy, which signifies a second law, being a recapitulation of the several laws already delivered. Those Israelites, to whom the law was first given in the wilderness, being dead; a repetition of it seemed necessary to this new generation of men. There are contained several additional laws, explanations, and enlargements, enforced by the strongest and most pathetic motives to obedience, taking up about the space of one month.

CHAP. I.

1 Moses' speech at the end of the fortieth year, 6 in which he rehearseth the story of God's sending Israel from Horeb to go and possess the promised land, 9 of giving them officers, 19 of passing through the wilderness to Kadesh, 22 of sending the spies to search the land, 34 and of God's anger for their incredulity, &c.

THESE be the words which Moses spake unto all Israel on this side Jordan in the wilderness, in the plain over against the Red sea, between Paran, and Tophel, and Laban, and Hazeroth, and Dizahab.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. I.

1 These be the words, &c.] All the passages and speeches of this book were comprehended in the space of a month. It begins on the first day of the eleventh month, and on the first day of the twelfth month Moses is supposed to have died.
On this side Jordan] i. e. on the east, where they are encamped at this time.

2 (There are eleven days' journey from Horeb by the way of mount Seir unto Kadesh-barnea.)

3 And it came to pass in the fortieth year, in the eleventh month, on the first day of the month, that Moses spake unto the children of Israel, according unto all that the LORD had given him in commandment unto them;

4 After he had slain Sihon the king of the Amorites, which dwelt in Heshbon, and Og the king of Bashan, which dwelt in Astaroth in Edrei:

5 On this side Jordan, in the land of Moab, began Moses to declare this law, saying,

Over against the Red sea, &c.] Several interpreters explain it not of the sea Zuph, (the Red or Arabian sea) but rather of some flaggy place on the banks of the river Jordan; or else on the sides of the Dead sea, towards the wilderness of Arabia.

2 There are eleven days' journey, &c.] The insertion of this shew, that it was the will and pleasure of the Almighty, that what might have been effected in eleven days, the Israelites should not accomplish in less than thirty and eight years.

Before
1451.

6 ¶ The LORD our God spake unto us in Horeb, saying, Ye have dwelt long enough in this mount:

7 Turn you, and take your journey, and go to the mount of the Amorites, and unto all the places nigh thereunto, in the plain, in the hills, and in the vale, and in the fouth, and by the sea side, to the land of the Canaanites, and unto Lebanon, unto the great river, the river Euphrates.

8 Behold, I have set the land before you: go in and possess the land which the LORD sware unto your fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, to give unto them and to their seed after them.

9 ¶ And I spake unto you at that time, saying, I am not able to bear you myself alone:

10 The LORD your God hath multiplied you, and, behold, ye are this day as the stars of heaven for multitude.

11 (The LORD God of your fathers make you a thousand times so many more as ye are, and bless you, as he hath promised you!)

12 How can I myself alone bear your cumbrance, and your burden, and your strife?

13 Take you wise men, and understanding, and known among your tribes, and I will make them rulers over you.

14 And ye answered me, and said, The thing which thou hast spoken is good for us to do.

15 So I took the chief of your tribes, wise men, and known, and made them heads over you, captains over thousands, and captains over hundreds, and captains over fifties, and captains over tens, and officers among your tribes.

16 And I charged your judges at that time, saying, Hear the causes between your brethren, and judge righteously between every man and his brother, and the stranger that is with him.

17 Ye shall not respect persons in judgment; but ye shall hear the small as well as the great; ye shall not be afraid of the face of man; for the judgment is God's: and the cause that is too hard for you, bring it unto me, and I will hear it.

18 And I commanded you at that time all the things which ye should do.

19 ¶ And when we departed from Horeb, we went through all that great and terrible wilderness, which ye saw by the way of the mountain of the Amorites, as the LORD our God commanded us; and we came to Kadesh-barnea.

20 And I said unto you, Ye are come unto the mountains of the Amorites, which the LORD our God doth give unto us.

21 Behold, the LORD thy God hath set the land before thee: go up and possess it, as the LORD God of thy fathers hath said unto thee; fear not, neither be discouraged.

22 ¶ And ye came near unto me every one of you, and said, We will send men before us, and they shall search us out the land, and bring us word again by what way we must go up, and into what cities we shall come.

23 And the saying pleased me well; and I took twelve men of you, one of a tribe:

24 And they turned and went up into the mountain, and came into the valley of Eshcol, and searched it out.

25 And they took of the fruit of the land in their hands, and brought it down unto us, and brought us word again, and said, It is a good land which the LORD our God doth give unto us.

26 Notwithstanding ye would not go up, but rebelled against the commandment of the LORD your God:

27 And ye murmured in your tents, and said, Because the LORD hated us, he hath brought us forth out of the land of Egypt, to deliver us into the hands of the Amorites, to destroy us.

28 Whither shall we go up? our brethren have discouraged our heart, saying, The people is greater and taller than we; the cities are great and walled up to heaven; and moreover we have seen the sons of the Anakims there.

29 Then I said unto you, Dread not, neither be afraid of them.

30 The LORD your God which goeth before you, he shall fight for you, according to all that he did for you in Egypt before your eyes;

31 And in the wilderness, where thou hast seen how that the LORD thy God bare thee, as a man doth bear his son, in all the way that ye went, until ye came into this place.

32 Yet in this thing ye did not believe the LORD your God,

33 Who went in the way before you, to search you out a place to pitch your tents in, in fire by night, to shew you by what way ye should go, and in a cloud by day.

34 ¶ And the LORD heard the voice of your words, and was wroth, and sware, saying,

35 Surely there shall not one of these men of this evil generation see that good land, which I sware to give unto your fathers,

36 Save Caleb the son of Jephunneh; he shall see it, and to him will I give the land that he hath trodden upon, and to his children, because he hath wholly followed the LORD.

37 Also the LORD was angry with me for your sakes, saying, Thou also shalt not go in thither.

38 But Joshua the son of Nun, which standeth before thee, he shall go in thither: encourage him: for he shall cause Israel to inherit it.

39 Moreover your little ones which ye said should be a prey, and your children, which in that day had no knowledge between good and evil, they shall go in thither, and unto them will I give it, and they shall possess it.

40 But as for you, turn you, and take your journey into the wilderness by the way of the Red sea.

41 Then ye answered and said unto me, We have sinned against the LORD, we will go up and fight, according to all that the LORD our God commanded us. And when ye had girded on every man his weapons of war, ye were ready to go up into the hill.

42 And the LORD said unto me, Say unto them, Go not up, neither fight; for I am not among you; lest ye be smitten before your enemies.

43 So I spake unto you; and ye would not hear, but rebelled against the commandment of the LORD, and went presumptuously up into the hill.

44 And the Amorites, which dwelt in that mountain, came out against you, and chased you, as bees do, and destroyed you in Seir, even unto Hormah.

45 And ye returned and wept before the LORD; but the LORD would not hearken to your voice, nor give ear unto you.

46 So ye abode in Kadesh many days, according unto the days that ye abode there.

with perfect equity, resolution, and impartiality, as being accountable to him.

28 Walled up to heaven, &c.] This is a hyperbolical expression, implying no more than that the walls were exceedingly lofty.

41 Ye answered and said unto me, We have sinned against the Lord, &c.] God, by Moses, forbade the attempt, and "yet they went presumptuously up to the hill," and, as if governed by a spirit of contradiction, acted now in contempt of the threatening, as they had before acted in contempt of the promise.

6 In Horeb, &c.] It would have been better if this passage had been translated by or near Horeb; for God did not deliver his oracle from the mountain, but from the tabernacle.

14 The thing which thou hast spoken is good for us to do.] He mentions this not to court their applause, but to aggravate the sin of their mutinies after this, to shew them, that the government they quarrelled with was what they themselves had consented to.

17 The judgment is God's, &c.] i. e. They were God's ministers, and acted by his authority; and therefore ought to give judgment

1 The story is continued, setting forth that they were not to meddle with the Edomites, 9 nor with the Moabites, 16 nor with the Ammonites: 24 but Sihon the Amorite was given up to be subdued by them.

THEN we turned, and took our journey into the wilderness by the way of the Red sea, as the LORD spake unto me: and we compassed mount Seir many days.

■ And the LORD spake unto me, saying,

3 Ye have compassed this mountain long enough: turn you northward.

4 And command thou the people, saying, Ye are to pass through the coast of your brethren the children of Esau, which dwell in Seir; and they shall be afraid of you: take ye good heed unto yourselves therefore:

5 Meddle not with them; for I will not give you of their land, no, not so much as a foot breadth, because I have given mount Seir unto Esau for a possession.

6 Ye shall buy meat of them for money, that ye may eat; and ye shall also buy water of them for money, that ye may drink.

7 For the LORD thy God hath blessed thee in all the works of thy hand: he knoweth thy walking through this great wilderness: these forty years the LORD thy God hath been with thee; thou hast lacked nothing.

■ And when we passed by from our brethren the children of Esau, which dwelt in Seir, through the way of the plain from Elath, and from Ezion-gaber, we turned and passed by the way of the wilderness of Moab.

9 ¶ And the LORD said unto me, Distress not the Moabites, neither contend with them in battle: for I will not give thee of their land for a possession; because I have given Ar unto the children of Lot for a possession.

10 The Emims dwelt therein in times past, a people great, and many, and tall, as the Anakims;

11 Which also were accounted giants, as the Anakims; but the Moabites call them Emims.

12 The Horims also dwelt in Seir beforetime; but the children of Esau succeeded them, when they had destroyed them from before them, and dwelt in their stead; as Israel did unto the land of his possession, which the LORD gave unto them.

13 Now rise up, said I, and get you over the brook Zered. And we went over the brook Zered.

14 And the space in which we came from Kadesh-barnea, until we were come over the brook Zered, was thirty and eight years; until all the generation of the men of war were wasted out from among the host, as the LORD swore unto them.

15 For indeed the hand of the LORD was against them, to destroy them from among the host, until they were consumed.

16 ¶ So it came to pass, when all the men of war were consumed and dead from among the people,

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. I.

The author of the epistle to the Hebrews shews us the use we ought to make of this history, when he tells us, that as the murmurings and rebellions of the Israelites was the reason why they did not enter into the land of Canaan; so we should take care that we be not excluded by our unbelief and disobedience to the gospel, from the heavenly Canaan.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. II.

1 Then we turned, &c. They turned from the borders of Canaan to go southward. Moses preserves not the record of any thing that happened during that tedious march back to the Red sea; but passes it over in silence, as a dark time, and makes his narrative immediately begin again when they faced about towards Canaan.

5 Meddle not with them, &c. God, before he brought Israel to destroy their enemies in Canaan, thus taught them to forgive their enemies in Edom.

6 Buy water, &c. No doubt this implies the buying of wells ready digged.

9 I have given Ar, &c. Ar was the name of the chief city of the Moabites; but here it implies the whole country.

Unto the children of Lot, &c. Thus God out of remembrance of No. 15.

17 That the LORD spake unto me, saying,

18 Thou art to pass over through Ar, the coast of Moab, this day:

Before
CHRIST

19 And when thou comest nigh over against the children of Ammon, distress them not, nor meddle with them: for I will not give thee of the land of the children of Ammon any possessions; because I have given it unto the children of Lot for a possession.

20 (That also was accounted a land of giants: giants dwelt therein in old time; and the Ammonites call them Zamzummims;

21 A people great, and many, and tall, as the Anakims; but the LORD destroyed them before them; and they succeeded them, and dwelt in their stead.)

22 As he did to the children of Esau, which dwelt in Seir, when he destroyed the Horims from before them; and they succeeded them, and dwelt in their stead even unto this day:

23 And the Avims which dwelt in Hazerim, even unto Azzah, the Caphtorims, which came forth out of Caphtor, destroyed them, and dwelt in their stead.)

24 ¶ Rise ye up, take your journey, and pass over the river Arnon: behold, I have given into thine hand Sihon the Amorite, king of Heshbon, and his land: begin to possess it, and contend with him in battle.

25 This day will I begin to put the dread of thee and the fear of thee upon the nations that are under the whole heaven, who shall hear report of thee, and shall tremble, and be in anguish because of thee.

26 And I sent messengers out of the wilderness of Kedemoth unto Sihon king of Heshbon with words of peace, saying, 27 Let me pass through thy land: I will go along by the high way, I will neither turn unto the right hand nor to the left.

28 Thou shalt sell me meat for money, that I may eat; and give me water for money, that I may drink: only I will pass through on my feet;

29 (As the children of Esau which dwelt in Seir, and the Moabites which dwell in Ar, did unto me;) until I shall pass over Jordan into the land which the LORD our God giveth us.

30 But Sihon king of Heshbon would not let us pass by him: for the LORD thy God hardened his spirit, and made his heart obstinate, that he might deliver him into thy hand, as appeareth this day.

31 And the LORD said unto me, Behold, I have begun to give Sihon and his land before thee: begin to possess, that thou mayest inherit his land.

32 Then Sihon came out against us, he and all his people, to fight at Jahaz.

33 And the LORD our God delivered him before us; and we smote him, and his sons, and all his people.

34 And we took all his cities at that time, and utterly destroyed the men, and the women, and the little ones, of every city, we left none to remain:

35 Only the righteousness of his servant Lot, is propitious to the Moabites, who were his posterity.

10 The Emims, &c. The original word signifies "terrible;" and probably given them by the Moabites, from their being remarkably terrible to their neighbours.

12 The Horims also dwelt in Seir, &c. In this part of the history the Israelites are encouraged not to fear their stoutest enemies, but rather to hope, that if the providence of God had done thus much for the Moabites and Edomites, he would do much more for them.

13 The brook Zered, &c. i. e. A bourn, or a valley, with a river running through it.

20 Zamzummims. Who are supposed to be the same as those called Zuzims, Gen. xiv. 5. and the name signifies "vile" or "wicked."

23 And the Avims, &c. The ancient inhabitants of the country, of which the Philistines afterwards possessed themselves.

The Caphtorims, &c. They were a people joined both in kindred and habitation with the Philistines. See Gen. x. 14. Amos ix. 7.

30 The Lord thy God hardened his spirit, &c. i. e. God gave him to his own inflexible humour, and suffered his heart to be hardened: for he, denying their request, drew upon himself their resentment, provoked the war, and was the occasion of his own destruction.

37 Only unto the land of the children of Ammon thou camest not, nor unto any place of the river Jab-bok, nor unto the cities in the mountains, nor unto whatsoever the LORD our God forbade us.

1 The story of the conquest of Og king of Bashan; the size of his bed; 12 the distribution of the conquered lands to the two tribes and half; 18 the charge given to these by Moses, 21 and his exhortation to Joshua; 23 his prayer that he might enter into the land, which is not accepted; but he is permitted to see the land.

THEN we turned, and went up the way to Bashan: and Og the king of Bashan came out against us, he and all his people, to battle at Edrei.

■ And the LORD said unto me, Fear him not: for I will deliver him, and all his people, and his land, into thy hand; and thou shalt do unto him as thou didst unto Sihon king of the Amorites, which dwelt at Heshbon.

3 So the LORD our God delivered into our hands Og also, the king of Bashan, and all his people: and we smote him until none was left to him remaining.

4 And we took all his cities at that time, there was not a city which we took not from them, threescore cities, all the region of Argob, the kingdom of Og in Bashan.

5 All these cities were fenced with high walls, gates, and bars; beside unwalled towns ■ great many.

6 And we utterly destroyed them, as we did unto Sihon king of Heshbon, utterly destroying the men, women, and children, of every city.

7 But all the cattle, and the spoil of the cities, we took for a prey to ourselves.

■ And we took at that time out of the hand of the two kings of the Amorites the land that was on this side Jordan, from the river of Arnon unto mount Hermon;

■ (Which Hermon the Sidonians call Sirion; and the Amorites call it Shenir;)

10 All the cities of the plain, and all Gilead, and all Bashan, unto Salchah and Edrei, cities of the kingdom of Og in Bashan.

11 For only Og king of Bashan remained of the remnant of giants; behold, his bedstead was ■ bedstead of iron; is it not in Rabbath of the children of Ammon? nine cubits was the length thereof, and four cubits the breadth of it, after the cubit of a man.

12 ¶ And this land, which we possessed at that time, from Aroer, which is by the river Arnon, and half mount Gilead, and the cities thereof, gave I unto the Reubenites and to the Gadites.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. II.

We are taught from this chapter, by the proceedings of the Edomites, never to injure others, especially those of our own kindred. By the Israelites being forbidden to do any harm to the Edomites, Moabites, and Ammonites, we may observe the care God took of those people for the sake of the patriarchs their progenitors; and that we ought not to revenge ourselves, nor deprive others of what God has given them. The subduing the country of the Amorites by the assistance of God, and his promises thereby beginning to be accomplished, was an earnest that God would put them into the possession of the whole country. Let us, therefore, by faith in God's promises, look for the heavenly Canaan above.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. III.

9 Which Hermon the Sidonians call, &c.] It is observable that this mountain had five names, Hermon, Sirion, Shenir, Sion, and Hor; some of which Moses here enumerates that the Israelites, who were ■ consider this mountain ■ the northern boundary, might not be misled by this diversity of appellations.

11 Of the remnant of giants.] The word we render giants, is in the Hebrew rephaim; see Gen. xiv. 5.

13 And the rest of Gilead, and all Bashan, being the kingdom of Og, gave I unto the half tribe of Manasseh; all the region of Argob, with all Bashan, which was called the land of giants.

14 Jair the son of Manasseh took all the country of Argob unto the coasts of Geshuri and Maachathi; and called them after his own name, Bashan-havoth-jair, unto this day.

15 And I gave Gilead unto Machir.

16 And unto the Reubenites and unto the Gadites I gave from Gilead even unto the river Arnon half the valley, and the border even unto the river Jab-bok, which is the border of the children of Ammon;

17 The plain also, and Jordan, and the coast thereof, from Chinnereth even unto the sea of the plain, even the salt sea, under Ashdoth-pisgah eastward.

18 ¶ And I commanded you at that time, saying, The LORD your God hath given you the land to possess it: ye shall pass over armed before your brethren the children of Israel, all that are meet for the war.

19 But your wives, and your little ones, and your cattle, (for I know that ye have much cattle,) shall abide in your cities which I have given you;

20 Until the LORD have given rest unto your brethren, as well as unto you, and until they also possess the land which the LORD your God hath given them beyond Jordan: and then shall ye return every man unto his possession, which I have given you.

21 ¶ And I commanded Joshua at that time, saying, Thine eyes have seen all that the LORD your God hath done unto these two kings: so shall the LORD do unto all the kingdoms whither thou passest.

22 Ye shall not fear them: for the LORD your God he shall fight for you.

23 ¶ And I besought the LORD at that time, saying,

24 O LORD God, thou hast begun to shew thy servant thy greatness, and thy mighty hand: for what God is there in heaven or in earth, that can do according to thy works, and according to thy might?

25 I pray thee, let me go over, and see the good land that is beyond Jordan, that goodly mountain, and Lebanon.

26 But the LORD was wroth with me for your sakes, and would not hear me: and the LORD said unto me, Let it suffice thee; speak no more unto me of this matter.

27 Get thee up into the top of Pisgah, and lift up thine eyes westward, and northward, and southward, and eastward, and behold it with thine eyes: for thou shalt not go over this Jordan.

28 But charge Joshua, and encourage him, and strengthen him: for he shall go over before this people, and he shall cause them to inherit the land which thou shalt see.

29 So we abode in the valley over against Beth-peor.

C H A P.

A bedstead of iron.] We find bedsteads of iron were not uncommon in ancient days, though of much later date. When the Thebans took Platæ, they made bedsteads of the brass and iron they found there.

Is it not in Rabbath, &c.] As a monument of his extraordinary stature, his bedstead was preserved by the Ammonites, and shewed ■ a curiosity in their chief city.

Nine cubits, &c.] From this it appears, that Og was six cubits high, reckoning the bedstead to have been made, according to the common custom, a third part larger than the person who lay in it; consequently he was ten feet and an half of our measure in height, or twice ■ tall as an ordinary man.

14 Bashan-havoth-jair, &c.] i. e. Bashan, the towns of Jair.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. III.

What is most remarkable in this chapter, is, the earnest request of Moses, that he might go into the land of Canaan, and God's refusing him that favour. This is ■ lesson to us, that God does not always hear those prayers which concern temporal affairs; and that though he pardons those whom he loves, he nevertheless thinks fit sometimes to punish them in this life, for certain sins which they have committed. David was a notable instance of this

NOW therefore hearken, O Israel, unto the statutes and unto the judgments, which I teach you, for to do them, that ye may live, and go in and possess the land which the LORD God of your fathers giveth you.

2 Ye shall not add unto the word which I command you, neither shall ye diminish ought from it, that ye may keep the commandments of the LORD your God which I command you.

3 Your eyes have seen what the LORD did because of Baal-peor: for all the men that followed Baal-peor, the LORD thy God hath destroyed them from among you.

4 But ye that did cleave unto the LORD your God are alive every one of you this day.

5 Behold, I have taught you statutes and judgments, even as the LORD my God commanded me, that ye should do so in the land whither ye go to possess it.

6 Keep therefore and do them; for this is your wisdom and your understanding in the sight of the nations, which shall hear all these statutes, and say, Surely this great nation is a wise and understanding people.

7 For what nation is there so great, who hath God so nigh unto them, as the LORD our God is in all things that we call upon him for?

■ And what nation is there so great, that hath statutes and judgments so righteous as all this law, which I set before you this day?

9 Only take heed to thyself, and keep thy soul diligently, lest thou forget the things which thine eyes have seen, and lest they depart from thy heart all the days of thy life: but teach them thy sons, and thy sons' sons;

10 Specially the day that thou stoodest before the LORD thy God in Horeb, when the LORD said unto me, Gather me the people together, and I will make them hear my words, that they may learn to fear me all the days that they shall live upon the earth, and that they may teach their children.

11 And ye came near and stood under the mountain; and the mountain burned with fire unto the midst of heaven, with darkness, clouds, and thick darkness.

12 And the LORD spake unto you out of the midst of the fire: ye heard the voice of the words, but saw no similitude; only ye heard a voice.

13 And he declared unto you his covenant, which he commanded you to perform, even ten commandments; and he wrote them upon two tables of stone.

14 And the LORD commanded me at that time to teach you statutes and judgments, that ye might do them in the land whither ye go over to possess it.

15 ¶ Take ye therefore good heed unto yourselves; for ye saw no manner of similitude on the day that the LORD spake unto you in Horeb out of the midst of the fire:

16 Lest ye corrupt yourselves, and make you a graven image, the similitude of any figure, the likeness of male or female,

17 The likeness of any beast that is on the earth, the likeness of any winged fowl that flieth in the air,

18 The likeness of any thing that creepeth on the ground, the likeness of any fish that is in the waters beneath the earth:

19 And lest thou lift up thine eyes unto heaven, and when thou seest the sun, and the moon, and the stars, even all the host of heaven, shouldest be driven to worship them, and serve them, which the LORD thy God hath divided unto all nations under the whole heaven.

20 But the LORD hath taken you, and brought you forth out of the iron furnace, even out of Egypt, to be unto him a people of inheritance, as ye are this day.

21 Furthermore the LORD was angry with me for your sakes, and sware that I should not go over Jordan, and that I should not go in unto that good land, which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance:

22 But I must die in this land, I must not go over Jordan: but ye shall go over, and possess that good land.

23 Take heed unto yourselves, lest ye forget the covenant of the LORD your God, which he made with you, and make you a graven image, or the likeness of any thing, which the LORD thy God hath forbidden thee.

24 For the LORD thy God is a consuming fire, even a jealous God.

25 ¶ When thou shalt beget children, and children's children, and ye shall have remained long in the land, and shall corrupt yourselves, and make a graven image, or the likeness of any thing, and shall do evil in the sight of the LORD thy God, to provoke him to anger:

26 I call heaven and earth to witness against you this day, that ye shall soon utterly perish from off the land whereunto ye go over Jordan to possess it; ye shall not prolong your days upon it, but shall utterly be destroyed.

27 And the LORD shall scatter you among the nations, and ye shall be left few in number among the heathen, whither the LORD shall lead you.

28 And there ye shall serve gods, the work of men's hands, wood and stone, which neither see, nor hear, nor eat, nor smell.

29 But if from thence thou shalt seek the LORD thy God, thou shalt find him, if thou seek him with all thy heart and with all thy soul.

30 When thou art in tribulation, and all these things are come upon thee, even in the latter days, if thou turn to the LORD thy God, and shalt be obedient unto his voice;

31 (For the LORD thy God is a merciful God;) he will not forsake thee, neither destroy thee, nor forget the covenant of thy fathers which he sware unto them.

32 ¶ For ask now of the days that are past, which were before thee, since the day that God created man upon

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. IV.

1 Now therefore hearken, &c.] Here Moses exhorts them, in the most serious and affectionate manner, as they were about to enter into and possess the promised land, to be punctually obedient to the laws of God, and cautious of offending him, for fear of incurring his displeasure.

2 Ye shall not add—neither shall ye diminish, &c.] Ye shall neither add to the law which I have given you, any heathenish superstition, or modes of worship, of your own invention; nor shall you wilfully omit any plain duty which it requires.

7 Who hath God so nigh them, &c.] For the Jews were the only nation under heaven that had a symbol of God's presence continually among them.

15 For ye saw a manner of similitude, &c.] Now Moses puts them in mind of this particular, a strong and everlasting argument to keep them clear of all superstitious or idolatrous worship of him, by the use of any kind of image, picture, or resemblance of any created being.

24 The Lord thy God is a consuming fire, &c.] i. e. God, from the rectitude of his nature, will be as far from letting moral evils pass with impunity, as fire is from consuming its proper fuel.

26 I call heaven and earth to witness, &c.] Moses conjures them, by all that is sacred in heaven and earth, not to incur those evils which await their disobedience.

upon the earth, and ask from the one side of heaven unto the other, whether there hath been any such thing as this great thing is, or hath been heard like it?

33 Did ever people hear the voice of God speaking out of the midst of the fire, as thou hast heard, and live.

34 Or hath God assayed to go and take him a nation from the midst of another nation, by temptations, by signs, and by wonders, and by war, and by mighty hand, and by stretched out arm, and by great terrors, according to all that the Lord your God did for you in Egypt before your eyes?

35 Unto thee it was shewed, that thou mightest know that the Lord he is God; there is none else beside him.

36 Out of heaven he made thee to hear his voice, that he might instruct thee: and upon earth he shewed thee his great fire; and thou heardest his words out of the midst of the fire.

37 And because he loved thy fathers, therefore he chose their seed after them, and brought thee out in his sight with his mighty power out of Egypt;

38 To drive out nations from before thee greater and mightier than thou art, to bring thee in, to give thee their land for an inheritance, as it is this day.

39 Know therefore this day, and consider it in thine heart, that the Lord he is God in heaven above, and upon the earth beneath: there is none else.

40 Thou shalt keep therefore his statutes, and his commandments, which I command thee this day, that it may go well with thee, and with thy children after thee, and that thou mayest prolong thy days upon the earth, which the Lord thy God giveth thee, for ever.

41 ¶ Then Moses severed three cities on this side Jordan toward the sun rising;

42 That the slayer might flee thither, which should kill his neighbour unawares, and hated him not in times past; and that fleeing unto one of these cities he might live:

43 Namely, Bezer in the wilderness, in the plain country, of the Reubenites; and Ramoth in Gilead, of the Gadites; and Golan in Bashan, of the Manassites.

44 ¶ And this is the law which Moses set before the children of Israel:

45 These are the testimonies, and the statutes, and the judgments, which Moses spake unto the children of Israel, after they came forth out of Egypt,

46 On this side Jordan, in the valley over against Beth-peor, in the land of Sihon king of the Amorites, who dwelt at Heshbon, whom Moses and the children of Israel smote, after they were come forth out of Egypt:

47 And they possessed his land, and the land of Og king of Bashan, two kings of the Amorites, which were on this side Jordan toward the sun rising;

48 From Aroer, which is by the bank of the river Arnon, even unto mount Sion, which is Hermon, 49 And all the plain on this side Jordan eastward even unto the sea of the plain, under the springs of Pisgah.

■ The Lord our God made a covenant with us in Horeb.

3 The Lord made not this covenant with our fathers, but with us, even us, who are all of us here alive this day.

4 The Lord talked with you face to face in the mount out of the midst of the fire,

5 (I stood between the Lord and you at that time, to shew you the word of the Lord: for ye were afraid by reason of the fire, and went not up into the mount;) saying,

6 ¶ I am the Lord thy God, which brought thee out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage.

7 Thou shalt have none other gods before me.

8 Thou shalt not make thee any graven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the waters beneath the earth:

9 Thou shalt not bow down thyself unto them, nor serve them: for I the Lord thy God am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me,

10 And shewing mercy unto thousands of them that love me and keep my commandments.

11 Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain: for the Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain.

12 Keep the sabbath day to sanctify it, as the Lord thy God hath commanded thee.

13 Six days thou shalt labour, and do all thy work:

14 But the seventh day is the sabbath of the Lord thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, nor thy manservant, nor thy maidservant, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates; that thy manservant and thy maidservant may rest as well as thou.

15 And remember that thou wast a servant in the land of Egypt, and that the Lord thy God brought thee out thence through a mighty hand and by a stretched out arm: therefore the Lord thy God commanded thee to keep the sabbath day.

16 ¶ Honour thy father and thy mother, as the Lord thy God hath commanded thee; that thy days may be prolonged, and that it may go well with thee, in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee.

17 Thou shalt not kill.

18 Neither shalt thou commit adultery.

19 Neither shalt thou steal.

20 Neither shalt thou bear false witness against thy neighbour.

21 Neither shalt thou desire thy neighbour's wife, neither shalt thou covet thy neighbour's house, his field, or his manservant, or his maid servant, his ox, his ass, or any thing that is thy neighbour's.

22 ¶ These of old he spake unto the fathers; but so as that all the thousands of Israel might hear and understand. The Israelites beheld a conspicuous symbol of the divine presence, and heard a divine voice, clearly and distinctly, as one man talks with another face to face.

6 I am the Lord, &c.] Peruse the commentary on Exod. xx.

15 Remember that thou wast a servant in the land of Egypt, &c.] The argument brought to enforce the observation of the sabbath, is the deliverance of the Israelites out of Egypt; perhaps, because it was typical of our redemption by Jesus Christ; in remembrance of which the Christian sabbath was to be observed.

16 That it may go well with thee, &c.] This is also an addition to what we meet with, Exod. xx. 12, as a farther motive to obedience.

22 And

Before CHRIST 1451. 22 ¶ These words the LORD spake unto all your assembly in the mount out of the midst of the fire, of the cloud, and of the thick darkness, with a great voice: and he added no more. And he wrote them in two tables of stone, and delivered them unto me.

23 And it came to pass, when ye heard the voice out of the midst of the darkness, (for the mountain did burn with fire,) that ye came near unto me, even all the heads of your tribes, and your elders;

24 And ye said, Behold, the LORD our God hath shewed us his glory and his greatness, and we have heard his voice out of the midst of the fire: we have seen this day that God doth talk with man, and he liveth.

25 Now therefore why should we die? for this great fire will consume us: if we hear the voice of the LORD our God any more, then we shall die.

26 For who is there of all flesh, that hath heard the voice of the living God speaking out of the midst of the fire, as we have, and lived?

27 Go thou near, and hear all that the LORD our God shall say: and speak thou unto us all that the LORD our God shall speak unto thee; and we will hear it, and do it.

28 And the LORD heard the voice of your words, when ye spake unto me; and the LORD said unto me, I have heard the voice of the words of this people, which they have spoken unto thee: they have well said all that they have spoken.

29 O that there were such an heart in them, that they would fear me, and keep all my commandments always, that it might be well with them, and with their children for ever!

30 Go say to them, Get you into your tents again.

31 But as for thee, stand thou here by me, and I will speak unto thee all the commandments, and the statutes, and the judgments, which thou shalt teach them, that they may do them in the land which I give them to possess it.

32 Ye shall observe to do therefore as the LORD your God hath commanded you: ye shall not turn aside to the right hand or to the left.

33 Ye shall walk in all the ways which the LORD your God hath commanded you, that ye may live, and that it may be well with you, and that ye may prolong your days in the land which ye shall possess.

1 The end of the law is obedience: 3 An exhortation thereto. 20 What they are required to teach their children concerning it.

NOW these are the commandments, the statutes, and the judgments, which the LORD your God commanded to teach you, that ye might do them in the land whither ye go to possess it:

2 That thou mightest fear the LORD thy God, to keep all his statutes and his commandments, which I command thee, thou, and thy son, and thy son's son,

22 And he added no more, &c.] Thus God pronounced the decalogue immediately to the people; but the rest of the law was given to Moses, and by him delivered to the people.

29 O that there were such an heart in them, &c.] By this we may understand that men's compliance with their duty, and the happiness which from thence arises to them, are things highly pleasing and acceptable to our Creator.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. V.

The dread which the publication of the law caused in the Jews, should make us remember that our God is a consuming fire to the transgressors of it; and fear the terrible punishment with which those are threatened who despise the voice of Jesus Christ. We may learn from hence, that nothing is more acceptable to God than the cheerful obedience of his creatures; and that his care is, to load them with his favours.

all the days of thy life; and that thy days may be prolonged.

3 ¶ Hear therefore, O Israel, and observe to do it; that it may be well with thee, and that ye may increase mightily, as the LORD God of thy fathers hath promised thee, in the land that floweth with milk and honey.

4 Hear, O Israel: the LORD our God is one LORD:

5 ¶ And thou shalt love the LORD thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might.

6 And these words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart:

7 And thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up.

¶ And thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thine hand, and they shall be as frontlets between thine eyes.

9 And thou shalt write them upon the posts of thy house, and on thy gates.

10 And it shall be, when the LORD thy God shall have brought thee unto the land which he swore unto thy fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, to give thee great and goodly cities, which thou buildedst not,

11 And houses full of all good things, which thou filledst not, and wells digged, which thou diggedst not, vineyards and olive trees, which thou plantedst not; when thou shalt have eaten and be full;

12 Then beware lest thou forget the LORD, which brought thee forth out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage.

13 Thou shalt fear the LORD thy God, and serve him, and shalt swear by his name.

14 Ye shall not go after other gods, of the gods of the people which are round about you;

15 (For the LORD thy God is a jealous God among you) lest the anger of the LORD thy God be kindled against thee, and destroy thee from off the face of the earth.

16 Ye shall not tempt the LORD your God, as ye tempted him in Massah.

17 Ye shall diligently keep the commandments of the LORD your God, and his testimonies, and his statutes, which he hath commanded thee.

18 And thou shalt do that which is right and good in the sight of the LORD: that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest go in and possess the good land which the LORD swore unto thy fathers, 19 To cast out all thine enemies from before thee, as the LORD hath spoken.

20 ¶ And when thy son asketh thee in time to come, saying, What mean the testimonies, and the statutes, and the judgments, which the LORD our God hath commanded you?

21 Then thou shalt say unto thy son, We were Pharaoh's bondmen in Egypt; and the LORD brought us out of Egypt with a mighty hand:

22 And the LORD shewed signs and wonders, great and

4 The Lord our God is one Lord.] Seeing that polytheism is the great error of the world, the Jewish religion and laws were calculated to strike at the root of this epidemical evil; therefore the first and fundamental article of their creed is, that there is but one supreme God, Jehovah, so he alone is to be the object of worship, in opposition to heathenish idols and false gods.

¶ For a sign upon thine hand, &c.] Read the note on Exod. xiii. 9.

13 And shall swear by his name.] For to swear by the Lord of hosts, is to profess the true religion, Isaiah xix. 18. and in Psalm lxiii. 11: every one that sweareth by him, means every worshipper of the true God.

15 Lest the anger of the Lord, &c.] Neither in the law nor the prophets do we find that anger, fury, jealousy, or indignation, attributed to God, but upon occasion of idolatry.

24 And the LORD commanded us to do all these statutes, to fear the LORD our God, for our good always, that he might preserve us alive, as it is at this day.

25 And it shall be our righteousness, if we observe to do all these commandments before the LORD our God, as he hath commanded us.

■ And when the LORD thy God shall deliver them before thee; thou shalt smite them, and utterly destroy them: thou shalt make no covenant with them, nor shew mercy unto them:

4 For they will turn away thy son from following me, that they may serve other gods: so will the anger of the LORD be kindled against you, and destroy thee suddenly.

5 But thus shall ye deal with them; ye shall destroy their altars, and break down their images, and cut down their groves, and burn their graven images with fire.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. VI.

This chapter instructs us, that our chief care ought to be to love and obey God, and ■ adhere inviolably ■ his word; that the bounden duty of parents is, to teach their children in the law and fear of the Lord; and to be always speaking of his mercies, his commandments and judgments ■ we should also learn, never to abuse the favours of God, but to be always meditating upon them, so that we may both fear and love him, which alone ■ make ■ happy.

12 ■ Wherefore it shall come to pass, if ye hearken to these judgments, and keep, and do them, that the LORD thy God shall keep unto thee the covenant and the mercy which he swore unto thy fathers:

13 And he will love thee, and bless thee, and multiply thee: he will also bless the fruit of thy womb, and the fruit of thy land, thy corn, and thy wine, and thine oil, the increase of thy kine, and the flocks of thy sheep, in the land which he swore unto thy fathers to give thee.

14 Thou shalt be blessed above all people: there shall not be male or female barren among you, or among your catle.

15 And the LORD will take away from thee all sickness, and will put none of the evil diseases of Egypt, which thou knowest, upon thee; but will lay them upon all them that hate thee.

16 And thou shalt consume all the people which the LORD thy God shall deliver thee; thine eye shall have no pity upon them: neither shalt thou serve their gods; for that will be a snare unto thee.

17 If thou shalt say in thine heart, These nations are more than I; how can I dispossess them?

18 Thou shalt not be afraid of them: but shalt well remember what the LORD thy God did unto Pharaoh, and unto all Egypt;

19 The great temptations which thine eyes saw, and the signs, and the wonders, and the mighty hand, and the stretched out arm, whereby the LORD thy God brought thee out: so shall the LORD thy God do unto all the people of whom thou art afraid.

20 Moreover the LORD thy God will send the hornet among them, until they that are left, and hide themselves from thee, be destroyed.

21 Thou shalt not be affrighted at them: for the LORD thy God is among you, a mighty God and terrible.

23 But the LORD thy God shall deliver them unto thee, and shall destroy them with a mighty destruction, until they be destroyed.

7 The Lord did not set his love upon you, &c.] It is not your numbers, nor your strength, nor any qualifications of your own, that induced God to confer these singular privileges upon you; but it was the completion of the promises made to your ancestors, to which you are indebted for all the distinguishing blessings of your nation.

C H A P. VIII.

An exhortation to obedience in regard of God's mercy and goodness in his dealings with Israel.

ALL the commandments which I command thee this day shall ye observe to do, that ye may live, and multiply, and go in and possess the land which the LORD sware unto your fathers.

2 And thou shalt remember all the way which the LORD thy God led thee these forty years in the wilderness, to humble thee, and to prove thee, to know what was in thine heart, whether thou wouldest keep his commandments, or no.

3 And he humbled thee, and suffered thee to hunger, and fed thee with manna, which thou knewest not, neither did thy fathers know; that he might make thee know that man doth not live by bread only, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of the LORD doth man live.

4 Thy raiment waxed not old upon thee, neither did thy foot swell, these forty years.

5 Thou shalt also consider in thine heart, that, as a man chasteneth his son, so the LORD thy God chasteneth thee.

6 Therefore thou shalt keep the commandments of the LORD thy God, to walk in his ways, and to fear him.

7 For the LORD thy God bringeth thee into a good land, a land of brooks of water, of fountains and depths that spring out of valleys and hills;

■ A land of wheat, and barley, and vines, and fig trees, and pomegranates; ■ land of oil olive, and honey;

9 A land wherein thou shalt eat bread without scarceness, thou shalt not lack any thing in it; a land whose stones are iron, and out of whose hills thou mayest dig brass.

10 When thou hast eaten and art full, then thou shalt bless the LORD thy God for the good land which he hath given thee.

11 Beware that thou forget not the LORD thy God, in not keeping his commandments, and his judgments, and his statutes, which I command thee this day:

12 Lest when thou hast eaten and art full, and hast built goodly houses, and dwelt therein;

13 And when thy herds and thy flocks multiply, and thy silver and thy gold is multiplied, and all that thou hast is multiplied;

14 Then thine heart be lifted up, and thou forget the LORD thy God, which brought thee forth out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage;

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. VII.

To make a right use of this chapter, we should consider that the Canaanites were destroyed not only for their abominable wickedness, but that the Israelites might not by them be drawn into iniquity and idolatry; whence it appears, that God does at last destroy nations, when their wickedness is become enormous; and that we should be afraid to have any dealings with the prophane, lest we should be involved in their sins and punishment.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. VIII.

3 Man doth not live by bread only, but by every word, &c. i. e. He supplies your wants by his miraculous hand, to convince you, that the sustenance and preservation of your life is not owing to mere bread or ordinary food; but to the word or power of God, and to any thing that he shall please to appoint to be the means of your nourishment.

4 Thy raiment waxed not old upon thee, neither did thy feet swell, &c. Seeing that nothing hindered the Israelites from trafficking with their Arabian neighbours, it is evident they might have been supplied with cloaths, either by making or purchasing them: these words of Moses have therefore been explained thus: "Thy raiment waxed not old upon thee:" that is, Providence has been so liberal in supplying your wants in this desert land, that you have never, through poverty, been obliged to let your clothes wax old upon you, but have always been supplied with new before the old were worn out.

16 Who fed thee in the wilderness with manna, which thy fathers knew not, that he might humble thee, and that he might prove thee, to do thee good at thy latter end;

17 And thou say in thine heart, My power and the might of mine hand hath gotten me this wealth.

18 But thou shalt remember the LORD thy God: for it is he that giveth thee power to get wealth, that he may establish his covenant which he sware unto thy fathers, as it is this day.

19 And it shall be, if thou do at all forget the LORD thy God, and walk after other gods and serve them, and worship them, I testify against you this day that ye shall surely perish.

20 As the nations which the LORD destroyeth before your face, so shall ye perish; because ye would not be obedient unto the voice of the LORD your God.

C H A P. IX.

1 Moses dissuadeth them from the opinion of their own righteousness, 7 by rehearsing their several rebellions.

HEAR, O Israel: Thou art to pass over Jordan this day, to go in to possess nations greater and mightier than thyself, cities great and fenced up to heaven,

2 A people great and tall, the children of the Anakims, whom thou knowest, and of whom thou hast heard say, Who can stand before the children of Anak!

3 Understand therefore this day, that the LORD thy God is he which goeth over before thee; as ■ consuming fire he shall destroy them, and he shall bring them down before thy face: so shalt thou drive them out, and destroy them quickly, as the LORD hath said unto thee.

4 Speak not thou in thine heart, after that the LORD thy God hath cast them out from before thee, saying, For my righteousness the LORD hath brought me in to possess this land: but for the wickedness of these nations the LORD doth drive them out from before thee.

5 Not for thy righteousness, or for the uprightness of thine heart, dost thou go to possess their land: but for the wickedness of these nations the LORD thy God doth drive them out from before thee, and that he may perform the word which the LORD sware unto thy fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

6 Understand, therefore, that the LORD thy God giveth

14 Then thine heart be lifted up, &c. For want of reflecting on the instability of human affairs, men think themselves self-sufficient, and lose that just sense which they ought to have of the sovereignty of their Maker, and their absolute and necessary dependence upon him.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. VIII.

We have, in this chapter, two instructions, drawn from the favours and corrections of God, to excite us to fear him, and also ■ meditate upon the mercies and afflictions which ■ from his hand. From hence we are also taught, that men ■ too prone to abuse prosperity; that they forget God, and fall into pride and sin, when they are too much at their ease; and thereby force God to take from them those comforts and that plenty of which they made so ill ■ use.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. IX.

■ This day, &c. That is, at this time, very shortly; "day" is often used in scripture for time; among other places, see ■ Cor. vi. 2.

5 Not for thy righteousness, &c. For though the Canaanites were expelled for their national wickedness, yet it does not follow that the Israelites were settled in their room for their own virtue. God often chastises the wicked by means of others, who are full as wicked ■ those who are thus chastised.

Before CHRIST 1451. giveth thee not this good land to possess it for thy righteousness, for thou art a stiffnecked people.

7 ¶ Remember, and forget not, how thou provokedst the LORD thy God to wrath in the wilderness: from the day that thou didst depart out of the land of Egypt, until ye came unto this place, ye have been rebellious against the LORD.

¶ Also in Horeb ye provoked the LORD to wrath, so that the LORD was angry with you to have destroyed you.

9 When I was gone up into the mount to receive the tables of stone, even the tables of the covenant which the LORD made with you, then I abode in the mount forty days and forty nights, I neither did eat bread nor drink water:

10 And the LORD delivered unto me two tables of stone written with the finger of God; and on them was written according to all the words, which the LORD spake with you in the mount out of the midst of the fire in the day of the assembly.

11 And it came to pass at the end of forty days and forty nights, that the LORD gave me the two tables of stone, even the tables of the covenant.

12 And the LORD said unto me, Arise, get thee down quickly from hence; for thy people which thou hast brought forth out of Egypt have corrupted themselves; they are quickly turned aside out of the way which I commanded them; they have made them a molten image.

13 Furthermore the LORD spake unto me, saying, I have seen this people, and, behold, it is a stiffnecked people:

14 Let me alone, that I may destroy them, and blot out their name from under heaven: and I will make of thee a nation mightier and greater than they.

15 So I turned and came down from the mount, and the mount burned with fire: and the two tables of the covenant were in my two hands.

16 And I looked, and, behold, ye had sinned against the LORD your God, and had made you a molten calf: ye had turned aside quickly out of the way which the LORD had commanded you.

17 And I took the two tables, and cast them out of my two hands, and brake them before your eyes.

18 And I fell down before the LORD, as at the first, forty days and forty nights: I did neither eat bread, nor drink water, because of all your sins which ye sinned, in doing wickedly in the sight of the LORD, to provoke him to anger.

19 For I was afraid of the anger and hot displeasure, wherewith the LORD was wroth against you to destroy you. But the LORD hearkened unto me at that time also.

20 And the LORD was very angry with Aaron to have destroyed him: and I prayed for Aaron also the same time.

21 And I took your sin, the calf which ye had made, and burnt it with fire, and stamped it, and ground it very small, even until it was as small as dust: and I cast the dust thereof into the brook that descended out of the mount.

7 Forget not, how thou provokedst the Lord thy God to wrath, &c.] Here, that they might have no pretence to think that God brought them into the land of Canaan for their righteousness, he shews them, what a miracle of mercy it was, that they had not long ere this been destroyed in the wilderness: so far from purchasing his favour, he reminds them, that they had many times laid themselves open to his displeasure.

12 Thy people which, &c.] These words denote the extreme anger of God: he seems here to abandon them, throws them out of his care, and disowns them: they are thy people, says he to Moses, they are mine of mine, nor shall they be dealt with as mine.

26 I prayed therefore unto the Lord, &c.] It appears from the manner of this prayer, that it was entirely owing to the mercy of God; and the importunity of Moses, and not any merit of theirs, that the Israelites stood indebted for pardon and reconciliation.

22 And at Taberah, and at Massah, and at Kibroth-hataavah, ye provoked the LORD to wrath.

23 Likewise when the LORD sent you from Kadeshbarnea, saying, Go up and possess the land which I have given you; then ye rebelled against the commandment of the LORD your God, and ye believed him not, nor hearkened to his voice.

24 Ye have been rebellious against the LORD from the day that I knew you.

25 Thus I fell down before the LORD forty days and forty nights, as I fell down at the first; because the LORD had said he would destroy you.

26 I prayed therefore unto the LORD, and said, O LORD God, destroy not thy people and thine inheritance, which thou hast redeemed through thy greatness, which thou hast brought forth out of Egypt with a mighty hand.

27 Remember thy servants, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; look not unto the stubbornness of this people, nor to their wickedness, nor to their sin:

28 Lest the land whence thou broughtest us out say, Because the LORD was not able to bring them into the land which he promised them, and because he hated them, he hath brought them out to slay them in the wilderness.

29 Yet they are thy people and thine inheritance, which thou broughtest out by thy mighty power and by thy stretched out arm.

C H A P. X.

1 Moses proceedeth to relate the mercy of God in restoring the two tables, 6 continuing the priesthood, 8 separating the tribe of Levi, 10 and hearkening unto his suit for the people. 12 He exhorteth to obedience.

At that time the LORD said unto me, Hew thee two tables of stone like unto the first, and come up unto me into the mount, and make thee an ark of wood.

2 And I will write on the tables the words that were in the first tables which thou brakest, and thou shalt put them in the ark.

3 And I made an ark of shittim wood, and hewed two tables of stone like unto the first, and went up into the mount, having the two tables in mine hand.

4 And he wrote on the two tables, according to the first writing, the ten commandments, which the LORD spake unto you in the mount out of the midst of the fire in the day of the assembly: and the LORD gave them unto me.

5 And I turned myself and came down from the mount, and put the tables in the ark which I had made; and there they be, as the LORD commanded me.

6 ¶ And the children of Israel took their journey from Beeroth of the children of Jaakan to Mosera: there Aaron died, and there he was buried; and Eleazar his son ministered in the priest's office in his stead.

7 From thence they journeyed unto Gudgodah; and from Gudgodah to Jotbath, a land of rivers of waters.

8 ¶ At that time the LORD separated the tribe of Levi, to bear the ark of the covenant of the LORD, to stand

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. IX. The instruction are to derive from this chapter is, that it is to the mercy of God alone that we are obliged for all our happiness; and that the remembrance of his mercies, and of our own unworthiness, ought always to be present with us, and incline to humility and gratitude.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. X.

6 Took their journey from Beeroth—to Mosera: there Aaron died, &c.] From the account which we have of their encampments, in Numb. xxxiii. it is evident that mount Hor and Mosera were two distinct places; and therefore some have maintained, that the sixth and seventh verses of this chapter, in the common Hebrew text, have been extremely corrupted by the ignorance of some transcribers; because the Samaritan makes the account, here given, exactly agree with the order of the encampments mentioned Numb. xxxiii. and there it is said that Aaron died, and was buried in mount Hor.

Before CHRIST 1451. stand before the LORD to minister unto him, and to bless in his name, unto this day.

9 Wherefore Levi hath no part nor inheritance with his brethren; the LORD is his inheritance, according as the LORD thy God promised him.

10 ¶ And I stayed in the mount, according to the first time, forty days and forty nights; and the LORD hearkened unto me at that time also, and the LORD would not destroy thee.

11 And the LORD said unto me, Arise, take thy journey before the people, that they may go in and possess the land, which I sware unto their fathers to give unto them.

12 ¶ And now, Israel, what doth the LORD thy God require of thee, but to fear the LORD thy God, to walk in all his ways, and to love him, and to serve the LORD thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul,

13 To keep the commandments of the LORD, and his statutes, which I command thee this day for thy good?

14 Behold, the heaven and the heaven of heavens is the LORD's thy God, the earth also, with all that therein is.

15 Only the LORD had a delight in thy fathers to love them, and he chose their seed after them, even you above all people, as it is this day.

16 Circumcise therefore the foreskin of your heart, and be no more stiffnecked.

17 For the LORD your God is God of gods, and Lord of lords, a great God, a mighty, and a terrible, which regardeth not persons, nor taketh reward:

18 He doth execute the judgment of the fatherless and widow, and loveth the stranger, in giving him food and raiment.

19 Love ye therefore the stranger: for ye were strangers in the land of Egypt.

20 Thou shalt fear the LORD thy God; him shalt thou serve, and to him shalt thou cleave, and swear by his name.

21 He is thy praise, and he is thy God, that hath done for thee these great and terrible things, which thine eyes have seen.

22 Thy fathers went down into Egypt with threescore and ten persons; and now the LORD thy God hath made thee as the stars of heaven for multitude.

CHAP. XI.

1 Moses continueth his exhortation to obedience, 2 from the people's personal experience of God's great works, and their future expectations in the land of promise. 10 The character of the land; 13 which God will render fruitful or barren according as they behave. 18 A careful study in these words is required of them, and instruction

14 The heaven and the heaven of heavens, &c.] The first heaven comprehends the atmosphere, or the space illuminated by the sun, moon, and stars: and the second, or the heaven of heavens, is the glorious region, in which the throne of God is placed.

16 Circumcise therefore the foreskin of your heart, &c.] If you would recommend yourselves to the favour of God, you must not satisfy yourselves with the observance of external rites and ceremonies; but your chief aim must be, to attain those inward dispositions of mind, and to reform those sinful affections, that are intended by circumcision, and other external ordinances.

19 Love ye therefore the stranger, &c.] i. e. Be kind therefore to all your fellow-creatures, out of honour to your common Creator, and in imitation of that tender care which he exercises over all the sons of men.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. X.

We are taught, from this chapter, that the end which God proposes to himself in all that he does for mankind, and what he requires from us, above all things, is, that we should love him with all our heart, and serve him with all our strength; that we should fear him, walk in his ways, and love our neighbour as ourselves.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XI.

THEREFORE thou shalt love the LORD thy God, and keep his charge, and his statutes, and his judgments, and his commandments, always.

2 ¶ And know ye this day; for I speak not with your children which have not known, and which have not seen the chastisement of the LORD your God, his greatness, his mighty hand, and his stretched out arm.

3 And his miracles, and his acts, which he did in the midst of Egypt unto Pharaoh the king of Egypt, and unto all his land;

4 And what he did unto the army of Egypt, unto their horses, and to their chariots; how he made the water of the Red sea to overflow them as they pursued after you, and how the LORD hath destroyed them unto this day;

5 And what he did unto you in the wilderness, until ye came into this place;

6 And what he did unto Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab, the son of Reuben: how the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up, and their households, and their tents, and all the substance that was in their possession, in the midst of all Israel:

7 But your eyes have seen all the great acts of the LORD which he did.

8 Therefore shall ye keep all the commandments which I command you this day, that ye may be strong, and go in and possess the land, whither ye go to possess it;

9 And that ye may prolong your days in the land, which the LORD sware unto your fathers to give unto them and to their seed, a land that floweth with milk and honey.

10 ¶ For the land, whither thou goest in to possess it, is not as the land of Egypt, from whence ye came out, where thou sowedst thy seed, and wateredst it with thy foot, as a garden of herbs:

11 But the land, whither ye go to possess it, is a land of hills and valleys, and drinketh water of the rain of heaven:

12 A land which the LORD thy God careth for: the eyes of the LORD thy God are always upon it, from the beginning of the year even unto the end of the year.

13 ¶ And it shall come to pass, if ye shall hearken diligently unto my commandments which I command you this day, to love the LORD your God, and to serve him with all your heart and with all your soul, above fifty could very well remember their deliverance out of Egypt; for all those who, at the time of their deliverance, were turned of twenty, were now (except only three of them) all dead; but of those, who at that time were under twenty, many were now living, and to them he speaks, and not to their children, who could know it only by hearsay.

10 And wateredst it with thy foot, &c.] This signifies that whereas Egypt was watered by human art, Canaan was watered by rain from heaven: or as the foot is sometimes metaphorically used for labour, the import of the phrase may be, Which thou wateredst with great labour.

11 But the land, whither ye go to possess it, &c.] Whilst the Egyptians were inventing methods, and labouring to moisten and refresh their grounds; the Israelites knew no such necessity, and were released from all that toil; they had their God to "water their furrows, and to send rain into the little vallies thereof: he blessed their increase, he crowned the year with his goodness, and his clouds dropped fatness," Psalm lxxv. 11, 12.

12 A land which the Lord thy God careth for, &c.] i. e. Not so much fruitful of itself, as by the peculiar blessings of God upon it; God often declares, that he would either send or withhold the rain, and they were to expect to find the country fruitful or barren, as they were faithful or remiss in their duty.

14 The first rain and the latter rain, &c.] The first at the autumnal, and the second at the vernal equinox: the first, to cause the seed sown to spring up; and the second, to nourish the corn until the harvest.

Before CHRIST 1451. mayest gather in thy corn, and thy wine, and thine oil.

15 And I will send grass in thy fields for thy cattle, that thou mayest eat and be full.

16 Take heed to yourselves, that your heart be not deceived, and ye turn aside, and serve other gods, and worship them;

17 And then the LORD's wrath be kindled against you, and he shut up the heaven, that there be no rain, and that the land yield not her fruit; and ye perish quickly from off the good land which the LORD giveth you.

18 ¶ Therefore shall ye lay up these my words in your heart and in your soul, and bind them for a sign upon your hand, that they may be as frontlets between your eyes.

19 And ye shall teach them your children, speaking of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, when thou liest down, and when thou risest up.

20 And thou shalt write them upon the door posts of thine house, and upon thy gates:

21 That your days may be multiplied, and the days of your children, in the land which the LORD swore unto your fathers to give them, as the days of heaven upon the earth.

22 ¶ For if ye shall diligently keep all these commandments which I command you to do them, to love the LORD your God, to walk in all his ways, and to cleave unto him;

23 Then will the LORD drive out all these nations from before you, and ye shall possess greater nations and mightier than yourselves.

24 Every place whereon the soles of your feet shall tread shall be your's: from the wilderness and Lebanon, from the river, the river Euphrates, even unto the uttermost sea shall your coast be.

25 There shall no man be able to stand before you: for the LORD your God shall lay the fear of you and the dread of you upon all the land that ye shall tread upon, as he hath said unto you.

26 ¶ Behold, I set before you this day a blessing and a curse;

27 A blessing, if ye obey the commandments of the LORD your God, which I command you this day:

28 And a curse, if ye will not obey the commandments of the LORD your God, but turn aside out of the way which I command you this day, to go after other gods, which ye have not known.

29 And it shall come to pass, when the LORD thy God hath brought thee unto the land whither thou goest to possess it, that thou shalt put the blessing upon mount Gerizim, and the curse upon mount Ebal.

30 Are they not on the other side Jordan, by the way where the sun goeth down, in the land of the Canaanites, which dwell in the champaign over against Gilgal, beside the plains of Moreh?

29 Thou shalt put the blessing, &c.] i. e. Thou shalt cause it to be pronounced.

Upon mount Gerizim, and upon mount Ebal.] The above-mentioned mountains were separated by a valley two hundred paces wide, and situated in the tribe of Ephraim, near the oaks or plains of Moreh, where God appeared to Abraham, after he came into the land of Canaan, and where Abraham built an altar unto the Lord.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XI.

We should always remember, that if Moses denounced blessings and curses to the Jews to oblige them to fear the Lord; the gospel contains much more valuable blessings, and more terrible curses. Let us think well of this, and learn to obey the commands of God.

Before CHRIST 1451.
 1. Thou shalt not be stoned, whether thou goest to possess them, and dwellest in their land;

2. Heed to thyself that thou be not snared by them, after that they be destroyed from before thee; and that thou enquire not after their gods, saying, How did these nations serve their gods? even so will I do likewise.

3. Thou shalt not do so unto the LORD thy God: for every abomination to the LORD which he hateth have they done unto their gods; for even their sons and their daughters they have burnt in the fire to their gods.

4. What thing soever I command you, observe and do it: thou shalt not add thereto, nor diminish from it.

C H A P. XIII.

Entice to idolatry must be stoned to death, 6 without regard to nearness of relation. 12 Idolatrous cities utterly destroyed.

1. If there arise among you a prophet, or a dreamer of dreams, and giveth thee a sign or wonder, and the sign or the wonder come to pass, where he hath spoken unto thee, saying, Let us go after other gods, which thou hast not known, and let us serve them;

2. Thou shalt not hearken unto the words of that prophet, or that dreamer of dreams: for the LORD your God proveth you, to know whether ye love the LORD your God with all your heart and with all your soul.

3. And ye shall walk after the LORD your God, and fear him, and keep his commandments, and obey his voice, and ye shall serve him, and cleave unto him.

4. And if a prophet, or that dreamer of dreams, shall say unto thee, Let us go and serve other gods, which thou hast not known, neither have thou brought forth out of the land of Egypt, and redeemed thee out of the house of bondage, to thrust thee out of the land which the LORD thy God commanded thee to walk in. So shalt thou put the evil away from the midst of thee.

5. If thy brother, the son of thy mother, or thy son, or thy daughter, or the wife of thy bosom, or thy friend, which is as thine own soul, entice thee secretly, saying, Let us go and serve other gods, which thou hast not known, thou, nor thy fathers;

6. Neither of the gods of the people which are round about thee, nigh unto thee, or far off from thee, from the one end of the earth even unto the other end of the earth;

7. Thou shalt not consent unto him, nor hearken unto him: neither shall thine eye pity him, neither shalt thou spare, neither shalt thou conceal him:

8. But thou shalt surely kill him; thine hand shall be first against him to put him to death, and afterwards the hand of all the people.

9. And thou shalt stone him with stones, that he die; because he hath sought to thrust thee away from the LORD thy God: so shalt thou put away the evil from thee.

10. And thou shalt not follow the multitude of the people, saying, We will do as they do: for ye shall stand fast by the LORD your God, and shall keep his commandments, and shall not follow the multitude of the people, in that they do.

EXPLANATORY NOTES. CHAP. XIII.

1. If there arise among you a prophet, &c. Forseeing that the Israelites would, in after ages, be exposed to the delusions of false prophets, Moses lays down this certain rule whereby to judge of such pretended inspirations, namely, the existence of the true God, and the authority, goodness, and truth of his laws and religion, in opposition to the idolatrous customs, absurdities, follies, and wickednesses of the worship of the heathen.

2. Thou shalt not hearken unto the words of that prophet, &c. It is not sufficient for thee to be silent in a wicked persuasion, but thou must also, without any necessary proceeding, and by way of justice, in accusing him to the multitude, set out his wickedness to have it enquired into, and if by sufficient proof, and by the testimony of the multitude, thou oughtest to be assured of his guilt, thou must execute him.

the land which the LORD your God giveth you, and ye fhall poffefs it, and dwell therein.

32 And ye fhall obferve to do all the ftatutes and judgments which I fet before you this day.

C H A P. XII.

1 Monuments of idolatry muft be deftroyed. 4 The fervice of God muft be attended upon in the place of his choofing.

15, 20, Flefh for common food may be killed and eaten elfewhere, only without the blood; 17, 26, but all holy things muft be brought and eaten in the holy place. 19 The Levite not to be forfaken. 29 Idolatrous practices not to be enquired after.

THESE are the ftatutes and judgments, which ye fhall obferve to do in the land, which the LORD God of thy fathers giveth thee to poffefs it, all the days that ye live upon the earth.

2 Ye fhall utterly deftroy all the places, wherein the nations which ye fhall poffefs ferved their gods, upon the high mountains, and upon the hills, and under every green tree:

3 And ye fhall overthrow their altars, and break their pillars, and burn their groves with fire; and ye fhall hew down the graven images of their gods, and deftroy the names of them out of that place.

4 ¶ Ye fhall not do fo unto the LORD your God.

5 But unto the place which the LORD your God fhall choofe out of all your tribes to put his name there, even unto his habitation fhall ye feek, and thither thou fhalt come:

6 And thither ye fhall bring your burnt offerings, and your facrifices, and your tithes, and heave offerings of your hand, and your vows, and your freewill offerings, and the firftlings of your herds and of your flocks:

7 And there ye fhall eat before the LORD your God, and ye fhall rejoice in all ye put your hand unto, ye and your houfholds, wherein the LORD thy God hath bleffed thee.

8 Ye fhall not do after all the things that we do here this day, every man whatfoever is right in his own eyes.

9 For ye are not as yet come to the reft and to the inheritance, which the LORD your God giveth you.

10 But when ye go over Jordan, and dwell in the land which the LORD your God giveth you to inherit, and when he giveth you reft from all your enemies round about, fo that ye dwell in fafety;

11 Then there fhall be a place which the LORD your God fhall choofe to caufe his name to dwell there; thither fhall ye bring all that I command you; your burnt offerings, and your facrifices, your tithes, and the heave offering of your hand, and all your choice vows which ye vow unto the LORD:

12 And ye fhall rejoice before the LORD your God, ye, and your fons, and your daughters, and your menfervants, and your maidservants, and the Levite that is within your gates; forasmuch as he hath no part nor inheritance with you.

13 Take heed to thyfelf that thou offer not thy burnt offerings in every place that thou feeft:

Upon mount Gerizim, and upon mount Ebal.] The above-mentioned mountains were feparated by a valley two hundred paces wide, and fituated in the tribe of Ephraim, near the oaks or plains of Moreh; where God appeared to Abraham, after he came into the land of Canaan, and where Abraham built an altar unto the Lord.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XI.

We fhould always remember, that if Mofes denounced bleffings and curfes to the Jews to oblige them to fear the Lord; the gospel contains much more valuable bleffings, and more terrible curfes. Let us think well of this, and learn to obey the commands of God.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XII.

1 These are the ftatutes, &c.] Here Mofes begins with thofe ftatutes which relate to the worfhip of God; and particularly thofe which explain the fecond commandment, about which God is in a fpecial manner jealous.

2 Upon the high mountains, and upon the hills, &c.] The firft altars (of nature's raifing) acquired a relative fanctity; that is, they were confidered as holy places; but the temples and altars there raifed being afterwards abufed to the vileft purpofes of fuperftition, and barbarous idol-worfhip, Mofes wifely ordered them to be deftroyed.

3 And burn their groves, &c.] Thefe were the places where the works of darknefs were committed; they muft all be deftroyed, with the altars, pillars, and images that had been ufed by the heathens in the worfhip of their gods, fo as the very names of them might be buried in oblivion; and not only not to be remembered with refpect, but not remembered at all.

5 To put his name there, &c.] This is rendered in the Chaldee paraphrafe, To caufe his majefty or divine prefence to dwell there.

6 Your tithes, &c.] i. e. Thofe which were ufed at feaft of thankfgiving, in folemn feftivals.

8 Ye fhall not do after all the things that we do here this day, &c.] While the Ifraelites were deftitute of many things in the wildernels, requifite to the exaet performance of their fared rites, they were excufed from the obfervance of many of them, and, among the reft, of that of circumcifion.

^{Before CHRIST 1451.} 14 But in the place which the LORD shall choose in one of thy tribes, there thou shalt offer thy burnt offerings, and there thou shalt do all that I command thee.

15 ¶ Notwithstanding thou mayest kill and eat flesh in all thy gates, whatsoever thy soul lusteth after, according to the blessing of the LORD thy God which he hath given thee: the unclean and the clean may eat thereof, as of the roebuck, and as of the hart.

16 Only ye shall not eat the blood; ye shall pour it upon the earth as water.

17 ¶ Thou mayest not eat within thy gates thy rithe of thy corn, or of thy wine, or of thy oil, or the firstlings of thy herds or of thy flock, nor any of thy vows which thou vowest, nor thy freewill offerings, or heave offering of thine hand:

18 But thou must eat them before the LORD thy God in the place which the LORD thy God shall choose, thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, and thy manservant, and thy maidservant, and the Levite that is within thy gates: and thou shalt rejoice before the LORD thy God in all that thou puttest thine hands unto.

19 ¶ Take heed to thyself that thou forsake not the Levite as long as thou livest upon the earth.

20 ¶ When the LORD thy God shall enlarge thy border, as he hath promised thee, and thou shalt say, I will eat flesh, because thy soul longeth to eat flesh; thou mayest eat flesh, whatsoever thy soul lusteth after.

21 If the place which the LORD thy God hath chosen to put his name there be too far from thee, then thou shalt kill of thy herd and of thy flock, which the LORD hath given thee, as I have commanded thee, and thou shalt eat in thy gates whatsoever thy soul lusteth after.

22 Even as the roebuck and the hart is eaten, so thou shalt eat them: the unclean and the clean shall eat of them alike.

23 Only be sure that thou eat not the blood: for the blood is the life; and thou mayest not eat the life with the flesh.

24 Thou shalt not eat it; thou shalt pour it upon the earth as water.

25 Thou shalt not eat it; that it may go well with thee, and with thy children after thee, when thou shalt do that which is right in the sight of the LORD.

26 ¶ Only thy holy things which thou hast, and thy vows, thou shalt take, and go unto the place which the LORD shall choose:

27 And thou shalt offer the burnt offerings, the flesh and the blood, upon the altar of the LORD thy God: and the blood of the sacrifices shall be poured out upon the altar of the LORD thy God, and thou shalt eat the flesh.

28 Observe and hear all these words which I command thee, that it may go well with thee, and with thy children after thee for ever, when thou doest that which is good and right in the sight of the LORD thy God.

29 ¶ When the LORD thy God shall cut off the

^{Before CHRIST 1451.} nations from before thee, whither thou goest to possess them, and thou succeedest them, and dwellest in their land;

30 Take heed to thyself that thou be not snared by following them, after that they be destroyed from before thee; and that thou enquire not after their gods, saying, How did these nations serve their gods? even so will I do likewise.

31 Thou shalt not do so unto the LORD thy God: for every abomination to the LORD which he hateth have they done unto their gods; for even their sons and their daughters they have burnt in the fire to their gods.

10 And thou shalt stone him with stones, that he die; because he hath sought to thrust thee away from the

the- selves from evil customs and evil examples; and to employ in the service of God, and support of the poor, those temporal goods which God has bestowed on them.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XIII.

1 If there arise among you a prophet, &c.] Foreseeing that the Israelites would, in after ages, be exposed to the delusions of false prophets, Moses lays down this certain rule whereby to judge of such pretenders to inspiration; namely, the existence of the one true God, and the authority, goodness, and truth of his laws and religion, in opposition to the idolatrous customs, absurdities, follies, and wickednesses of the worship of the heathens.

9 Thou shalt surely kill him, &c.] It is not sufficient for thee to dissent from his wicked persuasions; but thou must also, without any mercy, procure vengeance on him by way of justice, in accusing him to the magistrate, either by information to have it enquired into, or by sufficient proof; and, in case he is condemned, thou oughtest to be the first that shall put his condemnation in execution.

14 In the place which the Lord shall choose in one of thy tribes, there thou shalt offer, &c.] In all the law of Moses there is not any particular precept so largely pressed and so frequently inculcated as this.

18 The Levite that is within thy gates, &c.] Besides the Levites who attended the altar, as assistants to the priests, there were other Levites also, dispersed in the country, to instruct the people in the law of God, and to assist them in their devotions.

23 Be sure that thou eat not the blood, &c.] The reason why the Israelites were forbidden thus strictly the eating of blood, was, it is supposed, to prevent the superstitions of the old idolaters, about the blood of their sacrifices, which they thought their demons delighted in, and by eating of which they imagined that they had communion with them.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XII.

From this chapter Christians may learn, that God will not be served otherwise than as he prescribes in his word; that they ought to abominate all sorts of idolatry and superstition; to keep them-

Before the LORD thy God, which brought thee out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage.

11 And all Israel shall hear, and fear, and shall do no more any such wickedness as this is among you.

12 ¶ If thou shalt hear say in one of thy cities, which the LORD thy God hath given thee to dwell there, saying,

13 Certain men, the children of Belial, are gone out from among you, and have withdrawn the inhabitants of their city, saying, Let us go and serve other gods, which ye have not known;

14 Then shalt thou enquire, and make search, and ask diligently; and, behold, if it be truth, and the thing certain, that such abomination is wrought among you;

15 Thou shalt surely smite the inhabitants of that city with the edge of the sword, destroying it utterly, and all that is therein, and the cattle thereof, with the edge of the sword.

16 And thou shalt gather all the spoil of it into the midst of the street thereof, and shalt burn with fire the city, and all the spoil thereof every whit, for the LORD thy God: and it shall be an heap for ever; it shall not be built again.

17 And there shall cleave nought of the cursed thing to thine hand: that the LORD may turn from the fierceness of his anger, and shew thee mercy, and have compassion upon thee, and multiply thee, as he hath sworn unto thy fathers;

18 When thou shalt hearken to the voice of the LORD thy God, to keep all his commandments which I command thee this day, to do that which is right in the eyes of the LORD thy God.

CHAP. XIV.

1 God's children must not disfigure themselves in mourning.

3 What may, and what may not be eaten, of beasts, 9 of fishes, 11 of fowls. 21 That which dieth of itself must not be eaten. 22 Tithing to be truly performed.

23 Tithes and firstlings of cattle to be eaten before the LORD. 24 What is to be done in case of very distant abode. 28 The third year's tithes of alms and charity.

YE are the children of the LORD your God: ye shall not cut yourselves, nor make any baldness between your eyes for the dead.

2 For thou art an holy people unto the LORD thy God, and the LORD hath chosen thee to be a peculiar people unto himself, above all the nations that are upon the earth.

3 ¶ Thou shalt not eat any abominable thing.

4 These are the beasts which ye shall eat: the ox, the sheep, and the goat,

5 The hart, and the roebuck, and the fallow deer, and the wild goat, and the pygarg, and the wild ox, and the chamois.

6 And every beast that parteth the hoof, and cleaveth the cleft into two claws, and cheweth the cud among the beasts, that ye shall eat.

7 Nevertheless these ye shall not eat of them that chew the cud, or of them that divide the cloven hoof; as the camel, and the hare, and the coney: for they chew the cud, but divide not the hoof; therefore they are unclean unto you.

13 Children of Belial, &c.] The word "Belial," signifies one who is subject to no law; and therefore a very proper word for the devil, and all the children of disobedience.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XIII.

This chapter teaches us, that we should, by all possible and just means, oppose such as draw away others into error and wickedness, yea, though they be our nearest relations; and that the church ought to make use of discipline, and the means Jesus Christ has appointed, to prevent scandals, to reclaim such as are the authors thereof, and to exclude them from the communion, if they become incorrigible.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XIV.

1 Ye shall not cut yourselves] Thus the Israelites are reminded

And the swine, because it divideth the hoof, yet cheweth not the cud, it is unclean unto you: ye shall not eat of their flesh, nor touch their dead carcase.

9 ¶ These ye shall eat of all that are in the waters: all that have fins and scales shall ye eat:

10 And whatsoever hath not fins and scales ye may not eat; it is unclean unto you.

11 ¶ Of all clean birds ye shall eat.

12 But these are they of which ye shall not eat: the eagle, and the ossifrage, and the ospray,

13 And the glede, and the kite, and the vulture after his kind,

14 And every raven after his kind,

15 And the owl, and the night hawk, and the cuckow, and the hawk after his kind,

16 The little owl, and the great owl, and the swan,

17 And the pelican, and the gier eagle, and the comorant,

18 And the stork, and the heron after her kind, and the lapwing, and the bar.

19 And every creeping thing that flieth is unclean unto you: they shall not be eaten.

20 But of all clean fowls ye may eat.

21 ¶ Ye shall not eat of any thing that dieth of itself: thou shalt give it unto the stranger that is in thy gates, that he may eat it; or thou mayest sell it unto an alien: for thou art an holy people unto the LORD thy God. Thou shalt not feed a kid in his mother's milk.

22 ¶ Thou shalt truly tithe all the increase of thy seed, that the field bringeth forth year by year.

23 ¶ And thou shalt eat before the LORD thy God, in the place which he shall choose to place his name there, the tithe of thy corn, of thy wine, and of thine oil, and the firstlings of thy herds and of thy flocks; that thou mayest learn to fear the LORD thy God always.

24 ¶ And if the way be too long for thee, so that thou art not able to carry it; or if the place be too far from thee, which the LORD thy God shall choose to set his name there, when the LORD thy God hath blessed thee:

25 Then shalt thou turn it into money, and bind up the money in thine hand, and shalt go unto the place which the LORD thy God shall choose:

26 And thou shalt bestow that money for whatsoever thy soul lusteth after, for oxen, or for sheep, or for wine, or for strong drink, or for whatsoever thy soul desireth: and thou shalt eat there before the LORD thy God, and thou shalt rejoice, thou, and thine household,

27 And the Levite that is within thy gates; thou shalt not forsake him; for he hath no part nor inheritance with thee.

28 ¶ At the end of three years shalt thou bring forth all the tithe of thine increase the same year, and shalt lay it up within thy gates:

29 And the Levite, (because he hath no part nor inheritance with thee,) and the stranger, and the fatherless and the widow, which are within thy gates, shall come, and shall eat and be satisfied; that the LORD thy God may bless thee in all the work of thine hand which thou doest.

CHAP.

that they were the children of the Lord their God; that therefore they were to bear all evil accidents and afflictions with patience; they were not to sorrow as men without hope; being intitled after death to an heavenly and eternal inheritance.

3 Any abominable thing.] i.e. Any thing which I have made abominable to you, or put far from you.

5 The hart, and the roebuck, &c.] Most probably the beasts which Moses here enumerates, are the deer, the antelope, the wild beeve, the goat deer, the white bullock, the buffalo, and the jerassi, or mountain goat.

29 And shall eat and be satisfied, &c.] The Hebrew writers, concerning the distribution of tithe, tell us, that the owner of the field, when the poor passed by him, and he had there the tithe of the poor, gave every one of them that passed by, so much of that tithe as would satisfy him.

1 The seventh year a year of release for the poor. 7 It must be no hindrance to lending or giving. 12 An Hebrew servant, unless he be unwilling to depart, must in the seventh year go forth free and well furnished. 19 All firstling males of the cattle are to be sanctified unto the LORD.

AT the end of every seven years thou shalt make release.

2 And this is the manner of the release: Every creditor that lendeth ought unto his neighbour shall release it; he shall not exact it of his neighbour, or of his brother; because it is called the LORD's release.

3 Of a foreigner thou mayest exact it again: but that which is thine with thy brother thine hand shall release;

4 Save when there shall be no poor among you; for the LORD shall greatly bless thee in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance to possess it:

5 Only if thou carefully hearken unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to observe to do all these commandments which I command thee this day.

6 For the LORD thy God blest thee, as he promised thee: and thou shalt lend unto many nations, but thou shalt not borrow; and thou shalt reign over many nations, but they shall not reign over thee.

7 ¶ If there be among you a poor man of one of thy brethren within any of thy gates in thy land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, thou shalt not harden thine heart, nor shut thine hand from thy poor brother:

■ But thou shalt open thine hand wide unto him, and shall surely lend him sufficient for his need in that which he wanteth.

9 Beware that there be not a thought in thy wicked heart, saying, The seventh year, the year of release, is at hand; and thine eye be evil against thy poor brother, and thou givest him nought; and he cry unto the LORD against thee, and it be sin unto thee.

10 Thou shalt surely give him, and thine heart shall not be grieved when thou givest unto him: because that for this thing the LORD thy God shall bless thee in all thy works, and in all that thou puttest thine hand unto.

11 For the poor shall never cease out of the land: therefore I command thee, saying, Thou shalt open thine hand wide unto thy brother, to thy poor, and to thy needy, in thy land.

12 ¶ And if thy brother, an Hebrew man, or an Hebrew woman, be sold unto thee, and serve thee six years; then in the seventh year thou shalt let him go free from thee.

13 And when thou sendest him out free from thee, thou shalt not let him go away empty:

14 Thou shalt furnish him liberally out of thy flock, and out of thy floor, and out of thy winepress: of that wherewith the LORD thy God hath blessed thee thou shalt give unto him.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XIV.

The instructions to be drawn from this chapter are, that those who have a better hope, should not afflict themselves beyond measure for the deceased: that the creatures of God ■■■ be used with sobriety and thankfulness, and in such ■ manner that nobody may be scandalized ■ that the ministers of the church should be maintained; and that care should be taken of the poor.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XV.

4 Save when there shall be no poor among you, &c.] It would be much better if rendered, as in the margin, "To the end that there be no poor among you, or that none among you may be pinched by extreme poverty."

9 Beware that there be not a thought in thy wicked heart, &c.] Here Moses gives the Israelites a charge, that they should look upon every poor neighbour as a member of the same happy society, equally related to God as himself; who, therefore, would be sure to punish all uncharitableness to such as were his own, as he would be to bless and reward those, who, with a generous and bountiful heart, humbly and gratefully depended upon his providence, and obeyed his commands.

15 And thou shalt remember that thou wast a bondman in the land of Egypt, and the LORD thy God redeemed thee: therefore I command thee this thing to day.

16 And it shall be, if he say unto thee, I will not go away from thee; because he loveth thee and thine house, because he is well with thee;

17 Then thou shalt take an aul, and thrust it through his ear unto the door, and he shall be thy servant for ever. And also unto thy maidservant thou shalt do likewise.

18 It shall not seem hard unto thee, when thou sendest him away free from thee; for he hath been worth a double hired servant to thee, in serving thee six years: and the LORD thy God shall bless thee in all that thou doest.

19 ¶ All the firstling males that come of thy herd and of thy flock thou shalt sanctify unto the LORD thy God: thou shalt do no work with the firstling of thy bullock, nor shear the firstling of thy sheep.

20 Thou shalt eat it before the LORD thy God year by year in the place which the LORD shall choose, thou and thy household.

21 And if there be any blemish therein, as if it be lame, or blind, or have any ill blemish, thou shalt not sacrifice it unto the LORD thy God.

22 Thou shalt eat it within thy gates: the unclean and the clean person shall eat it alike, as the roebuck, and as the hart.

23 Only thou shalt not eat the blood thereof; thou shalt pour it upon the ground as water.

1 The feast of the passover, 9 of weeks, 13 of tabernacles. 16 Every male must offer according to his ability at these three feasts. 18 Of judges, and of justice. 21 Groves and images are forbidden.

OBERVE the month of Abib, and keep the passover unto the LORD thy God: for in the month of Abib the LORD thy God brought thee forth out of Egypt by night.

■ Thou shalt therefore sacrifice the passover unto the LORD thy God, of the flock and the herd, in the place which the LORD shall choose to place his name there.

3 Thou shalt eat no leavened bread with it; seven days shalt thou eat unleavened bread therewith, even the bread of affliction; for thou camest forth out of the land of Egypt in haste: that thou mayest remember the day when thou camest forth out of the land of Egypt all the days of thy life.

4 And there shall be no leavened bread seen with thee in all thy coast seven days; neither shall there any thing of the flesh, which thou sacrificedst the first day at even, remain all night until the morning.

5 Thou mayest not sacrifice the passover within any of thy gates, which the LORD thy God giveth thee:

6 But at the place which the LORD thy God shall choose

18 Worth ■ double hired servant, &c.] The ordinary time for hiring mercenary servants, was not less than one year, nor more than three years: "Within three years, as the years of an hireling," says Isaiah, xvi. 14. but the bond-servant, having served six years, is therefore said to be worth ■ double hired servant, in serving six years.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XVI.

We are taught from this chapter, to treat our servants with equity and gentleness, and not to be severe in exacting our debts from the poor; to take great care of people in want, and never to forsake them, since it is a crying sin to oppress them, or leave them destitute of help; and that God will extend his blessings to those who have compassion on the miserable.

8 Six days thou shalt eat unleavened bread: and on the seventh day shall be a solemn assembly to the LORD thy God: thou shalt do no work therein.

9 ¶ Seven weeks shalt thou number unto thee: begin to number the seven weeks from such time as thou beginnest to put the sickle to the corn.

10 And thou shalt keep the feast of weeks unto the LORD thy God with a tribute of a free-will offering of thine hand, which thou shalt give unto the LORD thy God, according as the LORD thy God hath blessed thee:

11 And thou shalt rejoice before the LORD thy God, thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, and thy manservant, and thy maidservant, and the Levite that is within thy gates, and the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow, that are among you, in the place which the LORD thy God hath chosen to place his name there.

17 Every man shall give as he is able, according to the blessing of the LORD thy God which he hath given thee.

18 ¶ Judges and officers shalt thou make thee in all thy gates, which the LORD thy God giveth thee, throughout thy tribes: and they shall judge the people with just judgment.

19 Thou shalt not wrest judgment; thou shalt not respect persons, neither take a gift: for a gift doth blind the eyes of the wise, and pervert the words of the righteous.

CHAP. XVII.

1 The thing sacrificed must be sound. 2 Idolaters must be put to death. 8 Hard controversies must be determined by the priests and judges, the contemner of whose determination must be put to death. 14 The election and duty of a king.

THOU shalt not sacrifice unto the LORD thy God any bullock, or sheep, wherein is blemish, or any evil favouredness: for that is an abomination unto the LORD thy God.

2 ¶ If there be found among you, within any of thy gates which the LORD thy God giveth thee, man or woman, that hath wrought wickedness in the sight of the LORD thy God, in transgressing his covenant,

3 And hath gone and served other gods, and worshipped them, either the sun or moon, or any of the host of heaven, which I have not commanded;

4 And it be told thee, and thou hast heard of it, and enquired diligently, and, behold, it be true, and the thing certain, that such abomination is wrought in Israel:

5 Then shalt thou bring forth that man or that woman, which have committed that wicked thing, unto thy gates, even that man or that woman, and shalt stone them with stones, till they die.

6 At the mouth of two witnesses, or three witnesses, shall he that is worthy of death be put to death; but at the mouth of one witness he shall not be put to death.

7 The hands of the witnesses shall be first upon him to put him to death, and afterward the hands of all the people. So thou shalt put the evil away from among you.

8 ¶ If there arise a matter too hard for thee in judgment, between blood and blood; between plea and plea, and between stroke and stroke, being matters of controversy within thy gates: then shalt thou arise, and get thee up into the place which the LORD thy God shall choose;

9 And thou shalt come unto the priests the Levites, and unto the judge that shall be in those days, and enquire; and they shall shew thee the sentence of judgment:

10 And thou shalt do according to the sentence, which they of that place which the LORD shall choose shall shew thee; and thou shalt observe to do according to all that they inform thee:

7 And go into thy tents.] Into thine own habitations. The words are only a permission, not an absolute command: after they had eaten the paschal lamb, they were permitted to return home, if they pleased.

9 Seven weeks shalt thou number, &c.] The feast of Pentecost was kept in solemn commemoration of the awful delivery of the law at mount Sinai; and in thankfulness to God for the fruits of the year.

13 The feast of tabernacles, &c.] Which feast was instituted in order to commemorate the providential preservation of the Israelites, during their wandering in the wilderness.

18 Judges and officers shalt thou make thee in all thy gates, &c.] Judges were accordingly appointed, and tribunals erected, in every city, to determine all differences arising out of the law, though not as to the power of life and death. It was customary for the Israelites to keep their courts in the gates, or in the chambers over the gates of their cities; which custom accounts for the expression, "In all thy gates."

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XVI.

This chapter conveys the following instructions: that as the Jews observed certain feasts in memory of national mercies, so Christians ought to celebrate God's goodness with greater zeal and devotion, not only at peculiar times, but at all times, and in all their ways; for the life of a Christian ought to be a perpetual feast: that magistrates and judges ought to administer exact justice, take no bribe, nor have respect of persons; and that every species of idolatry should be avoided, and whatever might be an occasion of sin or scandal to ourselves or others.

13 And all the people shall hear, and fear, and do no more presumptuously.

14 ¶ When thou art come unto the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, and shalt possess it, and shalt dwell therein, and shalt say, I will set a king over me, like as all the nations that are about me;

15 Thou shalt in any wise set him king over thee, whom the LORD thy God shall choose: one from among thy brethren shalt thou set king over thee: thou mayest not set a stranger over thee, which is not thy brother.

20 That his heart be not lifted up above his brethren, and that he turn not aside from the commandment, to the right hand, or to the left: to the end that he may prolong his days in the kingdom, he, and his children, in the midst of Israel.

CHAP. XVIII.

1 The LORD is the inheritance of the priests and Levites. 3 The priest's due. 6 All Levites who minister are entitled to like portions. 9 The abominations of the Canaanites to be avoided. 15 A prophet to arise, like unto Moses, who must be hearkened unto. 20 The presumptuous prophet must be put to death. 21 How he may be known.

THE priests the Levites, and all the tribe of Levi, shall have no part nor inheritance with Israel: they shall eat the offerings of the LORD made by fire, and his inheritance.

2 Therefore shall they have no inheritance among their brethren: the LORD is their inheritance, as he hath said unto them.

3 ¶ And this shall be the priest's due from the 16 He shall not multiply horses, &c.] For the reason given in the next words; it was customary to buy horses out of Egypt, and so it continued to the days of Solomon.

17 Neither shall he multiply wives, &c.] For fear of being seduced from the true religion, by marrying the worshippers of strange gods, as Solomon was.

18 Shall write him a copy of this law, &c.] Many hereby understand the book of Deuteronomy, which is an abridgment of the law; others are of opinion, that it means the whole pentateuch.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XVII.

We learn hence, to oppose those who would turn us away from the true worship of God, and the obedience we owe to him; that Christians should submit themselves to their spiritual and temporal guides; that kings and magistrates ought not to heap up riches, live deliciously, or oppress the people, but live within the bounds of humility, govern the people with equity, and, above all, meditate on the law of God, and conform themselves strictly to it.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XVIII.

3 The two cheeks, and the maw.] See Lev. vii. 32. By "the maw" is meant the stomach, which was accounted by the ancients a great dainty.

6 Come with all the desire of his mind, &c.] In order to encourage all those of the sacred order to take delight in the exercise of their people, from them that offer a sacrifice, whether it be ox or sheep; and they shall give unto the priest the shoulder, and the two cheeks, and the maw. Before CHRIST 1451.

4 The firstfruit also of thy corn, of thy wine, and of thine oil, and the first of the fleece of thy sheep, shalt thou give him.

5 For the LORD thy God hath chosen him out of all thy tribes, to stand to minister in the name of the LORD, him and his sons for ever.

6 ¶ And if a Levite come from any of thy gates out of all Israel, where he sojourned, and come with all the desire of his mind unto the place which the LORD shall choose;

7 Then he shall minister in the name of the LORD his God, as all his brethren the Levites do, which stand there before the LORD.

8 They shall have like portions to eat, beside that which cometh of the sale of his patrimony.

9 ¶ When thou art come into the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, thou shalt not learn to do after the abominations of those nations.

10 There shall not be found among you any one that maketh his son or his daughter to pass through the fire, or that useth divination, or an observer of times, or an enchanter, or a witch,

11 Or a charmer, or a consulter with familiar spirits, or a wizard, or a necromancer.

12 For all that do these things are an abomination unto the LORD: and because of these abominations the LORD thy God doth drive them out from before thee.

13 Thou shalt be perfect with the LORD thy God.

14 For these nations, which thou shalt possess, hearkened unto observers of times, and unto diviners: but as for thee, the LORD thy God hath not suffered thee so to do.

15 ¶ The LORD thy God will raise unto thee a Prophet from the midst of thee, of thy brethren, like unto me; unto him ye shall hearken;

16 According to all that thou desirest of the LORD thy God in Horeb in the day of the assembly, saying, Let me not hear again the voice of the LORD my God, neither let me see this great fire any more, that I die not.

17 And the LORD said unto me, They have well spoken that which they have spoken.

18 I will raise them up a Prophet from among their brethren, like unto thee, and will put my words in his mouth; and he shall speak unto them all that I shall command him.

19 And it shall come to pass, that whosoever will not hearken unto my words which he shall speak in thy name, I will require it of him.

20 ¶ But the prophet, which shall presume to speak a word in my name, which I have not commanded ministry, and to promote the honour of divine service, he appointed that such of the priests as chose to serve at the tabernacle out of their ordinary course, and addicted themselves to a constant attendance upon the public ministry, should have the same continual allowance with the priests and the Levites in waiting.

10 An observer of times] Signifying that sort of divination which consisted in observing the face of the heavens, the motion and figure of the clouds, the appearance of meteors, thunder, lightning, and the like.

Or an enchanter] i. e. One who divines by means of serpents. Or a witch.] i. e. One who does mischief to men or beasts by evil arts.

11 Or a charmer] i. e. One who pretends to foretell future events from the positions of the planets.

Or a necromancer.] i. e. One who enquires of the dead, or a consulter of dead idols.

15 Like unto me, &c.] Certainly these words are applicable to none but the Messiah, who was a second law-giver, like unto Moses, which none of the prophets were; nor had any of the other prophets, but the Messiah, such a near and familiar intercourse with God as Moses.

18 And will put my words, &c.] Surely this prediction was fully accomplished in our Saviour, who, though he confirmed his doctrine by miracles, yet were they calculated to promote the good of mankind, and not to render him an object of dread and terror. That Before CHRIST 1451. manded him to speak, or that shall speak in the name of other gods, even that prophet shall die.

21 ¶ And if thou say in thine heart, How shall we know the word which the LORD hath not spoken?

22 When a prophet speaketh in the name of the LORD, if the thing follow not, nor come to pass, that is the thing which the LORD hath not spoken, but the prophet hath spoken it presumptuously: thou shalt not be afraid of him.

1 The cities of refuge. 4 The privilege thereof allowed to the manslayer; 11 but not to him that is guilty of wilful murder. 14 The landmark not to be removed. 15 Two witnesses at the least are required to prove a criminal fact. 16 The punishment of a false witness.

WHEN the LORD thy God hath cut off the nations, whose land the LORD thy God giveth thee, and thou succeedest them, and dwellest in their cities, and in their houses;

2 Thou shalt separate three cities for thee in the midst of thy land, which the LORD thy God giveth thee to possess it.

3 Thou shalt prepare thee a way, and divide the coasts of thy land, which the LORD thy God giveth thee to inherit, into three parts, that every slayer may flee thither.

4 ¶ And this is the case of the slayer, which shall flee thither, that he may live: whoso killeth his neighbour ignorantly, whom he hated not in time past;

5 As when a man goeth into the wood with his neighbour to hew wood, and his hand fetcheth a stroke with the axe to cut down the tree, and the head slippeth from the helve, and lighteth upon his neighbour, that he die; he shall flee unto one of those cities, and live:

6 Lest the avenger of the blood pursue the slayer, while his heart is hot, and overtake him, because the way is long, and slay him; whereas he was not worthy of death, inasmuch as he hated him not in time past.

7 Wherefore I command thee, saying, Thou shalt separate three cities for thee.

8 And if the LORD thy God enlarge thy coast, as he hath sworn unto thy fathers, and give thee all the land which he promised to give unto thy fathers;

9 If thou shalt keep all these commandments to do them, which I command thee this day, to love the LORD thy God, and to walk ever in his way;

20 That prophet shall die.] He shall be judged, and condemned to death by the magistrate.

22 If the thing follow not, &c.] i. e. If a prophet appeal to some miracle or future event, an absolute sign of his being sent from God, and the miracle should fail, or the prediction not be fulfilled, he shall be considered as an impostor.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XVIII.

From this chapter we may note, that it is a great sin to use divination, observe times, and other superstitious rites, and that these practices ought not to be suffered among those who know the true God: and that the command given by God, not to listen to false prophets, shews us that we must not believe all sorts of teachers and doctrines, but try the persons that teach, and avoid those that preach doctrines contrary to the scriptures, and obey those that declare the truth.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XIX.

¶ In the midst of the land, &c.] i. e. Within thy land; they were to be placed so conveniently in several parts of the country, that men might easily and speedily flee to them.

¶ Thou shalt prepare thee a way.] Because the senate, or Jewish magistrates, were obliged to prepare the ways to the cities of refuge; and they set people every year upon this work: these ways were thirty-two cubits in breadth, without any impediments or obstructions in them.

Divide the coasts of thy land, &c.] They were to divide their possessions into three equal parts, and in the central part of each they were to open an asylum, that, being nearly at an equal distance with respect to the inhabitants of each district, each might enjoy the same benefit from them.

then shalt thou add three cities more for thee, beside these three:

10 That innocent blood be not shed in thy land, which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance, and so blood be upon thee.

11 ¶ But if any man hate his neighbour, and lie in wait for him, and rise up against him, and smite him mortally that he die, and sleeth into one of these cities:

12 Then the elders of his city shall send and fetch him thence, and deliver him into the hand of the avenger of blood, that he may die.

13 Thine eye shall not pity him, but thou shalt put away the guilt of innocent blood from Israel, that it may go well with thee.

14 ¶ Thou shalt not remove thy neighbour's landmark, which they of old time have set in thine inheritance, which thou shalt inherit in the land that the LORD thy God giveth thee to possess it.

15 ¶ One witness shall not rise up against a man for any iniquity, or for any sin, in any sin that he sinneth: at the mouth of two witnesses, or at the mouth of three witnesses, shall the matter be established.

16 ¶ If a false witness rise up against any man to testify against him that which is wrong;

17 Then both the men, between whom the controversy is, shall stand before the LORD, before the priests and the judges, which shall be in those days;

18 And the judges shall make diligent inquisition: and, behold, if the witness be a false witness, and hath testified falsely against his brother;

19 Then shall ye do unto him, as he had thought to have done unto his brother: so shalt thou put the evil away from among you.

20 And those which remain shall hear, and fear, and shall henceforth commit no more any such evil among you.

21 And thine eye shall not pity; but life shall go for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot.

WHEN thou goest out to battle against thine enemies, and seest horses, and chariots, and a people more than thou, be not afraid of them: for the LORD

9 Then thou shalt add three cities more, &c.] The bounds of the children of Israel, in king David's time, were quite to the river Euphrates; yet three other cities were not added; so that we may conjecture that David did not drive out the heathen which were beyond Lebanon, but only subdued and made them tributary.

12 The elders of his city shall send and fetch him thence, &c.] Thus, upon any suspicion or information of murder, laid against any one that took refuge there, the magistrate of the town or district where the fact was committed, shall send for the person out of the refuge-town, bring him to a fair trial, and, upon a clear evidence of wilful murder, shall condemn him to death, and cause execution to be done, without fear, partiality, or affection.

21 Eye for eye, tooth for tooth, &c.] Read the note on Luke xxiv. 20.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XIX.

We are taught from this chapter, that wilful murder is a crime that should never pass unpunished by the magistrate; that land-marks are not to be removed; and that false witnesses should suffer the same punishment as would have been inflicted upon those against whom they gave their testimony. Hence we may see, that it is the will of God, that justice and uprightness should take place in societies, and that they who wrong their neighbours, by bearing false witness, or in any other manner, expose themselves to God's vengeance.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XX.

¶ And seest horses, and chariots, &c.] The armies of the Israelites consisted wholly of foot, and their law seems to have continued so, in order to a more entire reliance upon God, the Canaanites and other nations having the advantage of chariots and horses.

Before CHRIST 1451. LORD thy God is with thee, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

2 And it shall be, when ye are come nigh unto the battle, that the priest shall approach and speak unto the people,

3 And shall say unto them, Hear, O Israel, ye approach this day unto battle against your enemies: let not your hearts faint, fear not, and do not tremble, neither be ye terrified because of them;

4 For the LORD your God is he that goeth with you, to fight for you against your enemies, to save you.

5 ¶ And the officers shall speak unto the people, saying, What man is there that hath built a new house, and hath not dedicated it? let him go and return to his house, lest he die in the battle, and another man dedicate it.

6 And what man is he that hath planted a vineyard, and hath not yet eaten of it? let him also go and return unto his house, lest he die in the battle, and another man eat of it.

7 And what man is there that hath betrothed a wife, and hath not taken her? let him go and return unto his house, lest he die in the battle, and another man take her.

8 And the officers shall speak further unto the people, and they shall say, What man is there that is fearful and fainthearted? let him go and return unto his house, lest his brethren's heart faint as well as his heart.

9 And it shall be, when the officers have made an end of speaking unto the people, that they shall make captains of the armies to lead the people.

10 ¶ When thou comest nigh unto the city to fight against it, then proclaim peace unto it.

11 And it shall be, if it make thee answer of peace, and open unto thee, then it shall be, that all the people that is found therein shall be tributaries unto thee, and they shall serve thee.

12 And if it will make no peace with thee, but will make war against thee, then thou shalt besiege it:

13 And when the LORD thy God hath delivered it into thine hands, thou shalt smite every male thereof with the edge of the sword:

14 But the women, and the little ones, and the cattle, and all that is in the city, even all the spoil thereof, shalt thou take unto thyself; and thou shalt eat the spoil of thine enemies, which the LORD thy God hath given thee.

15 Thus shalt thou do unto all the cities which are very far off from thee, which are not of the cities of these nations.

16 ¶ But of the cities of these people, which the LORD thy God doth give thee for an inheritance, thou shalt save alive nothing that breatheth:

17 But thou shalt utterly destroy them; namely, the Hittites, and the Amorites, the Canaanites, and the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites; as the LORD thy God hath commanded thee:

2 That the priest shall approach, &c.] The priest was particularly appointed to blow with the trumpet when they were preparing for battle, and exhort them, in the most persuasive manner, to courageous performance of their duty; to look upon their cause as the cause of God, and assure themselves of success under his protection and providence.

5 The officers shall look upon the people, &c.] Now the heralds were to make proclamation, allowing an exemption from the war to such as had lately purchased estates, newly built houses, and not yet settled in them, planted new vineyards, or were newly married; lest the thoughts of such men, continually hankering after their private affairs, might dispirit them from the business of the war, and indispose them for the public service.

8 What man is there that is fearful and fainthearted? From this passage we may observe, that though the Israelites were not absolutely to rely upon their own strength and valour, and the conduct of their men, for the victory, yet they were to employ only such persons in their wars as had a mind disposed and qualified for the business, and by their endeavours were deserving of a blessing.

10 I then proclaim peace unto it.] Consult the note on Numb. xx. 14. No. 16.

Before CHRIST 1451. 18 That they teach you not to do after all their abominations, which they have done unto their gods; so should ye sin against the LORD your God.

19 ¶ When thou shalt besiege a city a long time, in making war against it to take it, thou shalt not destroy the trees thereof by forcing an axe against them: for thou mayest eat of them, and thou shalt not cut them down (for the tree of the field is man's life) to employ them in the siege:

20 Only the trees which thou knowest that they be not trees for meat, thou shalt destroy and cut them down; and thou shalt build bulwarks against the city that maketh war with thee, until it be subdued.

CHAP. XXI.

1 The expiation of a murder, when the slayer is unknown. 10 The usage of a captive taken to wife. 15 The first-born not to be disinherited upon private affection. 18 A rebellious son must be stoned to death. 22 The malefactor must not hang all night on a tree.

IF one be found slain in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee to possess it, lying in the field, and it be not known who hath slain him:

2 Then thy elders and thy judges shall come forth, and they shall measure unto the cities which are round about him that is slain:

3 And it shall be, that the city which is next unto the slain man, even the elders of that city shall take an heifer, which hath not been wrought with, and which hath not drawn in the yoke;

4 And the elders of that city shall bring down the heifer unto a rough valley, which is neither cared nor sown, and shall strike off the heifer's neck there in the valley:

5 And the priests the sons of Levi shall come near; for them the LORD thy God hath chosen to minister unto him, and to bless in the name of the LORD; and by their word shall every controversy and every stroke be tried:

6 And all the elders of that city, that are next unto the slain man, shall wash their hands over the heifer that is beheaded in the valley:

7 And they shall answer and say, Our hands have not shed this blood, neither have our eyes seen it.

8 Be merciful, O LORD, unto thy people Israel, whom thou hast redeemed, and lay not innocent blood unto thy people of Israel's charge. And the blood shall be forgiven them.

9 So shalt thou put away the guilt of innocent blood from among you, when thou shalt do that which is right in the sight of the LORD.

10 ¶ When thou goest forth to war against thine enemies, and the LORD thy God hath delivered them into thine hands, and thou hast taken them captive,

11 And seest among the captives a beautiful woman, and hast a desire unto her, that thou wouldest have her to thy wife;

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XX.

From this chapter we learn, that as the Jews were exhorted to engage in unjust wars, which they could not ask a blessing on their attempts; and that they were to be carried on with temper and moderation, sparing as much as possible the lives of the innocent and the fruits of the earth; much more ought Christians to shew their moderation and mercy in this respect, and that they are animated with the Spirit of Jesus Christ, the spirit of meekness and love.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXI.

¶ If one be found slain in the land, &c.] Thus we find the expiation for a concealed murder, when the criminal could not be found, was attended with great solemnity, in order to shew the heinousness of the fact, and to deter others from committing the like offence.

¶ Thy elders, &c.] It is not "the elders," as in the Hebrew verse, (it not being yet known to what particular city it belongeth) but "thy elders," O Israel, which were of the general state of the land, and members of the sanhedrim, or great council.

¶ Unto a rough valley, &c.] It is in the original, both a valley and a stream; a valley with a brook running through it.

12 Then thou shalt bring her home to thine house; and she shall shave her head, and pare her nails;

13 And she shall put the raiment of her captivity from off her, and shall remain in thine house, and bewail her father and her mother a full month: and after that thou shalt go in unto her, and be her husband, and she shall be thy wife.

14 And it shall be, if thou have no delight in her, then thou shalt let her go whither she will; but thou shalt not sell her at all for money, thou shalt not make merchandise of her, because thou hast humbled her.

15 ¶ If a man have two wives, one beloved, and another hated, and they have borne him children, both the beloved and the hated; and if the firstborn son be her's that was hated:

16 Then it shall be, when he maketh his sons to inherit that which he hath, that he may not make the son of the beloved firstborn before the son of the hated, which is indeed the firstborn:

17 But he shall acknowledge the son of the hated for the firstborn, by giving him a double portion of all that he hath: for he is the beginning of his strength; the right of the firstborn is his.

18 ¶ If a man have a stubborn and rebellious son, which will not obey the voice of his father, or the voice of his mother, and that, when they have chastened him, will not hearken unto them:

19 Then shall his father and his mother lay hold on him, and bring him out unto the elders of his city, and unto the gate of the place;

20 And they shall say unto the elders of his city, This our son is stubborn and rebellious, he will not obey our voice; he is a glutton, and a drunkard.

21 And all the men of his city shall stone him with stones, that he die: so shalt thou put evil away from among you; and all Israel shall hear, and fear.

22 ¶ And if a man have committed a sin worthy of death, and he be to be put to death, and thou hang him on a tree:

23 His body shall not remain all night upon the tree, but thou shalt in any wise bury him that day; (for he that is hanged is accursed of God;) that thy land be not defiled, which the Lord thy God giveth thee for an inheritance.

C H A P. XXII.

1 Of humanity toward brethren. 5 The sex to be distinguished by apparel. 6 The dam not to be taken with her young ones. Every house must have battlements. 9 Three sorts of confusion to be avoided. 12 Fringes to be worn upon the vesture. 13 The punishment of him that slandereth his wife, and of the wife, if convicted of unchastity before marriage. 22 Adultery to be punished with death. 23 Of a rape committed in the city, 25 or in the field. 28 Of fornication. 30 Incest is forbidden.

12 She shall shave her head and pare her nails.] This is translated in the Chaldee, She shall let her nails grow; which seems most suitable to a state of mourning.

13 The raiment of her captivity, &c.] i. e. The garments in which she was taken: these she was to lay aside, and, in their room, to put on mourning, as another sign of her humiliation, and to withdraw the man's affection from her if she continued in her unbelief.

15 Two wives, &c.] Notwithstanding bigamy was contrary to God's institution, and was begun by the posterity of Cain (see Gen. iv. 9.) yet the corruption being spread over all, and even in the church, God for a while only suffered it, until the time of reformation; but (notwithstanding what some writers have asserted) approved not of it, as appears from our Saviour's words, Matt. xiv. 4, 5.

18 If a man have a stubborn and rebellious son, &c.] If all means of admonition and correction were lost upon any son, and the parent saw nothing but ruin to the estate and family, he was directed to make complaint to the magistrates in court; who, upon sufficient evidence given, were to condemn him to death, as a terrible example of disobedience to the laws of his Creator.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXI.

This chapter shews us, that judges and magistrates cannot be too strict in discovering and punishing murderers; and that the pu-

THOU shalt not see thy brother's ox or his sheep go astray, and hide thyself from them: thou shalt in any case bring them again unto thy brother.

2 And if thy brother be not nigh unto thee, or if thou know him not, then thou shalt bring it unto thine own house, and it shall be with thee until thy brother seek after it, and thou shalt restore it to him again.

3 In like manner shalt thou do with his ass; and so shalt thou do with his raiment; and with all lost thing of thy brother's, which he hath lost, and thou hast found, shalt thou do likewise: thou mayest not hide thyself.

4 Thou shalt not see thy brother's ass or his ox fall down by the way, and hide thyself from them: thou shalt surely help him to lift them up again.

5 ¶ The women shall not wear that which pertaineth unto a man, neither shall a man put on a woman's garment: for all that do so are abomination unto the Lord thy God.

6 ¶ If a bird's nest chance to be before thee in the way in a tree, or on the ground, whether they be young ones, or eggs, and the dam sitting upon the young, or upon the eggs, thou shalt not take the dam with the young:

7 But thou shalt in any wise let the dam go, and take the young to thee; that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest prolong thy days.

8 ¶ When thou buildest a new house, then thou shalt make a battlement for thy roof, that thou bring not blood upon thine house, if any man fall from thence.

9 ¶ Thou shalt not sow thy vineyard with divers seeds: lest the fruit of thy seed which thou hast sown, and the fruit of thy vineyard, be defiled.

10 Thou shalt not plough with an ox and an ass together.

11 Thou shalt not wear a garment of divers sorts, as of woollen and linen together.

12 ¶ Thou shalt make thee fringes upon the four quarters of thy vesture, wherewith thou coverest thyself.

13 ¶ If any man take a wife, and go in unto her, and hate her,

14 And give occasions of speech against her, and bring up an evil name upon her, and say, I took this woman, and when I came to her I found her not a maid:

15 Then shall the father of the damsel, and her mother, take and bring forth the tokens of the damsel's virginity unto the elders of the city in the gate:

16 And the damsel's father shall say unto the elders, I gave my daughter unto this man to wife, and he hateth her;

17 And, lo, he hath given occasions of speech against her, saying, I found not thy daughter a maid; and yet these

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXII.

5 The women shall not wear that which pertaineth unto a man, &c.] Certainly if the sexes were not to be distinguished by their habits, it would open a door to all manner of iniquity; for which reason, if there was no other, this law was very wise and good.

6 Thou shalt not take the dam with the young.] This is one of those merciful constitutions in the law of Moses, which respect the animal creation, and tend to humanize the hearts of the people, to produce in them a sense of the divine providence, extending itself to all creatures, and to teach them to exercise their dominion over them with gentleness.

8 Thou shalt make a battlement for thy roof, &c.] i. e. A balustrade of rails round the top of the house: the houses of the Israelites had six roofs, on which they walked, and conversed from thence with the people in the streets; and this illustrates the meaning of our Saviour's words, when he mentions speaking and proclaiming upon the house-tops. See Matt. x. 27. Luke xii. 3.

10 Thou shalt not plough with an ox and an ass, &c.] No ox nor ass were to be coupled together in the same carriage; with this merciful intent, that one beast of greater strength might not strain a creature of less ability.

18 And the elders of that city shall take that man and chastise him;

19 And they shall amerce him in an hundred shekels of silver, and give them unto the father of the damsel, because he hath brought up an evil name upon a virgin of Israel: and she shall be his wife; he may not put her away all his days.

20 But if this thing be true, and the tokens of virginity be not found for the damsel:

21 Then they shall bring out the damsel to the door of her father's house, and the men of her city shall stone her with stones that she die: because she hath wrought folly in Israel, to play the whore in her father's house: so shalt thou put evil away from among you.

22 ¶ If a man be found lying with a woman, married to an husband, then they shall both of them die, both the man that lay with the woman, and the woman: so shalt thou put away evil from Israel.

23 ¶ If a damsel that is a virgin be betrothed unto an husband, and a man find her in the city, and lie with her;

24 Then ye shall bring them both out unto the gate of that city; and ye shall stone them with stones that they die; the damsel, because she cried not, being in the city; and the man, because he hath humbled his neighbour's wife: so thou shalt put away evil from among you.

25 ¶ But if a man find a betrothed damsel in the field, and the man force her, and lie with her: then the man only that lay with her shall die:

26 But unto the damsel thou shalt do nothing; there is in the damsel no sin worthy of death: for as when a man riseth against his neighbour, and slayeth him, even so is this matter:

27 For he found her in the field, and the betrothed damsel cried, and there was none to save her.

28 ¶ If a man find a damsel that is a virgin, which is not betrothed, and lay hold on her, and lie with her, and they be found;

29 Then the man that lay with her shall give unto the damsel's father fifty shekels of silver, and she shall be his wife; because he hath humbled her, he may not put her away all his days.

30 ¶ A man shall not take his father's wife, nor discover his father's skirt.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXII.

By this chapter we are exhorted honestly to restore things that are found. The law forbidding men and women to change the habits of their sex, teaches us to observe modesty and decency in apparel, and to avoid all that is unseemly, or that may tend to impurity. The law prohibiting the mixture of divers kinds, was in opposition to the customs of the idolaters. By the laws against uncleanness, we see, they who are guilty of fornication and adultery, ought to be punished, and that they are obliged to make reparation by all possible means, which should deter us from the practice of those infamous sins, and prompt us to live in great chastity.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXIII.

3 An Ammonite or Moabite shall not, &c.] Notwithstanding an Israelitish woman was forbid to marry an Ammonite or a Moabite, yet a man of Israel might marry one of these women, after they had embraced the Jewish religion, of which we have an instance in Boaz, the ancestor of David, who married Ruth, the Moabitess.

HE that is wounded in the stones, or hath his privy member cut off, shall not enter into the congregation of the LORD.

¶ A bastard shall not enter into the congregation of the LORD; even to his tenth generation shall he not enter into the congregation of the LORD.

3 ¶ An Ammonite or Moabite shall not enter into the congregation of the LORD; even to their tenth generation shall they not enter into the congregation of the LORD for ever:

4 Because they met you not with bread and with water in the way, when ye came forth out of Egypt; and because they hired against thee Balaam the son of Beor of Pethor of Mesopotamia, to curse thee.

5 Nevertheless the LORD thy God would not hearken unto Balaam; but the LORD thy God turned the curse into a blessing unto thee, because the LORD thy God loved thee.

6 Thou shalt not seek their peace nor their prosperity all thy days for ever.

7 ¶ Thou shalt not abhor an Edomite; for he is thy brother: thou shalt not abhor an Egyptian; because thou wast a stranger in his land.

8 The children that are begotten of them shall enter into the congregation of the LORD in their third generation.

9 When the host goeth forth against thine enemies, then keep thee from every wicked thing.

10 ¶ If there be among you any man, that is not clean by reason of uncleanness that chanceth him by night, then shall he go abroad out of the camp, he shall not come within the camp:

11 But it shall be, when evening cometh on, he shall wash himself with water: and when the sun is down, he shall come into the camp again.

12 ¶ Thou shalt have a place also without the camp, whither thou shalt go forth abroad:

13 And thou shalt have a paddle upon thy weapon; and it shall be, when thou wilt ease thyself abroad, thou shalt dig therewith, and shalt turn back and cover that which cometh from thee:

14 For the LORD thy God walketh in the midst of thy camp, to deliver thee, and to give up thine enemies before thee; therefore shall thy camp be holy: that he see no unclean thing in thee, and turn away from thee.

15 ¶ Thou shalt not deliver unto his master the servant which is escaped from his master unto thee:

16 He shall dwell with thee, even among you, in that place which he shall choose in one of thy gates, where it liketh him best: thou shalt not oppress him.

7 Thou shalt not abhor an Edomite, &c.] The Edomites were the descendants of Esau, and consequently a kindred nation; and as they were circumcised people, they might make marriages with them, provided they worshipped the true God.

Thou shalt not abhor an Egyptian, &c.] From this injunction of the Almighty, it appears, that the memory of past favours should not be effaced by succeeding injuries.

13 Thou shalt have a paddle upon thy weapon, &c.] Or, Thou shalt have a paddle besides thy arms; a paddle was an instrument of iron, the use of which is described in the succeeding part of the verse.

14 The Lord—walketh in the midst of—thee, &c.] i. e. The ark, the symbol of God's presence, went along with them.

15 Thou shalt not deliver unto his, &c.] Some think this to have a particular relation to times of war, when heathen soldiers or servants might desert, and come over to the Israelites, with intent to embrace the true religion.

20 Unto a stranger thou mayest lend upon usury; but unto thy brother thou shalt not lend upon usury: that the LORD thy God may bless thee in all that thou settest thine hand to in the land whither thou goest to possess it.

21 ¶ When thou shalt vow a vow unto the LORD thy God, thou shalt not slack to pay it: for the LORD thy God will surely require it of thee; and it would be sin in thee.

22 But if thou shalt forbear to vow, it shall be no sin in thee.

23 That which is gone out of thy lips thou shalt keep and perform; even a free-will offering, according as thou hast vowed unto the LORD thy God, which thou hast promised with thy mouth.

24 ¶ When thou comest into thy neighbour's vineyard, then thou mayest eat grapes thy fill at thine own pleasure; but thou shalt not put any in thy vessel.

WHEN a man hath taken a wife, and married her, and it come to pass that she find no favour in his eyes, because he hath found some uncleanness in her: then let him write her a bill of divorcement, and give it in her hand, and send her out of his house.

And when she is departed out of his house, she may go and be another man's wife;

3 And if the latter husband hate her, and write her a bill of divorcement, and giveth it in her hand, and sendeth her out of his house; or if the latter husband die, which took her to be his wife;

4 Her former husband, which sent her away, may not take her again to be his wife, after that she is defiled; for that is abomination before the LORD: and thou shalt not cause the land to sin, which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance.

18 Of a dog, &c.] Some understand dog here, in a figurative sense, for the sodomite or whore-master above mentioned.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXIII.
From this chapter, we may perceive that God abhors impiety, which ought to be banished from those who profess to serve him: that we ought not to use extortion, nor forget to use great moderation and equity in exacting payment; that lawful vows should be punctually accomplished; that the tendency of the law relating to the plucking the ears of corn, or the grapes, was to keep the Jews from covetousness, and a churlish disposition, to make them avoid injustice; and, in using another's property, not to abuse that liberty, by doing mischief to their neighbour's goods.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXIV.

1 Then let him write her a bill of divorcement, &c.] Whoever had conceived an insurmountable dislike to his wife, had hereby the privilege of repudiating her, not in a precipitate manner, but deliberately, by giving her a discharge from any further relation to him, signed with his own hand, by which she acquired full liberty to marry any other person.

4 May not take her again, &c.] For fear such permission should give occasion to abuses, it was ordained by the law, that the husband

6 ¶ No man shall take the nether or the upper millstone to pledge: for he taketh a man's life to pledge.

7 ¶ If a man be found stealing any of his brethren of the children of Israel, and maketh merchandise of him, or selleth him; then that thief shall die; and thou shalt put evil away from among you.

¶ Take heed in the plague of leprosy, that thou observe diligently, and do according to all that the priests the Levites shall teach you: as I commanded them, so ye shall observe to do.

9 Remember what the LORD thy God did unto Miriam by the way, after that ye were come forth out of Egypt.

10 ¶ When thou dost lend thy brother any thing, thou shalt not go into his house to fetch his pledge.

11 Thou shalt stand abroad, and the man to whom thou dost lend shall bring out the pledge abroad unto thee.

12 And if the man be poor, thou shalt not sleep with his pledge:

13 In any case thou shalt deliver him the pledge again when the sun goeth down, that he may sleep in his own raiment, and bless thee: and it shall be righteousness unto thee before the LORD thy God.

14 ¶ Thou shalt not oppress an hired servant that is poor and needy, whether he be of thy brethren, or of thy strangers that are in thy land within thy gates:

15 At his day thou shalt give him his hire, neither shall the sun go down upon it; for he is poor, and setteth his heart upon it: lest he cry against thee unto the LORD, and it be sin unto thee.

16 ¶ The fathers shall not be put to death for the children, neither shall the children be put to death for the fathers: every man shall be put to death for his own sin.

17 ¶ Thou shalt not pervert the judgment of the stranger, nor of the fatherless; nor take the widow's raiment to pledge:

18 But thou shalt remember that thou wast a bond-man in Egypt, and the LORD thy God redeemed thee thence: therefore I command thee to do this thing.

19 ¶ When thou cuttest down thine harvest in thy field, and hast forgot a sheaf in the field, thou shalt not go again to fetch it: it shall be for the stranger, for the fatherless, and for the widow: that the LORD thy God may bless thee in all the work of thine hands.

20 When thou beatest thine olive tree, thou shalt not go over the bows again: it shall be for the stranger, for the fatherless, and for the widow.

21 When thou gatherest the grapes of thy vineyard, thou shalt not glean it afterward: it shall be for the stranger, for the fatherless, and for the widow.

22 And thou shalt remember that thou wast a bond-man in the land of Egypt: therefore I command thee to do this thing.

C H A P.

who had once repudiated his wife, should, upon her being married to another, become incapable of retaking her, though she should grow rich, or be otherwise again desirable; this consideration prevented them from parting with their wives; since, if she was once married to a second, she was irrecoverably lost to her former husband.

16 The fathers shall not be put to death for the children, &c.] A rule of common equity this, and not at all inconsistent with God's threatening to punish the sins of the fathers upon the children; that refers to the strokes of heaven: whereas the present text relates to punishments inflicted upon criminals by men.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXIV.

We may hence observe, with our Lord, that the divorces tolerated among the Jews, are no longer so among Christians; and that the bond of marriage cannot be dissolved, unless in the cases mentioned, Matt. xix. and 1 Cor. vii. That we should not be too rigorous when we take pledges, or when we make poor persons pay their debts to us; that we should pay readily and honestly the wages of the hireling, and use kindness to strangers, widows, and orphans; also that we should remember the poor with substance, if we expect God's blessing upon it.

CHRIST

1 Stripes must not exceed forty. 4 The ox not to be muzzled. 5 The law of raising up seed unto a deceased brother. 11 Of immodesty in a woman. 13 Of unjust weights and measures. 17 The memory of Amalek to be blotted out.

IF there be a controversy between men, and they come unto judgment, that the judges may judge them; then they shall justify the righteous, and condemn the wicked.

2 And it shall be, if the wicked man be worthy to be beaten, that the judge shall cause him to lie down, and to be beaten before his face, according to his fault, by a certain number.

3 Forty stripes he may give him, and not exceed: lest, if he should exceed, and beat him above these with many stripes, then thy brother should seem vile unto thee.

4 Thou shalt not muzzle the ox when he treadeth out the corn.

5 If brethren dwell together, and one of them die, and have no child, the wife of the dead shall not marry without unto a stranger: her husband's brother shall go in unto her, and take her to him to wife, and perform the duty of an husband's brother unto her.

6 And it shall be, that the firstborn which she beareth shall succeed in the name of his brother which is dead, that his name be not put out of Israel.

7 And if the man like not to take his brother's wife, then let his brother's wife go up to the gate unto the elders, and say, My husband's brother refuseth to raise up unto his brother a name in Israel, he will not perform the duty of my husband's brother.

8 Then the elders of his city shall call him, and speak unto him: and if he stand to it, and say, I like not to take her;

9 Then shall his brother's wife come unto him in the presence of the elders, and loose his shoe from off his foot, and spit in his face, and shall answer and say, So shall it be done unto that man that will not build up his brother's house.

10 And his name shall be called in Israel, The house of him that hath his shoe loosed.

11 When men strive together one with another, and the wife of the one draweth near for to deliver her husband out of the hand of him that smiteth him, and putteth forth her hand, and taketh him by the secrets:

12 Then thou shalt cut off her hand, thine eye shall not pity her.

13 Thou shalt not have in thy bag divers weights, a great and a small.

14 Thou shalt not have in thine house divers measures, a great and a small.

15 But thou shalt have a perfect and just weight, a perfect and just measure shalt thou have: that thy days may be lengthened in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee.

16 For all that do such things, and all that do unrighteously, are an abomination unto the Lord thy God.

17 Remember what Amalek did unto thee by the way, when ye were come forth out of Egypt:

18 How he met thee by the way, and smote the hindmost of thee, even all that were feeble behind thee, when thou wast faint and weary; and he feared not God.

19 Therefore it shall be, when the Lord thy God hath given thee rest from all thine enemies round about, in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee for an inheritance to possess it, that thou shalt blot out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven: thou shalt not forget it.

C H A P. XXVI.

The confession of him that offereth the basket of firstfruits.

12 The prayer of him that giveth his third year's tithes.

16 The covenant between God and the people.

AND it shall be, when thou art come in unto the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee for an inheritance, and possessest it, and dwellest therein;

That thou shalt take of the first of all the fruit of the earth, which thou shalt bring of thy land that the Lord thy God giveth thee, and shalt put it in a basket, and shalt go unto the place which the Lord thy God shall choose to place his name there.

3 And thou shalt go unto the priest that shall be in those days, and say unto him, I profess this day unto the Lord thy God, that I am come unto the country which the Lord sware unto our fathers for to give us.

4 And the priest shall take the basket out of thine hand, and set it down before the altar of the Lord thy God.

5 And thou shalt speak and say before the Lord thy God, a Syrian ready to perish was my father, and he went down into Egypt, and sojourned there with a few, and became there a nation, great, mighty, and populous:

6 And the Egyptians evil entreated us, and afflicted us, and laid upon us hard bondage:

7 And when we cried unto the Lord God of our fathers, the Lord heard our voice, and looked on our affliction, and our labour, and our oppression:

8 And the Lord brought us forth out of Egypt with a mighty hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with great terribleness, and with signs, and with wonders:

9 And he hath brought us into this place, and hath given us this land, even a land that floweth with milk and honey.

10 And now, behold, I have brought the firstfruits of the land, which thou, O Lord, hast given me. And thou shalt set it before the Lord thy God, and worship before the Lord thy God:

11 And thou shalt rejoice in every good thing which the Lord thy God hath given unto thee, and unto thine house, thou, and the Levite, and the stranger that is among you.

12 When thou hast made an end of tithing all the tithes

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXV.

1 If there be a controversy, &c.] Moses having affixed punishments to the breaches of the most capital laws, now orders that the several inferior courts of justice should take due cognizance of other criminal matters, deserving only corporal penalties, and be just and impartial in their proceedings, upon all such complaints.

4 Thou shalt not muzzle the ox, &c.] Among those countries it was customary to use oxen in treading out the corn, either with their feet, or by drawing sledges, which were a sort of heavy tables, armed with iron nails, to separate the grain from the straw. By this allegorical precept, Moses instructs the people to be kind to their servants and labourers, especially to those who ministered to them in holy things.

9 And loose his shoe] Thus was he stigmatized for want of natural affection; as this ceremony implied that he deserved to be degraded to the condition of a slave, accustomed to go barefoot.

And spit in his face, &c.] i. e. In his sight, or before him.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXV.

From this chapter we have the following instructions; that the guilty should be punished with humanity and moderation; that we should provide a maintenance for those who labour for the good of others, particularly for ministers; see 1 Cor. ix. that fraud and deceit in weights and measures, is an abomination to the Lord: and God's command to destroy the Amalekites, who had unjustly attacked the Israelites, shews us, that pride, cruelty, and injustice, often cause the ruin of nations, as well as individuals.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXVI.

5 A Syrian ready to perish was my father, &c.] By descent Jacob was a Syrian, Abraham being a native of that country, and he himself lived twenty years with Laban, the Syrian, and there he was called a Syrian; and at the time he went down into Egypt, he was ready to perish by famine.

^{Before CHRIST 1451.} tithes of thine increase the third year, which is the year of tithing, and hast given it unto the Levite, the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow, that they may eat within thy gates and be filled;

13 Then thou shalt say before the LORD thy God, I have brought away the hallowed things out of mine house, and also have given them unto the Levite, and unto the stranger, to the fatherless, and to the widow, according to all thy commandments which thou hast commanded me: I have not transgressed thy commandments, neither have I forgotten them:

14 I have not eaten thereof in my mourning, neither have I taken away ought thereof for any unclean use, nor given ought thereof for the dead: but I have hearkened to the voice of the LORD my God, and have done according to all that thou hast commanded me.

15 Look down from thy holy habitation, from heaven, and bless thy people Israel, and the land which thou hast given us, as thou swarest unto our fathers, a land that floweth with milk and honey.

16 ¶ This day the LORD thy God hath commanded thee to do these statutes and judgments: thou shalt therefore keep and do them with all thine heart, and with all thy soul.

17 Thou hast avouched the LORD this day to be thy God, and to walk in his ways, and to keep his statutes, and his commandments, and his judgments, and to hearken unto his voice:

18 And the LORD hath avouched thee this day to be his peculiar people, as he hath promised thee, and that thou shouldest keep all his commandments;

19 And to make thee high above all nations which he hath made, in praise, and in name, and in honour; and that thou mayest be an holy people unto the LORD thy God, as he hath spoken.

C H A P. XXVII.

1 The people are commanded to write the law upon stones, which are to be set up, and an altar of whole stones to be built, in mount Ebal. 9 Moses and the priests recommend attention and obedience to the law. 11 Six tribes to be stationed on Gerizzim, and six on Ebal. 14 The curses to be pronounced by the Levites.

AND Moses with the elders of Israel commanded the people, saying, Keep all the commandments which I command you this day.

■ And it shall be on the day when ye shall pass

13 Before the Lord, &c.] The meaning of these words is, that every man should make this declaration before the most holy place at the sanctuary; for the words "before the Lord," are generally so used in these books; and, unless they had been obliged to this, their covetous disposition might have inclined them to defraud the poor and helpless.

14 I have not eaten thereof in my mourning] There was nothing more unsuitable to the worship of God, than melancholy and dejection of mind; therefore the Israelites were not allowed to eat of holy things when they were in a state of mourning.

Nor given ought thereof for the dead, &c.] i. e. I have not offered any of my fruits to idols, which are only dead men deified.

15 Look down from thy holy habitation, &c.] Notwithstanding God was pleased to dwell among them, by a glorious symbol of his presence, yet Moses teaches the Israelites to acknowledge that he dwelt in a more transcendent glory in the heavens.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXVI.

This chapter contains many edifying lessons; namely, that we should pay homage to God for all the good things we possess, acknowledge our own unworthiness, and confess that we hold all things from his bounty; and that, to shew our piety and gratitude, we ought to reserve part of our substance, and devote it to God in humility, either for his service, or the support of the poor. Also that in the practice of every duty, and in obedience to the laws of the Lord, consists all our happiness and our glory; by this we shall draw upon ourselves the favour of God, and his holy blessings.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXVII.

2 Thou shalt set thee up great stones, &c.] Unless we could determine how much of the law was to be written upon these stones, we cannot judge of their number; for if only the ten commandments, over Jordan unto the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, that thou shalt set thee up great stones, and plaister them with plaister: ^{Before CHRIST 1451.}

3 And thou shalt write upon them all the words of this law, when thou art passed over, that thou mayest go in unto the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, a land that floweth with milk and honey; as the LORD God of thy fathers hath promised thee.

4 Therefore it shall be when ye be gone over Jordan, that ye shall set up these stones, which I command you this day, in mount Ebal, and thou shalt plaister them with plaister.

5 And there thou shalt build an altar unto the LORD thy God, an altar of stones: thou shalt not lift up any iron tool upon them.

6 Thou shalt build the altar of the LORD thy God of whole stones: and thou shalt offer burnt offerings thereon unto the LORD thy God:

7 And thou shalt offer peace offerings, and shalt eat there, and rejoice before the LORD thy God.

8 And thou shalt write upon the stones all the words of this law very plainly.

9 ¶ And Moses and the priests the Levites spake unto all Israel, saying, Take heed, and hearken, O Israel; this day thou art become the people of the LORD thy God.

10 Thou shalt therefore obey the voice of the LORD thy God, and do his commandments and his statutes, which I command thee this day.

11 ¶ And Moses charged the people the same day, saying,

12 These shall stand upon mount Gerizzim to bless the people, when ye are come over Jordan; Simeon, and Levi, and Judah, and Issachar, and Joseph, and Benjamin:

13 And these shall stand upon mount Ebal to curse; Reuben, Gad, and Asher, and Zebulun, Dan, and Naphtali.

14 ¶ And the Levites shall speak, and say unto all the men of Israel with a loud voice,

15 Cursed be the man that maketh any graven or molten image, an abomination unto the LORD, the work of the hands of the craftsman, and putteth it in a secret place. And all the people shall answer and say, Amen.

16 Cursed be he that setteth light by his father or his mother. And all the people shall say, Amen.

17 Cursed be he that removeth his neighbour's land-mark. And all the people shall say, Amen.

18 Cursed fewer than twelve would serve, if the whole book of Deuteronomy, a greater number would be required.

Plaister them with plaister.] Hence it appears that the law was not to be engraven on these stones, but to be only written or painted on them.

3 All the words of this law, &c.] Including, perhaps, the curses which follow from ver. 15. to the end of the chapter.

7 And shalt eat there, and rejoice before the Lord, &c.] As the people of Israel, to whom God promised the land of Canaan, were given to understand that God, having performed what he promised, expected that they, on their part, would be mindful of their obligations.

12 Simeon, and Levi, and Judah, and Issachar, and Joseph, and Benjamin.] We find that these six tribes, who stood upon mount Gerizzim (on the top, and on the descent of it, down to the bottom) were all descended from the sons of the free women, Leah and Rachel; and many think it was on that account that they were appointed to bless, which was more honourable than to curse.

14 The Levites] i. e. The priests, who are often called "the priests, the Levites." See Isa. viii. 32.

Shall speak, and say unto all the men of Israel with a loud voice, &c.] When the priests turned their faces first towards mount Gerizzim, they proclaimed with a loud voice, "Blessed be the man that maketh not any graven, &c." to which all the people that stood there answered, Amen; and then, turning their faces towards mount Ebal, they said, "Cursed be the man that maketh, &c." to which also those who stood on that mountain, made the same reply, and so alternately.

15 And putteth it in a secret place.] i. e. Hideth it, to avoid discovery and punishment.

The people shall answer and say, Amen.] Which implied only a declaration, or confirmation, that to such vices the curse of God is due, agreeable to the revelation of his will in the sacred volume.

19 The stranger, fatherless, and widow, &c.] A beautiful phrase this upon the word poor!

24 That smiteth his neighbour secretly, &c.] We are to understand this not only of murder, but likewise of defamation and scandal, by which the same of ■■ absent person is wounded and destroyed.

25 That taketh reward to slay an innocent person, &c.] This has respect to the judges, who, for money, not only gave wrong judgment, but condemned the innocent to death. See Micah iii. 11.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ■■ CHAP. XXVII.

We should consider seriously the blessings and cursings pronounced with so much solemnity to the Israelites; that sinners are subject to the wrath of God, no less by the gospel, than by the law; and that those denounced by the gospel ■■ by far the most terrible.

13 And the LORD shall make thee the head, and not the tail; and thou shalt be above only, and thou shalt not be beneath; if that thou hearken unto the commandments of the LORD thy God, which I command thee this day, to observe and to do them:

14 And thou shalt not go aside from any of the words which I command thee this day, to the right hand, or to the left, to go after other gods to serve them.

15 ¶ But it shall come to pass, if thou wilt not hearken unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to observe to do all his commandments and his statutes which I command thee this day; that all these curses shall come upon thee, and overtake thee:

20 The LORD shall send upon thee cursing, vexation, and rebuke, in all that thou settest thine hand unto for to do, until thou be destroyed, and until thou perish quickly; because of the wickedness of thy doings, whereby thou hast forsaken me.

21 The LORD shall make the pestilence cleave unto thee, until he have consumed thee from off the land, whither thou goest to possess it.

22 The LORD shall smite thee with a consumption, and with a fever, and with an inflammation, and with an extreme burning, and with the sword, and with blasting, and with mildew; and they shall pursue thee until thou perish.

23 And the heaven that is over thy head shall be brass, and the earth that is under thee shall be iron.

24 The LORD shall make the rain of thy land powder and dust: from heaven shall it come down upon thee, until thou be destroyed.

25 The LORD shall cause thee to be smitten before thine enemies: thou shalt go out one way against them, and flee seven ways before them: and shalt be removed into all the kingdoms of the earth.

26 And thy carcase shall be meat unto the fowls of the air, and unto the beasts of the earth, and no man shall fray them away.

27 The LORD will smite thee with the botch of Egypt, and with the emerods, and with the scab, and with the itch, whereof thou canst not be healed.

28 The LORD will smite thee with madness, and blindness, and astonishment of heart:

29 And thou shalt grope at noonday, as the blind gropeth in darkness, and thou shalt not prosper in thy ways:

ness and unexpectedness of the blessings wherewith God would favour the Israelites:—he would surprise them, as it were, with his benefits, and not only exceed, but even anticipate their wishes.

5 Blessed shall be thy basket, &c.] i. e. Thou shalt prosper in all thy labours of husbandry.

7 Flee before thee seven ways.] Which promised not only victory, but a complete one.

12 Thou shalt lend unto many nations, and thou shalt not borrow.] i. e. Thou shalt have such plenty, as that, after thou hast sufficed thyself, thou shalt be able to lend unto others.

21 Cleave unto thee] i. e. Be incurable.

30 Thou shalt betroth a wife, and another man shall lie with her: thou shalt build an house, and thou shalt not dwell therein: thou shalt plant a vineyard, and shalt not gather the grapes thereof.

31 Thine ox shall be slain before thine eyes, and thou shalt not eat thereof: thine ass shall be violently taken away from before thy face, and shall not be restored to thee: thy sheep shall be given unto thine enemies, and thou shalt have none to rescue them.

32 Thy sons and thy daughters shall be given unto another people, and thine eyes shall look, and fail with longing for them all the day long: and there shall be no might in thine hand.

33 The fruit of thy land, and all thy labours, shall a nation which thou knowest not eat up; and thou shalt be only oppressed and crushed away:

34 So that thou shalt be mad for the sight of thine eyes which thou shalt see.

35 The LORD shall smite thee in the knees, and in the legs, with a sore botch that cannot be healed, from the sole of thy foot unto the top of thy head.

36 The LORD shall bring thee, and thy king which thou shalt set over thee, unto a nation which neither thou nor thy fathers have known; and there shalt thou serve other gods, wood and stone.

37 And thou shalt become an astonishment, a proverb, and a byword, among all nations whither the LORD shall lead thee.

38 Thou shalt carry much seed out into the field, and shalt gather but little in; for the locust shall consume it.

39 Thou shalt plant vineyards, and dress them, but shalt neither drink of the wine, nor gather the grapes; for the worms shall eat them.

40 Thou shalt have olive trees throughout all thy coasts, but thou shalt not anoint thyself with the oil; for thine olive shall cast his fruit.

41 Thou shalt beget sons and daughters, but thou shalt not enjoy them; for they shall go into captivity.

42 All thy trees and fruit of thy land shall the locust consume.

43 The stranger that is within thee shall get up above thee very high; and thou shalt come down very low.

44 He shall lend to thee, and thou shalt not lend to him: he shall be the head, and thou shalt be the tail.

45 Moreover all these curses shall come upon thee, and shall pursue thee, and overtake thee, till thou be destroyed; because thou hearkenedst not unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to keep his commandments and his statutes which he commanded thee:

46 And they shall be upon thee for a sign and for a wonder, and upon thy seed for ever.

47 Because thou servedst not the LORD thy God with joyfulness, and with gladness of heart, for the abundance of all things:

48 Therefore shalt thou serve thine enemies which

45 Moreover all these curses shall come upon thee—till thou be destroyed, &c.] This signifies, that these punishments should not cease, but follow one upon another, till they had brought them to utter ruin.

46 They shall be upon thee for a sign and for a wonder] i. e. The curses shall remain fixed upon thee, and continue unremoved from age to age, that all men may take notice of them, and look upon them as extraordinary tokens of God's high displeasure, and take warning thereby, to avoid their guilt of disobedience and infidelity.

And upon thy seed for ever.] That all the world may clearly see that the God of their fathers hath cast them off, they having signs or badges of his ancient wonted favours; whilst innumerable marks and scars of his fearful indignation against their fathers, remain unhealed in their children, after more generations than their ancestors had of prosperity in the promised land.

49 The Lord shall bring a nation against thee from far] A similar description is given of the Chaldeans, Jer. v. 15. But this evidently belongs to the Romans.

From the end of the earth] The Romans, by whom they were last destroyed, literally from far, and from the end of the earth, the LORD shall send against thee, in hunger, and in thirst, and in nakedness, and in want of all things: and he shall put a yoke of iron upon thy neck, until he have destroyed thee.

49 The LORD shall bring a nation against thee from far, from the end of the earth, as swift as the eagle flieth; a nation whose tongue thou shalt not understand.

50 A nation of fierce countenance, which shall not regard the person of the old, nor shew favour to the young:

51 And he shall eat the fruit of thy cattle, and the fruit of thy land, until thou be destroyed: which also shall not leave thee either corn, wine, or oil, or the increase of thy kine, or flocks of thy sheep, until he have destroyed thee.

52 And he shall besiege thee in all thy gates, until thy high and fenced walls come down, wherein thou trustedst throughout all thy land: and he shall besiege thee in all thy gates throughout all thy land, which the LORD thy God hath given thee.

53 And thou shalt eat the fruit of thine own body, the flesh of thy sons and of thy daughters, which the LORD thy God hath given thee, in the siege, and in the straitness, wherewith thine enemies shall distress thee:

54 So that the man that is tender among you, and very delicate, his eye shall be evil toward his brother, and toward the wife of his bosom, and toward the remnant of his children which he shall leave:

55 So that he will not give to any of them of the flesh of his children whom he shall eat: because he hath nothing left him in the siege, and in the straitness, wherewith thine enemies shall distress thee in all thy gates.

56 The tender and delicate woman among you, which would not adventure to set the sole of her foot upon the ground for delicateness and tenderness, her eye shall be evil toward the husband of her bosom, and toward her son, and toward her daughter,

57 And toward her young one that cometh out from between her feet, and toward her children which she shall bear: for she shall eat them for want of all things secretly in the siege and straitness, wherewith thine enemy shall distress thee in thy gates.

58 If thou wilt not observe to do all the words of this law that are written in this book, that thou mayest fear this glorious and fearful name, THE LORD THY GOD;

59 Then the LORD will make thy plagues wonderful, and the plagues of thy seed, even great plagues, and of long continuance, and sore sicknesses, and of long continuance.

60 Moreover he will bring upon thee all the diseases of Egypt, which thou wast afraid of; and they shall cleave unto thee.

61 Also every sickness, and every plague, which is not written in the book of this law, them will the LORD bring upon thee, until thou be destroyed.

62 And ye shall be left few in number, whereas ye were particularly Julius Severus, who was called by the emperor Adrian, to effect their destruction, from commanding here in Britain.

As swift as the eagle flieth, &c.] This is metaphorically applied to the Roman eagles, or ensigns.

53 In the siege, and in the straitness, wherewith thine enemies shall distress thee.] Which was exactly fulfilled by Vespasian and his son Titus, who besieged them so closely in Jerusalem, that they could not stir out; so that several hundred thousands perished by a lamentable famine and the sword; there were destroyed by pestilence, famine, and otherways, one million, one hundred thousand, besides above nine hundred thousand carried into captivity.

55 So that he will not give to any, &c.] These words are descriptive of more famines than one, whereby they were forced, after they had eaten up their horses, dogs, cats, and such like creatures, and their very belts and shoes, to eat even their own children; which the parents, who used to live deliciously, Moses prophesied should themselves eat up privately, and let none share with them.

62 Ye shall be left few in number, &c.] Accordingly, they were left few in number; for Severus so beset and attacked them separately, in several parties, that very few of them escaped.

Before CHRIST 1451. were as the stars of heaven for multitude; because thou wouldest not obey the voice of the LORD thy God.

63 And it shall come to pass, that as the LORD rejoiced over you to do you good, and to multiply you; so the LORD will rejoice over you to destroy you, and to bring you to nought: and ye shall be plucked from off the land whither thou goest to possess it.

64 And the LORD shall scatter thee among all people, from the one end of the earth even unto the other; and there thou shalt serve other gods, which neither thou nor thy fathers have known, even wood and stone.

65 And among these nations shalt thou find no ease, neither shall the sole of thy foot have rest: but the LORD shall give thee there a trembling heart, and failing of eyes, and sorrow of mind.

66 And thy life shall hang in doubt before thee; and thou shalt fear day and night, and shalt have none assurance of thy life:

67 In the morning thou shalt say, Would God it were even! and at even thou shalt say, Would God it were morning! for the fear of thine heart wherewith thou shalt fear, and for the sight of thine eyes which thou shalt see.

68 And the LORD shall bring thee into Egypt again with ships, by the way whereof I spake unto thee, Thou shalt see it no more again: and there ye shall be sold unto your enemies for bondmen and bondwomen, and no man shall buy you.

C H A P. XXIX.

1 Moses exhorteth the people to obedience by the memory of the works they had seen. 10 They are all presented before the LORD to enter into covenant with him, and warned of the danger of flattering themselves in wickedness. Revealed things alone belong to men.

THESE are the words of the covenant, which the LORD commanded Moses to make with the children of Israel in the land of Moab, beside the covenant which he made with them in Horeb.

2 ¶ And Moses called unto all Israel, and said unto them, Ye have seen all that the LORD did before your eyes in the land of Egypt unto Pharaoh, and unto all his servants, and unto all his land;

3 The great temptations which thine eyes have seen, the signs, and those great miracles:

4 Yet the LORD hath not given you an heart to perceive, and eyes to see, and ears to hear, unto this day.

5 And I have led you forty years in the wilderness: your clothes are not waxen old upon you, and thy shoe is not waxen old upon thy foot.

6 Ye have not eaten bread, neither have ye drunk wine or strong drink: that ye might know that I am the LORD your God.

7 And when ye came unto this place, Sihon the king of Heshbon, and Og the king of Bashan, came out against us unto battle, and we smote them:

64 From the one end of the earth even unto the other, &c.] Many of them were caused by Adrian to be transported into Spain, accounted the western end of the world; and many of them fled to Babylon, and almost the extremity of the east.

68 Ye shall be sold—and no man shall buy you.] By this it is generally understood, that though some were sold at a very vile rate, next to nothing, yet others hung upon the sellers hands; the market being either overstocked with their numbers, that none would cheapen the greatest part of them; or they were so contemptible, that none would give for such useless slaves the price which was demanded.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXVIII.

The threatenings and curses contained in this chapter having been accomplished, clearly prove the divinity of the holy scriptures; and ought to inspire us with great fear of offending the Lord, lest we should incur those penalties and curses that are denounced in the gospel; and which are neither less certain, nor less dreadful, than those contained in the law.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXIX.

1 These are the words, &c.] Signifying the words of the foregoing chapter.

No. 17.

8 And we took their land, and gave it for an inheritance unto the Reubenites, and to the Gadites, and to the half tribe of Manassah.

9 Keep therefore the words of this covenant, and do them, that ye may prosper in all that ye do.

10 ¶ Ye stand this day all of you before the LORD your God; your captains of your tribes, your elders, and your officers, with all the men of Israel;

11 Your little ones, your wives, and thy stranger that is in thy camp, from the hewer of thy wood unto the drawer of thy water:

12 That thou shouldest enter into covenant with the LORD thy God, and into his oath, which the LORD thy God maketh with thee this day:

13 That he may establish thee to day for a people unto himself, and that he may be unto thee a God, as he hath said unto thee, and as he hath sworn unto thy fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob.

14 Neither with you only do I make this covenant and this oath;

15 But with him that standeth here with us this day before the LORD our God, and also with him that is not here with us this day:

16 (For ye know how we have dwelt in the land of Egypt; and how we came through the nations which ye passed by;

17 And ye have seen their abominations, and their idols, wood and stone, silver and gold, which were among them:)

18 Lest there should be among you man, or woman, or family, or tribe, whose heart turneth away this day from the LORD our God, to go and serve the gods of these nations; lest there should be among you a root that beareth gall and wormwood;

19 And it come to pass, when he heareth the words of this curse, that he bless himself in his heart, saying, I shall have peace, though I walk in the imagination of mine heart, to add drunkenness to thirst:

20 The LORD will not spare him, but then the anger of the LORD and his jealousy shall smoke against that man, and all the curses that are written in this book shall lie upon him, and the LORD shall blot out his name from under heaven.

21 And the LORD shall separate him unto evil out of all the tribes of Israel, according to all the curses of the covenant that are written in this book of the law:

22 So that the generation to come of your children that shall rise up after you, and the stranger that shall come from a far land, shall say, when they see the plagues of that land, and the sicknesses which the LORD hath laid upon it;

23 And that the whole land thereof is brimstone, and salt, and burning, that it is not sown, nor beareth, nor any grass groweth therein, like the overthrow of Sodom, and Gomorrah, Admah, and Zeboim, which the LORD overthrew in his anger, and in his wrath:

24 Even all nations shall say, Wherefore hath the LORD

6 Ye have not eaten bread, &c.] For they were constantly supported by a miraculous supply from God, who took care of them, and thereby laid a greater obligation upon them to serve him, who had graciously fed them, without any labour of their own.

15 But with him that standeth here with us this day, &c.] Instead of "but," it might be better translated, As with him that standeth here with us this day before the LORD our God, so also with him that is not with us this day.

18 A root that beareth gall and wormwood.] This is a figurative expression, which denotes any wicked, idolatrous person lurking among, and mixed in with the people; who, like the venom of an infectious plant, might diffuse their evil practices, and corrupt the rest.

19 To add drunkenness to thirst.] This is a metaphorical expression, which denotes presumptuous continuance in sin.

20 Shall lie upon him, &c.] The curses shall not fall only, but shall "lie" or remain upon him.

23 The whole land thereof is brimstone, and salt, and burning, &c.] We are told by Pliny, Omnis locus in quo reperitur sal, sterilis est, nihilque gignit; that is, All ground whereon salt is found, is barren, and produces nothing.

29 The

Before CHRIST 1451. LORD done thus unto this land? what meaneth the heat of this great anger?

25 Then men shall say, Because they have forsaken the covenant of the LORD God of their fathers, which he made with them when he brought them forth out of the land of Egypt:

26 For they went and served other gods, and worshipped them, gods whom they knew not, and whom he had not given unto them:

27 And the anger of the LORD was kindled against this land, to bring upon it all the curses that are written in this book:

28 And the LORD rooted them out of their land in anger, and in wrath, and in great indignation, and cast them into another land, as it is this day.

29 The secret things belong unto the LORD our God: but those things which are revealed belong unto us and to our children for ever, that we may do all the words of this law.

C H A P. XXX.

1 Great mercies promised unto the penitent. 11 The commandment is of obvious interpretation. 15 Death and life are set before the people.

AND it shall come to pass, when all these things are come upon thee, the blessing and the curse, which I have set before thee, and thou shalt call them to mind among all the nations, whither the LORD thy God hath driven thee,

■ And shalt return unto the LORD thy God, and shalt obey his voice according to all that I command thee this day, thou and thy children, with all thine heart, and with all thy soul;

3 That then the LORD thy God will turn thy captivity, and have compassion upon thee, and will return and gather thee from all the nations, whither the LORD thy God hath scattered thee.

4 If any of thine be driven out unto the outmost parts of heaven, from thence will the LORD thy God gather thee, and from thence will he fetch thee:

5 And the LORD thy God will bring thee into the land which thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt possess it; and he will do thee good, and multiply thee above thy fathers.

6 And the LORD thy God will circumcise thine heart, and the heart of thy seed, to love the LORD thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, that thou mayest live.

7 And the LORD thy God will put all these curses upon thine enemies, and on them that hate thee, which persecuted thee.

8 And thou shalt return and obey the voice of the LORD, and do all his commandments which I command thee this day.

9 And the LORD thy God will make thee plenteous

29 The secret things belong, &c.] Several take the meaning of this to be, that men should not search into those mysteries which God has, in his great wisdom, thought proper to conceal from the sons of men. It has likewise been translated thus: That the secrets of the Lord our God are revealed to us and to our children; and this sense has been adopted and maintained by many of great eminence and learning.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXIX.

From this chapter, and the threatenings denounced in it, we are taught to fear God, and not expose ourselves to his wrath. Above all, we should remember, that he has made for us a more excellent and permanent covenant in Jesus Christ: we should therefore take heed that we fear, love, and obey him.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXX.

4 If any of thine be driven out unto the utmost parts of heaven, from thence will the Lord thy God gather thee, &c.] To this promise Nehemiah plainly alludes in his prayer to God, to prosper his endeavours for the restoration of Jerusalem, Neh. i. 8, 9.

6 Will circumcise thine heart, &c.] It is translated in the Greek, Will purge and cleanse thine heart. The Jews rested too much on the externals of their religion, and particularly the circumcision of the flesh.

13 Who shall go over the sea for us, &c.] It was not necessary for the

in every work of thine hand, in the fruit of thy body, and in the fruit of thy cattle, and in the fruit of thy land, for good: for the LORD will again rejoice over thee for good, as he rejoiced over thy fathers:

10 If thou shalt hearken unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to keep his commandments and his statutes which are written in this book of the law, and if thou turn unto the LORD thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul.

11 ¶ For this commandment which I command thee this day, it is not hidden from thee, neither is it far off.

12 It is not in heaven, that thou shouldest say, Who shall go up for us to heaven, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it, and do it?

13 Neither is it beyond the sea, that thou shouldest say, Who shall go over the sea for us, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it, and do it?

14 But the word is very nigh unto thee, in thy mouth, and in thy heart, that thou mayest do it.

15 ¶ See, I have set before thee this day life and good, and death and evil;

16 In that I command thee this day to love the LORD thy God, to walk in his ways, and to keep his commandments and his statutes and his judgments, that thou mayest live and multiply: and the LORD thy God shall bless thee in the land whither thou goest to possess it.

17 But if thine heart turn away, so that thou wilt not hear, but shalt be drawn away, and worship other gods, and serve them;

18 I denounce unto you this day, that ye shall surely perish, and that ye shall not prolong your days upon the land, whither thou passest over Jordan to go to possess it.

19 I call heaven and earth to record this day against you, that I have set before you life and death, blessing and cursing: therefore choose life, that both thou and thy seed may live:

20 That thou mayest love the LORD thy God, and that thou mayest obey his voice, and that thou mayest cleave unto him: for he is thy life, and the length of thy days: that thou mayest dwell in the land which the LORD swore unto thy fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, to give them.

C H A P. XXXI.

■ Moses encourageth the people, 7 and Joshua. 9 He delivereth the law to the priests to be read by them every seventh year to the people. 14 Moses and Joshua appear before God. 16 God telleth Moses of the people's future apostacy, and the consequent evils, and giveth him a song to testify against them. 23 Joshua receiveth a charge. 24 Moses delivereth the book of the law to the Levites to keep, and calleth together the elders and officers to hear the song.

AND

Israelites (like the Greek philosophers) to undertake long and tedious voyages, or wearisome travels, to fetch their instructions from foreign countries, in order to acquire wisdom; for God now taught his people in the wilderness, without any pains of their own.

15 See, I have set before thee life and good, and death and evil.] By "life" may be meant long life in the land God had promised them; and by "good," all the prosperity they could wish for there; so by "death" is understood their being cut off from the land of the living before their time; and by "evil," all the calamities he had threatened while they lived. In a higher sense, it may be understood to mean, true happiness both here and for ever.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXX.

This chapter exhibits to us the promises God made to the Jews, of re-establishing them when they should return to him; and shews, that God is full of goodness, and always ready to receive into mercy those sinners who are enabled to make a right use of his corrections, and are converted to him. If we consider what Moses says, "I set before thee life and death, blessing and cursing—choose thee blessing and life," it will appear, that there is nothing wanting on God's part to make men happy; and if they perish, their condemnation will lie at their own door: this reflection should excite us to love God with all our heart, obey his voice, and to adhere to him; because he alone is our life and our happiness.

Before
CHRIST

AND Moses went and spake these words unto all Israel.

2 And he said unto them, I am an hundred and twenty years old this day; I can no more go out and come in: also the LORD hath said unto me, Thou shalt not go over this Jordan.

3 The LORD thy God, he will go over before thee, and he will destroy these nations from before thee, and thou shalt possess them: and Joshua, he shall go over before thee, as the LORD hath said.

4 And the LORD shall do unto them as he did to Sihon and to Og, kings of the Amorites, and unto the land of them, whom he destroyed.

5 And the LORD shall give them up before your face, that ye may do unto them according unto all the commandments which I have commanded you.

6 Be strong, and of good courage, fear not, nor be afraid of them: for the LORD thy God, he it is that doth go with thee; he will not fail thee, nor forsake thee.

7 ¶ And Moses called unto Joshua, and said unto him in the sight of all Israel, Be strong and of a good courage: for thou must go with this people unto the land which the LORD hath sworn unto their fathers to give them; and thou shalt cause them to inherit it.

¶ And the LORD, he it is that doth go before thee; he will be with thee, he will not fail thee, neither forsake thee: fear not, neither be dismayed.

9 ¶ And Moses wrote this law, and delivered it unto the priests the sons of Levi, which bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and unto all the elders of Israel.

10 And Moses commanded them, saying, At the end of every seven years, in the solemnity of the year of release, in the feast of tabernacles, 11 When all Israel is come to appear before the LORD thy God in the place which he shall choose, thou shalt read this law before all Israel in their hearing.

12 Gather the people together, men, and women, and children, and thy stranger that is within thy gates, that they may hear, and that they may learn, and fear the LORD your God, and observe to do all the words of this law:

13 And that their children, which have not known any thing, may hear, and learn to fear the LORD your God, as long as ye live in the land whither ye go over Jordan to possess it.

14 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Behold, thy days approach that thou must die: call Joshua, and present yourselves in the tabernacle of the congregation, that I may give him a charge. And Moses and Joshua went, and presented themselves in the tabernacle of the congregation.

15 And the LORD appeared in the tabernacle in a pillar of a cloud: and the pillar of the cloud stood over the door of the tabernacle.

16 And the LORD said unto Moses, Behold, thou shalt sleep with thy fathers; and this people will rise up, and go ■ whoring after the gods of the strangers of the land, whither they go to be among them, and will forsake me, and break my covenant which I have made with them.

17 Then my anger shall be kindled against them in that day, and I will forsake them, and I will hide my face from them, and they shall be devoured, and many evils and troubles shall befall them; so that they will say in that day, Are not these evils come upon us, because our God is not among us?

18 And I will surely hide my face in that day for all the evils which they shall have wrought, in that they are turned unto other gods.

19 Now therefore write ye this song for you, and teach it the children of Israel: put it in their mouths, that this song may be a witness for me against the children of Israel.

20 For when I shall have brought them into the land which I swear unto their fathers, that floweth with milk and honey; and they shall have eaten and filled themselves, and waxen fat; then will they turn unto other gods, and serve them, and provoke me, and break my covenant.

21 And it shall come to pass, when many evils and troubles are befallen them, that this song shall testify against them as a witness; for it shall not be forgotten out of the mouths of their seed: for I know their imagination which they go about, even now, before I have brought them into the land which I swear.

22 Moses therefore wrote this song the same day, and taught it the children of Israel.

23 ¶ And he gave Joshua the son of Nun a charge, and said, Be strong and of a good courage: for thou shalt bring the children of Israel into the land which I swear unto them: and I will be with thee.

24 ¶ And it came to pass when Moses had made an end of writing the words of this law in ■ book, until they were finished,

25 That Moses commanded the Levites, which bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, saying,

26 Take this book of the law, and put it in the side of the ark of the covenant of the LORD your God, that it may be there for a witness against thee.

27 For I know thy rebellion, and thy stiff neck: behold, while I am yet alive with you this day, ye have been rebellious against the LORD; and how much more after my death?

28 Gather unto me all the elders of your tribes, and your officers, that I may speak these words in their ears, and call heaven and earth to record against them.

29 For I know that after my death ye will utterly corrupt yourselves, and turn aside from the way which I have commanded you; and evil will befall you in the latter days; because ye will do evil in the sight of the LORD, to provoke him to anger through the work of your hands.

30 And Moses spake in the ears of all the congregation of Israel the words of this song, until they were ended.

CHAP.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXI.

¶ And Moses went and spake, &c.] Moses, in all probability, after he had renewed the covenant with the people (mentioned in the foregoing chapter) dismissed them, and retired to his own tent; but not long after gave them a new summons, and went again to take his leave of them.

¶ I can no more go out and come in, &c.] i. e. I can no longer discharge the office I have long sustained of your governor and leader; not for want of vigour either of body or mind, but because God did not think fit to permit him to conduct them any farther.

Also the Lord hath said, &c.] i. e. For the Lord hath said, &c.

¶ And Joshua, he shall go over before thee, &c.] Being their captain and leader, after the death of Moses.

¶ Which bare the ark of the covenant of the Lord, &c.] For the Kohathites, who were Levites and not priests, carried the ark in their travels.

16 In the solemnity of the year of release, in the feast of tabernacles.] This being at the end of every seventh year, when they were free from ■■■ by the release of their debts, the law was likely to make the greater impression on them.

16 Thou shalt sleep with thy fathers, &c.] "Sleep," in scripture, signifying death, this implies, that death shall not have dominion over the bodies of God's people for ever, but that in the morning of the resurrection they shall awake as certainly as they fall asleep.

25 Moses commanded the Levites, &c.] i. e. The priests, who were of the tribe of Levi.

26 In the side of the ark, &c.] Or, by the side of the ark ■ to be reserved there as the authentic copy, by which all others were to be examined and corrected.

30 The words of this song, &c.] The poetry of scripture consists in brief and weighty sentences, simply and sincerely composed, in a lively manner, to enlighten the understanding, move the affections, and fix the memory. Moses led the way to all the excellencies contained in the ancient poetry of the heathens; inasmuch as his mind was raised to the noblest sublimity of thoughts and speech, by admiration of those strange events, of which he had been an eye-witness.

GENERAL

Before
CHRIST

C H A P. XXXII.

Moses' song, which setteth forth the perfections of God; 7 his special goodness to his people; 15 their ingratitude and apostacy; 19 God's displeasure and vengeance, but mercy in the end. 44 Moses adviseth the people to set their hearts unto all the words of the law. 48 God sendeth him up to mount Nebo to see the promised land, and die.

GIVE ear, O ye heavens, and I will speak; and hear, O earth, the words of my mouth.

■ My doctrine shall drop as the rain, my speech shall distil as the dew, as the small rain upon the tender herb, and ■ the showers upon the grass:

3 Because I will publish the name of the LORD: ascribe ye greatness unto our God.

4 He is the Rock, his work is perfect: for all his ways are judgment: a God of truth and without iniquity, just and right is he.

5 They have corrupted themselves, their spot is not the spot of his children: they are a perverse and crooked generation.

6 Do ye thus requite the LORD, O foolish people and unwise? is not he thy father that hath bought thee? hath he not made thee, and established thee?

7 I Remember the days of old, consider the years of many generations: ask thy father and he will shew thee; thy elders, and they will tell thee.

■ When the Most High divided to the nations their inheritance, when he separated the sons of Adam, he set the bounds of the people according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For the LORD's portion is his people; Jacob is the lot of his inheritance.

10 He found him in a desert land, and in the waste howling wilderness; he led him about, he instructed him, he kept him as the apple of his eye.

11 As an eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them, beareth them on her wings:

12 So the LORD alone did lead him, and there was no strange god with him.

13 He made him ride on the high places of the earth, that he might eat the increase of the fields; and he made him to suck honey out of the rock, and oil out of the flinty rock;

14 Butter of kine, and milk of sheep, with fat of lambs, and rams of the breed of Bashan, and goats, with the fat of kidneys of wheat; and thou didst drink the pure blood of the grape.

15 I But Jeshurun waxed fat, and kicked: thou art waxen fat, thou art grown thick, thou art covered with fatness; then he forsook God which made him, and lightly esteemed the Rock of his salvation.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXI.

From hence we perceive the necessity there was that the word of God should be put into writing, to the end that religion should be preserved pure and uncorrupted; that this word should be read to the people; and that the chief care of the ministers of religion should be, to keep the true doctrine, and the service of God, free from any alteration; and that God will punish the disobedience and ingratitude of those who abuse his goodness, corrupt his true worship, and rebel against him.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXII.

■ Give ear, O ye heavens, &c.] This inimitable piece of poetry Moses begins by invoking the heavens and the earth to attend to what he is going to deliver. Such figurative and animated modes of speech have a great tendency to awaken the attention.

2 My doctrine shall drop, &c.] i. e. Let my doctrine drop, &c. Sink into their hearts, to soften them, ■ the drops of rain and dew do the earth, and produce the fruits of obedience.

5 Their spot is not the spot of his children, &c.] That is, the sons of pollution are not his. The true characteristic of the sons of God, is, ■ imitate God himself; but the crimes of the Israelites were of so aggravating nature, as to speak them degenerate from their profession of being God's peculiar people; they were ■ the spots of a crooked and perverse generation, who refused to be reclaimed.

8 When the Most High divided to the nations their inheritance, &c.] Moses directs them to look farther back, and they would find that long before Abraham's time God had them in his thoughts, even 16 They provoked him to jealousy with strange gods, with abominations provoked they him to anger. Before CHRIST 1451.

17 They sacrificed unto devils, not to God; to gods whom they knew not, to new gods that came newly up, whom your fathers feared not.

18 Of the Rock that begat thee thou art unmindful, and hast forgotten God that formed thee.

19 I And when the LORD saw it he abhorred them, because of the provoking of his sons, and of his daughters.

20 And he said, I will hide my face from them, I will see what their end shall be: for they are a very froward generation; children in whom is no faith.

21 They have moved me to jealousy with that which is not God; they have provoked me to anger with their vanities: and I will move them to jealousy with those which are not a people; I will provoke them to anger with a foolish nation.

22 For a fire is kindled in mine anger, and shall burn unto the lowest hell, and shall consume the earth with her increase, and set on fire the foundations of the mountains.

23 I will heap mischiefs upon them; I will spend mine arrows upon them.

24 They shall be burnt with hunger, and devoured with burning heat, and with bitter destruction: I will also send the teeth of beasts upon them, with the poison of serpents of the dust.

25 The sword without, and terror within, shall destroy both the young man and the virgin, the suckling also with the man of grey hairs.

26 I said, I would scatter them into corners, I would make the remembrance of them to cease from among men:

27 Were it not that I feared the wrath of the enemy, lest their adversaries should behave themselves strangely, and lest they should say, Our hand is high, and the LORD hath not done all this.

28 For they are a nation void of counsel, neither is there any understanding in them.

29 O that they were wise, that they understood this, that they would consider their latter end!

30 How should one chase a thousand, and two put ten thousand to flight, except their Rock had sold them, and the LORD had shut them up?

31 For their rock is not as our Rock, even our enemies themselves being judges.

32 For their vine is of the vine of Sodom, and of the fields of Gomorrah: their grapes are grapes of gall, their clusters are bitter:

33 Their wine is the poison of dragons, and the cruel venom of asps.

34 Is

when he divided the earth among the sons of Noah and their posterity, after the flood.

10 He led him about, &c.] That is, he compassed him about, he incircled him with his divine protection.

11 As an eagle stirreth up her nest, &c.] Surely the care of Providence over the Israelites could not be expressed by any other comparison more emphatically.

13 He made him ride, &c.] Perhaps fare sumptuously, and live deliciously, as in Hisea. x. 11. the meaning of which is, the people of Israel shall live in pleasure, while Judah shall live laboriously.

15 Jeshurun waxed fat, &c.] Here Moses prophetically declares, that Israel, in their prosperity, should abuse God's mercies, spurn at his laws, and become wanton and insolent ■ pampered horse. The word "Jeshurun" may be derived from jalber, "righteousness;" because they were a people professing righteousness, or governed by laws of righteousness.

21 I will move them to jealousy with those which are not a people, &c.] Thus God threatens to repay their frequent revolts from him in their own kind, by causing the very Gentiles, whom they so much despised, ■ only to become their conquerors, but also to be taken into his covenant, while they themselves were excluded from it.

27 Were it not that I feared the wrath of the enemy, &c.] Thus we find God would not have their enemies insult and grow outrageous in their insolent language, even against himself.

32 Their wine is of the vine of Sodom, &c.] All the soil about Sodom produced nothing but blasted fruit, of a black hue, and without substance.

36 For

Before CHRIST 1451. 34 Is not this laid up in store with me, and sealed up among my treasures?

35 To me belongeth vengeance, and recompence; their foot shall slide in due time: for the day of their calamity is at hand, and the things that shall come upon them make haste.

36 For the LORD shall judge his people, and repent himself for his servants, when he seeth that their power is gone, and there is none shut up, or left.

37 And he shall say, Where are their gods, their rock in whom they trusted, 38 Which did eat the fat of their sacrifices, and drink the wine of their drink offerings? let them rise up and help you, and be your protection.

39 See now that I, even I, am he, and there is no god with me: I kill, and I make alive; I wound, and I heal: neither is there any that can deliver out of my hand.

40 For I lift up my hand to heaven, and say, I live for ever.

41 If I whet my glittering sword, and mine hand take hold on judgment; I will render vengeance to mine enemies, and will reward them that hate me.

42 I will make mine arrows drunk with blood, and my sword shall devour flesh; and that with the blood of the slain and of the captives, from the beginning of revenges upon the enemy.

43 Rejoice, O ye nations, with his people: for he will avenge the blood of his servants, and will render vengeance to his adversaries, and will be merciful unto his land, and to his people.

44 ¶ And Moses came and spake all the words of this song in the ears of the people, he, and Hoshea the son of Nun.

45 And Moses made an end of speaking all these words to all Israel:

46 And he said unto them, Set your hearts unto all the words which I testify among you this day, which ye shall command your children to observe to do, all the words of this law.

47 For it is not a vain thing for you; because it is your life: and through this thing ye shall prolong your days in the land, whither ye go over Jordan to possess it.

48 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses that self-same day, saying,

49 Get thee up into this mountain Abarim, unto mount Nebo, which is in the land of Moab, that is over against Jericho; and behold the land of Canaan, which I give unto the children of Israel for a possession:

50 And die in the mount whither thou goest up, and be gathered unto thy people; as Aaron thy brother died in mount Hor, and was gathered unto his people:

51 Because ye trespassed against me among the children of Israel at the waters of Meribah-Kadesh, in the wilderness of Zin: because you sanctified me not in the midst of the children of Israel.

36 For the Lord, &c.] i. e. Upon their repentance, he will shew them compassion. "Nevertheless" instead of "For" would read better.

38 Which did eat the fat of their sacrifices, &c.] The same rites were used among the Gentiles as among the Jews, who offered all the fat upon the altar, and there poured out the wine which accompanied the meat offering.

40 I lift up my hand to heaven, &c.] i. e. I swear solemnly. It was usual to stretch out the hand in swearing; agreeable to Virgil, Suspiciens cælum tenditque ad sidera dextram.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXII. In this song of Moses we find it plainly foretold, that the Gentiles should be called to partake of the covenant of God, in the place of the Jews, and the Jews themselves should also be admitted in the latter days. Here we should bless the Lord for having honoured us with his knowledge, who were formerly heathens, and pray for the conversion of the Jews, and of all the other nations in the world.

8 ¶ And of Levi he said, Let thy Thummim and thy Urim be with thy holy one, whom thou didst prove at Massah, and with whom thou didst strive at the waters of Meribah;

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXIII.

From this chapter we may consider, that how great soever those blessings of Moses were, they became vain and unprofitable, by the disobedience of the Jews, who are now thereby deprived of all help, and who is the sword of thy excellency! and thine enemies shall be found liars unto thee; and thou shalt tread upon their high places.

1 Moses from mount Nebo vieweth the land: 5 His death and burial: 7 His age. ¶ Thirty days' mourning for him. 9 Joshua succeedeth him. 10 The praise of Moses.

AND Moses went up from the plains of Moab unto the mountain of Nebo, to the top of Pisgah, that is over against Jericho. And the LORD shewed him all the land of Gilead, unto Dan,

¶ And all Naphtali, and the land of Ephraim, and Manasseh, and all the land of Judah, unto the utmost sea,

3 And the south, and the plain of the valley of Jericho, the city of palm trees, unto Zoar.

4 And the LORD said unto him, This is the land which I swore unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob, saying, I will give it unto thy seed: I have caused thee to see it with thine eyes, but thou shalt not go over thither.

5 ¶ So Moses, the servant of the LORD, died there in the land of Moab, according to the word of the LORD.

6 And he buried him in a valley in the land of Moab, over against Beth-Peor: but no man knoweth of his sepulchre unto this day.

7 ¶ And Moses was an hundred and twenty years old when he died: his eye was not dim, nor his natural force abated.

8 ¶ And the children of Israel wept for Moses in the plains of Moab thirty days: so the days of weeping and mourning for Moses were ended.

9 And Joshua the son of Nun was full of the spirit of wisdom; for Moses had laid his hands upon him: and the children of Israel hearkened unto him, and did as the LORD commanded Moses.

10 ¶ And there arose not a prophet since in Israel like unto Moses, whom the LORD knew face to face, the benefits that Moses wished them before his death. Hence we may learn, that it is not sufficient for the servants of God to bless and pray for men (even though God be ready to bestow those blessings) if men by their sins and negligence defeat the same.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXXIV.

1 And Moses, &c.] It is an opinion, which seems very consonant both to reason and matter of fact, that this last book of Moses ended with the preceding chapter, which contains his prophetic blessing upon the twelve tribes, and that the present chapter was formerly the first of Joshua, but thence removed by way of supplement.

6 No man knoweth of his sepulchre, &c.] The reason why this great prophet and lawgiver was so secretly buried, was, to prevent the people from paying idolatrous worship to his remains; a species of idolatry still prevalent in pagan and popish countries.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXXIV.

It is our duty to honour the memory of Moses; to reverence the law he promulged; to imitate his virtues, particularly that faith, meekness, zeal, and diligence, in which he served God. But, above all, we should believe in him whose coming he foretold, and who is infinitely superior to him by the divinity of his person, perfection of his doctrine, glory of his miracles, and holiness of his life; namely, our Lord Jesus Christ.

SUMMARY OF THE DOCTRINES CONTAINED IN THESE BOOKS.

The Books of Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy, are chiefly repetitions of the laws delivered to the people, by the inspired writer. Each book, however, contains some useful additions, explanations, and enlargements. With Deuteronomy, ends the Pentateuch, or five Books of Moses, containing the sacred history of the world, of mankind in general, and of the family of Abraham in particular, for the first two thousand five hundred and fifty-three years, viz from the Creation to the arrival of the Israelites in the land of Canaan.

The BOOK of JOSHUA.

THE ARGUMENT.

This book is so called, not so much upon the account of its author, as of its subject matter; since it contains the history of the wars, the many signal victories obtained by Joshua over the inhabitants of Canaan, the division of the land among the several tribes, and of other affairs which happened under the administration of that great captain. The Jewish church generally allow Joshua to have been the author of this book, and we have no sufficient authority to oppose their judgment in this respect. It comprehends the history of about seventeen years.

CHAP. I.

1 The Lord appointeth Joshua to succeed Moses. 3 The extent of the promised land. 5 God promiseth to assist Joshua, and instructeth him. 10 Joshua prepareth the people to pass over Jordan. 12 He putteth the two tribes and half in mind of their engagement to Moses. 16 They promise him obedience.

Before
1451.

NOW after the death of Moses the servant of the LORD, it came to pass that the LORD spake unto Joshua the son of Nun, Moses' minister, saying,

2 Moses my servant is dead; now therefore arise, go over this Jordan, thou, and all this people, unto the land which I do give to them, even to the children of Israel.

3 ¶ Every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon, that have I given unto you, as I said unto Moses.

4 From the wilderness and this Lebanon even unto the great river, the river Euphrates, all the land of the Hittites, and unto the great sea, toward the going down of the sun, shall be your coast.

5 ¶ There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life: as I was with Moses, so I will be with thee: I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee.

6 Be strong and of good courage: for unto this people shalt thou divide for an inheritance the land, which I swore unto their fathers to give them.

7 Only be thou strong and very courageous, that thou mayest observe to do according to all the law, which Moses my servant commanded thee: turn not from it to the right hand or to the left, that thou mayest prosper whithersoever thou goest.

8 This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth; but thou shalt meditate therein day and night, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein: for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and then thou shalt have good success.

9 Have not I commanded thee? Be strong and of good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the LORD thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. I.

1 Moses' minister. &c.] Because Joshua had been trained up under Moses during the greatest part of the time the Israelites wandered in the wilderness; had seen the wonderful works of God wrought by Moses; well understood the nature and disposition of the people; had been one of the twelve spies sent to search out the promised land, and one of the two who gave a faithful account of it; and was consequently every way qualified for the important office of conducting the children of Israel to the possession thereof.

6 Be strong and of a good courage, &c.] This exhortation, together with the preceding and the following encouragement, was necessary to animate this new leader, and inspire him with zeal in the execution of the momentous charge he had just undertaken.

11 Prepare you victuals, &c.] They were accordingly to provide themselves with such victuals as the country of Sihon and Og, which they had lately conquered, produced.

10 ¶ Then Joshua commanded the officers of the people, saying,

Before
1451.

11 Pass through the host and command the people, saying, Prepare you victuals; for within three days ye shall pass over this Jordan, to go in to possess the land, which the LORD your God giveth you to possess it.

12 ¶ And to the Reubenites, and to the Gadites, and to half the tribe of Manasseh, spake Joshua, saying,

13 Remember the word which Moses the servant of the LORD commanded you, saying, The LORD your God hath given you rest, and hath given you this land.

14 Your wives, your little ones, and your cattle, shall remain in the land which Moses gave you on this side Jordan; but ye shall pass before your brethren armed, all the mighty men of valour, and help them;

15 Until the LORD have given your brethren rest; as he hath given you, and they also have possessed the land which the LORD your God giveth them: then ye shall return unto the land of your possession, and enjoy it, which Moses the LORD's servant gave you on this side Jordan toward the sunrising.

16 ¶ And they answered Joshua, saying, All that thou commandest us we will do, and whithersoever thou sendest us, we will go.

17 According as we hearkened unto Moses in all things, so will we hearken unto thee: only the LORD thy God be with thee, as he was with Moses.

18 Whosoever he be that doth rebel against thy commandment, and will not hearken unto thy words in all that thou commandest him, he shall be put to death: only be strong and of a good courage.

CHAP. II.

AND Joshua the son of Nun sent out of Shittim two men to spy secretly, saying, Go view the land, even Jericho. And they went, and came into an harlot's house, named Rahab, and lodged there.

2 And it was told the king of Jericho, saying, Behold, there came men in hither to night of the children of Israel to search out the country.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. I.

This chapter demonstrates that God, whenever he takes to himself his faithful servants, raises up others, and endues them with the gifts of his spirit. The obedience paid to Joshua, by the two tribes and half, in helping their brethren to conquer Canaan, should incite us to obey and submit to our leaders, and assist each other in all just matters, particularly in the great work of our salvation.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. II.

1 Jericho] A city of Canaan, which afterwards fell to the lot of the tribe of Benjamin, about seven leagues distant from Jerusalem, and two leagues distant from Jordan.

Into a harlot's house, &c.] The word here translated "harlot," signifies in the original An hostels; and therefore as the expression is capable of a double sense, when we consider the faith which Rahab expressed in God, and her behaviour to the two Israelites, charity must incline us to take it here in the more favourable sense.

^{Before CHRIST 1451.} 3 And the king of Jericho sent unto Rahab, saying, Bring forth the men that are come to thee, which are entered into thine house: for they be come to search out all the country.

4 And the woman took the two men, and hid them, and said thus, There came men unto me, but I will not whence they were.

5 And it came to pass about the time of shutting of the gate, when it was dark, that the men went out: whither the men went I wot not: pursue after them quickly; for ye shall overtake them.

6 But she had brought them up to the roof of the house, and hid them with the stalks of flax, which she had laid in order upon the roof.

7 And the men pursued after them the way to Jordan unto the fords: and as soon as they which pursued after them were gone out, they shut the gate.

8 ¶ And before they were laid down, she came up unto them upon the roof;

9 And she said unto the men, I know that the LORD hath given you the land, and that your terror is fallen upon us, and that all the inhabitants of the land faint because of you.

10 For we have heard how the LORD dried up the water of the Red sea for you, when ye came out of Egypt; and what ye did unto the two kings of the Amorites, that were on the other side Jordan, Sihon and Og, whom ye utterly destroyed.

11 And as soon as we had heard these things, our hearts did melt, neither did there remain any more courage in any man, because of you: for the LORD your God, he is God in heaven above, and in earth beneath.

12 Now therefore, I pray you, swear unto me by the LORD, since I have shewed you kindness, that ye will also shew kindness unto my father's house, and give me a true token:

13 And that ye will save alive my father, and my mother, and my brethren, and my sisters, and all that they have, and deliver our lives from death.

14 And the men answered her, Our life for your's, if ye utter not this our business. And it shall be, when the LORD hath given us the land, that we will deal kindly and truly with thee.

15 Then she let them down by a cord through the window: for her house was upon the town wall, and she dwelt upon the wall.

16 And she said unto them, Get you to the mountain, lest the pursuers meet you; and hide yourselves there three days, until the pursuers be returned: and afterward may ye go your way.

17 And the men said unto her, We will be blameless of this thine oath which thou hast made us swear.

18 Behold, when we come into the land, thou shalt bind this line of scarlet thread in the window which thou didst let us down by: and thou shalt bring thy father, and thy mother, and thy brethren, and all thy father's household, home unto thee.

19 And it shall be, that whosoever shall go out of the doors of thy house into the street, his blood shall

^{Before CHRIST 1451.} be upon his head, and we will be guiltless: and whosoever shall be with thee in the house, his blood shall be on our head, if any hand be upon him.

20 And if thou utter this our business, then we will be quit of thine oath which thou hast made us to swear.

21 And she said, According unto your words, so be it. And she sent them away, and they departed: and she bound the scarlet line in the window.

22 And they went, and came unto the mountain, and abode there three days, until the pursuers were returned: and the pursuers sought them throughout all the way, but found them not.

23 ¶ So the two men returned, and descended from the mountain, and passed over, and came to Joshua the son of Nun, and told him all things that befel them:

24 And they said unto Joshua, Truly the LORD hath delivered into our hands all the land; for even all the inhabitants of the country do faint because of us.

C H A P. III.

1 Joshua cometh to Jordan. The officers instruct the people concerning their passage. 5 Joshua giveth directions relating thereto. 7 God encourageth and instructeth Joshua. 9 Joshua encourageth and directeth the people. 14 The waters of Jordan are divided.

AND Joshua rose early in the morning, and they removed from Shittim, and came to Jordan, he and all the children of Israel, and lodged there before they passed over.

2 ¶ And it came to pass after three days, that the officers went through the host;

3 And they commanded the people, saying, When ye see the ark of the covenant of the LORD your God, and the priests the Levites bearing it, then ye shall remove from your place, and go after it.

4 Yet there shall be a space between you and it, about two thousand cubits by measure: come not near unto it, that ye may know the way by which ye must go: for ye have not passed this way heretofore.

5 ¶ And Joshua said unto the people, Sanctify yourselves: for to morrow the LORD will do wonders among you.

6 And Joshua spake unto the priests, saying, Take up the ark of the covenant, and pass over before the people. And they took up the ark of the covenant, and went before the people.

7 ¶ And the LORD said unto Joshua, This day will I begin to magnify thee in the sight of all Israel, that they may know that, as I was with Moses, so I will be with thee.

8 And thou shalt command the priests that bear the ark of the covenant, saying, When ye are come to the brink of the water of Jordan, ye shall stand still in Jordan.

9 ¶ And Joshua said unto the children of Israel, Come hither, and hear the words of the LORD your God.

10 And

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. II.

In this chapter two things are remarkable: first, The prudence of Joshua in sending spies to Jericho, to encourage the people to invade the land; secondly, The conduct of Rahab, who, being persuaded that God had resolved to give Canaan to the Israelites, might act innocently; otherwise her behaviour might appear blameable respecting her king and country: however, she may serve for an example, in teaching us to shew the sincerity of our faith by good works.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. III.

4 That ye may know the way by which ye must go, &c.] We find it was only at their first removal from mount Sinai, and now upon this present occasion, that the ark was carried in the front of their army; whereas it was usually ordered to be carried in the middle of their camps.

9 Come hither, &c.] i. e. To the sanctuary, where Joshua was now.

15 Jordan

4 I will not whence they were.] The only and best apology that has been made for Rahab on this occasion, is founded on the supposition that the design of God towards the inhabitants of Canaan, was some way or other, revealed to the king and people of Jericho, and that both he and they had been sufficiently warned to save themselves from the destruction wherewith they were threatened.

10 We have heard how the Lord dried up the water of the Red sea for you, &c.] Setting aside her faith; (for which she is so justly commended in the gospel) if she had heard of the destruction of Pharaoh in the Red sea, and of the other two kings on the east side of Jordan, the king of Jericho can hardly be supposed to have been ignorant of their fate; and therefore it was as natural for her to be terrified at it, and to provide for her safety, as it was for him to make brave resistance, or perish in the effort.

24 Truly the Lord hath delivered into our hands all the land, &c.] The people of the land were discovered under such a general confederation, that they were fully persuaded God would deliver them into their hands, and prosper the armies of Israel.

^{Before CHRIST 1451.} 10 And Joshua said, Hereby ye shall know that the living God is among you, and that he will without fail drive out from before you the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Hivites, and the Perizzites, and the Girgashites, and the Amorites, and the Jebusites.

11 Behold, the ark of the covenant of the LORD of all the earth passeth over before you into Jordan.

12 Now therefore take you twelve men out of the tribes of Israel, out of every tribe a man.

13 And it shall come to pass, as soon as the soles of the feet of the priests that bear the ark of the LORD, the LORD of all the earth, shall rest in the waters of Jordan, that the waters of Jordan shall be cut off from the waters that come down from above; and they shall stand upon an heap.

14 ¶ And it came to pass, when the people removed from their tents, to pass over Jordan, and the priests bearing the ark of the covenant before the people.

15 And as they that bare the ark were come unto Jordan, and the feet of the priests that bare the ark were dipped in the brim of the water, (for Jordan overfloweth all his banks all the time of harvest,)

16 That the waters which came down from above stood and rose up upon an heap very far from the city Adam, that is beside Zaretan: and those that came down toward the sea of the plain, even the salt sea, failed, and were cut off: and the people passed over right against Jericho.

17 And the priests that bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD stood firm on dry ground in the midst of Jordan, and all the Israelites passed over on dry ground, until all the people were passed clean over Jordan.

C H A P. IV.

1 Twelve men are appointed to take stones for a memorial out of Jordan. 9 Twelve other stones are set up in the midst of Jordan. 10 The people pass over. 14 God magnifieth Joshua. 15 The priests are commanded to bring the ark up out of Jordan, which floweth again as before. 19 The date of the passage. 20 The twelve stones are pitched in Gilgal.

AND it came to pass, when all the people were clean passed over Jordan, that the LORD spake unto Joshua, saying,

2 Take you twelve men out of the people, out of every tribe a man,

3 And command ye them, saying, Take ye hence out of the midst of Jordan, out of the place where the priests' feet stood firm, twelve stones, and ye shall carry them over with you, and leave them in the lodging place, where ye shall lodge this night.

4 Then Joshua called the twelve men, whom he had prepared of the children of Israel, out of every tribe a man:

5 And Joshua said unto them, Pass over before the ark of the LORD your God into the midst of Jordan, and take you up every man of you a stone upon his shoulder, according unto the number of the tribes of the children of Israel:

¶ That this may be a sign among you, that when your children ask their fathers in time to come, saying, What mean ye by these stones?

7 Then ye shall answer them, That the waters of Jordan were cut off before the ark of the covenant of the LORD; when it passed over Jordan, the waters of Jordan were cut off: and these stones shall be for a memorial unto the children of Israel for ever.

¶ And the children of Israel did so as Joshua commanded, and took up twelve stones out of the midst of Jordan, as the LORD spake unto Joshua, according to the number of the tribes of the children of Israel, and carried them over with them unto the place where they lodged, and laid them down there.

9 ¶ And Joshua set up twelve stones in the midst of Jordan, in the place where the feet of the priests which bare the ark of the covenant stood: and they are there unto this day.

10 ¶ For the priests which bare the ark stood in the midst of Jordan, until every thing was finished that the LORD commanded Joshua to speak unto the people, according to all that Moses commanded Joshua: and the people hastened and passed over.

11 And it came to pass, when all the people were clean passed over, that the ark of the LORD passed over, and the priests, in the presence of the people.

12 And the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh, passed over armed before the children of Israel, as Moses spake unto them:

13 About forty thousand prepared for war passed over before the LORD unto battle, to the plains of Jericho.

14 ¶ On that day the LORD magnified Joshua in the sight of all Israel; and they feared him, as they feared Moses, all the days of his life.

15 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Joshua, saying,

16 Command the priests that bear the ark of the testimony, that they come up out of Jordan.

17 Joshua therefore commanded the priests, saying, Come ye up out of Jordan.

18 And it came to pass, when the priests that bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD were come up out of the midst of Jordan, and the soles of the priests' feet were lifted up unto the dry land, that the waters of Jordan returned unto their place, and flowed over all his banks, as they did before.

19 ¶ And the people came up out of Jordan on the tenth day of the first month, and encamped in Gilgal, in the east border of Jericho.

20 ¶ And those twelve stones, which they took out of Jordan, did Joshua pitch in Gilgal.

21 And he spake unto the children of Israel, saying, When your children shall ask their fathers in time to come, saying, What mean these stones?

22 Then ye shall let your children know, saying, Israel came over this Jordan on dry land.

23 For the LORD your God dried up the waters of Jordan from before you, until ye were passed over,

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. IV.

7 These stones shall be for a memorial, &c. In all ages it has been a custom to erect monuments of stone, in order to preserve the memory of covenants, victories, and other great transactions.

10 According to all that Moses commanded Joshua, &c. It is not said that Moses gave any particular directions about the foregoing matters; therefore the meaning is, that Joshua punctually executed all that God ordered, as Moses had admonished him.

13 About forty thousand prepared for war, &c. They consisted by the last muster of above one hundred thousand able soldiers; and we can hardly suppose that their number was now decreased. The forty thousand, therefore, that here went over Jordan, were but a part of them; and the rest were left behind, to guard their new conquest against the vanquished nations, that had abundant reason to become their enemies.

19 In Gilgal, &c. This was a place famous in after-times; it had its name from the rite of circumcision, which was there renewed; it lay about two miles eastward of Jericho.

15 Jordan overfloweth all his banks all the time of harvest. In all those hot countries, the time of harvest happens early in the spring, when, by reason of hasty rains, and the melting of the snow upon mount Lebanon, and other neighbouring mountains, the river Jordan is always full of water, and generally overflows all its banks.

16 The people passed over right against Jericho. Still keeping that famous city in view; from whence, perhaps, the people the walls might, with amazement, see the Israelites walk through the river on dry ground.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. III.

The miraculous events recited in this chapter, particularly the stopping the waters of Jordan on the approach of the ark of the covenant, gave the Israelites to understand, that it would be only by the divine assistance that they would be able to subdue the Canaanites; and that his presence in the midst of them constituted all their strength and glory; which may teach us likewise, that they who have God with them, and who walk under his guidance and protection, have nothing to dread.

the LORD your God did to the Red sea, which he dried up from before us, until we were gone over :

24 That all the people of the earth might know the hand of the LORD, that it is mighty: that ye might fear the LORD your God for ever.

C H A P. V.

1 The Canaanites are afraid. 2 Joshua reneweth circumcision. 10 The passover is kept at Gilgal. 12 The manna ceaseth. 13 An angel appeareth to Joshua.

AND it came to pass, when all the kings of the Amorites, which were on the side of Jordan westward, and all the kings of the Canaanites, which were by the sea, heard that the LORD had dried up the waters of Jordan from before the children of Israel, until we were passed over, that their heart melted, neither was their spirit in them any more, because of the children of Israel.

2 ¶ At that time the LORD said unto Joshua, Make thee sharp knives, and circumcise again the children of Israel the second time.

3 And Joshua made him sharp knives, and circumcised the children of Israel at the hill of the foreskins.

4 And this is the cause why Joshua did circumcise: all the people that came out of Egypt, that were males, even all the men of war, died in the wilderness by the way, after they came out of Egypt.

5 Now all the people that came out were circumcised: but all the people that were born in the wilderness by the way as they came forth out of Egypt, them they had not circumcised.

6 For the children of Israel walked forty years in the wilderness, till all the people that were men of war, which came out of Egypt, were consumed, because they obeyed not the voice of the LORD: unto whom the LORD sware that he would not shew them the land, which the LORD sware unto their fathers that he would give us, a land that floweth with milk and honey.

7 And their children, whom he raised up in their stead, them Joshua circumcised: for they were uncircumcised, because they had not circumcised them by the way.

¶ And it came to pass, when they had done cir-

23 As the Lord your God did to the Red sea, &c.] No doubt it added fresh courage to the Israelites, when they considered that the same God, who, about forty years before, had wrought the like miracle for them in their passage of the Red sea; that then he divided the waves, to confirm the commission which he had given to Moses; and now had parted the stream, to strengthen the authority of his successor Joshua, and give them assurance, that he would be with the one, as he had been with the other; and empower the latter to make good their possession of the land of promise, even as he had enabled the former to accomplish their deliverance out of the land of bondage.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. IV.

Thus as God commanded the children of Israel to raise a memorial of the passage through Jordan, and acquaint their posterity of so wonderful an event; he likewise should perpetuate the remembrance of the Lord's mercies and most signal favours, and especially of what Jesus Christ has done for us; and also instruct his children in the truths of religion, that they may be early induced to love and fear the Lord.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. V.

1 Their heart melted, neither was their spirit in them any more, &c.] This appears to be one of the reasons why God divided the river for the Israelites, who were to be the instruments of his vengeance, to pass over; namely, that thereby he might inject a terror into the inhabitants of Canaan, and facilitate the conquest of their country.

2 Circumcise the children of Israel again the second time.] We are not to suppose from this that they who had been circumcised heretofore were now to be circumcised again (from whence some have drawn an argument for repeating baptism); but that there had been such a general circumcision heretofore ordered, that there was to be now, after a long omission of that rite.

9 I have rolled away the reproach of Egypt.] It is the general opinion, that by "the reproach of Egypt" is meant nothing else but circumcision, with which the Israelites always upbraided other peocumcising all the people, that they abode in their places in the camp, till they were whole.

9 And the LORD said unto Joshua, This day have I rolled away the reproach of Egypt from off you. Wherefore the name of the place is called Gilgal unto this day.

10 ¶ And the children of Israel encamped in Gilgal, and kept the passover on the fourteenth day of the month at even in the plains of Jericho.

11 And they did eat of the old corn of the land on the morrow after the passover, unleavened cakes, and parched corn in the selfsame day.

12 ¶ And the manna ceased on the morrow after they had eaten of the old corn of the land; neither had the children of Israel manna any more; but they did eat of the fruit of the land of Canaan that year.

13 ¶ And it came to pass, when Joshua was by Jericho, that he lifted up his eyes and looked, and behold, there stood a man over against him with his sword drawn in his hand: and Joshua went unto him, and said unto him, Art thou for us, or for our adversaries?

14 And he said, Nay; but as captain of the host of the LORD am I now come. And Joshua fell on his face to the earth, and did worship, and said unto him, What saith my lord unto his servant?

15 And the captain of the LORD's host said unto Joshua, Loose thy shoe from off thy foot; for the place whereon thou standest is holy. And Joshua did so.

C H A P. VI.

1 Jericho is shut up. 2 God instructeth Joshua how to carry on the siege. 6 Joshua directeth the priests with the ark followed by the people to compass the city. 8 It is compassed six days; and on the seventh day it is compassed seven times. 17 The city is accursed. 20 At the people's shout the walls fall down, and the city is utterly destroyed. 22 Rahab is saved. 26 The man that buildeth Jericho again is laid under a curse.

NOW Jericho was straitly shut up because of the children of Israel: none went out, and none came in.

2 ¶ And the LORD said unto Joshua, See, I have given into thine hand Jericho, and the king thereof, and the mighty men of valour.

3 And ye shall compass the city, all ye men of war, and ple, and particularly the Egyptians, with whom they had lived so long, and were best acquainted. Admitting this to be true, this passage is a plain proof that the Israelites could not learn the rite of circumcision from the Egyptians (as some pretend), but that the Egyptians, on the contrary, must have had it from them.

Is called Gilgal, &c.] i. e. Removed, taken away, or devolved: the Septuagint translate it by ἀφαιρέω, and the Vulgate by abstruli, I have taken away.

12 The manna ceased, &c.] For they had now no need of it, being supplied by the store of old corn, which they found in the land of Canaan, and by what was growing upon the ground.

13 There stood a man over against him, &c.] Many are of opinion that this person was an angel; and there are several circumstances, in this very account of his apparition, which denote him to be a divine, and not a created being; particularly from Joshua's calling him Jehovah, and worshipping him.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. V.

The dread which seized the Canaanites, on the approach of the children of Israel, points out to us, how God prepares things for the execution of his designs, and that he turns the hearts of men which way he pleases. The circumcision of the Jews at their entrance into Canaan, and their celebration of the passover, teach us, that all God's ordinances, even those respecting external duties, should be strictly observed. The manna ceasing to fall, shews that it was a miraculous food, and that for the future the land should furnish a supply of all necessities; and the apparition of an angel to Joshua, was a new sign of the protection of the Lord, and an assurance that he would give them possession of the land, which he had promised them.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. VI.

3 Ye shall compass the city, &c.] Now God intending to shew the Israelites that the conquest of Canaan was to be ascribed to him, and not to human power, ordered Joshua not to attack the city, but compass it about seven days, when the walls would fall down, and open a passage for the Israelites to enter the city.

Before CHRIST 1451. and go round about the city once. Thus shalt thou do six days.

4 And seven priests shall bear before the ark seven trumpets of rams' horns: and the seventh day ye shall compass the city seven times, and the priests shall blow with the trumpets.

5 And it shall come to pass, that when they make a long blast with the rams' horn, and when ye hear the sound of the trumpet, all the people shall shout with a great shout; and the wall of the city shall fall down flat, and the people shall ascend up every man straight before him.

6 ¶ And Joshua the son of Nun called the priests, and said unto them, Take up the ark of the covenant, and let seven priests bear seven trumpets of rams' horns before the ark of the LORD.

7 And he said unto the people, Pass on, and compass the city, and let him that is armed pass on before the ark of the LORD.

8 ¶ And it came to pass, when Joshua had spoken unto the people, that the seven priests bearing the seven trumpets of rams' horns passed on before the LORD, and blew with the trumpets: and the ark of the covenant of the LORD followed them.

9 And the armed men went before the priests that blew with the trumpets, and the rereward came after the ark, the priests going on, and blowing with the trumpets.

10 And Joshua had commanded the people, saying, Ye shall not shout, nor make any noise with your voice, neither shall any word proceed out of your mouth, until the day I bid you shout; then shall ye shout.

11 So the ark of the LORD compassed the city, going about it once: and they came into the camp, and lodged in the camp.

12 And Joshua rose early in the morning, and the priests took up the ark of the LORD.

13 And seven priests bearing seven trumpets of rams' horns before the ark of the LORD went on continually, and blew with the trumpets: and the armed men went before them; but the rereward came after the ark of the LORD, the priests going on, and blowing with the trumpets.

14 And the second day they compassed the city once, and returned into the camp: so they did six days.

15 And it came to pass on the seventh day, that they rose early about the dawning of the day, and compassed the city after the same manner seven times: only on that day they compassed the city seven times.

16 And it came to pass at the seventh time, when the priests blew with the trumpets, Joshua said unto the people, Shout; for the LORD hath given you the city.

17 ¶ And the city shall be accursed, even it, and all that are therein, to the LORD: only Rahab the harlot shall live, she and all that are with her in the house, because she hid the messengers that we sent.

4 Trumpets of rams' horns, &c.] Several derive the word johel not from the Arabic, which signifies "a ram," but from Jubal, the first inventor of musical instruments; according to this sense, the trumpets used upon this occasion may be said to have been fashioned after the pattern of those which were invented by Jubal.

9 The rereward came after the ark, &c.] i. e. The rest of the people, who had no arms, old men, women, and children, came the rear of the ark.

15 On the seventh day, &c.] We are told by the Jewish writers, that this was the sabbath; and it is worth observing, that it was the Lord who gave this command to compass the city on this day, as well as any other: that great Lord, who gave the command to keep the sabbath, now dispenses with it.

20 The wall fell down flat, &c.] Or, as it is in the Hebrew, fell under it; which seems to signify, that the foundations of the wall were subverted, so that it sunk and fell into the ditch; or sunk into the very ground which it stood, so as to leave no ruins in the common fall of walls.

26 Cursed be the man before the Lord, that riseth up and buildeth this city Jericho, &c.] This anathema was pronounced, that the miracle of the subversion of Jericho might be kept in perpetual remembrance; for whosoever saw the walls sink deep into the earth, would clearly discern, that this was not the form of a building destroyed by men, but miraculously thrown down by God. In the reign of Ahab, Hiel rebuilt the city, and incurred the curse denounced by 18 And ye in any wise keep yourselves from the accursed thing, lest ye make yourselves accursed, when ye take of the accursed thing, and make the camp of Israel curse and trouble it.

19 But all the silver, and gold, and vessels of brass and iron, are consecrated unto the LORD: they shall come into the treasury of the LORD.

20 ¶ So the people shouted when the priests blew with the trumpets: and it came to pass, when the people heard the sound of the trumpet, and the people shouted with a great shout, that the wall fell down flat, so that the people went up into the city, every man straight before him, and they took the city.

21 And they utterly destroyed all that was in the city, both man and woman, young and old, and ox, and sheep, and ass, with the edge of the sword.

22 ¶ But Joshua had said unto the two men that had spied out the country, Go into the harlot's house, and bring out thence the woman, and all that she hath, as ye sware unto her.

23 And the young men that were spies went in, and brought out Rahab, and her father, and her mother, and her brethren, and all that she had; and they brought out all her kindred, and left them without the camp of Israel.

24 And they burnt the city with fire, and all that was therein: only the silver, and the gold, and the vessels of brass and of iron, they put into the treasury of the house of the LORD.

25 And Joshua saved Rahab the harlot alive, and her father's household, and all that she had: and she dwelleth in Israel even unto this day, because she hid the messengers, which Joshua sent to spy out Jericho.

26 ¶ And Joshua adjured them at that time, saying, Cursed be the man before the LORD, that riseth up and buildeth this city Jericho: he shall lay the foundation thereof in his firstborn, and in his youngest son shall he set up the gates of it.

27 So the LORD was with Joshua; and his fame was noised throughout all the country.

CHAP. VII.

1 Achan's trespass. 2 The Israelites are smitten by the men of Ai. 6 Joshua's complaint. 10 God instructeth him what to do. 16 Achan is taken by lot. 19 His confession. 24 He and all that belonged to him are destroyed in the valley of Achor.

BUT the children of Israel committed a trespass in the accursed thing: for Achan, the son of Carmi, the son of Zabdi, the son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, took of the accursed thing: and the anger of the LORD was kindled against the children of Israel.

2 ¶ And Joshua sent men from Jericho to Ai, which is beside Beth-aven, on the east side of Beth-el, and spake

Joshua; see 1 Kings xvi. 34. Some late travellers inform us, that at present it is no more than a poor despicable village of Arabs.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. VI.

In this chapter, we see the beginning of the accomplishment of God's promise to his people, and that he truly fought for them. We may further observe, how early God began to give the Israelites an instance of his design to incorporate the Gentiles into the church, by the preservation of Rahab, who was afterwards married to Salmon, and has the honour to be mentioned in the genealogy of our Saviour, Matt. i. 5. In the ruins of Jericho we see a standing monument of the wrath of God against his enemies, when their iniquity is full; and how certainly the curse of God will overtake presumptuous sinners, as in the case of Hiel above-mentioned.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. VII.

1 The children of Israel committed a trespass.] i. e. among them it is usual, in scripture-language, to ascribe that to many indefinitely, wherein only is concerned; because where men are united in a society, they are all to partake of the good or evil that is done by the individual members.

Achan, &c.] In 1 Chron. ii. 7. he is called Achar, "the troubler of Israel," (as the word Achar signifies) it is likely that in after-times they changed his name from Achan to Achar.

Before
CHRIST

spake unto them, saying, Go up and view the country. And the men went up and viewed Ai.

3 And they returned to Joshua, and said unto him, Let not all the people go up; but let about two or three thousand men go up and smite Ai; and make not all the people to labour thither; for they are but few.

4 So there went up thither of the people about three thousand men: and they fled before the men of Ai.

5 And the men of Ai smote of them about thirty and six men: for they chased them from before the gate even unto Shebarim, and smote them in the going down: wherefore the hearts of the people melted, and became as water.

6 ¶ And Joshua rent his clothes, and fell to the earth upon his face before the ark of the LORD until the eventide, he and the elders of Israel, and put dust upon their heads.

7 And Joshua said, Alas, O LORD God, wherefore hast thou at all brought this people over Jordan, to deliver us into the hand of the Amorites, to destroy us? would God we had been content, and dwelt on the other side Jordan!

8 O LORD, what shall I say, when Israel turneth their backs before their enemies!

9 For the Canaanites and all the inhabitants of the land shall hear of it, and shall environ us round, and cut off our name from the earth: and what wilt thou do unto thy great name?

10 ¶ And the LORD said unto Joshua, Get thee up; wherefore liest thou thus upon thy face?

11 Israel hath sinned, and they have also transgressed my covenant which I commanded them: for they have even taken of the accursed thing, and have also stolen, and dissembled also, and they have put it even among their own stuff.

12 Therefore the children of Israel could not stand before their enemies, but turned their backs before their enemies, because they were accursed: neither will I be with you any more, except ye destroy the accursed from among you.

13 Up, sanctify the people, and say, Sanctify yourselves against to-morrow: for thus saith the LORD God of Israel, There is an accursed thing in the midst of thee, O Israel: thou canst not stand before thine enemies, until ye take away the accursed thing from among you.

14 In the morning therefore ye shall be brought according to your tribes: and it shall be, that the tribe which the LORD taketh shall come according to the families thereof; and the family which the LORD shall take shall come by households; and the household which the LORD shall take shall come man by man.

15 And it shall be, that he that is taken with the accursed thing shall be burnt with fire, he and all that he hath: because he hath transgressed the covenant of the LORD, and because he hath wrought folly in Israel.

16 ¶ So Joshua rose up early in the morning, and brought Israel by their tribes; and the tribe of Judah was taken:

17 And he brought the family of Judah; and he took the family of the Zarhites: and he brought the family of the Zarhites man by man; and Zabdi was taken:

18 And he brought his household man by man; and Achan, the son of Carmi, the son of Zabdi, the son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, was taken.

19 ¶ And Joshua said unto Achan, My son, give, I pray thee, glory to the LORD God of Israel, and make confession unto him; and tell me now what thou hast done; hide it not from me.

20 And Achan answered Joshua, and said, Indeed I have sinned against the LORD God of Israel, and thus and thus have I done:

21 When I saw among the spoils a goodly Babylonish garment, and two hundred shekels of silver, and a wedge of gold of fifty shekels weight, then I coveted them, and took them; and, behold, they are hid in the earth in the midst of my tent, and the silver under it.

22 So Joshua sent messengers, and they ran unto the tent; and, behold, it was hid in his tent, and the silver under it.

23 And they took them out of the midst of the tent, and brought them unto Joshua, and unto all the children of Israel, and laid them out before the LORD.

24 ¶ And Joshua, and all Israel with him, took Achan the son of Zerah, and the silver, and the garment, and the wedge of gold, and his sons, and his daughters, and his oxen, and his asses, and his sheep, and his tent, and all that he had: and they brought them unto the valley of Achor.

25 And Joshua said, Why hast thou troubled us? the LORD shall trouble thee this day. And all Israel stoned him with stones, and burned them with fire, after they had stoned them with stones.

26 And they raised over him a great heap of stones unto this day: so the LORD turned from the fierceness of his anger: wherefore the name of that place was called, The valley of Achor, unto this day.

CHAP. VIII.

1 God encourageth Joshua. 3 The stratagem for taking Ai. 9 Joshua placeth the ambush, and advanceth toward the city. 14 Ai is taken, and the king thereof hanged. 30 The altar is built in Ebal, the law written on stones, and the blessings and cursings pronounced before the people, as Moses had commanded.

AND

3 Let not all the people go up; but let about two or three thousand men, &c.] Even in this counsel a good providence of God interposed; for if the flight of three thousand men put the Israelites into such a consternation, (as we read ver. 5, 6.) what condition would they have been in, if all the people had been routed, as they would have been, if they had attacked Ai, while the guilt of Achan's sacrilege remained unpunished!

¶ The hearts of the people melted, and became as water.] Perhaps it may be doubted, whether the Israelites were a people of the greatest bravery in the world; but it may be truly said, that there was no necessity for their being so, because upon all occasions they had the Lord of hosts to protect them.

¶ And put dust upon their heads.] Which is a manner of expressing their grief was usual among the Jews, and was also imitated by the Gentiles; see Jonah iii. 6.

¶ Get thee up; wherefore liest thou thus upon thy face? Certainly these words are not a reproof, but a gracious answer to his prayer; for when a person, who supplicates a prince, is commanded to rise up from his knees, it is a token of acceptance.

¶ Put it even among their own stuff.] i. e. Converted it immediately to their own private use; in this verse, how beautifully does each circumstance rise upon the foregoing! and every expression is still additional aggravation of his guilt.

18 And Achan—was taken.] In all likelihood the discovery was made by the casting of lots in the presence of God, which was the usual way, in after-times, of discovering noxious persons: see Sam. xiv. 41, 42. Jonah i. 7.

21 A goodly Babylonish garment, &c.] It is supposed that the richness and excellency of it consisted not so much in the stuff whereof it was made, as in the colour of the dye, which most suppose to have been scarlet, a colour in high esteem among the ancients, and for which the Babylonians were justly famous.

24 His sons and his daughters.] It is the general opinion that his sons and daughters did not suffer death with him; and the next verse says, "all Israel stoned him with stones;" and as, in the sentence denounced against him, we find no mention made of them, why should we suppose that they were partakers in his punishment, any otherwise than as they were brought out to be spectators of it?

His oxen, and his asses, and his sheep, &c.] These are here taken notice of, to let us see that Achan was a wealthy man, and therefore the more inexcusable in committing this crime.

25 All Israel stoned him with stones, &c.] It is thought by the Jews, that this was done not judiciously, but inadvertently by the people, who were so highly provoked, that they could not forbear casting stones at him as he was led to execution.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. VII.

We find in this history, from the conduct of Achan, to what sin the love of riches drives men; and that nothing is sacred to those whom this passion possesseth: that the sin of one man may bring down the curse of God upon the public, and deprive them of his protection; and that sins committed in secret cannot escape his knowledge and vengeance; neither will ill-gotten riches profit the possessors, who obtain them unlawfully.

EXPLANATORY

Before
1451.

AND the LORD said unto Joshua, Fear not, neither be thou dismayed: take all the people of war with thee, and arise, go up to Ai: see, I have given into thy hand the king of Ai, and his people, and his city, and his land:

2 And thou shalt do to Ai and her king as thou didst unto Jericho and her king: only the spoil thereof, and the cattle thereof, shall ye take for a prey unto yourselves: lay thee an ambush for the city behind it.

3 ¶ So Joshua arose, and all the people of war, to go up against Ai: and Joshua chose out thirty thousand mighty men of valour, and sent them away by night.

4 And he commanded them, saying, Behold, ye shall lie in wait against the city, even behind the city: go not very far from the city, but be ye all ready:

5 And I, and all the people that are with me, will approach unto the city: and it shall come to pass, when they come out against us, as at the first, that we will flee before them,

6 (For they will come out after us) till we have drawn them from the city: for they will say, They flee before us, as at the first: therefore we will flee before them.

7 Then ye shall rise up from the ambush, and seize upon the city: for the LORD your God will deliver it into your hand.

8 And it shall be, when ye have taken the city, that ye shall set the city on fire: according to the commandment of the LORD shall ye do. See, I have commanded you.

9 ¶ Joshua therefore sent them forth: and they went to lie in ambush, and abode between Beth-el and Ai, on the west side of Ai: but Joshua lodged that night among the people.

10 And Joshua rose up early in the morning, and numbered the people, and went up, he and the elders of Israel, before the people to Ai.

11 And all the people, even the people of war that were with him, went up, and drew nigh, and came before the city, and pitched on the north side of Ai: now there was a valley between them and Ai.

12 And he took about five thousand men, and set them to lie in ambush between Beth-el and Ai, on the west side of the city.

13 And when they had set the people, even all the host that was on the north of the city, and their liers in wait on the west of the city, Joshua went that night into the midst of the valley.

14 ¶ And it came to pass, when the king of Ai saw it, that they hastened and rose up early, and the men of the city went out against Israel to battle, he and all his people, at a time appointed, before the plain; but he wist not that there were liers in ambush against him behind the city.

15 And Joshua and all Israel made as if they were beaten before them, and fled by the way of the wilderness.

16 And all the people that were in Ai were called together to pursue after them: and they pursued after Joshua, and were drawn away from the city.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. VIII.

1 Go up to Ai, &c.] We find God would not destroy Ai by a miracle, as he had done Jericho, because the people were now to appear formidable to other nations, on account of their courage and policy.

3 Thirty thousand mighty men of valour, &c.] In all probability the whole body designed for the ambuscade, consisted of thirty thousand men; and that the five thousand, mentioned ver. 12, was a small party detached from these.

15 All Israel made as if they were beaten before them, and fled, &c.] Notwithstanding God could by one single act of his will, have destroyed the city of Ai, and all the inhabitants thereof, and without suffering his people to strike a blow, have put them in possession of the promised land; yet he chose to act by secondary means, as more conducive to his glory, and the honour of his people.

20 They had no power to flee this way or that way, &c.] They were

No. 18.

17 And there was not a man left in Ai or Beth-el, that went not out after Israel: and they left the city open, and pursued after Israel. Before
1451.

18 And the LORD said unto Joshua, stretch out the spear that is in thy hand toward Ai; for I will give it into thine hand. And Joshua stretched out the spear that he had in his hand toward the city.

19 And the ambush arose quickly out of their place, and they ran as soon as he had stretched out his hand: and they entered into the city, and took it, and hastened and set the city on fire.

20 And when the men of Ai looked behind them, they saw, and, behold, the smoke of the city ascended up to heaven, and they had no power to flee this way or that way: and the people that fled to the wilderness turned back upon the pursuers.

21 And when Joshua and all Israel saw that the ambush had taken the city, and that the smoke of the city ascended, then they turned again, and slew the men of Ai.

22 And the other issued out of the city against them; so they were in the midst of Israel, some on this side, and some on that side: and they smote them, so that they let none of them remain or escape.

23 And the king of Ai they took alive, and brought him to Joshua.

24 And it came to pass, when Israel had made an end of slaying all the inhabitants of Ai in the field, in the wilderness wherein they chased them, and when they were all fallen on the edge of the sword, until they were consumed, that all the Israelites returned unto Ai, and smote it with the edge of the sword.

25 And so it was, that all that fell that day, both of men and women, were twelve thousand, even all the men of Ai.

26 For Joshua drew not his hand back, wherewith he stretched out the spear, until he had utterly destroyed all the inhabitants of Ai.

27 Only the cattle and the spoil of that city Israel took for a prey unto themselves, according unto the word of the LORD which he commanded Joshua.

28 And Joshua burnt Ai, and made it an heap for ever, even a desolation unto this day.

29 And the king of Ai he hanged on a tree until eventide: and as soon as the sun was down, Joshua commanded that they should take his carcase down from the tree, and cast it at the entering of the gate of the city, and raise thereon a great heap of stones, that remaineth unto this day.

30 ¶ Then Joshua built an altar unto the LORD God of Israel in mount Ebal,

31 As Moses the servant of the LORD commanded the children of Israel, as it is written in the book of the law of Moses, an altar of whole stones, over which no man hath lift up any iron: and they offered thereon burnt offerings unto the LORD, and sacrificed peace offerings,

32 And he wrote there upon the stones a copy of the law of Moses, which he wrote in the presence of the children of Israel.

33 And

either so dismayed that they stood, as we say, stock still; or else found themselves so environed, that they could no way escape.

23 The king of Ai they took alive, &c.] Very likely they were ordered so to do, that he might be made a public spectacle of the divine vengeance.

30 Joshua built an altar—in mount Ebal, &c.] We find that the scripture plainly describes this mount Ebal as near Shechem, for there was only a valley between Ebal and Gerizim, from whence Jotham spake to the men of Shechem (Judg. ix. 7.) which was at a great distance from Ai; and therefore we must suppose that which is here related, not to have been done till they had the country about Shechem.

32 He wrote there upon the stones a copy of the law, &c.] It is thought by many not unlikely that this was a copy of the covenant, by which the children of Israel acknowledged that they held the land of Canaan of God, upon condition that they observed his laws, to which they and their posterity had obliged themselves.

33 And all Israel, and their elders, and officers, and their judges stood on this side the ark and on that side before the priests the Levites, which bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, as well the stranger, as he that was born among them: half of them over against mount Gerizim, and half of them over against mount Ebal; as Moses the servant of the LORD had commanded before, that they should bless the people of Israel.

34 And afterward he read all the words of the law, the blessings and curfings, according to all that is written in the book of the law.

35 There was not a word of all that Moses commanded, which Joshua read not before all the congregation of Israel, with the women, and the little ones, and the strangers that were conversant among them.

CHAP. IX.

1 The kings of Canaan combine against Israel. 3 The Gibeonites by craft obtain a league: 16 The fraud is discovered, but they are saved on account of the oath of the princes. 22 Joshua judgeth them to perpetual bondage.

AND it came to pass, when all the kings which were on this side Jordan, in the hills, and in the valleys, and in all the coasts of the great sea over against Lebanon, the Hittite, and the Amorite, the Canaanite, the Perizzite, the Hivite, and the Jebusite, heard thereof,

2 That they gathered themselves together, to fight with Joshua, and with Israel, with one accord.

3 ¶ And when the inhabitants of Gibeon heard what Joshua had done unto Jericho and to Ai,

4 They did work wilily, and went and made as if they had been ambassadors, and took old sacks upon their asses, and wine bottles, old and rent, and bound up;

5 And old shoes and clouted upon their feet, and old garments upon them; and all the bread of their provision was dry and mouldy.

6 And they went to Joshua unto the camp at Gilgal, and said unto him, and to the men of Israel, We be come from a far country: now therefore make ye a league with us.

7 And the men of Israel said unto the Hivites, Peradventure ye dwell among us; and how shall we make a league with you?

¶ And they said unto Joshua, We are thy servants. And Joshua said unto them, Who are ye? and from whence come ye?

9 And they said unto him, From a very far country thy servants are come because of the name of the LORD thy God: for we have heard the fame of him, and all that he did in Egypt,

10 And all that he did to the two kings of the Amorites, that were beyond Jordan, to Sihon king of Heshbon, and to Og king of Bashan, which was at Ashtaroth.

11 Wherefore our elders and all the inhabitants of our country spake to us, saying, Take victuals with you for the journey, and go to meet them, and say unto them, We are your servants: therefore now make ye a league with us.

12 This our bread we took hot for our provision out of our houses on the day we came forth to go unto you; but now, behold, it is dry, and it is mouldy:

13 And these bottles of wine, which we filled, were new; and, behold, they be rent: and these our garments and our shoes are become old by reason of the very long journey.

14 And the men took of their victuals, and asked not counsel at the mouth of the LORD.

15 And Joshua made peace with them, and made a league with them, to let them live: and the princes of the congregation sware unto them.

16 ¶ And it came to pass at the end of three days after they had made a league with them, that they heard that they were their neighbours, and that they dwelt among them.

17 And the children of Israel journeyed, and came unto their cities on the third day. Now their cities were Gibeon, and Chephirah, and Beeroth, and Kirjath-jearim.

18 And the children of Israel smote them not, because the princes of the congregation had sworn unto them by the LORD God of Israel. And all the congregation murmured against the princes.

19 But all the princes said unto all the congregation, We have sworn unto them by the LORD God of Israel: now therefore we may not touch them.

20 This will we do to them; we will even let them live, lest wrath be upon us, because of the oath which we sware unto them.

21 And the princes said unto them, Let them live; but let them be hewers of wood and drawers of water unto all the congregation; as the princes had promised them.

22 ¶ And Joshua called for them, and he spake unto them, saying, Wherefore have ye beguiled us, saying, We are very far from you; when ye dwell among us?

23 Now therefore ye are cursed, and there shall none of you be freed from being bondmen, and hewers of wood and drawers of water for the house of my God.

24 And they answered Joshua, and said, Because it was certainly told thy servants, how that the LORD thy God commanded his servant Moses to give you all the land, and to destroy all the inhabitants of the land from before you, therefore we were sore afraid of our lives because of you, and have done this thing.

25 And now, behold, we are in thine hand: as it seemeth good and right unto thee to do unto us, do.

26 And so did he unto them, and delivered them out of the hand of the children of Israel, that they slew them not.

27 And Joshua made them that day hewers of wood and drawers of water for the congregation, and for the altar of the LORD, even unto this day, in the place which he should choose.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. VIII.

It may be remarked from the punishment of Achan, that every forbidden thing must be removed from us, before we can expect a blessing in our undertakings. From the taking of Jericho by miracle, and Ai by force, we may learn, that though God has promised his protection to those who fear him, we ought nevertheless to use every lawful means for our safety and defence. The reading of the blessings and curses was commanded, that the children of Israel might be engaged to walk in the laws of the Lord, and testify their thankfulness, when the promises which God had made to their ancestors were fulfilled.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. IX.

1 The great sea. i. e. The Mediterranean.

Heard thereof. i. e. Of the taking of Jericho and Ai.

4 They did work wilily. i. e. They contrived to put a fallacy upon the Israelites, and, by craft and cunning, to procure their favour.

Wine bottles old and rent. Which bottles were made of leather, in which they formerly (as they now do in some countries) kept their wine.

Bound up. Where they had been rent as already mentioned.

7 Unto the Hivites, &c. i. e. Unto those who came from Gibeon, who were really Hivites, as is expressly said, chap. ii. 19.

15 Joshua made peace with them, &c. Though the Israelites by a positive law of God, were enjoined to make no peace with the inhabitants of Canaan, as a nation, yet if any of them were willing to relinquish their idolatry, and other crimes, and embrace the true religion, they might be spared.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. IX.

By this chapter we may be convinced, that promises (how fraudulently soever they may be obtained) must, if lawful, be religiously observed; especially when an oath has intervened, and that the reverence due to our oaths, and to the God we worship, obliges us to fulfil them.

Five kings war against Gibeon. 6 The Gibeonites sue to Joshua, who goeth to their assistance. 8 God encourageth him, and casteth down hailstones from heaven upon the enemy. 12 At Joshua's word the sun and moon stand still. 16 The five kings are discovered and shut up in a cave till the pursuit is ended. 22 They are brought forth, scornfully used, and hanged. 28 Makkedah destroyed with her king, 29 and Libnah, 31 and Lachish, 33 and the king of Gezer, 34 and Eglon, 36 and Hebron, 38 and Debir. 40 After these conquests the army returned to Gilgal.

NOW it came to pass, when Adoni-zedec king of Jerusalem had heard how Joshua had taken Ai, and had utterly destroyed it; as he had done to Jericho and her king, so he had done to Ai and her king; and how the inhabitants of Gibeon had made peace with Israel, and were among them;

2 That they feared greatly, because Gibeon was a great city, as one of the royal cities, and because it was greater than Ai, and all the men thereof were mighty.

3 Wherefore Adoni-zedeck king of Jerusalem sent unto Hoham king of Hebron, and unto Piram king of Jarmuth, and unto Jahia king of Lachish, and unto Debir king of Eglon, saying,

4 Come up unto me, and help me, that we may smite Gibeon: for it hath made peace with Joshua and with the children of Israel.

5 Therefore the five kings of the Amorites, the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, the king of Eglon, gathered themselves together, and went up, they and all their hosts, and encamped before Gibeon, and made war against it.

6 ¶ And the men of Gibeon sent unto Joshua to the camp to Gilgal, saying, Slack not thy hand from thy servants; come up to us quickly, and save us, and help us: for all the kings of the Amorites that dwell in the mountains are gathered together against us.

7 So Joshua ascended from Gilgal, he, and all the people of war with him, and all the mighty men of valour.

8 ¶ And the Lord said unto Joshua, Fear them not: for I have delivered them into thine hand: there shall not a man of them stand before thee.

9 Joshua therefore came unto them suddenly, and went up from Gilgal all night.

10 And the Lord discomfited them before Israel, and slew them with a great slaughter at Gibeon, and chased them along the way that goeth up to Beth-horon, and smote them to Azekah, and unto Makkedah.

11 And it came to pass, as they fled from before Israel, and were in the going down to Beth-horon, that the Lord cast down great stones from heaven upon them unto Azekah, and they died: they were more which died with hailstones than they whom the children of Israel slew with the sword.

12 ¶ Then spake Joshua to the Lord in the day when the Lord delivered up the Amorites before the children of Israel, and he said in the sight of Israel, Sun, stand thou still upon Gibeon; and thou, Moon, in the valley of Ajalon.

13 And the sun stood still, and the moon stayed, until the people had avenged themselves upon their enemies. Is not this written in the book of Jasher? So the sun stood still in the midst of heaven, and hasted not to go down about a whole day.

Before
1451.

14 And there was no day like that before it or after it, that the Lord hearkened unto the voice of a man: for the Lord fought for Israel.

15 And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, unto the camp to Gilgal.

16 ¶ But these five kings fled, and hid themselves in a cave at Makkedah.

17 And it was told Joshua, saying, The five kings are found hid in a cave at Makkedah.

18 And Joshua said, Roll great stones upon the mouth of the cave, and set men by it for to keep them:

19 And stay ye not, but pursue after your enemies, and smite the hindmost of them; suffer them not to enter into their cities: for the Lord your God hath delivered them into your hand.

20 And it came to pass, when Joshua and the children of Israel had made an end of slaying them with a very great slaughter, till they were consumed, that the rest which remained of them entered into fenced cities.

21 And all the people returned to the camp to Joshua at Makkedah in peace: none moved his tongue against any of the children of Israel.

22 ¶ Then said Joshua, Open the mouth of the cave, and bring out those five kings unto me out of the cave.

23 And they did so, and brought forth those five kings unto him out of the cave, the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, and the king of Eglon.

24 And it came to pass, when they brought out those kings unto Joshua, that Joshua called for all the men of Israel, and said unto the captains of the men of war which went with him, Come near, put your feet upon the necks of these kings. And they came near, and put their feet upon the necks of them.

25 And Joshua said unto them, Fear not, nor be dismayed, be strong and of good courage: for thus shall the Lord do to all your enemies, against whom ye fight.

26 And afterward Joshua smote them, and slew them, and hanged them upon five trees: and they were hanging upon the trees until the evening.

27 And it came to pass at the time of the going down of the sun, that Joshua commanded, and they took them down off the trees, and cast them into the cave wherein they had been hid, and laid great stones in the cave's mouth, which remain until this very day.

28 ¶ And that day Joshua took Makkedah, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and the king thereof he utterly destroyed, them, and all the souls that were therein; he let none remain: and he did to the king of Makkedah as he did unto the king of Jericho.

29 ¶ Then Joshua passed from Makkedah, and all Israel with him, unto Libnah, and fought against Libnah:

30 And the Lord delivered it also, and the king thereof, into the hand of Israel; and he smote it with the edge of the sword, and all the souls that were therein; he let none remain in it; but did unto the king thereof as he did unto the king of Jericho.

31 ¶ And Joshua passed from Libnah, and all Israel with him, unto Lachish, and encamped against it, and fought against it:

32 And the Lord delivered Lachish into the hand of

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. X.

2 As one of the royal cities, &c.] Gibeon was not a royal city; that is, had no king in it, but was yet equal to those cities that had kings, being governed by elders, who were persons of great sway.

11 The Lord cast down great stones, &c.] It is in the Septuagint, Hail stones of a vast bigness; which some think were accompanied with thunder and lightning.

12 Sun stand thou still, &c.] It should be remembered, at the same time that we admire this phenomenon, that it was the work of that omnipotent Being who first created the beautiful system of the universe, and that all nature is under his immediate direction and government.

13 The book of Jasher, &c.] It is supposed by some, that this was only a collection of some verses, which the Israelites thought themselves concerned to learn by heart, the better to remember the miracles which God had been pleased to vouchsafe them.

15 Joshua returned—unto the camp to Gilgal.] That is, that he was about to return, till he heard where the five kings were, and that many of the enemies were still remaining.

Before of Israel, which took it on the second day, and smote
CHRIST it with the edge of the sword, and all the souls that 33 ¶ Then Horam king of Gezer came up to help Lachish; and Joshua smote him and his people, until he had left him none remaining.

34 ¶ And from Lachish Joshua passed unto Eglon, and all Israel with him; and they encamped against it, and fought against it:

35 And they took it on that day, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and all the souls that were therein he utterly destroyed that day, according to all that he had done to Lachish.

36 ¶ And Joshua went up from Eglon, and all Israel with him, unto Hebron; and they fought against it:

37 And they took it, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and the king thereof, and all the cities thereof, and all the souls that were therein; he left none remaining, according to all that he had done to Eglon; but destroyed it utterly, and all the souls that were therein.

38 ¶ And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, to Debir; and fought against it:

39 And he took it, and the king thereof, and all the cities thereof; and they smote them with the edge of the sword, and utterly destroyed all the souls that were therein; he left none remaining: as he had done to Hebron, so he did to Debir, and to the king thereof; as he had done also to Libnah, and to her king.

40 ¶ So Joshua smote all the country of the hills, and of the south, and of the vale, and of the springs, and all their kings: he left none remaining, but utterly destroyed all that breathed, as the Lord God of Israel commanded.

41 And Joshua smote them from Kadesh-barnea even unto Gaza, and all the country of Goshen, even unto Gibeon.

42 And all these kings and their land did Joshua take at one time, because the Lord God of Israel fought for Israel.

43 And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, unto the camp to Gilgal.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. X.

We see in this chapter, the miraculous power of God exerted in the destruction of the enemies of his people, and the happy effects of prayer. This teaches us, that all our success proceeds from the favour of God, in whom we should always trust, when we use our utmost efforts. All the victories of Joshua plainly shew that God was with him, that all the divine promises were founded in truth and faithfulness, that God is almighty to fulfil them, and that his blessing attends those who confide in him, and walk in his ways.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XI.

4 As the sand that is upon the sea shore in multitude, &c.] Their whole zite, and the Jebusite in the mountains, and to the Hivite under Hermon in the land of Mizpeh.

4 And they went out, they and all their hosts with them, much people, even as the sand that is upon the sea shore in multitude, with horses and chariots very many.

5 And when all these kings were met together, they came and pitched together at the waters of Merom, to fight against Israel.

6 ¶ And the Lord said unto Joshua, Be not afraid because of them: for to-morrow about this time will I deliver them up all slain before Israel: thou shalt hough their horses, and burn their chariots with fire.

7 So Joshua came, and all the people of war with him, against them by the waters of Merom suddenly; and they fell upon them.

8 And the Lord delivered them into the hand of Israel, who smote them, and chased them unto great Zidon, and unto Misrephoth-maim, and unto the valley of Mizpeh eastward; and they smote them, until they left them none remaining.

9 And Joshua did unto them as the Lord bade him: he houghed their horses, and burnt their chariots with fire.

10 ¶ And Joshua at that time turned back, and took Hazor, and smote the king thereof with the sword: for Hazor beforetime was the head of all those kingdoms.

11 And they smote all the souls that were therein with the edge of the sword, utterly destroying them: there was not any left to breathe: and he burnt Hazor with fire.

12 And all the cities of those kings, and all the kings of them did Joshua take, and smote them with the edge of the sword, and he utterly destroyed them, as Moses the servant of the Lord commanded.

13 But as for the cities that stood still in their strength, Israel burned none of them, save Hazor only; that did Joshua burn.

14 And all the spoil of these cities, and the cattle, the children of Israel took for prey unto themselves; but every man they smote with the edge of the sword, until they had destroyed them, neither left they any to breathe.

15 As the Lord commanded Moses his servant, so did Moses command Joshua, and so did Joshua; he left nothing undone of all that the Lord commanded Moses.

16 ¶ So Joshua took all that land, the hills, and all the south country, and all the land of Goshen, and the valley, and the plain, and the mountain of Israel, and the valley of the same;

17 Even from the mount Halak, that goeth up to Seir, even unto Baal-gad in the valley of Lebanon under mount Hermon: and all their kings he took, and smote them, and slew them.

18 Joshua made war a long time with all those kings.

19 There was not a city that made peace with the children of Israel, save the Hivites the inhabitants of Gibeon: all other they took in battle.

20 For it was of the Lord to harden their hearts, that army is computed at three hundred thousand foot, ten thousand horse, and two thousand chariots. To oppose these numerous armies, Israel had no horse: God had interdicted their traffic with Egypt, for them, lest they should be ensnared to idolatry, or place greater confidence in them, than in the divine power.

And chariots, &c.] These chariots made a terrible slaughter among an army of foot, being armed with spikes, saulchions, fythes, and javelins, to the yokes of the horses, spokes and fellics of the wheels, and to the axle-trees.

5 At the waters of Merom, &c.] It is generally supposed, that these waters were the lake of Semechon, which lies between the head of the river Jordan, and the lake of Gennesareth; and that the city of Hazor, where Jabin reigned, was situated upon this lake.

6 Thou shalt hough their horses, &c.] i. e. Cut their hamstrings, to render them unfit for further service.

^{Before CHRIST 1451.} that they should come against Israel in battle, that he might destroy them utterly, and that they might have no favour, but that he might destroy them, as the LORD commanded Moses.

21 ¶ And at that time came Joshua, and cut off the Anakims from the mountains, from Hebron, from Debir, from Anab, and from all the mountains of Judah, and from all the mountains of Israel: Joshua destroyed them utterly with their cities.

■ There was none of the Anakims left in the land of the children of Israel: only in Gaza, in Gath, and in Ashdod, there remained.

23 ¶ So Joshua took the whole land, according to all that the LORD said unto Moses; and Joshua gave it for an inheritance unto Israel according to their divisions by their tribes. And the land rested from war.

CHAP. XII.

1 The two kings whose countries Moses took and disposed of. 7 The one and thirty kings on the west side of Jordan which Joshua smote.

^{1452.} NOW these are the kings of the land, which the children of Israel smote, and possessed their land on the other side Jordan toward the rising of the sun, from the river Arnon unto mount Hermon, and all the plain on the east:

2 Sihon king of the Amorites, who dwelt in Heshbon, and ruled from Aroer, which is upon the bank of the river Arnon, and from the middle of the river, and from half Gilead, even unto the river Jabbok, which is the border of the children of Ammon;

■ And from the plain to the sea of Chinneroth on the east, and unto the sea of the plain, even the salt sea on the east, the way to Beth-jeshimoth; and from the south, under Ashdod-pisgah:

4 And the coast of Og king of Bashan, which was of the remnant of the giants, that dwelt at Ashtaroth and at Edrei,

5 And reigned in mount Hermon, and in Salcah, and in all Bashan, unto the border of the Geshurites, and the Maachathites, and half Gilead, the border of Sihon king of Heshbon.

6 Them did Moses the servant of the LORD and the children of Israel smite: and Moses the servant of the LORD gave it for possession unto the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh.

7 ¶ And these are the kings of the country which Joshua and the children of Israel smote on this side Jordan on the west, from Baal-gad in the valley of Lebanon even unto the mount Halak, that goeth up to Seir; which Joshua gave unto the tribes of Israel for possession according to their divisions;

■ In the mountains, and in the valleys, and in the 21 The Anakims, &c.] These were a distinct people from the Canaanites; gigantic in stature, and cruel in disposition. Their habitations were in the mountains, where they fortified themselves; which probably was the reason why Joshua did not attack them before he had finished his other conquests.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XI.

In this chapter we perceive the wonderful effects of the power of God, and also his veracity; and that he had ordained to exterminate the Canaanites, because they were become abominable by their practices, and that they should not corrupt the Israelites: but though the justice of God is conspicuous in this, yet the proceedings of the children of Israel, as instruments, by which he justifies cruelty and inhumanity in war. By leaving some of the Canaanites alive, for the trial of the Israelites, and their punishment afterwards, we may learn, that God sends us crosses and afflictions in this world, for our correction and good, and for the trial of our faith and patience, and that he may do good in our latter end.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XII.

23 The king of the nations of Gilgal, &c.] This is that Gilgal where Joshua incamped when he was over Jordan, for there was no city there, nor any king of that country, but the king of Jericho.

24 All the kings thirty and one.] As some may wonder that in so small a country, there should be so many kings; let it be considered

^{Before CHRIST 1451.} plains, and in the springs, and in the wilderness, and in the south country; the Hittites, the Amorites, and the Canaanites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites:

9 The king of Jericho, one; the king of Ai, which is beside Beth-el, one;

10 The king of Jerusalem, one; the king of Hebron, one;

11 The king of Jarmuth, one; the king of Lachish, one;

12 The king of Eglon, one; the king of Gezer, one;

13 The king of Debir, one; the king of Geder, one;

14 The king of Hormah, one; the king of Arad, one;

15 The king of Libnah, one; the king of Adullam, one;

16 The king of Makkedah, one; the king of Bethel, one;

17 The king of Tappuah, one; the king of Hepher, one;

18 The king of Aphek, one; the king of Lasharon, one;

19 The king of Madon, one; the king of Hazor, one;

20 The king of Shimron-meron, one; the king of Achshaph, one;

21 The king of Taanach, one; the king of Megiddo, one;

22 The king of Kedesh, one; the king of Jokneam of Carmel, one;

23 The king of Dor in the coast of Dor, one; the king of the nations of Gilgal, one;

24 The king of Tirzah, one: all the kings thirty and one.

CHAP. XIII.

1 What parts of the land remained yet unsubdued: Joshua is commanded to divide the whole by lot; the two tribes and half being excepted out of this division, and the tribe of Levi. 15 The bounds of Reuben's inheritance, (Balaam slain, ver. 22.) 24 of the inheritance of Gad, 29 and of the half tribes of Manasseh, as allotted by Moses, who gave no inheritance to the Levites, but God only.

^{1445.} NOW Joshua was old and stricken in years; and the LORD said unto him, Thou art old and stricken in years, and there remaineth yet very much land to be possessed.

■ This is the land that yet remaineth: all the borders of the Philistines, and all Geshuri,

3 From Sihor, which is before Egypt, even unto the borders of Ekron northward, which is counted to the Canaanite: five lords of the Philistines; the Gathathites, that these who were called kings were only petty princes, or lords of cities, which had a few villages depending on them, the inhabitants of which were their tenants. We know that the king of Beth-el, and the king of Ai, when joined together, had in all, no more than twelve thousand subjects. Kingdoms, like other things, were antiently very small in their beginnings.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XII.

Here we find that God continued to enlarge the dominions of the children of Israel, as he had promised, for truth is one of his attributes. Since it is evident Joshua never could have subdued all those kings, unless he had been supported by the almighty power of God, let this encourage us under all our afflictions; for "If God be for us, who can be against us?"

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XIII.

1 Now Joshua was old, &c.] At this time Joshua is supposed to have been one hundred years old.

3 From Sihor, which is before Egypt.] This is a little stream from one of the branches of the Nile, by which Palestine was bounded on that side.

Which is counted to the Canaanites.] Thus we see the Philistines were not the original inhabitants of this country, which belonged to the offspring of Canaan, the youngest son of Ham; whereas the Philistines were descended from Misraim, his second son, who expelled the Avites of this country.

5 And the land of the Giblites, and all Lebanon, toward the sunrising, from Baal-gad under mount Hermon unto the entering into Hamath.

6 All the inhabitants of the hill country from Lebanon unto Misrephoth-maim, and all the Sidonians, them will I drive out before the children of Israel: only divide thou it by lot unto the Israelites for inheritance, as I have commanded thee.

7 Now therefore divide this land for inheritance unto the nine tribes, and the half tribe of Manasseh,

8 With whom the Reubenites and the Gadites have received their inheritance, which Moses gave them, beyond Jordan eastward, even as Moses the servant of the LORD gave them;

9 From Aroer, that is upon the bank of the river Arnon, and the city that is in the midst of the river, and all the plain of Medeba unto Dibon;

10 And all the cities of Sihon king of the Amorites, which reigned in Heshbon, unto the border of the children of Ammon;

11 And Gilead, and the border of the Geshurites and Maachathites, and all mount Hermon, and all Bashan unto Salcah;

12 All the kingdom of Og in Bashan, which reigned in Ashtaroth and in Edrei, who remained of the remnant of the giants: for these did Moses smite, and cast them out.

13 Nevertheless the children of Israel expelled not the Geshurites, nor the Maachathites: but the Geshurites and the Maachathites dwell among the Israelites until this day.

14 Only unto the tribe of Levi he gave none inheritance; the sacrifices of the LORD God of Israel made by fire are their inheritance, as he said unto them.

15 ¶ And Moses gave unto the tribe of the children of Reuben inheritance according to their families.

16 And their coast was from Aroer, that is on the bank of the river Arnon, and the city that is in the midst of the river, and all the plain by Medeba;

17 Heshbon and all her cities that are in the plain Dibon, and Bamoth-baal, and Beth-baal-meon,

18 And Jahaza, and Kedemoth, and Mephaath,

19 And Kirjathaim, and Sibmah, and Zareth-shahar in the mount of the valley,

20 And Beth-peor, and Ashdoth-pisgah, and Beth-jeshimoth,

21 And all the cities of the plain, and all the kingdom of Sihon king of the Amorites, which reigned in Heshbon, whom Moses smote with the princes of Midian, Evi, and Rekem, and Zur, and Hur, and Reba, which were dukes of Sihon, dwelling in the country.

22 Balaam also the son of Beor, the soothsayer, did the children of Israel slay with the sword among them that were slain by them.

[Also the Avites.] Being a remnant of those ancient inhabitants, who continued, and were mixed in with the people.

¶ Them will I drive out. However this promise was conditional, and depended on the Israelites observing the laws given them by Moses; but as they did not persist in the true worship of God, great part of these places were never conquered: the Sidonians were never subdued by the Israelites, and the people of Lebanon were only tributary in king David's time.

Divide thou it by lot unto the Israelites for an inheritance, &c.] i. e. Though they be not driven out, yet, since I have promised to expel them, assign all the forementioned countries to the children of Israel by lot, the inheritance I have bestowed upon them.

9 The city that is in the midst of the river, &c.] It is rendered, In the midst of the valley, in the Septuagint.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XIII.

In this chapter we see that God did not think proper to put the children of Israel in possession of the land all at once, in order

23 And the border of the children of Reuben was Jordan, and the border thereof. This was the inheritance of the children of Reuben after their families, the cities and the villages thereof.

24 ¶ And Moses gave inheritance unto the tribe of Gad, even unto the children of Gad according to their families.

25 And their coast was Jazer, and all the cities of Gilead, and half the land of the children of Ammon, unto Aroer that is before Rabbah;

26 And from Heshbon unto Ramath-mizpeh, and Betonim; and from Mahanaim unto the border of Debir;

27 And in the valley, Beth-aram, and Beth-nimrah, and Succoth, and Zaphon, the rest of the kingdom of Sihon king of Heshbon, Jordan and his border, even unto the edge of the sea of Chinnereth on the other side Jordan eastward.

28 This is the inheritance of the children of Gad after their families, the cities, and their villages.

29 ¶ And Moses gave inheritance unto the half tribe of Manasseh: and this was the possession of the half tribe of the children of Manasseh by their families.

30 And their coast was from Mahanaim, all Bashan, all the kingdom of Og king of Bashan, and all the towns of Jair, which are in Bashan, threescore cities:

31 And half Gilead, and Ashtaroth, and Edrei, cities of the kingdom of Og in Bashan, were pertaining unto the children of Machir the son of Manasseh, even to the one half of the children of Machir by their families.

32 These are the countries which Moses did distribute for inheritance in the plains of Moab, on the other side Jordan, by Jericho, eastward.

33 But unto the tribe of Levi Moses gave not any inheritance: the LORD God of Israel was their inheritance, as he said unto them.

CHAP. XIV.

1 The nine tribes and half are to have their inheritance by lot. 6 Caleb by privilege obtaineth Hebron.

AND these are the countries which the children of Israel inherited in the land of Canaan, which Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the heads of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel, distributed for inheritance unto them.

¶ By lot was their inheritance, as the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses, for the nine tribes, and for the half tribe.

3 For Moses had given the inheritance of two tribes and an half tribe on the other side Jordan: but unto the Levites he gave none inheritance among them.

4 For the children of Joseph were two tribes, Manasseh and Ephraim: therefore they gave no part unto the Levites in the land, save cities to dwell in, with their suburbs for their cattle and for their substance.

5 As the LORD commanded Moses, so the children of Israel did, and they divided the land.

6 ¶ Then the children of Judah came unto Joshua in Gilgal: and Caleb the son of Jephunneh the Kenazite said unto him, Thou knowest the thing that the LORD said teach them to depend on him from time to time; but though the heathens were not totally subdued at that time, yet they were so some ages after. This is very emblematical of the progress of a christian through life.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XIV.

¶ These are the countries, &c.] Meaning those mentioned in the following chapters, this being no more than a kind of preface to the division of the land.

6 The children of Judah came unto Joshua—and Caleb the son of Jephunneh said unto him, &c.] As the Reubenites were provided for, the tribe of Judah was the eldest of those that wanted their portion; they came therefore to Joshua; and Caleb, who was not only a considerable person, but one of those princes who were appointed of God to assist in the division of the land, addresses Joshua concerning a particular case of his own; in which he would not take upon himself to judge, but desires to have it settled by Joshua, the supreme governor of the people of God.

^{Before CHRIST 1444.} said unto Moses the man of God concerning me and thee in Kadesh-barnea.

7 Forty years old was I when Moses the servant of the LORD sent me from Kadesh-barnea to espy out the land; and I brought him word again as it was in mine heart.

■ Nevertheless my brethren that went up with me made the heart of the people melt: but I wholly followed the LORD my God.

9 And Moses sware on that day, saying, Surely the land whereon thy feet have trodden shall be thine inheritance, and thy children's for ever, because thou hast wholly followed the LORD my God.

10 And now, behold, the LORD hath kept me alive, as he said, these forty and five years, even since the LORD spake this word unto Moses, while the children of Israel wandered in the wilderness: and now, lo, I am this day fourscore and five years old.

11 As yet I am as strong this day as I was in the day that Moses sent me: as my strength was then, even so is my strength now, for war, both to go out, and to come in.

12 Now therefore give me this mountain, whereof the LORD spake in that day; for thou heardest in that day how the Anakims were there, and that the cities were great and fenced: if so be the LORD will be with me, then I shall be able to drive them out, ■ the LORD said.

13 And Joshua blessed him, and gave unto Caleb the son of Jephunneh Hebron for an inheritance.

14 Hebron therefore became the inheritance of Caleb the son of Jephunneh the Kenazite unto this day, because that he wholly followed the LORD God of Israel.

15 And the name of Hebron before was Kirjath-arba; which Arba was a great man among the Anakims. And the land had rest from war.

CHAP. XV.

■ The borders of the lot of Judah. 13 Caleb's portion and conquest. 16 Othniel for his valour hath Achsah Caleb's daughter to wife, who obtaineth a blessing from her father. 21 The cities of Judah. 63 The Jebusites remain unconquered.

THIS then was the lot of the tribe of the children of Judah by their families; even to the border of Edom the wilderness of Zin southward was the uttermost part of the south coast.

■ And their south border was from the shore of the salt sea, from the bay that looketh southward:

3 And it went out to the south side to Maaleh-acrabim, and passed along to Zin, and ascended up on the south side unto Kadesh-barnea, and passed along to Hezron, and went up to Adar, and fetched a compass to Karkaa:

4 From thence it passed toward Azmon, and went out unto the river of Egypt; and the goings out of that coast were at the sea: this shall be your south coast.

5 And the east border was the salt sea, even unto the end of Jordan. And their border in the north quarter was from the bay of the sea at the uttermost part of Jordan.

6 And the border went up to Beth-hogla, and pass-

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XIV.

We learn from this chapter the accomplishment of the promise that God made to Joshua and Caleb, when he told them, that ~~but~~ they two should enter into the land of Canaan. Caleb arrived at ■ happy and advanced old age; God gave mount Hebron to him and his posterity, which recompence proved to future ages ■ lasting monument of the faith and zeal of that holy man.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XV.

8 The valley of the son of Hinnom, &c.] This was a valley ■ the ed by the north of Beth-arabah; and the border ^{Before CHRIST 1444.} went up to the stone of Bohan the son of Reuben:

7 And the border went up toward Debir, from the valley of Achor, and so northward, looking toward Gilgal, that is before the going up to Adummim, which is on the south side of the river: and the border passed toward the waters of En-shemesh, and the goings out thereof were at En-rogel:

■ And the border went up by the valley of the son of Hinnom unto the south side of the Jebusite; the same is Jerusalem: and the border went up to the top of the mountain that lieth before the valley of Hinnom westward, which is at the end of the valley of the giants northward:

9 And the border was drawn from the top of the hill unto the fountain of the water of Nephtoah, and went out to the cities of mount Ephron; and the border was drawn to Baalah, which is Kirjath-jearim.

10 And the border compassed from Baalah westward unto mount Seir, and passed along unto the side of mount Jearim, which is Chesalon, on the north side, and went down to Beth-shemesh, and passed on to Timnah:

11 And the border went out unto the side of Ekron northward: and the border was drawn to Shicron, and passed along to mount Baalah, and went out unto Jabneel; and the goings out of the border were at the sea.

12 And the west border was to the great sea, and the coast thereof. This is the coast of the children of Judah round about according to their families.

13 ¶ And unto Caleb the son of Jephunneh he gave a part among the children of Judah, according to the commandment of the LORD to Joshua, even the city of Arba the father of Anak, which city is Hebron.

14 And Caleb drave thence the three sons of Anak, Sheshai, and Ahiman, and Talmi, the children of Anak.

15 And he went up thence to the inhabitants of Debir: and the name of Debir before was Kirjath-sepher.

16 ¶ And Caleb said, He that smiteth Kirjath-sepher, and taketh it, to him will I give Achsah my daughter to wife.

17 And Othniel the son of Kenaz, the brother of Caleb, took it: and he gave him Achsah his daughter to wife.

18 And it came to pass, as she came unto him, that she moved him to ask of her father a field: and she lighted off her ass; and Caleb said unto her, What wouldest thou?

19 Who answered, Give me ■ blessing; for thou hast given me a south land; give me also springs of water. And he gave her the upper springs, and the nether springs.

20 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Judah according to their families.

21 ¶ And the uttermost cities of the tribe of the children of Judah toward the coast of Edom southward were Kabzeel, and Eder, and Jagur,

22 And Kinah, and Dimonah, and Adadah,

23 And Kedesh, and Hazor, and Ithnan,

24 Ziph, and Telem, and Bealoth,

25 And Hazor, Hadattah, and Kerioth, and Hezron, which is Hazor, east side of Jerusalem, so delightfully shaded, that it invited them to perform their idolatrous worship in this valley, for which it became infamous. See 2 Kings xxiii. 10. and Jer. vii. 32.

26 Amam,

12 This is the coast of the children of Judah, &c.] The signification of this text is, that their lot was bounded in this manner in the first draught thereof.

19 Give me also springs of water.] She not only begged the springs, but the ground ■ which they were, ■ appears from the foregoing, where she moved her husband to ask ■ field.

He gave her the upper springs, and the nether springs.] Caleb seems to have given her more than she desired; not only those which were below, but the upper springs: so that neither the rising ground nor the plain might want water.

32 All the cities are twenty and nine, with their villages.] The number of cities which fell in the lot of Judah amounted to thirty-eight: nine of these cities, namely, Beersheba, Moladah, Hazar-shual, Baalah, Azem, Hormah, Ziklag, Ain, and Rimmon, were taken from Judah, and given to the tribe of Simeon; which nine, with the twenty-nine mentioned in the preceding verses, complete the number of thirty-eight.

62 The city of salt, &c.] So called, either on account of its vicinity to the salt sea, or because Lot's wife was, in that neighbourhood, turned into a pillar of salt. Gen. xix. 26.

63 As for the Jebusites, &c.] This denotes that Jerusalem belonged to the children of Judah, and so it did in part, though not the whole; for some of it was in the tribe of Benjamin.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XV.

The instruction to be drawn from this chapter, is, that the land was divided among the people by lot, in the most solemn manner, so we, who profess to be Christians, should never seek after any inheritance in this world, unless we have reason to hope for the divine blessing in the enjoyment of it.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XVI.

Before

CHAP. XVI.

1 The general borders of the sons of Joseph. 5 The border of Ephraim's inheritance. 10 The Canaanites of Gezer are not driven out, but become tributaries.

AND the lot of the children of Joseph fell from Jordan by Jericho, unto the water of Jericho on the east, to the wilderness that goeth up from Jericho throughout mount Beth-el.

2 And goeth out from Beth-el to Luz, and passeth along unto the borders of Archi to Ataroth,

3 And goeth down westward to the coast of Japhleti, unto the coast of Beth-horon the nether, and to Gezer: and the goings out thereof are at the sea.

4 So the children of Joseph, Manasseh and Ephraim, took their inheritance.

5 ¶ And the border of the children of Ephraim according to their families was thus: even the border of their inheritance on the east side was Ataroth-addar, unto Beth-horon the upper;

6 And the border went out toward the sea to Michmethah on the north side; and the border went about eastward unto Taanath-shiloh, and passed by it on the east to Janohah:

7 And it went down from Janohah to Ataroth, and to Naarath, and came to Jericho, and went out at Jordan.

8 The border went out from Tappuah westward unto the river Kanah; and the goings out thereof were at the sea. This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Ephraim by their families.

9 And the separate cities for the children of Ephraim were among the inheritance of the children of Manasseh, all the cities with their villages.

10 ¶ And they drove not out the Canaanites that dwelt in Gezer: but the Canaanites dwell among the Ephraimites unto this day, and serve under tribute.

CHAP. XVII.

1 The lot of Manasseh. 3 The case of Zelophehad's daughters. 7 The coast of Manasseh distinguished from that of Ephraim. 12 The Canaanites could not be wholly driven out, but those that remain are subjected to tribute. 14 The children of Joseph sue for and obtain another lot.

THERE was also a lot for the tribe of Manasseh: for he was the first-born of Joseph; to wit, for Machir the first-born of Manasseh, the father of Gilead: because he was a man of war, therefore he had Gilead and Bashan.

2 There was also a lot for the rest of the children of Manasseh by their families; for the children of Abiezer, and for the children of Helek, and for the children of Afriel, and for the children of Shechem, and for the children of Hephher, and for the children of Shemida: these of that half of the tribe of Manasseh which was not yet provided for. One cannot but observe the providence of God, in bringing up their lot next to Judah's. For as Judah had the prerogative of being made the chief of all Jacob's children, so Joseph had the privilege of the firstborn transferred to his family; and therefore they are considered before any of the other tribes, except Judah.

10 They drove not out the Canaanites, &c.] So far they subdued them, as to make them tributaries. Grotius is of opinion that the inhabitants of Gezer submitted and accepted the terms of peace, which Joshua was bound to offer them before he began the war.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XVI.

Hence we may learn how careful Joshua was, in order to obey the will of God, by giving to each of the tribes their share, and suffering them to draw these shares by lot, that there might be no reason to suspect partiality, nor to occasion any altercation.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XVII.

1 A lot for the tribe of Manasseh, &c.] i. e. For that half of it which had received an inheritance, and yet had no portion on the other side Jordan.

Before CHRIST 1441. these were the male children of Manasseh the son of Joseph by their families.

3 ¶ But Zelophehad, the son of Hopher, the son of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, had no sons, but daughters: and these are the names of his daughters, Mahlah, and Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah.

4 And they came near before Eleazar the priest, and before Joshua the son of Nun, and before the princes, saying, The Lord commanded Moses to give us an inheritance among our brethren. Therefore according to the commandment of the Lord he gave them an inheritance among the brethren of their father.

5 And there fell ten portions to Manasseh, beside the land of Gilead and Bashan, which were on the other side Jordan;

6 Because the daughters of Manasseh had an inheritance among his sons: and the rest of Manasseh's sons had the land of Gilead.

7 ¶ And the coast of Manasseh was from Asher to Michmethah, that lieth before Shechem; and the border went along on the right hand unto the inhabitants of En-tappuah.

¶ Now Manasseh had the land of Tappuah: but Tappuah on the border of Manasseh belonged to the children of Ephraim;

9 And the coast descended unto the river Kanah, southward of the river: these cities of Ephraim are among the cities of Manasseh: the coast of Manasseh also was on the north side of the river, and the outgoings of it were at the sea:

10 Southward it was Ephraim's, and northward it was Manasseh's, and the sea is his border; and they met together in Asher on the north, and in Issachar on the east.

11 And Manasseh had in Issachar and in Asher Bethshean and her towns, and Ibleam and her towns, and the inhabitants of Dor and her towns, and the inhabitants of En-dor and her towns, and the inhabitants of Taanach and her towns, and the inhabitants of Megiddo and her towns, even three countries.

12 ¶ Yet the children of Manasseh could not drive out the inhabitants of those cities; but the Canaanites would dwell in that land.

13 Yet it came to pass, when the children of Israel were waxen strong, that they put the Canaanites to tribute; but did not utterly drive them out.

14 ¶ And the children of Joseph spake unto Joshua, saying, Why hast thou given me but one lot and one portion to inherit, seeing I am a great people, forasmuch as the Lord hath blessed me hitherto?

15 And Joshua answered them, If thou be a great people, then get thee up to the wood country, and cut down for thyself there in the land of the Perizzites and of the giants, if mount Ephraim be too narrow for thee.

16 And the children of Joseph said, The hill is not enough for us: and all the Canaanites that dwell in the land of the valley have chariots of iron, both they who are of Beth-shean and her towns, and they who are of the valley of Jezreel.

4 According to the commandment of the Lord he gave them an inheritance, &c.] It having been determined by lot what land every tribe should have, Eleazar, Joshua, and the princes, considered how many families there were in the tribe, and divided accordingly.

12 The children of Manasseh could not drive out the inhabitants, &c.] Through want of faith in God, and of zeal to perform his commands; which made them slack in their attempts to expel the Canaanites.

15 If mount Ephraim be too narrow for thee.] In case that mount which was given them for their portion did not afford them room enough, he exhorts them to enlarge their bounds, by taking in those wood-lands before-mentioned.

16 Chariots of iron, &c.] They were not made of iron, but armed with iron; having a kind of scythes of two cabins, fastened to long axle-trees on both wheels, and hence called chariots of iron.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XVII.

As the portion given Manasseh inferior to that bestowed on No. 19.

17 And Joshua spake unto the house of Joseph, even to Ephraim and to Manasseh, saying, Thou art a great people, and hast great power: thou shalt not have one lot only:

18 But the mountain shall be thine; for it is a wood, and thou shalt cut it down: and the outgoings of it shall be thine: for thou shalt drive out the Canaanites, though they have iron chariots, and though they be strong.

C H A P. XVIII.

¶ The tabernacle is set up at Shiloh. 2 Joshua causeth the remainder of the land not yet divided to be described into seven parts. 3 The description of it is made and brought to Joshua. 10 He distributeth it by lot. 11 The lot and border of the children of Benjamin. 21 Their cities.

AND the whole congregation of the children of Israel assembled together at Shiloh, and set up the tabernacle of the congregation there. And the land was subdued before them.

2 ¶ And there remained among the children of Israel seven tribes, which had not yet received their inheritance.

¶ And Joshua said unto the children of Israel, How long are ye slack to go to possess the land, which the Lord God of your fathers hath given you?

4 Give out from among you three men for each tribe: and I will send them, and they shall rise, and go through the land, and describe it according to the inheritance of them; and they shall come again to me.

5 And they shall divide it into seven parts: Judah shall abide in their coast on the south, and the house of Joseph shall abide in their coasts on the north.

¶ Ye shall therefore describe the land into seven parts, and bring the description hither to me, that I may cast lots for you here before the Lord our God.

7 But the Levites have no part among you; for the priesthood of the Lord is their inheritance: and Gad, and Reuben, and half the tribe of Manasseh, have received their inheritance beyond Jordan on the east, which Moses the servant of the Lord gave them.

8 ¶ And the men arose, and went away: and Joshua charged them that went to describe the land, saying, Go and walk through the land, and describe it, and come again to me, that I may here cast lots for you before the Lord in Shiloh.

9 And the men went and passed through the land, and described it by cities into seven parts in a book, and came again to Joshua to the host at Shiloh.

10 ¶ And Joshua cast lots for them in Shiloh before the Lord: and there Joshua divided the land unto the children of Israel according to their divisions.

11 ¶ And the lot of the tribe of the children of Benjamin came up according to their families: and the coast of their lot came forth between the children of Judah and the children of Joseph.

12 And their border on the north side was from Jordan; and the border went up to the side of Jericho on the north side, and went up through the mountains westward.

Ephraim, so we may see the truth of Jacob's prophecy when he blessed the two sons of Joseph. We are here also shewn the truly laudable conduct of Ephraim, and the reward of their valour; and, lastly, that the prudent conduct of Joshua as a commander ought to be imitated by all who act in a military line.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XVIII.

¶ Had not yet received their inheritance.] For these seven tribes in Gilgal no lot had been drawn; perhaps, because the tribes of the house of Joseph were not satisfied with the division begun there.

5 Judah shall abide in their coasts on the south, and the house of Joseph shall abide in their coasts on the north.] No alteration to take place in the lot of Judah, which was southerly, and the lot of Ephraim and Manasseh, which with respect to the former, were northerly; these tribes to remain undisturbed in their possessions, unless it should be found that they had more than they needed, and others had less.

Before CHRIST 1441. westward, and the goings out thereof were at the wilderness of Beth-aven:

13 And the border went over from thence toward Luz, to the side of Luz, which is Beth-el, southward; and the border descended to Ataroth-adar, near the hill that lieth on the south side of the nether Beth-horon.

14 And the border was drawn thence, and compassed the corner of the sea southward, from the hill that lieth before Beth-horon southward; and the goings out thereof were at Kirjath-baal, which is Kirjath-jearim, a city of the children of Judah: this was the west quarter.

15 And the south quarter was from the end of Kirjath-jearim, and the border went out on the west, and went out to the well of waters of Nephtoah:

16 And the border came down to the end of the mountain that lieth before the valley of the son of Hinnom, and which is in the valley of the giants on the north, and descended to the valley of Hinnom, to the side of Jebusi on the south, and descended to En-rogel,

17 And was drawn from the north, and went forth to En-shemesh, and went forth toward Geliloth, which is over against the going up of Adummim, and descended to the stone of Bohan the son of Reuben,

18 And passed along toward the side over against Arabah northward, and went down unto Arabah:

19 And the border passed along to the side of Beth-hoglah northward: and the outgoings of the border were at the north bay of the salt sea at the south end of Jordan: this was the south coast.

20 And Jordan was the border of it on the east side. This was the inheritance of the children of Benjamin, by the coasts thereof round about, according to their families.

21 ¶ Now the cities of the tribe of the children of Benjamin according to their families were Jericho, and Beth-hoglah, and the valley of Keziz,

22 And Beth-arabah, and Zemaraim, and Beth-el,

23 And Avim, and Parah, and Ophah,

24 And Chepar-haammonai, and Ophni, and Gaba; twelve cities with their villages:

25 Gibeon, and Ramah, and Beeroth,

26 And Mizpeh, and Chephirah, and Mozah,

27 And Rekem, and Irpeel, and Taralah,

28 And Zelab, Eleph, and Jebusi, which is Jerusalem, Gibeath, and Kirjath; fourteen cities with their villages. This is the inheritance of the children of Benjamin according to their families.

CHAP. XIX.

1 The lot of Simeon, 10 of Zebulun, 17 of Iffachar, 24 of Asher, 32 of Naphtali, 40 of Dan. 49 The children of Israel give an inheritance to Joshua.

AND the second lot came forth to Simeon, even for the tribe of the children of Simeon according to their families: and their inheritance was within the inheritance of the children of Judah.

2 And they had in their inheritance Beer-sheba, Sheba, and Moladah,

3 And Hazar-shual, and Balah, and Azem,

4 And Eltolad, and Bethul, and Hormah,

5 And Ziklag, and Beth-markaboth, and Har-sufah,

6 And Beth-lebaoth, and Sharuh; thirteen cities and their villages:

7 Ain, Remmon, and Ether, and Ahan; four cities and their villages:

14 And compassed the corner of the sea southward, &c.] The original word which is here translated "corner," may signify the side of the sea: if it had been said, that it was in a parallel line with the sea.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XVIII.

From this chapter we may learn the prudent conduct of Joshua, in satisfying the scruples of the people; his ordering their lots to be drawn in the most sacred places, evincing his regard for religion; and the division here made, served to preserve a distinction among the tribes, which continued till the coming of the Messiah.

Before CHRIST 1441. And all the villages that were round about these cities to Baalath-beer, Ramath of the south. This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Simeon according to their families.

9 Out of the portion of the children of Judah was the inheritance of the children of Simeon: for the part of the children of Judah was too much for them: therefore the children of Simeon had their inheritance within the inheritance of them.

10 ¶ And the third lot came up for the children of Zebulun according to their families: and the border of their inheritance was unto Sarid:

11 And their border went up toward the sea, and Maralah, and reached to Dabbatheth, and reached to the river that is before Jokneam;

12 And turned from Sarid eastward toward the sunrising unto the border of Chisloth-tabor, and then goeth out to Daberath, and goeth up to Japhia,

13 And from thence passeth on along the east to Gittah-hepher, to Ittah-kazin, and goeth out to Remmon-methoar to Neah;

14 And the border compasseth it on the north side to Hannathon: and the outgoings thereof are in the valley of Jiphthah-el:

15 And Kattath, and Nahallal, and Shimron, and Idalah, and Beth-lehem: twelve cities with their villages.

16 This is the inheritance of the children of Zebulun according to their families, these cities with their villages.

17 ¶ And the fourth lot came out to Iffachar, for the children of Iffachar according to their families.

18 And their border was toward Jezreel, and Chesulloth, and Shunem,

19 And Haphraim, and Shihon, and Anaharath,

20 And Rabbith, and Kishion, and Abez,

21 And Remeth, and En-gannim, and En-haddah, Beth-pazzez;

22 And the coast reached to Tabor, and Shahazimah, and Beth-shemesh; and the outgoings of their border were at Jordan: sixteen cities with their villages.

23 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Iffachar according to their families, the cities and their villages.

24 ¶ And the fifth lot came out for the tribe of the children of Asher according to their families.

25 And their border was Helkath, and Hali, and Beten, and Achshaph,

26 And Alammelech, and Amad, and Misheal; and reacheth to Carmel westward, and to Shihor-libnath;

27 And turneth toward the sunrising to Beth-dagon, and reacheth to Zebulun, and to the valley of Jiphthah-el toward the north side of Beth-emek, and Neiel, and goeth out to Cabul on the left hand,

28 And Hebron, and Rehob, and Hammon, and Kanah, even unto great Zidon;

29 And then the coast turneth to Ramah, and to the strong city Tyre; and the coast turneth to Hofah; and the outgoings thereof are at the sea from the coast to Achzib:

30 Ummah also, and Aphek, and Rehob: twenty and two cities with their villages.

31 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Asher according to their families, these cities with their villages.

32 ¶ The

tion it seems that though their inheritance was included in that of Judah, this tribe had, besides the cities here spoken of, another share by lot.

2 Beer-sheba, Sheba, &c.] i. e. Beer-sheba, which is Sheba; for they were one and the same place.

9 The children of Simeon had their inheritance within the inheritance of them.] Certainly the original is here very justly and significantly translated "within," though it signifies, in the midst; for the lot of Simeon did not lie in the midst, or in the heart, but in the skirts of the country of Judah.

16 These cities with their villages.] i. e. these were the bounds of their inheritance.

Before CHRIST 1444. 32 ¶ The sixth lot came out to the children of Naphtali, even for the children of Naphtali according to their families.

33 And their coast was from Heleph, from Allonto Zaanannim, and Adami, Nekeb, and Jabneel, unto Lakum; and the outgoings thereof were at Jordan:

34 And then the coast turneth westward to Aznoth-tabor, and goeth out from thence to Hukkok, and reacheth to Zebulun on the south side, and reacheth to Asher on the west side, and to Judah upon Jordan toward the sunrising.

35 And the fenced cities are Ziddim, Zer, and Hammath, Rakkath, and Chinnereth,

36 And Adamah, and Ramah, and Hazor,

37 And Kedesh, and Edrei, and Enhazor,

38 And Iron, and Migdal-el, Horem, and Beth-anath, and Beth-she mesh; nineteen cities with their villages.

39 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Naphtali according to their families, the cities and their villages.

40 ¶ And the seventh lot came out for the tribe of the children of Dan according to their families.

41 And the coast of their inheritance was Zorah, and Eshtaol, and Ir-she mesh,

42 And Shaalabbin, and Ajalon, and Jethlah,

43 And Elon, and Thimnathah, and Ekron,

44 And Eltekeh, and Gibbethon, and Baalath,

45 And Jehud, and Bene-berak, and Gath-rimmon,

46 And Me-jarkon, and Rakkon, with the border before Japho.

47 And the coast of the children of Dan went out too little for them: therefore the children of Dan went up to fight against Leshem, and took it, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and possessed it, and dwelt therein, and called Leshem, Dan, after the name of Dan their father.

48 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Dan according to their families, these cities with their villages.

49 ¶ When they had made an end of dividing the land for inheritance by their coasts, the children of Israel gave an inheritance to Joshua the son of Nun among them:

50 According to the word of the LORD they gave him the city which he asked, even Timnah-serah in mount Ephraim: and he built the city, and dwelt therein.

51 These are the inheritances, which Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the heads of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel, divided for an inheritance by lot in Shiloh before the LORD, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation. So they made an end of dividing the country.

34 To Judah upon Jordan, &c.] Which signifies, that this tribe had a communication with that of Judah, by means of the river Jordan.

46 Before Japho.] It was afterwards called Joppa.

47 Went out too little for them, &c.] In the Hebrew, the words run thus, The coast of the children of Dan went out from them; that is, they were dispossessed of it, in some parts, by their powerful neighbours the Amorites, who forced them into the mountains, and would not let them dwell in the valley.

49 The children of Israel gave an inheritance unto Joshua, &c.] Conspicuous indeed was the modesty of this great man! He was content to stay for his inheritance till all the land was divided, and to receive his portion as a gift from those he had before settled in the promised land.

51 They made an end of dividing the country.] Here we should observe, that as Jacob and Moses, at the approach of their deaths, foretold the very soil and situation of every particular country that should fall to each tribe, so, upon this division by lot, it accordingly happened.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XIX.

Without doubt the truth of the divine revelation appears in the fulfilment of the events foretold by Jacob and Moses; for God, who does nothing in vain, and knows the end of all human affairs, does all things with the most precise regularity and exactness; which should serve us for a rule to follow as well as we are able.

CHAP. XX.

Before CHRIST 1444.

1 God commandeth. 7 and the children of Israel appoint the six cities of refuge.

THE LORD also spake unto Joshua, saying, 2 Speak to the children of Israel, saying, Appoint out for you cities of refuge; whereof I spake unto you by the hand of Moses:

3 That the slayer that killeth any person unawares and unwittingly may flee thither: and they shall be your refuge from the avenger of blood.

4 And when he that doth flee unto one of those cities shall stand at the entering of the gate of the city, and shall declare his cause in the ears of the elders of that city, they shall take him into the city unto them, and give him a place, that he may dwell among them.

5 And if the avenger of blood pursue after him, then they shall not deliver the slayer up into his hand; because he smote his neighbour unwittingly, and hated him not beforetime.

6 And he shall dwell in that city, until he stand before the congregation for judgment, and until the death of the high priest that shall be in those days: then shall the slayer return, and come unto his own city, and unto his own house, unto the city from whence he fled.

7 ¶ And they appointed Kedesh in Galilee in mount Naphtali, and Shechem in mount Ephraim, and Kirjath-arba, which is Hebron, in the mountain of Judah.

8 And on the other side Jordan by Jericho eastward, they assigned Bezer in the wilderness upon the plain out of the tribe of Reuben, and Ramoth in Gilead out of the tribe of Gad, and Golan in Bashan out of the tribe of Manasseh.

9 These were the cities appointed for all the children of Israel, and for the stranger that sojourneth among them, that whosoever killeth any person at unawares might flee thither, and not die by the hand of the avenger of blood, until he stood before the congregation.

CHAP. XXI.

1 Eight and forty cities out of the other tribes are given unto the Levites. 9 The cities of the priests; 20 of the rest of the Kohathites; 27 of the Gershonites; 34 and of the Merarites. 43 God's promise fulfilled in giving the land and rest to Israel.

THEN came near the heads of the fathers of the Levites unto Eleazar the priest, and unto Joshua the son of Nun, and unto the heads of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel;

2 And they spake unto them at Shiloh in the land of Canaan, saying, The LORD commanded by the hand of Moses to give us cities to dwell in, with the suburbs thereof for our cattle.

3 And

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XX.

1 The Lord also spake unto Joshua, &c.] i. e. From the tabernacle at the door of which Eleazar and Joshua and the princes had been making a division of the land.

4 Shall stand at the entering of the gate of the city, &c.] To solicit admission and protection there.

6 Until he stand before the congregation for judgment, &c.] For the avenger might bring him before another tribunal to be tried, whether he killed the man by chance, or not.

7 Kedesh in Galilee—Shechem in mount Ephraim, and Kirjath-arba, which is Hebron, in the mountain of Judah.] Which three cities were all situated in eminences, so that they might be seen from a great distance; and being dispersed in several parts of the country, every one might enjoy the benefit of one or the other; for Kedesh was in the north, Hebron in the south, and Shechem between both.

8 Bezer—Ramoth—Golan, &c.] Which cities were assigned by Moses, before he died, Deut. iv. 45. but had not their privileges till the present time.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XX.

We may learn from what is here said concerning the cities of refuge, what obligations we are under, at all times, to mingle mercy with justice, and to be extremely cautious of condemning any man, till we are convinced of his guilt by a rational evidence.

3 And the children of Israel gave unto the Levites out of their inheritance, at the commandment of the LORD, these cities and their suburbs.

4 And the lot came out for the family of the Kohathites: and the children of Aaron the priest, which were of the Levites, had by lot out of the tribe of Judah, and out of the tribe of Simeon, and out of the tribe of Benjamin, thirteen cities.

5 And the rest of the children of Kohath had by lot out of the families of the tribe of Ephraim, and out of the tribe of Dan, and out of the half tribe of Manasseh, ten cities.

6 And the children of Gershon had by lot out of the families of the tribe of Issachar, and out of the tribe of Asher, and out of the tribe of Naphtali, and out of the half tribe of Manasseh in Bashan, thirteen cities.

7 The children of Merari by their families had out of the tribe of Reuben, and out of the tribe of Gad, and out of the tribe of Zebulun, twelve cities.

8 And the children of Israel gave by lot unto the Levites these cities with their suburbs, as the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses.

9 ¶ And they gave out of the tribe of the children of Judah, and out of the tribe of the children of Simeon, these cities which are here mentioned by name,

10 Which the children of Aaron, being of the families of the Kohathites, who were of the children of Levi, had: for their's was the first lot.

11 And they gave them the city of Arba the father of Anak, which city is Hebron, in the hill country of Judah, with the suburbs thereof round about it.

12 But the fields of the city, and the villages thereof, gave they to Caleb the son of Jephunneh for his possession.

13 Thus they gave to the children of Aaron the priest Hebron with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and Libnah with her suburbs,

14 And Jattir with her suburbs, and Eshtemoa with her suburbs,

15 And Holon with her suburbs, and Debir with her suburbs,

16 And Ain with her suburbs, and Juttah with her suburbs, and Beth-shemesh with her suburbs; nine cities out of those two tribes.

17 And out of the tribe of Benjamin, Gibeon with her suburbs, Geba with her suburbs.

19 All the cities of the children of Aaron, the priests, were thirteen cities with their suburbs.

20 ¶ And the families of the children of Kohath, the Levites which remained of the children of Kohath, even they had the cities of their lot out of the tribe of Ephraim.

21 For they gave them Shechem with her suburbs in mount Ephraim, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and Gezer with her suburbs, 22 And Kibzaim with her suburbs, and Beth-horon with her suburbs; four cities.

23 And out of the tribe of Dan, Eltekeh with her suburbs, Gibbethon with her suburbs, 24 Aijalon with her suburbs, Gath-rimmon with her suburbs; four cities.

25 And out of the half tribe of Manasseh, Tanach with her suburbs, and Gath-rimmon with her suburbs; two cities.

26 All the cities were ten with their suburbs for the families of the children of Kohath that remained.

27 ¶ And unto the children of Gershon, of the families of the Levites, out of the other half tribe of Manasseh they gave Golan in Bashan with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and Beesh-terah with her suburbs, two cities.

28 And out of the tribe of Issachar, Kishon with her suburbs, Dabareh with her suburbs, 29 Jarmuth with her suburbs, En-gannim with her suburbs; four cities.

30 And out of the tribe of Asher, Mishal with her suburbs, Abdon with her suburbs, 31 Helkath with her suburbs, and Rehob with her suburbs; four cities.

32 And out of the tribe of Naphtali, Kedesh in Galilee with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and Hammoth-dor with her suburbs, and Kartan with her suburbs; three cities.

33 All the cities of the Gershonites according to their families were thirteen cities with their suburbs.

34 ¶ And unto the families of the children of Merari, the rest of the Levites, out of the tribe of Zebulun, Jokneam with her suburbs, and Kartah with her suburbs, 35 Dimnah with her suburbs, Nahalal with her suburbs; four cities.

36 And out of the tribe of Reuben, Bezer with her suburbs, and Jahazah with her suburbs, 37 Kedemoth with her suburbs, and Mephaath with her suburbs; four cities.

38 And out of the tribe of Gad, Ramoth in Gilead with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and Mahanaim with her suburbs, 39 Heshbon with her suburbs, Jazer with her suburbs; four cities in all.

40 So all the cities for the children of Merari by their families, which were remaining of the families of the Levites, were by their lot twelve cities.

41 All the cities of the Levites within the possession of the children of Israel were forty and eight cities with their suburbs.

42 These cities were every one with their suburbs round about them: thus were all these cities.

43 ¶ And the LORD gave unto Israel all the land which he swore to give unto their fathers; and they possessed it, and dwelt therein.

44 And the LORD gave them rest round about, according to all that he swore unto their fathers: and there stood not a man of all their enemies before them; the LORD delivered all their enemies into their hand.

45 There failed not aught of any good thing which the LORD had spoken unto the house of Israel; all came to pass.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ■ CHAP. XXI.

¶ The children of Israel gave unto the Levites, &c.] The people of Israel acknowledged the obligations which God had laid upon them, and accordingly these words import, that the people separated so many cities (forty-eight, see Numb. xxxv. 7.) for the habitation of their God.

4 Out of the tribe of Judah, &c.] Thus it was a special providence that the share which fell to the priests in those tribes situated nearest to the city which God intended should be the fixed place of his service and worship.

13 And Libnah with her suburbs.] Which is to be understood as belonging to them no otherwise than Hebron did, to which they had right beyond the city and suburbs.

36, 37, And out of the tribe, &c.] Formerly these two were intirely omitted in the Massorah; though without them, neither the twelve tribes of the Merarites in particular, nor the forty-eight Levitical cities in general, nor the six cities of refuge, can be made up.

41 Forty and eight cities, &c.] This was the command of God by Moses; and it is a demonstration that Moses was divinely inspired, to make such an appointment, before they knew whether, without straitening the other tribes, they could afford so many cities to the Levites.

43 The Lord gave unto Israel all the land, &c.] i. e. The Lord gave them a right to the whole country, and he gave them the actual possession of the greatest part of it: he gave them likewise power to subdue the rest (if they continued obedient to him) as soon as it was deemed proper.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXI.

We learn from this chapter, that those who minister in holy things are to be treated with utmost respect and deference; and by the children of Joseph being placed in some of the most agreeable parts of the country, we may conclude, that God will ever bless the children of the righteous; also, that the small share allotted to the tribe of Levi, is a lesson to ministers, not to be greedy of unavailing gain.

COMMENTARY

CHAP. XXII.

Before
1444

1 Joshua dismisseth the two tribes and half with a blessing and share of spoil. 10 On their journey they build the altar of testimony. 11 The other tribes are offended thereat, and send to demand satisfaction. 21 The two tribes and half vindicate their conduct. 30 The deputies are satisfied. 32 Their report satisfieth the people that sent them.

THEN Joshua called the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh,

2 And said unto them, Ye have kept all that Moses the servant of the LORD commanded you, and have obeyed my voice in all that I commanded you;

3 Ye have not left your brethren these many days unto this day, but have kept the charge of the commandment of the LORD your God.

4 And now the LORD your God hath given rest unto your brethren, as he promised them: therefore now return ye, and get you unto your tents, and unto the land of your possession, which Moses the servant of the LORD gave you on the other side Jordan.

5 But take diligent heed to do the commandment and the law, which Moses the servant of the LORD charged you, to love the LORD your God, and to walk in all his ways, and to keep his commandments, and to cleave unto him, and to serve him with all your heart and with all your soul.

6 So Joshua blessed them, and sent them away: and they went unto their tents.

7 Now to the one half of the tribe of Manasseh Moses had given possession in Bashan: but unto the other half thereof gave Joshua among their brethren on this side Jordan westward. And when Joshua sent them away also unto their tents, then he blessed them,

8 And he spake unto them, saying, Return with much riches unto your tents, and with very much cattle, with silver, and with gold, and with brags, and with iron, and with very much raiment: divide the spoil of your enemies with your brethren.

9 And the children of Reuben and the children of Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh returned, and departed from the children of Israel out of Shiloh, which is in the land of Canaan, to go into the country of Gilead, to the land of their possession, whereof they were possessed, according to the word of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

10 ¶ And when they came unto the borders of Jordan, that are in the land of Canaan, the children of Reuben and the children of Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh built there an altar by Jordan, a great altar to see to.

11 ¶ And the children of Israel heard say, Behold, the children of Reuben and the children of Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh have built an altar over against the land of Canaan, in the borders of Jordan, at the passage of the children of Israel.

12 And when the children of Israel heard of it, the whole congregation of the children of Israel gathered themselves together at Shiloh, to go up to war against them.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXII.

1 Joshua called the Reubenites, &c.] He called them for the purpose of giving them an honourable dismissal; commending their further obedience to God and unto him; for their fidelity to their promises; and for their constancy and practice, their piety to God, and love to their brethren.

7 Now to the one half of the tribe,] Joshua, it seems, had dismissed with his blessing the Reubenites and the Gadites, and then blessed the Manassites by themselves; and the reason of this particularity, is supposed to be because the Manassites were near of kin to the children of Ephraim (of which tribe he himself was) and were now to be separated from the rest of their brethren in Canaan.

10 Build there an altar, &c.] Which altar was not built in the land of Canaan, for there it would not answer their intention, which was not for any religious use, but to erect a memorial to succeeding generations, that though they were parted by the river, yet they

13 And the children of Israel sent unto the children of Reuben, and to the children of Gad, and to the half tribe of Manasseh, into the land of Gilead, Phinchas the son of Eleazar the priest,

14 And with him ten princes, of each chief house a prince throughout all the tribes of Israel; and each one was an head of the house of their fathers among the thousands of Israel.

15 And they came unto the children of Reuben, and to the children of Gad, and to the half tribe of Manasseh, unto the land of Gilead, and they spake with them, saying,

16 Thus saith the whole congregation of the LORD, What trespass is this that ye have committed against the God of Israel, to turn away this day from following the LORD, in that ye have builded you an altar, that ye might rebel this day against the LORD?

17 Is the iniquity of Peor too little for us, from which we are not cleansed until this day, although there was a plague in the congregation of the LORD,

18 But that ye must turn away this day from following the LORD? and it will be, seeing ye rebel to day against the LORD, that to morrow he will be wroth with the whole congregation of Israel.

19 Notwithstanding, if the land of your possession be unclean, then pass ye over unto the land of the possession of the LORD, wherein the LORD's tabernacle dwelleth, and take possession among us: but rebel not against the LORD, nor rebel against us, in building you an altar beside the altar of the LORD our God.

20 Did not Achan the son of Zerah commit a trespass in the accursed thing, and wrath fell on all the congregation of Israel? and that man perished not alone in his iniquity.

21 ¶ Then the children of Reuben and the children of Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh answered, and said unto the heads of the thousands of Israel,

22 The LORD God of gods, the LORD God of gods, he knoweth, and Israel he shall know; if it be in rebellion, or if in transgression against the LORD, (save us not this day,)

23 That we have built us an altar to turn from following the LORD, or if to offer thereon burnt offering or meat offering, or if to offer peace offerings thereon, let the LORD himself require it;

24 And if we have not rather done it for fear of this thing, saying, In time to come your children might speak unto our children, saying, What have ye to do with the LORD God of Israel?

25 For the LORD hath made Jordan a border between us and you, ye children of Reuben and children of Gad; ye have no part in the LORD: so shall your children make our children cease from fearing the LORD.

26 Therefore we said, Let us now prepare to build us an altar, not for burnt offering, nor for sacrifice:

27 But that it may be a witness between us, and you, and our generations after us, that we might do the service of the LORD before him with our burnt offerings, and with our sacrifices, and with our peace offerings; that your children may not say to our children in time to come, Ye have no part in the LORD.

28 Therefore were of the same extract and religion, and held an equal right to the tabernacle at Shiloh, and to the worship of God performed there, with that of the inhabitants on the other side.

12 The children of Israel gathered themselves together, &c.] They immediately took up arms for the vindication of the worship and religion of their forefathers, and to avenge the cause of God upon the heads and chief authors of this defection.

17 Is the iniquity of Peor too little for us? &c.] In order to dissuade them from their supposed idolatry, they are put in mind of the calamities which God had formerly sent upon them for their worship of Baal-peor; and this instance was very properly brought by Phinehas, who in the punishment of it, was the principal actor.

20 Did not Achan, &c.] Or in other words, If so lately God had been so severe upon them, for the offence of one man, viz. Achan only, what might they not expect, when two tribes and an half were going to revolt?

Before
1444.

28 Therefore said we, that it shall be, when they should so say to us or to our generations in time to come, that we may say again, Behold the pattern of the altar of the LORD, which our fathers made, not for burnt offerings, nor for sacrifices; but it is a witness between us and you.

29 God forbid that we should rebel against the LORD, and turn this day from following the LORD, to build an altar for burnt offerings, for meat offerings, or for sacrifices, beside the altar of the LORD our God that is before his tabernacle.

30 ¶ And when Phinehas the priest, and the princes of the congregation and heads of the thousands of Israel which were with him, heard the words that the children of Reuben and the children of Gad and the children of Manasseh spake, it pleased them.

31 And Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest said unto the princes, returned from the children of Gad, and to the children of Manasseh, This day we perceive that the LORD is among us, because ye have not committed this trespass against the LORD: now ye have delivered the children of Israel out of the hand of the LORD.

32 ¶ And Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest, and the princes, returned from the children of Reuben, and from the children of Gad, out of the land of Gilead, unto the land of Canaan, to the children of Israel, and brought them word again.

33 And the thing pleased the children of Israel; and the children of Israel blessed God, and did not intend to go up against them in battle, to destroy the land wherein the children of Reuben and Gad dwelt.

34 And the children of Reuben and the children of Gad called the altar Ed: for it shall be a witness between us that the LORD is God.

AND it came to pass a long time after that the LORD had given rest unto Israel from their enemies round about, that Joshua waxed old and stricken in age.

¶ And Joshua called for all Israel, and for their elders, and for their heads, and for their judges, and for their officers, and said unto them, I am old and stricken in age:

3 And ye have seen all that the LORD your God hath done unto all these nations because of you; for the LORD your God is he that hath fought for you.

4 Behold, I have divided unto you by lot these nations that remain, to be an inheritance for your tribes, from Jordan, with all the nations that I have cut off, even unto the great sea westward.

5 ¶ And the LORD your God, he shall expel them from before you, and drive them from out of your sight; and ye shall possess their land, as the LORD your God hath promised unto you.

28 Behold the pattern of the altar, &c.] They could not have exactly imitated this altar if they had not been acquainted with, and had not worshipped God there, with their brethren.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXIII.

From this history it appears that the Israelites of the two tribes and half, and those of the other tribes, were all of them equally addicted to the worship of the true God; and their example teaches us, that we should not turn away from the purity of religion, and the service which God has in his word prescribed.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXIII.

2 I am old and stricken in age.] Now Joshua insinuates to them, that this, in all probability, would be the last time he should be able to speak to them, in order to engage their attention more perfectly to what he was going to say: he was one hundred and ten years of age at this time.

6 Be ye therefore very courageous to keep and to do all that is written in the book of the law of Moses, that ye turn not aside therefrom to the right hand or to the left;

7 That ye come not among these nations, these that remain among you; neither make mention of the name of their gods, nor cause to swear by them, neither serve them, nor bow yourselves unto them:

8 But cleave unto the LORD your God, as ye have done unto this day.

9 For the LORD hath driven out from before you great nations and strong: but as for you, no man hath been able to stand before you unto this day.

10 One man of you shall chase a thousand: for the LORD your God, he it is that fighteth for you, as he hath promised you.

11 Take good heed therefore unto yourselves, that ye love the LORD your God.

12 ¶ Else if ye do in any wise go back, and cleave unto the remnant of these nations, even these that remain among you, and shall make marriages with them, and go in unto them, and they to you:

13 Know for a certainty that the LORD your God will no more drive out any of these nations from before you; but they shall be snares and traps unto you, and scourges in your sides, and thorns in your eyes, until ye perish from off this good land, which the LORD your God hath given you.

14 And, behold, this day I am going the way of all the earth: and ye know in all your hearts and in all your souls, that not one thing hath failed of all the good things which the LORD your God spake concerning you; all are come to pass unto you, and not one thing hath failed thereof.

15 Therefore it shall come to pass, that as all good things are come upon you, which the LORD your God promised you; so shall the LORD bring upon you all evil things, until he have destroyed you from off this good land which the LORD your God hath given you.

16 When ye have transgressed the covenant of the LORD your God, which he commanded you, and have gone and served other gods, and bowed yourselves to them; then shall the anger of the LORD be kindled against you, and ye shall perish quickly from off the good land which he hath given unto you.

AND Joshua gathered all the tribes of Israel to Shechem, and called for the elders of Israel, and for their heads, and for their judges, and for their officers; and they presented themselves before God.

5 The LORD your God, he shall expel them, &c.] It is those who remained yet unsubdued who are alluded to here.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXIV.

The remonstrances of Joshua, contained in this chapter, teach us that an adherence to the service of God, and his laws, constitute the security and happiness of nations; and, on the contrary, that disobedience and ungodliness will deprive us of the blessings of God, and bring down upon us his severe judgments.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. XXIV.

1 And Joshua gathered all the tribes.] In all probability Joshua, living longer than he expected when he made the foregoing speech to them, called the people together once more, to give them good advice before he died; in like manner as Moses made a great many speeches to them, before his departure from them.

To Shechem, &c.] In the confines of Shechem there was a large and open country, extending, perhaps, as far as Shiloh, and very commodious for their reception; we have the attestation of holy writ.

2 On the other side of the flood.] i. e. Of the river Euphrates.

They

Before CHRIST 1427. the father of Abraham, and the father of Nachor : and they served other gods.

3 And I took your father Abraham from the other side of the flood, and led him throughout all the land of Canaan, and multiplied his seed, and gave him Isaac.

4 And I gave unto Isaac Jacob and Esau : and I gave unto Esau mount Seir, to possess it ; but Jacob and his children went down into Egypt.

5 I sent Moses also and Aaron, and I plagued Egypt, according to that which I did among them : and afterward I brought you out.

6 And I brought your fathers out of Egypt : and ye came unto the sea ; and the Egyptians pursued after your fathers with chariots and horsemen unto the Red sea.

7 And when they cried unto the LORD, he put darkness between you and the Egyptians, and brought the sea upon them, and covered them ; and your eyes have seen what I have done in Egypt : and ye dwelt in the wilderness a long season.

8 And I brought you into the land of the Amorites, which dwelt on the other side Jordan ; and they fought with you : and I gave them into your hand, that ye might possess the land ; and I destroyed them from before you.

9 Then Balak the son of Zippor, king of Moab, arose and warred against Israel, and sent and called Balaam the son of Beor to curse you :

10 But I would not hearken unto Balaam ; therefore he blessed you still : so I delivered you out of his hand.

11 And ye went over Jordan, and came unto Jericho : and the men of Jericho fought against you, the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Girgashites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites ; and I delivered them into your hand.

12 And I sent the hornet before you, which drave them out from before you, even the two kings of the Amorites ; but not with thy sword, nor with thy bow.

13 And I have given you a land for which ye did not labour, and cities which ye built not, and ye dwell in them ; of the vineyards and oliveyards which ye planted not do ye eat.

14 ¶ Now therefore fear the LORD, and serve him in sincerity and in truth : and put away the gods which your fathers served on the other side of the flood, and in Egypt ; and serve ye the LORD.

15 And if it seem evil unto you to serve the LORD, choose you this day whom ye will serve ; whether the gods which your fathers served that were on the other side of the flood, or the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell : but as for me and my house, we will serve the LORD.

16 And the people answered and said, God forbid that we should forsake the LORD to serve other gods ;

17 For the LORD our God, he it is that brought us up and our fathers out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage, and which did those great signs in our sight, and preserved us in all the way wherein we went, and among all the people through whom we passed :

18 And the LORD drave out from before us all the people, even the Amorites which dwelt in the land : therefore will we also serve the LORD ; for he is our God.

19 And Joshua said unto the people, Ye cannot serve the LORD : for he is an holy God ; he is a jealous God ; he will not forgive your transgressions nor your sins.

20 If ye forsake the LORD, and serve strange gods, then he will turn and do you hurt, and consume you, after that he hath done you good.

21 And the people said unto Joshua, Nay ; but we will serve the LORD.

22 And Joshua said unto the people, Ye are witnesses against yourselves that ye have chosen you the LORD, to serve him. And they said, We are witnesses.

23 Now therefore put away, said he, the strange gods which are among you, and incline your heart unto the LORD God of Israel.

24 And the people said unto Joshua, The LORD our God will we serve, and his voice will we obey.

25 So Joshua made a covenant with the people that day, and set them a statute and an ordinance in Shechem.

26 ¶ And Joshua wrote these words in the book of the law of God, and took a great stone, and set it up there under an oak, that was by the sanctuary of the LORD.

27 And Joshua said unto all the people, Behold, this stone shall be a witness unto us ; for it hath heard all the words of the LORD which he spake unto us : it shall be therefore a witness unto you, lest ye deny your God.

28 So Joshua let the people depart, every man unto his inheritance.

29 ¶ And it came to pass after these things, that Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of the LORD, died, being an hundred and ten years old.

30 And they buried him in the border of his inheritance in Timnath-herah, which is in mount Ephraim, on the north side of the hill of Gaash.

31 And Israel served the LORD all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders that overlived Joshua, and which had known all the works of the LORD, that he had done for Israel.

32 ¶ And the bones of Joseph, which the children of Israel brought up out of Egypt, buried they in Shechem, in a parcel of ground which Jacob bought of the sons of Hamor the father of Shechem for an hundred pieces of silver : and it became the inheritance of the children of Joseph.

33 ¶ And Eleazar the son of Aaron died ; and they buried him in a hill that pertaineth to Phinehas his son, which was given him in mount Ephraim.

7 Thou art here seen, &c. For their elders, who had seen them lie dead on the sea-shore, were all then there, and were not only men of great dignity, but (many of them at least) of an advanced age.

23 The strange gods that are among you, &c. He knew, by the spirit of prophecy, that they had their penates, or household gods, which they worshipped in their closets secretly.

27 It hath heard, &c. This is a bold and beautiful figure.

32 And the bones of Joseph, &c. We may naturally suppose that the bodies of the rest of the sons of Jacob, from whom the twelve tribes were descended, were brought into Canaan, to be there interred ; as Josephus relates from antient tradition, and as St. Stephen confirms it, Acts vii. 16.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. XXIV.

The repeated promises and answers made by the Israelites, of their fidelity, should put us in mind that we have also engaged ourselves, by solemn and repeated promises, and upon pain of being rejected and forsaken of God, to serve and to be faithful to him. God grant us his grace, that we may always set these promises before our eyes, and that we may observe them inviolably.

SUMMARY OF THE DOCTRINES CONTAINED IN THE BOOK OF JOSHUA.

This Book contains the general doctrines of the preceding ; indeed we have a remarkable instance of the advantage and efficacy of due consideration and repentance in the case of Rahab the harlot, under all the disadvantages of bad example and former evil habits ; and we have likewise a proof of the impartial mercy of God, who always " accepteth such as work righteousness in every nation, without respect of persons." Let the reader reflect upon the account of the Gibeonites. On the other hand, the affair of Achan is an example to all who live under the benefit of revelation, of his righteous and just severity upon all obdurate offenders against his most holy and equitable commands.

EXPLANATORY

The BOOK of JUDGES.

THE ARGUMENT.

The title of Judges is given this book, because it treats principally of the great things done by those illustrious persons, who, after the death of Joshua, until the days of Eli, were raised up by God, upon special occasions, to rule the people Israel, and deliver them from their several oppressions. The most general opinion is, that (not Hezekiah or Ezra, but) the prophet Samuel, who was the last of the judges, wrote it by the direction of God, and brought down their history to his own days. This book contains an history of about three hundred years.

Before
CHRIST
1425.

NOW after the death of Joshua it came to pass, that the children of Israel asked the LORD, saying, Who shall go up for us against the Canaanites first, to fight against them?

2 And the LORD said, Judah shall go up: behold, I have delivered the land into his hand.

3 And Judah said unto Simeon his brother, Come up with me into my lot, that we may fight against the Canaanites; and I likewise will go with thee into thy lot. So Simeon went with him.

4 And Judah went up; and the LORD delivered the Canaanites and the Perizzites into their hand: and they slew of them in Bezek ten thousand men.

5 And they found Adoni-bezek in Bezek: and they fought against him, and they slew the Canaanites and the Perizzites.

6 But Adoni-bezek fled; and they pursued after him, and caught him, and cut off his thumbs and his great toes.

7 And Adoni-bezek said, Threescore and ten kings, having their thumbs and their great toes cut off, gathered their meat under my table: as I have done, so God hath requited me. And they brought him to Jerusalem, and there he died.

8 ¶ Now the children of Judah had fought against Jerusalem, and had taken it, and smitten it with the edge of the sword, and set the city on fire.

9 And afterward the children of Judah went down to fight against the Canaanites, that dwelt in the mountain, and in the south, and in the valley.

10 ¶ And Judah went against the Canaanites that dwelt in Hebron: (now the name of Hebron before ^{Before CHRIST 1425.} was Kirjath-arba:) and they slew Sheshai, and Ahiman, and Talmai.

11 ¶ And from thence he went against the inhabitants of Debir: and the name of Debir before was Kirjath-sepher:

12 And Caleb said, He that smiteth Kirjath-sepher, and taketh it, to him will I give Achsah my daughter to wife. ^{1424.}

13 And Othniel the son of Kenaz, Caleb's younger brother, took it: and he gave him Achsah his daughter to wife.

14 And it came to pass, when she came to him, that she moved him to ask of her father a field: and the lighted from off her ass; and Caleb said unto her, What wilt thou?

15 And she said unto him, Give me a blessing; for thou hast given me a south land; give me also springs of water. And Caleb gave her the upper springs and the nether springs.

16 ¶ And the children of the Kenite, Moses' father in law, went up out of the city of palm trees with the children of Judah into the wilderness of Judah, which lieth in the south of Arad; and they went and dwelt among the people. ^{1425.}

17 ¶ And Judah went with Simeon his brother, and they slew the Canaanites that inhabited Zephath, and utterly destroyed it. And the name of the city was called Hormah.

18 Also Judah took Gaza with the coast thereof, and Askelon with the coast thereof, and Ekron with the coast thereof.

19 And the LORD was with Judah; and he drove out the inhabitants of the mountain; but could not drive out the inhabitants of the valley, because they had chariots of iron.

20 And they gave Hebron unto Caleb, as Moses said: and he expelled thence the three sons of Anak.

21 ¶ And the children of Benjamin did not drive out the Jebusites that inhabited Jerusalem; but the Jebusites dwell with the children of Benjamin in Jerusalem unto this day.

22 ¶ And the house of Joseph, they also went up against Beth-el: and the LORD was with them.

23 And

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. I.

1 Now after the death of Joshua, &c.] It is not said that any person succeeded Joshua in the government. The most probable opinion is, that every tribe was governed by their respective heads or elders; which form of government subsisted about thirty years.

4 In Bezek, &c.] i. e. Near to Bezek, which was a city in the tribe of Judah, not far from Bethlehem, as some think.

6 Cut off his thumbs and his great toes.] To render him incapable of war. As this had been his own practice, (which he confesses in the next verse) it was not unreasonable to retaliate this treatment upon him; "■ he had done, so God requited him."

7 So God hath requited me, &c.] Some have been induced to think, from this acknowledgment of Adoni-bezek, he was a penitent, and became a convert to the true religion, which might possibly be the reason why they spared his life.

8 Against Jerusalem, &c.] By this Jerusalem appears to have been in the possession of the children of Judah.

10 Sheshai, and Ahiman, and Talmai.] Who were the three sons of Anak.

11 Debir, &c.] Which city was re-inhabited by the Canaanites; and they were not expelled again till after the death of Joshua.

12 And Caleb said, &c.] It is not certain who was their general on this occasion, and yet it is hardly to be questioned, but that Caleb was the person.

19 Could not drive out the inhabitants of the valley, &c.] It is the opinion of Dr. Waterland that this should be rendered, He proceeded not to drive out, &c.

24 Shew

Before
CHRIST
1425.

23 And the house of Joseph sent to descry Beth-el. (Now the name of the city before was Luz.)

24 And the spies saw a man come forth out of the city, and they said unto him, Shew us, we pray thee, the entrance into the city, and we will shew thee mercy.

25 And when he shewed them the entrance into the city, they smote the city with the edge of the sword; but they let go the man and all his family.

26 And the man went into the land of the Hittites, and built a city, and called the name thereof Luz: which is the name thereof unto this day.

27 ¶ Neither did Manasseh drive out the inhabitants of Beth-shean and her towns, nor Taanach and her towns, nor the inhabitants of Dor and her towns, nor the inhabitants of Ibleam and her towns, nor the inhabitants of Megiddo and her towns: but the Canaanites would dwell in that land.

28 And it came to pass, when Israel was strong, that they put the Canaanites to tribute, and did not utterly drive them out.

29 ¶ Neither did Ephraim drive out the Canaanites that dwelt in Gezer; but the Canaanites dwelt in Gezer among them.

30 ¶ Neither did Zebulun drive out the inhabitants of Kitron, nor the inhabitants of Nahalol; but the Canaanites dwelt among them, and became tributaries.

31 ¶ Neither did Asher drive out the inhabitants of Accho, nor the inhabitants of Zidon, nor of Ahlab, nor of Achzib, nor of Helbah, nor of Aphik, nor of Rehob:

32 But the Asherites dwelt among the Canaanites, the inhabitants of the land: for they did not drive them out.

33 ¶ Neither did Naphtali drive out the inhabitants of Beth-sheMesh, nor the inhabitants of Beth-anath; but he dwelt among the Canaanites, the inhabitants of the land: nevertheless the inhabitants of Beth-sheMesh and of Beth-anath became tributaries unto them.

34 ¶ And the Amorites forced the children of Dan into the mountain: for they would not suffer them to come down to the valley:

35 But the Amorites would dwell in mount Heres in Aijalon, and in Shaalbim: yet the hand of the house of Joseph prevailed, so that they became tributaries.

36 And the coast of the Amorites was from the going up to Akrabbim, from the rock, and upward.

C H A P. II.

1 An angel rebuketh the people at Bochim for their disobedience to God's command. 6 During the life of Joshua and of the elders who survived him, the people serve the Lord; 10 but in the next generation fall away to grievous idolatry. 14 God's anger against them. 16 His pity toward them in their distress, and their ungrateful behaviour. 20 The Canaanites are therefore left to prove Israel.

AND an angel of the LORD came up from Gilgal to Bochim, and said, I made you to go up out of Egypt, and have brought you unto the land which 21 Shew us—the entrance into the city, &c.] Meaning the weakest part, where the walls were lowest, or most out of repair, or had the least guard.

28 They put the Canaanites to tribute, and did not utterly drive them out.] The Israelites were surely blameable in disregarding the command of God, and not making the right use of their victories, who, either through a misplaced lenity, or covetousness, instead of destroying them, as they were commanded, suffered them to live promiscuously among them, and contented themselves with making them become tributary only.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. I.

The avenging hand of God in the punishment of wicked and mercilefs men, in their own kind, is admirably pointed out to us in the case of Adonibezek, in this chapter; and by the neglect of the Israelites to obey God's command in driving out the Canaanites, who proved thorns in their sides, we may see the evil consequences of disregarding God's declarations in scripture.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. II.

1 An angel of the Lord came up from Gilgal, &c.] Most Christian No. 21.

I swear unto your fathers; and I said, I will never break my covenant with you.

2 And ye shall make no league with the inhabitants of this land; ye shall throw down their altars: but ye have not obeyed my voice: why have ye done this?

3 Wherefore I also said, I will not drive them out from before you; but they shall be as thorns in your sides, and their gods shall be a snare unto you.

4 And it came to pass, when the angel of the LORD spake these words unto all the children of Israel, that the people lifted up their voice, and wept.

5 And they called the name of that place Bochim: and they sacrificed there unto the LORD.

6 ¶ And when Joshua had let the people go, the children of Israel went every man unto his inheritance to possess the land.

7 And the people served the LORD all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders that outlived Joshua, who had seen all the great works of the LORD, that he did for Israel.

8 And Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of the LORD, died, being an hundred and ten years old.

9 And they buried him in the border of his inheritance in Timnath-heres, in the mount of Ephraim, on the north side of the hill Gaash.

10 ¶ And also all that generation were gathered unto their fathers; and there arose another generation after them, which knew not the LORD, nor yet the works which he had done for Israel.

11 And the children of Israel did evil in the sight of the LORD, and served Baalim:

12 And they forsook the LORD God of their fathers, which brought them out of the land of Egypt, and followed other gods, of the gods of the people that were round about them, and bowed themselves unto them, and provoked the LORD to anger.

13 And they forsook the LORD, and served Baal and Ashtaroth.

14 ¶ And the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel, and he delivered them into the hands of spoilers that spoiled them, and he sold them into the hands of their enemies round about, so that they could not any longer stand before their enemies.

15 Whithersoever they went out, the hand of the LORD was against them for evil, as the LORD had said, and as the LORD had sworn unto them: and they were greatly distressed.

16 ¶ Nevertheless the LORD raised up judges, which delivered them out of the hand of those that spoiled them.

17 And yet they would not hearken unto their judges, but they went a whoring after other gods, and bowed themselves unto them: they turned quickly out of the way which their fathers walked in, obeying the commandments of the LORD; but they did not so.

18 And when the LORD raised them up judges, then the LORD was with the judge, and delivered them out of the hand of their enemies all the days of the judge: for interpreters are of opinion that it was the Son of God, who is frequently in Scripture called "the Angel of the covenant." The angel's coming up from Gilgal, is mentioned as a very pertinent circumstance, to upbraid the Israelites with their base ingratitude to God, and with their sloth in not endeavouring to expel the Canaanites as commanded.

6 When Joshua had let the people go, &c.] i. e. When Joshua had broken up that great assembly which he held when he cast lots, and divided the land among them.

11 And served Baalim.] The gods of the nations whose land they possessed, and who were called by that general name, which signifies Lords. Their gods were great men deified.

13 Ashtaroth.] Some understood Venus by this idol.

24 He sold them, &c.] We are to understand by selling them, that their enemies carried away their persons, as well as their goods, and made them slaves.

16 The Lord raised up judges, &c.] He raised them up extraordinary rulers and governors, whose authority was chiefly in time of war, they being called up (by a particular inspiration of God) to deliver them out of the hand of their enemies.

19 And it came to pass, when the judge was dead, that they returned, and corrupted themselves more than their fathers, in following other gods to serve them, and to bow down unto them; they ceased not from their own doings, nor from their stubborn way.

20 ¶ And the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel; and he said, Because that this people hath transgressed my covenant which I commanded their fathers, and have not hearkened unto my voice;

21 I also will not henceforth drive out any from before them of the nations which Joshua left when he died:

22 That through them I may prove Israel, whether they will keep the way of the LORD to walk therein, as their fathers did keep it, or not.

23 Therefore the LORD left those nations, without driving them out hastily; neither delivered he them into the hand of Joshua.

CHAP. III.

1 The nations which were left to prove Israel. 5 By intercourse with them the Israelites are seduced into idolatry. 8 They are sold into the hand of Chushan-rishathaim, but delivered by Othniel; 12 and into the hand of Eglon king of Moab, but delivered by Ehud. 31 Shamgar slayeth six hundred Philistines with an ox goad, and delivereth Israel.

NOW these are the nations which the LORD left to prove Israel by them, even as many of Israel as had not known all the wars of Canaan;

2 Only that the generations of the children of Israel might know, to teach them war, at the least such as before knew nothing thereof;

3 Namely, five lords of the Philistines, and all the Canaanites, and the Sidonians, and the Hivites that dwelt in mount Lebanon, from mount Baal-hermon unto the entering in of Hamath.

4 And they were to prove Israel by them, to know whether they would hearken unto the commandments of the LORD, which he commanded their fathers by the hand of Moses.

5 ¶ And the children of Israel dwelt among the Canaanites, Hittites, and Amorites, and Perizzites, and Hivites, and Jebusites:

6 And they took their daughters to be their wives, and gave their daughters to their sons, and served their gods.

7 And the children of Israel did evil in the sight of the LORD, and forgot the LORD their God, and served Baalim and the groves.

8 ¶ Therefore the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel, and he sold them into the hand of Chushan-rishathaim, king of Mesopotamia: and the children of Israel served Chushan-rishathaim eight years.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. II.

We may learn by the corruption of the Jews after the death of Joshua, what a misfortune it is to a people, when God removes their pious magistrates and ministers; and that God withdraws his protection from those nations that forsake him. By the angel being sent to rebuke the Israelites, we may perceive that God only seeks the salvation of sinners, and waits to be gracious; and from the apostasy of the people of Israel, and their chastisements for it, we may gather this lesson, that God doth in mercy correct and afflict his people, lest, by their prosperity, they should be corrupted and ruined.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. III.

¶ To teach them war, &c.] i. e. To exercise and awaken their courage, and keep up martial discipline among them; and also that they might, by having powerful enemies so near them, constantly betake themselves to God, and depend upon his succour and help.

7 And the groves.] In all probability there were several goddesses under the name of Ashtaroth worshipped in them. Baalim was the general name for idols of the male kind; and Ashtaroth for those of the female.

LORD, the LORD raised up a deliverer to the children of Israel, who delivered them, even Othniel the son of Kenaz, Caleb's younger brother.

10 And the spirit of the LORD came upon him, and he judged Israel, and went out to war: and the LORD delivered Chushan-rishathaim, king of Mesopotamia, into his hand; and his hand prevailed against Chushan-rishathaim.

11 And the land had rest forty years. And Othniel the son of Kenaz died.

12 ¶ And the children of Israel did evil again in the sight of the LORD: and the LORD strengthened Eglon the king of Moab against Israel, because they had done evil in the sight of the LORD.

13 And he gathered unto him the children of Ammon and Amalek, and went and smote Israel, and possessed the city of palm trees.

14 So the children of Israel served Eglon the king of Moab eighteen years.

15 But when the children of Israel cried unto the LORD, the LORD raised them up a deliverer, Ehud the son of Gera, a Benjamite, a man left-handed: and by him the children of Israel sent a present unto Eglon the king of Moab.

16 But Ehud made him a dagger which had two edges, of a cubit length; and he did gird it under his raiment upon his right thigh.

17 And he brought the present unto Eglon king of Moab: and Eglon was a very fat man.

18 And when he had made an end to offer the present, he sent away the people that bare the present.

19 But he himself turned again from the quarries that were by Gilgal, and said, I have a secret errand unto thee, O king: who said, Keep silence. And all that stood by him went out from him.

20 And Ehud came unto him; and he was sitting in a summer parlour, which he had for himself alone. And Ehud said, I have a message from God unto thee. And he arose out of his seat.

21 And Ehud put forth his left hand, and took the dagger from his right thigh, and thrust it into his belly:

22 And the haft also went in after the blade; and the fat closed upon the blade, so that he could not draw the dagger out of his belly; and the dirt came out.

23 Then Ehud went forth through the porch, and shut the doors of the parlour upon him, and locked them.

24 When he was gone out, his servants came; and when they saw that, behold, the doors of the parlour were locked, they said, Surely he covereth his feet in his summer chamber.

25 And they tarried till they were ashamed: and, behold, he opened not the doors of the parlour; therefore they took a key, and opened them: and, behold, their lord was fallen down dead on the earth.

26 And Ehud escaped while they tarried, and passed beyond the quarries, and escaped unto Seirath.

10 The Spirit of the Lord came upon him, &c.] Othniel had an extraordinary motion from God to take upon him the government of the people; which none durst presume to do, but such as were appointed of God, who was their king.

12 The Lord strengthened Eglon the king of Moab against Israel, &c.] It was just, as the Israelites worshipped the gods of the people round about them, that they should be punished by those very people.

15 A present, &c.] This was a voluntary present above their ordinary payments, by which they hoped to mollify him, and make him favourable to them.

16 Upon his right thigh.] It must be either to avoid suspicion he wore it on the wrong side, or, being a left-handed man, that he might more readily draw it out.

19 The quarries that were by Gilgal, &c.] It is rendered in some translations, graven images, which is, indeed, the meaning of the Hebrew word in several places of scripture.

20 He rose out of his seat.] He rose out of reverence to God, whose words, he supposed, he was to hear.

22 And the dirt came out.] It is, And he went out hastily, in the Syriac and Arabic translations.

24 He covereth his feet in his summer chamber.] The sense of this passage probably is, that he had retired to sleep, as was usual in those hot countries.

3 And the children of Israel cried unto the LORD: for he had nine hundred chariots of iron; and twenty years he mightily oppressed the children of Israel.

4 ¶ And Deborah, ■ prophetess, the wife of Lapidoth, she judged Israel at that time.

7 And I will draw unto thee to the river Kishon Sisera, the captain of Jabin's army, with his chariots and his multitude; and I will deliver him into thine hand.

■ And Barak said unto her, If thou wilt go with me, then I will go: but if thou wilt not go with me, then I will not go.

■ Jabin king of Canaan, that reigned in Hazor, &c.] It is probable, that Jabin was a general name of all the kings of this country, like that of Pharaoh among the Egyptians.

12 And they shewed Sisera that Barak the son of Abinoam was gone up to mount Tabor.

13 And Sisera gathered together all his chariots, even nine hundred chariots of iron, and all the people that were with him, from Harosheth of the Gentiles unto the river of Kishon.

14 And Deborah said unto Barak, Up; for this is the day in which the LORD hath delivered Sisera into thine hand: is not the LORD gone out before thee? So Barak went down from mount Tabor, and ten thousand men after him.

15 And the LORD discomfited Sisera, and all his chariots, and all his host, with the edge of the sword before Barak; so that Sisera lighted down off his chariot, and fled away on his feet.

16 But Barak pursued after the chariots, and after the host, unto Harosheth of the Gentiles: and all the host of Sisera fell upon the edge of the sword; and there was not a man left.

17 ¶ Howbeit Sisera fled away on his feet to the tent of Jael the wife of Heber the Kenite: for there was peace between Jabin the king of Hazor and the house of Heber the Kenite.

18 And Jael went out to meet Sisera, and said unto him, Turn in, my lord, turn in to me; fear not. And when he had turned in unto her into the tent, she covered him with ■ mantle.

21 Then Jael Heber's wife took a nail of the tent, and took an hammer in her hand, and went softly unto him, and smote the nail into his temples, and fastened it into the ground: for he was fast asleep and weary. So he died.

22 And, behold, as Barak pursued Sisera, Jael came out to meet him, and said unto him, Come, and I will shew thee the man whom thou seekest. And when he came into her tent, behold, Sisera lay dead, and the nail was in his temples.

23 ¶ So God subdued on that day Jabin the king of Canaan before the children of Israel.

The song of Deborah and Barak.

THEN sang Deborah and Barak the son of Abinoam on that day, saying,

■ Praise ye the LORD for the avenging of Israel, when the people willingly offered themselves.

3 Hear, O ye kings; give ear, O ye princes; I, even I, will sing unto the LORD; I will sing praise to the LORD God of Israel.

4 LORD, when thou wentest out of Seir, when thou marchedst out of the field of Edom, the earth trembled, and the heavens dropped, the clouds also dropped water.

5 The mountains melted from before the LORD, even that Sinai from before the LORD God of Israel.

6 In the days of Shamgar the son of Anath, in the days of Jael, the highways were unoccupied, and the travellers walked through byways.

7 The inhabitants of the villages ceased, they ceased in Israel, until that I Deborah arose, that I arose a mother in Israel.

8 They chose new gods; then was war in the gates: was there a shield or spear seen among forty thousand in Israel?

9 My heart is toward the governors of Israel, that offered themselves willingly among the people. Bless ye the LORD.

10 Speak, ye that ride on white asses, ye that sit in judgment, and walk by the way.

11 They that are delivered from the noise of archers in the place of drawing water, there shall they rehearse the righteous acts of the LORD, even the righteous acts toward the inhabitants of his villages in Israel: then shall the people of the LORD go down to the gates.

12 Awake, awake, Deborah: awake, awake, utter a song: arise, Barak, and lead thy captivity captive, thou son of Abinoam.

13 Then he made him that remaineth have dominion over the nobles among the people: the LORD made me have dominion over the mighty.

14 Out of Ephraim was there a root of them against Amalek; after thee, Benjamin, among thy people; out of Machar came down governors, and out of Zebulun they that handle the pen of the writer.

15 And the princes of Issachar were with Deborah; even Issachar, and also Barak: he was sent on foot into the valley. For the divisions of Reuben there were great thoughts of heart.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON CHAP. IV.

We see by this history, that when men are not humbled by the evils they have suffered, they often draw new ones upon themselves, by returning to their sins; the choice God made of Deborah, was to shew the Israelites that their deliverance was to be ascribed to him alone, who can make the weakest instruments subservient to the effecting his wise purposes.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ON CHAP. V.

2 Praise ye the Lord, &c.] So majestic are the expressions of this hymn, and such the great variety of elegant figures, that it has been ever justly admired, and allowed not to be equalled by any of the ancient Greek and Latin poets.

When the people willingly offered themselves.] Deborah incites the people to give thanks to God, for moving the hearts of so many to enlist themselves to fight against the enemies of the Lord.

5 The mountains melted, &c.] This is a poetical expression, meaning the inhabitants of the mountains.

6 In the days of Jael, &c.] Here Jael is mentioned, not as a judge, but as a woman of a brave and valiant spirit.

7 The inhabitants of the villages ceased, &c.] i. e. They forsook the villages, which were open and defenceless, and fled for safety to the fortified cities and walled towns.

8 Then was war in the gates, &c.] For the enemies had seized upon, and possessed themselves of their cities and fortresses.

9 Bless ye the Lord.] After commending the governors of Israel, she here carries up their thoughts to God, who had inspired them with that courage, and favoured them with that good success.

12 Awake, awake, Deborah, &c.] After calling upon all often to praise the Lord, she now excites herself, with the most earnest and zealous affection, to celebrate his wonderful works.

hear the bleatings of the flocks? For the divisions of Reuben there were great searchings of heart.

17 Gilcad abode beyond Jordan: and why did Dan remain in ships? After continued on the sea shore, and abode in his breaches.

18 Zebulun and Naphtali were a people that jeopardded their lives unto the death in the high places in the field.

19 The kings came and fought, then fought the kings of Canaan in Taanach by the waters of Megiddo; they took no gain of money.

20 They fought from heaven; the stars in their courses fought against Sisera.

21 The river of Kishon swept them away, that ancient river, the river Kishon. O my soul, thou hast trodden down strength.

22 Then were the horsehoofs broken by the means of the pransings, the pransings of their mighty ones.

23 Curse ye Meroz, said the angel of the Lord, curse ye bitterly the inhabitants thereof; because they came not to the help of the Lord, to the help of the Lord against the mighty.

24 Blessed above women shall Jael the wife of Heber the Kenite be, blessed shall she be above women in the tent.

25 He asked water, and she gave him milk; she brought forth butter in a lordly dish.

26 She put her hand to the nail, and her right hand to the workmen's hammer; and with the hammer she smote Sisera, she smote off his head, when she had pierced and stricken through his temples.

27 At her feet he bowed, he fell, he lay down: at her feet he bowed, he fell: where he bowed, there he fell down dead.

28 The mother of Sisera looked out at a window, and cried through the lattice, Why is his chariot so long in coming? why tarry the wheels of his chariots?

29 Her wise ladies answered her, yea, she returned answer to herself,

30 Have they not sped? have they not divided the prey; to every man a damsel or two; to Sisera a prey of divers colours, a prey of divers colours of needlework, of divers colours of needlework on both sides, meet for the necks of them that take the spoil?

31 So let all thine enemies perish, O Lord: but let them that love him be as the sun when he goeth forth in his might. And the land had rest forty years.

14 Out of Ephraim, &c.] Deborah now enumerates the tribes and families that any ways assisted in this war.

After thee, Benjamin, &c.] The Ephraimites followed the example of Benjamin, by engaging in this quarrel, and assisting Barak.

Out of Machir, &c.] This was an eminent family in Manasseh, settled on the other side Jordan.

17 Gilcad abode beyond Jordan, &c.] The Gadites, under Gilcad, comprehended only half of Gilead, as the other half was given to the children of Machir.

19 The kings came, &c.] At the time the Israelites conquered Canaan, Hazor had several kingdoms subject to it, or depending on it. See Josh. xi. 10.

In Taanach by the waters of Megiddo, &c.] Taanach and Megiddo were two cities, belonging to the Manassites, but situated in the tribe of Issachar. See Josh. xvii. 11.

21 O my soul, thou hast trodden down strength.] A most beautiful apostrophe to herself this, whose happiness she applauds, in beholding such powerful enemies vanquished by the commission which she gave from God to Barak, and by her prayers to God for his success in the great undertaking.

27 At her feet he bowed, &c.] There is great poetical beauty in the reduplication of the words in this verse.

31 So let all thine enemies perish, O Lord, &c.] Here Deborah addresses herself to God, concluding this beautiful poem with a solemn prayer, that all his enemies may be thus disappointed of their vain hopes, and that all who love him, may increase in power and force, as the sun does, from its first rising, till it arrives at his meridian height.
